The bronze compass and sun dial contains rudely engraved upon it the latitude and longitude of several of the principal forts, missions and other settlements in New France. The spelling and other orthographic peculiarities are of the seventeenth century.

Allouez says in his journal that he went to reform a settlement of six French fur traders who were maltreating the Indians. During the winter of 1669-70 he visited along the shore of the bay at various indian villages. The village where the instrument was found was probably one of them, and the instrument may be a relic of Allouez, Marquette's predecessor.

HIS DIGNITY INJURED.

The Awful "Roast" Given a Reporter by the Lady He Sought to Interview.

A reporter on one of the local daily papers is small of stature and looks and behaves like a very young boy. One night recently he was sent to Everett on an assignment by the night city editor, relates the Boston herald. He called at a house and asked for the lady he wished to interview. It was after nine o'clock, and the curfew had warned all children from the streets on penalty of being arrested and locked up.

The questions the reporter asked the lady were impertinent but important. She gazed at the innocent looking "child" before her a moment, and then said: "Little one, you are not a reporter. You are an imposter whom some idle, malicious gossip has sent here to worry me. You ought to be in your bed. Now run along home or you will get arrested and locked in a cold dungeon; for remember, the curfew has rung, and all little boys must be in bed, nicely tucked in, before the curfew rings. So run along like a good little child."

The reporter choked down his wrath and went his way. But his dignity had been injured, and he gave vent to his feelings later when he related his experience to his chief. Now he is devoting all his energy to growing a mustache.

The American Steer.

In tracing the course of this humble but useful bovine that has filled a part in the growth and civilization of Britain, we have followed the path that is traveled every year by tens of thousands of his kind, says Frank Leslie's. The total annual export value of United States cattle which forms the principal item—is in round figures $100,000,000. If we add to this the distributive sales of the various packing establishments in the United States for the domestic market as well, we find that it reaches the enormous total of 1,000,000 carloads, valued at $2,000,000,000. Added to this is the value of the many by-products of the packing house, which amounts to many millions more.

Ignorance of Tourists.

To show the ignorance of many tourists regarding the dangers of Alpine climbing, a dispatch from Zermatt states that a gentleman was recently met starting by himself for a "stroll" up the Matterhorn with an umbrella in his hand!

ARMORY FOR COMPANY K

Assemblyman Newcorn's Bill Provides for Such Armory at the State's Expense.

COUNTY TO GIVE SITE

Bill is Now Before the Lower House of the Legislature—Limit of Cost of Armory Fixed at $50,000 —Substance of the Newcorn Bill Now Before the House.

A most important bill has just been introduced in the lower house of the State Legislature by Assemblyman William Newcorn, whereby Plainfield is to have an armory to house Company K, provided the bill becomes a law. Assemblyman Newcorn hopes to secure the passage of the bill by proving that Plainfield's military company should have a proper place to drill. It is quite safe to presume that all of the Union county representatives will vote for the bill when it comes up in the Assembly. While the measure is intended to take in the whole State, it principally applies to Plainfield.

It is an act to provide for the acceptance of sites for and the erection and equipment of a company armory in cities, towns, boroughs, townships and all other municipalities of this State wherein is or hereafter shall be located the headquarters of a company of the National Guard of this State. It further provides that where a site for such armory is given in fee-simple suitable for a company armory, it shall be lawful for and the members of the military board of the State of New Jersey are appointed and authorized for the purpose of this act to accept on behalf of and in the name of the State, without expense to said State, a plot of land suitable for the erection of such armory.

The act further provides that the county collector in any county of New Jersey shall, whenever a written notice shall be served upon him by the military board, setting forth that a title to such property has been acquired, notify the Board of Chosen Freeholders of said action and the latter body shall set apart for the use of the military board out of the county money such amount as is required by the military board to meet the appropriation for the proposed armory. It gives the Board of Freeholders the right to issue bonds at a rate of interest not to exceed 4 per cent. per annum. This money is to be used in the equipment and maintenance of the armory, and it shall not exceed $10,000.

The measure still further provides that the military board shall obtain by competition or otherwise plans and specifications for the construction of such armory, the same not to exceed in cost $50,000. Before this expenditure is made there must be given a title of the land showing it to be free from all incumbrances, certified by the attorney-general. After suitable plans are procured by the State Military Board, this body is empowered to proceed with the erection of such armory. The work is to be done by contract awarded to the lowest bidder after not less than two weeks' public notice of the time and place when and where bids therefor will be received. The bids are to be opened publicly, and the military board shall have the right to reject any or all bids and advertise anew for bids. The military board is also given the power to employ proper and capable persons to superintend the erection of any such works and such clerical and other aid as it may need.

The comptroller of the State is authorized to draw his warrants on the State treasurer and the latter shall pay the same from time to time as the military board shall certify to the comptroller to be necessary, but not more than $50,000 in any one year shall be drawn, provided no money shall be paid from the State treasury for the purposes aforesaid until the warrants shall be placed in the yearly appropriation bills.

IMPROVING STORE.

R. J. Schreiner Making Plans for Extensive Improvements to Place.

Bert J. Schreiner, proprietor of the drug store at the corner of Park avenue and Second street, is about to have the place entirely renovated and redecorated. The contract has been awarded to the New York Painting and Decorating Company and it will commence work Monday.

The interior of the store will be decorated with white and gold and the ceiling will be of the stencil variety. It will be one of the most completely decorated places in this city.

Miss Conde Morse, of Brooklyn, is the guest of Miss Irene Dunham, of West Front street.

900 DROPS

CASTORIA

A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of INFANTS CHILDREN

Promotes Digestion Cheerfulness and Rest Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.

Recipe of Dr. SAMUEL PITCHER

A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.

Fac Simile Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher NEW YORK.

35 DOSES 35 CENTS

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

ITHACA ASKS QUESTIONS

WANTS TO KNOW WHO INSTALLED PLAINFIELD'S WATER SYSTEM.

Telegram Received From Ithaca Daily News Making Inquiries As to Local Plant.

Plainfield's famous water supply and the system used in obtaining it is well-known throughout the east, and further evidence of this was given Friday in the following telegram received in this city from the Ithaca Daily News:

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 1903.

Superintendent Plainfield Water Works,

Please wire at once name and address of engineer who installed your water system.

Ithaca Daily News.

There is much consternation in Ithaca over the water supply and the prevalence of typhoid fever, and it is the opinion of the officials of the water company in this city that Ithaca learned of Plainfield's system indirectly through a sermon preached last Sunday by Rev. Cornelius Schenck, wherein he referred to Plainfield's water supply.

Louis L. Trebus, of New York, had charge of the construction of the Plainfield system, while E. C. Bridges was the resident engineer. Mr. Brush, of New York, who installed the system, has since died.

SOCIETY AT EUCHRE.

Progressive Euchre Was Last of Series of Events of the In and Out Club.

A progressive euchre formed the last of a series of four events given during the past few months by the In and Out Club, and was held last Monday at the home of Miss Etna Strong, of Central avenue. The affair was a delightful one and the playing was spirited throughout.

The prize winners were Miss Ethel Boyd, first; Miss Florence Huntington, second, and Miss Fanny O. Cox, third. Miss Helen Bushnell won the women's consolation prize. Henry C. Wells was the winner of the first prize and Thomas R. Van Boskerck was the winner of the second while Howard Huntington was the winner of the third. Mr. Calkins captured the men's consolation prize.

The affair was conducted under the supervision of a committee comprising: Miss Etna Strong, Miss Maude Van Boskerck, Miss Dorothy Waldo, Miss McCurdy, Miss Florence Huntington, Miss Annie Murphy and Mrs. James Blake.

Fire in Oil-Soaked Rags.

Spontaneous combustion in a bunch of oil-soaked rags resulted in a slight fire at the home of Mrs. David Vail, of Park avenue, Saturday afternoon. Chief Deane was notified by telephone and responded with the chemical engine and No. 2 hose wagon. On their arrival the blaze had been extinguished. There was no damage.

For Her Guest.

Miss Helen Sharp informally entertained a few friends at her home on Madison avenue, Saturday evening, in honor of her guest, Miss Cora Davenport, of Plymouth, Pa.

EVENING WITH THE POETS

EPWORTH LEAGUERS ARRANGE PLEASANT LITERARY EVENING.

Members Read Short Sketches of American Poets—Selections From Their Works.

"An Evening in the American Poet's Corner," was arranged for last Friday by the literary committee of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church. The affair was held in Vincent chapel and attracted a large number of members and friends. Miss Gertrude Snodgrass, as chairman of the literary committee, was in charge. The programme arranged was very unique. On the first page of each programme was a picture of one of the famous poets or his home.

Inside the programme were a list of these poets, opposite which was the name of a member of the league. These members read short sketches of the lives of the poets, after which James B. Joy read favorite poems the work of the poets. The rest of the evening was spent in a social way and refreshments were served by the committee from the league.

FUNERAL OF JACOB TINGLEY.

Services Held From Seventh-Day Baptist Church Saturday.

The funeral services of the late Jacob Tingley were held Saturday afternoon from the Seventh-Day Baptist church, where a large number of friends gathered. Rev. George B. Shaw, pastor of the church, conducted the services, assisted by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis. There were three selections by a vocal quartette consisting of Miss Nan Randolph, Miss Cornelia Miller, David E. Titsworth and L. W. Rogers. The interment took place in the Seventh-Day Baptist cemetery on Eighth street and those who served as pall-bearers were Dr. Frank S. Wells, W. D. Randolph, T. C. Smith, F. A. Dunham.

DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve.

The only positive cure for blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles, cuts, burns, bruises, eczema and all abrasions of the skin. DeWitt's is the only Witch Hazel Salve that is made from the pure, unadulterated witch hazel—all others are counterfeits. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is made to cure—counterfeits are made to sell. L. W. Randolph.

No Reasonable Man

imagines that a neglected cold can be cured in a day. The uncountable air-cells in the lungs are inflamed and the throat is as tender as an open sore. But time and Allen's Lung Balsam will overcome the cold and stave off consumption. The cough will cease and the lungs will be sound as a new dollar. All druggists sell Allen's Lung Balsam.

THE OLDEST NEWSBOY.

Although 90 Years of Age He Rises Every Morning at Four to Meet Early Trains.

A familiar figure seen around the Chicago & Alton depot at Joliet, Ill., every morning when the Kansas City train arrives at 6:15 a. m., is the oldest newsboy (or rather newsman) in the United States. Mr. Orsamus Page has been selling newspapers in Joliet since the world's fair, in 1893, never missing a single day, or failing to meet the early trains. Page was born in 1809, being 93 years of age, and retains his vigor to such an extent that he is able to rise every morning at four o'clock and deliver 30 or 40 papers before the early train arrives. This is particularly remarkable, from the fact that this "newsboy" has but one leg. Mr. Page comes from very long lived parents and grandparents—his father dying at 89, his mother at 98, while his grandfather lived to be 102, and his grandmother 105.

ORSAMUS PAGE.
(He Is Probably the Oldest Newsman in the United States.)

He began life as a farmer, then engaged in driving stock east from Iowa, as early as 1848. He then turned his attention to railroad work, and had several contracts for grading on the Chicago & Alton railway, near Springfield, Ill., in 1857. After working a number of years on the railway, he again went to farming, and it was at this time that he lost his leg, it being crushed in a threshing machine.

Just before "refiring" to sell newspapers, by which means he is able to support his family, he was engaged in selling coal at Joliet.

WILL RELIEVE CHAFFEE.

Gen. George W. Davis Designated Commander of American Army in the Philippines.

When Gen. Adna R. Chaffee is relieved of the chief command of the American forces in the Philippines he will be succeeded by an officer amply competent to fill the position. The coming new commander is Gen. George Whitefield Davis, who was promoted some time ago to be major general. Gen. Davis, who is 63 years old, will have but nine months to serve as head of the army in the archipelago, as he will be retired for age in July, 1903. The general is one of our successful soldiers who never had a West Point education. He enlisted in the volunteers during the first year of the civil war and in 1866 was mustered out with the rank of major. The next year he secured a captaincy in the regular army, and from that time until the Spanish-American war his advancement was slow. He made a reputation, however, as an engineer. On the outbreak of the conflict with Spain he was appointed a brigadier general of volunteers and was elevated to the like rank in the regular service in 1900. He was military governor of Porto Rico in 1899-1900 and made a good record in that post. He is the author of several monographs on Porto Rico. Gen. Davis was ordered from Porto Rico to the Philippines, where his work has been highly commendable.

GEN. GEORGE W. DAVIS.
(Newly Designated Commander of Army in the Philippines.)

Dead Head Mail Matter.

It was disclosed by examinations made in the Washington city post offices, coverings a period of about two and a half months, that 979,820 pieces of paid matter and 5,000,000 pieces of unpaid (or "franked") matter of all classes went through, the unpaid matter on some days running as high as 135,000, 127,000, 126,000, 125,000 and 122,000 pieces, while the percentage per day would often go to about 90, crawling up as high as 95 per cent. on a single day, and averaging 85% per cent. every day.

Increase of Pensioners.

Legislation enacted by the last congress will result in at least 10,000 new pensioners.

The World's Zenith City.

The population of Moscow shows a remarkably rapid increase. Within the comparatively short period of 30 years the number of inhabitants has just about doubled. At the time of the French invasion in 1812 the urban Muscovites numbered about 300,000, although the official figures were 252,000, says the London Standard. In 1871 the official census gave the population as 602,000, in 1882 it was 753,000, and according to the reckoning now completed the historic capital contains 1,175,500 inhabitants, thus taking the tenth place among the most populous cities of the world. Moscow covers an area of 101 square kilometers, or only two kilometers less than that of St. Petersburg. Area is not, however, by any means a general criterion. In questions of populations, as appears from the fact that whereas London, with the largest population of any city in the world, covers 303 square kilometers, New York, with a population numbering more than a million less than that of the British metropolis, has a total area of 795 square kilometers. The population of Moscow is less dense than those of St. Petersburg, Glasgow, London, Berlin and Paris.

International Telephony.

Paris is the center of an international telephone wire net; its extreme ends are London, Hamburg, Berlin and (in connection with the French-Italian line about to be opened) Turin and Milan. The Paris-Berlin line is the longest, with about 625 miles of wire. The Paris-Hamburg line is about the same. The distance from Paris to Turin, measured by an air line, is about 375 miles, and that between Paris and Milan about 470 miles. But all these lines are eclipsed in length by that between Paris and Cologne, 480 miles in a direct line, but by indirect connection, often rendered necessary by breaks in the other service. In such cases a person in Paris desiring to speak to Cologne is connected via Berlin. This roundabout way increases the wire distance about 375 miles, making the total about 1,000 miles. The Cologne Gazette states that this does not impair the distinctness of the message, and no loss of time is noted in using this increased distance.—N. Y. Herald.

Time Saved by Metric System.

The committee on coinage, weights and measures, in its report to the house of representatives favoring the adoption of the metric system of the United States government, says that estimates made by the department of education and others show that, in the life of every child at school, two-thirds of a year would be saved by the adoption of the metric arithmetic. It is also averred, as a matter of evidence, that the metric system and its application to the solution of problems may be learned in one-tenth of the time required for gaining equal facility in the use of the English system of weights and measures.—Youth's Companion.

Discarded War Material.

Some idea of the vast quantities of discarded war material thrown upon the general market by the successive changes in armament adopted by the various great powers may be gathered from the list of arms now offered for sale from this cause by the Italian government. The list includes 600,000 rifles adopted as recently as 1887, with 48,000,000 cartridges, 1,200 9-pounders and 500 7-pounder guns, with 200,000 shells, and 170 7-pounder mountain guns, with 17,000 shells.—Washington Star.

What Answer Could She Make?

Mother—Elsie, your sister tells me you took a second helping of pudding at Mrs. Brown's to-day.

Little Elsie—So I did, mamma.

"Do you think that was right, Elsie?"

"Yes. You know you have often told me not to contradict anyone, and Mrs. Brown said: 'You know Elsie, will have a second helping to pudding,' and I couldn't contradict her, could I?"—Washington Star.

Egg Consumption in England.

Eggs consumed in England during the past 12 months would, it is computed, fill upward of 40,000 railway trucks. Of these only one-third were English, and in consequence an enormous sum of money was sent out of the country that might be kept at home had those engaged in rural industries been alive to their opportunities, says Pearson's Weekly.

Matter of Geography.

"How often does the earth have a revolution?" asked the teacher.

"What part of the earth?" inquired the pupil.

"What part?"

"Yes sir. If you mean in the United States, every 24 hours; but if you mean in South America, they have 'em oftener."—Philadelphia Record.

Medicine Not to Blame.

"Troubled with dyspepsia, are you? Did you ever try any of my medicine?" asked the druggist.

"Oh, yes; but that wasn't that that gave it to me. I had it long before I took any of your stuff."—Yonkers Statesman.

Finding Fault.

If you are so critical that you must find fault, look yourself over. Finding fault with yourself will do some good; you cannot accomplish anything by finding fault with others.—Atchison Globe.

Very Useful.

Mr. Subbub—I see you are keeping a horse now. Do you find him useful?

Mr. Hubb—Well, I guess so. Why, how'd I go to mill for feed for him if I didn't have him?—Judge.

HOPE BESTED REFORM CLUB

LEAGUE BASKET BALL GAME PLAYED LAST MONDAY.

Hope Y. M. A. Defeated Opponents 25 to 13 in An Interesting Game.

An enthusiastic but not very large audience witnessed the league basket ball game between the Hope Y. M. A. and the Reform Club teams at Reform Hall, last Monday. The game was an exciting one from start to finish, although the Hope team appeared a little too much for its opponents.

Taylor was the star man on the home team, while Scott and O'Loughlin played a close second. The opposing team played well together and individually and the defense showed improvement. The Hope team had another advantage, besides practice, that of substituting other players in the second half. The first half ended with the score 18 to 6 in favor of Hope and the finish showed a score of 25 to 13 in favor of the visiting team.

In the first half the Hope team threw six goals from the field and six from fouls, and in the last half they threw two goals from the field and eight from fouls. The Reform Club team threw two goals from the field and two from fouls in the first half, and one from the field and four from fouls in the last half.

The teams lined up as follows:

HOPE Y. M. A.		Reform Club.
Dilks	R.F.	Scott
Porter	L.F.	Taylor
Whitley, Cose	C.	Nichols
Roscherry, Evans	R.G.	Higgins
Chamberlain, McComb	L.G.	O'Loughlin

Referee—W. C. Geiger. Umpires—H. M. Hoffman and M. W. Munger. Score—G. 25, Firstbrook. Timer—Walter C. Dobbins.

A FAMILIAR FACE HAS GONE

JACOB TINGLEY, OLD RESIDENT, HAS PASSED AWAY.

Was a Well-Known Carriage Maker in This City for a Number of Years.

In the death of Jacob Tingley, which occurred at his home in Washington Park, Feb. 18, another one of the best known citizens has passed away. Mr. Tingley, who was in the eighty-sixth year of his age, lived in and near Plainfield all his life.

He was born in Washington Valley and for many years was a well-known carriage-maker, in which business he was successful. His home for a number of years was on West Fourth street, where Dr. Anderson now resides. A few years ago he sold the property to the physician and took up his residence in the borough. His health had been poor for a long time and his death was not unexpected. Mr. Tingley was a member of the Seventh-Day Baptist church and when able always attended services there.

The deceased is survived by a wife and daughter, the latter being Mrs. Chappel. The funeral services were held on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Seventh-Day Baptist church.

CELEBRATED LECTURER.

Ernest Thompson-Seton Gave Two Delightful Talks at the Casino Monday.

America's authority on its animals, Ernest Thompson - Seton, delighted good sized audiences at the Casino, Monday afternoon and evening, with two of his newest lectures. The effect of his graphic descriptions was greatly enhanced by stereopticon views from photographs taken by himself.

In the afternoon his lecture was "The Indians as I Knew Them" and it did much to dispel the false notions people have of the red man, both of the present day and of Fenimore Cooper's time. He delighted the younger element of the audience by building a fire on the stage in traditional savage fashion without matches, simply by rubbing two sticks of wood together.

The evening lecture was "New Adventures of Animal Friends" and dwelt mainly with the "freezing" or standing still habit, practiced by wild animals when frightened.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Meaney, of High Bridge, have been visiting Plainfield relatives.

John and Lindley Cockburn, of West Front street, are detained at home with mumps.

Jacob Beckman, of Fairview avenue, has gone to New Orleans, where he will spend a few weeks combining business with pleasure.

All who use Atomizers in treating nasal catarrh will get the best result from Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price, including spraying tube, 75 cts. Sold by druggists or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren St., N. Y.

New Orleans, Sept. 1, 1900.

Messrs. Ely Bros.:—I sold two bottles of your Liquid Cream Balm to a customer, Wm. Lamberton, 1415 Delachaise St., New Orleans; he has used the two bottles, giving him wonderful and most satisfactory results. Geo. W. McDuff, Pharmacist.

MORE MONEY FOR STREETS

The Only Increase in Borough Budget Fixed Last Friday by the Borough Council.

THE SEWER QUESTION

Annual Reports Received at Last Session of the Retiring Council—Discussion of Questions of Interest to the Borough—Fixing of the Tax Budget.

The reading of annual reports, making up the ensuing year's budget and discussing matters of interest to the municipality occupied the attention of the Borough Council at an adjourned meeting, Friday night. While several of the latter were of importance, pertinent remarks in regard to the borough's need of a sanitary sewer, made by Mayor Smalley, took precedence and resulted in many favorable opinions being given. They were put in such a light that the Council will undoubtedly take decided action, once reorganization is effected after the coming election.

According to the report of the clerk the total receipts for the year were $78,361.31 and the disbursements for all purposes $78,233.43, leaving a balance of $127.88. Briefly the other reports as submitted by the respective chairmen of the committees were as follows: Streets, disbursements, $5,327.67, receipts, $155.47; poor account, disbursements, $900; police department, salaries, special marshals, meals and committments, clothing, repairs and sundries, $5,031.20; fire department, $1,230.86; fire department, $1,230.86. In connection with the police report, Chairman Lee stated that during the year there had been 122 arrests, eight had been committed to Somerville and two deported to Ireland and $236 in fines had been collected.

The salaried officers of the borough were given as follows: George F. Brown, collector, $1,900; Elston M. French, assessor, $600; Frank Rowley, clerk, $500; Charles A. Reed, counsel, $350; Albert Pittis, physician, $125; Thomas Doud, recorder, $200; W. G. Debele, overseer of the poor, $150.

With one exception, in preparing the budget, the amounts asked for were practically the same as last year and they were readily granted. Chairman Arnold, of the street committee, asked for $6,000, an increase of $1,000. Several of the councilmen were inclined to demur until he explained that it was the purpose of his committee during the coming twelve months to open up Watchung avenue from its present terminus further northward, and macadamize Pearl and Stone streets and Steiner place. Inside making considerable repairs. His request was granted.

The budget complete amounts to $20,800 and Mr. Nichols proposed that the amount be raised by taxation. The details follow: Fire, $2,000; streets, $6,000; lights, $5,000; water, $1,300; poor, $1,000; incidentals, $1,000; Watchung avenue bonds, $1,000; police, $3,000; Somerset street widening, $500.

Borough Counsel Reed reported to the Council that he had been informed that all appeals in regard to the dispute over assessments on bank stock had been withdrawn from the State Board of Taxation and that the borough would be saved any law suits. It was the concluding item of business and the Council adjourned.

JURY COULDN'T DECIDE.

No Question Between Landlord and Tenant Remains Unsettled.

A twelve man jury in Justice Moffett's court, Thursday, failed to agree as to whether Mrs. Louise Apgar should vacate premises occupied by her and owned by Charles H. Hand. It is understood the jury stood eight to four in favor of Mrs. Apgar.

The case is a novel one and involves a question of the landlord living up to an agreement. Mrs. Apgar alleges that when she took the premises it was with the understanding Hand was to furnish the fuel and heat. She declares that was not done and being it herself, she withheld a month's rent. Her counsel was S. S. Swackhamer while L. P. Runyon appeared for Hand. The case will be re-tried.

Good Skating.

*Large numbers of young people en*joyed the skating on Tice's pond Saturday afternoon. The ice was never in better condition than it was then and skaters took advantage of it. The skating was good on most all of the other ponds although on the Watchung pond ice was being cut and consequently skating was spoiled there.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXVI. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, MARCH 5, 1903. NO. 10

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

RAILROAD CO. IS CENSURED

Grand Jury Brings In Presentment After Investigating Westfield Disaster.

ITS VERDICT IN FULL.

Grand Jury Declares That Engineer Davis Was Primarily to Blame, But That Jersey Central and Reading Are Deserving of Censure—The Reasons Why.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Elizabeth, March 4—Engineer Davis was directly responsible for the Westfield disaster but the Jersey Central and Reading Railroads were deserving of censure for several reasons. That was the opinion of the Grand Jury as made public this morning after a long investigation following upon that of the coroner's jury. A presentment was brought in against the railroad companies and submitted to the court. There were no indictments.

For several weeks the Grand Jury has been considering the question of the responsibility for the wreck. A number of witnesses have been summoned and the ground gone over by the coroner's jury reviewed. Some new witnesses were brought over from Philadelphia in an effort to throw new light on the subject.

It was well known that certain members of the Grand Jury were determined to fix the responsibility on the railroad company if it were possible. It is generally believed that the unusually long session of the Grand Jury was largely due to the attempt to search out facts on which to base this claim. From the substance of the presentment, however, the opinion prevails here that the Grand Jury was able to secure no additional light on the case and that the verdict is practically the same as that of the coroner's jury except that it is placed in different form.

The Grand Jury was in session yesterday morning and adjourned to meet again this morning. It was not long after 10 o'clock when the jury announced that it was ready. A decision may be reached in that body by a majority vote of its twenty-three members. The Grand Jury marched over to the Armory where court was in session and through its foreman, J. W. Murray, Jr., of Plainfield, announced that it had completed its labors. It had one indictment, nothing to do with the wreck case, and the presentment. The presentment was read by John K. English, clerk of the Grand Jury, and that body was discharged by Judge Vail with the thanks of the court. The presentment was ordered placed upon the minutes of the court. It was in full as follows:

Union County, ss:

The grand inquest of the State of New Jersey in and for the County of Union,

Present, that in accordance with instructions received from his honor, Judge Vail, they have made careful investigation relative to the disastrous railroad wreck which occurred on the Central Railroad near Westfield in this county, on the evening of January 27, 1903.

In order to get all the facts attainable, the Grand Jury has called to appear before it and has interrogated railroad officials, railroad engineers, operatives and private citizens and from all the evidence adduced, the Grand Jury has arrived at the following conclusions:

1. Engineer Davis of Engine No. 27 is primarily responsible for the railroad wreck, in that he ran his train past five danger signals set against him.

2. That the reason for his doing so was that the signals were obscured from his view by steam escaping from either a faulty injector or a leaking steam chest, either or both of which became out of order between Jersey City and Elizabeth.

3. That after the cab of the engine became so enveloped with steam that signals were invisible to the engineer, he should have shut off steam or stopped his engine until he could have found out whether or not the track ahead of him was clear.

4. We do not think that the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey used sufficient precautions to avert the disaster. Its train dispatcher knew before the train left Jersey City that an

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 8.)

READY FOR HOPE MINSTRELS

THEY WILL BE GIVEN THREE EVENINGS NEXT WEEK.

Those Who Will Act As Principals —Will Excel Last Year's Famous Effort.

From present indications, the second annual minstrel show of the Young Men's Association of Hope chapel will far surpass the success attained by the initial effort. The troupe this season consists of forty members, all of whom are excellent vocalists while the soloists and comedians have greatly improved.

John H. Cose will again act as interlocutor and his cohorts on the end will be Matthew Sweeney, Edward Shortman and William L. Holbert, handling the bones and George Cose, Thomas Muir and Bertram C. Firstbrook with the tambos. They have been supplied with a large number of local hits in the way of songs and jokes while they will be assisted by the chorus in giving some of the best and latest popular medleys. Solos will also be given by Lewis Tallamy, Charles Leland, Henry Williams, Augustus Feiring and Elmer D. Cutting.

The performances are to be given on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday evenings of next week and the tickets are already selling rapidly. It is announced by the committee that the number will be limited in order to prevent taxing the capacity of the chapel as was the case last year.

NO NEW MAJOR.

Cadet Captain Will be Acting Major of the Battalion to End of Term.

Owing to the resignation of Cadet Major E. D. Murphey, and Sergeants C. Brown and H. M. Hanson from their offices in the City High School battalion, the following promotions have been made: Corporals P. Brown, H. E. Lavelle and S. Freeman have been promoted to sergeants, and Cadets J. Gavett and G. M. Rittenhouse, Jr., have been appointed corporals.

Nothing definite has been done in the matter of appointing a successor to Cadet Major Murphey, who was compelled to leave school on account of ill health, but it is probable that no major will be appointed this year, but that one of the company captains will serve as acting major in drills until the close of school.

To Name Officers.

The nominating committee of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church will meet Friday evening when they will make the nominations for the election of officers which will be held in a few weeks. The committee comprises C. W. McCutchen, chairman; Miss Florence Marsh and Daniel R. Douglas. The committee will meet after the regular weekly prayer meeting this evening.

Change on Lehigh.

Charles S. Lee, general passenger agent of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, recently issued a circular letter, which took effect Monday. The letter announces that the office of assistant general passenger agent will be abolished, and A. A. Hard, who has filled that position, will become general eastern passenger agent, with office at 355 Broadway, New York, vice W. B. Smith, who has been assigned to other duties.

Rev. Mr. Crudup in Charge.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Dorcas Perkins were held from the Mt. Olive Baptist church, Sunday afternoon, and Rev. E. J. Crudup officiated. It was stated that the services were at the Calvary Baptist church and that Rev. Scott Wallace was in charge.

In Good Condition.

The Official Board meeting of the Grace M. E. church was held Monday evening. Rev. Dr. Edwin L. Earp, pastor of the church, presided at the meeting. Reports were read which showed a good condition of the church.

STOLE CLOTHES.

Burglars Visited John D. Glueck's Home at Westfield Monday Night.

The home of John D. Glueck, at Westfield, was entered Monday night and some clothing was stolen. The robbers were in the act of robbing other parts of the house when a servant, hearing a noise, arose and disturbed the intruders. They fled from the house through a second story window, taking the clothing with them. The robbery occurred between 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning. Mr. Glueck is a steamship broker in New York and is very well-known in this city to many commuters.

IDEAS APPLIED TO THE LOCAL SCHOOLS

Superintendent Maxson's Report of Recent Convention of School Superintendents.

SOME IDEAS ADVANCED

HE DRAWS ATTENTION TO THEIR PRACTICAL APPLICATION IN THIS CITY.

Would Make New High School An Educational Centre—The Need of Introduction of Manual Training in All the Grades.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Education, Monday evening, Superintendent H. M. Maxson submitted a report of his attendance at the annual meeting of the National Association of School Superintendents, which was held last week at Cincinnati. As usual Professor Maxson took an active part in the proceedings and the impressions he gained were related in detail to the board. The report was as follows:

"Through the kindness of the board, I was in attendance last week at the annual meeting of the National Association of School Superintendents, in Cincinnati. I also took occasion to spend some time in visiting the public schools of that city.

"The meeting was attended by about eight hundred superintendents from various parts of the country, and there was much that was instructive and helpful to the superintendent in the papers presented and the discussions that followed. No small part of the value of such meetings is the opportunity to discuss ideas and learn the ways and methods of various systems in other cities through conversation with the superintendents, both in transit on the cars and in the intervals between the meetings. Among the subjects discussed, some of the more important were as follows:

"Better Methods in Geography, a Readjustment of the High School Curriculum to Meet Modern Needs, The Use of Literature in the Grades, Industrial Training, The Most Effective Use of the Superintendent's Time, What Should be the Features of a Modern Elementary School Building, Some of the Practical Problems in Manual Training, and The Best Method of Electing School Boards.

"The latter subject was especially interesting, since the plan which found expression was almost identical with that followed in our own city. It was maintained that the School Board should consist of five members, each elected for five years, one vacancy occurring each year; that the board should be strictly non-political, and the members should be elected at large, not by wards. One of the important claims advanced for a small board was that it would make it possible for the business to be transacted by the whole board, as a committee of the whole, so that each member would be conversant with the business then, as is the practice in your board.

"In the matter of industrial training, it was maintained that there should be training for the hands, involving invention and skill on the part of the pupil, not only in the High School, as is so common in many cities, but through all the grades to the very lowest where the work would consist of simple forms of constructive work with paper, cardboard, raffia, and the like. As is already known to you, this agrees with my own views. For some years, now, I have looked forward with eager impatience to the erection of the High School as affording an opportunity not only for manual training for the older pupils, but, by the readjustments which would follow and the stimulus which it would give, for developing lines of work that would give the pupils opportunity to do things with their hands in all the lower grades. Many of the teachers are already, with my encouragement, doing some of this work. It is to be hoped that the High School unanimously provided for by the Board of Estimate will enable us in a year or so to establish a complete system of manual training. The discussion of the features of a modern school building was of special interest to me in view of the plans which must soon be made for this new High School. It tended to confirm the views which I already held in some particulars, and to clarify my ideas concerning others.

"President Eliot, of Harvard College, gave a most interesting address on 'The Fail Utilization of the School Plant,' in which he held that it is a wasteful policy to use a school building only during the five or six hours in which the day school is in session; that it ought to be used by the public much more widely for educational classes, lectures, and other matters of interest or profit to the citizens. He maintained especially that the High School should be the centre of educational activity in the community and that through it much more might be done than is done at present for educating and improving those who are no longer pupils. It has been a part of my plans for the new High School building that there should be a good-sized assembly hall and also a smaller hall, suitable for an audience of about one hundred, which might be used for lectures, classes of various kinds, circles of study and other educational interests, and that the school might thereby be made to serve a much wider circle than it does at present. I am pleased to find the idea endorsed by so high an authority as Dr. Eliot."

DEATH AFTER LONG ILLNESS

PATROLMAN FLANNIGAN PASSES AWAY FROM EFFECTS OF PARALYSIS.

One of the Pioneer Members of the Local Police Department—Was Appointed in 1883.

Following an illness of nearly two years, death came yesterday morning to Patrolman Patrick J. Flannigan, at his home on West Fifth street. His original ailment was brought on by a stroke of paralysis from which he never fully recovered. During the greater part of his illness, he was able to move about only with the aid of crutches or an invalid's chair.

Patrick Flannigan was one of the oldest members of the local police force, having been appointed in 1883 when it then comprised but three men of whom Doorman Thomas McCue is the only one remaining. He served faithfully until the time his illness began. During his early patrolling days he was stationed the greater part of the time on West Third street between Liberty street and Plainfield avenue and it was he who first dubbed that section, "The Boulevard" a name which it still retains. Many others have claimed to be the originators of the title but there is no doubt that Patrolman Flannigan was the first to call it so.

He was sixty-five years of age and came to Plainfield in 1868. Surviving him are a wife and five daughters, the latter being Mrs. Charles Ward, Mrs. Michael Whalen, and the Misses Catherine, Elizabeth and Loretta Flannigan, all of this city. No arrangements have yet been made for the funeral, but it will in all probability take place from St. Mary's church of which he was a member.

HEALTH MATTERS.

Nothing Startling Developed at the Meeting of the City Board of Health Tuesday Afternoon.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Board of Health was held Tuesday afternoon, when 7 routine matters were considered. All the members but President O. J. Fisk were present.

Health Inspector William Addis reported that he made during February 145 inspections. Health Officer Leon B. Thurlow submitted his customary report of dairy inspections and milk analysis, there being a marked improvement over previous conditions. It was reported that the child at the isolation hospital ill with small-pox will probably be discharged next week. Thus far no new cases have developed. Several important matters which were to have been considered yesterday were laid over until the next meeting.

Cake Sale Instead of Fair.

A meeting of the King's Daughters of the Grace M. E. church was held Monday night at the church. Reports were read which showed that good work has been done during the past year. It was decided not to hold a fair as at first planned but to hold a cake sale at the church a week from Saturday.

After Trolley Company.

William G. DeMeza, has been retained as counsel by Lyle Compton, of North Plainfield, in an action against the Plainfield, Elizabeth and Central Jersey Railroad Company. The suit is for damages for injuries received February 26, last.

Sewing Meeting.

The women of the First Presbyterian church will hold a sewing meeting Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. W. Walker in the Jackson building.

—Strictly fresh vegetables and the best of foreign and domestic fruits at Newman Brothers. Indian River oranges a specialty.

MISS RANDOLPH TO RETIRE FROM SCHOOL

Her Place in the Randolph-Cooley School to be Filled by a Woman From Savannah.

HIGHLY RECOMMENDED

ANNOUNCEMENT WAS MADE AT A MEETING TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

Miss Caroline Randolph Will Sever Her Connection at the Close of the Present School Year—The Additions to the Faculty.

During the last week a general invitation was extended to the parents of the pupils attending the Randolph-Cooley Collegiate School to meet at the school Tuesday afternoon, at which time an announcement was to be made of special interest. A large number gathered at the appointed hour and Miss Caroline Randolph in an appropriate speech made the announcement that she had decided at the expiration of the present school year to sever her connection with the school and took the opportunity to announce to the parents with great gratification that the school hereafter would be under the special guidance of Miss Emelyn Hartridge, the founder and recent principal of one of the most successful schools for children and young women of the south, located at Savannah, Ga.

Miss Hartridge is a woman of great experience, a person of charming personality and has undertaken as a life work school work, and by reason of her superior educational qualities is especially adapted to continue the Randolph-Cooley school which has been such a successful institution of learning in the city of Plainfield in the last few years. Miss Marion Randolph will continue as associate principal and Miss Mellick will, as heretofore, continue as principal of the elementary department.

The curriculum will continue the same as in previous years. Added to the corps of teachers will be Miss Ward, of Orange, who has been associated with Miss Hartridge in her Savannah school for some years past as head French teacher. Miss Ward has had a wide experience having lived in Paris and devoted considerable time to the translation of French works into English. She will prove undoubtedly a very valuable acquisition to the school, she being a most thorough French scholar. Miss Mary Wells, a Smith College graduate, will also be associated with the school during the coming year devoting her services to history and geography.

It is needless to say that Miss Randolph's announcement, which she felt very necessary to make before issuing the usual application blanks for the approaching year, caused considerable surprise. It is a well known fact that Miss Randolph and Miss Cooley have brought their school to a very enviable position and the success of their efforts is well known in other parts of the State. The introduction of Miss Hartridge to the audience assembled was most gratifying and it took her but a few moments in well chosen words to impress those present most favorably. Certainly from the very high recommendation with which Miss Hartridge comes to our city it can be confidently expected that the Randolph-Cooley Collegiate School, which is to be continued under the same name, will meet with the same success in the future as it has in the past.

Miss Hartridge's school, founded by her soon after her graduation from Vassar eleven years ago, has long been recognized as one of the most thorough and complete private schools for girls in the south. She now leaves Savannah to undertake a broader field of work here. The patrons of the Randolph-Cooley School will find in her a person with high ideals of education and exceptional character and executive ability. Although it is very natural that much regret will be felt at the retirement of Miss Caroline Randolph, it must seem very apparent to those in close touch with the interest of the school that the choice of Miss Hartridge as her successor is a wise stroke, thereby assuring the continuance in this city of a superior school.

At the conclusion of the meeting Miss Randolph was surrounded by many interested friends, who were eager to extend their congratulations and best wishes for her future happiness.

George Green, has returned home after a year's service as seaman on the cruiser Columbia.

WAGNER MUSICALES.

Series to be Given by Miss Neuhaus at Plainfield Residences.

A series of Wagner musicales of The Ring of the Nibelungen will be given by Miss Estella Neuhaus, of Boston, Mass., on Tuesday mornings at 11 o'clock on the following dates and places:

March 10, "Das Rheingold" at the residence of Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers; March 17, "Die Walkure," at the residence of Mrs. C. W. McCutchen; March 24, "Siegfried," at the residence of Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers; March 31, "Gotterdammerung," place to be announced later.

SOCIAL FOR ENDEAVORERS

GAMES AND MUSIC WERE THE FEATURES OF SOCIAL TUESDAY.

Society at Trinity Reformed Church Spent a Pleasant Evening in Various Ways.

Unique games and other novel features characterized one of the most delightful socials given by the social committee of the Trinity Reformed church Christian Endeavor Society and made Tuesday's event a very pleasing one. The attendance was very large.

Music and recitation entered largely into the programme. Miss Ursula Krewson favored with several pleasing recitations. A piano duet was played by Misses Katherine Finger and Theresa Casenova. Among the games which were played were the penny game, "The Race for Names" and the "age" game. All these proved to be very entertaining and were greatly enjoyed by all.

The rooms were tastefully decorated in red and green. Refreshments, which were served at a late hour, were in charge of Albert Utsinger and Fred Dunavan.

The committee in charge of the social, and to whom much credit is due for the success of the affair, comprised the Misses H. M. Kreitling, Minnie Wyman, Nettie Young, Kate Bodine, Emma Lindsay, Bessie Martin, and Elizabeth Davenport; H. S. Humes and Clarence Rittenhouse, of the social committee; Elmer P. Wheeler, W. J. Trembath, John Van-Horn, C. F. Colthar and Julius Williams, of the reception committee; and the Misses Anna Searing, Anna Bodine, Anna Randall, and Jean Lindsay; Mrs. Edward Rose and Mrs. W. J. Trembath, of the flower committee, who had charge of the decorations.

WORK IN WEST.

Rev. Robert M. Craig Will Address Meeting in Plainfield Friday.

Rev. Robert M. Craig, who has the supervision of the work of the Boards of Home Missions of the Presbyterian church in New Mexico and Arizona, which includes the mission school work of the Woman's Board, will give an account of his work at the annual meeting to be held Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church.

Mr. Craig has spoken in many of our prominent churches to large audiences and always with great acceptance. Facts, incidents and experiences related in most pleasing manner interest, instruct and thrill his audiences. All hearing him will be both delighted and profited.

Excursion for Boys.

The boys' secretaries of the State Y. M. C. A.'s are arranging an excursion for the boys in their departments, to Washington, D. C., between March 13 and 16, inclusive. The cost of the trip per boy will be $15.50. All those who want to enjoy this trip from the local association can secure all details from Secretary Robbie at the local Y. M. C. A.

Missionary Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church will be held in the parlors of the church Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. There will be an address by Rev. Mr. Craig, Synodical missionary for New Mexico and Arizona. An offering will be received for special objects. Tea will be served at 5 o'clock.

Lenten Sewing Class.

The first meeting of the Lenten Sewing Class will be held at the residence of Mrs. Rufus E. Lincoln, West Eighth street, Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The work this year will be for a sale to be held for Grace P. E. church after Easter. There will be six meetings in all.

Osteopaths.

Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Wilcox, both graduates of the American School of Osteopathy, of Kirksville, Mo., have located in our city, with offices at 122 Crescent avenue.

$25 FINE FOR SPEAK EASIES

Eight Fined $25 For Selling On Sunday—Sentence Suspended On Other Charge.

FOR ILLEGAL SELLING.

Local Defendants, Who Pleaded Non Vult, Arraigned Before Judge Vail Yesterday for Sentence—Future Violation Will Bring Request for Imprisonment.

Elizabeth, March 4—In the court of Oyer and Terminer, this morning, Judge Vail pronounced sentence in the Plainfield "speak easy" cases. Each of the following defendants, who had pleaded non volt to selling liquor on Sunday, were fined $25 and costs: Lorenzo Paoli, Pasquale Rosso, Tony Lasardi, Nicholas Martone, Carlo Carbone, Hillard T. Everitt, Antonio Bruno and Frank Margentino. The defendants were originally indicted on two charges, for selling without a license and for selling on Sunday. On the first charge there was a suspension of sentence. The prosecutor declared that if at any time in the future he learned of their selling again illegally, he would have the charge re-opened and would recommend imprisonment.

IN THE NAVY.

Word Received From Edward Wragg Who Left Plainfield Three Years Ago.

For the first time since he left this city, three years ago, word has been received from Edward Wragg, a former well-known resident. In a letter received by his sister, Mrs. Howard Allegar, of East Second street, yesterday, he made it known that he has been pretty well around the globe since he bade Plainfield adieu.

On leaving Plainfield he went to Galveston, Tex., and was there during the terrible devastation and flood. He afterward joined the navy and has visited in England, Italy, Austria, Greece, France, Germany, Sweden and Norway. He is now in London and reports being in excellent health.

CLERKS TO INCORPORATE.

Retail Clerks' Mutual Aid Association Will be a Legal Organization.

The Retail Clerks' Mutual Benefit Association, of this city, has retained William G. DeMeza as its counsel to file articles of incorporation in Trenton. The papers will be filed this week. The object of the association will be to pay sick benefits and also death benefits to those members who are at the time of their illness or death, in good standing.

The corporation will be known as the Retail Clerks' Mutual Aid Association and will have the following officers: President, H. P. Greenwood; first vice president, F. C. Conke; second vice president, Miss Kate Carty; recording secretary, Griffith Jenkins; financial secretary, Miss Elizabeth Day, and treasurer, William D. Williams.

Frightened at Car.

Becoming frightened at the sight of an approaching trolley car on upper Somerset street, the horse of J. W. Mundy ran away up that street, Monday morning, narrowly missing the car in its mad flight. The horse had been left hitched to a post in front of the store of Currin & Conover, at the corner of Somerset street and Grandview avenue. No damage was done to the wagon nor the horse as it was captured a few blocks away.

Reports Received.

A meeting of the West End Hose Company was held Monday evening at the headquarters on Harrison avenue when important matters were transacted. Reports were read. A social time was enjoyed after the meeting.

Old Pastor Preached.

For the first time in several months, Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes preached at the First Baptist church, Sunday evening. His sermon was a forceful and interesting one and was listened to by a large congregation.

Strange People.

A lecture on "Strange People" will be given at Warren chapel, by Rev. Delos E. Fisk, Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. The lecture will be illustrated.

The Great Gospel of Cheerfulness

"HOW do you manage to keep so cheerful?" I asked the friend who had had many troubles.

"Because I have to," came the answer.

And while I was pondering over her odd reply Miss Jones was announced. Now, Miss Jones was young, with a plump, rather pretty face and a nice figure gowned in an up to date tailor made. She should have been attractive, but instead of that the minute she came into the room one felt the depression of the atmosphere.

But my friend greeted her cordially. "Sit down, Mary, dear, and have a cup of tea," she remarked cheerily, "and tell me how everything goes with you."

Mary took the steaming cup and dropped into it two lumps of sugar; also a sigh.

"Oh, I am so discouraged!" was the first sentence we heard from her lips. "It is so fearfully hard living this sort of life. I shall die if it keeps on."

"But you are doing well in your business and earning a large income," my friend suggested cheerily.

"Oh, I suppose so, but you can't understand. I never was brought up to do this sort of thing. It's perfectly awful, and then I never know how long my luck is going to last!"

SUNSHINE AND SHADOW.

"Nonsense! You draw such clever sketches you can easily get some other work when this fails you."

The answer was another sigh.

"What has become of that handsome young lawyer you were telling me about?" my friend put in archly, with a vain attempt to make the conversation less lugubrious.

"Oh, he doesn't call any more. I hear he is paying a good deal of attention to that rich Bessie Atwell. Very natural. I'm sure, I would if I were a man. I knew it couldn't last, living alone as I do and having no money or family. Men, like every one else, are out for what they can get," etc.

It was a positive relief when she left and little Susie Brown took her place. Now, there was nothing remarkable about Susie, either in face or costume. In fact, when you came right down to it, her clothes were rather out of style and shabby, but her face fairly shone with courage and good nature, and when she greeted my friend her smile actually seemed to fill the room.

"Well, how goes it?" said the latter.

"Oh, so much better," chirped Susie—"not that I have had one of my stories accepted yet, but the editor said my last one showed great improvement, and they have given me some fashion work to do. Isn't that lovely?"

"Are you not very lonely living by yourself?"

"It is rather hard at times," Susie admitted, her genial face a shade graver, "especially since mother died, but then every one is so good to me. It is wonderful, too, for I'm not pretty or clever or interesting, and I can't give them anything in return. Don't you think this world is just full of the kindest, most disinterested people, Mrs. Caldwell?"

When we were by ourselves again, Mrs. Caldwell turned to me with a grave look. "Maud," she said, "when I experienced my first sorrow and was first thrown on my own resources I was just like Mary Jones. I wanted every one to know and to feel my sorrow. My life was one perpetual whine, punctuated with outbursts of tears on friends' shoulders. The result was, as you see, that I lost most of my friend I had. The men were the first to go, for men are not patient with tears, and all but my very oldest women friends followed suit. To this day I don't blame them. People don't want to invite shadow in their houses; they prefer sunshine. Other girls used to get asked around, and I was left out. I used to wonder why, and blame the people, until one day I woke up from my bad dream and realized how abominably selfish I had been. In this world you get just about what you give. If you radiate sorrow, you receive sorrow; if selfishness, you receive selfishness. That is why I go about preaching the gospel of cheerfulness and practicing it as well. It's the only way in this world if you want peace and happiness."

MAUD ROBINSON.

A FASHIONABLE LECTURE.

"Don't Hurry or Worry" and How the Subject Was Heeded.

Eleven o'clock was the hour set for Mme. Soulful's lecture before the Egotism association. At 11 o'clock nobody was in the room. Only the usher, Mrs. Osprey, hovered near the door to see that no one got into the yellow dream room without a ticket. Ten minutes past 11 a sprinkling of elegantly clad ladies moved through the lobby looking a little embarrassed because they were so early. Quarter past 11 three old ladies in black took seats up in the front of the hall, so they could hear. Twenty minutes past 11 other seats began to fill, acquaintances nodded to one another across the hall and the real entertainment began, as was manifest from the buzz of gentle conversation. Half past 11 the hall was half filled. Twenty minutes to 12 the ladies began to drop in frequently. Quarter to 12 the chairs were nearly filled and there proceeded the feminine interchange of notes and minds and getting settled. The lone woman who had orders to be ready at 12 with her report of the lecture for the afternoon paper was on needles, but no one else was.

"DON'T HURRY OR WORRY."

Ten minutes to 12 Mrs. Ermine and Mrs. Milyun gravely mounted the platform.

"Oh, there's Mrs. Milyun! What's she going on the grand stand for?" whispered a lively lady to her neighbor.

Mrs. Ermine stood up and said, "We will first hear from Miss Romboll, who will whistle for us a little tune or two."

Then Mrs. Ermine slipped down from the "grand stand," leaving only Miss Romboll and Milyun and the lecturer to occupy it. Miss Romboll whistled very prettily. When she finished, the ladies looked at one another, said "O-h-h!" "A-h-h!" and clapped their hands softly for her to do it some more, which she kindly did.

By that time it was 12 o'clock. The newspaper woman left even before Miss Romboll began to warble and faked up a report for her paper. She had to do so or lose her assignment, and she was a space writer. Ten minutes after the lecture, according to schedule time, should have ended Mrs. Milyun, a leathery looking little old lady in black, rose briskly, cleared her throat and said:

"Ladies, I have been requested by Mrs. Ermine to introduce the lecturer. I know the ladies are very busy and the audience is restless, but at the close of the lecture Miss Romboll will give us another little whistle or two, and I hope the ladies will kindly stay till all is finished. I now have the pleasure of introducing to you Mrs. Bowiful, who will speak to us on—hm-m-er—the subject announced on the programme. Ladies, Mrs. Bowiful, who comes to us highly commended."

Now, Mme. Soulful was a lady much better and more favorably known in her land than Mrs. Milyun, but Mrs. Milyun spoke the words "very highly commended" exactly as if she had been describing an animal at a county fair. If Mme. Soulful had her own choice, she would not let her countenance express them, thereby giving her audience an object lesson in that self control on which she lectured. "Mind Building" was her theme. She told them how they could begin at any time to build new and improved brain cells. "Above all," said Mme. Soulful, "don't hurry and don't worry. Calmly concentrate down within yourselves and build new and orderly thought habits. You express outwardly exactly the sort of thought habits in the past. You look like your thoughts."

Here leathery little old Mrs. Milyun looked as though she didn't need any making over in appearance, however the rest might be built, and though she needed nothing more in the way of orderly and exact thought habits, Mme. Soulful spoke perhaps three-quarters of an hour. But long ere she came to her closing advice, "Don't worry and don't hurry," the ladies in the audience began to act as if they had the running of the planet in their minds and it would wabble in its orbit and spill if they did not get out of the hall. The promptness they left off at the first end of the lecture they put at the last end. Before and while Miss Romboll whistled they rustled out by twos and threes and fours, murmuring:

"Oh, wasn't it lovely?"

KATE SHARP.

TEACH SINCERITY.

One Thing to Which a Child Should Be Forbidden.

Some little time ago a girl was left alone in a great city. On all sides she met with sympathy. People gushed over her and said:

"Oh, you poor girl!"

"I am so sorry for you!"

"I wish I could do something to make your life less lonely!"

Then they promptly went off and, being busy with their friends and their festivities and their families, forgot all about her, and she was lonely as much as any one cares about being in this world, which was meant for good things.

HONEST SYMPATHY.

At first she was grateful for the words of sympathy, but in the end, after she had heard half a hundred times, "I'm so sorry for you!" "I wish you could have more pleasure!" "It's such a pity a nice young girl like you should not be married, with a home of her own!" "What a shame it is you don't know more people!" etc., she used to loathe the people who said those things to her, because she had found out they didn't mean what they said. If they had, they would have put themselves out a little, would have introduced her to people, would have put her on the road toward bettering herself.

But it was easier to talk than to do.

In the end they made her lose her faith in all human nature, which is a bad conclusion.

Now, this is a lesson to teach children from their earliest years. Sympathy is a great thing, but deeds, no matter how small, are infinitely better. You may not be able to do much, but do what little you can. Say, "I'm sorry," if you will, but don't say, "I wish I could do this and that," when you don't wish any such thing. If you did wish it, you would help toward it—that is, don't say so unless you mean to help the one you are saying it to. That is the true test of sincerity, and sincerity is what all women stand in great need of.

HELEN CLIFTON.

A QUAINT ROOM.

The Scheme of Decoration and the Tea Table.

The picture shows a low tea table of Flemish oak which bears a tea service of blue and white china.

The fireplace is of Flemish oak, and the tiles are green. The walls are tinted a pale green.

The old fashioned chair is also of Flemish oak, with green and blue cushions. A mirror with a brass frame and brass candlesticks relieves the somewhat quiet coloring.

FLEMISH OAK AND BLUE CHINA.

The floor is of hardwood, and the rugs combine in their colorings red, green and blue.

M. J. S.

Fashion Notes.

Among all the new things the black goods surpass all others in elegance. There are voiles, silk and wool crapes, etamines, mystral, canvas, sibelline canvas with silk hairs over the surface, voile poumetis, a delicately light all wool fabric; striped voile, crepe de paris, fancy cravenette mohair and openwork mohairs. Mohair is to be a fashionable material, and that of this season is much softer and silkier than any before woven. All the voiles, or veilings, in plain English, are produced, and, though generally of plain, smooth surface, some of them have fancy woven invisible stripes. The mystral etamines are very elegant.

Crashes, mostly in the Russian and Belfast varieties, will be favorites for suiting, and they are to be trimmed with the heavy Russian lace or a little Bulgarian embroidery judiciously applied. Java and Panama linens, mostly in natural colors, are also much sought for just now.

Consolation For Women.

Josephine Dodge Daskam says that if woman cannot get her vote she can always get her voter.

In the New Woman's Sphere

A SINGULAR case of attempted robbery occurred not long since. A few young women were sitting in a car near the dock of one of the great transatlantic steamer lines in New York. Wagons, street cars, pedestrians and carriages were mixed up in inextricable confusion. The two young women were richly and showily dressed. One of them, ungloved, displayed the fingers of each hand loaded to the knuckles with gorgeous rings. They were so numerous and they glittered so they gave the impression that the wearer had borrowed them from a jewelry shop in order to show them and herself off to the miscellaneous crowd at the steamer dock. The carriage containing the women was stopped by a blockade of vehicles. The beringed one rested her hands most complacently and admiringly in a position where they would be visible to all the world. Suddenly a boy of fifteen sprang at her with a large, open knife. He grabbed one of the hands and slashed the fingers across, cutting a tremendous gash. It is a marvel he did not think of, but the young fiend was trying to cut her fingers off so he could get her rings. He was prevented before he finished the deed, but he came very near it. For the moment the sight of those gems, richer than anything he had ever seen, so close to him maddened him. A dreadful wretch? Oh, yes, of course. But what of the girl who made the tempting display merely to gratify her own vulgar vanity? For it is the extreme of vulgarity and imperfect breeding to display a load of valuable jewels outdoors in a miscellaneous herd of mortals, aside from the danger of it. To wear outdoors in a public crowd any garment or ornament that glaringly attracts attention is in the worst possible taste, and it is something no high bred woman ever does.

⁂

A certain woman is traipsing up and down the land lecturing on "Home Is Woman's Place." Then why does not this woman stay there?

⁂

A disgruntled thinker says that man is a bundle of prejudices and woman a bundle of superstitions.

⁂

There is no shuffling or dodging in the attitude of President James of the Northwestern university at Evanston in the matter of coeducation. He comes out calmly and candidly in favor of it and says the American policy is to give woman as full opportunity as man for higher education. Then he calls attention to the necessity for two entirely separate and equally equipped sets of college buildings, where the sex line is drawn among students. He says it will be a long time ere the American people can afford to erect two such sets of buildings for every scholastic institution; then he adds, "Nor will such a duplication of educational facilities ever be justified on the fanatical evils of coeducation." Let us not forget that President Edmund J. James, Ph. D., LL. D., of the Northwestern university is in favor of justice to women and says so.

⁂

Here is precisely what might be expected in a city like New York, whose mayor and superintendent of education distinctly discriminate against women: An order was issued that high school girls who wished to enter the training school for teachers in Brooklyn should be subjected to a physical examination, that it might be ascertained whether they were healthy enough to undertake the profession they proposed for themselves. And the physicians that were to examine them were to be men. Now, how does this strike the really enlightened portion of the American people, who are mostly outside of New York city?

⁂

An interesting discussion has been started on the question, "Shall wives forgive deserting husbands?" Here is the correct answer: "Let each deserted wife find out for certain whether her husband would forgive her if she took her back in case she deserted him for awhile. Then, if she is dead sure he would, and if she still is fond enough of him to try him again, let her forgive him."

⁂

A tightly laced woman cannot stoop over to put on her own overshoes? Well, neither can a fat man. I have watched one try it.

⁂

Whenever you see the name of United States Senator Teller of Colorado, recall that he was nominated for his high office this time by a woman member of the legislature in a state where women vote for every officer, presidential electors included, and that the woman who did it is Hon. Alice M. Rahle.

⁂

Many women have a sort of warmed over tone in their voices when they endeavor to be polite and cordial to their friends and acquaintances.

⁂

The last national convention of the western labor unions and Western Federation of Miners at Denver passed a resolution indorsing woman suffrage and recommending its adoption in all the states. Now let us see what the eastern labor unions will do.

⁂

If you see a young lady sitting particularly erect, correct and graceful, do not infer from it that she is necessarily a physically trained "new girl" who carries herself perfectly. The young lady may be only trying to live up to a new corset.

ELIZA ARCHARD CONNER.

FILMY AND DIAPHANOUS.

Character of the New Summer Things. Elegant Lawn Dresses.

More filmy and diaphanous than ever will be the gowns for the coming summer—that is, the present outlook would so indicate—but I have seen in the spring so many things planned for summer that never saw the light of day that I am very chary of ever daring to be a prophet of infallibility. We know that the stores are full of all sorts of delicate and dainty things such as properly belong to the long, warm summer days, and that all who have the means to do so are now buying the first fruits of the loom, to be made up in the privacy of their homes during the quiet of Lent. Nearly all the wash dresses and much of the handsome attire intended to be worn "for nice" in some fashionable summer resort will be made then.

Almost everything save the percales and chambreys have more or less openwork in the goods, and when there is a dress to be made where the material is solid so much finer work is put into the garment that it, too, becomes transparent to a greater or lesser degree.

Foremost and first come the all lace dress patterns. Cream and white Ierre laces are made wide enough so that one width is long enough for a full skirt. Some of the designs have the skirt proper still further added to by an extra flounce some six inches deep, carrying the same figure as that in the skirt, and this is laid around the bottom of the skirt and just above a chiffon ruche with a close little ruche to set it out. The chiffon ruffle is set on a silk skirt which the lace skirt falls over. When the lace is dead white, it has a richer effect if the silk is cream or ivory. Not only is Ierre offered, but cream and white French point d'esprit lace, and this is made up like any kind of thin goods, with tucks and overlaying of black or white lace. This makes up into extremely pretty gowns, but is not so dressy as the heavier renaissance and Irish point gowns. There is also a novel and very effective arrangement of fine batiste, with applications of lace of various kinds let in in places. Some have a combination of the batiste and net, and these have the merit of being entirely new.

ELEGANT LACE GOWNS.

Handsome gowns are produced of black silk mull with inset stripes of black lace insertion, and this is set lengthwise in the skirts to the deep graduated flounce. Where the flounce joins the rest is a band of black lace guipure, and lower down on each fan shaped fold is placed a rosette of black satin ribbon. This dress is one easy to copy and handsome when done. The waist is a blouse, with insets of insertion, and the sleeves are of the mull, with a deep fall of the mull and insertion set up and down like all the rest. The mull of which the skirt is made has the breadths laid in between, and three widths are put at the bottom of each line to form the flounce. The mull is cut in slashes wider at the bottom than the top, and they are upheld by the lace insertion flounce beneath. It makes a superb gown for a young matron.

A home gown made of white chiffon with applique and thin taffeta is shown. This dress, worn over a delicately colored lining, would be beautiful. Speaking of ribbon reminds me to say that ribbon is to be seen if not heard the coming season. In fact, it is already beginning to be noticed. This is as it should be, for odds from lace nothing is so delightful as ribbon. The ribbons of the season are in all the syndicate colors and are satin faced liberty, double faced satins, very rich, and plain taffetas. Black velvet ribbon of a finish is not yet quite so generally used, but it has by no means gone into that awful abyss where all old fashions go and whose depths no one has sounded.

Black mull is to be one of the dress materials for the coming season, not only for evening gowns, but also for almost any afternoon occasion. Silk mull is really strong and does not crush and will stand much wear. If the color is good and it is judiciously trimmed, one can keep such a dress in summer in fair condition. It does not crush or grow limp. By judicious trimming I mean that the trimming around the bottom should be something that can be removed for cleansing or else be black lace.

Next to silk mulls come the liberty silks and the satin twills. Both are printed in very pretty and even artistic designs. The colors are varied. The Lyons printed India silks are good value and are very useful. With a little lace and some ribbon one has a ladylike and serviceable gown. The most of these seem to be in navy and black grounds, with all sorts of designs.

HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

COLD WEATHER WRAPS.

Velours and Lyons Velvet, Trimmed With Mink and Chinchillas.

Very handsome wraps of velours and Lyons velvet are trimmed with mink and chinchilla, but lace is rarely absent and is even used to outline a silk or satin lining and to form a border inside loose sleeves. The new snowflake and sibelline mantle cloths have been eagerly welcomed, and very smart coats and wraps are shown in these materials.

Light colors are much patronized, and cream white serge and sibeline are used for long wraps of the kimono and sack order. These are generally trimmed with beaver, mink or skunk fur. The little sack coats which reach to the hips are greatly in request to put over Russian costumes in severe weather as an extra wrap.

SABLE COAT.

The three-quarter coat of white cloths are combined with heavy lace and skunk or sable tails.

The picture shows a coat of sable with a front of brocade. The hat is of sable, chiffon and ostrich feathers.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

DRESSY BLOUSES.

Transparent Effects—New Modes In Hairdressing.

The semitransparent necks of some blouses are cut extremely low, but veiled by a deep pliese locker of net arranged on the slip. The long, plain sleeve of net or lace is now rarely seen, but Turkish and balloon shapes are popular, and so is the bell shape put on in godet above the elbow and supplemented by balloon cuffs and with banded wrists.

Combs for the hair grow more ornate, and the latest are set with large turquoise or closely studded with tiny stones in paste or turquoise. Sprays of paste are also used on back combs, and the side combs with little balls of pearl or turquoise standing along the edge are very charming.

CHILD'S FROCK.

One of the newest of the simpler everyday coiffures is not at all difficult. It consists in brushing the hair into a loose pompadour and folding the rest into a soft inverted figure 8 at the nape of the neck.

A bow of black velvet placed carelessly a little to one side completes the girlish effect.

The child's frock here shown is of spotted silk point d'esprit over white silk. The sash is of pink satin with a scarf of the same draped over the bodice.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Whose He Lost.

Young Architect—Miss Sweet, I must thank you for those specimens of a fine durable floor tile that you sent me. They—

Miss Sweet—Tiles? Why, those were fudges that I made myself.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Mary Grady, The Fearless Town Jailer

IT used to be said that there were no women vikings, but a few months ago the skeleton of a woman buried with her horse and armor was found in Norway. The fact that the armor fitted the woman's skeleton as though she had been melted and poured into it" proved beyond dispute that there were also women vikings, tremendous, fearless, full of fight.

Let us be thankful that being settled for good and all, it remains for the United States today, twentieth century, to show a woman who is keeper and guard of a county jail—a jail, too, where characters as desperate as any in china, both white and black, are prisoned. That woman is Mary Grady, the official jailer of Talladega county, Ala. Talk of woman's weakness and helplessness and dependence! Great Mary Grady is 6 feet 4 inches tall and large and strong in proportion. Maybe she is the reincarnation of that same tremendous viking lady who was buried with her horse and armor in Norway so many centuries ago. At any rate, Mary Grady is brave, powerful and real enough to be anything that mortal can be, past, present or future.

In Talladega county the heroine is called "Molly Grady." A correspondent of the Sunny South prints an interview with her that ought to be read aloud at city women's club meetings. The story would be so refreshing.

The interviewer found that Molly Grady had had charge of Talladega jail six years, and no prisoner escaped during her term. She is "deeply in earnest," and that accounts for much of her greatness. The way she got her regular appointment was through frustrating an attempted jail delivery. That is so good a story it must be told by itself. Molly's brother, wrongfully accused, it turned out, was a prisoner in Talladega jail. Molly went repeatedly to see him. Once the man who was jailer at the time had to go to the village on an errand while Molly was at the prison. She could not get to her till home because of a storm that was raging. It was after dark that the jailer started to the village. Molly had told him she would keep guard during his absence. The faith he had in her was evident, for he left her with the keys. At any moment she might have opened her brother's cell and let him walk out.

Molly stood guard in the night at the entrance to the prison. She heard a grating sound and a crash in the rear of the building. She sprang around there and saw a man just about to descend to the ground from a window.

"Halt, or I'll shoot!" roared Molly Grady. The man sneaked back in again. She had no gun, but he did not know that. Molly's next move was to pass like a flash to her brother's cell and let him out, telling him to stand guard while she got help. The strange part of the story is that he did just what she told him. Through her wit, courage and loyalty the whole flock of jailbirds was prevented from escaping. After that it was only natural when a vacancy in the jailership occurred that Molly Grady should be invited to fill it. Talladega county ought to be very proud of its Molly Grady.

MARY GRADY AT THE GALLOWS.

Not often prisoners test the mettle of the woman jailer. They know better. Once a big, ugly negro, with a face scarred by razor slashes, was imprisoned. She gave him an order one day. He gave her back talk and refused to obey. Instantly she unlocked the cell door and was on him like a lion. She gave him a thrashing that her will remembered as long as he remembers anything earthly. From that day to this there is awe in his eye even when he looks at her, as though she were a being superhuman. She has a terrible, compelling gray town eye, with an eaglelike glance, as of one fearing nothing that lives.

She told the interviewer she applied the "water cure" to obstreperous prisoners, a modified water cure of her own devising. She says she just yank the sassy rascals out into the far end of the aisle and turn the hose on them. It does them good, soil and body.

And, after all, Molly Grady is human and woman. Her sense of tenderness it is large, as well as fearless. She does all the cooking for the prisoners, and when they are ailing she pulls out her own purse and buys them delicacies that they need. Once she ran into a burning house and brought out a tiny baby when its own mother did not dare go after it. "Think of the little darling burning to death!" she said.

Glorious Molly Grady!

MARY SMITH DAY.

HE SIGNED THE PLEDGE.

But Before She Got Hubby's Signature She Had to Send in Two Calls for Police.

A ring of the telephone bell in police headquarters at 3:30 o'clock disturbed the early morning quietude of the Mulberry street building, in New York.

"Well, what is it?" said the officer in charge.

"A man is setting fire to the house," came from the other end, and in a low, sweet voice.

"That's bad. Tell me your name and your address."

"I'm Mrs. Annie Fleming, of 108 West One Hundred and Thirteenth street," the woman said.

"All right. We'll attend to it," the officer assured her.

Two minutes later, away up in the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street station Sergt. McCarthy was giving orders to Policeman Schemmerhorn, who looked doubtful when he got the order, but he moved quickly, just the same, because the sergeant said the case was urgent. He appeared again quite soon and with a frown assured McCarthy that "it was all a fake."

"IT'S ALL RIGHT NOW."

Once more the telephone bell broke the stillness at headquarters, and once again the officer in charge sent word to Harlem. This time Policeman Horn was sent. Horn and Schemmerhorn linked their efforts, and now insisted on getting at the source of the excitement. They finally found Mrs. Fleming, demanding in no mild, uncertain tones to know just what she meant.

"It's all right now," she said.

Peering for further light, the two policemen were informed by Mrs. Fleming that her husband had come home "slightly under the weather," and that to frighten him so that he would promise her to sign the pledge she had pretended that she was going to have him arrested.

"He's promised now," she said, "and it's all right."

The two policemen left, reserving their remarks for the street, where there was plenty of room as well as lots of air.

A LITTLE TOO MUCH.

Mr. Secondman Now Believes That Warmed-Up Love Is Exasperating, to Say the Least.

"Warmed-up love," remarked Mr. Secondman, "is all right in a good many respects, but it has its disadvantages. For instance, my wife is a good, loyal woman, but things occur frequently in our private affairs that well might wound the sensitive nature of a trusting, affectionate man.

"Now, of course, I am glad that my wife thought a great deal of her first husband—in fact, I should judge from what she says that he was a wonderful, a remarkable man—but it hurts my pride to have her keep his photograph and her own side by side in our album. I didn't much care to have her celebrate her crystal wedding last autumn on the fifteenth anniversary of her first marriage. I felt melancholy for six months after she gave our boy the full name of her first husband. Indeed, I know he must have been a great, noble man, and she is certainly a true, loyal woman; but there are some things that I flatly refuse to do, no matter what my marriage vows were."

TELLING HIS TALE OF WOE.

"Ah! does she forget and call you by her first husband's name?" inquired the sympathetic listener.

"Very often, of course; but I don't care for that. Her latest idea is to have me trim my whiskers just as her first husband did his, wear an old suit of his clothes in the evenings, and talk through my nose. She says that would make her just the happiest wife in the world."

Newspaper Written in Verse.

A weekly paper published in Athens, Greece, is written entirely in verse, even the advertisements.

EDISON'S LATEST.

Wizard of Menlo Park Discusses Revolutionary Storage Battery Recently Invented.

In an article, "The Storage Battery and the Motor Car," in the North American Review, Mr. Thomas A. Edison describes his new storage battery. He has been working upon the problem for a number of years, and for the last three years his experiments have been continuous. The essential feature of a real storage battery, Mr. Edison explains, is that it must be a perfectly reversible instrument, re*ceiving and giving out* power like a dynamo motor, without any deterioration of the mechanism of conversion. This condition is not met by the lead storage battery, which gradually becomes less and less efficient and in a few months wholly inoperative; but the nickel-iron storage cell, which has been evolved from Mr. Edison's experiments, and of which he gives a most interesting description, remains uninjured under any condition one can imagine, even in the hands of an inexpert. The result of this invention will be to make it practicable for a large number of persons who cannot afford the luxury of a carriage to possess a serviceable pleasure vehicle which will be always at their beck and call. With an initial outlay of $700, the storage-battery automobile can be used at any time at the cost of a fifcent charge, the cost being met as it is incurred. Mr. Edison predicts that automobile accidents, which occur so frequently at present, will soon be things of the past:

THOMAS A. EDISON.
(His Latest Invention Is an Economical Storage Battery.)

"The French types of electric carriages come nearer to my ideas in strength and stability than any other models. This result has been attained, of course, only by experience. At first I was inclined to the opinion that the French machines were abnormally heavy; but when I study out the concussions and strains to which they are subjected, my inclination is to make the touring carriage even heavier still. It is surprising to me that American builders have not more closely followed these French models, since experiments costing millions must have been made to reach the present stage.

"We hear of fewer automobile accidents in France and in Europe generally than in our own country, and they are fewer in spite of heavy types of carriages. One reason for this is that in Europe there are wider roads and less traffic; another is that the public have been educated up to the situation. The electric carriage of the future, and of the near future, will in my opinion not only supersede other types of automobiles, but it will be built and run on such practical lines that accidents will soon become things of the past. Horse owners and drivers will educate their animals, as in old times they had to be educated up to the steam engine and later to the trolley car. The electric carriage will be practically noiseless and easily stopped in an emergency. Above all it will need no irresponsible chauffeur."

CHARMING YOUNG LADY.

Miss Susan Quay, Who Will Christen the New United States Cruiser Pennsylvania.

Miss Susan Quay, who will act as sponsor for the new United States cruiser Pennsylvania, is the youngest daughter of Senator Matthew Stanley

MISS SUSAN QUAY.
(Selected to Christen New American Cruiser Pennsylvania.)

Quay. She made her debut at Washington in 1895, and at once became popular in the youngest set of society at the capital. The cruiser upon whose prow Miss Quay will break the traditional bottle of champagne will be the fastest warship in the American navy and will be one of the largest. The launching will shortly take place at Cramp's shipyards in Philadelphia with very elaborate ceremonies.

American Rock Salt Mines.

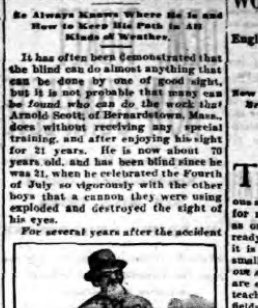
Rock salt is mined and prepared for use in the states of New York, Kansas, Louisiana and [illegible].

BLIND MAIL CARRIER.

He Always Knows Where He Is and How to Keep His Path in All Kinds of Weather.

It has often been demonstrated that the blind can do almost anything that can be done by one of good sight, but it is not probable that many can be found who can do the work that Arnold Scott, of Bernardstown, Mass., does without receiving any special training, and after enjoying his sight for 21 years. He is now about 70 years old, and has been blind since he was 21, when he celebrated the Fourth of July so vigorously with the other boys that a cannon they were using exploded and destroyed the sight of his eyes.

For several years after the accident



UNCLE ARNOLD SCOTT.
(Blind Mail Carrier Is a Popular Character in Massachusetts.)

Mr. Scott did not think it possible for him to do any work, and life was a good deal of a burden to him, but, at length, at the suggestion of one of his friends, he began to saw wood. Since then he has become quite independent, and boasts, with a good deal of pride, that for 14 years he has done the most of his cooking, cared for himself, shaved himself and cut his own hair.

Soon after coming to the town he began to carry the mail for one or two families, and presently was making two trips a day the length of the village to the post office and back, one in the forenoon and one in the afternoon. He has a whistle which he blows as he comes to each house, so that, if there is mail for him, it may be brought out to him. He comes back in that same way, except that he blows the whistle only at the houses where he has mail to leave. With his mail is given him at the office he puts it into his pockets, of *which he has more even than the ordi*nary man, and into two or three bags carried in his hands or slung over his shoulders. The mail for each family has a separate place. Occasionally he becomes confused in distributing it, and then some one on the road looks at what he has and straightens him out. The introduction of rural delivery has shortened his route, and, as it shortens his income correspondingly (for each of his patrons pays him a certain sum for his year's work), he is not pleased with the march of progress.

MISS MARY BARBER.

Favorite Niece of Mrs. McKinley Engaged to Marry Maj. Hartzel, of Denver.

The betrothal is announced of Maj. Ralph Hartzel, of Denver, Col., and Miss Mary Barber, of Canton, O., the favorite niece of Mrs. McKinley.

Maj. Hartzel is a lawyer, and during the Spanish war he was commissioned by President McKinley as paymaster in the volunteer army, with the rank of major. His brother, Charles Hartzel, is a government representative in Cuba.

MISS MARY BARBER.
(Favorite Niece of Mrs. McKinley, Soon to Be Married.)

When a boy, Maj. Hartzel lived in Canton with his parents, and was a near neighbor of the little girl who is now to become his wife.

Miss Barber was much at the white house during McKinley's presidency, and with Mrs. McKinley accompanied the president on his visit to Mt. Holyoke college, Holyoke, Mass., when his niece was graduated, and on his last visit to the home of Mr. Plunkett at Adams, Mass.

Miss Barber is petite, with a graceful carriage, and a slender, well-molded figure. Her eyes and hair are dark brown. Like her aunt she is fond of blue, and some of the daintiest of her evening gowns are of the palest azure, a hue particularly becoming to her fair skin and brilliant coloring.

This bright young girl is, to use Mrs. McKinley's words, like a tonic, and the former mistress of the white house was never so happy as when her niece was with her. Miss Barber is barely 21

WOMEN AS FARMERS.

English Educational Experiment of Vast Importance.

New Avenues of Support Opened to Bright Girls by Lady Warwick.—Her Model School at Reading.

(Special London Letter.)

THE problem of suitable employment for women and girls is one that has engaged the serious attention of European sociologists for many years. In England as well as on the continent women can find ready employment as clerks in stores, it is true, but the wages paid are so small that absolute self-support is one of the question. Many thousands are employed as telegraph operators, teachers and governesses, but the fields of endeavor are necessarily limited and consequently overcrowded.

Some 40 years ago the British house of commons appointed a commission for the purpose of investigating in how far agriculture might prove a suitable occupation for women and children. The report of the commission was radically unfavorable, as might have been expected from the then prevailing methods of farm tillage, which consisted principally of plowing, harrowing, digging and hoeing; rough work totally at variance with progressive ideas of woman's work.

But since then conditions have changed materially. In the first place, agriculture is conducted along entirely different lines, especially in England. Grain raising no longer pays, the cost of producing a crop having increased from year to year; to say nothing of the competition with the cheap wheat of countries where labor can be had for almost nothing or where cultivation is conducted on a vast scale and by improved methods. Consequently, unproductive English soil is being used for pasturage for cattle, while the good soil is given over to the raising of flowers, fruits and vegetables. And for the latter kind of rural work women are quite as well adapted as men. As auxiliary industries they can take up poultry raising, apiaculture and dairy work. Moreover, the really deplorable condition of agriculture which has prevailed for a long time has driven thousands of men from the country to the cities and towns. In other words, the prospects of a woman who adopts agriculture as a profession—either as manager or employe—are better today than ever before. Another point to be considered is the extraordinary surplus of women in England. Large numbers of boys emigrate to the colonies every year, in the hope of bettering their condition, but the girls remain at home. The various professions open to women in cities are overcrowded, and only the most fortunate can expect to secure desirable positions.

IN THE DAIRY ROOM OF LADY WARWICK'S SCHOOL.

GIRL GARDENERS AT WORK.

To effect a general change in existing conditions will, of course, require years of patient endeavor. For women of the laboring class the problem is a simple one; they require no preliminary or preparatory education. All they need is a place to work, where the remuneration shall be fair and adequate. But such positions it will be almost impossible to find until women of a higher grade take up agriculture as an occupation and work on farms as managers or overseers; and in order to fill such responsible positions they must, as the prime essential, have a thorough theoretical and practical education.

In order to meet this educational demand, Lady Warwick, famous at home and abroad as a philanthropist and a courageous advocate of the rights of women, has established, in the little city of Reading, a practice school in which girls of unblemished reputation and of good families can learn everything appertaining to scientific horticulture, agriculture, vegetable growing, poultry raising, bee culture and butter and cheese making. When Lady Warwick opened her training school in 1896, an agricultural college had already been established in Cirencester, and the best of older institutions were engaged to instruct the girls in all the branches mentioned. A house, now known as the Lady Warwick dormitory, was furnished completely and opened, in October, 1900, with 12 boarders. Even during the first year of its existence the school made great progress and the dormitory had to be enlarged to house the growing number of students. The 12 pupils have increased to over 30, and instead of the two acres which were to be cultivated over 11 acres are given to experimental work. Every country in Europe is represented among the scholars and several have come all the way from Canada and the United States.

The course, which comprises a complete education in all branches of agriculture, lasts two years; and part of that time pupils are sent to model farms where they are supposed to learn all about dairy management and the feeding of cattle.

The setting out and replanting of vines, small fruits and flowers, grafting, pruning and laying out of orchards are taught theoretically as well as practically. The sowing of vegetable seed and the subsequent starting of the plants, and especially the culture of mushrooms, are exemplified; and wonderful success has attended the practice classes in bee culture. The sorting and packing of fruits and vegetables for the market has lately been added to the curriculum, and this year the cooking and preserving of fruits and the manufacture of fruit juices is to be made a special study.

Work on the experiment farm begins at 6:45 a. m., and ends at 5 p. m. Immense greenhouses have been erected in which are raised magnificent flowers which find a ready sale in the London market.

So successful has been Lady Warwick's experiment that a number of landowners have already engaged several graduates of the school in the capacity of "lady gardeners," dairy managers and heads of small preserve factories. In short, many new avenues of support have been opened to women by this new movement; and now it has been proposed to still further encourage those graduates who have but a small income or are possessed of limited means, by purchasing for them, in their own names, small farms for which they can pay in easy installments. To make *this idea popular it is the in*tention of the managers to establish colonies and build houses in which the girls can live alone or together, as the individual fancy may dictate.

Whatever the future may have in store for the graduates of this school, so much is certain: they will prove of great benefit to their country and never be without the means of making a comfortable and pleasant living.

In connection with Lady Warwick's school an agricultural society for women has been founded, whose purpose is to assist women who are in any way connected with agricultural work with advice and money. A sec*ond object of the society is to find* suitable positions for the graduates of the school.

When the deplorable condition of many women in large cities is considered, this grand movement to ameliorate their condition appears doubly grand; and it is not surprising that other countries are taking steps to follow the example set by England, "through the magnanimity of Lady Warwick. In Prussia especially has the movement been studied with painstaking care and several schools have already been established, similar in character and scope to the Reading institution. The Prussian schools are supported, partially at least, by the department of education, and have been placed in charge of women noted not only for their educational qualifications, but for their social standing as well. One of them is under the direction of Baroness Barth-Harmating, the other under that of Miss Dr. Castner. Both of these continental establishments train young ladies between the ages of 18 to 24 to become expert gardeners. Another school, located at Proshau, is devoted exclusively to the teaching of dairy work.

WILLIAM WALTER WELLS.

BOND IN A PICTURE.

Valuable Paper Found by German Woman in an Old Daguerreotype Frame.

*The treasury department lately re*ceived from United States Consul General Guenther, at Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, a United States bond for $500, which he forwarded for redemption for the benefit of Mrs. Martha Schnell, an old woman living at Bornheim, reports the Washington Star.

He writes that Mrs. Schnell has a fad for collecting daguerreotypes, and recently in cleaning one she had had about ten years, she accidentally broke the glass covering the portrait, disclosing the bond, which had been neatly folded and placed in its hiding place many years before.

Mrs. Schnell was about to throw it away, but was persuaded to take it to the United States consul to ascertain if it had any value.

The portrait is faded beyond possible recognition, but the old case shows that it was made in Worcester, Mass.

The bond is of the issue of July 1, 1867, series C, and has 28 coupons attached, showing that the last one was removed for interest due January 1, 1873. Interest on the bond, however, ceased on April 6, 1879.

United States Treasurer Roberts forwarded to Mr. Guenther for Mrs. Schnell a government warrant for $687.81, covering the principal and interest to 1879.—Washington Post.

THE LOST SIXTEENTH.

That Much of a Second Missing and Scientists Cannot Tell Where It Has Gone.

If one grain of sand on the shore of the ocean were lost, and scientists were to spend years in trying to find it, they would be attempting a task resembling that to which leading astronomers of England and France are now devoting themselves, says the Ohio (Ohio) Mail and Empire. One-sixteenth of a second is missing, and no one can tell where it has gone. Between the sun's time, as recorded at Greenwich, and as understood at Paris, there is that brief and seemingly unimportant discrepancy. No expense is being spared to trace the missing fraction. A special building has been erected at Paris, costly instruments installed, a corps of mathematicians engaged, and a process that may take years to complete has been commenced. The inaccuracy is more important than will appear to the lay mind. Longitude is calculated on the basis of Greenwich time, and determines the boundaries of many countries. A slight variation of time may change the nationality of thousands of people. The pursuit of the missing fraction of a second is therefore of world-wide importance. We shall all be much relieved when it has been found, for then not a grain of the sands of time will be missing.

GRAY ANTS OF SIAM.

Small Insects That Travel in Troops and Seem to Have a Larger Leader.

Charles Meissen, French explorer, in traveling through Siam, observed a species of small gray ants which were new to him, says the Kobe (Japan) Herald. These ants were much engaged in traveling. They lived in dump pieces and went in troops. To his surprise he noticed among them from time to time an occasional ant which was much larger than the others and moved at a much swifter pace, and each of these larger ants, he found, was always carried on one of the gray ants on its back. While the main body of gray ants were always on foot they were accompanied by at least one of their own sort mounted on one of these larger ants, and it attached itself now and then from the line, rode rapidly to the head, came swiftly back to the rear, and seemed to be the commander of the expedition.

The explorer was satisfied that this species of ant employs a larger ant —possibly a drone of the same species—just as we employ horses to ride upon, though scarcely more than one ant in each colony seems to be provided with a mount.

THIEVES IN A WHIP DUEL.

Agree to Lash Each Other Rather Than Go to Jail for Their Theft.

In Anderson county, S. C., two negroes were recently caught in the act of robbing a farmer, and, rather than go to jail, they offered to accept any punishment the farmer might inflict. The farmer decided that they should whip each other. The negroes were taken into a field and stripped to the waist. There is no whipping-post law in South Carolina, but this did not interfere with the plans for the lashing. Each was given a buggy trace, and they fought each other until the blood began to flow.

A big crowd gathered to watch the duel of whipping. A neighbor of the man who had been robbed acted as referee, and made the negroes break clench when they clinched.

Under the rules the contest had to continue until one negro had given the other 100 lashes. Foul tips were not counted. Finally, after a desperate fight, the referee lifted his hand as a signal to stop. The man who suggested the whipping had given his enemy 100 lashes. He got 75. They were in bad shape when the fight ceased, and went to bed.

AN ABBREVIATED SNOWSTORM

Blind Man in the Play Objected to Hammers and Other Hardware Among the Flakes.

"Mechanical devices are now made wonderfully real on the stage," said the old stock actor, according to the Philadelphia Record. "It hasn't been so many years ago since even the simple device of imitating a snowstorm was regarded an achievement. I remember on one occasion I was out with a 'ten, twent and thirt' company playing repertoire, and in one melodrama—I don't even now recall the name, for it was a pirate's play —I took the part of an old man whose daughter, the heroine, had been abducted. I was supposed to be blind, and my strong scene was the third set, when I went out into a snowstorm in search of my daughter. She was lying in a drift, and as I hobbled across the stage I kept crying: 'Me che-ild! where is me che-ild?' Well, it was early in the season, and the play was the first attraction at the theater. The scene painters had been at work, and had dropped several paint brushes, hammers and other articles into the sheet that held the snowstorm. As I was crying for my child I flung down the sheets to make the snow come out a couple of hammers came down and just missed me by an inch. I was blind, and didn't dare to look up, but when a monkey wrench just grazed my temple I had presence of mind enough to yell: 'See yonder moon! The storm is over!' The stage hands took their cue and let up on me, and the audience never stopped to question how a blind man could see yonder moon."

AMERICAN ARISTOCRACY.

"Oil Kings," "Money Kings" and Other Trade Monarchs Who Are Richer Than Royalty.

The few enormously wealthy American families of which the head enjoys an assured annual income of more than $1,000,000 may be regarded as representing in the American republic what the "royalties" represent in England, says Absalee's Magazine. Popular phraseology, indeed, gives them, with unconscious fitness, quasi-royal titles in styling them—"oil kings," "money kings" and mining kings." Most of them live as few real kings ever dream to live, and they receive from their immediate en*tourage something of the obsequious* deference which in monarchial lands is given to those who are of the royal blood. Coming down a grade, we have the somewhat larger group of those whose incomes range from $1,000,000 down to $100,000. These individuals, as a class, are equivalent of the British peerage—the $900,000 magnate having, let us say, the relative rank of a duke, while the others represent a descending scale of dignity and are respectively the equals of marquises, earls, viscounts and barons. Then come what we may style in British terminology the "upper middle classes"—persons with incomes ranging from $100,000 to $20,000. Social classification ends with the final group of families whom we may collectively describe as the "lower middle classes," having incomes of not more than $20,000 and not less than $5,000.

PLAIN ENGLISH WANTED.

Young Medical Student Objected to the Use of Foreign Terms in Rx.

"There's a physician in my town," said a Cincinnati Gruemer to a reporter for the New York Herald, who has a son whom he is instructing in the rudiments of the profession, but just at present the young fellow is thinking of a great many things not down in the books. He has a lot of ready cash in his pocket, is a sporting sort, and he is master of them all. Indeed, his language is at times so utterly modern as to be almost unintelligible to the old-fashioned people who learned their language out of Webster's dictionary. The other day a patient was brought into the doctor's office and the son happened to be present.

"'The man is suffering from mania a potu,' said the doctor after a brief examination.

"'What was that?' inquired the son, with an evident effort to catch the meaning.

"'Mania a potu—delirium tremens,' repeated the doctor.

"'Oh,' commented the youngster, 'you mean the jim jams, the d. t.'s, the delirious trimmings, the gotemagins, do you? I suppose I'll get next to this medical racket before the finish, but until I do I wish you would talk plain English for my benefit, dad.'"

Volcanic Eruptions on the Moon.

Messrs. Loewy and Puiseux, of the Paris observatory, in issuing some additional plates of their photographic atlas of the moon, refer to the recent volcanic cataclysm at Martinique and St. Vincent, and say that study of the lunar surface leads them to think that eruptions quite as intense as the greatest recorded on the earth have occurred on the moon, repeated at long intervals in the same places. But, "favored by a condition of calm and dryness, they have been more durable in their effects, and the more recent deposits superposed upon the earlier ones are distinguishable by their darker tone and less extended boundary."

Chinese Population.

It is stated that the Chinese population of to-day numbers about 426,000,000 of souls: Chinese proper, 380,000,000; Manchuria, 2,500,000 in Mongolia, 5,430,000 in Tibet and 1,200 in Chinese Turkestan.

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

1-rms—$2.00 per year.

... Proprietor

AFTER TROLLEY COMPANY.

Councilman Lee appears to be after the local trolley company with a sharp stick. It is evident that Councilman Lee has been riding on the local trolley cars. Sometime ago, this same Councilman stirred things up in the Council on the same question and the company was notified that it must improve its service. There were several conferences between city officials and the officers of the trolley company and the promise was made that the service would soon be improved, that the delay was occasioned only by failure to secure what was needed. There has been no improvement to speak of and as Councilman Lee is after the company again. This time he proposes drastic measures.

Everybody who is unfortunate enough to have to ride on the cars of the local service has realized that there is room for improvement. Visitors to this city have failed to admire our trolley cars as they have other features of the city life and have even pronounced this the worst they had seen. It was known, however, that the car manufactories were rushed to their greatest capacity and the claim of the company that it was trying to secure better equipment sounded like the truth.

It is possible sometimes to move more expeditiously at one time than others. It may be that Councilman Lee's strenuous action will bring the company to a realization that it will be well to move with more rapidity than it is doing at present. While Mr. Lee consented to let his motion go over for a time, he plans to revoke the company's franchise if the service is not put into proper condition without delay. There is no doubt that Mr. Lee is thoroughly in earnest and that he will not stop until he is perfectly satisfied that Plainfield is going to have a good trolley service. Otherwise he is likely to make it decidedly unpleasant for the trolley company. And in his campaign Mr. Lee is going to have the enthusiastic support of the public which is gradually getting tired of riding in the cars that are now attempting to do duty.

THE LICENSE QUESTION.

It was generally understood previous to the Common Council meeting Tuesday evening that the members of the Council would not favor the enlargement of the number of saloons in this city. There were several additional applications in, it was reported that, while one might be granted, the renewal of an old applicant would be denied. These things happened but they managed to make quite a stir in the Council, decidedly unlike its usual harmonious sessions.

When the Kean and Fowler factions of the Republican party battled for supremacy in Union county last fall and the Republican primaries brought down each general condemnation from fair minded voters, one Daniel Galbraith, proprietor of a saloon on West Third street, was very active in be half of the interests of Senator Kean. This winter, his application for a renewal for his license was turned down and a license for a saloon in the same locality granted to another man. No one doubts for a moment that the Councilmen had good reasons for refusing the license. The coincidence is too marked however to avoid public comment, and the public at large believes, and will continue to do so, no matter what is said, that Mr. Galbraith is suffering for his political sins.

REPORT OF HOSPITAL.

With the report of Muhlenberg Hospital in hand, the philanthropic citizens of Plainfield may congratulate themself that there is such an institution in our city, that the new hospital buildings on Park avenue are well underway and that plans are on foot for improvement of the hospital service. The treatment of 451 patients during the year, 223 of the cases being surgical operations, demonstrates the need of a hospital for the city and vicinity. The treasurer's report showing the total amount of bequests, donations and interest from memorial funds for the year to be $14,038 84, shows how willing the friends of this institution are to supply the cost of its maintenance.

The fact that no person is ever refused admission because of inability to pay the charge for treatment, that one-third of the patients treated last year were free patients and that in the dispensary 589 patients were treated entirely free, makes the hospital service one of the most beneficent charities of the city.

The registry of officers, board of governors, committees, medical staff and members of women's auxiliary board with the list of donors show how large a number of willing-hearted men and women have lent their aid to this good cause.

Not a week goes by but many unfortunates from accident or failing health find a shelter within the hospital walls, where skillful treatment and a degree of comfort that would not be attainable in private homes, await the suffering patients. The recent disastrous wreck on the Jersey Central Railroad taxed the resources of the hospital as no previous event in its history, and its ability to minister to the wounded sufferers, must enforce on the community a new and real appreciation of its usefulness and the necessity of its maintenance.

The completion of the new buildings at the south-easterly corner of Park avenue and Randolph road will greatly increase the facilities for skillful and extended service. These new buildings consisting of the administration building, the kitchen building, the ward building and the operating pavilion, which is the gift of J. Howard Wright, will be an honor to the city and those who helped to build them. There are none so poor but they can aid the inmates and secure the blessing of Him whose commendation "I was sick and ye visited me" won a right hand place in the last great day of final account.

CHILD LABOR.

The Van Blarcom bill, which has recently been introduced into the Legislature, provides that no children under fourteen years of age shall be employed in this State. This is in line with what has been done in Massachusetts, New York and other states. New Jersey is far behind the other Eastern states in the treatment of its children.

The present law provides that any boy of twelve and any girl of fourteen may be employed. Practically, however, a child may be employed at any age, because the factory inspector is allowed to use his own discretion in giving licenses to "orphan children where necessity may seem to require it," and licenses are seldom or never refused.

Resolutions were adopted by the recent charities conference in Montclair, where Mrs. Florence Kelly represented the National Consumers League, asking "for the enactment at the present session of the Legislature of a measure which will effectively raise the legal age for beginning work, to fourteen years for both sexes, and will abolish the discretion now conferred upon the factory inspector to permit children to work under that age."

Similar resolutions, forwarded to Trenton by local organizations, would be of value to the child labor movement and personal letters to Assemblymen on this subject would be especially effective.

There isn't any doubt but Plainfield is much better behaved than many of its neighbors and that the police force, though preserving peace and order here, would be utterly inadequate in many cities no larger than Plainfield. As long as this city continues its peaceful career, the present force would accomplish all that is necessary. It is, however, manifestly advisable to be prepared to some degree to meet the emergencies. That is the object of installing the Gamewell police patrol system. It is claimed that the increased efficiency for the police department could be secured in no other way for the same money. Plainfield's field is the finest of all the suburban cities. There is much valuable property here. While the criminal class is very small, property of value should be given ample protection. If it can be done, as is claimed, without increasing the tax rate, then there will be only satisfaction on the part of the Plainfield people.

There is prospect of a telephone war in Plainfield. A new company has asked for the privilege of establishing an exchange in this city. It is bucking against a strong proposition, however. The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company has an exchange of nearly a thousand telephones here and connects with over a million others all over the country. Rates have been coming down slowly and the service improving. While competition is a good thing, it is probable that the new company will have to prove pretty strongly that it is going to offer Plainfield some decided advantages before the Councilmen will consent to have a double system thereby bringing the added expense of both to the local merchants and business men.

Souvenir for Each Guest.

In honor of her birthday, Marie, the daughter of D. T. Kenney, of Rockview avenue, entertained twelve of her little friends at a birthday party, between the hours of 2 and 5 Saturday afternoon. The afternoon was spent in playing games. A feature of the afternoon was a novel cake. The cake obtained souvenirs for each guest.

Lamp Exploded.

While Harry Mattis was moving his household effects into a house on West Second street, Friday night, a lamp exploded but it was extinguished before much damage was done.

CONROY GIVES HIS PLATFORM

Tells in An Interview How He Stands on Various Borough Questions.

HE IS GOING IN TO WIN

While He Didn't Seek the Nomination, He Will Use All Honorable Means to Win—Was An Anti-Annexationist at Last Election —Says Sewers Must Come.

Previous to the Democratic primary which was held Friday night, many different names were mentioned for the Democratic nomination for mayor but none but a favored few knew who the right man was. William J. Conroy, himself, did not know that he was slated for the office until a short while before the time set for the meeting. Friends prevailed upon him almost at the last minute to accept the nomination, and, consequently, he was placed upon the ticket as a nominee for the mayoralty of North Plainfield as a "dark horse."

Coming into the political field unheralded, as it were, the people of North Plainfield are much interested in knowing who the candidate for that important office is and what his views are on different matters of interest to the borough. To many he is a stranger as he has lived in the borough ever since he moved to this locality from his native town, Peapack, twelve years ago. He is a property owner to a large extent in the borough and is the proprietor of a well established carriage repository on Somerset street near Linden avenue. He owns a residence on Linden avenue and his children are attending the Borough High School, while another, a graduate of the school, is studying in Trenton at the State Normal School.

Mr. Conroy was seen by a newspaper reporter Saturday afternoon and in an interview told of the manner in which he was prevailed upon to accept the nomination and what he would do if he was elected. He said:

"I did not make any canvass for the nomination and only consented to allow my name to be used after my friends prevailed upon me to do so. Before that I had no intention of running and the suggestion was therefore much of a surprise to me.

"Now that I am in the race I intend to use all fair and honorable means for election. If elected I will do the best I can and will do nothing to harm the interests of the borough for the interests of the borough are necessarily my interests inasmuch as I am a property owner here.

"I have no great promises to make. I have not been extravagant in business and will not be extravagant in conducting the business of the borough, if elected. I do not believe in cutting expenses in the needs of the borough when those needs are imperative. I believe that sometimes there are improvements made which could be delayed but at the same time I am a firm believer in progress.

"The present Mayor is a first rate official and is a good man but I believe he has done some things which would have just as well have been left undone which would have been better for him and for the borough. I realize that he will be a hard man to beat but now that I am in the race I intend to undertake it with a vim and strive for election by all fair means."

"How do you stand on the annexation question?" ventured the interviewer.

"In regards to the annexation question I will say that I voted against it when it was brought up. Since then nothing has been done to call for action or expression on the matter."

"How about the sewer question?" he was then asked.

"I am not prepared to say much in regard to the sewer question but it is an improvement which is necessary and we must have sewers in the borough some day."

"What position do you take in regard to the high license question?" the reporter next ventured.

"I believe in using justice and good judgment with all men in business and I believe that the saloon man is entitled to some consideration, inasmuch as the government recognizes such merchants as legitimate business men. Personally I have no use for the saloon but as they are business men they are entitled to some consideration.

"I believe that a man, in order to serve the interests of the borough well, should serve those interests alike. My business education has taught me that little matters should receive the same attention and more, than the large matters and I can see no reason why the same does not apply to politics.

"I promise to do the best I can if I am honored by the people of North Plainfield with election and I promise I will not build up a political machine out of my possible success."

Mr. Conroy was educated in the public schools of New Jersey at Peapack, where he was born. He came to this city twelve years ago and is one of the charter members of the Grace M. E. church as is C. H. Harding, who is one of the nominees for councilman.

NEVER HEARD OF HIS DEATH

MRS. CHRISTIANNA COLES DIED AT SCOTCH PLAINS, SATURDAY.

Was the Grandmother of Horace Hand, One the Westfield Wreck Victims.

The death of Mrs. Christianna B. Coles, widow of the late Jacob Coles, occurred at her home in Scotch Plains, Saturday night, after a long illness. She was one of the oldest residents of the village being in her eighty-sixth year.

Six children survive her, four sons and two daughters. The former are Scott, of Mississippi; Albert, of Chicago; Thomas, of New York; and Lewis B., of Scotch Plains. The daughters are Miss Hattie Coles, of the Plains, and Mrs. Hezekiah Hand, of Plainfield. The funeral services will be held from her late home tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Owing to her critical illness, Mrs. Coles was never informed of the death of her grandson, Horace Hand, one of the New Jersey Central wreck victims. Another relative, Mrs. Gerst, who lived with her, is very ill and is not yet aware of Mrs. Cole's demise.

THE SUBURBANITE.

A Monthly Publication Soon to be Issued by the Jersey Central Railroad.

"The Suburbanite" is the name of a new monthly magazine which will shortly make its appearance, published by the Central Railroad of New Jersey. It will epitomize "the suburban idea" and contain much matter for those who are, as well as those who ought to be interested in suburban homes.

The first issue will contain articles on "Jersey,—the Automobilists' Paradise" by Winthrop E. Scarritt, President of the Automobile Club of New Jersey; "Suburban Home Garden" by Joel Benton, "Picturesque Cranford" by Jas. Rodgers, Advertising Manager of Harper's Publications, "Building a Suburban Stable" by John Irving Romer, editor of "Equipage," "City versus Suburban Life," "Social Life in the Suburbs," "A Suburbanite to Some Purpose—a True Story," "Atlantic City at Easter," "Advantages to the Children of a Suburban Home," etc.

The typographical work will be handsomely illustrated with [engravings from photographs of suburban scenes taken specially for it, and will contain useful data concerning distances of various suburban points from the city and cost of commutation. A feature will also be a department of light gossip, entitled "In The Smoker" by The Commuter. Sample copies may be had as soon as issued by application to C. M. Burt, general passenger agent, Central R. R. of New Jersey, New York.

DEATH OF W. H. CHAPMAN.

Passed Away at His East Front St. Home After Few Weeks Illness.

Following an illness of several weeks from cancer, death came to William H. Chapman at his home on East Front street, Saturday evening.

He was in his sixty-fourth year and leaves a wife and two daughters. For several years he had been a member of the Crescent Avenue church, which he always attended.

The funeral services will be held from his late home tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock and Dr. Richards, of the Brick Presbyterian church, New York, will officiate. The interment will be private.

INSPECTED AUTOS.

Geo. M. McIntyre Returned From Trip Through West.

George M. McIntyre, of the F. L. C. Martin Company, accompanied by Otto Nehz, returned home, Saturday night after an extensive trip through the middle west. The journey was made for the purpose of inspecting the large automobile factories and the coming season's models which the Martin company will handle. They visited the shops at Detroit, Hamilton, O., Minneapolis, Minn., London, Ontario, and Pittsburg. In all they were gone one week and were greatly pleased with the result.

For Social Workers.

The Public Library has received recently the proceedings of the National Conference of Charities and Correction for 1902, the gift of Mason W. Tyler. The volumes of these proceedings, of which there are now eight in the library, are a mine of information to the social worker. They are in the circulating department.

DEM. TICKET NOW COMPLETE

Committee on Vacancies Fills Nominations for Council and Minor Offices.

HARDING AND BODINE

Two Well-Known Citizens Chosen as the Councilmanic Candidates—Committee Met Saturday Evening and Completed Democratic Borough Ticket.

Saturday night, the committee on vacancies which was appointed at the Democratic primary, completed the nominations for the Democratic ticket in the borough for the coming election.

C. H. Harding and L. B. Bodine were nominated for councilmen. Both are very well known in the borough as capable men. Mr. Bodine is the son of John Bodine, who was at one time prominently identified with borough politics. Mr. Harding is a conservative business man and is a member of Grace M. E. church.

John T. Case received the nomination for the office of commissioner of appeals and Leander W. Hammond was placed upon the ticket for justice of the peace. The Board of Health appropriation is $550, the same as last year's appropriation.

The committee on vacancies comprised Levi Kline, David J. Carney and Walter C. Linbarger.

MISS CADY'S RECITAL.

Plainfielders Who Attended Were Given a Real Treat—Assisted by R. A. McGee, Bass.

A number of Plainfielders helped to fill to overflowing the east room of the Waldorf-Astoria, Friday afternoon, the occasion being a delightful piano recital given by Miss Harriette Cady, assisted by Raymond A. McGee, baseo. No more pleasing programme could have been arranged by Miss Cady, each number so entirely different, yet none the less pleasing than the other. The interpretations of all was above criticism.

If any one selections out of a programme representing the work of such masters as Bach-Saint-Saens, Moskowski, Von Weber, Chopin, Tschaikowsky, the polonaise from LaBal Suite by Rubenstein was perhaps the most enjoyable, and showed Miss Cady's absolute control of the intricacies of piano technique. The Barcarolle in major by Moskowski was also played exceptionally well, the swaying rythm and singing tone unusually pronounced. Miss Cady has given evidence of her ability as an artist on several occasions in Plainfield and her recital Friday afternoon only tended to deepen the admiration for herself, and rendering of the classics.

Mr. McGee sang two solos and although suffering from a severe cold, pleased the audience and was compelled to respond to an encore each time. He was well supported by the accompaniments of Miss Saidee Mae Howell.

THE INDIANS CAMPED THERE

RELICS CONSTANTLY BEING FOUND NEAR WATCHUNG SPRING.

Spear and Arrow Heads Found in Considerable Number—Other Relics.

That a large camp of Indians once lived near the present site of the Watchung springs is evident from the fact that constantly finds are being made by workmen who are in the employ of the Watchung Spring Water Company, of this city.

Recently, while some men were digging about the spring they uncovered some very fine specimens of spear heads. The idea that they are spear heads is secured from the fact that they are very much larger than the ordinary arrow heads. They are shaped very well and show much skill on the part of the tribe to which they no doubt originally belonged.

Other relics have been found besides spear heads and arrow tips. Several weeks ago a workman found some fine specimens of neckwear which are believed to have been worn by the Indians. The substance is not stone but appears to be something like petrified bone. Evidences of carving are to be found on the articles.

These articles are on exhibition at the office of the company on North avenue. Some of the specimens are not well made but the majority of them are cleverly shaped and show evidence of being made by hands more skilful than the ordinary American Indian. This supposition is strengthened by the fact that these relics are found deep in the ground.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

The Standard Railroad of America.

PROTECTED THROUGHOUT BY THE INTERLOCKING SWITCH AND BLOCK SIGNAL SYSTEM.

ON AND AFTER JAN. 12, 1903.

Trains will leave Elizabeth as follows:—For New York, 7.00 daily, Pullman Vestibule Parlor Cars, for Pittsburg and Cleveland, Northern and Eastern Pennsylvania.

7.37 A. M.—Western Express, daily, with Vestibule Sleeping Cars, for Pittsburg and Chicago, except Saturday, for Toledo.

8.00 A. M.—Pacific Express, daily, with Pullman Vestibule Sleeping Cars, for Pittsburg and Chicago, daily for Knoxville, Nashville and Atlanta, Vestibule Day Coaches, for Cleveland except Saturday.

The Southern's Palm Limited—1.00 p.m. week-days.

The Atlantic Coast Line Florida Special—3.05 p. m. week days.

Florida Limited—4.07 p. m. daily.

For Baltimore, Washington and the South—1.00, 8.00, 9.07, 9.55 a. m., 1.00, 3.07, 12.05 p. m. Sundays—1.00, 9.07, 9.55 a. m., 12.05 and 10.07 p. m.

For Newark and New York—12.05, 12.45 a. m., 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 4.30, 5.00, 5.30, 6.00, 6.30, 7.00, 7.30, 8.00, 8.30, 9.00, 9.30, 10.00, 10.30, 11.00, 11.30 a. m., 12.00, 12.30, 1.00, 1.30, 2.00, 2.30, 3.00, 3.30, 4.00, 4.30, 5.00, 5.30, 6.00, 6.30, 7.00, 7.30, 8.00, 8.30, 9.00, 9.30, 10.00, 10.30, 11.00 p. m. Sundays—1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 4.30, 5.00, 5.30, 6.00, 6.30, 7.00, 7.30, 8.00, 8.30, 9.00, 9.30, 10.00, 10.30, 11.00 p. m. Express, 1.00, 1.54, 2.30, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 a. m., 12.30, 1.30, 2.30, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 p. m. Sundays—1.00, 2.30, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30

FOUND BODY IN STREAM

A Gruesome Find Made by David Runyon, Near Lincoln—It Is a Mystery.

LONG IN THE WATER

No Clue to Cause of Death, Whether by His Own Hand or the Hand of Another—Identity Also a Mystery—Was Found While Hunting for Musk Rats—Theories as to Death.

Face downward in the muddy water of New Market brook, near the Close farm, Lincoln, the body of a man was discovered Monday afternoon. While there were no marks to be found about the body to suggest a violent end, the cause of death is shrouded in mystery. Any clue which would seem to lead to the discovery of the identity of the man is also lacking. Was it murder, suicide or accident?

This gruesome discovery was made by David Runyon, of Dunellen, while hunting musk rats. He had started out with his gun early in the afternoon and tramped along the banks of the brook which flows from the New Market pond westward under the railroads, past the "banks" and eventually on to join Bound brook and the Raritan. The stream was still swollen from the recent rains and drift wood covered the banks.

While looking for a musk rat, Runyon spied a peculiar object in the water. It looked like a man. A scarecrow washed down by the flood was what Runyon supposed it to be. With a fence rail, he pulled it to the shore and turned it over. Then he beheld the face of a man, bloated and discolored. The body was in a stage of decomposition, showing that it had been there for some time.

Dragging the body partially ashore so that the current would not carry it away, Runyon hastened back to Dunellen to tell of his find. Undertaker W. Q. Runyon was notified and went to the spot while Coroner Quackenbos, of New Brunswick, arrived during the course of the afternoon, viewed the body and ordered its removal to Runyon's undertaking parlors in Dunellen.

Long exposure to the water had left the body in a condition which made it impossible to find any bruises or broken bones. There were no cuts apparent. The remains were apparently those of a German, sixty years old, dressing in working clothes and rubber boots. The hat was missing.

The hair was sprinkled with grey and the forehead a high one. The frame was a stocky one with a weight of about 170 pounds in life. There was a short stubby moustache thickly sprinkled with red hair. There was nothing found in the clothing that would give any clue as to the identity of the man. In the pockets were a watch of cheap make, which had stopped at 6:05, 55 cents in change, a razor and a pen knife.

So far there is nothing to give any clue as to how the man met his death. The stream flows near the spot where David Vail, was found dead on the Jersey Central tracks two weeks ago. At that time there was some doubt as to whether he met death on the railroad or had been the victim of foul play. The county officials finally decided that he had been struck by a train. The discovery of this body has started a new bunch of rumors.

While there is no evidence that robbery was intended in the case of this unknown man or that death came by other than accident, no one is missing in that vicinity and the presence of the body cannot be accounted for. There is the theory of murder and some possible connection with the death of David Vail. Another suggestion is that death was deliberately planned but this is hardly possible as the water, even in time of flood, is not sufficient volume to make drowning sure. The theory has been advanced that the man had fallen from one of the bridges in the dark and, stunned by the blow, had been drowned before he had an opportunity to save himself. With the high water of recent days, the body could have been carried some distance.

Played With Loaded Gun.

While playing with a loaded gun, Saturday morning, Willie Macbonl, who lives with his parents on Richmond street, was barned slightly on the hand by the sudden exploding of the weapon. Only one finger was burned as the bullet passed between his thumb and forefinger and lodged in the molding in the room. The lad was badly frightened by his narrow escape.

Retail Clerks Anniversary.

Professional talent will entertain at the anniversary of the Retail Clerks' Mutual Aid Association Monday evening, March 9.

LENTEN GOSPEL CAMPAIGN

THE LOCAL PASTORS ASKED TO TAKE PART IN IT.

Appeal Received From Twentieth Century National Gospel Campaign Committee.

The Plainfield Ministers' Association has received an appeal from the Twentieth Century National Gospel campaign Committee, for a National Lenten gospel campaign and the chances are there will be a general observance of it. The appeal says among other things:

"The Lenten season has of late years—owing to the special emphasis placed upon it by some branches of *the church, and the resulting tempo*rary staying of the tide of worldliness and frivolity at that time—proved peculiarly favorable to the promotion of religious interest. Its connection with the death and resurrection of our Lord, increasingly recognized in all branches of the church, would seem to make it a most opportune time for the quickening of Christians for spiritual life and service. We therefore respectfully suggest a plan for making the most of this Lenten opportunity this year for the furtherance of the spiritual advance for which the present crisis so urgently calls."

It was proposed that "Ash Wednesday," be observed as a special day of humiliation and prayer. It was asked that the prayers be of a definite kind, including petitions for a return to absolute faith in the Bible as the inspired authoritative word of God, for quickened sense of the sinfulness of sin, the sufficiency and efficacy of the atonement of Jesus Christ wrought on the cross, for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, etc.

The appeal continues:

"Following the day of prayer and continuing until April 10, let every Christian minister, in his own church or in co-operation with the ministers of neighboring sister churches, undertake the work of personal positive evangelism among the unsaved. Let evangelistic sermons be preached, let special Gospel music be sung, let there be discreet and enterprising advertising done through the press, circulars, cards and bill-boards.

"In order farther to emphasize publicly the intense desire of Christians to reach and make welcome the nonchurch going people we would suggest that all church buildings be opened to the public each day, from morning until close of services at night, during the Lenten season."

WALKS AFTER TWENTY YEARS

OPERATION HAS GIVEN THAT POWER TO MISS ETHEL BOWMAN.

Has Been Practically Helpless From Birth—Operation by a New York Specialist.

A marvellous operation performed several weeks ago in the Hahnemann Hospital, New York, upon Miss Ethel Bowman, the twenty-year-old daughter of A. H. Bowman, of Dunellen avenue, has practically given her the power of locomotion, which she has been denied from birth. She is now learning to walk and expects to discard a cane and crutch within a few weeks.

The girl was afflicted with paralysis of the ankles soon after birth. She was practically helpless and moved about only with her limbs incased in braces and with crutches. Nothing definite in the way of a cure was accomplished until the time of Dr. Lorenz' visit to New York when her father placed her in the care of Dr. Roberts, a nerve specialist of West Fifty-ninth street.

He performed a delicate operation which consisted of cutting the tendons about the ankles. The limbs were then placed in plaster casts and the patient was further treated by electricity. It resulted in the cure as mentioned and there is every reason to believe it will be complete.

Evening for Whist.

There is considerable interest manifested in the scheme of the Park Club to devote an evening a week to whist, if a sufficient number of people signify their desire for it. The popular card game has been greatly in vogue this season and a number of private matches have been played off every week.

Taken Ill on Street.

John Gallig, of Park place, was taken ill on the street near his home at noon today. He was assisted to his home by passersby and no serious results are anticipated.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

MORE SEWERS TO BE BUILT

Common Council Decides to Enlarge Present System in Southwest End of City.

FOR RESIDENTIAL PARK

Street Committee Has Something to Say Regarding Trolley Servier, and Makes Certain Recommendations—Two New Policemen Were Also Appointed.

The members of the Common Council are finding plenty to do this year and, although this is only the beginning of the third month, each succeeding session seems to be filled with business of vital interest to every citizen. The regular meeting of the Council held last Monday was an important one and several matters affecting the city in general and particular were considered. One of the most important measures was that regarding an extension to the present sewer system, which will practically cover the remaining part of the city not now provided for in Plainfield's system of sewage disposal.

Regarding this sewage matter, the committee on streets and sewage has for some time past been at work perfecting plans for this improvement. Last evening the committee, through its chairman, Mr. Tolles, presented the following which will explain itself:

"In compliance with the resolutions adopted by the Common Council December 26, 1902, and February 3, 1903, your committee on streets and sewers would report that we have investigated the matter of the most efficient means of sewering that portion of the territory of the city which lies outside of the area which may be drained by gravity, and that we first considered the plan outlined in 1895, which contemplated draining the sewage to a pump-well at the intersection of Plainfield and Pemberton avenues, from which it would be raised to the gravity system at Grant avenue.

"This plan, while providing for the section east of Grant avenue, leaves the area west thereof without sewerage facilities.

"We have therefore thought it best to extend the main sewer through Pemberton, Sherman and Monroe avenues, West Seventh street (or West Sixth street), Clinton avenue, South Second street and West Front street to a pump-well on the city property at the intersection of West Front street and Rock avenue, where the sewage would be raised by pumping to the present disposal works, the pumps to be operated by electric motors, gas or gasoline engines. The crossing from South Second street to West Front street would be at DeKalb avenue.

"The easterly end of the line would run through Prospect avenue, Crest street, Martine avenue, Park avenue, Arlington place, Arlington avenue, Rose street, Randolph road and Plainfield avenue, thus providing for nearly the whole of that portion of the city which cannot be drained by gravity.

We find, from the city surveyor's profiles, that the maximum cut would be nearly 23 feet, and the last pits would be under our direction show that the material is sand of varying fineness, also that much of the grade will be below the level of the ground water, necessitating the use of cast iron pipe.

"We have submitted, the proposed plan, with map and profile, to M. N. Baker, consulting engineer, of New York, and append his report hereto.

"We would mention, in addition to the reasons for preventing the infiltration of ground water referred to by Mr. Baker, that the more such water is admitted to the sewers, the greater must be the capacity of the disposal works provided.

"We estimate that the cost of the main sewer and pumping plant only, would be approximately $65,000, only a small portion of which cost could be assessed upon the adjacent property. A number of small lateral sewers should be constructed in connection with the above described main sewer, but as the larger part of their cost would be assessed upon adjoining property, we have not included them in our estimate.

"We believe that the residents in the section under consideration cannot be indefinitely deprived of the sewerage facilities enjoyed by the rest of the city, and we have, after very careful deliberation, concluded to recommend for adoption the accompanying ordinance, which provides for the construction of sewers in the section referred to, excepting the streets already provided for in previous ordinances."

The appended report of the consulting engineer, M. N. Baker, of New York, simply recommends the plans of the street and sewer committee as being feasible and most practical and he says that after careful inspection he believes it will do all that is claimed for it. After the reading of the two reports, Mr. Tolles offered an ordinance which provides for the improvement to the sewer system and was Monday evening, March 23, as the time when a public hearing will be given in the matter.

It is explained that by reason of the extensive plans now perfected by G. Herbert Taylor and Philadelphia capitalists for the building of a residential park in the southwestern part of the city, there will be no measurable increase in the tax rate by reason of the extension of the sewers and that the increase in the valuation of property will be more than enough to pay the cost. It is principally for this reason that the Council is so willing to go ahead and give that portion of the city a sewer system.

Another important matter considered was a report of the streets and sewer committee on Councilman Lee's resolution offered last week which provided for an immediate improvement of the trolley service and rolling stock. Mr. Tolles submitted a report, which is to be communicated to the general officers of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway Company. This provides that new carpet shall replace all worn carpet on the seats of the cars and that as soon as possible rattan seats shall be provided; that all old cars shall be replaced by new ones, that all wires and equipment shall be inspected regularly; that all employes, whether on duty or off duty and while riding on the trolley cars shall refrain from smoking, using loud or boisterous language and shall act in a gentlemanly manner; that all cars stop at Watchung and North avenues, when requested by passengers, and at Third street and Watchung avenue. It was Mr. vanHerwerden's suggestion that the cars stop at Third street and Watchung avenue, and it is the sense of the report that these improvements be made just as soon as practical.

The customary batch of applications for licenses from hackmen, peddlers, truckmen, etc., were presented and on a motion offered by Chairman Tyler, of the license committee, were granted after the usual fees are paid.

J. J. Kenney petitioned the Council for permission to make a brick addition in the rear of his store so as to provide for an extension of the sewer. On motion of Mr. Lee, of the fire and building committee, the petition was granted. A petition from residents in the vicinity of Monroe and Hobart avenues, asked for four additional electric lights, and the matter was referred to the proper committee.

Geo. O. Martine and other property owners on Martine avenue, petitioned the Council to accept that thoroughfare as a street. The matter was referred to the committee on streets and sewers. John Hensey and others asked that North avenue, east of Richmond street, be repaired. The petitioners complained that the street is too muddy to be passable, while the cellars in that neighborhood are filled with water, making life boats a necessity. The streets and sewers committee will investigate the conditions noted by the residents on North avenue.

Building Inspector Doane reported that during February, seventeen building permits were granted.

Mayor O. L. Jenkins appointed Wm. C. Messler and John Huff special policemen. The appointments were confirmed. The new men will probably do regular duty until such time as the Council believe them competent and qualified. They will then be made regulars.

Mr. Huff passed one of the best examinations for the position, his mental work as well as physical qualifications being most satisfactory. Mr. Messler also passed good examinations. The latter has been in the employ of Wikoff & Stiglitz for some time. The Police Board are much pleased with the new appointees.

Mr. Daniel offered a resolution transferring $1,000 from the general fund to the fire fund and $500 from the general fund to the poor fund.

After Mr. Tolles moved that when Council adjourned it be to meet on Monday evening, March 23, an adjournment was taken to that date.

Township Primary.

The Republicans of North Plainfield township will hold their primary Friday evening.

Pension for Plainfielder.

Isaac E. Houston, of Plainfield, has been granted a pension of $8 a month.

THIS REMEDY IS SURE TO GIVE SATISFACTION.

Ely's Cream Balm Gives relief at once. It cleanses, soothes, heals the diseased membrane. It cures catarrh and drives away a cold in the head quickly. It is absorbed. Heals and protects the membrane. Restores the senses of Taste and Smell. Full size, 50c. at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size 10c. by mail. ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.

ADOPTS POLICE PATROL SYSTEM

The Common Council Finally Takes Action and Decides for the Gamewell System.

IT WILL COST $6,025

After a Recess to Discuss the Contract, the Council Decides in Favor of It—Will be Installed in a Hundred Days—To Start the Work at Once.

The members of the Common Council at the regular session held last Monday unanimously adopted the Gamewell police patrol system, thereby voting to install the same in this city. This action was in accordance with the predictions of The Daily Press a few days ago. The contract was awarded to the Gamewell Company as the specified price of $6,025, and after the acceptance by the company and the signature of the proper city officials it will become operative. That the company expects to accept the conditions was evidenced last evening, when its representative said that the order for the supplies would be given today and that within two weeks the work will be started.

Before final action on this proposition was taken, the Council held a recess for one hour to discuss every phase of the detailed contract. According to this contract and for the specified price, $6,025, the Gamewell Company agrees to install a police signal system consisting of an automatic plant of the most approved character, provided with devices of modern design, and upon the completion of the same transfer the entire system to the city for the price paid for the full term of patents. The system is to be installed within one hundred days from the time of signing the contract and it is to be inspected thirty days after completion, when, if found satisfactory, a certificate so signifying shall be given by the city. The company guarantees protection to the city in the use of all patents in connection with the system and agrees to make good any defects within five years from the date of installation. The contract to become valid must be signed within ten days from last evening.

According to the provision of the contract the connections to five of the patrol boxes will be through the underground conduits of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company and the extra expense for this work will be $350. All other wires will be placed on poles.

Mr. Randolph, chairman of the police committee, made the report on this matter and offered a resolution providing for the acceptance of and awarding of the contract, which was unanimously adopted.

The system provides for sixteen street wall boxes. When the box is pulled it shall give its own number, and also transmit the special service desired. The index for transmitting the special service shall automatically restore itself. The boxes shall have electro-magnet bells, signal keys, lightning arresters, and shall have all the necessary connections for telephone service in addition to the automatic signaling devices, and the labor of installing the boxes shall be included in the price.

Police headquarters' equipment shall be designed for operating the system in two separate parts or circuits. The apparatus shall be mounted upon a cabinet desk and all the necessary devices shall be provided for operating and recording all signals automatically. The specifications also provide for an emergency bell annunciator and that all report calls shall be made silently without ringing a bell. For the wagon house there will be an equipment of the customary electro-mechanical gong and the telegraph line is to be constructed in a double metallic circuit and is to be so constructed that there will no induction when telephones are used. The amount of line will be sixteen miles in all.

All of the material, apparatus and work shall be furnished in a thorough and workmanlike manner, and the whole system put up in complete working order ready for service, including the necessary primary batteries for operating the system. The sixteen boxes will be located at such points as previously stated in this paper.

Preparing for New Saloon.

Workmen are engaged in tearing out the store at 543 East Third street for the purpose of fitting it up for Turner's saloon. Extensive improvements will be made to the place and it will be ready for occupancy in a month or two.

RAILROAD CO. IS CENSURED

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1.)

important change was to be made in the running of the trains, and that the Easton local was not to be sidetracked at Cranford as was usually done, but was to be continued on the main track ahead of the fast Philadelphia train. This being known in advance, Engineer Davis, of the Philadelphia train, was not informed before leaving Jersey City of the change in the regular schedule of operating the train.

3. The Grand Jury feel that while Engineer Davis is the one person directly responsible for the collision, the company employing him, the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company and the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, upon whose tracks the disaster occurred, should not escape some degree of censure.

First. For the laxity that appears to exist in both railroads in the running condition of the engines.

Second. In the use by the Central Railroad Company of passenger cars of present make and of such weak construction as to be incapable of resistance in case of collision, and which are heated with stoves.

Third. That when it was known to the proper authorities of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad that Engine No. 27 (being the engine which ran into the Easton local train) had a leaky steam chest and was unfit for high speed, this engine was allowed to be put on a high speed train, not only for the emergency run from Trenton to Jersey City, but also for the two-mile trip from Jersey City to Philadelphia.

The Grand Jury, after patient investigation, respectfully submit these their conclusions.

N. C. J. English,
Prosecutor of Pleas.

The Misses Alice and Anna Nolan, of West Seventh street, have returned home after a pleasant visit with friends in Jersey City.

SETTLERS' TICKETS

TO WESTERN POINTS

ARE NOW ON SALE VIA THE

LEHIGH VALLEY RAILROAD,

At Extremely Low Rates of Fare.

Dates of Sale.

March 1st and including April 29, 1903.

Stop-overs.

Stop-overs will be allowed by Western lines subject to local regulations of the line over which tickets read. Detailed information as to points of stop-over, limits, etc., may be secured on application.

Through Trains via the Lehigh Valley R. R.

Connect at Chicago with all lines for the Northwest, Pacific Coast and Canada. Tourist coupons are included in all through tickets routed beyond Chicago when necessary.

Inquire of Ticket Agents Lehigh Valley Railroad, for time of trains, etc., or address, Charles S. Lee, General Passenger Agent, 26 Cortlandt Street, New York. P 3 4 7 o w C 3 5 7 e w

CERTIFICATE EXTENDING CHARTER

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
Office of Comptroller of the Currency,
Washington, D. C., February 24th, 1903.

WHEREAS, by satisfactory evidence presented to the undersigned, it has been made to appear that THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF PLAINFIELD, located at the city of Plainfield, in the County of Union, and State of New Jersey, has complied with all the provisions of the Act of Congress "to enable National Banking Associations to extend their corporate existence and for other purposes," approved July 12, 1882, as amended by the Act, approved April 30th, 1900;

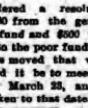
NOW THEREFORE, I, William B. Ridgley, Comptroller of the Currency, do hereby certify that the National Bank of Plainfield is authorized to the City of Plainfield in the County of Union and State of New Jersey, is authorized to have succession for the period specified in its amended articles of association, namely, until close of business on February 24, 1923.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF witness my hand and seal of office this twenty-fourth day of February, 1903.

WILLIAM B. RIDGLEY,
Comptroller of the Currency.

Charter No. 4,544. First National Bank of Plainfield, Extension No. 226. 3 5 5

We Can Sell Your Farm,



Factory, business or Residence. No matter where located. We have sold thousands of others. Why not yours? We have an unequaled system. Write seldom fails. Send us description and price and we will explain how.

MONEY

Offices in all principal cities; highest references. A. A. ROTTNER & CO., 2161 West 115th St., Chicago. Established 1891.

DIED

PORTER—In this city, on Wednesday, February 25, 1903, Caroline, wife of John H. Porter.

HARDING—In this city, February 26, 1903, James F., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Harding, in his 18th year.

HARRINGTON—In this city, Feb. 27, 1903, Mary Harrington, in her 84th year.

TERRY—At Alton, N. J., Feb. 26, 1903, Winfield Scott, son of Winfield S. and Elizabeth Terry, aged 8 years, 1 month.

PERKINS—In this city, on Friday, Feb. 27, 1903, Dorcas Perkins.

CHAPMAN—On Saturday, February 28, 1903, after a brief illness, William H. Chapman, in the 65th year of his age.

SISSON—In North Plainfield, March 1, 1903, Mary J., wife of Frederick S. Sisson, aged 52 years.

COLES—In Scotch Plains, February 28, 1903, Christiana B., wife of the late Jacob V. Coles, in her 87th year.

HOLMES—At Plainfield, N. J., on Monday, March 2, 1903, Louise M., only daughter of Edwin H. and Rebecca M. Holmes.

Sanitary Plumbing

Brick and Portable Furnace Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing, Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in cases.

D. W. LITTELL,

No. 112 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

is now open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the toriorie.

EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

CARNEY BROS.,

MADISON AVENUE.

Between Front and Second streets

Tinners, Plumbers Gas Fitters,

Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. FRANK HUBBARD, President.
GEO. W. ROCKFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

Guaranteed Salary

$900 YEARLY.

Men and women of good address to represent us, some to travel, appointing agents; good pay for local work looking after our interests. Steady employment guaranteed. Yearly, extra commissions and expenses, rapid advancement, paid assistants. Unusual chance for earnest man or woman to secure permanent, profitable employment. Spare time, home and future. New, brilliant lines. Write at once.

STAFFORD PRESS,
23 Church St., New Haven, Conn

W. B. CODDINGTON,

Counsellor-at-Law

Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corner of Park avenue and Second street.

ALBERT HEDDEN

Livery & Boarding Stables

FOURTH ST.,

between Watchung and Park avenues. First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

Wm. A. Woodruff,

Fire and Life

INSURANCE AGENT,

OFFICE,

corner Front St. and Park Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

Real Estate for Sale or Exchange Money to loan on Approved Security

STOLE WHILE FAMILY DINED

Burglar Secured $100 and Jewelry at Residence of Chas. Matthews, Grove St.

THEN WAS DISTURBED

Was Sifting Bureau Drawers on the Second Floor When Frightened Away—Jumped From Piazza Roof to Snow Beneath—No Clue—Was An Expert Thief.

A daring attempt was made to rob the house of Charles Matthews, of 49 Grove street, last Friday at 7 o'clock while the family was at dinner. Although the fellow was frightened away before he secured much booty he took with him $100 in money and a pair of earrings valued very highly.

The robbery was discovered by Peter H. Matthews and from the appearance of the room it was apparent that the burglar was in the act of rifling the drawers of the bureau when he heard Mr. Matthews approaching up the hall stairs. Chief Marshal William H. Campbell was notified ten minutes after the burglary was discovered and an investigation was at once started.

It is believed that the burglar was a clever second story man as he secured an entrance into the house by means of the front bedroom window over the front door. He climbed up the verandah posts and when he made his escape he jumped from the top of the veranda to the soft snow below as his footprints were plainly seen on the ground.

Mrs. Matthews said Saturday that the earrings, which were stolen, were of onyx set with pearls and were a part of a set which she valued highly. Mrs. Matthews wore the pin which completes the set when the robbery occurred. The room was littered with articles of clothing and the bureau drawers were found in different part of the room, showing that the robber was working in great haste.

IN THE PISCATAWAY SCHOOLS

LIST OF MERITORIOUS PUPILS DURING MONTH OF FEBRUARY.

Those Who Have Not Missed a Day in the Month Ending February 20.

The following is a list of the meritorious pupils of the Piscataway township schools who have been present every day during the school month ending February 20, 1903:

New Market. High School department—James Harris. Intermediate department—Hilda Johnson, Barbara Beiler, Mabel Whitford, Annie Wingess, Grace Bardick, George Coriell, Ray Whitford, Paul Whitford, Joe Penrose, Frank Coriell, Emil Nelson, Willie Eliot. Primary department—Carl Bisler, Maude Johnson, John Richards, Mildred Mackey, James Thornton, Dorothy Richards, John Thornton. Grammar department—Frank Burdick, Ethan Rogers.

East Round Brook. Primary department—Harry Giles, Katie Vogt, Andrew Harper, Freda Johnson, Irving Stillwell. Intermediate department—Bennie Giles, Martin Vogt, Dennie Whitlock, Arthur Wade, LeRoy Voghts, Bessie Taylor, Amos Stout, Gussie Bragger, Frankie Bragger. Primary department — Percy Hendricks, Maria Gulick.

South Plainfield School—Marguerite McDonough, Eddie Horn, John Geary, Patrick McDonough, John Arrowsmith, Mabel Arrowsmith, May Gage, George Gage, John McDonough, Kitty Monahan, Joseph Hora, Theresa Mahoney, Andrew McDonough, Eddie Norman, Marion Geary, Nora McDonough.

Union School — Merle Randolph, John Schenck, Elston Randolph, Randolphville—Fred Fitz Randolph. Maple Grove—George Winkelbein.

H. Cathers, Township Supervisor.

Miss Carrie Kellogg, of Orange, is the guest of friends in North Plainfield.

"THE NEXT MORNING I FEEL BRIGHT AND NEW AND MY COMPLEXION IS BETTER."

So declare men of middle age who have used Laxative Herb Tea. This drink is made of herbs and roots and is as much a tea as Oolong or English Breakfast. Ask your druggist for it.

LANE'S FAMILY MEDICINE

Moves the bowels each day in order to get well and stay well. Keeps you well. Price 25c. and 50c. Never sold in bulk. Beware of substitutes. Lane's Tea, Lane's Medicine, Lane's Laxative Cough Syrup, Lane's Worm Powders, Lane's Liver Pills, Lane's Kidney Pills, Lane's Sarsaparilla, Lane's Blood Purifier, Lane's Tonic, Lane's Headache Powders, Lane's Cough Drops, Lane's Arnica Salve, Lane's Witch Hazel Salve, Lane's Pile Ointment, Lane's Sanative Wash, Lane's Disinfectant Powder, Lane's Insect Powder, Lane's Sheep Dip, Lane's Cattle Powders, Lane's Hog Powders, Lane's Poultry Powders, Lane's Egg Producer, Lane's Roup Cure, Lane's Gape Worm Cure, Lane's Lice Killer, Lane's Colic Cure, Lane's Garget Cure, Lane's Scratches Cure, Lane's Foot Rot Cure, Lane's Distemper Cure, Lane's Heave Cure, Lane's Spavin Cure, Lane's Ringbone Cure, Lane's Curb Cure, Lane's Splint Cure, Lane's Thrush Cure, Lane's Fistula Cure, Lane's Poll Evil Cure, Lane's Quitter Cure, Lane's Wind Cure, Lane's Blister, Lane's Liniment, Lane's Worm Syrup, Lane's Worm Capsules, Lane's Worm Pills, Lane's Worm Tablets, Lane's Worm Lozenges, Lane's Worm Powders, Lane's Worm Syrup, Lane's Worm Capsules, Lane's Worm Pills, Lane's Worm Tablets, Lane's Worm Lozenges, Lane's Worm Powders.

YOUNG MEN SUCCEED IN GIVING SUPPER

Highly Delightful Attempt Made by the Young Men's Brotherhood of First M. E.

AN EXCELLENT REPAST

THEN JAMES R. JOY GAVE ILLUSTRATED LECTURE ON NATIONAL PARK.

Over 200 Guests Partook of the Supper Which, Cooked and Served by the Men Alone, Was Much Enjoyed—The Cooks and Waiters.

Successful to a degree that surpassed the most sanguine hopes of its promoters, the supper given in the basement of the First M. E. church, under the auspices of the Young Men's Brotherhood, last Friday, proved an immense drawing card. A menu that rivalled a French table d' hote, music and decorations formed a combination that stamped the organization as very important factor when it comes to a question of entertaining. Fully 200 guests partook of the excellent meal which was prepared and served entirely by the young men.

Eight tables were used for the purpose and they were placed in the form of a cross. A large bank of palms formed a center piece in a decorative way and bunting and flags used without stint about pillars and walls enhanced the pretty effect. On each table a lighted lamp shed soft rays. Evidences of the modern restaurant scheme were revealed in signs of a humorous nature conspicuously displayed, warning all guests not to tip the waiters and to beware of pickpockets and overcoat thieves, and the presence of the Brotherhood orchestra which discoursed music during the evening.

The last supper was served at 8 o'clock and half an hour later adjournment was taken to Vincent chapel where preparation had been made by James R. Joy to give his lecture on the beauties of the Yellowstone National Park. While waiting for its commencement the Brotherhood quartette composed of Lewis Schutt, Robert Davis, Ralph Lane and George A. Horne delighted the audience with vocal selections.

Mr. Joy's lecture was illustrated by 100 views taken by himself and showed some of the most wonderful scenes in the great park. Among the most prominent were those of the geysers, the workings of which he explained in detail.

The idea of the supper and entertainment originated with Nelson A. Blue, president of the Brotherhood, and it is due mainly to his efforts that the scheme was so successfully carried out. He was assisted by the following comittees: Decorations, Albert Steiner and William Symons; service, George A. Horne, Stephen H. Tugwell; tickets and advertising, J. A. Stafford and L. V. Wilson; music, C. Kenneth Shupp; provisions, Nelson A. Miller and Dr. Frank W. French; cashier, Ralph Lane.

The members of the Brotherhood who acted as waiters were Lewis Schutt, Walter McNaughton, Ralph Lane, John M. Lewis, Ralph Fenno, Edward Shearer, John VanMiddlesworth, Dr. F. W. French, Fred Martin, William Symons, Harold Whitney, Albert Steiner, Harold Fenno, William Pike, R. Elwood Sebring and George A. Horne.

Locomotives Made in a Year.

Fifteen hundred and twenty was the exact number of finished locomotives turned out by the Baldwin Locomotive Works at Philadelphia last year. This is an increase of 230 locomotives over the year previous, and represents a money value of $20,000,000 for the year's output.

THE QUIVER.

The February Number Has Original Contributions From Many.

The February number of "The Quiver," published by the Qui Vive Society of the Randolph-Cooley Collegiate School, has made its appearance. It is more replete than usual with school news, anecdotes and personal chat. There are several original contributions by E. G. Waring, Verna McCutchen, Helen Joy, M. Gibbs and Anne Waldo.

A Remarkable Case.

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind., who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. She says: "The coughing and straining so weakened me that I run down in weight from 148 to 92 pounds. I tried a number of remedies to no avail until I used One Minute Cough Cure. Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength." L. W. Randolph.

USE OF FALSE TEETH.

The Enormous and Ever Increasing Output of Manufacturers in the United States.

Probably not less than 2,000,000 artificial teeth are manufactured in this country each year, and still the output goes on increasing, states the New York Times. Never before was such great care manifested for teeth as has been exhibited during the past five years. In this respect Americans lead the world, not even the fastidious French excelling the people of the United States in their solicitude for the preservation of natural teeth and in their appliances of the arts of dental science when substitutes have to be provided for nature's molars.

Englishmen are notoriously careless about their teeth, although in late years great progress has been made in this matter.

A prominent dentist of New York declares that nearly every patient with a mouthful of decayed teeth is a foreigner. "They let things drift," he says, "and come only when pain drives them here. Americans, and especially southerners, hasten to their dentist immediately they detect even the slightest signs of coming trouble, and the result is that there are by far more "saved" teeth in this country than in any other. Englishmen are remarkably apathetic about their molars, and will go about for years with hopelessly decayed teeth."

WAGES IN FORMOSA.

The Highest Pay for Skilled Labor Does Not Come Up to One Dollar a Day.

The people of Formosa have just become up to date enough to have a railroad of their own, and a detailed report of its construction has been forwarded to the stockholders, many of whom are Frenchmen and Englishmen, says a London paper. The rails are English, the locomotives are English and American; the bridge works and girders are American, and the rolling stock is native built on American trucks. The labor employed was Formosan and Japanese, but the work was done under the direction of French, English and American engineers. The rate of wages paid per day to the machinists and laborers furnish an interesting contrast between the value put upon work in the occident and orient. The Jap, on an average, received one-third more than the Formosan, and the day was of ten hours. Here is the schedule of the highest rates paid: Carpenters, 62 cents; sawyers, 64 cents; masons and plasterers, 80 cents; roofers, 68 cents; coolies, 37 cents; workmen on scaffolding, 52 cents; navvies, 47 cents; painters, 68 cents; blacksmiths, 79 cents.

THE RETIRED BURGLAR.

He Doesn't See Himself Up as a Teacher, But Draws a Lesson from Experience.

"No matter what business a man may be in," said the retired burglar, according to the New York Sun, "it is only by actual hard work and by doin' it 'keerful' at it that he will get on in it. No amount of dreamin' will put a man anywhere; but there ain't anywhere that a man can't get by steady, hard work.

"I've been like that illustrated in my own business; as a matter of act, in my own experience.

"I've wasted many and many a night dreamin' of reckin' banks, makin', in my mind, a million dollars at a clip, but never actually makin' a cent, while some chap that I knew that didn't have half as lofty ideas about things as I did would be doin' very well, indeed, robbin' just small houses and places like that, just by gettin' down to business and sticking to it, not wastin' his time dreamin'. My son—

"Well, I dunno, considerin' my business, or what was my business, as I ought to set up as a teacher, but you can draw your own conclusions."

AS THEY SAY IN ENGLAND.

British Tourists in America Are Astonished at Our Pronunciation of Names.

"Since arriving in the United States I have been greatly astonished at the way you pronounce proper names," said Mr. John H. Hanson, a tourist from Huddersfield, England, according to the Washington Post.

"For example, this very hotel at which I am stopping (the Raleigh) is given a pronunciation that sounds barbarous to any Englishman. It is as though it were spelled 'Rawley.' Now that is positively incorrect, for the great Englishman in whose honor it was no doubt named is known now and has always been known, with us, as though his name were spelled 'Rally.'

"I can't criticise your pronunciation of such words as 'Potomac,' but in England your beautiful river has ever been called the Pot-o-mac, with the accent on the last syllable. It is an Indian word, I believe, and you have the right to place the emphasis on any syllable you like, although it seems to me that our way of pronouncing it gives far more strength and dignity to the name."

Making Cocoa Butter.

Mr. F. D. Hill, consul at Amsterdam, says: "Cocoa butter is manufactured in the following manner: The cocoa beans are roasted, and after the shells are taken off the beans are ground and the cocoa is pressed out by means of hydraulic presses."

SMALLEY IS NAMED AGAIN

Mayor N. B. Smalley Unanimously Renominated by the Borough Republicans.

ALL WAS HARMONY

Named by Once Prominent "Anti" and Seconded by One of Other View—Chas. A. Lee and Morris C. VanArsdale Nominated for the Borough Council.

As was expected, Mayor Newton B. Smalley was nominated for the mayoralty of North Plainfield at the Republican primary which was held Friday night at Saengerbund Hall. Never before has there been a more harmonious primary and, in spite of the inclemency of the weather, over 150 Republicans including many well known "antis," were present.

At 8 o'clock Peter A. Emmons called the meeting to order and was chosen chairman. William Angleman was chosen secretary of the meeting. In response to the question of the chairman as to whom they wanted to be nominated as mayor, William C. Smith stepped forward and in a short speech in which he told of the past record of the present incumbent, he nominated for a third term, Newton B. Smalley. Former Senator Charles A. Reed seconded the motion, amid loud applause.

For councilmen, Charles A. Lee and Morris C. VanArsdale were nominated. Harrison Codington was nominated for a second term as councilman but declined the nomination. Recorder Thomas Dénd was nominated for the office of justice of the peace and L. E. Barkalow moved the nomination for commissioner of appeals.

On motion of Former Senator Charles A. Reed, the appropriation for the Board of Health was placed at $550, the same amount as the appro*priation of last year.* Mr. Reed also made a motion to the effect that the chairman be one of a committee of three to fill vacancies and that he appoint the other two. He later appointed Mayor Smalley and Mr. Reed on that committee to serve with him.

Before the primary came to a close Mayor Smalley came forward and addressed the primary. He said in part:

"Gentlemen: I want to say a word of appreciation for the compliment you have extended to me in a nomination. I have been upon for four years as Mayor and to have been favored with such men as compose the Borough Council it has been a pleasure.

"Although some may differ about questions of importance to us all, it has been my duty as well as my pleasure to serve you, regardless of the different views you have taken of the question, as such duties should have been performed.

"The borough has been unusually blessed with members of the Council which have had the best interests of the town at heart and never before has the town been in a better financial condition. The result has been quite as much of a surprise to me as it has been to you.

"I promise, if elected, to renew my efforts and will endeavor to give you as good a government as it is possible to have. I appreciate your attendance here this evening, and I hope you will support the ticket you have named."

Shake Of the Wintry Blasts.

The months of January and February are the most disagreeable to the northerner and delightful are they for the Florida tourist. The trip to Jacksonville is through a section as historic as it is picturesque, and the service to that point via the Royal Rise Line is the best. The New Jersey Central is going to run an excursion to Jacksonville on Tuesday, March 10. Train leaves New York, foot Liberty street, at 8:30 a. m., arrive Washington at 2:10 p. m., same day; leave Washington at 7 p. m., March 11 and arrive Jacksonville at 1:20 p. m., March 13. The round trip rate from New York and vicinity is $50, and includes also sleeping car berths, meals en route, transfer and hotel accommodations in Washington on southward trip, passengers making their own arrangements for the northward return trip. The arrangements are such that the care and worry of the journey are in the hands of the railroad company, and the tourist has the entire time for enjoyment. The New Jersey Central has issued "A Little Yellow Book" on this Florida trip; if you want it send a postal to C. M. Burt, general passenger agent, New York. It's free for the asking. 2 18 6 eod 4 3

Union Station at Cape May.

It is stated that the railroads entering Cape May will erect a new union station at that place in the spring.

SOME BIRD MIGRATIONS.

Instances of Prairie Chickens and Wild Turkeys Leaving Home for Strange Lands.

Game birds sometimes make extensive migrations, even though of a species not commonly migratory, states the New York Sun.

Prairie chickens, some years ago, flew northward from Illinois and the adjacent country, and thousands alighted in the limits of cities and towns in their path, notably in Detroit, Mich. Other thousands were drowned in Lake Superior while trying to fly across that lake. Others got over safely and took up their homes in the Canadian burned regions beyond the great lakes.

What induced these birds to migrate from a region where the race had been native beyond all memory of man has never been explained.

Wild turkeys migrated in a similar manner from Michigan in the days when that game bird was abundant there. They had been hunted persistently for years, when suddenly they all disappeared.

They traveled due west, and it is on record that "the flock was a quarter of a mile wide, and was several hours in passing." Soon after this strange exodus wild turkeys appeared in great numbers in the far west in regions where they had never been before, and where their progeny is still abundant.

MOST VALUABLE GROUND.

City Lots in New York That Are Priced Higher Than Any Other in the World.

The highest priced land in the world is that bounded by Wall and Broad streets and Broadway, in lower New York city, says Success. A square foot of ground on a corner of Broadway and Wall street cannot be had for less than $450. The most expensive land in London sells for $300 a square foot. The average price of land in New York city's financial district is about $175. Next in the scale comes the woman's shopping *district, from Fortieth to Twenty-*third streets, on Sixth avenue, and from Thirty-fourth street to Forty-second street, on Broadway. Here land ranges all the way from $60 to $350 a square foot. On the northwest corner of Broadway and Thirty-fourth street the latter price was obtained. A real estate man who can tell the future movements of population on Manhattan is in a position to realize a fortune. The growth of Brooklyn and Jersey City has checked the movement of the population to the north, and it is said the most valuable land on Manhattan Island will always remain south of Central park. The lower half of the island will soon have nothing on it except office buildings, factories and tenement houses.

THE COWBOY TAUGHT HER

Dashing Women Riders in the West Who Are at Home on the Bucking Branches.

It is from the cowboy that the western equestrienne has learned her most valuable lesson in riding. The cowgirls as a rule, divided the honors given her equal privileges, and she has not failed to take advantage of them. There has arisen in the west to-day a school of riders that probably cannot be equaled in the world, observes the Detroit Free Press. This school is made up of women who are to be found in every part of the great western cattle country. They are dashing, natural riders, who are as much at home in the saddle as the cowboy who ever donned a pair of "shaps." Many of them take part in the cattle round-ups, and some have even acquired fame as steer ropers and bronco busters. To such bucking bronco has no terror. Indeed, they regard a "tussle" with one of these vicious animals as nothing short of good sport. They are seldom thrown, but if they are hurled from the back of a bronco they return to the saddle and never cease plying the quirt and spurs until they have reduced the "outlaw" to submission.

A WORD WANTED.

One That Will Express the Ever-Increasing Class of Words Named After Individuals.

A writer in the Spectator is hunting for a word and asks the readers of the Spectator to assist him. The word desired is one that will express the ever-increasing class of words that are named after some individual, e. g., "boycott," "macadamize," "doily," "mackintosh," "gamp," "peeler," "Robert," "Bobby," "Whitehead" (for a torpedo), etc.

Such words should be classified under a name by themselves. What should this word be? "Cognominal" has been suggested. A cognomen, however, is a surname, and such words are not always taken from the person's surname—"Bobby," for example, to indicate a policeman.

"Onomatianeric" and "anerisomatic" have also been suggested; but that would not include "gamp" or "Mrs. Grundy."

No exception can be taken to the term "anthroponatic," so far as accuracy of description is concerned, but it is a terribly long word, and an apt short word is a desideratum.

A Wireless Piano.

A citizen of Bloomington, Ill., has invented a wireless piano. He first constructed a five-octave comb-reed of steel, placed it upon a bridge and soundboard and by experimenting discovered a way to make a very fine harp note. He has been working for it years on his invention.

CHAPERONE NEARLY DROWNED

MRS. ADAM BLAIR FELL THROUGH ICE ON TIER'S POND.

Had Accompanied Party of Boys and Girls—Walked on Weak Ice Which Gave Way.

While chaperoning a party of young boys and girls on Tier's pond Washington's birthday, Mrs. Adam Blair, wife of the proprietor of the livery stables on West Sixth street, had a narrow escape from losing her life by falling through the thin ice.

The younger members of the pary were skating about the pond early in the afternoon while Mrs. Blair walked about the ice. She started to go towards the shore when the ice gave way suddenly and Mrs. Blair sank up to her armpits in the chilly water. The cries of the children brought a man to her assistance and he rescued her from her dangerous position. The water at that spot is very dangerous as it is deep and whirls about the spot in a strong eddy as it follows the channel of the stream.

Mrs. Blair was able to go to her home at 433 East Fifth street where she was made comfortable. She was able to be around Tuesday none the worse for her cold plunge.

PROF. GRIGGS ON "FAUST"

SECOND LECTURE IN COURSE GIVEN AT VINCENT CHAPEL.

Discussed the Two Introductions to Goethe's Great Work—The Types There Pictured.

The second lecture in the course being given by Professor Edward Howard Griggs on "Faust" was delivered Thursday afternoon at Vincent chapel.

Mr. Griggs referred in a few words to the subject of his first lecture—the relation of Goethe's personality to his poetry—and spoke of the great variety of verse forms in Faust, suited to the occasion and to the characteristics of the speaker. He read numerous quotations, both from the original and from Bayard Taylor's translation, which he ranks highest in rendering the peculiar metres into English. Mr. Griggs spoke of the two introductions to the poem, the prelude on the stage and the prologue in Heaven. In the first, of the three types of men displayed, the clown comes nearer to human nature than either the poet or the stage manager, one of whom represents the sentimental side of life, the ideal divorced from the real, the other the practical commercial side.

Speaking of the great introduction or the prologue in Heaven, Mr. Griggs mentioned numerous analogies in thought and in conception to the Book of Job. While Goethe had no unity with medieval thought, as expressed by Dante, he reached back to the old Hebraic ideas and found sympathy with them. Four types of being were here represented, the angels, the demons, man and God. In connection with this thought, he said that to the angels hope and memory are unnecessary, as they are absolutely in harmony with God's love and are permeated by it. With them is no failure. The perfect beauty of their Hymn to the Creator was contrasted with the irreverent parody of Mephistopheles whom Dr. Griggs compared to the adversary in the Book of Job. He spoke of Mephistopheles' intellect being one of cynical denial—a cold intellect unbalanced by appreciation. Men unites to a certain degree the qualities of both these natures, but differs from them in that he is experiencing a constant process of development.

Nine-Hour Day.

The employes of the Taylor Iron & Steel Company, of High Bridge, are much pleased over the recent announcement that on and after February 16, the fifty four hour system for a week's work, or nine hours a day, would become effective. The men will receive the same pay for nine hours work as they did for ten hours.

Martinsville Realty Change.

The Richardson Farm, near Martinsville, has been purchased by John VanNess, well-known in this city as a property owner. The deal was closed last week and the new owner intends making of the farm a large stock ranch. The property consists of about 150 acres and part of this is laid out in fine orchards.

There is one rational way to treat nasal catarrh: the medicine is applied direct to the affected membrane. The remedy is Ely's Cream Balm. It restores the inflamed tissues to a healthy state without drying all the life out of them and it gives back the lost senses of taste and smell. The sufferer who is tired of vain experiments should use Cream Balm. Druggists sell it for 50 cts. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York, will mail it.

CONROY BY DEMOCRATS

"Dark Horse" Nominated for Mayor and May Mean An Independent Ticket.

NO CONTEST OVER IT

William J. Conroy Chosen As Democratic Nominee for Mayor—Other Nominations Left to Committee on Vacancies to Fill—Talk of An Independent Ticket.

Contrary to expectations there were no exciting features at the Democratic primary held in the basement of the North Plainfield High School, Friday night. The same quiet manner that has characterized the movements of the party leaders and followers was evidenced at the primary, and there was no disagreements of any kind. Harmony prevailed from first to last.

William J. Conroy, as chairman of the spring caucus, called the meeting to order. Lambert Bodine was made chairman and William R. Mills secretary. After the reading of the call by the secretary, nominations for Mayor were called for. Walter Linbarger, one of the active leaders of the party, immediately nominated William J. Conroy and there was a prompt second.

Mr. Conroy stepped forward and said that he believed someone else should be nominated, someone who would poll a larger vote than he. He was willing to do all that was possible for the success of his party but thought it hardly proper to nominate him for so important an office.

The nominee's words were not heeded and he received the unanimous vote of the fifty Democrats present by the casting of the ballot by the secretary. Walter Bennett and William Kiely were the tellers.

This part of the programme was comparatively easy, but when the rest of the nominations were called for it was exceedingly difficult to secure candidates. Two Councilmen were to be nominated for a term of three years, but after the declinations of Frank Krewson, Walter Bennett, Stonewall Jackson, John Snyder and John V. Case, Levi Kline moved that the nominations be left to the committee on vacancies. This was also true as regards the rest of the nominations for commissioners of appeal and justice of the peace.

There was much merriment over the attempts to nominate a justice of the peace. John Emmons was nominated and declined and Recorder Smalley was then named. The latter said that he had two years yet to serve, but that there was a vacancy caused by the removal of Justice Crossley some years ago. He thought it would be well to fill that vacancy. There was no apparent desire to lengthen Justice Smalley's term for four years and the committee on vacancies will take care of that nomination. Others nominated for this office were John H. Carney and John V. Case but both declined to run.

The committee on vacancies consists of David J. Carney, Walter Linbarger and Levi Kline.

After the caucus it was hinted by a prominent Democrat that the primary would result in the making of an independent ticket with possibly Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan as the Mayoralty candidate. There was some talk of securing Dr. D. C. Adams for a candidate, but a person who had conferred with the physician said that he absolutely refused to allow his name to be used. It cannot be denied but that there is some dissatisfaction among the Democrats over the result of the primary. That is to be expected in any case, but whether the division will be strong enough to make a strong showing for an independent ticket, remains to be seen later on.

Strange Line Building.

The people of Rahway are much concerned over a line of road which has been recently laid south of that city. Whether the new line is to be a branch of the Pennsylvania, a new trolley route or part of the line of the much-talked-of Wabash is a matter of conjecture on the part of the inhabitants of Rahway.

Taxed on Actual Value.

The State Board of Taxation recently decided that a property should be taxed on the actual value of the premises and not at the face of the mortgage upon it.

Doing the Right Thing.

The trouble had with a tickling in the throat and a nagging little cough. Soreness in the chest follows and the patient wonders if he is going to have an all winter cold. Probably, if he does the wrong thing or nothing. Certainly not if he uses Perry Davis' Painkiller, the staunch old remedy that cures a cold in twenty-four hours. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'.

WHAT RIVAL 'PHONE COMPANY WOULD DO

Plans of Central New Jersey Telephone Company Which Has Applied for Franchise.

ITS FOUR TRUNK LINES

PLAINFIELD WOULD BE LOCATED ON ONE OF THEM.

The Company Proposes to Install the Clark Automatic Telephone Switchboard—Each Subscriber Does His Own Calling.

There is another determined effort to introduce a second telephone system in Plainfield, in opposition to the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, the old-established corporation. When the Central New Jersey Telephone Company made application to the Council Tuesday evening for a franchise, it caused considerable comment. While the new company has extensive plans for covering New Jersey, there seems to be some doubt as to whether the Council would be willing to give out a second franchise. However, the company, through its attorney, Wm. A. Runyon, has asked for a hearing and this will no doubt be granted soon. The result of this will be waited with interest.

Four trunk lines are proposed by the new company and according to the articles of incorporation recently filed with the Secretary of State, Plainfield is to be on the third line, which starts from the first line at Elizabeth and connects all the principal places between Elizabeth and Plainfield and Metuchen. The first line starts at New Brunswick and connects all the principal towns and cities along the New Jersey coast down as far as Sea Girt. The second trunk line connects all of the towns in the vicinity of New Brunswick and includes Helmetta, Jamesburg, Farmingdale, Englishtown, Freehold, Manasquan and reconnects at Sea Girt. The fourth line will connect with the third line at Dunellen and connect with Bound Brook and Somerville.

It is proposed to install the Clark automatic telephone switch board, thus doing away with the expense of maintaining a private exchange. This is an inter-communicative telephone system and will be installed in factories and business houses.

The Clark apparatus consists of two parts, an automatic telephone dial and an automatic switch board. The dial will be located at the subscriber's 'phone or calling station and the switches are all concentrated at a central point.

According to this system subscriber having a calling dial has absolute control over his own automatic switch and can call any person in the system, independent of the other subscribers.

The dial contains seventy-four numbers. The pointer is moved to the number desired and allowed to run down. The operation of running down connects the subscriber's instrument with the party desired. After that the operation is the same as in any other system.

MARRIED IN CHILI.

Former Plainfielder Married An American Who Visited There.

News has been received in this city of the wedding of Miss Florence Osgood, of Cincinnati, to William Waldo Suydam, formerly of this city, where he formerly resided on Crescent avenue. The wedding took place in Chili where the groom is employed in an electrical concern. Miss Osgood was visiting at Chili with her parents and while there her father died, as a result of injuries sustained by a gun exploding prematurely while Mr. Osgood was out hunting. The wedding was quietly celebrated. Mr. and Mrs. Suydam will remain in Chili.

Want More Pay.

Freight agents and freight handlers in the employ of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company desire an advance in their wages. They claim that while other employes of the system have been advanced, they have been left out, and that they are entitled to an increase in wages, which at present averages between $40 and $50 per month.

The Stomach Is the Man.

A weak stomach weakens the man, because it cannot transform the food he eats into nourishment. Health and strength cannot be restored to any sick man or weak woman without first restoring health and strength to the stomach. A weak stomach cannot digest enough food to feed the tissues and revive the tired and run down limbs and organs of the body. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cleanses, purifies, sweetens and strengthens the glands and membranes of the stomach, and cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles. L. W. Randolph.

SUIT OVEER POULTRY FARM

DECISION GIVEN IN FAVOR OF WM. H. SCHOONMAKER.

Supreme Court Gave Verdict in a Suit Brought by Executors of P. M. French.

On Feb. 24, the Supreme Court decided in favor of William H. Schoonmaker the now famous case brought against him by the executors of P. M. French, deceased.

Craig A. Marsh, counsel for Mr. Schoonmaker, kept the case in the courts during about a year and a half while Mr. Schoonmaker was traveling abroad. The latter's deposition was taken in Venice. Juries were twice empanelled and the case opened but Mr. Marsh, each time on one technical motion or another, had the jury discharged. After W. S. Anglaman, counsel for the executors of Mr. French, had outlined to the court and jury what he proposed to prove, Mr. Marsh moved to non-suit him on his opening.

On behalf of the French executors, it was proposed to prove that Mr. French had a claim of about $1,000 against the Plainfield Poultry Farm Company, which afterwards turned out to be insolvent; that Mr. Schoonmaker was the principal stockholder and that Mr. French took that if the latter would put his claim in judgment and assign the judgment, Mr. Schoonmaker would pay him the face of the claim; that Mr. French put the claim in judgment and executed the assignment, and offered it to Mr. Schoonmaker, who declined to take it. Mr. Schoonmaker denied absolutely having made any such contract and insisted that if such a contract had been made, it was null and void as a matter of law under the statute of frauds.

Judge VanDyke said that the point made for Mr. Schoonmaker was a new one of great importance and ought to be decided as, if the point were sustained, there would be no need of going to the expense and trouble of a long trial. Counsel on both sides agreed to argue the question of law before the Supreme Court at Trenton. The argument was heard the last term of court and the decision of the court sustained Mr. Marsh and ordered judgment in favor of Mr. Schoonmaker.

COMPANY K STANDS FIRST

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S REPORT GIVES LOCAL COMPANY FIRST PLACE.

Despite Its Short Life Company Has 4 Experts, 10 Sharpshooters and 37 Marksmen.

In the matter of merit during the rifle practice of 1903, Company K, Second Regiment, of this city, is given the honor of first place. Its membership, according to a recent report, includes four experts, ten sharpshooters and thirty-seven marksmen, a total of fifty-one. The company is especially deserving of congratulations in view of the fact that it was organized but little more than two years ago.

In the adjutant-general's report, just published, it is shown that the percentage of absentees at various military functions was entirely too large during 1903. This is especially true as to annual inspection and muster. In the Second Regiment there were 10½ per cent. of the members absent, as against 8 6-10 in 1901. Nearly 15 per cents. of the Third Regiment failed to put in appearances.

NEW BOOKS.

Added to Public Library During Month of January.

The following is a list of books added to the Public Library during January:

Grothers, S. M., Miss Maffet's Christmas party.

Hermann, O., Pirates and piracy.

Higginson, T. W., John Greenleaf Whittier.

Lang, A., Dissstangiers.

Lang, A., History of Scotland.

Lieber, F., Manual of political ethics.

Mason, C. A., Little green god.

Merwin, S., Road to Frontenac.

N. Y. State historian, Ecclesiastical records.

Order of founders and patriots of America. Register.

Sergeant, C. S., Silva of North America.

Stuart, R. M., Napoleon Jackson.

Tarkington, Two Vanrevels.

U. S. Forestry bureau, Eucalypts cultivated in the U. S.

U. S. Forestry bureau, Woodman's handbook.

Vincent, M. R., Word studies in the New Testament.

Whitehead, W. A., Early history of Perth Amboy.

Granted a Patent.

Louis Borsum, of Woodland avenue, has been granted a valuable patent for improvements in photographic cameras.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 6.—Commented by Rev. S. E. Dwyer.

Topic.—Lessons from the sermon on the mount: What Christ teaches about heart righteousness. Matt. v, 20-48; vi, 24-34.

Christianity is a religion of grace, but this does not mean that it is a religion of license. Sin is not to abound in the Christian life that grace may much more abound. Christ came not to destroy the law, but to fulfill it. The grace of Christ is not a pardon of the past with indifference as regards the future. It is forgiveness as a foundation and preparation for a new and better life. More is expected of the Christian than of the Jew, of the convert than of the sinner. No one realized this fact more than Christ, and He took particular pains to lay stress upon it in the sermon on the mount. He demands a superior righteousness of His followers to that of Judaism, what our topic well calls "heart righteousness." But does He teach it?

1. Christ teaches that Christian righteousness begins in the heart. The righteousness of the Jews was external rather than internal. It consisted too much in the deeds of the hand rather than in a right heart condition. But Christ wanted this order reversed in Christianity; hence He said, "Except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven." In fasting they disfigured their faces that men might see their pretended devotion. In praying they stood upon the street corners that men might witness their supposed piety. Though guiltless perhaps of overt acts of sin, they were not guiltless of malice and envy in their hearts. But Christ demands inward righteousness, internal good will toward brethren and purity of heart as well as of life.

2. Christ teaches that heart righteousness should be cultivated at any sacrifice. To rid the heart as well as the life of sin may require heroic treatment. Actions are much easier controlled than thoughts and imaginations. The hands may be kept clean while the heart is far from pure, but clean hands and pure hearts are inquired of those who would find acceptance with God in Christ; hence at any cost heart righteousness should be developed. It should be valued above any physical organ, such as an eye or a hand, because God alone can create in us clean hearts, and we should depend upon Him to keep us in inward righteousness.

3. Christ teaches that heart righteousness should manifest itself in the life. Heart purity is to precede the consecration of gifts at God's altar; adversaries are to be agreed with speedily; for any wrong done full retribution is to be made; personal and social oaths are to be avoided; vengeance is to give place to love, and all in the ordinary relations of life more is to be given than can be legally demanded—for one coat two are to be given; for one mile two miles—that is, Christians who are righteous at heart must also be so in daily life, and not only so, but they must exceed in their lives what can be justly expected of them. They must "love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you and pray for them that despitefully use you." The standard is high, but by the grace of God we should strive toward it.

BIBLE READINGS.

I Sam. xvi, 7; Ps. ii, 10; Prov. iv, 23; Jer. xvii, 10, 11; Ezek. xi, 17-20; xviii, 31, 32; Matt. v, 8; xxi, 28-30; Eph. iii, 14-19; Phil. iv, 6, 7.

The Greatest Man.

The Ram's Horn recently asked and solicited answers to these questions: "Who is the greatest man in the world at this moment and why?" The following is one of the answers subunitted, paying a tribute to the founder of the Christian Endeavor movement, Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D.:

"The greatest man in the world is red With blood in mighty conquest shed Till victory marks all his ways And all the nations gloried in his prains. Far greater he who open the door Where Knowledge keeps her treasure store

Or seeks to banish greed and strife By teaching man high aims in life, But greatest he whose voice and pen Have drawn to God his fellow men And wedded in one glant band The Christian souls of every land.

—John R. Clements.

Its Spiritual Machinery.

When people object to the pledge and say there is too much machinery about the Endeavor idea, let us show them it is spiritual machinery and that there is prayer behind it all.—Heard in a Convention.

God's Right.

Pleading for self surrender in a recent quiet hour service Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark said, "God has a right to have a chance at us."

Quiz Box.

[Any question may be asked that pertains to any Christian Endeavor work. Address Lock Box 67, Binghamton, N. Y.]

41. O., Detroit, Mich.—All who are interested in systematic, devotional Bible study should read "Bible Study For Personal Spiritual Growth." an address by Mr. John R. Mott. Daily Bible, the official devotional calendar of the New York State Christian Endeavor union, has reprinted this address, together with an address on the Bible by President Roosevelt. A copy of the issue containing these two valuable addresses will be sent free on request. Address Daily Bible, Clifton Springs, N. Y.

42. F., Ithaca, N. Y.—The Binghamton (N. Y.) City Union has secured a dozen copies of "Individual Work For Individuals," by Rev. H. Clay Trumbull, and is circulating them among the various societies to be read by not less than ten persons in each; this as a preliminary step to an aggressive campaign of personal work.

THEATRICAL.

According to all overland comment, "The Earl of Pawtucket," Augustus Thomas' newest comedy, just produced by Manager Kirke La Shelle at the Madison Square Theatre, New York, is being greeted with favor immeasurably greater than that of any big metropolitan success of recent years.

Critical newspaper opinion has never been so profuse or concerted in its admissions of unequivocal triumph.

If the city's theatre-goers even only incompletely agree with the journalistic verdict, the production must surely be a New York fixture for a long time to come.

The New York Herald's theatrical reviewer declares that "no more amusing up-to-date comedy has been seen in New York in many days," calls it "a clever and amusing satire on New York life of today," and says, "there is a laugh in every line."

Preparations are already being made at the Casino for the 350th performance of "A Chinese Honeymoon" at that popular playhouse. The date of this performance is on Wednesday night, March 30, and the souvenirs to be given on that occasion will be the prettiest, the most expensive and the most useful which have ever marked a commemorative theatrical performance anywhere in the world. Next Monday will begin the forty-fourth week of consecutive performances at the Casino of the "evergreen musical success," as many writers have referred to "A Chinese Honeymoon."

Klaw & Erlanger's colossal production of the Drury Lane spectacle, "Mr. Blue Beard," at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, is the greatest spectacular success ever recorded in the history of the New York stage and is turning people away at every performance. It is not only a great spectacle, but also a wonderfully comic entertainment. It is a combination of both the artistic and the humorous and applause and laughter prevail throughout its presentation. Dan McAvoy, who plays "Mr. Blue Beard," has scored an especially notable hit in his own comic song, "The Beer That Made Milwaukee Famous," assisted by Bonnie Maginn and the Pony Ballet, eight beautiful little English dancers. Seats are constantly on sale four weeks ahead. All correspondence receives special attention through the mail order bureau.

EVERYBODY LIKED HIM.

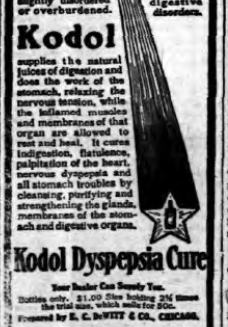
James Harding, Once a Messenger Boy, Died After Short Illness.

Following an illness of but a few days from pneumonia, death came Thursday afternoon to James Harding, an eighteen-year-old boy, at the home of his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Harding, of 617 South Second street.

The young man was very well known throughout the city, especially with the business men as he had been a Western Union messenger for many years. He was quiet in disposition but of such a sunny nature that everyone with whom he came in contact became his friend. At the time of his death he was employed in the foundry department of the Pond Tool Works.

The funeral services were held from his mother's home, Saturday morning at 9 o'clock and from St. Mary's church at 9:45.

Stephen Beeching, of Watchung, is detained at his home with an attack of the grip. Mrs. Beeching has also been ill with the same malady.



L. W. RANDOLPH.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 6, "The Sabbath Day For Worship and Rest"—Text, Ex. xxxi, 15-17; Mark ii, 27.

"The Sabbath was made for man."

The Sabbath rest is first of all and chiefly a religious institution. It is based on the moral needs of man's nature. Rest is needed for the body and mind, and no other period seems to meet the requirements of the case as well as one day in seven. Why this should be no one has discovered, but that it is a fact is well established by observation of the most extended and critical character. Close examination in a great number of cases, extending over a long period of time, has demonstrated that in all kinds of business the rest of one day in seven is of greatest advantage and secures a larger amount of work well done than is possible with any other arrangement.

Nightly rest and sleep do not always fully recuperate the physical system. To maintain the height of vigor and effectiveness this needs to be supplemented by the weekly Sabbath.

But we are something other and better than machines for doing work. Other considerations are to be taken into account besides making us the best developed animals that may be possible. Bodies are of value as instruments of the soul. Spirit is the essential thing in life. What we are cannot be told by the weight in the scales. The man is not measured in feet and inches. Cultivation of physical strength is desirable. Growth of soul is absolutely essential. Our worth to ourselves and our value in the world of being can be estimated only in spiritual terms. Character counts, and character only does count. Get all the world, its knowledge and wealth and be worthless in soul, it will be like books and coins in the hands of a corpse.

Manly manhood and womanhood grow only as connected with Godhood. "Man doth not live by bread alone, but by every word which proceedeth out of the mouth of God." To secure bodily life time and toil are needed. Time and toil are needed to get bread from the natural world. God sustains nature and man works to get food from it. Man and God meet and co-operate in this physical realm. It is equally necessary in all moral and moral nature that men draw supplies from the Divine One. There must be time for this. There must be a period of release from physical labor and weariness so that the mind can rest on the truths of spirit and cultivate the faculties which constitute the spiritual man. The weekly Sabbath is the means of this.

To know God and enter into right relations with Him in thought, feeling and will take time. The Sabbath is needed and is given for this. Whatever best helps one to attain this end is proper for the Sabbath. All that hinders the highest realization of this soul union with God is improper.

No rigid system of rules for conduct can be laid down as binding upon any one for the proper keeping of the day.

On the other hand, no indulgence of anything which benumbs the conscience or hinders the most perfect confidence in God or chills the most ardent love for Him and His service can be tolerated without injury.

The Kingdom of God.

Heaven, as we all know, is not some special place or external condition. Heaven is where God and truth are and where they are being realized in life. Heaven is a state of man's thought and love. It is therefore something that may come into existence with any one at any time in which love and truth may come into existence in his heart. With any person, therefore, the "kingdom of heaven is at hand" whenever the state of love and truth and life, which constitute the kingdom of heaven, is at hand. But, as the Lord is always with us, we should be ever seeking with His divine love and wisdom to enter each one's heart, heaven is always in this way at hand.—Rev. C. H. Mann.

Working Together With Him.

It is assuming with gladness the other end of Christ's yoke and working *together with Him in blessed fellow*ship. The yoke thus taken will not chafe; the burden will prove not burdensome. There will be no disappointment, no disturbance, but meekness, quietness and perpetual peace. Blessed are they who find this rest and grow therein!—Zion's Herald.

Honoring God.

Go to your knees and cry to God in prayer, and crooked things shall be made straight. Be willing to be guided, and you shall be guided. If you blunder on in your self sufficiency, you will soon be in a slough, but if you will wait upon God your steps shall be ordered of the Lord. We honor God by taking counsel of Him.—Spurgeon.

Not Unmanly.

It is not unmanly to be religious. True manhood is always religious, for religion cultivates the sturdy elements of character, prepares a man for the efforts of everyday life and gives him insight into his present relations to the spiritual world.—Bishop Vincent.

God's Angels.

God's angels drop like grains of gold
Our duties 'midst life's shining sands,
And from them, one by one, we mold
Our own bright crowns with patient hands.

From dust and dross we gather them;
We toil and stoop, for love's a sweet sake.
To find each worthy act a gem
In glory's kingly diadem.
Which we may daily richer make.
—Christian Instructor.

WANT PASTOR TO REMAIN

GRACE M. E. CHURCH ASKS THAT REV. DR. EARP REMAIN.

At Fourth Quarterly Conference Held at the Church, Wednesday, February 25.

The fourth quarterly conference of the Grace M. E. church was held Feb. 27, after the weekly prayer meeting when the pastor, Rev. Dr. Edwin L. Earp was asked to be allowed to remain at the church for another year.

A missionary meeting preceeded the conference when E. P. Stevens read a paper and addresses were made by Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll and Rev. Dr. Daniel Wallace, presiding elder of this conference.

Reports were read at the conference which was held after the prayer meeting which showed that the church has made rapid strides of progress during the past year. This was shown from the reports read by the pastor and the officers of the church.

Dr. Carroll and John Valiant were elected members of the Laymen's Association of Newark, for the ensuing year.

The conference condemned the appointment of the Board of Stewards of the church and they are as follows: E. P. Stevens, J. S. Langer, George Nelson, R. Hoagland, C. A. Hardin, Jacob Voehl, Edward Stine, C. H. Greer, W. M. Warren and A. Vanderbeek.

The trustees of the church for the ensuing year are: Dr. H. K. Carroll, W. J. Conroy, John Valiant, Andrew Wilcox, E. E. Winkler, E. A. Vermuele, W. H. Combe, Jacob Voehl and Dyckman Winkler.

WORK DIDN'T SUIT.

So the Painter Brought Suit and Recovered Most of the Amount He Wanted.

What appeared on the surface to be an ordinary contract case led to an interesting session of Justice Nash's court, Thursday afternoon.

The principals were Edward M. Ayers, of the Painters' Supply House, who was the plaintiff and William Taylor, the defendant. Attorney V. W. Nash, Jr., appeared for Ayers and G. V. L. Meyer represented Taylor.

Ayers claimed $23.16, the difference in a bill rendered by him for painting and wall papering at Taylor's home. The defendant claimed the amount of paper was not what it was represented and also that the work was not done in a thoroughly artistic manner. James F. Buckle, president of the Common Council, was called in by the defense as an expert to testify as to the workmanship, but proved a better witness for the plaintiff. The court rendered a verdict in favor of Ayers for $16.16. Attorney Moy immediately gave notice of appeal.

SPECIAL PREACHERS.

Those Who Will Speak at the Grace Episcopal Church During Lent.

Special preachers have been secured for the Wednesday evening services at Grace Episcopal church, during the Lenten season. Announcement for five services is made as follows: March 4, Rev. Hiram B. Hulse, rector of St. Mary's church, New York; March 11, Rev. Robert L. Paddock, rector of Church of the Holy Apostles, New York; March 18, Rev. Appleton Granais, of St. Michael's church, New York; March 25, Rev. Wm. Whitney Davis, Jr., rector Christ church, East Orange; April 1, Rev. Harris C. Rush, rector Church of the Heavenly Rest, Plainfield.

On Wednesday and Friday there will be mid-day prayers at 12 o'clock noon. The church is open daily for purposes of private prayer and meditation from 9 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

SUCCESSFUL TRIP.

The Jeanreaunds Have Returned After Trip of Forty Weeks.

Arnold and Emile Jeanreaud, of this city, the well known musical team, are in town after a successful season of forty weeks on the Orpheum circuit, through the middle west. They closed Tuesday in Wheeling, W. Va., and will spend several weeks in Plainfield recuperating before again going on the road for a long engagement. Their last tour was a continuous success and they are now ranked as one of the best musical comedy teams in the business.

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Hill Saxton, of Grandview avenue, announce the engagements of their daughter, Jessie Eliot, to Harold Boylston Clark, of Elizabeth.

Welcome As Sunshine

after a long storm is a feeling of relief when an obstinate, pitiless cold has been driven away by Allen's Lung Balsam. Only people who have been cured of throat-ache and sore lungs by this remedy can quite realize what the feeling is. There is no opium in the Balsam; its good effect is radical and lasting. Take a bottle home today.

ALIS CLUB PLACED ON FIRM FOUNDATION

Plainfield's New Athletic Organization Formally Organized at Meeting Feb. 25.

THE OFFICERS ELECTED

LEWIS E. WARING CHOSEN PRESIDENT OF THE NEW CLUB.

Meeting Held at Hotel Kensington February 25.—Constitution and By-Laws Adopted—To Select Clubhouse and Grounds.

Reorganization of the Alis Athletic Association into the Alis Club was effected February 25, at a meeting of the charter members of the club held in the parlors of the Hotel Kensington. Matters of importance were brought up for discussion including the adopting of a constitution and by-laws. A committee was appointed to arrange for a suitable clubhouse. There were forty members present.

The meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock when John G. MacLaughlin was chosen chairman and C. H. Burt secretary. About the first matter which which brought up for discussion was the constitution and by-laws which were submitted by a committee appointed previously to draft these documents. The committee which had this work in charge consisted of Francis J. Blantz, Harold Chandor and Arthur Boone. After some discussion the constitution was adopted as were the bylaws.

The officers elected to serve for the first term of the existance of the new club were: President, L. E. Waring; vice president, John G. MacLaughlin; secretary, Harold Chandor; treasurer, Arthur Boone.

The matter of selecting a suitable house to be used by the club was brought up and after some discussion it was referred to a committee selected for that purpose. Those who will have this matter in charge and who will report at the next meeting which will be held on March 18 were: George Schoonmaker, John G. Mac Laughlin, Dr. Arthur H. Dandos, C. H. Burt and Roy T. Phillips.

Several houses suitable as clubhouses have been located at but before deciding on any one in particular the club decided to look around further. This committee will also have the matter in charge of securing a suitable field for athletic contests. It is proposed to fence in the field providing a suitable one can be found.

At last night's meeting it was announced that all dues and fees are payable to the treasurer, Arthur Boone, inside of thirty days.

CASINO AT METUCHEN.

Metuchen Has Plans for a Fine Clubhouse.

It is said that Metuchen is to have a Casino. It is proposed to erect a handsome building in a central location in the town and to make it one of the finest club houses of its kind in this section of the State. The proposed building is in the hands of a committee consisting of S. S. Carvalho, H. Holden Spear and F. S. Pattison.

It is proposed to buy the plot of ground known as the Markey place on Middlesex avenue which measures 190x150. This situation is accessable but far enough away from the railroads to insure quiet. The entire cost of the building will be about $3,500. A company will be organized and will be capitalized at $5,000.

America's Bed for 1903.

Every person in this country needs something attractive and beautiful on their lawn or in their gardens. Jessie Vick, formerly of Rochester, N. Y., says he is anxious to see how many persons in the United States can excel him in perfecting this bed. The plants required are Salvia bonfire, white vincas and the new ageratum. No combination could be finer or more brilliant. The plants for the bed will cost from $2.75 to $5, but you can secure seeds from which to grow these plants for nothing, if you simply cut out this notice and return it to D. Landreth & Sons, Philadelphia, Pa., with a cash order for $1 or more. Send at once for their new catalogue, containing full directions and illustrations of this wonderful America's bed for 1903.

Newspapers for Convicts.

Within a short time prisoners in the New Jersey State prison will be allowed to read newspapers. For many years newspapers have not been allowed among the convicts and the change will be a welcome one.

Many School Children are Sickly

Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for Children, used by Mother Gray, a nurse in Child ren's Home, New York, break up Colds in 24 hours, Fever, Feverishness, Headache, Stomach Disorders, Teething Disorders, move and regulate the Bowels, and destroy worms. Mrs. Emily Matson, Marion, Ct., says: "It is the best medicine for children when feverish and complaining." Sold by all druggists or by mail, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

UNKNOWN DEAD LAID AT REST AT HILLSIDE

Funeral of Remains of Unidentified Victim of Westfield Disaster Held Friday.

MANY IN ATTENDANCE

REV. DR. CORNELIUS SCHENCK OFFICIATED AT TRINITY REFORMED.

Floral Tributes From Unknown Donors Included One "With a Mother's Love"—A Handsome Casket—A Solemn Service.

Up the steep and winding paths of Hillside cemetery, there passed Friday afternoon, a small funeral cortage composed of a hearse and several carriages. On and on it went until it reached one of the prettiest spots in the burial ground and then stopped by the side of a new made grave. From out the funeral car was taken a handsome cloth covered casket, heaped with roses and lilies of the valley. A heartfelt prayer ascended and, as the benediction was pronounced, the clouds of earth fell until the grave slowly filled over the last unidentified victim of the terrible catastrophe that plunged Plainfield into a gloom years will scarce efface. It was the concluding incident of the Westfield horror.

But though the body went to its tomb unknown and perhaps among strangers it lacked not the ceremonies that marked the burial of the other twenty-two claimed by friends. It was clothed in broadcloth and placed in a costly coffin. Loving hands brought wreaths and when the casket was placed in Trinity Reformed church yesterday afternoon, the tokens of sympathy were many. No better manifestation was there than the gathering of mourners. True, it was composed mostly of women, whose hearts are always ready to go out to the friendless and afflicted, but there were men beside.

Rev. Cornelius Schenck conducted the last rites and from the tragic death of the unknown he drew a lesson dealing with the uncertainties of life. He paralleled the failure to learn the stranger's name with the thousands of soldiers lying in southern burying grounds, the graves headed by slabs marked "Unknown." They died alone as did this victim but it remained for the living to honor them and supply the place of relatives.

Of the flowers contributed all were sent by unknown donors, but a beautiful wreath bearing a card inscribed, "With a mother's love" revealed the sympathetic nature of one.

Those who carried the casket were Dr. F. W. Westcott, William Addis, George Cole, J. A. Haynes, J. K. Large and A. F. Barkalow, the latter three employes of the New Jersey Central. All expense incurred by the burial was borne by the railroad company.

FUNERAL OF MRS. PORTER.

Services Held From Home on East Second St., Saturday Afternoon.

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. John Porter were held from her late residence on East Second street, Saturday afternoon, with a large gathering of relatives and friends in attendance. They were in charge of Rev. Cornelius Schenck, of Trinity Reformed church, who spoke feelingly of her Christian fortitude during her illness. There were numerous flowers contributed by friends.

The interment was afterward made in Hillside cemetery, the casket being borne by William A. Woodruff, George Bolsterli, Edgar Shepheard and A. L. Force.

Prize Choristers.

The prize choristers of Grace P. E. church for February were Alfred Manley, Elmer Boban, Harry Smith, Edwin Scheller, Harold Miller, and the Misses Jessie Little, Cornelia Sampson, Cornelia Miller, Ethel Weseman.

Postponed Social.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church has postponed its social for the present. It is will probable be held during the present month.

To Sew for Children's Home.

The members of the Women's Association of the Congregational church will meet at the church Thursday afternoon to sew for the Children's Home.

The best pill 'neath the stars and stripes;
It cleanses the system and never gripes.
Little Early Risers of worldly repute—
Ask for DeWitt's and take no substitute.

A small pill, easy to buy, easy to take and easy to act, but never failing in results. DeWitt's Little Early Risers arouse the secretions and act as a tonic to the liver, curing permanently. L. W. Randolph.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

IS NOT THE PROPER REMEDY

WALL STREET SUMMARY TELLS OF EXTRA MAN IN CAB PROPOSITION.

Declares That Safety Suggestions Are Not Always Good—Its Comment.

Opinions differ decidedly regarding the Westfield disaster and the best methods of preventing a like accident. The Wall Street Summary, in its issue of February 20, had the following under the caption "Safety Suggestions Not Always Good," to say on the subject:

"Distressing as fatal railroad disasters undoubtedly are, there is no real justification for some of the unthinking and passionate agitation which immediately goes up from a large part of the press and public when one takes place. We yield to one in the desire to see every possible safe-guard, within reason, thrown around railroad travel but because of this we are not compelled, as some irresponsible newspapers writers seem to be, to advocate hastily the first method of supposed prevention of future accidents that may be suggested, regardless of its practicability or efficacy. The recent terrible wreck on the New Jersey Central at once brought about a clamor for a law compelling the railroad companies to supply a third man on the engine, when it is of what is called the "Mother Hubbard" pattern—that is, so constructed as to practically separate the engine driver and his fireman. Three men on the engine was proclaimed to be surely against intending or ignoring of risk, and the disaster which might follow the sudden death of the engine driver at his post.

"Now, we find at the outset a dozen of the most experienced and expert engine drivers on the several New York trunk lines, when summoned before the State Railroad Commission, virtually unanimous in opposing the idea of a third man placed in the cab with the engine driver. The witnesses were from the five leading railroads of the State and so could not be accused of parochial narrowness. They handle the fastest express trains between here and Buffalo and so they must be well acquainted with the possible danger of rapid travelling. That they were not 'coerced by the companies' may be assumed when one engine driver declared that 'the Brotherhood does not want' a law providing for three men to a locomotive. The trend of the views of these practical men was that another man in the cab would divide responsibility, distract attention and be worse than useless.

"There has been great progress in the last few years in legislation, not only for the protection of passengers, but for increasing the safety of railroad employes. Much more may possibly be done in this line but the way to accomplish any good is not by ranting against corporation or seizing upon every half-backed proposition made by those who pose as 'labor's friends.' It is reassuring to recall that the annual rate of all accidents on railroad—fatal and otherwise, to employes and to the public—is about one-hundredth of one per cent. Fatal accidents are at about the rate of 8-1,000 of one per cent."

THE COLD HINDERS BUILDING

NUMBER OF PERMITS FOR NEW STRUCTURES BELOW THE AVERAGE.

Snow Storms Partly to Blame, But Indications Point to a Healthy Boom in the Spring.

Applications for building permits have not been coming into the office of Building Inspector T. O. Doane as rapidly as they were received during the latter part of January. This is due to the number of very cold days and the snow storms which have visited this city during the past few weeks. It is expected many will soon be made in time for a spring boom.

A permit to alter the building of Sylvester Delago, at 1,043 North avenue, was granted Tuesday. It is for the remodeling of a large barn and James Radin will be the contracting carpenter.

Mrs. Henry Liefke made application for a permit to erect two dwelling houses at 810 West Front street. The houses will be 24x34x27 feet. The mason will be Theodore Gray and the contracting carpenter, William Brokaw.

John C. Storm has made application for a permit to erect one dwelling on the lot at 318 Liberty street. The house will be 18x18x38 feet and N. C. Pennington will be the contracting carpenter.

An alteration permit was granted to George Rial, of 318 East Fifth street, to make some changes to his residence. He will erect an extension to the rear of the house which will add 12 feet to the structure. John C. Stewart is to be the contracting carpenter.

A building permit was granted to A. H. Burdick, of Dunellen avenue, for the erection of a dwelling at the corner of West Front street and De-Kalb avenue. Mr. Burdick will be the carpenter and mason.

Henry Liefke was granted a permit to erect a house at West Fifth street and Lee place. The dwelling will be fitted with all modern improvements. William Olam is the architect, Theodore Gray will be the contracting mason and William Brokaw will be the contracting carpenter.

Frank Rogers was granted a permit to erect an extension to his house at 511 Madison avenue. He will build six feet to the south side forming an addition which will be 6x8x10. Titus Leary will be the contracting mason and L. T. Titsworth will be the contracting carpenter.

CAN'T BE PUNCTURED.

New Tire Just Invented by C. H. Shepherd, of the Borough.

C. H. Shepherd, of the borough, has recently received a patent on an improved vehicle tire, which, it is claimed, is absolutely punctureless. A test, made by placing one of them on a bicycle and rolling it over carpet tacks, proved that the outer covering could withstand the sharp points. It is also said to be exceedingly resilient. The tire is to be placed on the market during the coming season.

Mrs. M. C. Gross, of Grove street, is visiting friends in Newark.

EARLIEST USES OF TOBACCO.

Introduced in Europe by a Franciscan Friar in 1494 in the Form of Snuff.

Tobacco was first used in Europe as a kind of rude antiseptic and preventer of infection, and in the West Indies, northern America and Africa the inhaling of the dried and powdered tobacco leaf was practiced long before the herb was known in Europe, according to a writer in the Detroit News-Tribune. The same is probably true of smoking. The use of tobacco was introduced into Europe by a Franciscan friar named Ramon Pane, who accompanied Columbus on his second voyage to the West Indies in 1494. He was sent ashore at Cuba in charge of an exploring expedition, and reported on his return that he had found the natives smoking this powdered herb, which they did through a short, hollow cane. He introduced the practice into Europe, but it was not until 1560 that the plant was cultivated in Europe.

Jean Nicot, who had been British ambassador at Lisbon, began tobacco growing in France in that year, and through this circumstance the herb got its name nicotine. Snuff was first used as a relief from catarrh and stoppages of the nasal passages, and the first personage to make the use of it popular was the famous Catherine de Medici, and her son, Charles IV., also used it as a relief from chronic headache. The great Catherine's patronage caused snuff to be called "Herbe à la Reine." It became enormously popular as a preventive in England after the great plague of 1660.

FARMERS IN CANADA.

Great Rush to the Northwestern Territory of the Dominion in Last Two Years.

The extent to which emigration from the United States to the northwest part of Canada has developed within the last lustrum is one of the most remarkable facts in the recent history of the dominion, says the London News. It is almost suggestive of gold "rush." Lord Burghclere stated in the house of commons recently that last year the number of settlers from the United States was 50,000; this year it was calculated at 200,000. This would indeed be startling if it were true. It would suggest an "outlander" problem of vast proportions for Canada. But the facts, though striking, are not so startling as Lord Burghclere indicated. The emigration began in 1897 with a modest total of 712. This handful of pioneers was followed the next year by 9,119, and since then there has been a steady increase, until the figures for the present year, which has gone, stand at 24,100. We have heard much of the "American invasion" of England, but it has been the invasion of money and methods. The American invasion of the dominion is a more serious affair. It is the invasion of men who will become voters and taxpayers, and who will permeate the country with American sentiment and American practice. Perhaps the most significant feature of the movement is that there should be this great stream of immigration from the states. We have been so accustomed to regard that land as the land of the immigrant that we need to revise our impressions now that it is becoming the land of the emigrant also.

NEW ZEALAND AN IDEAL LAND

It Is a Country from Which Pauperism Has Been Almost Entirely Eradicated.

"The best country I have seen in all my jogging about the world is New Zealand," said Mr. Arthur Malone, of London, visiting Washington, reports the Post. "It is true that the government is almost purely paternal, but it is such a benevolent paternalism, and the people seem to thrive under it so well that there is little room for hostile criticism. It is a country where pauperism has been practically abolished, and where every man who is desirous of a home can secure one. The government will not permit a monopoly of land, and those who had big tracts were forced to surrender them so that the poor could get farms. I do not mean to say that New Zealand is a paradise, or that its people are so far elevated above the rest of mankind that they are without the usual shortcomings of humanity, but altogether I consider that they have as nearly a perfect system of government as could be devised, and that nowhere on earth is the status of the individual better. If your American coal fields were in New Zealand a strike would be an impossibility, for they would be operated by the state, pro bono publico."

Look Out for This One!

The latest swindle is the offer by traveling salesmen of a so-called "insurrection plant," guaranteed to keep flies, roaches and other insects out of the house. They sell at 50 cents and less, if the agent is not able to get the price. It is a dear plant at any price, for it has no more virtue than a four-leaf clover.

Use of Bicycle-tubes by Boers.

Many of the bicycles built in South Africa by Kitchener's troops are now being used by the Boer farmers as residences pending the rehabilitation of their farms.

Great Britain's Crops.

The agricultural returns of Great Britain for 1902 show that the total under crops and grass was 32,397,705 acres, a decrease of 29,480 compared with 1901.

Her Complaint.

Jane was a patient in one of the large public hospitals. She boasted a cough which was more than suspected to be a "fake" cough rather than bronchial or pulmonary.

The kindly young physician in charge of the ward allowed her some harmless remedies. One day he said to her:

"Ah, Jane, I fear you are a bad case of hypochondria."

"Is that it, doctherr?" said Jane, much impressed.

The next morning there she was again, asking for her little dose.

"I'm very sad with it the day, doctherr."

"With what?" asked the doctor.

"Wid what ye were namin' her me yestiddy," she replied. "It gave me no peace at all last night."—N. Y. Times.

Expert Blundering.

A handwriting expert in Paris was attempting to identify the writing of a suspected murderer with that left behind by the criminal in the house of his victim. He produced the accused's official books and pointed out conclusively that the two hands were indubitably the same. "There," he seemed to say as he mopped his heated brow; "that shows what your real character is." Bellerville-boilered expert can do when he tries." "Marvelous," said the judge. "There is, indeed, but one flaw as far as I can see. The writing in these books is not that of the accused, but of his predecessor, and it was written several years before the crime was committed. You see my point" The expert attempted a smile.—London Globe.

Young Lawyer Set Right.

Not long ago a bright young lawyer, whose progress was due to the celerity with which he disposed of cases placed in his hands, approached one of the famous leaders of the bar with a proposition to be admitted into partnership. "Oh, yes, I have heard of you," said the great legal light. "You won that suit of —— against heavy odds, and from retainer to final fee were occupied less than five weeks. Such expedition is most reprehensible. Why, young man, that case would have occupied any experienced lawyer at least two years. I am not prepared to admit into partnership one who does not understand the most important word in the legal vocabulary—'Delay.'"—N. Y. Press.

An Effective Dunning Letter.

A youth was engaged as junior clerk by a firm of lawyers and by way of filling in his time and testing his worth on his first day he was told to write a letter demanding payment of a debt from a client who was long in arrears. To the great surprise of his employers a check for the amount arrived the next day. They sent for the young clerk and asked him to produce a copy of the letter which had had such an astonishing result. The leter ran as follows: "Dear Sir: If you do not at once remit payment of the amount which you owe us we will take steps that will amaze you."—Chicago Chronicle.

A German's Mistake.

Many ludicrous mistakes are made by foreigners in grappling the meaning of some of our common English expressions. A young German attending a western state university translated "The spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak" into "The ghost is willing, but the meat is not able." And a Filipino youth fairly set the class in an uproar by the statement that "Out of sight, out of mind" meant "The invisible is insane."—Chicago Chronicle.

Tips Discouraged in China.

The tipping system is not encouraged in China. An execution recently took place outside the gates of Ta-yuen-fu. The executioner's office belonged in life to a telegraph messenger. On the occasion of a great festival he asked for tips from some leading merchants who habitually used the telegraph office. The governor of the province heard of it and took prompt steps to suppress the nuisance.—N. Y. Sun.

A Crime.

Hicks—I see Tooter has a job in the theater orchestra. I wonder what his pay is?

Wicks—Give it up.

"Haven't you any idea what a cornetist should get?"

"Sure! The wages of sin is death."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Kansas as a Territory.

When Kansas was first organized as a territory in 1854, its area included part of the present state of Colorado, extending as far west as the crest of the Rocky mountains. Denver, Leadville, Pueblo and Colorado Springs are now located on former Kansas soil.—Indianapolis News.

Between Two Fires.

Landlady—The servant tells me you complained about your bed, Mr. Sloper. What's the matter with it?

Slopay—It's harder than the floor.

"Well, if it doesn't suit I'm afraid I shall be compelled to lose you."—Chicago Daily News.

She Knew How.

Flanigan—Mrs. McGinty, Mike's locked up in the station again—wants you to come and bail him out.

Mrs. McGinty—Just right, begorra, wait until I get a bucket and dipper.—Comfort.

Bright Prospects.

Sharpe—I tell you a college education is a great thing.

Whealton—Indeed it is. Any college man can get a job as waiter if he can only understand the French menus.—Chicago Daily News.

WHIST TROPHY STILL STAYS IN PLAINFIELD

Plainfield Camera Club Defeats Crack Four of Cosmopolitan Whist Club.

FIFTH STRAIGHT WIN

PLAINFIELD'S FOUR WINS FROM ONE OF NEW YORK'S BEST TEAMS.

Visitors Were Very Confident of Victory and Result Was a Big Surprise—The Score Was 13 to 10—Refreshments Served.

The Metropolitan challenge trophy will remain in the possession of the Plainfield Camera Club "whist four" for awhile longer. This was determined Friday night, when the strong four from the Cosmopolitan Whist Club, of New York, came to Plainfield and met defeat at the hands of the local team. It was one of the best and most important matches of the season, and victory counted for much.

That the home team was able to win out is a source of gratification not only to the members of the Camera Club, but the team as well. The team representing the Cosmopolitan Club is, with the exception of the Camera Club four, the strongest aggregation in the east. So sure was one of the visitors of winning the game, that he wagered a dinner with a friend that the Camera Club would be defeated. The result was a genuine surprise to the challengers. The final score was 13 to 10. This is the fifth consecutive victory for the Camera Club team.

In the first round the home players walked away from their opponents, the score being 7 to 2 in their favor. The second round showed an improvement on the part of the challengers and they won the honors by a score of 6 to 3. The last round was the most exciting, but with a steady nerve and careful play the holders of the cup won out by a score of 3 to 2. There is one strong feature about the play of the Camera Club team and that is the way they work together. The members have no individual pet ideas as to system, but they stand together like one man. This victory practically means the loss of the trophy for the Cosmopolitan Club. Another victory for the Brooklyn Whist Club would secure the trophy for that club, and the Brooklyn team will soon meet the holders of the cup. The Park Club four will probably be the next challenger for the trophy.

The team representing the Cosmopolitan Whist Club consisted of E. E. Baker, captain; Henry B. Newman, John E. Faber and Andrew Gilhooly. The Plainfield Camera Club was represented by its same team, A. F. Freeman, F. H. Freeman, Ralph T. Willis and W. J. R. Hogeman, Jr. At the close of the match the home team entertained its visitors by serving light refreshments.

SWIMMING CONTEST.

Walter McNaughton Won the First Prize—Several Trophies Presented at Social Which Followed.

A swimming contest was held Saturday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. in which there were five entries. They were: Denton, McNaughton, Neal, Tice and Koons. The contest was for fifty yards and Walter McNaughton made the course in 46 4-6 seconds with Denton 1-5 second behind.

At a social which was held afterwards in the parlors of the association building the first prize of a silver badge was awarded to the winner and a bronze badge was presented to Denton who took second place. At that time the prize for the bowling contest was awarded to the winner of the bowling games, Clarence Line. The prize was a bowling ball with a silver plate upon it bearing the name of the winner and the dates the games were played.

For having the highest average in ten games of handball the silver cup which was offered as a prize in the handball tournament the prize was awarded to Ray Smith. William E. Neal was given honorable mention for being a close second in a hard fought battle.

Dual Birthday.

A happy dual birthday celebration was observed Friday evening at the home of Wilbur Randolph, of Duer street, when he and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Adams, entertained a number of guests. The affair was a surprise to Mr. Randolph, although Mrs. Adams knew of it. The latter's birthday was on Wednesday and that of Mr. Randolph on Thursday. It was then arranged to celebrate on Friday evening.

Getting New Members.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., is increasing rapidly in membership. Recently several new members have been initiated and at the last meeting several new applications were received.

REBUKES CITY FATHERS FOR GIVING LICENSE

Rev. John MacMurray Speaks Strongly on the Action at Recent Council Meeting.

PREACHED SUNDAY P. M.

SAYS FOURTH WARD DOES NOT WANT THE NEW SALOON.

Denounces Six Councilmen Who Voted for It—Says It Was in Face of Conclusive Evidence of Illegality of Necessary Signers.

Common Councilmen, politicians and saloon keepers came in for a general rebuking from Rev. John MacMurray in a sermon preached by him at the Monroe Avenue church, Sunday night. The discourse was inspired by a visit to the session of the City Fathers, Monday evening, when the liquor applications were granted after the liveliest meeting the body has had in years.

Taking as his text, "Ye are the salt of the earth," the preacher said that just as salt was used to sweeten the Jewish burnt offering, so was Christian character in any community today. It is the duty of the Christian, said he, to make his influence felt in the home, at church, in society, business and politics. If he takes his religion into politics, continued the preacher, it is not enough that he votes as he prays, but he should pray right and vote right.

"Those of us who were at the Common Council meeting," Mr. MacMurray said, "were made to feel the need of Christian men in politics. When there was an opportunity to reduce by one at least the number of licensed saloons in our city, six of the Councilmen, in the face of conclusive evidence of the illegality of signers for an application and against the protests of respectable residents of the part of the community, deliberately voted to grant a license to a man who was already privileged to sell liquor at wholesale."

"All honor to the four men, Tyler, Pray, Daniels and Garrigues, who realized the situation and by their votes expressed their conscience in the matter and their freedom from political bossism and saloon nomination. We resent the statement of the young lawyer, who evidently based his position in the Council on further the interest of a client, when he said the Fourth ward had decided it wanted the saloon. Perhaps the political boss of the Fourth may have so decided but the rank and file, the tax payers and respectable citizens do not want this or any other saloon within its boundaries.

"Hardly a day goes by but what I am appealed to by mothers whose hearts are made sad by the influence these drinking places have over fathers and brothers, in order to arouse public sentiment against them. The authorities have been appealed to in vain and now it remains for the people to act and if the saloons can't be done away with entirely their power can at least, be curtailed."

DEATH OF MRS. SISSON.

A Prominent Worker in Chapels Passed Away After Long Illness.

The death occurred Sunday morning of Mrs. T. A. Sisson, of 41 Somerset street, after an illness of several months with Bright's disease. Mrs. Sisson was well known in this city where she has has lived for many years, and was also prominently identified with church work in Warren chapel and at Hope chapel where she taught a Sunday-school class for some time.

She is survived by a husband, who is also well known in this city and by a daughter, Miss Alice M. Sisson.

The funeral was held Tuesday evening at 7:30 at the house, 41 Somerset street, and the interment took place in Hillside cemetery, yesterday morning.

Three New Dwellings.

Charles L. Force, the architect, has completed plans for three new dwellings, including one for Charles Wheeler being erected on Stone street by Titus & Pope, contractors; one for Philip Maguire on West Fourth street, being erected by Henry Hoffman, contractor, and another to be erected for Mr. Cocks at Clinton avenue and West Third street, by Titus & Pope, contractors.

What's In a Name?

Everything is in the name when it comes to Witch Hazel Salve. E. C DeWitt & Co., of Chicago, discovered, some years ago, how to make a salve from Witch Hazel that is a specific for Piles. For blind, bleeding, itching and protruding Piles, eczema, cuts, burns, bruises and all skin diseases, DeWitt's Salve has no equal. This has given rise to numerous worthless counterfeits. Ask for DeWitt's—the genuine. L. W. Randolph.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXVI. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, MARCH 12, 1903. NO. 11.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well as Its Limitations as to Its Authorities"—Madison.

MINSTREL SHOW GREAT SUCCESS

Plenty of Melody and Lots of Fun Scored Big Hit for Effort of Hope Y. M. A.

CROWD WELL PLEASED

Opening Night of Second Annual Minstrel Show Proved Decided Success—Eight Hundred People There—Topical Song Made a Hit—The Closing Sketch.

Was it a success? Well now. Just ask any of the eight hundred people who filled Hope chapel Tuesday evening to enjoy the abundance of melody and no end of fun which went to make up the first night's performance of the second annual minstrel show of the Hope Y. M. A. From the time the curtain went up on that wonderful assemblage of "burnt cork" artists until it fell on the thrilling climax of the closing sketch, it scored a big hit, even greater than that made by last season's minstrel show. And those who had labored hard and long for the success of the affair settled down when it was all over for a brief moment of content as they heard the words of praise that came from every side and watched Fred Wharton tag away at the money bags which bore unquestionable evidence of the financial success of the first night.

The crowd went there to be entertained and that was just what happened. There was music, any quantity of it and good singing too, and then the chinks were filled in with fun, side-splitting horse-play and a good slathering of jokes which had the advantages, most of them at least, of being not only clever but new. Like all other well bred minstrel shows, there was a first part in which the end men and a chorus figured, an olio of good attractions and a burlesque sketch to wind up the programme.

There was a few minutes delay in raising the curtain but it wasn't long after 8 o'clock when City Judge William N. Runyon, president of the Y. M. A. and general supervisor of the whole show, sat down at the piano where he played all the accompaniments and directed operations generally. The footlights came up and then, behind the curtain, the chorus struck up "In the Evening by the Moonlight." As it closed, the curtain rose on a decidedly remarkable assemblage.

There in the centre, gorgeous in a dress suit and a sunflower, sat John H. Coss, the interlocutor. On the left were "Bones," William Holbert, Edward F. Shortman and Matthew D. Sweeney. On the right were "Tambos," George B. Coss, Bertram C. Firstbrook and Thomas M. Muir. The costumes were alike save that the coats of "Bones" were blue and those of "Tambos" red. Monster piccadilly collars, huge neckties and white duck trousers completed the outfit. Tier above tier sat the chorus. The effect of the costumes was quite artistic. On the left sat the dusky singers in striped shirts of blue and white, with white collars and red bow ties. On the right the singers' shirts were of red and white with white collars and blue bow ties. All wore white duck trousers and black gloves.

In the chorus were Frederick W. Bowden, Ira C. Bowers, Benjamin W. Evans, Augustus Feiring, William J. Firstbrook, Herbert R. Finck, John R. Fritts, Hugh J. Gray, Elmer Hoffman, Harry Hoffman, Edwin B. Howes, Lendrum Jennings, Lawrence Jensen, Charles T. Leland, Tony Lasardi, Ray McVoy, George McCombe, David B. Martin, Wallace C. Morton, Chas. Pawson, William S. Porter, Claude J. Roseberry, William H. Scott, Edward C. Searing, George Slorah, John B. Slorah, Bertram F. Tallamy, Frederick B. Tallamy, Louis V. Tallamy, William J. Tallamy, Chas. J. Vincent, George T. Whitley and Harry Williams.

A grand overture, led by the end men, was followed by an original welcoming song after which Bert Firstbrook had something to say. After liberating some jokes and insisting that America was discovered by either J. P. Morgan or Mr. Dooley, he subsided while "The Convict Bells were Ringing" was well sung by Louis V. Tallamy and the company. "Tambo" Coss made an immediate hit with his solo "Malinda's Rag Time Ball" in which he executed a dance that for agility even excelled his great performances at basket ball. So great was the demand for more that he gave "Won't You Roll Dem Eyes" as an encore.

Here Teddy Shortman related a few things about his uncle who died and left everything he had to an orphan asylum, subsequently explaining to Interlocutor Coss that everything consisted of seven children. A pleasingly rendered tenor solo, "Tell Me That Beautiful Story," was given by Augustus Feiring. Matt Sweeney, who had been gazing over the audience with a most injured expression, suddenly sprang into life and gave a rather strenuous duet with Bert Firstbrook, entitled "My Friend From My Home." The crowd was highly amused and demanded several repetitions.

George Coss was here reminded that his brother must have been in bed early in the afternoon as he saw the other's shirt hanging out on the line. He also told of some sad times in the barn with his father when the latter said it hurt him as much as it hurt George but George didn't think it hurt in the same place.

"Oh Come to Me My Love," as a tenor solo by William J. Tallamy, pleased so well that "Little Sweetheart" was given as an encore. Then Lasardi and Bowers manipulated their feet in clever fashion in some wing and back dancing. The Tallamys, four brothers, sang "Stay in Your Own Back Yard" as a quartette with "Dear Old Southern Home" as an encore. Their quartette work was of a high order.

Although but a little lad, Chas. Leland did well in his soprano solo, "Only a Rose Bud" assisted by the Tallamy quartette.

"Bones" Holbert observed that rose buds were not so popular these days, that women were wearing "rats" in their hair now. He also had a real thrilling story of how Park avenue had been blocked by women with their children, attracted by a sign in a dyeing establishment to the effect "Kids cleaned 25 cents."

"Just Kiss Yourself Good Bye" sang Teddy Shortman with much vim and lots of action while the chorus came in on the finish. Tommy Muir interrupted proceedings by proudly displaying a medal he had received for bravery. The precise feat was marrying a widow with seven children. At a restaurant he had said, "Won't you have a lobster?" and she took him up. It was a case of love at first sight, he said, but he was never going to let her get a second. He also told some astonishing things from the lines in the band of the interlocutor. He concluded with a topical song, the music for which was composed by William N. Runyon and the words a joint production. "Things are Different Now" and he distributed hits on the Common Council, the anti-annexationists, Mayor Smalley's opponent and the "speak easies." It made one of the hits of the evening and brought out repeated demands for more.

Matt Sweeney again cast a piercing glance at the rear of the hall and pictured a recent experience in which he had directed Harry Dreier, who was in search of Dr. Oregar as his son had swallowed a nickel, to Lawyer Frank Blats. As Blats had just gotten $1,000 out of a man, he ought to be able to get five cents out of a boy.

"My Bamboo Queen," sung and danced by the end men with the company joining in the chorus, brought the first part to an end.

In the olio, Harry Dilts punched the bag with a skill seldom seen and brought forth much applause. Will Holbert gave a monologue on all sorts of things, principally girls, and wound up by questioning whether there really were any brains in the head of City Judge Runyon as nobody had ever seen them. Some clever work on the banjo and some funny sayings constituted Joseph Longbead's share. Then Geo. Coss, Sweeney, Muir, Firstbrook and Shortman gave a "dance excentrique," entitled "Essence of Old Virginny," in which they went through a quantity of gyrations altogether unusual but well timed. Illustrated songs by Elmer D. Cutting, tenor soloist of the Enterpean Glee Club, ended the part. He gave "When Kate and I Were Coming Through the Rye" and "Only a Dream of the Golden Past" in very satisfactory fashion.

"The Night Clerk," a sketch, completed the programme. It served to illustrate the troubles of a new night clerk (Tommy Muir) in a rather remarkable hotel in which Will Holbert, Matt Sweeney, Bert Firstbrook and Ted Shortman figured in various guises. The poor clerk saw ghosts, was knocked out by a guest who imagined himself John L. Sullivan, was visited by a brace of undertakers who started to prepare him for his funeral and finally was so badly frightened by a band of brigands that

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 5.)

MAYOR SMALLEY INDORSED BY BOROUGH VOTERS; REGARDED AS TRIUMPH FOR ANNEXATIONISTS Entire Republican Ticket Elected in North Plainfield, Despite the Best Efforts of the Democrats and Some of the "Anti" Republicans.

MAYOR SMALLEY WAS RE-ELECTED BY 179 MAJORITY

AFTER ONE OF THE MOST BITTER ELECTIONS KNOWN IN BOROUGH HISTORY, MAYOR SMALLEY'S ADMINISTRATION WAS ENDORSED—THE GREATEST OPPOSITION WAS FROM THE "ANTIS," WHO WERE THIS TIME SIGNALLY DEFEATED—TRIED TO OVERTHROW SMALLEY AND LET BALANCE OF TICKET GO, BUT THE VICTORY WAS A DECISIVE ONE—THE VOTE IN THE TWO DISTRICTS.

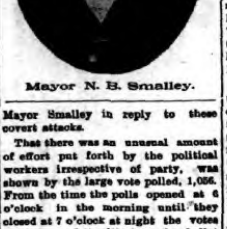
NORTH PLAINFIELD'S VOTE.

Mayor.	First District.	Second District.	Total.	Majority.
Newton B. Smalley, R.	309	306	615	179
William J. Conroy, D.	209	227	436
Councilmen.
Charles A. Lee, R.	339	316	655	290
Morris C. VanArsdale, R.	344	312	656	235
Charles W. Harden, D.	161	204	365
Lambert B. Bodine, D.	181	240	421
Justice of the Peace.
Thomas Doud, R.	337	331	688	330
L. W. Hammond, D.	161	179	358
Commissioners of Appeal.
Lewis E. Barkalew, R.	359	341	700	353
John T. Case, D.	151	196	347

Mayor Newton B. Smalley and his policy was roundly endorsed at the election held in North Plainfield, Tuesday. The Mayor was re-elected by a majority of 179 while the rest of the Republican ticket was chosen by even larger figures. The Mayor fought his campaign on the record he had made during his four years of office. While naturally opposed by the Democratic organization, the most bitter fight against him was made by a coterie of "anti" Republicans. They attempted to drag the question of annexation into the fight. That they were overwhelmed at the ballot box is generally acknowledged as a triumph for the annexationists, who, without regard to party, supported him to a man.

And so is ended one of the bitterest fights that the borough of North Plainfield has passed through for years. As a result, the municipal affairs of the borough will go on as heretofore without change in the administration. Mayor Smalley and the entire Republican ticket have been elected by substantial majorities. It was a victory that left no grain of doubt as to its extent.

At the start of the campaign, it was Republican against Democrat, Newton B. Smalley against William J. Conroy. While both sides were in earnest, the fight was fair. Then a band of Republicans, who had opposed annexation so bitterly at the special election in the fall, announced that they would not support Mayor Smalley but would throw their interests with those of the Democratic candidate and seek his election. They entered a new issue into the campaign and the bitterness grew rapidly. Attacks were made on Mayor Smalley from the cover of anonymous communications. It was common talk that the Republicans in Somerville were quietly exerting every possible influence to defeat Mayor Smalley.



Mayor N. B. Smalley.

All those who opposed annexation were not lined up against the Republican nominee, however. There were many who voted against that proposition but who desired to see Mayor Smalley still at the head of the borough affairs. Some had changed their minds, others were avowed anti-annexationists, a few were not willing to take any stand on that question for the present until they should see what was going to happen. His friends stood by him and, despite the desperate efforts of the opposition, re-elected him. Of the advocates of Mayor Smalley there were none more active than the Democrats who had favored annexation and who now stood firm with their Republican friends of the greater city belief.

Previous to the election both sides were confident but it was generally conceded by impartial observers that Mayor Smalley had the better chance of election. It was then The Daily Press predicted after an impartial survey of the situation. The anonymous attacks, instead of losing votes for him, strengthened his ranks as they won many votes of those who were disgusted by such tactics and admired the frank, honest stand taken by Mayor Smalley in reply to these covert attacks.

That there was an unusual amount of effort put forth by the political workers irrespective of party, was shown by the large vote polled, 1,056. From the time the polls opened at 6 o'clock in the morning until they closed at 7 o'clock at night the votes were dropped steadily into the ballot boxes. The Mayoralty candidates were probably the first to be on the scene. Mr. Conroy started in on Somerset street near his home, while his workers were on the picked line looking for the voters. Mayor Smalley went to the polls and directed personally the operations of his supporters. Probably the most exciting time during the day was between 6 and 7 o'clock in the evening. There were a large number of voters who had been waiting for a "two spot" from one of the two parties and when they learned that the money was not forthcoming, they piled into the election place at the last minute and voted against the Republican nominees, it is said.

While the majorities tell an interesting story, the cuts made in the two tickets tell much more. In the first district there were 365 Republican tickets and 106 cuts. There were 153 Democratic tickets and 22 cuts. There were 346 Republican tickets voted in the second district and 44 cuts, while there were 192 Democratic tickets and 26 cuts. In this district there were two Republican tickets rejected. The total vote in the first district was 518 and 538 in the second district. The appropriation of $650 for the Board of Health was carried unanimously on both tickets.

It was openly declared during the day that certain Democratic leaders were urging fellow members of the party to vote the Republican ticket with the exception of Mayor Smalley. The reason for this, it was claimed, was to make Mr. Smalley's majority as small as possible. Practically all of the cutting was aimed at Mayor Smalley and nearly everything was sacrificed to that end. While it is known that many Republicans worked and voted against the Mayor, it is also known that he received the hearty support of many Democrats. There was intense excitement when the vote was counted, although it was known a half hour previous that the Republican ticket was successful.

As soon as the vote was announced the ardent supporters of the Republican ticket celebrated by burning red fire in the street, while their exultation was shown in a more decided manner through the sounding of the borough fire-alarm bell. The victory seemed to give every one a general feeling that the administration had been strongly indorsed.

Immediately after the result was known there were several expressions of opinion regarding the election. Mayor Smalley, when seen, said that annexation had been his platform and he considered the result a vindication of his own actions as Mayor. He believed that the result was due to the lying and cowardice of his enemies.

"However, in makes no difference what the Legislature does," continued the Mayor, "we will continue the fight until North Plainfield is a part of Union county."

Former Mayor William L. Saunders said that he considered the result a great victory for annexation and were an election to be held tomorrow he believed that a majority of the people would favor annexation and the proposition would be carried easily. Mr. Saunders said that he had a petition signed by 120 anti-annexationists, the signatures being collected by W. C. Smith, asking the Legislature to let the annexation and consolidation laws alone. The former mayor said in conclusion that he was now sure that the people of the State would believe the people of North Plainfield in earnest in their efforts to secure annexation.

Former State Senator Charles A. Reed explained that when he kept the newspaper correspondents out of the Senate caucus in Trenton he was immediately "marked" by them and the statement made that "newspapers make and unmake public men."

"From that time," Mr. Reed said, "the cause of annexation has been misrepresented by the State press simply because of a feeling against me." Mr. Reed was emphatic in his declaration that the victory of the Republican ticket was one also for annexation.

ICE PLANT SOLD.

Frank Borgen Purchaser in the Interest, 'Tis Said, of H. G. Runkle, Who Will Reopen the Plant.

The sale of the Hygiea ice plant took place Tuesday afternoon at the works on North avenue. The bidding was slow and there were but few present. The plant which is valued at $50,000 was knocked down to Frank Bergen, of Elizabeth, for $11,000.

It is understood that he bought the place as a representative of H. G. Runkle who, it has been said, plans to start the plant up again under the management of F. T. Ostrom. Mr. Runkle is the heaviest creditor of the concern.

"OUR COUNTRY."

Entertainment Given Under Auspices of Loyal Temperance Legion.

Under the auspices of the Loyal Temperance Legion an entertainment and social meeting was held Tuesday afternoon in the W. C. T. U. rooms on Madison avenue. Miss May E. Howlett, superintendent of the Legion, had charge of the affair. The entertainments was called "Our Country." There were recitations by the Misses Violet Knight, Ethel Vail, Lizzie Frank, Anna Vail and Mildred Dennis. There was also an interesting talk by Mrs. Elizabeth Parse, president of the W. C. T. U., who told of President Roosevelt and other Presidents of the United States.

Four prizes were presented to those who arranged the best temperance scrap book during the past year. The prize winners were Miss Emily Byrd, a book; Miss Mabel Seale, a picture; Miss Ethel Vail, a pin cushion, and Miss Cora Gray, a cup and saucer.

NOT AFTER CONTRACT.

Pennsylvania Will Not Try to Wrest Mail Contract From N. Y. Central.

The rumor that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will enter the speed contest to wrest the fast mail contract from the New York Central and Lake Shore is denied. At present the company is more concerned in breaking the freight blockade on its road. To secure this contract from the Government it would be necessary for the Pennsylvania to demonstrate daily for two months that it can run a train in less time between New York and Chicago than can the New York Central, and, while there is little doubt but what they could accomplish this, it would be an extensive undertaking, and the company has all the business it can conveniently handle. The contract amounts to $6,000,000.

GAMES AND MUSIC.

Chief Attractions at Endeavor Social at First Baptist Church.

A social under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church was held last Tuesday, when there was a large number present considering counter attractions. Games were played and several piano selections were rendered by Miss Grace TenEyck. At a late hour refreshments were served.

The committee in charge of the affair comprised: Miss Bessie Wilson, Miss Bessie TenEyck, Miss Bertha Peck, Miss Grace TenEyck, N. Douglas Drake, John Rittenhouse and J. Henry Crane.

JUNIOR PLAY.

Will Present "Cranford Dames" at Franklin Hall Saturday Evening.

The junior class of the City High School will give the play "Cranford Dames" in Franklin Hall, Saturday evening. This play consists of scenes from Mrs. Gaskell's novel "Cranford," and is of a highly amusing nature. The caste consists of the young women of the class and there is much opportunity for good acting in the several parts. Regular rehearsals are being held from day to day and all who take part are fast attaining a state of perfection which will doubtless warrant the success of the play.

Admitted to Bar.

Announcement is made of the success of Asa F. Randolph, of this city, in passing the recent examination for admission to the New Jersey Bar as attorney. Attorney William Newcorn has also been admitted as a counsellor.

—The Mocha and Java coffee, sold by Neuman Brothers, cannot be surpassed for quality. Is retails at 20 cents per pound.

ELECTIONS IN OTHER PLACES

Local Fights in Fanwood Borough, Somerville, Dunellen and Other Neighbors.

SOME LIVELY CONTESTS

Democrats Clean Sweep in Dunellen Independents Won in Fanwood Borough—Only One Ticket in North Plainfield and Fanwood Townships—The Details.

Spring elections were held Tuesday in boroughs and townships through New Jersey. Plainfield's neighbors all had elections and some of them developed quite lively contests. In others, there was only one ticket in the field. The results are given in detail below.

N. P. TOWNSHIP.

The election in North Plainfield township Tuesday resulted in the election of the only ticket in the field which was as follows:

For freeholder, William M. Demler; for town clerk, John J. Clark; for collector, E. S. Ackor; overseer of the poor, Michael Duffy; town committeeman, Albert Brokaw; constables, Francis Bartell and Amiel Clements; commissioners of appeals, Daniel F. Acker, J. W. Codington and William Titus; surveyors of highways, H. Texier and Goldson Smalley; poundkeepers, Charles Willis and Carl Rubenstein.

The only contest of the election was in the appropriation for roads. Opinion was divided as to whether to appropriate $2,000 or $1,500 for roads. The former appropriation was carried by 67 majority. $600 was appropriated for the poor and $50 each for township committeemen's salaries. The total poll was 91 votes.

DUNELLEN.

Dunellen, March 11—The entire Democratic ticket with the exception of justice of the peace, was elected here yesterday. The total vote was 817 votes which was unusually heavy. The result of the election is as follows:

For mayor, William Wyckoff, Dem., 194; William J. Hamilton, Rep., 114; for Freeholder, Peter C. Staats, Dem., 178; Eugene Runyon, Rep., 137; for assessor, John H. L. Peters, Dem., 222; Willard L. Larrabee, Rep., 82; for collector, George W. Day, Dem., 173; Isaac J. Stites, Rep., 134; for borough councilmen for a term of three years, John W. Moynihan, Dem., 183, Cornelius M. Byrne, Dem., 161, and Lewis Schneider, Dem., for two years, 156; J. Newton Apgar, Rep., 128; Lewis T. Titsworth, Rep., 138, Fowler W. Vail, Rep., for two years, 158; for commissioner of appeals, Joseph Kuldoshes, Dem., 156; George S. Larkin, Rep., 148; for justice of the peace, Albert W. Warden, Rep., 141.

Both parties made the same appropriations which are as follows: Borough purposes, $5,000; support of the poor, $100. Five votes were rejected on each ticket.

FANWOOD TOWNSHIP.

Scotch Plains, March 11—The Democrats of Fanwood township scored a hollow victory, yesterday, as their's was the only ticket in the field. Out of a registered list of 300, but 78 votes were cast, but very little interest having been manifested by the voters. Following is the tickets elected: Township committeeman, T. J. Nicholl; collector, John L. Darby; assessor, Charles H. French; constable, Horace Pangborn; commissioner of appeal, Clarence Lambert; surveyors of highway, George W. Scudder and George A. Clark. The appropriations were: Fire, $200; poor, $400; police, $100; bonds, $6,000; sidewalks, $250.

FANWOOD BOROUGH.

Fanwood, March 11—Although but one ticket was placed in the field in this borough when the primaries were held, Saturday night, the voters found three in evidence at the polls, yesterday. The tickets and votes were as follows: Citizens, for mayor, Alfred McKeown, 23; for councilmen, three years, H. G. Christianson, 20; H. F. Robinson, 23; for councilmen, two years, W. H. Hoar, 21; for assessor, T. S. Young, 20; for collector and

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 5.)

FOR THE SOUTH.

Pale Colored Gowns—Feather Muffs and Stoles.

Cream and mastic, pale pastel blue and several shades of pink and strawberry are popular for costumes and gowns intended for the south. The coat costume is not so universally in demand, and it is more modish to have a three-quarter sack coat for cool days, the gown being made with a short bolero and altogether in more elaborate fashion to wear with a feather tippet in warm weather.

A Russian blouse lately designed had a full front of ivory satin gathered to a lace yoke, and the broad collar and revers of cloth were ornamented with the panne. The sleeve in bell form was tucked at the widest part and drawn into a cuff of panne. One of the new stoles of chinchilla colored marabou was worn with this gown, and the very large flat muff had two bushy tails on either side.

STOLE OF ERMINE AND LACE.

These feather sets will be much worn in the spring, and they are exceedingly warm and cozy, being so large and full that they quite cover the shoulders.

The illustration shows a stole of ermine trimmed with a broad flounce of lace.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FOR EVENING WEAR.

Economical Crepe de Chines—Smart Black Gowns.

Evening gowns have never been more beautiful and varied than they have been this winter nor perhaps more costly, for they are of the most diaphanous and therefore perishable materials, which need to be made up over silk of the best quality or else their effect is lost.

When economy is to be considered, a crepe de chine gown is advisable, for, though the initial cost of this fabric may be great, a really good crepe de chine will wear splendidly and will emerge triumphant from the ordeal of cleaning and remodeling.

COFFEE COAT.

The same advantage may be claimed for the chantilly and sprigged brussels nets, which are also extremely fashionable, both in ivory and black. Some of the loveliest gowns are mainly fashioned of chiffon and tulle, which are both as fragile as they are effective.

Black is so extremely becoming to some women that it remains in high favor, especially for dinner or theater wear.

The gown in the picture is of ivory crepe de chine, trimmed with appliqué or wide meshed net. The belt is of green and white taffeta.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FOR GENERAL UTILITY.

Walking Suits—Tailor Made Gowns. Buttons Fashionable.

Smart walking suits are made of gray sibeline or even the lighter weight gray rough goods.

The skirts of these utility costumes are made just to escape the ground and are devoid of gored flounces or anything which would tend to cut the height.

The perpendicular in frocks and tailor modes has grown into an accepted fact. In general it will be observed the lines of the waist are continued upon the skirt, giving a long and all most princess effect which is very becoming; only around the bottom are horizontal lines used in the shape of ruffings, and these are oftener than not broken up in the form of festoons, etc.

VELVETEEN BLOUSE.

Buttons are playing an important part in dress in quaint enamel and old silver and gold, while queer dangles abound on smart tailor made coats and bodices. When not too heavy, these form an effective mode of trimming.

The cut shows a velveteen blouse which may be made up in any shade with a front of white tucking.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Short Lengths of Lace and Brocade and How They May Be Used.

In trimming laces, insertions and passementerie odd lengths are often useless, but from four to six yards will trim a blouse fully, or six yards of deep lace will border a coffee coat and make frills to the elbow sleeves, or four and a half yards if the lace is of a heavy type will do for the same purpose.

Coffee coats with the skirt matching are very smart, for all the pale colors can be worn with a white cloth skirt or a lace one.

These dainty little affairs may be made quite inexpensively from remnants of lace and brocade, not to speak of the fine already tucked materials.

COFFEE COAT.

Odd lengths of taffeta silk sometimes are quite useful; nine yards are quite sufficient for a trained foundation slip with bodice and plain sleeves or eleven yards with a plaiting at the edge or with two narrow gathered frills.

The illustration shows a coffee jacket of cream lace over pink liberty satin.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

A Card Trick.

Take twenty cards from the pack and deal them out in three packs. The novice is requested to single out a particular card (silently, of course). The player then inquires in which pack the selected card lies and is careful to place the pack indicated between the other two. The cards are laid out in the same manner, three lines in all, carefully observing the order described as to putting the pack with the selected card in the middle, the same card to be chosen each time. The exponent then takes all cards used in his hand and makes a feint of striving to pick out the correct card with difficulty, being careful not to disarrange their order. He knows or will know when he has tried the trick that it is invariably the eleventh card that represents the choice of the person engaged in the matter.—New York Telegram.

EVENING SHADES.

White Very Smart—Novel Hair Decorations.

Ivory and oyster white are what is called safe wear, for they suit nearly every one, while for women who can wear colors the leading evening shades are pale rose pink, delicate green and a peculiarly charming tint of faint pearl gray.

Pale blue, a much softer and fainter tint than the once celebrated turquoise, is still in vogue, but is chiefly employed to provide an artistic touch of color on an ivory or black gown.

An entire gown of this tint could only be worn by a girl who had discovered that blue was emphatically her color.

A jet circlet of light and delicate workmanship is worn on the hair.

BALL GOWN OF BLACK ORIENTAL SATIN.

There are many new designs in hair ornaments, which include jeweled and gilded combs of light or dark tortoise shell or of the less expensive, but scarcely less effective, horn circlets similar to this of jet, but made of real or counterfeit diamonds or pearls or of deftly twisted gauze or ribbon.

The smart ball gown in the picture is of black oriental satin with a berths of black chiffon.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

CLOTH CREATIONS.

Tailor Modes and Broadcloth Evening Gowns.

Embroideries are being revived by the tailors, some of them being very rich and beautiful.

Tailors are utilizing the plainest cloths, the hardest serges and the roughest tweeds in contrast to the elaborate cloths which were used for winter frocks.

Many novel evening gowns are made of pale blue mauve and biscuit cloth.

MORNING COSTUME.

Such a gown requires exquisite cut and should be finished with a soft draping of lace and a clustering touch of contrasting color. A cloth evening gown should not be attempted unless its manipulation is left in competent hands.

All white costumes continue to be the rage, and these are made elaborate with countless beautiful embroideries.

The cut shows a smart morning costume composed of a flannel blouse and a tailor made skirt.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

SMART COLORS.

Gray and Blue Popular in Paris. Heavy White Goods.

The craze for black and white is increasing instead of abating. Rough serges, cream cloths, sibelines and beavers are tremendously in demand. The vivid green we have admired for so long has given place to other tones. Purples and mauves are gaining ground and will have a longer run of popularity than the new claret red.

Gray is always a favorite shade in Paris. The deep blue sets of color which has been so conspicuous in Paris for some time has not yet disappeared, but its popularity is a matter of days. Parisians are proverbially fickle in the matter of color, though for day wear they are faithful to browns and grays.

COSTUME OF BLUE CHEVIOT.

Pastel shades are again coming into favor and they are very beautiful.

The picture shows an up to date costume of blue cheviot.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

USEFUL BARGAINS.

Coats Long and Short—Odd Lengths of Silk and Their Uses.

The long cloth and bengaline coats, lined with silk and trimmed with lace and strappings, are useful for day and evening wear if selected in gray or neutral tints, and the prices are invariably reduced at this time of the year.

Smart little sack coats in black or fawn are useful for spring wear, particularly those of an ornamental type which are handy to slip over a dark gown. Tucked and plaited goods make pretty fronts, yokes and frills for sleeves, and a little coffee coat is quite easy to produce and requires only two and a quarter or even two yards of tucked net or chiffon if completed by deep frills of lace or plaited chiffon.

COFFEE COAT OF BROCADE AND LACE.

Remnants of velvet are useful for trimmings, millinery or a bolero, and from one and a half to two yards is a desirable length.

A silk petticoat requires six yards to make close at the top or with a full flounce finished with two bias gathered frills or quite fussy trimmings seven to eight yards of silk.

The illustration shows a coffee coat of brocade and lace.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Precocious German Children.

Herr A. Boer, a well known German schoolmaster, has recently published some interesting statistics regarding the practice of smoking among German school children. Taking his own school as a general example, he found that in the lower classes, consisting of boys from five to seven years old, nine pupils habitually smoked pipes and cigars. In the two higher classes—boys between seven and ten years old—eleven smokers were found, and in the two highest classes—boys between ten and thirteen—nine used tobacco. In other words, exactly half of the boys in his school between the ages of five and thirteen were smokers.

FASHION NOTES.

Black Picture Hats—Sibeline For Skirts.

The all black picture hat is never out of style, and jet is being used upon it.

Fur toques are very large, mostly adorned with floral decorations and chiffon, while many of the picture hats for dressy wear are entirely of white tucked chiffon veiled with chantilly incrusted with jet and silver. Worn with these are large flat stoles of white marabou, ermine or black chiffon.

Some pretty pale blue cloth costumes have full gauged skirts worn with boleros and toques of chinchilla and chemisettes made of jabots of old lace.

Sibeline continues in high favor for skirts worn with fur boleros and toques to match trimmed with red berries and white camellias. Panne is being still used as a trimming, but velvet is now considered smarter.

PICTURE GOWN.

Velvet gowns are mostly trimmed with chinchilla, ermine or sable.

The picture gown shown in the cut is of perpendicular insertions of black chantilly and velvet ribbon. The front and underdress are of plaited white chiffon.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

WHAT IS WORN.

Sable and Chinchilla on Pale Fabrics—Walking Skirts.

There is no doubt that it is on pale shades that sable, mink and chinchilla look their best, and at the smartest Parisian gatherings of late stoles and muffs of lace and fur have been seen worn with crepe de chine or some soft fabric in pale shades.

Lace will be worn more than ever. Irish crochet and thick Italian lace are the favorite trimmings on cloth and velvet frocks. Velvet will be worn all through March, for one advantage of a velvet frock is that it can be used without a wrap.

COSTUME OF BROWN CLOTH.

For everyday use skirts are decidedly fuller and trains are no more. The really short skirt is never smart in town, but the new walking skirts can hardly come under this head, as they just escape the ground.

The picture shows a costume of brown cloth braided with white. The vest is formed of [illegible]

JUDIC CHOLLET.

EVENING GOWNS.

The Color Is Left to the Taste of the Individual.

There is something very smart about a cloth evening frock, and a recent model in a bright shade of sapphire blue seemed to be cut princess, the drapery caught up to one side with some Greek embroidery. The low square decolletage and elbow sleeves were finished with tuckers of lace.

It is a curious fact that there is no rule about color at all. A dark brown tulle frock is often the most successful in the ballroom, and so sometimes is a bright shade of navy blue. Some women look best in dull colors, which seem to enhance the brilliancy of their own coloring, while again others look their best in a distinctly bizarre style of dress. This is a matter in which one must use individual judgment unless one can afford to trust to the hands of the best costumers.

WHITE NET EVENING GOWN.

The picture shows a white net evening gown.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

EARLY SPRING FASHIONS.

Picture Hats of Tulle and Chiffon. Dressy Toilets.

Floral wreaths are less in evidence for evening wear than at the commencement of the season.

Mittens of real lace or of the finest silk net, either black or ivory, are increasingly fashionable, but they are only permissible for dinner or theater wear. For dances gloves reaching above the elbow are correct.

Entire picture hats of jet mounted on billowy folds of chiffon are worn, and tulle will come in again very shortly.

A favorite demitoilet is of cream crepe de chine trimmed with chantilly lace or an entire simple frock of white chiffon with no decoration beyond a jabot of cream lace worn in company with a big black hat.

VISITING DRESS OF MASTIC CLOTH.

Hats, however quiet they may be, for morning wear are always of the smartest shapes of pale felt trimmed with black or white plumage or little sailors of moire trimmed with heavy lace.

The cut shows a visiting toilet of pale mastic cloth.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

The Winner.

"I played an interesting game of cards with Helen last night."

"What kind of a hand did you hold?"

"Pink."

"You mean red. Who ever heard of pink cards?"

"I'm not speaking of cards. This was Helen's hand."—Chicago News.

Why She Never Succeeded In Anything

SHE was an intellectual girl, uncommonly so. She expected great things of herself. She easily surpassed her classmates in school studies, looking with contempt on those who were duller than herself. She had, in childhood even, a sneer and a criticism for those who were different from herself.

She left school and went out to conquer the world. She began with bookkeeping. She learned it quickly. She obtained place after place. None was equal to her merits, she thought. Other girls rose at 6, took their places at their desks at 8 sharp, worked till 6 and did not consider themselves abused. She rose at 7, went to work at 8:30, wrought with account book and ledger till 5:30 or 6 and considered herself the most abused martyr in a city of a million people. She, mind you, did exactly what thousands of other girls do daily in the business world and are thankful they have the work to do; she wailed and grumbled all the time. She came home at night whining thus:

"I don't know why I have everything so much harder than other people just because I am not strong and well. Today they put enough work on me to kill a horse and the office boy was so impudent I had to report him. I made just a little mistake in my work and had to do six pages over again, and nobody felt sorry for me in the least. It made me so tired I couldn't eat any dinner and what I did eat just lies on my stomach, and I know I'll be sick in the night and not sleep a wink. My nerves are all of a frazzle and I'm wearing out with this dreadful life as fast as I can. I'm so discouraged!"

She had antagonized the office boy by walking roughshod over him and speaking harshly and authoritatively to him in the beginning. Thus she got his confirmed ill will, and office boys have ways of making things unpleasant for lady bookkeepers. Tact, gentleness, politeness, remembering that God created office boys of the same flesh and blood as herself would have made the youth her friend instead of her enemy.

"I'M SO DISCOURAGED."

She resigned and tried something else, with the like result; then another trade, then another. In every one "luck," as she called it, was against her. She was a whiner and kicker. Meantime, year by year, she grew more self conceited and "sot" in her ways. There was nothing in her mental horizon but herself; consequently she assumed to herself the proportions of the universe, and whatever difficulty came in her path was exaggerated in proportion. Molehills others stepped over cheerfully and went on their way rejoicing that they were alive became to her distorted imagination mountains which "bad luck" had purposely placed in her way. She coddled herself and drugged herself night and day with the poison of self pity, because you see, she night and day thought of nothing but herself, her clothes, her prospects, her own superior ideas and actions. She seemed at length to have no human feeling toward any creature but herself.

She had not many real friends, although she was brilliant intellectually. Because she thought her ideas so superior to other people's she meddled with other persons' business. She tried to impose her ways on them. It became finally her habit to criticise, antagonize, claw and kick her way through the world. From one occupation to another she went, dabbling in half a dozen, succeeding in none.

The grumbling, fault finding habit grew constantly. The habit of whining always over her "bad luck" intensified till at length she began to have now and then a stroke of what really might be called ill fortune. When wonder it seemed that she had been saying all her life that failure was her fate, so what wonder destiny took her at her word! She got what she declared for herself, did she not? Invariably, sooner or later, we usually get what we persist in declaring we have, whether it is good or evil.

The only way to obtain permanent good luck is to earn it. The only way to earn it is through thick and thin to be brave, sweet tempered and persevering, to persistently put out good will to everything that lives, to be always ready to learn, to do our best in every situation in life without grumbling, kicking or fault finding.

KATHERINE BLADES

JUST A CENTURY OLD

City of Chicago About to Celebrate Its Centennial.

Origin of the Western Metropolis Dates from Arrival of United States Troops Late in the Spring of 1803.

[Special Chicago Letter.]

UNDER the direction of Mayor Harrison several committees are now actively at work making preparations for a suitable celebration of the one hundredth birthday of the city of Chicago. The exercises connected with this unique historical event will include a carnival, grand military review, a naval demonstration on Lake Michigan and other attractive features. Among the distinguished visitors will be President and Mrs. Roosevelt, the members of the cabinet and supreme court justices and their wives, the diplomatic corps, the senators of the United States and members of the house of representatives, 20 or more governors of sovereign states and a multitude of other distinguished men and women. The celebration will last six days and, if present plans are carried out, will be held early in September.

The birth of Chicago dates from the arrival of a detachment of United States soldiers, late in the spring of 1803. The troops were in charge of Lieut. James Swearengen and marched overland from Detroit to the foot of Lake Michigan. They were followed by Capt. John Whistler, who, with his wife and son, came by the lakes with supplies. The spring was well under way before the two expeditions came together and all possible haste was made to put things in shape for the approaching winter. A fort was built at a point which is now the foot of Michigan avenue, facing Rush street bridge. There were no horses in the county at that time and the soldiers were compelled to harness themselves to logs which they had chopped in the adjacent forest. It was tedious and trying work, and necessarily the building progressed slowly. When completed the fort consisted of a double stockade, with two blockhouses at opposite corners, a storehouse and quarters for officers and men. An underground passage led to the river, so that water might be had in case of a siege.

FORT DEARBORN, AS IT APPEARED IN 1812.

The name Chicago is of Indian origin, and is mentioned by the French Jesuit missionary Marquette, who first visited the site of the present city in 1673. It was also visited by Perrot in 1770. In the winter of 1674-75 Marquette camped on the banks of the Chicago river from December till near the close of March. When he arrived, on December 4, he found the river frozen and the ground covered with snow. By the French voyagers the name of the city was spelled in a variety of ways, the majority rendering it Chi-cau-gou. There is mention of it in accounts of La Salle's expedition down the Illinois river, by way of St. Joseph and Kankakee, in 1680. In Hennepin's account of this expedition is a chapter called "An Account of the Building of a New Fort on the River of the Illinois, Named by the Savages Chi-cau-gou and by Us Fort Chevereur." Pere Marquette invariably wrote only of the Illinois, the Chicago river being then considered a part of the lower river by the whites, although the Indians seem to have had a better knowledge of the geography and topography of the country. The Wisconsin Historical society has in its possession a map, said to have been made by Sampson, geographer to the king of France, in 1673, before the Marquette or Joliet expeditions had been heard from. On this map there is one great river running from Lake Michigan to the gulf of Mexico, intended probably to represent the Mississippi. It is called the Chocagua river. The name Chicago, according to some authorities, means "great" or "strong," but the Indians themselves asserted that it means "ahunh." They fortified their claim by relating that once upon a time a chief named "Ahunh" was drowned in this river and to perpetuate his memory the red men named the stream for their unfortunate companion. The early trappers and traders attempted to change the name several times, but without success.

JOHN HARRIS KINZIE.
(Son of the First Permanent Settler of Chicago.)

Capt. Whistler, the first commander of Fort Dearborn, was a revolutionary soldier of considerable renown and had had years of frontier duty. He was in command until the summer of 1811, and during his administration managed to maintain comparatively friendly relations with the Indians and to attract a number of settlers to the new town. He was succeeded by Capt. Heald in June, 1811. When the war with Great Britain broke out in 1812, the government was somewhat at a loss what to do with the Indians, so far from the frontiers, could not be successfully maintained, ordered it abandoned. On August 12, Capt. Heald marched out of the fort, and after proceeding two miles on the lake shore he was attacked by the Pottawatamie Indians. Twelve, the entire number of the militia garrison, 26 of the regular troops, two women and 12 children, in all 52, were killed and several wounded. The Indians destroyed the abandoned fort; but it was rebuilt in 1816, under Capt. Bradley. The fort continued to be occupied until 1837, when, the Indians having left the country, it was abandoned. The spot where the massacre of 1812 occurred is now marked by a handsome monument, erected by the late George M. Pullman, near the foot of Sixteenth street.

When the soldiers first arrived in 1803 there were but four traders' cabins at Chicago. The traders, who were either French or half-breeds, had Indian wives. Their names were Le Mai, Ouilmette and Pettell. The fourth cabin, which was empty that summer, was owned by a man named Burnett, who lived in Michigan. The first bona-fide settler was John Kinzie, who, with his family, came to Chicago in 1804 and laid the foundation of the great commercial center of to-day. Mrs. John Harris Kinzie, wife of the son of the original John, wrote a number of books about the early days of Fort Dearborn. The elder Kinzie was a trader who had been in the Lake Michigan region for many years and had visited Chicago previous to the building of the fort. Mr. Kinzie was living at Bertrand, Mich., then called Pare aux Vaches, at the time of the fort construction. He, with other traders, conceived the idea of making Chicago their headquarters; but, as it afterward appeared, he was the only one to establish his home near the fort. He came with his entire family early in the year 1804 and bought the cabin of Le Mai, located on the point which is now the foot of Kinzie street.

The Le Mai place seems to have been the oldest establishment in the region. Le Mai did not build the cabin himself, but had purchased it from one Jean Baptiste Point-au-Sable, a negro voyageur, who had wandered north into the Indian country, and finding congenial comradeship among the redskins made it his home. It is believed that he came to Chicago in 1796, and that the cabin was built in that year. The picture of the Kinzie house which has so often appeared in print, shows the place many years later, when it had been enlarged, beautified and painted. It was nothing more than a shelter when the soldiers arrived in 1803.

John Kinzie and the other settlers who followed him led an exciting life, but they persisted in establishing their ascendancy over the semi-barbarous half-breeds and Indian savages who surrounded them. After the massacre of 1812 the little town grew steadily in importance as a trading post; and when, on August 10, 1833, the town of Chicago was organized by the election of five trustees it had within its limits 28 voters. On September 26, 1833, a treaty was signed with the chief of the Pottawatamies, 7,000 of the tribe being present at the council, and on October 1 they were removed west of the Mississippi river. The first charter of the city was passed by the legislature and approved March 14, 1837; and the first election under the charter was held May 1, 1837.

WILLIAM WALTER WELLS.

THE GOOD OLD DAYS.

Lovers of Their Country Need Not Long for Their Return.

More Intellectual Giants in United States Senate To-Day Than Ever Before — The Case Proved.

[Special Washington Letter.]

"I HAD only been here two days, when it became very apparent to me that the statehood bill would not be passed," said Mr. Frank H. Greer, of Guthrie, Okla.

"You cannot imagine the feverish expectation with which all of our people have been reading the press dispatches concerning the legislative situation on that matter of statehood. It has been talked of in church and Sunday school, as well as in public schools and all public places. Our little children know that our people are anxious for their rights of citizenship, and are taught what it all means to us.

"I have been greatly impressed with the United States senate," continued this observant business man of the southwest. "The more I have seen of that body the more of an optimist I have become, and I do not long for 'the good old days,' of which so many modern pessimists speak; and speak thoughtlessly as well as imperiously and dogmatically.

"Ever since the organization of the federal government the senate has been composed of great men. Of every decade we may emphatically say: 'There were giants in those days.' But that should not carry with it the implication that there are not giants in these days also. Glance over them with hasty memory, and take up the men whose names stand out like promontories. John Quincy Adams, in the house of representatives, hammering away continuously and diligently until he secured recognition of the right of petition.

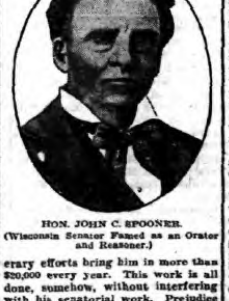
"John C. Calhoun was the brightest intellect of his day on one thing, the right of secession; the extreme conclusion of the doctrine of state sovereignty. He was a specialist. Daniel Webster is eminent both as an orator and a constitutional lawyer, another specialist. Henry Clay you think of as the great compromiser, another specialist. Justin S. Morrill, the promoter of the tariff act of the civil war, a specialist. John A. Logan, the mouthpiece of the veterans of the union armies, another specialist. Senator Doolittle, of Wisconsin, famous as opponent of reconstruction, another specialist.

"There are scores of others, all great men, but these names come up first in memory. Now look at our modern senate. Where are the specialists? I cannot see even one. They are all big, broad-minded men; scholars, orators, lawyers, constitutional lawyers, international lawyers. Listen to them in debate, and their range of knowledge covers every field of investigation and research. Specialists are not broad men, however great they may be in their particular fields.

"I do not believe there ever was in the senate a greater orator than Spooner, of Wisconsin, nor a better reasoner. Senator Depew, of New York, is one of the most pleasing speakers ever seen in the senate or on any platform or in any forum. These men speak readily on all subjects, and their audiences are not only entertained, but instructed.

"Our statehood bill has been defeated by Senator Beveridge, of Indiana; but I must give him the meed of praise due him when great men in the senate are mentioned. He is an orator of great power, and one of the most ready debaters the senate has ever known. He is learned, and yet always learning. He is a hard worker, and his literary efforts bring him in more than $20,000 every year. This work is all done, somehow, without interfering with his senatorial work. Prejudice against him for defeating the statehood bill cannot blind one's eyes to his great intellectual gifts.

"Senator Hoar is as great as Webster was, if not greater, because he is not a specialist. He is one of the most polished gentlemen in public life; a profound scholar, an orator, a man of absolute fearlessness in the utterance of his views, well versed in the laws of nations, as well as the constitution and laws of our own land; a welcome and statesman without a superior in this or any other country. So long as such a man is sent to and retained in the senate there is no need for sighing about the 'good old days,' and intimating thereby that statesmanship is deteriorating, or becoming a thing of the remote past. There were giants in those days, and there are giants in these days also."



HON. JOHN C. SPOONER.
(Wisconsin Senator Famed as an Orator and Reasoner.)

By these reflections the writer was reminded of a story told not long ago to the narrator, by Senator Clark, of Wyoming. He said: "I visited Senator Davis, of Minnesota, one morning in the room of the committee on foreign relations to obtain some information from that lovable statesman, and he gave me freely of his knowledge, but added: 'You'd better wait for Senator Morgan, of Alabama, who is to be here this morning. He knows more about this subject than I do. In fact, he knows more about more things than any member of the senate. Of this fact I will convince you.'

"Senator Davis then took a volume of an encyclopedia from the shelf, opened it at random and pointed to a paragraph about an obscure island in the Pacific ocean. He said that after I had obtained exhaustive information on the topic which most interested me he would ask Senator Morgan about that obscure island, and he would tell all about it. Well, in a few minutes the Alabama statesman entered the room. I stated my case to him, and he talked for half an hour, giving me full details of an intricate legal subject. Then Senator Davis asked him about that obscure island; and the dear old senator told us all about it; when it was discovered, its inhabitants, its products, and a great deal more than we had learned from the encyclopedia."

HON. NELSON W. ALDRICH.
(Rhode Island Senator Famed as a Parliamentary Tactician.)

During the period of our contention with Chili, about 11 years ago, the secretary of state, James G. Blaine, went to the capitol, called on Senator Sherman, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, and stated that he wanted information on a certain point of international law. He said that he knew he was right, but he could not prove it. Senator Davis, of Minnesota, was sent for, and he instantly said: "Calvo wrote that point clearly. You will find it in such and such a book." But word was sent from the congressional library that the only copy of that book was in French, and Mr. Blaine exclaimed, helplessly: "It might as well be in Choctaw, for I can't read French."

Senator Davis said: "Take the book to the department, and have one of your translators fix it up for you." To this Mr. Blaine replied: "I am in contention with President Harrison on this point, and if one of my translators had this book in his possession, the translation would get to Harrison as soon as it would to me." Then Senator Davis agreed to make the translation himself. During the following night the statesman from Minnesota sat up and translated a whole chapter into exquisite English, and took it to Mr. Blaine at his residence about eight o'clock the next morning.

Mr. Blaine scored such a triumph over President Harrison in his brilliant interpretation of international law, covering all of the points in issue, that the breach between Harrison and Blaine was widened as to culminate ultimately in Blaine's dramatic *withdrawal from the cabinet while the re*publican convention at Minneapolis was in session.

Following the substantial and appropriate views expressed by the visitor from Oklahoma, one must make mention of the great senior senator from Iowa, Mr. Allison; the marvelous parliamentary tactician from Rhode Island, Mr. Aldrich; the almost incomparable orator and tariff statistician from Michigan, Mr. Burrows; the great political general, Mr. Quay, of Pennsylvania; the shrewd business man and political organizer, Mr. Hanna, of Ohio; the authority on interstate commerce, Mr. Culloom, of Illinois; the watch dog of the treasury, Mr. Cockrell, of Missouri.

And there are others. Mr. Allison and Mr. Cockrell have served together on the committee on appropriations for so many years that they probably know more substantive facts about the workings of the executive departments of the government than any of their colleagues. They know exactly, to a penny, *how much ought to be appro*priated for each department, and they insistently oppose all appropriations which seem to them to be in the least degree extravagant.

Yes, there are giants in these days, and an instructive letter might be written concerning each one of those statesmen who serve their country in that august legislative body.

SMITH D. FRY.

A True Canvas-Back.

A good story is told of John Astley, a fellow student with Sir Joshua Reynolds in London and in Rome. While walking in the Campagna Reynolds and some other students took off their coats; but for a long time nothing would persuade young Astley to take his off. At last he was prevailed on to do so, and the cause of his unwillingness to comply with the wishes of his friends was then revealed by an oil sketch of a waterfall painted on the back of the artist's waistcoat.—Youth's Companion.

Sacred Chinese Coin.

One of the coins of the Chinese Emperor Khanghi is very much sought after by the Chinese, who use it in making rings for the finger. It is slightly different from the other cash current under the same emperor in the form of one of the characters that indicate the regnal period. The Chinese call it "Lo-han-cash," the word Lohan being a transcript in Chinese characters of the Sanscrit word Arhan, "venerable," the name applied to the immediate followers of the Buddha, who are frequently seen ranged along the two sides of the principal halls in Buddhist temples. The tradition is that while the emperor was intimately associated with Europeans missionaries he became imbued with a feeling of contempt for Buddhism, and illustrated this phase of his faith by having a set of 18 brass Lo-han images melted down and cast into cash. These cash are said to contain a considerable portion of gold; hence the demand for the cash.

Makes a Living by Clapping.

There is a blind man in the west end of London who earns his living in a very novel manner. An American was passing down a street quite recently and heard a curious sound, suggesting rhythmic applause. Half a dozen people stood between him and the place whence the sound came, but he was curious enough to pass them, and he saw an old blind man, with his hands close to his mouth, producing some false suggestion of a popular air by clapping his hands together. Some little attention was required to find out the tune he meant to express, but as everything chosen was very popular the effort was easy to follow. The blind man's companion explained the work and collected tribute, and from what could be seen there is a living in the business.—London News.

"Like Friday Call Friday."

A social observer of humorous sympathies reports to the listener a trait of a Chinese servant employed in a suburban family, which reveals a certain capability for ready assimilation with American methods of dealing with the tramp question. A hungry tramp called one Monday afternoon at the kitchen door, and was promptly challenged by John. To John the tramp told his tale of woe, ending with a humble petition for something to eat.

"Like fish?" asked John, in insinuating tones.

"Yes, I like fish," the tramp answered.

"Call Fliday," said John, as he shut the door, with a smile imperturbable. —Boston Transcript.

New Woman in Japan.

Japanese women hitherto have been expected literally to honor and obey their husbands in everything. Now, for the first time in history, a Japanese wife has challenged this tradition. She refused to perform certain manual work for her husband, who promptly divorced her, but, on appeal the wife's cause was upheld. It being decided that she was not bound to obey the unreasonable demands of her husband." This decision is looked upon as revolutionary to Japanese domestic life.—London Mail.

Women in Sweden Hotels.

*At the old-fashioned inns and res*taurants in Sweden it is customary to charge less for women than for men, on the theory that they do not eat so much. At some hotels in Sweden a man and a wife are charged as 1½ persons if they occupy the same room. A husband and wife may travel as 1½ persons by railways and also by the best routes, furnishing their own carriage. —London Mail.

Martha's Bravery.

Kate—Martha has got herself a dusky rainy suit. She's what I call a brave girl.

Edith—A brave girl simply because she is going to wear a short dress in public? I don't see where the bravery comes in; the thing is quite common.

"Guess you have never seen Martha's feet."—Boston Transcript.

Automobile Horse School.

A free school to teach horses not to be afraid of automobiles has been started by the president of the Automobile club at Lenox, Mass. The lessons consist of driving the machine past the horse at different rates of speed, making him follow it, etc., and having the horn blow at him. Three lessons usually suffice.—N. Y. Sun.

A Wee Jap's Attendants.

Few royal children live in greater splendor than the heir presumptive to the throne of Japan. He is now about nine months old, and has no less than a dozen nurses and attendants, and shortly he will have an English and a French governess.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

His Embarrassment.

Beryl — Was Jack much embarrassed when he proposed to Miss Angus Lastroyl?

Sibyl—Well, I should say so.

"I supposed he blushed and stammered the way they all do."

*"Not at all. His was financial em*barrassment."—Baltimore Herald.

At It Again.

Mrs. Homer—What do you think of my new gown?

Mrs. Nextdoor—Oh, it's perfectly lovely. Only last week I bought our cook a dress of the same piece of goods. —Chicago Daily News.

Want Straight Eyes.

Many Japanese women are undergoing the slight surgical operation necessary to straighten the slant of the eyelid, which distinguishes them so unmistakably from Caucasian women.—N. Y. Sun.

Grace George in One of the Three "Peggy" Pieces

She Is Making a Decided Success in the Historic Play of "Pretty Peggy."

THIS year the name of Peggy seems to have taken fast hold of playwright and of writer of comic opera. We have three "Peggy" pieces, and one more to appear; "Pretty Peggy," the play in which Miss Grace George is starring; George Ade's new opera, "Peggy from Paris;" "My Lady Peggy Goes to Town," wherein Miss Cecil Spooner has made a hit; and in April Anthony Hope's "Intrusions of Peggy" is to be put on at the Prince of Wales theater in London. It is with "Pretty Peggy" we shall concern ourselves to-day.

The play, pseudo-historic, deals with the life and adventures of Mistress Peg Woffington, about whom there has been many a volume written, many a good song sung. Peg, you remember, was a famous Irish commedienne, of the eighteenth century; and withal a generous, genial wit, as clever as beautiful. Of lovers the playwright gives her a score or more, and we are not sure but that the historian does likewise. The wonder was, not that people fell in love with Peggy, but that anyone failed so to do.

The curtain rises, disclosing the circus booth of Mme. Violante, under whom Peg has won much fame as a dancer. A motley crowd is seen on the stage, and we hear extravagant praise of "Pretty Peggy;" of her good qualities, of her dancing, of her beauty. Two of her admirers, the great actor, David Garrick (who is playing a professional engagement in Dublin), and Sir Charles Hanbury Williams, wax quite warm as they discuss the object of their admiration; and the audience sees at once that there is to be rivalry. Now enters Polly, Peg's sister, with a lover, no less a personage than the son of the great earl of Cholmondeley. They engage in a little philandering for our benefit, but suddenly the love-making is brought to an end by reason of the approach of Mother Woffington, who wants her girls to have no fooling with doubtful men.

The mother is irresistibly funny, frish through and through. Mistress Polly, who had made her lover climb into a trapeze, does everything possible to keep her suspicious mother's eyes on the ground, and the comical old lady below, the swain very much above, excite considerable mirth. In the meantime, the various members of the circus company make their appearance, and at last in comes Nell, riding on a mule, dividing her attentions with it and the folk about her. She is a charming little witch, saucy and merry as the typical Irish lassie.

She puts a cone in the ear of the "haste," pets it and pats it, much to Sir Charles' disgust. Another would-be lover she promptly sends about his business also, a banger-on of the circus, a drunken, worthless fellow, a sort of fortune teller, whom presently there enters one she is in no hurry to send from her side, none other than David Garrick.

He tells her of his admiration for her, of his love, and though she listens, she professes herself too humble for him to show such honor; vows she will not allow it until she, too, shall have proven herself great, until she, too, has shown the world that she can act. Garrick offers to take her to London, where, he assures her, a great future awaits her. So Peg bids good-by to the companions of her rollicking days, and the curtain goes down upon cheers and congratulations for the luck that has befallen "Pretty Peggy."

GRACE GEORGE IN "PRETTY PEGGY."

In the next act we are shown the greenroom of Peggy's London theater, in which room we see signs of an approaching feast. Two maids are quarreling; one of them in Peggy's hire, the other in that of a rival actress. The fortune teller is hanging about, hoping to catch a glimpse of his beloved but unapproachable one; and for a moment Peggy looks down upon him from an upper balcony and mischievously makes fun of his adoration. He is angered thereby and quite ready to seek revenge. The rival actress appears and bribes him to try to humiliate "The Woffington" when the party is in progress. All he has to do is to stand behind Garrick's chair, and offer a toast to "Eva." "Eva," it seems, is a French dancer, an earlier love of Garrick's, about whom Peggy knows little or nothing.

The banquet scene is lively with song and toast, and Peggy keeps things moving briskly—save when the loving cup reaches her mother and the old lady desires to hang on to it rather than pass it along. And there is another halt to the merriment, a more serious one, when the toast to "Eva" is offered. Peg asks who Eva is, but gets no satisfactory answer. Soon the guests leave, and Garrick and she are alone. She tells him she is jealous of this Eva; but he says "nonsense," and trustful Peggy subsides.

In the third act, Polly and a maid are discovered busily packing trunks for Peggy, who is about to be married to Garrick. As they discuss and fold away garments, they speak of Peggy's queer behavior of late, refer to the fact that she does not seem happy. Onesays she wonders if everything will pass off all right, if the marriage really will take place. Peg and her mother come in soon, and the latter persuades her daughter to grant a farewell interview to "poor Charlie, who always was a favorite" with the elder. But when Garrick is announced, Peggy declares she will not see him until the hour of the wedding.

Garrick awaits, hoping wilful Peggy will relent, and in the meantime a note is brought him; a missive from Eva, bidding him to come to her at once. He replies that he will see her that evening. Peggy enters suddenly, sees the note in his hand, teasingly snatches it away from him, and vows she believes it is from "Eva" and that she must read it. Fearful, David appeals to her honor, says if she cannot trust him; and at that Peggy tears up the note unread. David leaves her in very happy mood.

She tries on her wedding clothes and preens and prances back and forth, in very joyous mood, indeed. But the happiness soon passes, for in comes the everlasting Eva. She tells the bride-to-be that Garrick has been her lover for the past three years, and that he has promised to see her that very night. David enters, is confronted by the two women, and nothing is left but to acknowledge he has lied to Peggy. She scorns him and sends him away.

In the next, and last, act, a stage is shown upon the stage. We see a theater upon the night of a great benefit performance. "The Woffington" turns what is planned to be her success into a victory, but the strain proves too much for her; she forgets her lines, reels, then falls fainting upon the floor. Both Sir Charles and Garrick, who have had places near the stage, spring to her assistance. She turns to the latter, says: "Davy, let's go home," and the curtain descends. Just exactly how she rehabilitates "Davy" we are not informed. THE ASTROLOGER.

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

[illegible] Proprietor

THE TWO VERDICTS.

After looking into the circumstances of the Westfield disaster, the Union county Grand Jury has decided that Engineer Davis was primarily to blame but declares that the Jersey Central and Reading Railroads should not escape all censure. A hasty glance at the findings of the Grand Jury might lead one to believe that the verdict was considerably different from that of the coroner's inquest. A careful comparison of the two, however, cannot fail to result in the discovery of a great similarity between the two. The context and the arrangement of the two verdicts differ widely but, as a matter of fact, it is plain that both bodies have been considering identically the same facts and have arrived at the same general conclusion.

Engineer Davis was primarily to blame. So said the coroner's jury, so echoes the Grand Jury. But there were extenuating circumstances, declared the coroner's jury. The railroad companies should not be entirely free from censure, adds the Grand Jury. Then the coroner's jury advanced certain recommendations regarding the service of the railroads and advised that they be carefully considered. The Grand Jury enumerated certain ways wherein it believed that the railroad company had failed to do its entire duty. In a few details, the verdicts may differ but substantially they are the same although told in a different way.

There was no direct statement in the verdict of the coroner's jury which blamed the railroad. It declared that the railroad companies were free from any criminal responsibility but explained, indirectly, that there were existing conditions which it believed should be remedied. The Grand Jury came out directly and blamed the railroads for allowing certain conditions to exist.

A careful perusal of the two verdicts is very interesting and brings home these facts already noted. For the benefit of its readers who are interested in the subject, The Daily Press prints today, side by side, the verdict of the Grand Jury and extracts from the verdict of the coroner's jury, containing all the facts bearing directly on the case and omitting only a few details. If you read them carefully, you will see for yourself that the Grand Jury's investigation and its findings have not changed the situation a single bit. The blame remains where it was originally placed and the railroad companies have pointed out to them certain lines in which citizens of Union county believe their service is deficient.

OUR EXPERIENCE.

It has been our privilege in the past to entertain visitors who have carefully explained to us how our business should be conducted. The fact that all our time and energy is devoted to the newspaper business while they have never happened to actually fill a position on the staff does not prevent them from believing they know exactly how a newspaper should be run and wherein we are in error.

The New Jersey Central Railroad and the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad are now enjoying a somewhat similar experience. The Grand Jury, composed of men who have no practical knowledge of railroading, has been pointing out the mistake which the railroad companies have been making. Now the Legislature, which also lacks any experience in the art of running a railroad, is preparing to compel the companies to follow out its own ideas.

It is right and proper to safeguard the interests of the public and no railroad company should be allowed to expose its patrons to unnecessary risk. It would seem, however, as if the wisest plan was to allow a commission of practical men of experience to look into the situation and then recommend to the lawmakers the proper course of action to pursue. The coroner's jury did not attempt to dictate to the railroad companies regarding subjects about which it was unacquainted. The Westfield disaster brought to its attention certain important questions which it recommended be referred to a commission, filled by experience to deal with such subjects.

We are always glad to listen to any suggestions of our friends which may improve or better our work but sometimes we cannot but feel that the man who has never sat in an editorial chair in his life is not always better qualified to run a newspaper than is the man who makes it his life work. And no one can blame the railroad officials if they take a similar view regarding their own business. They may be wrong, sometimes, but it is the expert and not the novice who is going to see the error and point out the proper remedy.

TROLLEY TO METUCHEN NOW

Superintendent Radel, of the Middlesex Co., Says It Will be Built in Near Future.

AFTER CONSENTS NOW

Authoritative Announcement Made That Trolley Line From Metuchen to Plainfield Will Soon be Built —Result of Report Going Out From Metuchen.

New Brunswick, March 9—Authoritative announcement was made Saturday afternoon that the lines of the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company would be extended from Metuchen to Plainfield. Edward H. Radel, superintendent of that company, declared Saturday afternoon that the work would be begun as soon as the proper consents were secured from the Township Committee. Most of the property owners' consents have been secured.

News regarding this latest move of the Middlesex and Somerset Company was given publicity through the following report from Metuchen which was received by the New Brunswick Home News:

"A representative of some trolley road was in Metuchen this week trying to secure consents for a new trolley line. The proposed road is to start from Round Brook and pass through Plainfield to South Plainfield. From this point to Metuchen it will run in almost a straight line. The right of way will be purchased and will extend over private property all the way to the borough. Here, according to the company's representative, it will extend its line along Central avenue to the Pennsylvania Railroad, thence along Lake street to Le-Grande avenue, thence along Le-Grande avenue to Main street, where it will connect with the New Brunswick line. Opposition is feared on Lake avenue and the next route considered is to continue south on Lake avenue to Spring street, then along Spring to Main street. Here, it is said, the cars will run on the Middlesex and Somerset line to Bonhamtown, where they will continue to Perth Amboy over the tracks the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company propose to construct.

"It is claimed that the company eventually intends to cross the new bridge and continue to the shore resorts and other lines. The people here are in the dark concerning the company. No one seems to know who is backing the company or what its name is. Its representative has only been in town once, but the people whom he saw are convinced he meant business. The Raritan Traction Company contemplated extending its line to Plainfield, and, it is said made several surveys of different routes. This company, as far as can be learned, has no connection with the Raritan company."

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

How Miss Marjorie Burtis Celebrated Her Fifth Birthday.

Miss Marjorie Burtis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Burtis, of Fairview avenue, celebrated the fifth anniversary of her birthday Saturday afternoon with a party. The time was spent in playing all kinds of games. During the afternoon a bountiful collation was served.

The guests present were the Misses Florence Burkham, Bernice McClintock, Margaret Woolston, Margaret Uwart, Marion Phillips, Ruth Murphey, Dorothy Neil, Hazel Hyatt, Lucile Uwart, Margaret Burkham and Edmond Kenney, Harold Woolston, Eddie Wyndham, Arthur Woodruff, Willie Woodruff, Franklyn Lowe and Jack Harper.

Honors for Miss Kuhl.

Miss Angie S. Kuhl, a graduate of the Plainfield High School, and a new student at Wellesley College, was recently the recipient of high honors by the unusual success of the concerts given in the college hall chapel. She is the leader of the glee club at college and the concert this year was considered the best yet given.

Justice Mattison at Hospital.

Wm. E. Mattison, the justice of the peace and druggist of Somerset street, was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital Friday suffering with a complication of pneumonia and chronic heart trouble. It was said that while his condition is not dangerous it is serious. He is being attended by Dr. P. J. Zaglio.

Building Storm Sewer.

Work was commenced Saturday on the installation of the Albert street storm sewer. The work is in charge of Contractor Mahle and will be pushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

FOULS DECIDE GAME BETWEEN TWO SCHOOLS

Monro's Goals on Fouls Won for City High School in Game With Leal's.

WON BY SINGLE POINT

EXCITING BASKET BALL GAME PLAYED AT Y. M. C. A. GYMNASIUM.

Robert Abbott Did Scoring for Leal's—Some Fast Play—Schools Have Now Played Three Games In All—The Line Ups.

The honors in basket ball are now more evenly divided between the City High School team and the team from Leal's School, the former team having won one game and the other team two. In the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, Friday night, these two teams met and the High School five won their first contest with Leal's by a score of 8 to 7. The game throughout was very interesting and both teams played very fast.

The guard work of both teams showed improvement, that of the winning five being superior. In the first half it looked as though the Leal players would win easily, but soon their opponents got in some fine work and prevented them from running up a high score, in fact it was only by the most persistent effort that they were able to score seven points.

The scoring for Leal's team was done by Robert Abbott. He threw three goals from fouls and two from the field in the first half, but the team failed to score in the second half. For the High School team, Monro threw four goals from fouls, two in each half, while Thompson threw two goals from fouls and one from the field in the first half. Monro's two goals in the second half won the game for his team.

The teams lined up as follows:

HIGH SCHOOL.		LEAL'S SCHOOL.
Monroe	left forward	R. Abbott
Thompson	right forward	Doane
Collier	centre	Bigelow
Miner	right guard	Robert
Anderson	left guard	Schoonmaker

Score—High School, 8; Leal's School, 7. Goals from the field—Abbott (2), Thompson (1). Goals on fouls—Monroe (4), Thompson (2), Abbott (1). Fouls—High School, 6; Leal's School, 14. Referee—Walter Long. Umpires—Ray Smith and Edward Neal. Timer—Prof. Fowler. Scorers—John H. Doane and Ralph Lane.

TO CONNECT CEMENT WORKS

COMPANIES AIM TO GIVE OUTLET TO A TRUNK LINE.

J. P. Northrup, of This City, is One of the Incorporators of the New Companies.

The New Jersey and Delaware River Railroad Company, capital $100,000; the Delaware and Northampton Railroad Company, capital $5,000,000; and the Quaker Portland Cement Company, capital $5,000,000, were incorporated at Trenton a few days ago with largely the same incorporators.

The New Jersey and Delaware River Company is to construct a railroad three-quarters of a mile in length from Martin's Creek, on the Belvidere division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, to a point in the middle of the Delaware River. The Delaware and Northampton Railroad Company is authorized to construct and operate a railroad extending into this State. Among the incorporators of these companies, some of whose names appear on two or more certificates, are John E. Hageman, Frederick H. Ecker, Silas B. Dutcher, Clifford W. Lyons, all of New York; James P. Northrop, Plainfield, and George L. Dayton and Howard C. Griffiths, of Jersey City.

The interests back of these projects are supposed to be the owners of the Quaker Portland Cement Works, who have large interests in the Northampton county district as well. These works are located on the line of the Lehigh and New England Railroad, which passes directly through the property. The question of building a railroad to provide an outlet in some trunk line for its product other than the present facilities has been under consideration for a year or more.

Sang at Launching.

Miss Rita Fazon, of New York, who was the maid of honor and sang "Dixie," at the launching of the "Chattanooga" at Elizabethport, Saturday, is to be soprano soloist of the Crescent Avenue church's new choir. She will assume the position May 1.

The Misses Cahoone's Tea.

Saturday afternoon, the Misses Cahoone, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Cahoone, of Putnam avenue, gave a very charming tea to introduce Mrs. Phillips, of Netherwood.

To Remain Open.

The order discontinuing the postoffice at Rayesfield, Somerset county, has been rescinded by the postal authorities at Washington.

THEATRICAL.

Prosperity marks the run of "The Frisky Mrs. Johnson" at the Princess Theatre, New York, and the brisk playing of Amelia Bingham, Wilton Lackaye, W. L. Abingdon and Minne Dupree find favor with the partisans of Clyde Fitch.

Many big productions of musical comedy and musical extravaganza have been seen in New York during the past few seasons, but the dazzling magnificence of "The Silver Slipper" has caused this delightful musical play to be singled out as the most stupendous and gorgeous production of its kind that New Yorkers have been called upon in years to pass judgment on. That their judgment has been most favorable is attested by the fact that "The Silver Slipper" has played to crowded houses at the Broadway Theatre for upwards of 100 performances.

Captain George W. McClusky, the famous former chief of the New York detective bureau, is not only an ardent admirer of both Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shannon as artists of the highest type, but he was positively fascinated with the Conan Doyle Gillette play, "Sherlock Holmes." The scenic surroundings of this production, as well as the electrical equipment, (which latter plays a most important part in the performance) are the same as were used in the memorable ten-months' run at the play at the Lyceum Theatre in London. Mr. Kelcey and Miss Shannon will present "Sherlock Holmes" at the Grand Opera House, New York for the week starting Monday. The indications are that the house will be taxed to its utmost limit.

The refined colored comedians, Williams & Walker, are in their fourth week at the New York Theatre, New York, playing to packed houses. Their vehicle, "In Dahomey," is a very clever and amusing one and is made up of comic incidents and very meritorious musical features. Mr. Williams' song, "I'm a Jonah Man" is in itself a novelty that is drawing crowds to the New York Theatre expressly to hear it. In his rendition of this song, Mr. Williams is infinitely the peer of Williams & Walker's engagement at the New York Theatre the house will be completely remodelled at a cost of $150,000 and will reopen in September with a great revival of "Ben Hur," in which four chariots and sixteen horses will be seen in the chariot race scene.

"The Bishop's Move," a London success, now running at the Manhattan Theatre, New York, is one of the most wholesome, witty and pleasing comedies seen in New York this season. The play has a story and characters suggest the other popular work of Mrs. Craigie (John Oliver Hobbes), one of its authors, while the development of the drama is characteristic of its other author, Murray Carson, whose work has been applauded both in London and New York. In the play the more prominent and opposing characters are a Bishop, a typical aristocrat, yet without a ban of gross worldly knowledge, fine humor, and unerring tact, who sets himself against a charming woman of the world, a widowed duchess, in her design to wed the Bishop's nephew. The play is laid in France, and the characters move in a refined and dignified atmosphere.

CAUGHT THE THIEF.

Trap for Chicken Thieves Resulted in Capture of Fox.

William S. Jones, who lives between this city and Scotch Plains, has been annoyed recently by having his chickens stolen and so he decided to place a trap for the culprit. Friday evening he loaded a gun and placed it near the entrance to the chicken roost. About midnight he heard a noise and the next instant the gun went off. He went out to investigate and found that a large fox had been killed. He has preserved the skin which is a handsome one.

Accepted Position in Newark.

Miss Mary E. Robinson, of East Second street, has resigned her position as assistant principal in the Bayside public school, to accept the position of teacher in the public schools of New York. She entered upon her new duties March 2.

Prof. Esenbin's Lecture.

The third of the series of University extension lectures on "Work and Wealth," by Prof. Esenbin, of Chicago University, was given in Y. M. C. A. Hall, Saturday evening. The fourth lecture will be given next Saturday evening.

What's In a Name?

Everything is in the name when it comes to Witch Hazel Salve. E. C. DeWitt & Co., of Chicago, discovered, some years ago, how to make a salve from Witch Hazel that is a specific for Piles. For blind, bleeding, itching and protruding Piles, eczema, cuts, burns, bruises and all skin diseases, DeWitt's Salve has no equal. This has given rise to numerous worthless counterfeits. Ask for DeWitt's—the genuine. L. W. Randolph.

ASK TO KILL THE REPEALERS

Petition Being Circulated and Signed by Anti-Annexationists in the Borough.

THE REASONS FOR IT

Captain Wm. C. Smith Tells Why They Should Not Pass—Would Leave North Plainfield at the Mercy of the Freeholders—Many Are Signing It.

Captain William C. Smith, of the borough, has been circulating a petition among the prominent anti-annexationists in which he sets forth that while the signers voted against annexation when it was referred to a vote of the people recently, they are in favor of allowing the bill to remain on the statute books. He has already secured the names of fifty men in the borough who were decidedly opposed to annexation and voted against it. The names of those who voted for the greater city scheme do not appear on the petition.

In speaking of the petition and the reasons why he started it Mr. Smith said that it is for the welfare of the borough to have the bill remain as it is, that is, not to have it repealed. If the bill should be repealed it would place the borough of North Plainfield at the mercy of the Freeholders. They could give the borough just what they pleased or nothing at all, depending entirely upon their fancy.

With the bill on the books North Plainfield always has the opportunity open to vote for the measure again without the necessary formality of having the matter run through the various legal gauntlets, or the political powers that be at Trenton. If it is not repealed the Freeholders cannot help but realise that at any time North Plainfield, upon becoming dissatisfied with the way matters are going in Somerset county, can depart and be received with open arms into Union county.

The petition has met with approval among many of the "antis" and Mr. Smith assured his interviewer that only one man had refused to sign his name to the paper.

COMMITTEES FOR THE YEAR

OF YOUNG WOMEN'S MISSION BAND OF TRINITY REFORMED CHURCH.

Appointed by the President of the Band, Mrs. F. E. Woodruff, at Meeting Friday.

Committees were named Friday at a meeting of the Young Women's Mission Band, of Trinity Reformed church, for the ensuing year. The committees named by president, Mrs. F. E. Woodruff are as follows: Domestic, Miss Mabel Potter, Mrs. Harry McDonald, Miss Anna Searing, Miss Aobeah Holmes and Miss Emma Line.

Foreign: Miss Mary Pugh, Miss Jessie Hockridge, Miss Grace Emmons, Miss Mabel Wilson and Miss Georgia Sanma.

Birthday box: Mrs. William Olmstead, Mrs. David Krymer, Mrs. Theodore Mants, Mrs. Harry Mc-Donald and Mrs. Alfred Baker.

Paper: Miss Anna Searing, Mrs. Frank Wikoff, Miss VanFleet, Mrs. Clarence Thorn and Miss Minnie Williams.

Flower: Miss Metha Rose, Miss Bimmer and Miss Katie Bodine.

Programme: Mrs. Startup, Mrs. Frank Pierson, Miss Abbie VanCleef, Mrs. Peter Hodge and Miss Mabel Wilson.

Emergency: Mrs. Harry Crawford, Mrs. Zeiss, Mrs. F. S. Cutter, Miss Abbie VanCleef, and Miss Grace Emmons.

Entertainment: Miss Lillian Force, Mrs. H. C. VanEmburg, Mrs. H. S. Potter, Mrs. David Krymer and Mrs. Frank Pierson.

New Membership: Mrs. Leonard Smith, Miss Katie Bodine, Miss Minnie Williams, Miss Cora Laire and Mrs. William Olmstead.

VALUABLE PROPERTY SOLD.

New Street to be Opened and Tract Cut Into Building Lots.

C. Elmer Gulick has purchased the Jonathan Clawson property at the corner of Park avenue and Randolph road and the adjoining Henry Dennenberry tract at the corner of Arlington avenue and Randolph road. This valuable property, some eleven acres in all, adjoins that of E. L. Finch, of Park avenue. As soon as the weather permits a new street will be opened through the tract, which will be graded and cut up into building lots.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

The Standard Railroad of America.

PROTECTED THROUGHOUT BY THE INTERLOCKING SWITCH AND BLOCK SIGNAL SYSTEM.

ON AND AFTER JAN. 12, 1903.

Trains will leave Plainfield as follows:

For [illegible] a. m.—Fast line daily, with Pullman Vestibule Parlor Cars, for Pittsburg and Cincinnati, connecting for Washington and Chesapeake points.

For [illegible] m.—Western Express, daily, with Vestibule Sleeping Cars and Dining Car, for Pittsburg and Chicago, except Saturday, for Toledo, Detroit and Chicago.

For [illegible] p. m.—Pacific Express, daily, with Pullman Vestibule Sleeping Cars, for Pittsburg and Chicago; daily for Knoxville, via Shenandoah Valley Route, for Cleveland, except Saturday.

The Southern's Palm Limited—1.20 p.m. week-days.

The Atlantic Coast Line Florida Special—[illegible] p. m. week-days. Through Pullman Buffet Sleepers.

Seaboard Florida Limited—1.27 p. m. daily.

For Baltimore, Washington and the South—1.08, 2.58, 4.07, 7.07, 8.10, 10.00 p. m. Sundays—2.58, 4.07, 7.07, 8.10, 10.00 p. m. On Sunday at 1.00, 1.27, 2.58, 4.07, 7.07, 8.10, and 10.07 p. m.

For Newark and New York—3.03, 5.12, 6.42, 7.13, 8.06, 8.30, 9.02, 9.36, 9.54, 10.17, 10.36, 10.47, 11.06, 11.17, 11.30, 11.42, 11.54 a. m., 12.06, 12.18, 12.30, 12.42, 12.54, 1.06, 1.18, 1.30, 1.42, 1.54, 2.06, 2.18, 2.30, 2.42, 2.54, 3.06, 3.18, 3.30, 3.42, 3.54, 4.06, 4.18, 4.30, 4.42, 4.54, 5.06, 5.18, 5.30, 5.42, 5.54, 6.06, 6.18, 6.30, 6.42, 6.54, 7.06, 7.21, 7.36, 8.17, 9.06, 9.47, 10.13, 11.03 and 11.56 p. m. Sundays, 3.03, 5.12, 6.42, 7.13, 8.06, 8.30, 9.02, 9.36, 9.54, 10.17, 10.36, 10.47, 11.06, 11.17, 11.30, 11.42, 11.54 a. m., 12.06, 12.18, 12.30, 12.42, 12.54, 1.06, 1.18, 1.30, 1.42, 1.54, 2.06, 2.18, 2.30, 2.42, 2.54, 3.06, 3.18, 3.30, 3.42, 3.54, 4.06, 4.18, 4.30, 4.42, 4.54, 5.06, 5.18, 5.30, 5.42, 5.54, 6.06, 6.18, 6.30, 6.42, 6.54, 7.06, 7.21, 7.36, 8.17, 9.06, 9.47, 10.13, 11.03 and 11.56 p. m. For New York only, 9.00 a. m., 2.45 and 4.04 p. m. Sundays, 9.00 a. m.

For Philadelphia—1.03, 4.04, 7.07, 10.3 6, 8.08, 8.30, 9.02, 9.36, 9.54, 10.17, 10.36, 10.47, 11.06, 11.17, 11.30, 11.42, 11.54 a. m., 12.06, 12.18, 12.30, 12.42, 12.54, 1.06, 1.18, 1.30, 1.42, 1.54, 2.06, 2.18, 2.30, 2.42, 2.54, 3.06, 3.18, 3.30, 3.42, 3.54, 4.06, 4.18, 4.30, 4.42, 4.54, 5.06, 5.18, 5.30, 5.42, 5.54, 6.06, 6.18, 6.30, 6.42, 6.54, 7.06, 7.21, 7.36, 8.17, 9.06, 9.47, 10.13, 11.03 and 11.56 p. m. Sundays, 4.04, 7.07, 8.08, 8.30, 9.02, 9.36, 9.54, 10.17, 10.36, 10.47, 11.06, 11.17, 11.30, 11.42, 11.54 a. m., 12.06, 12.18, 12.30, 12.42, 12.54, 1.06, 1.18, 1.30, 1.42, 1.54, 2.06, 2.18, 2.30, 2.42, 2.54, 3.06, 3.18, 3.30, 3.42, 3.54, 4.06, 4.18, 4.30, 4.42, 4.54, 5.06, 5.18, 5.30, 5.42, 5.54, 6.06, 6.18, 6.30, 6.42, 6.54, 7.06, 7.21, 7.36, 8.17, 9.06, 9.47, 10.13, 11.03 and 11.56 p. m.

For Atlantic City—8.45 a. m., 2.45 p. m.

For Philadelphia—5.17, 7.54, 8.08, 9.14, 9.45, 10.54, 11.24, 11.56 a. m., 12.56, 1.30, 3.15*, 4.45, 5.27, 6.30, 7.27, 8.08, 9.38 and 11.40 p. m. Sundays—5.17, 7.54, 8.08, 9.14, 9.45, 10.54, 11.24, 11.56 a. m., 12.56, 1.30, 3.15*, 4.45, 5.27, 6.30, 7.27, 8.08, 9.38 and 11.40 p. m.

For Trenton—5.17, 7.54, 8.08, 9.14, 9.45, 10.54, 11.24, 11.56 a. m., 12.56, 1.30, 3.15*, 4.45, 5.27, 6.30, 7.27, 8.08, 9.38 and 11.40 p. m. Sundays—5.17, 7.54, 8.08, 9.14, 9.45, 10.54, 11.24, 11.56 a. m., 12.56, 1.30, 3.15*, 4.45, 5.27, 6.30, 7.27, 8.08, 9.38 and 11.40 p. m.

For Reading and Harrisburg—4.17, 8.08, 9.38, 11.40 a. m., 1.30, 4.45, 6.30 p. m. Sundays—4.17, 8.08, 9.38, 11.40 a. m., 1.30, 4.45, 6.30 p. m. Through trains, 11.12 night. Sundays—11.12 night.

For Williamsport—8.08, 9.38, 11.40 a. m., 1.30, 4.45, 6.30 p. m. Sundays—8.08, 9.38, 11.40 a. m., 1.30, 4.45, 6.30 p. m. Through train, 11.12 night.

For Pittsville, Pottsville and Williamsport—4.17, 8.08, 9.38, 11.40 a. m., 1.30, 4.45, 6.30 p. m. Sundays—4.17, 8.08, 9.38, 11.40 a. m., 1.30, 4.45, 6.30 p. m. Through train, 11.12 night.

For Baltimore and Washington—3.14, 11.16 a. m., 1.30, 7.11, 4.18 (Parlor cars only, Royal Blue), 7.11 p. m. Sundays—3.14, 11.16 a. m., 1.30, 7.11 p. m.

Theatre cars at Round Brook.

J. G. BROWN, Vice Pres. & Gen. Man'gr.
C. M. BURT, Gen. Pass. Agent.

Reading System

New Jersey Central.

Stations in New York foot of Liberty, and South Ferry, Whitehall Streets.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT Feb. 5, 1903.

For New York—2.45, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.15, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 a. m., 12.30, 1.30, 2.30, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 p. m., 12.01 night. Sundays—2.45, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 a. m., 12.30, 1.30, 2.30, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Somerville—8.15, 11.30 a. m., 4.30, 7.30 p. m. Sundays—8.15, 11.30 a. m., 4.30, 7.30 p. m.

For Bound Brook—2.45, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.15, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 a. m., 12.30, 1.30, 2.30, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 p. m., 12.01 night. Sundays—8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 a. m., 12.30, 1.30, 2.30, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Atlantic City—8.45 a. m., 2.00 p. m. Sundays—8.45 a. m., 2.00, 5.00 p. m.

For Philadelphia—2.45, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.15, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 a. m., 12.30, 1.30, 2.30, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 p. m., 12.01 night. Sundays—8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 a. m., 12.30, 1.30, 2.30, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Baltimore and Washington—2.45, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.15, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 a. m., 12.30, 1.30, 2.30, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 p. m., 12.01 night. Sundays—8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 a. m., 12.30, 1.30, 2.30, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Pittsburg—2.45, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.15, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 a. m., 12.30, 1.30, 2.30, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 p. m., 12.01 night. Sundays—8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 a. m., 12.30, 1.30, 2.30, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Atlantic City—10.30 a. m. and 2.30 p. m. week days. Sundays, 8.45 a. m. Through Vestibule Parlor Cars and Dining Car from Standard Coaches on week-days. Parlor Cars and Coaches on Sunday. Dining Car from Standard Coaches on Sunday.

For Cape May—1.27 p. m. week-days.

For Long Branch, 6.42, 9.36, 10.47, 11.06, 11.17, 11.30, 11.42, 11.54 a. m., 12.06, 12.18, 12.30, 12.42, 12.54, 1.06, 1.18, 1.30, 1.42, 1.54, 2.06, 2.18, 2.30, 2.42, 2.54, 3.06, 3.18, 3.30, 3.42, 3.54, 4.06, 4.18, 4.30, 4.42, 4.54, 5.06, 5.18, 5.30, 5.42, 5.54, 6.06, 6.18, 6.30, 6.42, 6.54, 7.06, 7.21, 7.36, 8.17, 9.06, 9.47, 10.13, 11.03 and 11.56 p. m. Sundays—9.02, 9.36, 9.54, 10.17, 10.36, 10.47, 11.06, 11.17, 11.30, 11.42, 11.54 a. m., 12.06, 12.18, 12.30, 12.42, 12.54, 1.06, 1.18, 1.30, 1.42, 1.54, 2.06, 2.18, 2.30, 2.42, 2.54, 3.06, 3.18, 3.30, 3.42, 3.54, 4.06, 4.18, 4.30, 4.42, 4.54, 5.06, 5.18, 5.30, 5.42, 5.54, 6.06, 6.18, 6.30, 6.42, 6.54, 7.06, 7.21, 7.36, 8.17, 9.06, 9.47, 10.13, 11.03 and 11.56 p. m.

For Perth Amboy—8.45, 9.40, 11.07 a. m., 12.05, 1.05, 2.05, 3.05, 4.05, 5.05, 6.05, 7.05, 8.05, 9.05, 10.05, 11.05, 12.07 night. week-days. Sundays—10.05, 11.05 a. m., 12.05, 1.05, 2.05, 3.05, 4.05, 5.05, 6.05, 7.05, 8.05, 9.05, 10.05, 11.05, 12.07 night. Sundays—10.05, 11.05 a. m., 12.05, 1.05, 2.05, 3.05, 4.05, 5.05, 6.05, 7.05, 8.05, 9.05, 10.05, 11.05, 12.07 night.

For Matawan—7.10 a. m., 12.40, 3.07 and 8.36 p. m. week-days.

For Freehold and Jamesburg, via Monmouth Junction—8.45 a. m., 12.05, 3.05 and 6.15 p. m. week-days. Sundays—9.07 a. m.

For Long Branch, Asbury Park, Ocean Grove and Sea Girt—8.45 a. m., 12.05, 3.05 and 6.15 p. m. week-days. Sundays—9.07 a. m.

For Lambertville, Philipsburg and Scranton—8.45 a. m., 12.05, 3.05 and 6.15 p. m. week-days. Sundays—9.07 a. m.

For Bound Brook—2.45, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.15, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 a. m., 12.30, 1.30, 2.30, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 p. m., 12.01 night. Sundays—8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 a. m., 12.30, 1.30, 2.30, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Somerville—8.15, 11.30 a. m., 4.30, 7.30 p. m. Sundays—8.15, 11.30 a. m., 4.30, 7.30 p. m.

For Elizabeth—2.45, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.15, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 a. m., 12.30, 1.30, 2.30, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 p. m., 12.01 night. Sundays—8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 a. m., 12.30, 1.30, 2.30, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 p. m., 12.01 night.

For time from Dunnellen and Cortlandt Streets consult local time-tables to be procured therein.

W. W. ATTERBURY, Gen'l Manager. J. R. WOOD, Gen'l Pass. Agent.

Vegetable and Flower SEEDS

Reliable and Tested. Catalogue Mailed Free

WEEBER & DON

Seed Merchants 114 Cortlandt STREET NEW YORK

A. WOLFF,

Manufacturer of

CIGARS.

And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from 261 West Front street, to South side of Somerset street first door from Front street, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

AGENTS WANTED.

LIFE OF T. DEWITT TALMAGE, by his son, REV. FRANK DEWITT TALMAGE and associate editors of Christian Herald. Only book endorsed by Talmage family. Enormous profit for agents who act quickly. Outfit ten cents. Write immediately CLARK & CO., 327 S. Fourth Street, Phila., Pa. Mention this paper. 2 14

GEORGE W. DAY,

General Auctioneer.

Sales of Personal Property solicited. P. O. Box 224, Dunellen, N. J., or at dress in care of Constitutionalist. Terms reasonable

Woolston & Buckle,

PAINTERS.

Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies

141-145 North avenue.

—W. W. Hart, of Door street, has returned home from an extensive trip through the west. He will move from his present house on Door street to one on Fairview avenue early next month.

Mrs. Morris Tremaine, of Buffalo, N. Y., is visiting her mother, Mrs. James Middlecith, of Truell Court.

Reading System

New Jersey Central.

Stations in New York foot of Liberty, and South Ferry, Whitehall Streets.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT Feb. 5, 1903.

[illegible]

Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Time Table in Effect February 8, 1903.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Leave South Plainfield at 24 a. m.

Daily (except Sunday) local to Manchunk, connecting with the Black Diamond express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Detroit and Chicago.

Leave South Plainfield 4 49 p. m.

Daily, local, Vestibuled train for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Toronto, Detroit, Chicago and principal intermediate stations, connecting for time of local trains see pocket time-tables, or apply to agents.

FRANK ROWLEY, City Ticket Agent, 258 West Front Street, Plainfield, N. J.

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POSTOFFICE.

Office opens 7 a. m., closes 7 p. m. On Saturday's close at 1 p. m. Hour later.

CLOSE AND ARRIVE MAILS.

Arrive—7.00, 8.40, 11.30 a. m., 2.30, 6.00, 8.30 p. m.
Close—7.30, 10.00 a. m., 1.00, 3.30, 6.30 p. m.

SOMERVILLE, BOUND BROOK AND RARITON.

Arrive—7.00 a. m., 2.30 and 8.30 p. m.
Close—8.00 a. m., 1.15 and 4.30 p. m.

ALLAMUCHY—Direct.

Close—4.00 p. m.

PENNSYLVANIA—West of Easton

Close 12.30 p. m.

NEWARK—Direct.

Arrive—8.40 a. m., 2.30, 6.00 p. m.
Close—7.30 a. m., 1.15 and 4.30 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—7.00, 8.40, 11.30 a. m., 2.30 and 7.00 p. m.
Close—7.30 and 10.00 a. m., 1.00, 3.30 and 6.30 p. m.

Through fast mail for East, West and South close 4.00 and 6.45 p. m.

Through fast mail for East, close 1.00 and 6.45 p. m.

WATCHUNG, WARRENVILLE & GALLIA (Mt. Bethel.)

Arrive—1.30 p. m. Close—9.30 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 9.30 to 10.30 a. m.
Mail closes at 6.45 p. m.

E. H. BIRD, P. M.

NOTICE of Copyright Renewal, Class C, XXC, No. 40060, Library of Congress to wit: Be it remembered that on the ninth day of January, 1903, Herbert Thomas Upson, of Plainfield, New Jersey, hath deposited in this office the titles of twenty-four musical compositions, by Robert Lowry, viz: "All the way my Saviour leads me," "I will sing you a song," "Where the Comforter came," "Vield, O Vield," "Take up the Cross," "Every Step," "Where," "Thine," "Star of the Morning," "Low near to the Kingdom," "There's a sweet land of rest," "Jesus is Near," "One more day's work for Jesus," "Shall we gather at the River," "Every one," "I am the Lord's and He is mine," "Alone," "Down by the Riverside," "Our Lord will come," "Praise the Lord," "Rest at me not to leave Thee," "Coming Home," "Down by the River," for fourteen years from April 27, 1903. "Still unfolded," "Coming Home," "Day by day," These are the same for which certificate of March 27, 1903, "Glory to God," This in renewal for fourteen years from the same date, the author being one of the claims as proprietor in conformity with the Act of Congress, entitled "An act to amend the laws relating to copyrights, Office of the Register of Copyrights, Washington, D. C. Herbert Thomas Upson, Author. Approved, by Thorvald Solberg, Register of Copyrights. 2 14 4

SETTLERS' TICKETS

TO WESTERN POINTS

ARE NOW ON SALE VIA THE

LEHIGH VALLEY RAILROAD,

At Extremely Low Rates of Fare.

Dates of Sale.

Daily to and including April 30, 1903.

Stop-overs.

Stop-overs will be allowed by Western lines subject to the rules and regulations of the line over which tickets read. Detailed information as to points of stop-over, limits, etc., may be secured on application

ALREADY THERE'S TALK ABOUT NATIONAL GAME

Baseball Cranks Are Planning for Opening of the Season in Plainfield.

MANY TEAMS TALKED OF LOCAL LEAGUE MADE DECIDE NOT TO INCREASE NUMBER OF CLUBS.

All Four League Clubs Are Reported to be Getting Ready, While Several Others Are Desirious of Joining the League.

With the approach of warm weather, baseball cranks, who saw last season's games close with so much reluctance, are already beginning to talk of the coming summer's prospects for the National game in Plainfield and the next few weeks will see much accomplished in the way of organizing teams. Material is more plentiful than before and the enthusiasm awakened last year will undoubtedly result in record breaking attendances and better games than ever.

Nothing definite in the way of representative baseball will be determined upon until the Plainfield Associated League takes notice. At its first meeting to be held the first part of next month, it is anticipated many applications will be made for membership from associations and clubs fostering athletics. The sentiment of members, however, is strongly against more than a four league team and unless one of last year's organizations prefers to drop out, it is hardly likely any one of them will be taken on. The reason is best expressed from attendances at last summer's games, which though extremely gratifying, resulted in comparatively small profit for the managers and will with three games instead of two on Saturday afternoons, so say nothing of the minor contests taking place, everyone of the major organizations would be continued at a loss to say nothing of the scattering of cranks who would be sure to follow favorites.

Some talk has been afloat of the Y. M. C. A. not putting a team in the field, owing to a lack of material, but the chances are very much the other way. The only thing lacking at present is a good battery and a very little effort will result in one being attained.

Thomas Comerford, manager of last season's St. Mary team, has announced his intention of an early reorganization and the entrance of as strong a nine as can be brought together in this city. Several of the former members have become affiliated in a certain sense with other clubs but their places have been acceptably filled and nothing stands in the way.

At its regular meeting to be held in two weeks, the Hope Y. M. A. will take steps for the formation of its 1903 team by electing a captain and manager and asking for applications for the personnel. The aspirants for positions will be selected by merit only and then after a most rigid inspection while in action. The greater portion of last year's team is to be retained including Pitcher James Montross who has almost completely recovered from his severe attack of rheumatism.

The Hibbard-Rodman-Ely Safe Works intends remaining in the League and will put up a strong fight for the pennant. The new management has not been selected but it is stated that the team this year will be under the supervision of a baseball committee of three. Aspirants for the position of manager are numerous and this will be decided upon at a meeting to be held in the near future.

Among some of the organizations which will form teams for the purpose of seeking admission to the League, are the Alfa Club, the Rescue A. A., and the Clinton Avenue A. A. Each one has already taken preliminary steps and has obtained some of the city's best all round amateur men.

Missionary Conference.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church will hold a special meeting Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock for conference. All women interested in the welfare and advance of the society are urged to be present.

Inspection of Company K.

An inspection of Company K will be held at their drill, Monday evening, March 16. Lieutenant Colonel Clime, of Camden, will be present and will conduct the drill.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

KING'S DAUGHTERS' MUSICALE

GIVEN AT HOME OF MRS. JOHN V. BEEKMAN, WEST EIGHTH STREET.

Advance Circle Gave Musicale and Tea Saturday Afternoon—Those Who Assisted.

A delightful musicale and tea was held Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John V. Beekman, of West Eighth street. The affair was in charge of the members of Advance Circle of King's Daughters, and was a great success. There were fifty people present and it was said that the affair netted the society $15.

The rooms were very tastefully decorated with palms and potted plants, many of which were secured from Mrs. Beekman's green house. The guests were received by Mrs. Beekman, assisted by Mrs. H. A. Pope, Mrs. Herbert Langford. The Misses Glen served the tea with Mrs. Rausch presiding. Mrs. J. B. Groendyke had charge of the candy table while Miss McIntosh acted as cashier. The refreshment table was in charge of Miss Katherine Glen and Mrs. George Schoonmaker.

Miss Julia Ketcham, of Westfield, a pupil of Pierre Conde, favored with several selections upon the violin accompanied by Miss Lillian A. Force upon the piano. Vocal solos were rendered by Miss Katherine Glen and Miss Lillian Glen accompanied by Miss Moore, of Clifton. Marley Briggs rendered mandolin solos accompanied by Miss Lillian Glen.

PLAINFIELDER IN ARIZONA

T. ALBERT RUNYON WRITES OF THE LIFE IN THAT COUNTRY.

Great Difference From Climate of Plainfield—The Statehood Question.

T. Albert Runyon, of East Front street, who is in Phoenix, Ariz., for his health, has written an interesting letter home in which he tells something of affairs in the west. He says that Arizona is a grand country.

When he arrived in that country he says that the oranges were ripe and standing among the orange trees and palms he could look up and see the peaks of surrounding mountains white with snow. Recently, when there was thirteen inches of snow in Plainfield, Mr. Runyon says the temperature at Phoenix was 72. He speaks of an interesting sight, ten miles from where he is stopping. It is that of sheep-shearing by electricity. There are 60,000 sheep in a bunch.

Mr. Runyon says that they expect to be eating strawberries within four weeks. Regarding the admission of Arizona as a State, he says there is considerable feeling and if Arizona becomes a State there will be something "doing." Mr. Runyon says that the people of Arizona are anxious to make the change and see no reason why it should not be made. The people there are well educated, ambitious and hard workers.

He speaks of the fact that there are lots of Mexicans and Indians in Arizona, but they don't help the country much. The Americans, though, he says, are the real thing. He does not consider the country fully developed and predicts that in mineral wealth Arizona will lead the country yet.

CHANGE IN FACULTY.

Miss Prescott Will Teach at City High School in Absence of Mr. Best.

Lindsey Best, science instructor at the City High School, left Saturday for New York City where he will undergo an operation at the Presbyterian Hospital. This operation will necessitate his absence from duty at the High School for a period of about five weeks, and during this time his classes will be in charge of Principal C. W. Travell and A. D. Macnab. Miss Anna H. Prescott, formerly a teacher at the High School, has returned and will assist the regular faculty by taking charge of several of the classes.

Was Snowed In.

William Everitt, formerly of the borough, but now travelling through the west, was one of those who was snowed in on a western railroad last week for a great many hours. His brother, Alfred Everitt, received a letter from him a few days ago in which he told of his experience and of the suffering of the passengers who could get nothing to eat.

Professional Minstrels.

The members of Unity Lodge, K. of P., who are planning to celebrate their twentieth anniversary, March 17, are arranging to have a minstrel show given entirely by New York talent. The affair will probably be held in Reform Hall.

Cake Sale by King's Daughters.

The King's Daughters, of Grace M. E. church, will hold a cake sale at the church Saturday afternoon. The affair will no doubt be well attended as all the women of the church will contribute to the best of articles on sale.

GOLF CLUB PREPARING FOR ACTIVE SEASON

Annual Meeting of the Park Golf Club Held Monday Night and Officers Elected.

PLAY STARTS IN APRIL

CLUB IN GOOD FINANCIAL CONDITION WITH 153 MEMBERS.

Chas. W. McCutchen Re-Elected to Presidency—Other Officers—Committees Named—The Course to Open April 1.

With the advent of warmer weather, interest in golf is increasing and the Park Golf Club is preparing for the season of activity now close at hand. At the annual meeting of the club, held at the Park Club house, Monday night, officers were elected and the plans for coming season formulated. There are prospects for a season equally as successful as the last.

Reports were presented for the year showing the club in a good financial condition with a balance in the treasury and 156 members of all classes. The election of trustees was held and resulted in the unanimous choice of Charles W. McCutchen, S. St. John McCutchen, Samuel Townsend, Gen. T. Rogers, Frank de L. Hyde, William R. Faber and Charles B. Morse as trustees.

A meeting of the board of trustees for organization followed the club meeting. The following officers were re-elected: President, Charles W. McCutchen; vice president, George T. Rogers; treasurer, William R. Faber; secretary, Charles B. Morse. President C. W. McCutchen announced the following committees: Golf, Samuel Townsend, chairman, S. St. John McCutchen, Charles B. Morse, Wallace M. Brown; greens, George T. Rogers, chairman, Frank de L. Hyde, Charles A. Read, William R. Faber. The members of the house committee will be announced later. Samuel Townsend, Charles B. Morse and William R. Faber were appointed as the membership committee.

It is expected that the course will be in condition to play on by April 1, although temporary greens will probably have to be used at first. The steward will be installed April 15. It is expected that George Anderson, who filled that post so acceptably last summer, will again be club steward. Some changes will be necessary to the fifth and sixth holes in order to conform with the alterations made by Mr. Hyde but the greens committee has plans under consideration that will make the course better than ever. Already the members are showing a decided interest and it is expected that the club will be more popular than ever as soon as the season starts.

ENTERS A PROTEST.

Against Granting Letters of Administration Until Dispute is Settled.

A caveat was filed with Surrogate Parrot, February 24, by Mrs. Eleanor P. Read, of this city, as widow of George B. Read, one of the Westfield disaster victims, who died intestate, protesting against the granting of letters of administration until the dispute respecting her rights and claims shall be settled by the Orphans Court.

Shortly after the Westfield disaster, a woman came to Plainfield, claiming to be the rightful wife of George B. Read. She claimed that her maiden name was Mary Alice O'Neill, that she was married to Mr. Read September 29, 1881, at the Church of the Sacred Heart, of New York, and that he left her eight years ago.

It is understood that the claims department of the Jersey Central is awaiting a settlement of the dispute before making a settlement.

Just Made Cashier.

Dr. Walter E. Probasco, son of Dr. J. B. Probasco, of East Front street, is meeting with much success in business in Chicago, where he has been living for some time past. He is engaged in a brokerage office and in recognition of his efficient services, has just been made cashier in the office. Dr. Probasco, who formerly practiced dentistry in this city, has given up that profession.

To Give Medals at Dinner.

Plans are being matured for the annual dinner of Company K which will be held in this city March 20. The place has not yet been decided upon. Captain Bell, inspector of rifle practice, of the Second Regiment, will be present and will award the medals to those who won them in the recent marksmanship contest.

Dr. Rhoades to Preach.

Rev. Dr. Rhoades, of New York, will occupy the pulpit at the First Baptist church next Sunday, when the annual offering for the American Baptist Missionary Union will be received. In the evening Dr. Rhoades will give an illustrated talk on China.

STRICKEN IN THE STREET

EDWARD J. RICHARDS, FORMERLY OF THIS CITY, DIED AT JERSEY CITY.

Was Manager of a Pharmacy There, as Well as Hospital Steward of Fourth Regiment.

Edward J. Richards, who for twelve years was a resident of Plainfield, during which time he was a drug clerk for R. J. Hiser and also proprietor of the Gem Pharmacy, corner of Liberty and West Fourth streets, died of heart disease early Saturday morning in his home, 40 Park street, Jersey City. He was hospital steward of the Fourth Regiment, National Guard, of New Jersey.

He spent Friday evening at the armory, assisting Sergt. Joel, of the hospital corps, in the physical examination of sixty recruits. He was stricken while a block from his home and was carried into the house where he died without regaining consciousness.

Mr. Richards was forty-three years old. He was born in New York City. Later he was a clerk in the pharmacy conducted by Druggist Case, of Somerville. He afterward came to Plainfield, where he made a great many friends. He leaves a wife and three daughters. Three years ago he joined the Fourth Regiment. He was manager for a pharmacy in Jersey City.

A WILD CAT KILLED HERE

JOHN ENTWISTLE TRAILED IT TO ITS LAIR WITH DOGS.

Wild Cat Fought and Fatally Injured One of the Dogs Before It Was Killed.

Although it seems almost beyond belief, a full grown wildcat was shot by a Plainfielder, last week, within 150 yards of the main thoroughfare of the city. The captor is John Entwistle, of West End avenue, who saw the animal on numerous occasions and only caught it with the aid of several good hunting dogs, one of which had to be killed afterward from the effects of the clawing it received.

Like other residents in the vicinity, Entwistle lost chickens and looking for the thief found strange tracks. Following them up at different times led him to a wild spot on the banks of Green brook, just off West Front street beyond Grant avenue, where the trail was lost.

When he saw a peculiar looking creature pass him several times while in the tangled underbrush he resolved to capture it at all cost and did so by getting the dogs, which trailed it to its lair. The little beast was ferocious and fought hard until Entwisle got a chance to inflict a fatal shot.

PAY FOR BOTH.

Local Election Officers Will Attempt to Get Pay for Both Elections.

Within a short time there will be a meeting of the members of the boards of registry and election in Plainfield, called for the purpose of considering plans for securing pay for both county and municipal elections at the November election. This matter has been under consideration for some time past and the Common Council has received many communications from the members of the board. A recent decision given in a similar case at Orange would give the members a chance to recover under the law, and the Plainfield contestants believe that now is the time to make a move in the matter.

Annual Endeavor Meeting.

The annual business meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church will be held Friday evening, at which time officers for the ensuing year will be elected and other important business considered. A full attendance of all members is requested.

Extra Entrance.

For the additional convenience of the letter-carriers, an entrance to the rear of the postoffice will soon be opened on the Madison avenue side of the Babcock building. This will allow more room through the main hallway of the building.

Necktie and Apron Social.

A necktie and apron social will be held at the home of Miss Stella Boss, of Somerset street, Thursday evening, March 19, under the auspices of the Willing Workers of Trinity Reformed church.

Appointed Chief Clerk.

J. B. Groendyke, of West End Park, has been appointed chief clerk to Superintendent of Agencies Taylor, of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, of New York.

A Dozen New Members.

Benevolent Council, No. 526, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet Friday evening when, besides transacting important business, twelve new members will be received.

—J. Harvey Doane, the Park avenue jeweler, has a telephone in his store, the number being 1342.

ELECTION IN OTHER PLACES

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1.)

treasurer, Charles Sheelen, 61; for commissioner of appeal, Burton P. Hall, 61; for justice of the peace, Charles Battelle Loomis, 61; Republican, same as Citizens; Independents, for mayor, Frank D. Warren, 37; for councilmen, three years, William B. Collins, 38, LeRoy J. Ellis, 38; for two years, Harry E. Knight, 40; for assessor, William R. Stanbery, 41; for collector, Charles Sheelen, 61; for justice of the peace, C. Battelle Loomis, 61; for commissioner of appeal, Burton P. Hall, 61. The Independent ticket won out entirely. The appropriations were the same in all tickets, as follows: Lights, $1,000; streets, $900; street sprinkling, $75; hydrants, $200; police, $600; general expenses, $400.

SOMERVILLE.

Somerville, March 11—As a result of yesterday's election, Lewis A. Thompson and the G. O. P. party met a stinging defeat in Bridgewater township. The township committee will be composed of three Democrats and two Republicans. The only Republicans elected were Harry C. Pastorius, justice of the peace, and J. C. Henry, supervisor of roads. Otherwise the Democratic ticket was elected.

F. T. Ross, Democrat, was elected assessor by a majority of 300, while Ferdinand Vanderveer, Democrat, received a majority of 275 for collector. Bernard Myer, Democrat, was elected town committeeman, while Chris. Ehni and William Harris, Republicans, were also elected as town committeemen. The vote was a light one and there was little or no excitement.

NEW MARKET.

New Market, March 11—The result of the election in New Market was as follows: George S. Bunting was elected assessor on the Republican ticket by 80 majority; for assessor, Dr. Nelson, Democrat, 51 majority; for commissioner of appeal, C. S. Boice, Republican; surveyor of the highways, A. L. and Luther Boice, Republicans; justices of the peace, J. H. Snowden and W. B. Larue, Democrats; constables, Howard Smalley and Elmer Barret, Democrats; poundmasters, John W. Bent, John Sebring and Jesse Dayton, Democrats. The appropriations were carried.

MINSTREL SHOW GREAT SUCCESS

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1.)

his face turned white. That ended the show.

It was no slight task to receive the crowd and seat it. J. Fred Wharton held dominion over the box office, H. G. Thompson and Chas. Dixon gathered in tickets at the door while George E. Firstbrook superintended the work of the ushers. His assistants were Thomas Chamberlain, William Dilks, John Duckworth, William Hanglitter, W. L. Hetfield, Jr., V. W. Nash, Jr., James Mcgregor, Herman Polich and Monro Squier. The direction of the performance was in the hands of City Judge Runyon while Will Holbert acted as coach.

DINING CAR SERVICE.

Change Made in the Management on the Pennsylvania System.

Michael Riley, who, since 1884, has been in charge of the restaurant in the Broad Street station of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Philadelphia, will on April 1, retire from this position and at the same time assume the management of the railroad dining car service of the system with headquarters at Jersey City. His jurisdiction will embrace the entire dining car service of the system, both east and west of Pittsburg; some fifty dining cars Mr. Riley was the original train news agent of the country, and established that service on the Pennsylvania many years ago, as well as the station news stand.

Changed Name of Station.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company has changed the name of Sterling Junction on the New York division to National Junction.

Death of Mrs. Gerber.

Mrs. Abram Gerber, mother of Former Surrogate J. J. Gerber, died Saturday at her home in Elizabeth, following a long illness.

Receiving New Cars.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is receiving 100 cars a day from the Pressed Steel Car Company.

WAS A REMARKABLE WOMAN

MRS. RACHEL PENFIELD HAD AN ACTIVE CAREER.

One of First Woman Publishers in the Country—An Originator of Home for Friendless.

Mrs. Rachel Penfield, widow of Edward Starr Penfield, who died last Friday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Stephen R. Struthers, of West Front street, was the last of eleven children. She was born in Newark, March 24, 1815, and up to a few years ago her life was an exceedingly active one. She was one of the originators of the idea of establishing the Home for the Friendless in New York, and for over thirty years she was children's secretary. It is believed that she was the first or one of the first women publishers in this country, being editor of the Advocate of Moral Reform, which has since been changed to the Advocate and Guardian. In this work for the friendless she travelled considerably and kept in personal touch with a great many children.

Mrs. Penfield was a sincere and devoted Christian and greatly interested in temperance work, especially along the line followed by the W. C. T. U. She was a member of the Crescent Avenue church and attended there until unable to do so by physical infirmities. She was married in 1845 and three children, two daughters and one son was born to her. The son died about a year ago. She also had nine grandchildren and one great grandchild.

The funeral services were held from the home of Mrs. Struthers Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock and were conducted by Rev. J. O. McKelvey, who is now moderator of the Session of the Crescent Avenue church. He read appropriate Scripture selections and offered prayer. There were two selections, favorite hymns of the deceased, "Jesus I My Cross Have Taken," and "Rest of My Soul," by a trio, consisting of Mrs. E. R. Myers, E. R. Stinson and A. J. Gavett, who were members of the old choir in the Crescent Avenue church. The interment took place Monday morning in Hillside cemetery.

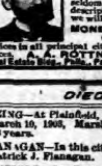
Free Lenten Organ Recitals.

William C. Carl will begin the Lenten series of free organ recitals in the First Presbyterian church, Fifth avenue and Twelfth street, New York, Friday evening, at 8:15 o'clock, assisted by Richard T. Kay, violinist. The recitals will be given on four successive Friday evenings, and are free to the public. At the first recital Mr. Carl will play a new sonata, by Alexander Guilmant, which will be heard here for the first time.

Nasal CATARRH
In all its stages there should be cleanliness.
Ely's Cream Balm
Is quickly absorbed. Gives relief at once. It opens and cleanses the nasal passages. It allays pain and inflammation, heals the sores, protects the membranes from additional colds, completely heals the diseased membrane. It restores the senses of taste and smell. A thorough treatment will cure. A dose is applied to each nostril and is painless. Sold by druggists or by mail, 50 cents. Ely's Cream Balm is the remedy you should use. Don't dry—don't use liquids or snuffs that cause sneezing. Don't make you sick. Don't produce sneezing. Large Size, 50 cents at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size, 10 cents by mail.
ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.

CERTIFICATE EXTENDING CHARTER

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
Office of Comptroller of the Currency,
Washington, D. C., February 24th, 1903.
WHEREAS, It appears from satisfactory evidence presented to the undersigned, it has been made to appear that the FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF PLAINFIELD, located in the city of Plainfield, in the County of Union, and State of New Jersey, on the 3rd day of March, 1883, all the provisions of the Act of Congress "to enact a National Banking Associations to extend their corporate existence, and for other purposes," approved July 12, 1882, as amended by the Act approved April 12, 1900.
NOW THEREFORE, I, William B. Ridgley, Comptroller of the Currency, do hereby certify that the First National Bank of Plainfield, is authorized to transact the business of banking, in Union and state of New Jersey, is authorized to have succession for the period specified in its amended articles of association, namely until the close of business on February 24, 1923.
IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF witness my hand and seal of office this twenty-fourth day of February, 1903.
WILLIAM B. RIDGLEY,
Comptroller of the Currency.
Charter No. 947.
Extension No. 226. 3 5 5

We Can Sell Your Farm,


Factory, business or Residence. No matter where it is located. We have hundreds of others. Why not put yours in? We have an original method which seldom fails. Send us description and price and we will explain how.
MONEY
on Good Mortgages.
Offices in all principal cities; highest references. CHATTERTON & CO., Real Estate Bank, Pine, Fr. Established 1882.

DIED

BAZING—At Plainfield, N. J., on Tuesday, March 10, 1903, Marshall Bazing, aged 65 years.

FLANAGAN—In this city, March 4, 1903, Patrick J. Flanagan.

PENFIELD—On Friday, March 6, 1903, Rachael P. Penfield, in her 88th year.

BURKE—At Harrisburg, Pa., on Friday, March 6, 1903, James Burke, aged 30 years.

ATKINS—At Plainfield, N. J., on Monday, March 9, 1903, Juliet, daughter of the late Joshua and Sally Atkins, in her 80th year.

Sanitary Plumbing
Brick and Portable Furnace
Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing,
Etc., Etc., Etc.
I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.
Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business at all times and in cases.
D. W. LITTELL,
No. 112 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.
Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.
A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!
My new barber shop at
143 NORTH AVE.
is now open ready for business.
All the latest appointments in the tonsorial line.
EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

CARNEY BROS.,
MADISON AVENUE,
Between Front and Second streets
Tinners,
Plumbers
Gas Fitters,
Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

DIME
Savings Institution,
Of Plainfield, N. J.,
Is now receiving deposits with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.
J. FRANK HUBBARD, President.
GEO. W. ROCKFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.
Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

Guaranteed Salary $900 YEARLY.
Men and women of good address to represent us, come to travel appointed, among others for local work looking after our interests. $900 salary guaranteed yearly; extra commissions and expenses, rapid advancement, old established house. Spare or permanent; position; permanent; position to become and future. Work; brilliant lines. Write at once.
STAFFORD PRESS,
23 Church St., New Haven, Conn

W. B. CODINGTON,
Counsellor-at-Law
Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corner of Park avenue and Second street.

ALBERT HEDDEN
Livery & Boarding Stables
FOURTH ST.,
between Watchung and Park avenues.
First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

Wm. A. Woodruff,
Fire and Life
INSURANCE AGENT,
OFFICE,
corner Front St. and Park Avenue,
Plainfield, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale or Exchange
Money to loan on Approved Security

THE TWO VERDICTS COMPARED

Findings of Grand Jury and Coroner's Jury As to the Responsibility For the Westfield Disaster.

HOW THE JURIES AGREED AND HOW THEY DIFFERED IN VERDICTS.

The following is the presentment of the Grand Jury brought in Wednesday morning, March 4:

Union County, ss:

The grand inquest of the State of New Jersey in and for the County of Union,

Present, that in accordance with instructions received from his honor, Judge Vail, they have made careful investigation relative to the disastrous railroad wreck which occurred on the Central Railroad near Westfield in this county, on the evening of January 27, 1903.

In order to get all the facts attainable, the Grand Jury has called to appear before it and has interrogated railroad officials, railroad engineers, operatives and private citizens and from all the evidence adduced, the Grand Jury has arrived at the following conclusions:

1. Engineer Davis of Engine No. 27 is primarily responsible for the railroad wreck, in that he ran his train past five danger signals set against him.

2. That the reason for his doing so was that the signals were obscured from his view by steam escaping from either a faulty injector or a leaking steam chest, either or both of which became out of order between Jersey City and Elizabeth.

3. That after the cab of the engine became so enveloped with steam that signals were invisible to the engineer, he should have shut off steam or stopped his engine until he could have found out whether or not the track ahead of him was clear.

* * *

We do not think that the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey used sufficient precautions to avert the disaster. Its train despatcher knew before the train left Jersey City that an important change was to be made in the running of the trains, and that the Easton local was not to be sidetracked at Cranford as was usually done, but was to be continued on the main track ahead of the fast Philadelphia train. This being known in advance, Engineer Davis of the Philadelphia train, was not informed before leaving Jersey City of the change in the regular schedule of operating the trains.

4. The Grand Jury feel that while Engineer Davis is the one person directly responsible for the collision, the company employing him, the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company and the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, upon whose tracks the disaster occurred, should not escape some degree of censure.

First. For the laxity that appears to exist in both railroads in the running condition of the engines.

Second. In the use by the Central Railroad Company of passenger cars of ancient make and such weak construction as to be incapable of resistance in case of collision, and which are heated with stoves.

Third. That when it was known to the proper authorities of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad that Engine No. 27 (being the engine which ran into the Easton local train) had a leaky steam chest and was unfit for high speed, this engine was allowed to be put on a high speed train, not only for the emergency run from Trenton to Jersey City, but also for the return trip from Jersey City to Philadelphia.

The Grand Jury, after patient investigation, respectfully submit these their conclusions.

N. C. J. English,
Prosecutor of Pleas.

Mrs. Samuel Dreier, of West Front street, is still detained as her room, there being no improvement in her condition.

Mrs. W. B. Heidloff, of Dorr street, is convalescing from an attack of grip.

It Cures Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Croup, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Asthma. A certain cure for Consumption in first stages. Find a sure relief in advanced cases. Use it often. Don't wait. Don't delay. Don't suffer unnecessarily. Sold by dealers everywhere. Large bottles 25 cents and 50 cents.

The following are extracts from the evrdict of the coroner's inquest, brought in February 14:

From the evidence brought out at the inquest, we believe that this collision was caused by the failure of the engineer, James N. Davis, of engine No. 27, A. C. R. R., operated by the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, drawing train No. 631, to observe the following signals displayed to warn him of approaching danger:

First. The red lamp set on the ground at Cranford, which notified him to stop for orders.

Second. The distance or cautionary block signal, a green light just west of the Westfield station, which gave warning that the block ahead was occupied.

Third. A red lantern swung back and forth across the track by the flagman at the Broad street crossing, Westfield, 874 feet from the last mentioned block signal.

Fourth. A red lantern swung by the rear brakeman of train No. 13; (this man claims that he was within about thirty yards of the road crossing when train No. 631 passed him,) and finally the home block signal, showing red and green lights, which indicated that he must come to a full stop, as the track ahead was occupied. This signal is located 2,136 feet from the warning signal. Although, from the evidence, we cannot find that the Railroad Company, or any of the officials, can be held criminally responsible, there are certain mitigating circumstances in regard to the action of the engineer which should be taken into consideration. * * *

Although this engine appears to have been in good condition on January 27, 1903, an examination of the work books of the company shows that it was in the shop between January 7 and 17, 1903, for the repair of a crack in the steam chest and for various minor repairs.

That after leaving the shop the engine was reported for repairs to piston packing, etc., several times, and, although there is no report against the engine in regard to leaking steam before January 17, there is no doubt that there was an unusual amount of steam escaping from some part of the engine during the run from Jersey City to Westfield the night of the accident. This escaping steam, the engineer claims in his ante-mortem statement, obscured his vision so that he could not see the signals without shutting off steam. As the air was heavy, this steam settling around the engine was probably the cause of his not seeing the train order signal at Cranford, consisting of a red lantern placed on the ground, thus failing to receive the warning from the train despatcher that train No. 13 was on the track ahead. * * * *

We make this lengthy explanation to show that, although the engineer, James N. Davis, with his great responsibility in caring for the lives under his charge, failed in his duty in not keeping a lookout for the signals, the instances above narrated were against him; namely, the escaping steam, train No. 13 on an unusual track and an accident to No. 13 which caused it to make an unusual stop. * * * *

After a thorough examination, we believe the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, and the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, to be free from any criminal responsibility for the accident above referred to.

We have carefully considered measures that should be taken to guard against the repetition of accidents of this kind, and would suggest close study of the following questions:

Is the traffic of this railroad greater than can be safely handled, considering the very large amount of high speed service required; if so, what is the remedy?

Should not all stoves be prohibited, and all passenger cars be heated by steam from the locomotive?

Should not the headlights on engines be electric or something safer than a lamp containing a large quantity of oil, which, in cases of accident, is liable to cause fire?

Should railroads be required to provide another man in the cab, whose sole duty it would be to look out for signals?

Should not a stricter observance of the rules relating to signals be insisted upon by the railroad officials, this especially in regard to distance or green signals?

While there is no evidence before us that these signals are not regularly observed on the railroads concerned in this collision, there is a general feeling that a laxity prevails in this matter all over the country.

Should not the railroads adopt, in connection with their automatic visual signals, some one of the automatic safety devices that are now in the market which actually shut off the steam, apply the brakes and stop the train if the track is blocked or out of order?

To strive at a correct decision in these matters, which require a great deal of serious and expert study, we suggest that the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, now in session, pass a bill providing for a State Railroad Commission, to be appointed by the Governor, composed mainly of disinterested experts or practical railroad men, who shall investigate the above questions, and others of equal importance which may be brought to their attention.

ROAD TO WATCHUNG SPRING

THE TRUCKS NOW TRAVEL HUB DEEP IN THE MUD.

The Improvements Planned by the Watchung Spring Water Company This Year.

Many important changes will shortly be made as the water bottling works of the Watchung Spring Water Company in order to facilitate handling the rush of business which has been experienced by the company during the past few months. This announcement was made at the annual meeting of the directors and stockholders which was held Tuesday evening.

Recently the company has supplied coolers and its spring water to the State House and other buildings at Trenton.

The improvements which are contemplated are extensive. At present, the roadway is some distance from the bottling station in the mountains and some times it is necessary to drive the teams hub deep from the main road up to the spring station. One of the improvements contemplated is to lay a macadam road to the bottling works or to remove the works from the present site to a location near the road and to pipe from the spring to the proposed site of the works. Machinery will also be installed to facilitate the filling of retainers and for carbonating purposes.

It was reported at the meeting that agencies have been opened in Jersey City, New York, Brooklyn, Morristown, Trenton, Philadelphia, Easton, Allentown and Hoboken.

LENTEN TALKS.

Arranged by Executive Committee of the City Union of King's Daughters.

The executive committee of the City Union of King's Daughters was held Thursday at the Y. M. C. A., when a number of matters of importance were discussed.

It was decided to have several Lenten talks during the next few weeks at the homes of the different members. These talks will be given by Mrs. Isabella Charles Davis, corresponding secretary of the International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons, who is spending the winter in this city. The first talk will be given at the home of Mrs. Frederick G. Mead on East Front street, Tuesday, March 17. The dates for the other talks will be announced later. The talks will be of a spiritual character, tending to lead the members into a deeper consciousness of their personal duty.

The president, Miss Lillian A. Force, appointed Mrs. A. V. D. Honeyman, Miss Susie Rafferty and Miss Kathryn Glen a nominating committee to select officers to be elected at the semi-annual meeting in May.

DRUM CORPS BALL.

Many Guests Spent a Pleasant Evening at Dance and Reception of Independent Drum Corps.

The initial reception and ball of the Independent Fife and Drum Corps, held in Saengerbund Hall, Friday evening, was a success from every point of view.

Among the many out-of-town guests who were present were delegations from the Union Pleasure Club and the Liberty Fife and Drum Corps, of Elizabeth. The grand march was led by Drum Major John Shepherd, of the latter, and Miss Annie Frank, of Elizabeth.

The committee of arrangements was as follows: Samuel G. Terry, chairman; Horace G. Adams, secretary; J. Henry Adams, treasurer; J. V. Beckman and Frank L. Manchester. The reception committee consisted of J. V. Beckman, M. H. Brokaw, F. L. Manchester and J. H. Adams. Horace G. Adams and Charles Pawson acted as floor managers.

Mrs. Laura Coyle, of Washington, N. J., and Mrs. F. M. Chittenden, of Flemington, have been after a very pleasant visit with P. M. VanOlief, of Watchung avenue.

Safe Sweetness.

A naval officer writing from the Philippines tells of an interesting visit he made to the town of Jolo, where he was introduced to several of the wives of the sultan of Sulu, who are domiciled at that place. The Army and Navy Journal has had their names translated into English. Here they are:

"Scent of Lilies."
"Heart's Desire."
"Honey of Life."
"Dancing Sunbeam."
"Blush of Morning."
"Oasis in the Desert."
"Moon Upon the Waters."
"Song of the Nightingales."
"Whisper of the West Winds."
"Rose in Bloom."

The officer intimated that there were others, but did not give their names.—N. Y. Times.

Little Freddie Knew.

The class in reading in a Brooklyn school had come to the phrase "a slender birch tree," and the teacher, not quite sure that the children fully comprehended the meaning of "slender," sought to clear it from its familiar words. "You all know what 'stout' means, do you not?" she asked. "Yes'm." "Have you ever seen a stout woman?" "Oh, yes'm; Mrs. Brown is very stout," said one girl. "Right," said the teacher. "Now, look at me! I am not stout, am I?" "No'm," came the chorus of voices. "Well, if I am not stout, what am I?" A perplexed look overspread the faces. Finally one little fellow ventured to say, "Skinny, ma'am." "Well Freddie, do you think I'm stout?" "No'm." "Well, then, what would you call me?" "Skinny."—N. Y. Tribune.

A True Billville Incident.

The mean man had taken all the effects of the old couple to satisfy the mortgage. In the back of his buggy he had tied the old man's sway three hogs and 20 chickens, while the only cow they possessed was following at a rope's end, hitched behind the vehicle. Touched by the tears of the woman, the mean man stopped, and gazing thoughtfully on the chickens, handed back a pair of fat pullets, with the remark: "Sister Jinkins, I hain't got the heart to leave you with nuthin' 'tall. To-morrer'll be Sunday. Take these here pullets an' cook 'em brown in a hurry, an' I'll drive by and take dinner with you, an' have a word o' prayer, an' ax the good Lord to temper the wind to the shorn lamb!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Invisible Artillery.

The experiment has been made at Aldershot of painting guns and limbers with the three primary colors, red, blue and yellow, as it has been found that guns thus painted harmonize with any kind of background so well that at a short distance they are difficult to locate. Six guns so painted were placed on the Fox hills, and the artillery officers at Aldershot were invited to try to locate them at about 3,000 yards with field glasses, but although the officers knew the direction, none was able to locate them all. Some horse artillery sent forward to engage the guns advanced to within 1,000 yards before they located them. The painting on the guns is seen, at close quarters to be it daubs and streaks.—London Times.

Curious Royal Custom.

When any Spanish sovereign dies the body is at once submitted to the process of fossilization, nor can it be placed in the royal Pantheon until the body has been absolutely turned into stone. Curiously enough, the period required for fossilization varies considerably. Some royal bodies have become solidified in a very short period, while others have taken years before the fossilization took place. It took exactly 12 years to convert the body of the father of the present young king of Spain into stone.—Chicago Chronicle.

The Boy Felt Safe.

A Brooklyn school-teacher whose scene of labor is not on the "aristocratic Park Slope," recently told one of his boy pupils that he was insubordinate, that he must behave.

"If you do not do better," said the teacher, "I shall go see your father."

"Huh," said the boy, who was only three feet high, "yer will have to take a pick an' shovel to see him. He's dead."—N. Y. Times.

Couldn't Have Been.

Howes—I saw your Uncle Harry riding past in his automobile yesterday. At least I supposed it was he. He has an auto, hasn't he?

Barnes—Yes, but if he were riding past it couldn't have been Uncle Harry. Had it been he, he would have been under the machine tinkering at the machinery.—Boston Transcript.

Force of Habit.

Stubb—There is something funny about this old plug. He stops at every pump and yet he doesn't want to drink.

Penn—Oh, that's easily explained. He used to belong to a milkman.—Chicago Daily News.

His Experience.

Youngsport—I tell you, old boy, it takes a baby to brighten up a house.

Oldwed—That's right. When there's a baby in the house the gas meter works overtime.—Chicago Daily News.

Gypsies' Cure for Rheumatism.

The gypsies have an odd cure for rheumatism. They carry a good-sized piece of brimstone in the pocket, and warrant it to cure the worst cases.—N. Y. Sun.

King Edward a Mohawk Chief.

When King Edward as prince of Wales visited Canada in 1860, he was created a chief of the Mohawk Indians.—N. Y. Sun.

Throwing Power of Monkeys.

An explanation of the origin of stories which attribute to monkeys the power of throwing stones may be found in the account of their habits given by trained and competent observers. Sir James Brooke says, with reference to the orangs, that he never observed the slightest attempt at defense, and that the wood which sometimes rattled about his ears was broken by their weight, "and not thrown, as some persons represent." Mr. Wallace, also talking of the orang, declares that he has seen him throw down branches when pursued. "It is true, he does not throw them at a person, but casts them down vertically; for it is evident that a bough cannot be thrown to any distance from the top of a lofty tree. In one case a female miss. on a durian tree, kept up for at least ten minutes a continuous shower of branches and of the heavy spired fruits, as large as 32-pounders, which most effectually kept us clear of the tree she was on. She could be seen breaking them off and throwing them down with every appearance of rage, uttering at intervals a loud, pumping grunt, and evidently meaning mischief."—London Chronicle.

Hebridean Justice.

When King Edward landed at Portree, in the Hebrides, the only person in sight was the local policeman, with whom the majesty entered into conversation. A correspondent, writing about the peculiar methods of these guardians of hebridean law and order, says: "Some years ago it transpired that a constable who had a prisoner in custody waiting for the next steamboat to take him to the sheriff followed a singular plan. Knowing that his prisoner could not very well escape from the island by swimming, he was in the habit of letting the man free of a morning, with injunctions to fish for his subsistence and to collect enough wreckage to cook it. The penalty, should the culprit abuse his parole, was to look him out at night. This, in the stormy times of the year, was no slight threat, as the policeman well knew; and no liberty was taken with him by any prisoner in his charge."—London Chronicle.

How Snakes Spend the Winter.

The snakes are retiring for the winter now, but they make little preparation for their long sleep. They simply crawl into holes in the ground, fissures in rocks or beneath the roots of trees, and there remain in a torpid condition until the warmth of spring awakens them. Sometimes a lot of them gather in a hole some distance from the surface of the ground, roll themselves into one large ball and thus pass the winter. Such a ball is sometimes composed of hundreds of snakes so closely interwoven as to be quite difficult to separate.—Woman's Home Companion.

Uncolonial Dames.

Mrs. Pincey—I don't see how you can manage to go to church three times on Sunday.

Mrs. Bland—I do it simply by doing no work of any kind on the Sabbath. I think it positively wicked for women to stay home and cook dinners for their husbands on Sunday.

"I suppose, then, you have a cold lunch at noon?"

"Oh, dear, no. I always take dinner at Mr. Bland's since he's got a splendid cook, and she always tries to do her best on Sundays."—Boston Transcript.

Poor Memory.

Towne—Rather absent-minded, isn't he?

Browne—Extremely so. Why, the other night when he got home he knew there was something he wanted to do, but he couldn't remember what it was until he had sat up over an hour trying to think.

"And did he finally remember it?"

"Yes, he discovered that he had wanted to go to bed early."—Philadelphia Press.

Clergyman's Slip of the Tongue.

A clergyman hurriedly entered a railway station to pursue a journey, and, hearing the bells ringing to announce the departure of the train, hastily handed his bag and a rug to a porter near by. He rushed to get his ticket and then ran on to the platform.

"Any luggage, sir?" inquired the guard.

"Only a bug and a rag," breathlessly replied the clergyman.—N. Y. Times.

Dormant.

Mrs. Mrlaprop—He's got to be a real novel writer all of a sudden.

Mrs. McCall—Yes; and it's quite surprising that he should never have displayed his talent until so late in life.

"Yes; it's been lying doormat all this time."—Philadelphia Press.

An Awful Jolt.

Softleigh—Yes—aw—got a beastly cold in me head, dochcher know. What would you—aw—advise me to do foh it?

Miss— Cutting—Oh, let it alone; it will soon die of ennui.—Chicago Daily News.

Irishmen in London.

It is said that there are more Irishmen in London than there are in Dublin, more Scotchmen than in Edinburgh, that half of Soho is French, and the whole of Saffron hill Italian.—N. Y. Sun.

Maligned.

"Many a girl," said the large-waisted philosopher, "who can iron a shirt-waist and make fudge, thinks that she is amply qualified to be mistress of an establishment."—Indianapolis News.

GOVERNOR SIGNS ACT; WESTFIELD'S A TOWN

Incorporates a Portion of Westfield Township As the Town of Westfield.

THE NEW GOVERNMENT

ELECTION WILL BE HELD IN APRIL TO CHOOSE TOWN OFFICIALS.

Will be Governed by Council With Councilman-at-Large as Virtual Mayor—An Increase to the Board of Freeholders.

Governor Murphy signed March 4, the measure known as Senate Bill No. 48, making Westfield a town. It legislates all the old officials out of office and an entirely new set will have to be chosen. The act of actual incorporation was introduced by Senator Cross, of Elizabeth, when the session opened and was passed by the Senate Monday night without opposition, was sent to the House and passed and was made a law yesterday morning.

In the future, instead of three township committeemen elected at large the governing body will consist of six or eight councilmen elected by wards and a councilman-at-large, who will be the presiding officer and virtually mayor of the town. The number of councilmen will depend upon whether the town is divided into three or four wards. The regular spring election which was to have taken place next week will be postponed until April when a score of officials will have to be elected instead of six.

Under the new arrangement the remnant of Westfield township, consisting of about 500 people, will have one member of the Board of Freeholders, and the new town will have two; so that the town of Westfield with 5,000 population will have three freeholders while Plainfield, with almost four times that number, has but two. Westfield will have a larger representation in the Board of Freeholders than any other community of larger population in the county.

NEW BOOKS.

Some of Those Added to Library During February.

The following is a selected list of books added to the Public Library during the month of February:

Bass, F., Stories of pioneer life.

Carove, F. W., Story without an end.

Crawford, F. M. Cecilia.

Curtis, G. W., From the easy chair.

Eckstorm, F. H., Bird book.

Firth, E. M., Stories of old Greece.

Green, Mrs. A. S., Town life in the 15th century.

Hamerton, P. G., Chapters on animal life.

Hare, A. J. C., Biographical sketches.

Harvey, C. B., Genealogical hist. of Hudson and Bergen co., N. J.

Hay, John, Castilian days.

Jordan, D. S., True tales of birds and beasts.

Lane, E. W., Manners and customs of modern Egyptians.

Liszt, Franz, Letters.

Livingston, W. F., Israel Putnam.

Molloy, J. F., Most gorgeous Lady Blessington.

Welsh, C., ed., Mother Goose melodies.

Motley, J. L., Siege of Leyden.

Navarro, M. A., Few memories.

N. J. House of repr., Journal and votes, Nov. 10, 1772.

N. J. Legislature, Journal of governor and council, Dec. 1, 1836.

N. J., Provincial Cong., Minutes.

Norris, Frank, The pit.

O'Shea, M. V., ed., Eyes and no eyes.

O'Shea, M. V., ed., Six nursery classics.

Perrault, C., Tales from Mother Goose.

Raspe, R. E., Travels of Baron Munchausen.

Shaw, W. H., History of Essex and Hudson co., N. J.

Starr, Fred, American Indians.

Starr, Fred, Strange peoples.

Timbs, John, Doctors and patients.

Wickes, Stephen, History of the Oranges, Essex co., N. J.

Walford, L. B., Twelve English authoresses.

Warren H. P. ed. Stories from English history.

Wright J. M. Seaside and wayside.

Vagaries of a Cold.

You can never be quite sure where a cold is going to hit you. In the fall and winter it may settle in the bowels, producing severe pain. Do not be alarmed nor torment yourself with fears of appendicitis. At the first sign of a cramp take Perry Davis' Painkiller in warm, sweetened water and relief comes at once. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'. 25 and 50 cents.

Mrs. Sarah H. Stone, of Washington, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Yardley Brown, of Summit avenue, has returned home.

ENGINES MEET IN THE FOG

Three Men Injured in Head-On Collision on Port Reading Road Thursday.

NEAR NEW DURHAM

An Engine, Drawing a West Bound Empty Coal Train, Ran Into the Waiting Observation Engine, Carrying Paymaster—Didn't See Order Board in Fog.

Failure to see signals in the dense fog caused a headon collision on the Port Reading Railroad near New Durham Thursday morning at 9:50. A Philadelphia and Reading engine, No. 902, drawing a train of forty empty coal cars, collided with the Philadelphia and Reading observation engine No. 100, bearing the paymaster and his clerks to Port Reading to pay off employes. Three men on the observation engine were injured, one seriously. Neither of the locomotives left the track but the sudden applications of the air brakes heaped up eight of the empty coal cars. The injured are:

COOK, John J., of Philadelphia, chief night despatcher of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad; cut about head and back injured, condition serious, taken home.

HOAG, J. R., of Philadelphia, train despatcher of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, cut about head.

DEAL, Frank, of Philadelphia, train despatcher of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, cut about head.

Superintendent C. A. Beach, of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, was on the observation engine with seven others, clerks from the Philadelphia office of the Reading acting as paymasters and assistants. It was very foggy during the morning. At New Durham close by the farm house of Alex. Randolph, there is a siding. The observation engine had orders to wait there and allow a west bound extra coal train to take the siding. There was a signal order board at this point and it was set against the coal train. The fog was so dense that Engineer Henry, of Philadelphia, in charge of engine 902, could not see the signal. He was moving slowly. Failing to stop to take the switch to the siding, he crashed into the inspection engine which was standing still. The pilot of the inspection engine was wrecked and the occupants tossed about the compartment but the collision was not severe enough to derail either locomotives.

Engineer Henry applied the air brakes when the other engine loomed up in the fog. The sudden stopping of the front of the train caused the long train to buckle up in the centre and eight cars were heaped about the track, one falling on the order board and demolishing it.

The injured men were the occupants of the observation engine. Chief Night Despatcher John Cook, of Philadelphia, was thrown against the front window and had his head badly cut by glass. He was also injured about the back. His condition is serious. He was subsequently taken home in a special coach.

The other occupants of the observation engine were tossed about and despatches from Cook and Hoag both had their heads cut by broken glass. Superintendent Beach escaped with only a shaking up. The engineer of the observation engine was Henry Beidler, of Philadelphia.

Bound Brook was notified and Dr. Wilde, of that place, was taken to the scene of the wreck on an engine. He dressed the injuries of the three men. Dr. W. E. Browning, of Plainfield, was notified by telephone from South Plainfield and reached the scene. He was too late to give any assistance.

The wrecking train reached the wreck at 11:30 and began the work of clearing the tracks at once. The Port Reading Railroad is a single track coal road running from Port Reading Junction, a mile west of Bound Brook, to the Port Reading coal yards. It is owned by the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad.

The Stomach Is the Man.

A weak stomach weakens the man, because it cannot transform the food he eats into nourishment. Health and strength cannot be restored to any sick man or weak woman without first restoring health and strength to the stomach. A weak stomach cannot digest enough food to feed the tissues and revive the tired and run down limbs and organs of the body. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cleanses, purifies, sweetens and strengthens the glands and membranes of the stomach, and cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles. L. W. Randolph

SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORK REVIEWED FOR YEAR

At Annual Meeting of Sunday-School of First Baptist Church Last Thursday.

EXCELLENT CONDITION

REPORTS FOR THE YEAR WERE PRESENTED GIVING INTERESTING FACTS.

Election of Officers Was Held and George H. Batchelor Was Chosen Superintendent—The Other Officers—Substance of Reports.

Matters chiefly of a routine character were transacted at the annual business meeting of the First Baptist church Sunday-school held Thursday night in the church. Superintendent George H. Batchelor occupied the chair and the secretary, C. B. Rittenhouse, was in his place.

After the devotional exercises, the chairman of the missionary committee, C. W. McCutchen, presented the report for the committee. This showed a balance at last report of $72.62, and collections during the year of $510.42. The disbursements were $377, leaving a balance of $133.42.

Miss Ida Yerkes, chairman of the benevolent committee, reported a balance of $9.44 on the payment of bills. R. F. Shreve, librarian, submitted a brief report in which he stated that the library is in need of new books, as less than 100 members made use of the library during last year. This is due to the fact that nearly all of the books have been read. G. A. Chapman, as chairman of the finance committee, reported that the envelope system for the school introduced last year had thus far been very successful, increasing the receipts about 25 per cent.

Frank W. Jones, treasurer, showed a total balance of $176.61 at last report. The disbursements during the year amounted to $554.39, leaving a balance of $4.74 and all bills paid.

Miss Laura J. Runyon, home department superintendent and Sunday-school visitor, presented an interesting report. It showed the present membership of the home department to be 112 and the collections for the year, $62.92. Forty-six members studied the lesson every Sunday during the year.

C. W. McCutchen, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the names of the following persons for election and the choice was unanimous: Superintendent, George H. Batchelor; secretary, C. B. Rittenhouse; treasurer, Samuel Case; librarian, Benjamin J. Shreve.

Mr. Jones, who has served as treasurer for seven years, asked to be relieved and his request was granted reluctantly. At the suggestion of N. Douglass Drake, the superintendent was empowered to appoint an assistant to help Mr. Shreve in the library.

Under new business the resignation of Miss Laura J. Runyon, as superintendent of the home department and Sunday-school visitor, was received. Miss Runyon was prevailed upon to continue in her position for awhile.

In the absence of M. C. Dobbins, superintendent of the Ms. Olive Baptist church Sunday-school, the secretary, Raymond Carver, presented the report for the school. It was as follows: Officers and teachers, 11; adult scholars, 92; intermediate, 56; primary, 56; total, 215; average attendance since last Easter, 91; largest attendance, 151; smallest, 28; balance in treasury at last report, $24.77; receipts, $84.64; disbursements, $85.90; present balance, $23.31. The report also stated that since the last meeting a library with 173 books therein was purchased at a cost of $49.64. Of this amount the First Baptist church Sunday-school contributed $15. M. C. Dobbins was unanimously re-elected superintendent and Raymond Carver secretary, treasurer and librarian.

Daniel R. Longfellow gave notice that at the May meeting he would propose an amendment to the by-laws to have the summer sessions this year continue the same as last year. It was unanimously decided to have an excursion next summer and the superintendent was empowered to appoint a committee to secure a date and take charge of the outing.

In response to a request from Miss Edith Cairns, superintendent of the intermediate department, the name of the department was changed to junior department so as to conform with similar departments in other schools. It is the plan of those in charge of the younger scholars to work toward a graded school, that is have scholars from 3 to 6 years of age in the primary department, from 6 to 12 years in the junior department, and from 13 to 16 years in the intermediate department, when such a department is established.

Mrs. Gustav Scherupp as been entertaining friends from Newark for a few days.

POLICEMAN LAID AT REST

FUNERAL OF PATRICK J. FLANAGAN HELD FRIDAY MORNING.

Casket Bore by Six Policeman—City's Force Turned Out for Services at St. Mary's Church.

Plainfield's regular police force turned out almost in its entirety at the funeral of the late Patrolman Patrick J. Flanagan, which was held from St. Mary's church, Friday morning. Six brother officers acted as pall bearers and a platoon of sixteen patrolmen in charge of Chief Kiely formed as an escort to the funeral cortege. The edifice was filled with other relatives and friends.

Rev. Father Egan was in charge and conducted a solemn requiem mass. There was special singing by the regular choir and the flowers were especially numerous. Among the tributes was a handsome pillow from the police officers. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

The casket was borne by Roundsman John Flynn, and Patrolmen James Saunders, Thomas McCue, Martin Vanderweg, James Totten and Nicholas Myers.

DR. HURLBUT CALLED.

Former Plainfielder Asked to Remain in Morristown for Third Year.

Rev. Dr. Jesse L. Hurlbut, formerly pastor of the First M. E. church, and now completing his second year as pastor of the M. E. church at Morristown, has been given a call to serve a third year in Morristown. In extending the call, Dr. Hurlbut's people express much pleasure and gratification over his work in the past.

During his pastorate in Morristown, Dr. Hurlbut has accomplished considerable. He found the church in debt and that he has cleared away. Many little differences in the church he succeeded in harmonizing and his strong preaching has increased the membership of the church, as well as the attendance at all of the services. The appointment will be made at the annual conference in April.

Installing New Towers.

The work of installing new and improved signal towers on the New Jersey Central, in this city, is gradually nearing completion. The towers are of iron and the signal arms are a little different from the old style in that the end is more of a fan shape and possibly a little more easily seen, either close by or from a distance. Three of these towers are being installed on the road in this city.

LITTLE FOLK WERE HOSTS

THE JUNIOR ENDEAVORERS OF TRINITY CHURCH GAVE AN ENTERTAINMENT.

Programme Consisted of Recitations, Vocal and Instrumental Music—Those Who Took Part.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church entertained its friends Thursday after noon, when a programme of recitations, vocal and instrumental music was given in a clever manner by the young folks in the Sunday-school room of the church. Miss Ida Tier, as president of the society, took charge.

There were recitations by Russell Hoagland, Miss Mildred Priemer, Miss Adelaide Cole, Miss Beulah Van Winkle, Edson Day, Miss Elsie Tier, Miss Ethel Vail, Miss Helen Woolley and Ralph Martin. A feature was the first appearance of Miss Beatrice Tier, who sang two popular selections. There were also piano solos by Miss Edna Cole, Miss Emily Remson and Miss Elsie Donavan.

After the rendition of the programme, a collection was taken and this together with the proceeds from the sale of fudge, which was in charge of the Misses Elsie and Myra Donavan, will be used for both home and foreign missions. The social committee having charge of the serving of cocoa and cake after the entertainment consisted of Miss Ida Tier, Miss Bessie Beighton, Miss Louella Day, Miss Edna Force, Miss Delia Dufford, Miss Ethel Lorton, Fred Smith, Jr., and Christopher Mobus.

The Christian Endeavor Society colors were used to decorate the room, crepe streamers and shades for the electric lights being prettily arranged about the room.

Trust Those Who Have Tried.

I suffered from catarrh of the worst kind and never hoped for cure, but Ely's Cream Balm seems to do even that.—Oscar Ostrom, 45 Warren Ave., Chicago, Ill.

I suffered from catarrh; it got so bad I could not work; I used Ely's Cream Balm and am entirely well.—A. C. Clarke, 341 Shawmut Ave., Boston, Mass.

The Balm does not irritate or cause sneezing. Sold by druggists at 50 cts., or mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., New York.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 15, "The Young Christian's Pleasures; the Resurrection of Body, Mind and Soul"—Text, 1 Cor. vi, 19; x, 31-33.

"Whatsoever ye do do all to the glory of God."

"The Young Christian's Standing Ground" is the general topic for the present month. We have already considered our position on the temperance question and on the proper use of the Sabbath.

The present week brings us a topic of broad application which deserves careful thought. The subject is too often narrowed to a mere question of amusements, proper and improper, and the mode of treatment is as inadequate and profitless as can well be made. An excellent example is set us in this matter by the Young Men's Christian association. Its emblem is a triangle of which the sides represent the threefold nature of man in body, mind and soul. Its members endeavor in their work to secure harmonious development of each.

Each part of our makeup is so related to all others that no one can be built up without benefit to all others, and, on the other hand, no one can be dwarfed or stunted without detriment to the others. "A sound mind and spirit in a sound body" is the goal for which we should each one strive. Limitations and hindrances will be met in many ways, but the mark should be kept clearly in view to develop in harmony and as far as possible all parts of our being. Due regard must be had to the place each part occupies in the scheme of the whole.

Recreation should never be confounded with mere amusement. It may be fun or it may be downright hard work. Its test is not in the pleasure it gives at the time, but in the new vigor and refreshment gained. The word gives the right clew to the end we should aim to reach. We must play to live. Our energies are exhausted. We need new power to become untired. This can be done oftentimes by diverting attention, by considering different lines of thought than those we have been following, by taking up some form of exercise unlike what we have been occupied with. Use a different set of muscles; think of another subject; arouse feeling on other interests. This will recreate us; it will refresh us. We become rested, new in energy, and ready to live again.

God's glory is never enhanced by crippling a part of our nature. Spirit cannot be emancipated by cramping the body or dwarfing the mind, nor can any recreation come from dissipating the finer, spiritual and moral of all powers, in order that all faculties may cooperate for highest development of each and all, is our duty.

There is no eminence in piety indicated by denouncing indiscriminately all amusements, nor is it a sign of wisdom to indiscriminately commend all the popular forms of entertainment.

Earnest and clear eyed young people are fast coming to choose the best things, the most helpful in each department and to let alone whatever merely serves to entertain and does not leave permanent betterment of body, mind or soul.

Whatever does most good is best and should be used.

A Soldier of Christ.

The soldier does not expect always to march in dress parade. Doubtless such military displays are occasions of excitation, but it is not what men become soldiers for. The fatiguing march, the exposure, the deprivation, the terrible battle, with wounds and death momentarily threatening, are the services for which he has enlisted. He who endures these is a good soldier. A good soldier of Christ must be able to endure hardness and must expect it. Paul learned how to suffer, and we account him a hero because he did not murmur nor charge God foolishly nor abate one jot of his faith. His faith was steadfast; trial did not weaken or alter it. His emotions were changeable, but his faith was fixed, and he went through all his sufferings in a spirit of triumph because his faith was so strong.—New York Independent.

Our Duty.

This truth comes to us more and more the longer that we live—that on what field or in what uniform or with what aims we do our duty matters very little, or even what our duty is, great or small, splendid or obscure. Only to find our duty certainly, and somewhere, somehow, do it faithfully, makes us good, strong, happy and useful men and tunes our lives into some feeble echo of the life of God.—Phillips Brooks.

Character.

Character is always and finally the supreme power in human affairs. What is character? It is the stamp of truth, power and proportion made by the hand of God upon mortal clay. Christ alone was the perfect character, stamp or image of that God who is not only perfection, but omnipotence.—Southern Missioner.

Two Good Rules.

There are two good rules which ought to be written on every heart—never to believe anything bad about anybody unless you positively know it to be true; never to tell even that unless you feel that it is absolutely necessary and that God is listening while you tell it.—Dr. Henry Van Dyke.

A Prayer.

If there be some weaker one,
Give me strength to help him on;
If a blinder soul there be,
Let me guide him nearer Thee.
Make my mortal dreams come true
With the best I fain would do;
Clothe with life the weak intent;
Let me be the thing I meant.
—J. G. Whittier.

WORK OF M'ALL AUXILIARY

AS OUTLINED IN THE REPORT OF THE SECRETARY.

Full Text of Report of Mrs. Chas. S. Lee, Secretary of the Local Auxiliary.

The annual report of the McAll Auxiliary for the past year, as prepared by the secretary, Mrs. Charles S. Lee, gives a clear and concise idea of the work accomplished by this worthy organization in this city. The report follows:

The seventeenth year of the McAll Auxiliary of Plainfield has been on the whole satisfactory. The number of subscribers is 310, with one new life member. The total contributions this year are $1,500.82, with $100 given to general fund. The amount of contributions sent to Limoges is $683. A legacy of $500 from the Miss Rooms estate yields $30 a year after the first year.

Five delegates attended the New Jersey State meeting at New Brunswick and reported and discussed much that was new and interesting.

The memorial or anniversary of Dr. McAll's initial meeting was held in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church on January 17 and was addressed by Mrs. Haines, president of the McAll Auxiliary of Elizabeth, also by Mrs. Kelley, of the same place. Numerous visitors were present and much interest was aroused.

At Limoges Mr. Grenig formally opened the new hall last autumn, though it had actually been in use six weeks. There is also a new play hall for the children at which are held regular classes. Mr. Rerair has been recently transferred from there and a new man trained in the work has been sent from Paris to take charge.

To the observant, as well as to those especially interested in mission work it is patent that the present marks a crisis in religious movements in France. There is a ferment in the Catholic church which is felt by all classes. There is a new spiritual germ working amongst the husks and formalism of old creeds and ideas, and an unrest and dissatisfaction is manifest in the relations of Church and State. This is naturally reflected in the minds of the working people. Asking for bread and receiving a stone from their traditional religion, they the more readily respond to the simple gospel message of the McAll Mission. Here indeed they find a safe haven from unbelief and learn for the first time that "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free"—free with the "Glorious liberty of the Sons of God."

The suggestion of a McAll Mission study class made at the New Jersey State meeting (and I believe by one of our Plainfield delegates, Mrs. Marsh,) is such a splendid idea that it ought to be more thoroughly discussed and considered. Nothing could be of greater interest just at this transition period in French history than a fuller understanding of the conditions and causes that have culminated in the wide spread school movement and other reforms throughout France, which may finally result in disestablishment or the separation of Church and State. Such a study could not fail to bring a greater realization of the present crisis, and the importance of the McAll work in the past, supplying—as it does to such large degree—the fatal lack of spiritual teaching; proving—as it has done in thousands of instances—the saving grace of redemption from ignorance, sorrow and despair.

Mr. Rerair, our late evangelist at Limoges, writes most feelingly of frequent and regular meetings with a number of young anarchists for argument and discussion, whom he is gradually influencing toward a more enlightened and spiritual attitude. Important as this fact is when multiplied by all the mission stations, it is nevertheless but a fraction of the good being accomplished. Can we then find it in our hearts to abate one jot or tittle of our interest in this noble work for humanity? Let us rather be fired to greater enthusiasm by the spiritual poverty of the sons and daughters of that fair land which secured our forefathers in their time of great need and proved a tried and true friend when foes surround our dear Liberty. Pain would we render back, individually, to the heirs of our once benefactors, somewhat of that spiritual heritage grown and nurtured in the freedom of religious liberty.

To this firm resolve may we indeed fix our minds and hearts in the year now before us.

Once more we wish to thank the Board of Managers of the Public Library for the use of this room and also The Press for its many courtesies.

Respectfully submitted,
Stella M. Lee, Secretary.

Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for children. Mother Gray, for years a nurse in the children's Home in New York, treated children successfully with a remedy, now prepared and placed in the drug stores, called Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for Children. They are tasteless as milk, pleasant to take and never fail. A certain cure for Feverishness, Headache, bad stomach, Teething troubles, bad breath and stomach disorders and remove worms. At all druggists, 25c. Don't accept any substitute. Sample FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 15—Comment by Rev. S. R. Doyle.

Topic—Lessons from the sermon on the mount: What Christ teaches about trust.—Matt. vi, 25-34.

The fatherhood of God was frequently emphasized by Christ. He not only believed in Him and trusted Him as His own Heavenly Father, but taught His disciples that God was their Heavenly Father and as such was worthy of their trust and confidence. Trust *in the sermon on the mount is distinct*ly founded upon the Fatherhood of God.

"1. Christ teaches that if our trust is in God we should lay up treasures in heaven. "Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." It certainly seems inconsistent to profess that our trust is in God, that our supreme interests are in heaven, and then to devote our entire time to laying up treasures on earth. We trust in what we have. If our treasures are heavenly, so will our trust be; if they are earthly, our trust will be here. Here the things are temporary, while heavenly things are eternal. Therefore also we should lay up treasures in heaven rather than upon earth.

2. Christ teaches that trust in God must be supreme. We cannot divide heart trust equally between two persons or things. One or the other will obtain the supreme place. "Ye cannot serve God and Mammon." Do not try to love and trust both God and the world supremely. It cannot be done. Therefore give the supreme place in trust, as in love, to God.

3. Christ teaches that trust in God should make impossible undue anxiety concerning the future in this life. "Take no thought, saying, what shall we eat or what ye shall drink, nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on." And why? (1) Because life is more than meat and the body more than raiment. God has given us life and his made the lesser. They are more valuable and important than the food and clothes required for them. Having given us the more important, can we not trust Him for the less? (2) Because undue anxiety is worthless. "Which of you, taking thought, can add one cubit to his stature?" If worry were worth anything, it would still be unnecessary, since God can do more for us than we could possibly do for ourselves. But how much more unnecessary—yea, even foolish—is worry, when we take the fact that it is worthless. Therefore it should certainly give place to supreme trust in God. (3) God takes care of the flowers of the field and the fowls of the air. Much more will He care for His children. Would a father who saw one fails to give water and sunshine to her plants and food to a pet bird in its cage neglect her child? We cannot think so. Is God's love then not so strong as a mother's? Yes, it is infinitely greater. "Though my father and my mother forsake me, then the Lord will take me up." Can we not therefore trust God with implicit confidence?

4. Christ teaches that God should have the first place in our hearts and lives. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness." Something will have the supreme place. Let us give that first place to God. He is worthy of it, and nothing will help and bless us so much as to give it to Him.

BIBLE READINGS.

Josh. 6, 1-6; Ps. xvi, 1-11; xxvi, 1, 14; xxxvii, 1-5; xl, 1-4; cxviii, 1-9; Isa. xl, 29-31; l, 10; Nah. i, 7; II Tim. i, 12.

Soul Winning.

Rev. Dr. Edwin Forrest Hallenbeck, president of the New York State Christian Endeavor union, in addressing his constituency recently on the subject of work for the coming year, had this to say about "soul winning." these two words being the motto just chosen for state work: "Oh, workers for Christ, let us make this the best year of service we have ever known—the best because we shall put into it most of determined, persistent, prayerful effort for souls. Would it not be possible to inaugurate a 'win one campaign' in every society, each member resolving to make a single one win one, and that one speak to Christ during the winter months? This is a practical way of focusing our enthusiasm and making it tend toward definite results. Such a movement would drive us to our knees, for only in the presence of God can we get wisdom and power for such work. It would send us to our Bibles, for the word of God is the sword of the Spirit, the weapon we need for the conquest of souls. Thus the spiritual life would be stimulated, and we would be permitted to taste deeply of God's pure joy, and, best of all, Christ would be glorified, and souls would be saved. Shall we not join our hearts and our hands in effort for a large ingathering of souls?"

Prayer.

Prayer begets prayer, and one man who prays in the spirit will set a whole society praying.—H. A. Kimpton, Secretary New York State Union.

Quiz Box.

[Any question may be asked that pertains to Christian Endeavor work. Address Lock Box 674, Binghamton, N. Y.]

44. C., Poyntelle, Pa.—Even though your church is small, the Christian Endeavor idea can be admirably carried out in connection with its work and prove a great stimulus to it. We would suggest that you address the United society, Tremont Temple, Boston, for a copy of the model constitution.

44. P., Hope, Ida.—Merritt B. Holley of Traverse City, Mich., has come to be known as the "man with the museum." He has gathered more than 2,500 Christian Endeavor souvenirs, and these he will exhibit at the Denver international convention next July.

BUILDING TRADES ARE BOOMING WITH SPRING

Many Permits Being Issued From the Office of Building Inspector T. O. Doane.

SOME NEW BUILDINGS

THEN THERE ARE LOTS OF IMPORTANT REPAIRS BEING PLANNED.

Among the Permits Just Issued is One for a Greenhouse for Chas. L. Stanley—Other Buildings and Several Alterations.

With the first signs of approaching spring the building industry in this city, which has been somewhat during the winter months, is picking up and although the month has hardly begun there have been a number of permits for additions to buildings and new structures granted.

A permit was granted yesterday afternoon to Charles L. Stanley, the florist, to erect a greenhouse on South street near Leland avenue. The structure will be an extensive one and he will grow many of his plants sold at his North avenue store at the new hothouse. He will be his own architect, mason and builder.

Frank Halembeck, of 847 North avenue, was granted permission to erect a garage in the rear of Johnson avenue near St. Mary's avenue. The building will 16x16x20 feet. He will be his own mason, architect and builder.

Alterations will be made to the house of William Nevins, of Elmwood place. The alterations will be in the form of an addition 6x6x12 feet. He will be his own architect and William Kinney will be the contracting carpenter.

C. A. Kane, of 312 Fillmore street, applied yesterday for a permit to build a house, to front 25 feet as 314 Fillmore street. The architect will be William Clum, the mason, D. Laughlin, and the carpenter, C. A. Kane.

General changes will be made to the house of B. Frank Coriell, of 211 West Fifth street, during the next few weeks. The alterations will be on the inside and will, when completed, alter the interior appearance of the house greatly. Charles M. Wilson is the carpenter who will do the work.

Application has been received from Michael F. Watson, of 213 Grant avenue, for a permit to make some important changes in his house. The carpentering work will be done by John A. McNalley.

A Remarkable Case.

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated in the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind., who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. She says: "The coughing and straining so weakened me that I ran down in weight from 148 to 92 pounds. I tried a number of remedies to no avail until I used One Minute Cough Cure. Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength." L. W. Randolph.

Realty Transfers.

The following real estate transfers in North Plainfield have been recorded at Somerville in the county clerk's office, recently: Harry L. Horton to John W. Coddington, $300; Daniel W. Teller et ux to Emma Spencer, $1,400; Freeman J. Shotwell et ux to James R. Blair, $3,000; John Valiant et ux to Herbert A. Bown, $1.

School Caps.

Orders are now being taken at the City High School for the school caps. The caps this year will be of navy blue, with an inch and a half visor. The P. H. S. monogram will be worked in red silk on the front of the cap.

District Deputy Named.

Charles L. Holstein has been appointed district deputy of the I. O. R. M., for district No. 47. The appointment was made about a week ago and he will soon take up his new duties of visiting different tribes in this district.

Increase in Membership.

W. A. Westphal, alternate representative of the Grand Council of Wetumpkah Tribe, I. O. R. M., submitted his report Thursday evening. The report showed an increase in membership and a larger financial balance.

It Is Easy to Say

"Be careful," but we must all go from heated houses into chill outer air, and the change sets us coughing and wheezing. Avoiding winter colds is difficult; curing them is not hard if you take Allen's Lung Balsam. Better begin with the cold is young and not wait until it settles deep into the lungs, for then, even with Allen's Lung Balsam, complete relief will be slower.

Miss Agnes, of East Front street, is detained at home with an attack of the grip.

CITY HAS NO DEATH TRAPS

But One Grade Crossing, Seldom Used Now, Remains in the City Limits.

OTHERS IN THE VICINITY

Newark's Recent Disaster Has Attracted Public Attention to Subject—Rock Avenue Still Crosses at Grade—Fatality There Thirteen Years Ago—Not Protected.

Newark's recent grade crossing horror, in which nine young lives were blotted out, serves as a reminder to Plainfielders to congratulate themselves upon the almost total abolition within the city limits of railroad death traps. Twenty-eight years ago, the far seeing citizens realized the traffic that would some day pass over the New Jersey Central and began a movement which resulted in the elevation of the tracks. For many years this city was looked upon and envied for the absence within its borders of the "stop, look and listen" sign, requesting all to beware of the deadly crossing.

When the Central officials decided to raise the roadbed, but two grade crossings were left, one at Church street, which was closed entirely but a short time ago, and the other at Rock avenue. Traffic over the former never amounted to anything and finally, to relieve all chance of accident, the Common Council ordered the thoroughfare closed from East Third street, south. The other crossing still remains but is in the extreme western part of the city and the number of vehicles or pedestrians passing over it are easily counted. For all that it is a menace to travel as it is not protected by gates or flagman.

Thirteen years ago it was the scene of a fatality when a butcher wagon driven by Benjamin Leidy was struck by a train late one Saturday night and he, together with his helper, William Cannon, and the horse, were instantly killed. The publicity given the accident resulted in a demand for the better protection of the crossing but it remained unheeded.

Near Plainfield, there are many streets which cross at grade but the majority of them are well protected. At Dunellen and Westfield on the New Jersey Central they are carefully guarded but one on Park avenue crossing the Lehigh Valley is considered a menace to life and limb. There is no flagman at the point during the night and there have been many narrow escapes from loss of life. The avenue descends at a steep decline both ways and there is a great temptation on the part of wheelman to cross over without first taking proper precautions. Recently a rule has gone into effect whereby the gates are kept down continuously in the day time and only raised when someone wishes to pass over.

There is a steady movement on foot, however, to gradually do away with these evidences of other days in railroading and with their removal Plainfielders will be almost insured from grade crossing horrors within their immediate vicinity.

Stomach Troubles cured by KODOL DISPEPSIA CURE

Under all curable conditions

Mr. D. Kauble of Nevada, O., was cured by Kodol of stomach trouble which had effected his heart.

Mrs. W. W. Layler of Hilliard, Fla., was cured of Chronic Dyspepsia by the use of Kodol.

KODOL
Digests What You Eat

L. W. RANDOLPH.

COUNCILMEN PRAISE MAYOR

General Desire Expressed to See Mayor Smalley Returned to Office.

LAST COUNCIL MEETING

After a Little Routine Business Was Finished, There Was an Exchange of Compliments Between the Mayor and the Members of the Borough Council.

The Borough Council met Friday night for the purpose of closing up the business of the fiscal year. There was a full representation of the members present except Councilman Codington. The session, proper, lasted only half an hour but in that short time much business was transacted.

The report of E. L. Suffren, who has been examining the books of the tax collector, was received and placed on file; claims amounting to about $2,700 were approved by the auditing committee and ordered paid and the annual report of the treasurer was read. That report follows: The receipts amounted to $2,148.62, and the disbursements, $1,281.10, leaving a balance on hand of $867.50. The largest items among the receipts outside of the taxes and interest, were: the special school tax of $926.51, the Gas and Electric Light Company franchise tax, of $261.85, and the Plainfield Water Supply Company franchise tax of $242.11.

Mayor Smalley appointed Harry Schearer as special marshal for ten days, which was confirmed by the police committee. Chairman James K. Arnold, of the street committee, reported that $585 76 had been spent in cleaning and repairing the thoroughfares of the borough. Chairman Nichols, of the finance committee, offered a resolution that as the borough was short of funds that the Mayor and Clerk be authorized to borrow $2,000 in order to pay the bills. This was carried. Mr. Nichols also offered a resolution that the lease of the Council chambers for five years, which expires this month, be renewed for one year at the same terms. This was also carried. The Mayor and Clerk were authorized to make the renewal. Chairman Lee, of the police committee, reported that seventeen arrests had been made the past month and that $36 had been received from fines. Two prisoners were sent to Somerville.

Chairman Northrup, of the laws and taxation committee, offered a resolution to the effect that the Collector be authorized to collect the unpaid taxes of 1901. Councilman Nichols submitted a resolution to the effect that the Mayor and Clerk be authorized to draw up a warrant for the payment of the six months' interest on the Somerset street bonds, of $3,000 at 4 per cent.

Before the meeting came to a close Mayor Smalley stepped down from the chair and addressing the Councilmen, said:

"My term is about to expire and you are threatened with another and a new victim. All of us may have an opinion of the result of the coming election but no one of us knows what the result will be. To the Council as it is today. I wish to say that I appreciate your services. I speak for those whom you serve and for myself for I appreciate the able manner in which you have looked after the interest of the borough during your term as Councilmen. I have felt proud of being with you at the Council meetings and I feel that you have done your work faithfully and, no matter who occupies that chair, I will feel safe in leaving the business of the borough in your hands.

"I have been honored by the people of North Plainfield with two terms in office. I have appreciated the honor and have tried to serve them faithfully. What the result of the election on Tuesday will be I do not know and I may say I do not care. I feel that it will be a victory either way. Whatever the result may be I will fulfil my duties the best I can. A new man may be chosen to relieve me of my duties. New matters of importance may come up, such as the street widening, sewerage questions and other subjects, and if I am not here I hope you will continue to look after the interests of the people.

"I have said that this is my last night. I leave with many regrets and I hope that the change will be for the better."

Hardly had the Mayor taken his seat when Councilman Nichols was on his feet and, addressing the chair and his fellow Councilmen, said:

"I think that the thanks and congratulations are due to Mayor Smalley more than to us, for the careful manner in which he has presided over the meetings here and for the favors which have been shown to me and to all." He hoped again to have the pleasure of sitting in the Council with Mayor Smalley as a presiding officer.

Councilman Northrup arose at his desk and said:

"The keynote of Mayor Smalley's address was individuality. Individuality is the master means a corresponding individuality in the man. Such an example is before us; one who, first and last and at all times has the interest of the borough at heart. His keynote was that and he lived up to it. I know that those of opposite views who came into the Council, opposing Mayor Smalley, were like the small boys, who came to jeer but stayed to pray. We are under the domination of a master mind and in my opinion, it will be a detriment to the borough not to allow that same master mind to have the chance to pursue his plans for another year, so as to give an opportunity to allow those plans now partially carried out, a chance to mature, under another period of his administration."

Councilman Lee took advantage of a pause and addressing the chair said:

"This is my last opportunity, perhaps, to extend to the Mayor thanks for the many kindnesses extended to me and to all the members of the Council. My one regret that I am about to leave you is the severance of associations here. I can testify to the earnest manner in which the Mayor has served us and my best wishes are for the future and all success to him and to the borough."

Mayor Smalley was about to call the meeting to a close when Councilman Clark asked for permission to speak and he said:

"One would think from the tenor of the remarks just made that this meeting had resolved itself into a 'miserere' meeting but it seems to me that it is more of a 'jubilate' meeting as our Mayor has been nominated for a second term. Four years ago I came into this room and previous to that time I had never met the then newly elected Mayor, nor did I know of him. During the four years in this Council I have been led to believe that if ever there was a man who occupied the Mayor's chair and who had the interests of the borough thoroughly at heart, Mayor Smalley did it the best. He knows the wants and needs of the borough, he lives here, he is in touch with the people, and he sees for himself what is wanted. It is therefore my earnest wish that he be re-elected. He has guided the affairs of the borough well for four years and what he has left undone two years more will give him an opportunity of doing, and I hope to have the pleasure of serving under Mayor Smalley again."

After a short recess, during which matters relating to the payment of Architect Smith's bill, for drawing up the specifications of new fire house, were discussed, the meeting adjourned.

Masque Ball.

The masquerade ball of the women's section of the Gesang und Turn Verein, will be held at Saengerbund Hall, March 22. It will be the fifth annual event of its kind given by the women's section and it promises to be a very brilliant affair.

900 DROPS

CASTORIA

A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of INFANTS CHILDREN

Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.

A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.

Fac Simile Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. NEW YORK.

35 DOSES 35 CENTS

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

IS HELPING HOME MISSIONS

ANNUAL MEETING OF W. H. M. S. OF CRESCENT AVENUE CHURCH.

The Old Officers Re-Elected and Address by Rev. R. E. Craig—$1,900 Raised During the Year.

At the annual meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, held Friday afternoon, the following officers were re-elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. I. C. Pearson; vice presidents, Mrs. William E. Honeyman and Mrs. Townsend Bushmore; secretary, Miss Mary Ketcham; treasurer, Mrs. William E. Meyers; secretary of literature, Mrs. H. R. Halloway.

The report of the treasurer showed that about $1,900 had been raised during the year, all of which had been expended for mission work in the southern States among the Indians and Alaska. Most of it was expended direct for the support of schools.

Following the transaction of business the members listened to an address on mission work among the natives and Indians in New Mexico and Arizona, by Rev. Robert E. Craig, synodical missionary for those two territories. The part dealing with the Indians was very interesting.

TAX BUDGET.

Will be Fixed Before Next Regular Meeting of Common Council.

Sometime during this month before the next regular meeting of the Common Council the tax budget for the coming year will be fixed upon. As soon as the various committees report to the chairman of the finance committee, Mr. Daniel, the several amounts thought to be necessary for each department, the finance committee will present the budget for adoption. Such action will undoubtedly be taken at the regular April meeting.

Milk Case Adjourned.

When the case of the Board of the Board of Health of North Plainfield against Abram W. TenEyck, of North Branch, came up Saturday for trial in Justice Smalley's court, a motion was made to adjourn it. It was adjourned for one week. This is one of the milk cases which have attracted much attention. All the others have been settled out of court.

Announcement of Engagement.

Former Mayor and Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph, of East Front street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Caroline Randolph, to Dr. Charles Tarlit, of Toronto, Can.

The best pill 'neath the stars and stripes;
It cleanses the system and never gripes.
Little Early Risers of worthy reputation.

Ask for DeWitt's and take no substitute.

A small pill, easy to buy, easy to take and easy to act, but never failing in results. DeWitt's Little Early Risers arouse the secretions and act as a tonic to the liver, curing permanently. L. W. Randolph.

HORRORS OF PLAGUE

How Being Experienced by the People of Mazatlan, Mexico.

Business in Prosperous Mining District Paralyzed by Epidemic and Tourist Trade Entirely Cut Off.

[Special El Paso (Tex.) Letter.]

JUST at this time, when the tide of travel is flowing toward the southwest, reports of the plague at Mazatlan have deterred many who had intended to winter in Mexico from visiting that delightful resort. There is no adequate reason, however, for fear, for those in authority have taken such rigid precautions to restrict the disease to its present location that outside of Mazatlan one may be as secure from contagion in Mexico as in any portion of the United States. Quarantine regulations are so strict that no one is now allowed to pass in or out of the city. Infected buildings are being destroyed by fire when practicable. If not composed of combustible materials, a fire built inside is sufficient to destroy disease germs if the heat be confined. It is said that 250 degrees F. is certain death to plague germs, which are not especially tenacious of life. Again, it is stated that exposure to 100 degrees C. for a few minutes or 80 degrees C. for a half hour removes all danger of contagion, also that strong sunlight exposure for a few hours accomplishes the same result. In ordinary warm drinking water the microbe lives three days; in semi-darkness it will exist in sputum 16 days, in blat eight days. It has not, thus far, been found that any degree or of cold will kill it. While it remains dormant in a dry place for some time, given heat and moisture, it at once becomes active and thrives best in uncleanly places. Lemon juice or carbolic acid are considered good destroy it. It grows best at the temperature of the body. It is not as contagious as is generally believed, although it enters the body by several channels, by inhalation, through the mucous membranes, by alimentary canal or by an abrasion of the skin. A person may carry the germ in the garments or under the finger nail for several days and never become infected, or the contagion may enter the system several days after the exposure. After actual infection, it usually requires from three to six days for the disease to develop.

BUBONIC PLAGUE BACILLI.
(Pus from Bubo. Bacillus Pestis Multiplied 900 Diameters)

The plague existed in the time of Dionysius and no one knows how much earlier. The "plague of emerods" mentioned in the Book of Samuel, which occurred 1100 B. C. when the Philistines were smitten after capturing the ark of the covenant from the Israelites, is supposed to be identical with the disease of to-day at Mazatlan, "emerods" being considered as "buboes." The best early account of the "Black Death" is of the epidemic in Egypt, 543 A. D., which finally spread over Europe, covering a period of half a century and depopulating whole towns. It prevailed more or less during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. The "Great Plague" in London, in 1665, caused 68,800 deaths in 33 weeks. It gradually receded, Marseilles being the last city visited, where in 26 weeks, in 1720, 39,000 deaths occurred. In 1778, in Constantinople, there was a mortality of 170,000 in 18 weeks. It has always been epidemic and endemic in Egypt, Asia Minor and Syria. It is only recently that the bacillus has been discovered. Yersin, a Frenchman, and Kitasto, a Japanese, found it simultaneously.

BUBONIC PLAGUE BACILLI.
(Bacillus Pestis from Pure Culture, Multiplied 1,500 Diameters.)

The two best-known forms of the disease are the pulmonic and bubonic, the former being more fatal and accompanied by hemorrhages from the lungs. In the latter, the lymphatic glands, those of the armpits and groins most commonly, sometimes of the neck and other portions of the body, swell and suppurate, generally undergoing resolution. Those cases where the buboes are most pronounced are not the most dangerous.

The full pulse increases as the disease progresses. The respiration becomes more rapid. There is great prostration accompanied by thirst and severe headache. The temperature before death sometimes reaches 107 degrees. Occasionally coma, then death, result without a marked increase in temperature. The eyes are red, the tongue dry and swollen, sometimes black, at others covered with a white coat. The whole body is filled with darting pains. Buboes do not appear until the third day in some cases. Their free discharge is considered a favorable symptom. If carbuncles appear over the body, it is a bad sign. The skin is covered with spots which, after death, turn dark. This gave the name "Black Death," by which the plague was known in the fourteenth century when about 25,000,000, or one-fourth the population of the known world at that time, perished.

Another form of the disease is knomias septicaemic plague. The first symptoms resemble those caused by active poison. Extreme prostration, hemorrhages from the bowels, kidneys or nose are frequent; coma, delirium and death follow on the second or third day. No two cases are alike. In most virulent forms, death occurs in a few hours. Again, life may be prolonged for ten days. Rats and insects spread the contagion. The former, after being stricken, betray the existence of the disease strangely. They seek the presence of men, and seem to have no fear.

No race or community can be considered immune. Those who have come from there recently state that the situation at Mazatlan, which has a population of about 22,000, has been greatly exaggerated. However, conditions there render the hardships especially oppressive to the population, who, as a rule, are very poor. The average house is of adobe. A very few possess tiled roofs. Many are only thatched with palms. A large number are without furniture, the occupants sitting or reclining on the adobe floor. Stores are of sticks and adobe, and constructed in the most primitive style; there are, of course, some very wealthy Mexicans in Mazatlan, but they are in the minority. Men work in the mines, earning about $1.20 per day, Mexican money, or about 50 cents in our own coin. These mines are among the richest in the world. The Santo Nino is one of the nearest, being about 12 miles from the town. The roads are good, out to and beyond this point. Rich mines extend back through the heavily wooded country for a hundred miles or more. The ore is packed into town on burros. Many years ago an Indian camped in the vicinity, and when morning came saw that his camp fire had melted the ground. This led to a knowledge of the richness of the soil, which is literally full of silver and gold. The Santo Nino is probably a sample of the best mines, being easily worked, and near town. The ore averages $35 per ton in value. There are now about 4,000 tons on the dump, and 6,000 more blocked out, while all work is suspended on account of the plague. The miners, who now especially need food and the comforts their labors usually furnish, are idle for the most part of this mine, in this particular, is that of hundreds of others. With uncounted wealth within touch, these people exist in absolute poverty and squalor. The city is beautifully situated at the mouth of the Gulf of Mexico. Its high, wooded hills are reflected in the waters of one of the best harbors on the Pacific coast, by which stand a high lighthouse.

MINERS PANNING GOLD DUST.

The line of tourist travel has never been in this direction, and there is no danger in following any of the usual routes. The climate of Mexico is unexcelled. The winters are perfect. Sunny days, cool nights. The mornings in summer are pleasant, the afternoons hot, where one may command any temperature he pleases. Popocatepetl, Ixtaccihuatl, and other mountains with shining, snow-capped peaks, hold promise of a frosty reception to a traveler who desires to ascend their rugged slopes from among the tropical surroundings at their base. A large portion of central Mexico would, but for irrigation, be a desert waste, and one may still ride through hundreds of miles of land, only varied by the bunches of cacti and sage brush.

The air of Mexico, except along the coast, is very dry and invigorating. The people are gentle, when not aroused to anger, and are listless beyond belief. The young women are noted, the world over, as much for their beauty as the old are for their ugliness.

The archaeologist finds interest in the relics of a forgotten civilization, and at the present time the churches are architectural marvels, when one considers that they are, as a rule, constructed of sun-dried bricks. The resources of the country are almost unlimited. The richest mines in the world are here, also valuable woods. Everything may be cultivated, from wheat to tropical fruits, coffee, tea, spices, everything that is planted proves how readily the soil responds to cultivation.

EDWARD JULIAN.

NO LEAGUE CONTEST; BUT TEAMS PLAYED

Exhibition Game Won by Hope Y. M. A., Defeating the I. C. T. Club.

FIRST HALF WAS CLOSE

AFTER THAT THE HOPE, BOYS HAD THINGS THEIR OWN WAY.

Officials From Newark Failed to Appear and League Game Was Postponed—Played As Exhibition Game Instead.

Failure of the officials from Newark to appear resulted in the postponement of the Plainfield Amateur Basket Ball League game between Hope Y. M. A. and the I. C. T. Club, set for Friday night. An exhibition game between the teams was arranged, however, and played in the I. C. T. rooms. The Hope boys won by a score of 35 to 6.

The first half was decidedly exciting. The play quite close and both sides guarded exceptionally well. But the greatest part of the game was the meeting of the brothers, John and George Cose, on opposing teams. They played against each other and supplied the crowd with much to applaud. The first half ended with the score 9 to 5 in favor of Hope.

Everything went Hope's way in the second half and goals followed each other in rapid succession. The I. C. T. Club boys put up a brave defence but some clever goal throwing decided it. Overbaugh was left unguarded a moment and landed one from the field That was the only score I. C. T. made in that half.

The teams lined up as follows:

HOPE Y. M. A.		I. C. T. CLUB.
Porter	right forward	Sherwin, Overbaugh
Chamberlain	left forward	Caleen
J. Cose, Whitley	centre	G. Cose Whitley.
Roseberry	right guard	Overbaugh; Sherwin
Duckworth	left guard	Heardle

Score—Hope Y. M. A., 35; I. C. T. Club, 6. Goals from the field—Porter (3), Chamberlain (4), J. Cose, Whitley (3), Duckworth (2), Sherwin, Caleen, Overbaugh. Goals on foule—J. Cose. Foule—Hope Y. M. A., 2; I. C. T. Club, 3. Referee—Charles B. Morse, of Hope Y. M. A. and I. C. T. Clubs. Timekeeper—Engineer McCourt, of Hope Y. M. A., and Harry Blimm, of the I. C. T. Club. Timekeepers—J. Fred Wharton, of Hope Y. M. A., and George Apgar, of I. C. T. Club. Scorers—George H. Fleatbrook, of Hope Y. M. A., and V. W. Nash, Jr., of I. C. T. Club.

BABCOCK FIRE.

Friday Was Anniversary of Greatest Fire Plainfield Has Known.

It was just one year ago Friday that the Babcock building, then regarded as the handsomest office building in the State, was almost entirely destroyed by fire, together with the complete demolition of the Sebring building, by falling walls. The new Babcock building, an exact duplicate of the old in outward appearance, is now almost completed and with the erection of the Sebring building, all evidences of the greatest fire Plainfield had in years will have been removed.

Still Settling.

Claims Agent J. K. Large, of the New Jersey Central, is still busily engaged in effecting settlements for damages as a result of the recent wreck at Westfield. Thus far Mr. Large has met with good success. In making settlements in death claims the pecuniary benefits to the next of kin is the basis used in computing the amount which the company believes should be paid.

Scalded by Hot Tea.

While playing about the rooms of his parents' house on Jackson avenue, Friday, Hervey, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert VanNest, was severely scalded about the head and neck by pulling over on to him a cup full of hot tea. The boy was attended by Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan who dressed the burns.

Athletic Contest Started.

The five week athletic contest which will be run off two games a Saturday, was started Saturday evening. The winner in the broad jump was Harry Skull who cleared 8 feet, 6 inches. In the quarter mile walk Richard Tice won in 2 minutes, 14½ seconds, breaking the record of last year by almost five seconds.

Engagement Announced.

Plainfielders will be interested in the announcement just made by Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Jamison, formerly of Dunellen, but now of Raritan, of the engagement of their daughter, Mabel Eloise, to Frederick William DeHart, of Pittsburg, son of Rev. and Mrs. W. H. DeHart.

Tea for Mrs. Tremaine.

A very delightful informal tea was given Saturday afternoon by Miss VanDeventer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus VanDeventer, of Washington avenue, in honor of Mrs. Morris Tremaine, formerly Miss Middledith, of Mercer avenue.

PARK'S VETERANS WON FROM CAMERA CLUB

After Three Years Absence From Whist, Parks Show They Haven't Forgotten.

WON BY SINGLE TRICK

STOPPED VICTORIOUS CAREER OF THE PLAINFIELD CAMERA CLUB.

It Was Expected That Camera Club Would Win, and Park Club Team Was Rather Disappointed at Its Own Victory.

It is the unexpected that always happens and, when it became known Friday evening that the well-known whist four from the Plainfield Camera Club lost the match with the famous veteran "four" from the Park Club, in the contest for the Metropolitan challenge trophy; there was disappointment on both sides. While the Parks had no intention of giving the game to their fellow Plainfielders, there was a general feeling that the Camera Club team would score a victory, making it the sixth consecutive win for the trophy. This was not to be for the veteran Parks played superior whist and won the match by one trick, the final score being 13 to 12.

It is nearly three years since the Park four has played togetehr, but its work last evening showed that the members are very much in the game.

The Forest Hill Whist Club team is the next challenger and this match will be played at the Park Club next Thursday evening. The veterans are now in possession of the trophy and it will be their duty to defend it with their acknowledged skill. It is admitted that next week's game may be easy, but after that the Knickerbocker Whist Club and the Brooklyn Whist Club teams will be after the trophy, in case it remains here.

Last evening the first round ended with a score of 5 to 3 in favor of the Camera Club. The second round was won by the Parks by a score of 6 to 2, and the third round won the match by the holders of the trophy by a score of 5 to 4.

The Park Club veterans were Samuel Townsend, S. St. John Mc Cutchen, Joseph H. Howell and George T. Rogers, while A. F. Freeman, F. H. Freeman, Ralph T. Willis and W. J. R. Hegeman, Jr., represented the Camera Club.

POTATO EXPLODED.

Mrs. Wm. L. Smalley, Jr., Badly Burned in An Unusual Way.

Mrs. William L. Smalley, Jr., of Somerset street, met with a painful accident a few days ago. She was engaged in baking potatoes for dinner and in handling one of the tubers to ascertain whether is was sufficiently baked, was almost blinded by having it explode in her hands. The heated contents of the potato flew in her face and the cuticle on one eyelid was entirely burned off. As soon as Mrs. Smalley could recover from fright she called her husband, who was at home. He hastened to the kitchen, where he caught up a handful of flour and threw it in his wife's face. This served to take the inflammation out of the burns and there will be no serious consequences.

AT BADMINTON.

Prizes Won at Friday Night Club by Mrs. Calkins and H. Huntington.

Badminton was the principal game played Friday evening at the Friday Night Club at the Casino. The pool and bowling tournament will come to a close next week and at the same time the women's bowling contest will start.

The badminton contest was won last evening by Mrs. Leighton Calkins and Howard Huntington, who defeated Miss Pierson and Thomas R. VanBuskerck by a score of 15 to 11 in the first game and 50 to 9 in the second.

During the evening, C. Wesley Abbots was presented with the silver cup which was won by him in the pool tournament.

Mission Society Her Guest.

The members of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society, of the First Baptist church, were entertained Friday afternoon by the president, Miss Pauline Denton, at her home on Washington Avenue. The afternoon was spent in playing games, and listening to vocal and instrumental music, after which refreshments were served.

Won't Allow Sign.

When the Postal Telegraph office moved into their new quarters on North avenue a large wooden sign was sent out from New York to be placed upon the top of the structure. When a permit was applied for at the office of the building inspector, he would not grant it, and the sign will be sent back to New York and will be replaced by an iron one.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXVI. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, MARCH 19, 1903. NO. 12

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

OPPOSITION ELECTS TICKET; OPEN SESSIONS HEREAFTER

Eventful School Meeting Held in North Plainfield, When School Trustees Were Elected.

500 TAXPAYERS AT THE MEETING

OPPOSITION TO METHODS OF BOARD HAD TICKET IN FIELD, WHICH DEFEATED OLD BOARD'S CHOICE FOR TRUSTEES.

New Members Elected Are John Valiant, Samuel Townsend, Hiram A. Woodruff and Murray Burtis—Annual Report of President A. V. D. Honeyman is Received—Treasurer's Report Was Presented by Clerk Fountain—Other Details.

Five hundred tax payers and citizens of North Plainfield attended the annual meeting of the borough schools which was held last Tuesday. The large turnout was for the purpose of entering a protest against the present manner of conducting the school business and of holding the meetings from which the public is excluded. The opposition won their points by electing their own trustees and carrying a resolution providing for school meeting to be held in places where the public can attend them. Reports were read showing the conditions of the schools both financially and as to the results obtained from the system now in use.

The meeting was held in the auditorium of the main school on Somerset street, and was called to order at 8:15 by James R. Joy, Esq. Mr. John McCutcheon was chosen the chairman of the meeting, although he protested on being mentioned to fill the chair. After a few remarks he said that the meeting was called for the purpose of electing three trustees for a term of three years and one for an unexpired term of one year. James K. Arnold was named for the secretary of the meeting after Robert M. Fountain and James R. Joy had been nominated but declined to accept the appointment on the ground that they had reports to read.

Former Senator Charles A. Reed asked that the meeting proceed to the election of the trustees and voting on the appropriations. When this was put in the shape of a motion and submitted to a vote it was carried unanimously.

James K. Arnold and Horace J. Martin were elected tellers. Nominations were made as follows: John Valiant, Samuel Townsend, Hiram A. Woodruff, George D. Hallock, Henry A. McGee, for three year terms and Forster Councilman Murray Burtis for trustee for one year.

The result of the election was as follows: For three year terms: John Valiant, 230; Samuel Townsend, 211, Hiram Woodruff, 184; George D. Hallock, 85; Henry A. McGee, 66. For the unexpired team of one year: Murray Burtis, 236; John Valiant, 3; Henry McGee, 1; George D. Hallock, 1; Samuel Townsend, 4; Hiram Woodruff, 1; John H. VanWinkle, 1, and George H. Fairchild, 2. The total vote was 236. There were many who did not cast a vote.

The appropriations were carried as follows: Teachers' salaries and current expenses, $14,400; books, etc., $1,200; special school tax, $1,350. For teachers' salaries the vote was 185, for books, etc., 186, and for school tax, 157. Two votes were rejected. The total amount of appropriations were $16,950. The polls were open for an hour.

While the ballots were being counted, District Clerk Robert Fountain read the report showing the financial condition of the schools in the borough. The substance of the report is as follows: The receipts of general school funds and the amount now in the collector's hands up to March 18, '02, was $4,329.21; received from the State, $12,153.29; special school tax for six years past, including manual training department, $22,421.63; manual training fund received from the State, $3,150; making a total of receipts of $42,572.50. The disbursements are as follows:

Teachers' salaries, $18,900; incidental and general expenses, $20,620.99; manual training, $2,772.89; and other minor expenses, leaving a balance on hand of $0,277.90.

The reading of the report of the President, which will be published entire in tomorrow's Daily Press, followed. A. V. D. Honyman, the president, was not present at the meeting and James R. Joy read the report.

When the report had been read Former Mayor W. L. Saunders offered a resolution which he said was not prepared with a view of criticising any member of the Board of Education but merely as a suggestion. His resolution was to the effect that the Board of Education be requested to transact its business in a public place where the public may attend.

When this motion was placed before the assemblage for a vote it was carried without a dissenting vote amid loud applause.

In explaining his position in offering the motion he said that public officers should transact the business entrusted to their care in a place where the public could have an opportunity of knowing what is being done. The Council meets in public, he said, as all meetings should be conducted where public moneys are being expended. He said that he was aware that there are some things which would come up before a Board of Education meeting which would require a secret meeting, such as the matter of hiring teachers but where public moneys are to be expended the meetings should be in places where the public could learn of it.

Considerable argument followed the offering of the motion in which John Valiant said in reply to a suggestion made that the meeting be held in the Council Chambers, that the Council rooms were not centrally located enough for such meetings as he said that very often material had to be used in the meetings which, if the sessions were held in the rooms suggested, it would necessitate the handling of the materials considerable distance, and he did not think that plan a practicable one. Mr. Saunders said that he thought no plan a wise one which was not practicable. He said that he did not expect as large an attendance at the regular meetings of the board as there was present last night, but that he was in favor of having the meetings in a place where the press representatives could be present and thus keep the public informed as to what is going on.

It was finally decided to see what could be done in the matter of securing a suitable place for meetings.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley, who had taken an active part in the proceedings, asked why the one session plan was continued in the borough schools. Chairman McCutchen referred the matter to the supervising principal of the school, Homer J. Wightman, who said that when the present system was inaugurated he sent communications to all the parents of the pupils asking for an expression as to whether they desired one session a day for their children, beginning at 8 o'clock in the morning and closing at 1 in the afternoon, or two sessions with one session in the morning and another in the afternoon, and in reply Mr. Wightman stated that 90 per cent. of the parents favored the one session a day plan and that was the reason it has been continued. Mayor Smalley protested against the system claiming that the children had better be in school than running about the streets.

There was a lull in the proceedings for a few moments while the tellers were preparing to announce the result of the election when Assessor Elston M. French said, in connection with a statement of Mr. Reed's earlier in the meeting about the article appearing in the borough press to the effect that he had failed to make assessments where the Board of Education had ordered him to in 1901; that the reports were totally untrue and he declared that he assessed every dollar which he was directed to.

After the result of the balloting had been announced the meeting adjourned.

ST. PATRICK AN EXAMPLE

WORTHY OF BEING IMITATED AND FOLLOWED IN PRESENT AGE.

So Said Rev. Father J. W. Daily in Lecture Given at St. Mary's Church Last Tuesday.

St. Patrick was held out as a worthy example for Catholics of the present age to imitate and follow, in a lecture given at St. Mary's R. C. church last Tuesday by Rev. Joseph W. Daily, pastor of St. Alphonsus church, of New York. The church was well filled, and the discourse given on Ireland's patron saint, was well timed and very interesting.

Taking for his theme "The Life of St. Patrick as a Triumph," Father Daily drew some valuable lessons, if which he said, were applied to the present age would result in a wonderful transformation in the religious world and further Christianity to a great extent. As an introduction the speaker referred to the early days of St. Patrick, particularly when twenty-two years of age when he was released from captivity. During this time, he said, St. Patrick made preparations for the great revivals he inaugurated on the Island of Wicklow 432 A. D., which resulted in 300 churches being established and over 3,000 priests ordained, and in addition giving an impetus throughout Ireland for higher education.

St. Patrick was a man of strong character, said the speaker, his leading characteristics being the spirit of penance, profound humility, and the great zeal put forth in efforts to save souls. The secret of his great success, Father Daily ascribed to the fact of his being a man of God, with the love of a seraph, faith of a St. Peter, and the zeal of a St. Paul.

WAGNER MUSICALE.

Second of Series Given at Home of Mrs. Chas. W. McCutchen.

The second Wagner musicale was given Tuesday morning at the home of Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen on Rockview Terrace, by Miss Estella Neuhaus. The subject was "Die Walkure," and it was interpreted in the same brilliant manner that characterised the first musicale. There was a large and attentive audience and the affair was a distinct success. The next musicale will be given Tuesday morning, March 24, at the home of Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers. The subjects will be "Siegfried."

HURRIED TO BEDSIDE.

Mrs. Sheldon, Still Ill, Went to Bedside of Daughter, Who is Also Ill.

Mrs. Margaret Sheldon, of Watchung avenue, who has been confined to the house for several weeks suffering with the grip, was just able to be about again, when word was received from the State Hospital at Morris Plains, stating that her daughter, Elizabeth Sheldon, who formerly lived in this city, was seriously ill with pneumonia. The mother hurried to the bedside of her daughter, although she herself, was still in a dangerous condition.

Played, But No Prizes.

The Duplicate Whist Club was entertained last Tuesday by Miss Lillian A. Force at her home, 86 Duer street. As is the custom of the club no prizes were presented, the money generally received for that purpose being used to purchase tickets for a performance at one of the New York theatres. At the end of the season the club will witness some performance to be decided upon.

Concert by Germans.

A concert is being planned by the Gesang and Turn Verein for Easter Monday evening. It is being arranged under the auspices of Professor Eichhorn, of Elizabeth, and almost the entire membership of the society will be in the chorus.

Exterior Nearly Completed.

Nearly all of the exterior work of rebuilding the Babcock building is completed and the interior work is being pushed along very fast.

FRIENDS WALK IN.

T. S. Armstrong Wasn't Looking for a Gathering in Honor of His Birthday.

In honor of his forty-eighth birthday, T. S. Armstrong, the druggist, was agreeably surprised by forty-five friends last Tuesday at his home 37 Duer street.

Mr. Armstrong was taken totally by surprise. He and Mrs. Armstrong went out during the first part of the evening to visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Martin, near by. While there the party assembled at the house and word was sent to Mr. Martin's house announcing the arrival of some friends. Shortly after he had recovered from his surprise, a very handsome oak Morris chair was presented to him by his friends. Among those who favored with instrumental selections were Dr. and Mrs. J. Hervey Buchanan, John D. Moore and Miss Daisy Kline.

In the latter part of the evening there were games, dancing and refreshments. The first woman's prize in a peanut race was won by Mrs. Buchanan, and the first prize for men was captured by Eugene M. Laing. Mrs. J. K. VanArsdale won the consolation prize.

MASONS ENTERTAIN.

Pleasant Social Given by Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., Tuesday Evening.

Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., held a communication last Tuesday, when, instead of doing any ritualistic work, a social time and entertainment was provided for the Masonic brethren. There were nearly two hundred Masons present.

The programme was in charge of Junior Warden R. A. Osmun and a committee and included vocal selections by a quartette consisting of F. J. Pope, Wm. Jeffrey, George Smith and Wilson Derby, also vocal solos by Mr. Derby and Mr. Pope. There were also banjo solos by Fred VanRipa, accompanied by Stuart Pope on the piano.

Aside from the musical features there were short addresses by Grand Junior Warden Walter E. Chandler and District Deputy W. D. Wolfskeil, of Elizabeth. Others present from out of town included Worshipful Masters Bartine, of Somerville and John Rowland, of Bound Brook. After the programme a bountiful collation was served.

PUBLIC REHEARSAL.

Y. M. C. A. Orchestra Gave a Strong Programme in Very Satisfactory Fashion Last Tuesday.

The sixth public rehearsal of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. orchestra was held last Tuesday in Association Hall when the place was fairly well filled. The music rendered, under the able direction of Martin A. Korff, was of a very high order.

Several selections were executed by the entire orchestra which was followed by Garret T. Dunham and orchestra in a masterful rendition of Sullivan's "Lost Chord." Mrs. Charlotte M. Ross rendered a contralto solo "Good Bye, Sweet Day," accompanied by Miss Charlotte Conger. This was very well rendered and was well received.

Whitney Frazee, accompanied by the entire orchestra, rendered Shubert's "Ave Marie" with fine execution. The programme concluded with the orchestra playing the new march, "Ching Chang."

NEW WATER MAINS.

Plainfield Water Supply Company Kept Busy With Demands for New House Connections.

The Plainfield Water Supply Company has been very busy of late in putting in new water mains and connections for houses. The remarkably large number of applications for connections is significant of an unusual amount of building contemplated during the spring, which also shows that the building boom of the late fall will be carried on this spring and summer.

A large water main will be installed in front of the Babcock building in a few days for the purpose of operating an elevator. There are at present at the water company's office on North avenue nine applications for house connections.

Elaborate Easter Programme.

The choir of St. Joseph's R. C. church, under the supervision of the choirmaster, James Bailey, has started in practicing the Easter music. The musical programme this year will be an elaborate one and the choir already shows itself to be in fine trim.

To Remain at Chatham.

John E. Beerbower, who has been proprietor of the hotel at Chatham, has decided to remain at that popular hostelry another year.

GAVE TO RELIEF FUND.

Robert B. Potts Has Sent Gift to Firemen's Relief Fund.

In appreciation of the manner in which the local firemen handled the blaze at his house a few weeks ago, Robert B. Potts has sent to the firemen a letter in which he thanked them for the work they did and enclosed $10 which he gave to the Firemen's Relief Fund. This is a very welcome gift as it has been some time since there have been any donations made to this worthy fund, which is maintained for the benefit of disabled firemen, firemen's widows and orphans and a sick benefit.

WATER POWER FOR ORGANS

THE LOCAL CHURCHES ARE CHANGING FROM ELECTRIC POWER.

Change in Current, and Condemning of Some Wiring, Has Resulted in Change as Cheaper.

On account of a change which is being made in the local electric light station, where the local power line is being changed from the direct to the alternating system, many of the local churches have found it cheaper to install water motors for pumping the organs instead of new electric appliances, which the change necessitates.

Some time ago an underwriters insurance inspector came to this city and condemned the wiring in some of the churches which use electricity, in inflating the organ bellows This would necessitate new wiring as well as a new motor.

The Plainfield Water Supply Company has been very busy of late in placing mains in front of several of the largest churches for the purpose of making the change. Last week a six-inch main was placed in front of Grace P. E. church and yesterday another main was installed in front of the First Presbyterian church on East Front street.

The only church in this city which will not be supplied with water motors for pumping the organ will be St. Mary's R. C. church. There the old method of pumping the organ by hand is still used. The organ is soon to be renovated and it is possible that water power will be used in the near future.

A main will be installed in front of All Souls' Unitarian church sometime this week preparatory to placing a water motor in that edifice.

CYCLING DERBY.

The Century Club Will Take Charge of the Irvington-Milburn Race.

Cyclists were questioning for a time as to whether the annual Irvington-Milburn race would be held as usual this year Memorial Day.

At the March meeting of the Associated Cycling Clubs, New York City, it was decided that the association would not seek to run the Irvington-Milburn road race this year.

Now the Century Road Club Association has applied for a permit to run the Irvington-Milburn road race on Decoration Day, and President Van Dyke says that assurances have been received from the Freeholders that the permission will be granted. Mr. Van-Dyke adds that the association will put up prizes will bid for a bigger entry list than ever and that the race will be run with all its historic grandeur.

Made Hit at Raritan.

John Enright, of this city, made a distinct hit in an amateur play given in Raritan, last Tuesday, entitled "King Alcohol." He essayed one of the most difficult roles in the production and his interpretation was perfect. A large number of his friends from the Hibbard-Bodman-Ely Safe Works, who were in the audience, tendered him a bouquet at one of the intermissions.

Hospital Tea.

Mrs. G. Mayer and Mrs. T. S. Wheeler, of Park avenue, have issued invitations for a "Hospital Tea" to be given Tuesday afternoon, March 31, from 3 to 6 o'clock at 2220 Park avenue, for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital. Each woman is kindly asked to bring a sheet and pillow slip, size of sheet finished 2 1-4x3 1-4 yards. Size of pillow slip finished 42x36 inches.

Business, Then Sociability.

Following the business meeting of the Epworth League at the First M. E. church, Friday evening, there will be an informal programme of music and a social time.

Invitation Affair.

An informal reception and dance will be given Saturday evening in the old Common Council room under the direction of H. H. Coward. It will be an invitation affair.

SCHOOL MEETING.

Dunellen Voters Elect School Trustees and Fix Appropriations for the Year.

Dunellen, March, 18—The annual school meeting was held last evening in the Borough Hall. The meeting was more largely attended than any in recent years and much interest was shown. Rev. Frank Fletcher was elected chairman of the meeting and T. W. Day was appointed secretary, Messrs. Randolph and Dayton tellers.

The district clerk, F. T. Dickerson, read a portion of his report and then nominations were made for members of the board. Of those nominated R. F. Bogardus received 43 votes; Wilson Fredericks, 149; Lewis Titsworth, 116, and F. T. Dickerson 129. Messrs. Fredericks, Dickerson and Titsworth were then declared elected.

During the meeting a vote of thanks was extended to the Board of Education and the district clerk for the thorough and efficient way they had performed their duties. The Clerk's report was particularly commendable as it was very clear and full. An appropriation of $8,500 was voted for all purposes.

Some discussion was caused at this point as to whether it was legal for the clerk to cast a ballot for the entire vote or not. It was finally decided to abide by the old custom. The president appointed an auditing committee of the year consisting of Augustus Todd, Albert Apgar and Mahlon Dayton, after which the meeting adjourned.

ONE TRICK DID IT.

Camera Club Four Defeated by the Jersey City Club, Which Plainfielders Beat Few Weeks Ago.

Arthur H. Freeman, F. H. Freeman, Ralph T. Willis and W. J. R. Hegeman, Jr., representing the whist four of the Camera Club, were defeated last Tuesday by the Jersey City Whist Club in the play for the New Jersey State Whist League trophy. The Plainfield team lost the match by the score of 13 to 12. There were thirty-two deals in all.

The Jersey City team, consisting of Messrs. Bowlby, McCabe, Whistler and Bamstead, was the same one defeated by the Camera Club team in the play for the Metropolitan challenge trophy, a few weeks ago.

NO CHEAPER MILK.

Not Likely That Summer Will Bring Any Reduction in the Price of Milk.

The price of milk, so the dealers say, will not be reduced this spring as is usually the case. This, they assert is because of the fact that all the feed is exceptionally high and that the prospects for a droughty summer are good.

Usually in winter time the price of milk goes up to eight cents a quart and when spring opens, it drops to six cents. Last year, the milk did not go down in spring time but remained at the same price throughout the year. It was hoped that the commodity would decrease in price this year but, from what the dealers themselves say, it is probable that the price will remain as it has been all during the winter.

Two Hundred Tables at Euchre.

The choir of St. Mary's church are planning to hold a euchre in the school building on the Monday evening following Easter. The euchre will be the largest ever held, and 200 tables will be used at which 800 people will play. A reception will be held after the card playing and a delightful time is assured.

Planning a Barn Dance.

Miss Martha Hand, of Fairview avenue, will entertain a number of her friends at her home this evening in honor of her thirteenth birthday. Elaborate plans are being made for the event and if the weather will permit a barn dance will be enjoyed by the young folks.

Unique Features Planned.

The Epworth League of Grace M. E. church is making arrangements for a social to be held Friday evening, which will have several unique features. Andrew Wilson and Charles Warren comprise the committee in charge.

Oriental Degree to be Worked.

At the meeting of Benevolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., Friday evening, the Oriental degree will be worked upon eleven candidates. A full attendance of members is desired.

—Neuman Brothers have recently received another consignment of olive oil, direct from France. It is sold in quart and pint bottles at 65 cents and 35 cents.

Edward J. Sherman, of West Fifth street, is confined to his home by illness.

HOPE Y. M. A. HOLDS ITS ANNUAL MEETING

President Wm. N. Runyon Refuses to Accept Re-election Under Existing Conditions.

NO PRESIDENT CHOSEN

JOHN H. COSE RE-ELECTED MANAGER OF BASEBALL NINE.

"Brit" Martin Will Captain Team—Resolution Passed Asking the Church Trustees to Reconsider Discharge of Janitor Stewart.

At the annual meeting of the Hope Y. M. A., held last Tuesday, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Vice president, J. Fre Wharton; secretary, George E. Firstbrook; treasurer, Thomas Muir. The office of president, which has been held by City Judge William N. Runyon for two years, was left vacant temporarily as the present incumbent would not accept re-election under existing circumstances.

Other elections were the house committee, William Porter, James Montross, Thomas Chamberlain, Benjamin Evans and Charles Vincent; membership committee, William Ditts, Claude Roseberry and George Slorah. John H. Cose, who so successfully managed last season's baseball team, was elected to the position for the coming year. "Brit" Martin will captain the team. Manager Cose will at once begin preparation for getting his men together and starting practice games. There is excellent material in the association this year and prospects for a good nine are flattering.

Another matter of importance brought before the meeting was the project of paying sick benefits to members in good standing. The idea was enthusiastically received and the amount of weekly payments and rules to govern the same was left to a committee composed of John H. Cose, George E. Firstbrook and J. Fred Wharton.

The association by a unanimous vote passed resolutions asking the trustees of the Crescent Avenue church to reconsider their action in dismissing David F. Stewart as janitor of the chapel and the association gymnasium. The members declared they believed him fully fit and capable of discharging the duties of the position and expressed the opinion that he is acceptable to a large majority of those attending the chapel. He is held in high esteem by the young men and they declare their work at the chapel will be seriously hampered by his removal.

Reports for the year were read by the officers and of these, the treasurer's was, perhaps, the most interesting. It showed the total receipts for the year to have been $1,717.61 and the disbursements, $1,258.08, leaving a balance in the treasury irrespective of profits from the recent minstrel show, $492.08. The membership of the association is sixty.

Gypsies Are Here.

The first of the bands of gypsies which usually visit this city in the spring of the year has arrived and is now in camp at Avon Park. It consists of four families of the Harris tribe and possesses about thirty head of horses. The men said yesterday that the original Cooper family was on the way to Plainfield and would reach here the latter part of the month.

May Have Rifle Team.

There is a strong possibility that a rifle team will be selected from Company K to represent the organization at the National rifle target shoot held at Sea Girt. There is fine material in the company for a team and the chances are that high honors would come to the Plainfield militia organization.

Sanitary Sewer Completed.

The Mariners avenue sanitary sewer, which has been in course of construction during the winter months, was completed yesterday, with the exception of the flush sewer which is to run east along Clinton avenue. The work has been in charge of Contractor James Mayberry & Son, of Passaic.

To Announce Committees.

President J. Henry Crane, of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church, will announce his committees within a few days.

In Justice Nash's Court.

Justice Nash has given the plaintiff possession of the premises in the landlord and tenant case of Emmons against Warnock.

Movements Of the New Woman

THE New York newspapers have been making a ridiculous to do over the appointment of women inspectors for steerage female passengers on board incoming steamers. These perspicacious journals start out with the general proposition that no woman can climb a ship's ladder; then they cause to be interviewed those persons who are supposed to agree to the proposition. One lady, maybe a member of the Four Hundred, perhaps says it's terrible to think of a woman trying to climb a steamer's side; another individual, perhaps a retired old fogy doctor who never crossed the Atlantic in his life, says it's preposterous to think a woman could possibly do so unladylike a thing. To cap it all, one of the journals represents the women inspectors in a state of distress over devising a costume that will enable them to perform this perilous feat of climbing an iron or rope ladder. Now look here. I give you herewith a few cold, hard facts on this question, and let them settle it. To begin, I myself in ordinary woman's clumsy and inconvenient clothing have boarded a steamer by climbing a ladder dozens of times in almost every quarter of the globe and did not think I was doing anything uncommon. Neither did anybody else. In the tropics and in the orient women passengers board ships in that manner every day, because it is the only way. There are almost no docks built out in the harbors enabling a passenger to walk aboard. The steamers at Hongkong, at Manila, at nearly every one of the Chinese and Japanese ports, at Colombo and Penang—and the list might be extended indefinitely—anchor a mile or two offshore and are reached by lighters and tenders. At Colombo today is a young woman medical inspector with her own rowboat and crew who boards every incoming steamer and examines the women passengers. Along our own Maine coast women passengers go out to sea to catch steamers, and once in Bering sea I heard a steamer captain say, "Well, I can climb a rope ladder as spry as anybody of this ship unless it is Mrs. Blank." So there!

"LOVE STORIES."

* *

After all, women are queer. An abandoned wife is suing another woman who she says "alienated" her husband's affections. The wife whines and snivels and says: "It's all the fault of that woman, the wretch! Before she got hold of him my husband loved me." Here are two points for the earnest consideration of deserted wives: First, a husband whose affections can be "alienated" by anybody or anything is not worth keeping; second, if, nevertheless, a husband does thus become alienated and his wife must get even, the husband himself is the one to "go for, not the woman. He undoubtedly wanted to be led astray. But the best way of all to get revenge on a delinquent husband is to let him go. Nine times out of ten he will be awfully sorry he went.

* *

Women are proving themselves excellent advertisement writers. A girl only sixteen years old who hit on a new and humorous idea for a good advertisement is getting $1,500 a year out of it. Advertisement writing has become a regular occupation that is now often more lucrative than regular newspaper work, especially if one can be humorous and original. It is a promising field.

* *

Whatever a woman decides to do, if she takes hold of it with pluck and determined perseverance she will win.

* *

Miss Kate E. Griswold, who has become well to do through her own distinguished ability and industry in a field previously occupied by men, had many obstacles to overcome before she succeeded. She says, however, to other women, "There is always plenty of encouragement to go on." So there is.

* *

President Roosevelt, who is so bitter against childless homes, ought to have been for a few years a laborer with a wife and six children to support on a dollar a day. Then he would have been qualified to speak.

* *

I have seen in a newspaper a letter from a high school girl complaining of the strictness of the rules she had to obey and whining over the severity of the examinations. That girl will never amount to anything. The girl that is really worth something rises to every emergency and meets it with a soul equal to it. Difficult achievements strengthen us intellectually.

* *

The president of a great university says that marriage is declining among educated women because their ideals of husbands become too high for men to meet and men feel themselves intellectually inferior to these educated women. Is not this rather hard on the men?

* *

The sun is returning to us again. Spend all the time you can outdoors and get new life. Health and magnetic power are in the sun's rays. Sweet is the light of day!

* *

The middle aged married man thinks he is paying a high compliment to an attractive woman acquaintance when he tells her how he regrets not having met her long ago, because he is sure she would have been his affinity. But it is cold, icy it is, that he never thinks to ask himself whether she would have fancied him?

ELIZA ARCHARD CONNER.

THE SENTIMENTAL GIRL.

Some of Her Traits—Why She Needs "Handling" by Women.

"The sentimental girl or woman misses a good deal out of life." This was the remark of Mrs. Worldlywise.

"Why, I thought that on the contrary"— began Miss Bud.

"Then, my dear, you were mistaken," put in the worldly woman crisply. "Like does not always attract like in this world, and one of the most striking proofs of it is that the sentimental girl rarely attracts the man sentimentally inclined."

"But the other men"—

"The latter are not attracted either. When a man discovers that a girl is romantic, inclined to believe everything he says and to take every glance from his eye as a proof that he loves her, he is apt to chuckle behind his hand and leave her. 'Too easy and too silly,' is the thought in his mind. On the contrary, the girl who is a jolly good fellow and will talk on almost any subject in preference to love is the one whom he, with the natural perversity of mankind, will lead up to the subject."

"I suppose one can pretend?" put in the debutante.

"Oh, dear, yes. One not only can, but must. And yet men blame us women for being deceitful! So if you are inclined toward love, ideals and all those nice little things don't let the men suspect it. Talk golf nonsense, verse or what you will, only avoid the slightest approach to sentiment, and you will soon find things coming your own way."

"LOVE STORIES."

"But the sentimental woman does sometimes marry?"

"Alas! yes, but her husband does not find out about her weakness till afterward. Then we see a nice household, with the mother of the family sprawling on a divan reading mushy novels because real life isn't good enough for her and the children and household arrangements going to the dogs in consequence. This, of course, is the exaggerated type of sentimental woman, but I was personally acquainted with one of her kind. She spent her time reading love stories and whatever pure money she had in going to see romantic plays until she lost all her ambition, her pride in her home and everything else a woman is supposed to have. In the end her husband divorced her, and even then she didn't seem to care much, but lounged in a chair with a box of candy at her elbow reading her perpetual novel."

"H'm-m! And I suppose she"—

"Yes, exactly so. Well, in its lesser forms sentimentality leads to a woman's thinking no one can understand her, least of all the unfortunate man who is her husband. When she is clever she writes her experiences, and then we have things like 'The Confessions of a Wife,' that make you long to shake the woman. But as a rule the sentimental woman is not clever. She contents herself with boring her husband ninety times a day with the trite remark, 'Do you love me?' or else weeping and going around the house wearing an injured expression."

"I wish," the older woman went on hastily as if she feared an interruption, "mothers would teach their daughters that while love is a good thing it isn't the whole thing; that ambition, work and success are not mere masculine attributes. Oh, yes, I know there are many women who have found that out already, but there are a lot more who ought to be helped to find it out. When we have more ambition and less analyzing among women then we shall have fewer sentimental women and as a result fewer heartbroken ones."

MAUD ROBINSON.

One Wife's Ultimatum.

A woman left her husband on the ground that he ill treated her. Finally she offered to return to him if he would sign a set of rules she drew up for his observance. One of them was that he should take a bath once a week and put on clean clothes. The husband refused flatly to sign, and it was all off again. The wife was right. A husband who will not take a bath once a week and put on clean clothes ought to live in a stable.

Helpless Women.

Many of the women of today have been kept in such a state of financial dependence that they have no more judgment than a child when it comes to spending money. Where this is the case, however, it is generally the fault of the women's husbands or fathers, who have never allowed them to learn how to take care of money.

EMBROIDERIES AND FRINGES

Russian Embroideries Popular—Flat Stoles Ornamented.

The long fur stoles are of a purely ornamental character, for they are quite ordinary wraps when worn close up to the neck and only acquire the graceful, old world air when hanging carelessly from the arms. The flat stoles of feathers will no doubt achieve some popularity in the spring, but this fashion is not a genuine success.

Russian embroideries and the pretty woven galloons in artistic colorings which so closely represent the real thing are to be much worn in the spring, and there are new embroidered trimmings to be worn medallion style, which inlet beautifully on soft cloth or silk and wool mixtures. Collars and trimmings of cut cloth edged with fine silk braid are also to be used on spring gowns and are most effective when mounted on white or a pale contrasting color.

AN IDEAL COAT.

Fringes are shown on many of the new French models for evening wear, but they are invariably combined with lace and used on very pale colors. One great universal feature of the evening bodice is the flounce or fringe which hangs from the bust and forms a sort of bolero.

A smart coat is shown in the sketch.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

SOME UP TO DATE HATS.

Modified Flat Shape—The Ever Popular Sailor.

The flat type of hat is now wide in front and is so prettily curved that it no longer suggests the plateau. Some are raised slightly in front and have a bandeau in the center; others droop in the middle and curve upward at the side, where there are bows or flowers, as the stiff, ugly cockade is rapidly dying out.

Other hats are of the picture type, gracefully raised and without any decided outline. This fashion is invariably becoming, as a hard, stiff outline forms a harsh frame for the face. The severely simple pompadour coiffure still remains in vogue, but the back hair is arranged in the most varied manner, usually loosely and carelessly.

AFTERNOON GOWN.

The gown shown is of royal blue cloth and beige appliques.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHION NOTES.

Loose Coats—Silk Fringe For Trimmings—Pale Shades.

Tucked silk and chiffon with stitchery between corded lines and spaced tucks are all used for tea or coffee coats with chiffon frills or flounces of lace.

White and cream tones, together with all the pale shades, are the rage for southern wear.

As the days become warmer we shall see a great deal of alpaca and serge.

GOWN OF WHITE AND SILVER.

These will be a change after the sibelines and faced goods which have been worn so much during the winter.

Silken fringe is one of the favorite trimmings, and lace of the fine as well as the coarse make is greatly used, black chantilly being particularly chic.

In cloth most of the coats are of the loose Chinese order. These are trimmed with fur, lace or embroidery. The same style of coat is very effective in Irish lace and is very often lined with cloth or for evening wear with satin and chiffon.

A pretty gown for a young girl is here shown. It is white and silver.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FOR DRESSY WEAR.

Evening Trimmings—Net Gowns. Contrasts In Color.

Single artificial flowers are used to border flounces or outline the decolletage, and chiffon roses or lisse poppies made by the dressmaker are appliqued on to lisse and silk gowns.

The fine gossamer net generally known as *tulle is less fragile than it ap*pears and acquires a cloudy appearance when mounted on one or two layers *of chiffon over a foundation of sat*in. Contrasts in color are much affected, and dark velvet pansies are set on a pale pink or blue gown or clusters of purple lilac or iris on a pale green.

BLACK SPANGLED GOWN.

The little sack boleros of lace or net, which are known as coffee coats, are extremely dainty and pretty for evening wear and are invariably made transparent to admit of variation when worn with different blouses.

The picture shows a very smart black spangled gown.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

COFFEE AND TEA JACKETS.

Sack Effects Popular—Inexpensive Lace Coats.

The lace coat is a delightful innovation for evening wear, as it may be worn over a soft blouse of ordinary make or with a sleeveless slip cut with a low neck. The bolero of lace with hanging frills is usually termed a coffee coat, but the longer garment, which is drawn into the waist in some fashion, is generally described as a tea jacket.

During the sales lace is sold at a tempting price, and a clever cutter can make a little coffee coat from two yards of twenty inch lace, or two and a quarter yards is ample with ordinary care. If there are stole ends, these require extra lace, and a very heavy make of lace will often split down the middle to provide the ends; therefore eighteen or twenty-seven inches extra should be allowed for these.

LOUNGING ROBE.

A pretty sack coat costume seen recently was of sage brown cloth, with collar and cuffs of ivory cloth embroidered *in blue and gold and revers of er*mine. The skirt was finished with shaped frills which did not cross the front, and lines of trimming ran down each side and were continued on the flounces.

A dainty lounging robe is the subject of the illustration.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

SEEN ON THE STREET.

Smart Models In Cape Ruffes—Zibeline Wraps.

The pelerine is now prepared for spring wear and is really a new form of cape ruffle. It will doubtless achieve popularity in its more elegant and costly form and when copied in cheap materials will soon vanish from the world of fashion.

A rich emerald panne arranged on three shaped straps, one above the other, had a deep flounce and lappets, or tails, of drab lace, and another had a narrower border of mink on the shaped stole and a deep plaited frill of brown chiffon.

Zibeline cloth is a decidedly welcome material, as it is smart in the lighter tones both for evening and carriage wear and in the darker tones makes a useful country or driving wrap. Fawn zibeline, with touches of brown panne and coarse Arab lace, gives a very smart effect, and ivory white trimmed with chiffon and soft fur makes the daintiest of evening wraps.

USEFUL COAT.

A useful coat is shown in the cut.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE POPULAR MOHAIR.

What It Is Like Today and How It Is Used.

While the great majority of shirt waists now in course of construction are of thin and fine materials, with much tucking and fancy lace embroidery adding to their beauty, many of the handsome waists are made of fine flannel, voile and, above all, of the new mohairs. Nothing has taken such a sudden rise into popularity as mohair, but it must be remembered that the mohair of today is not that of our grandmothers, but is almost a new thing. It is woven better, and the admixture of silk and wool has added to its flexibility and beauty. Now mohair is not only printed, but striped and figured, and some has tiny tufts of wool all over the surface. Others are glossy and lustrous with the old time sheen, but with a softness not known to this kind of material before this season. It has always had such a wiry feel that few ever really liked it. The mohair now is shown in all the syndicate colors, and many street suits are made of it, with all the attention to detail shown in the finest broadcloth. The cream colored mohairs are really beautiful when made up and trimmed with yellowish lace. Some pretty waists are made by having Bulgarian embroidery set along the folds and cuffs, and the funny little tab collars have the tabs wrought in this stitch. When the waist is white or a very light color and the embroidery is done in black and red or dark blue, the result is very unique and artistic.

SOME TAILOR AND CREPON WAISTS.

One pretty design in a mohair waist for a young lady is of the palest blue, almost white. This is laid in seven folds in front and five in the back. These are not stitched on the edges, but are left open like the slot seams. Arranged as a yoke across the shoulders is fine black brussels net (this, by the way, is much used in the new waists), and this is in turn edged with a pretty design of white renaissance lace. Across this again are drawn lines of black ribbon, each end finished off with a loop and button.

Another very neat and attractive waist is of ashen gray mohair, soft, but shining like the richest silk. This has a plastron front, opening at the left side and fastening with frogs and loops of black silk. A band of black silk guipure lace is used to trim the sleeves and the collar, but the cuffs are ornamented only by two frogs and loops. I saw this copied in handsome fine albatross cloth and also in French broadcloth. French twilled flannel, in a delicate frosty blue, has been also used to produce the same design. It is pretty in all.

A waist which is as well adapted for separate use or as part of a suit is that shown in the illustration. It is made of the new crapelike stuff which is so well liked by all. This stuff is made in an admixture of colors, and these are made into stripes by the crinkle in the weave. It reminds one of the deeply crinkled india crapes. The colors in the waists are so closely brought together that the whole is like reseda. There is a yoke in front made of moss green velvet, the edges are bordered with a bias band of silk to match, and this is studded with small silk buttons. The bishop sleeves have deep cuffs trimmed to match the border of the waist. This is a peculiarly girlish waist and pretty besides.

The very thin waists bid fair to surpass any yet seen in point of beauty. Such daintiness in workmanship and fancy is hard to imagine. Fine lace insertions and edgings may give an idea of the material used, but one must really see the exquisite arrangement of the medallions and crossbars of lace as arranged along the front to appreciate their delicate beauty. The way the lace is treated is such that no matter how fine it is it will be easy to launder.

A fine batiste waist trimmed with its complement of lace is so sheer that it will require a corset waist almost as delicately fashioned. The linen batiste show such a bewildering array of embroidered tracings that no one could describe them all. The mode for all white waists is certainly greater than ever before. Each new maker must imagine something new, and we get a marvelous variety. The shapes vary from the old French bodice form to the pronounced blouse. The Gibson waist is among the things of the past, as few care for them now.

HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

'Tis Glorious To Live Long And Well

A FRENCH writer of the name of Asgill somewhere speaks of the lack of steadfast will power in the human race. He goes so far as to say that with sufficient will power man might even overcome the "cowardly habit of dying." I believe he himself, however, at last succumbed to that cowardly habit in spite of his dictum. But the dictum contained truth to this extent: Undoubtedly steadfast, trained will power will help us to prolong life and also to overcome many of the evils now held to be inseparably joined to life.

It is not luck or even heredity that has enabled Mrs. Julia Goodman, an English artist, to be a beloved and useful member of the working world up to near the age of ninety-one, which she will reach next November. Luck she never had. In 1830 she was married to Mr. Louis Goodman, who years afterward became a helpless invalid and remained on her hands to be supported till his death in 1870. He did not become an invalid till several children had been born to the couple, however—worse luck!—and, in addition to the maintenance of her husband, Mrs. Goodman had these to rear and educate all alone.

Heredity was indeed in her favor. She had in her veins the vital, tenacious Hebrew blood whose possessor seldom gives down and whines. But heredity alone would have availed little except to enable Julia Salaman Goodman to linger long in a poorhouse. She had noble artistic gifts also and a wise common sense; best of all the indomitable will that thus far has kept her from yielding to the "cowardly habit of dying."

Julia Salaman was one of a family of twelve children, all of them uncommonly gifted. Their parents educated them in a practical manner. Julia ran naturally to painting. She had the best teacher of the time and adopted portraiture as her specialty. When she was thrown on the world with a husband and children to support, she naturally and easily took up again the beloved art which had been her entertainment in her fortune favored years.

From that day to this her life has been one of incessant labor—not grudging, slavish toil, but cheerful, happy tasks, so happy that you can fairly hear the joy bells ringing their accompaniment down along the years all the way. Mrs. Goodman has naturally strong power of concentration and she has cultivated it till it is enormous. These are the things that have made her and kept her—noble intellectual gifts, a strong love nature and a splendid will power. Now at ninety she paints and does needlework without glasses, only occasionally using a magnifying glass for a few of the more delicate strokes of her brush. Who, man or woman, can equal such a record?

MRS. JULIA GOODMAN.

Mrs. Goodman has painted more than a thousand portraits. Nearly or quite fifty years ago she began exhibiting her work in the Royal academy, and she has kept it up ever since. She has painted scores of the notable persons of Great Britain. She has also most socially most of those who have helped make English history in the past two generations. She has lived with her working and enjoying faculties unimpaired while five British sovereigns ruled and four of them passed away. George III. was king when she was born; she witnessed the coronation of George IV.; lived and wrought while William IV., that Victoria, reigned and died—Victoria was seven years younger than Mrs. Goodman—and now, in full possession of her artistic powers, the marvelous woman yields allegiance to King Edward VII.

It is not for the old girls that I have been at pains to trace out this life story, not for those ancient females who have let active life slide from their grasp and now sit in a corner and take things easy." These are past praying for. It is for the young girls I write, those of fourteen and upward. There is no woman in England more honored than ninety-year-old Julia Goodman.

Girls, most of you will live to be old. Will now that you are going to, anyhow, for it is a priceless privilege to stay here and keep learning something all the time and giving loving service to others. Stay here so long as you can, be as beautiful as you can all the time, love, serve and learn all you can. Above all, train your will to be strong and steadfast toward any worthy aim you desire. And that is the moral.

AMY Y. LYON.

TONGUE OF CALUMNY

Ever Busy to Injure the Reputation of Good Men.

Charges of Bribery Have Often Been Made Against Congressmen, But They Have Never Been Made Good.

[Special Washington Letter.]

"STOP thief!" it is the cry of the criminal who endeavors to divert public attention from himself.

It is a scheme as old as the hills and was practiced by thieves away back of the time of Jonathan Wild. Schindernannes or any of the others recorded in history.

"Dutch Heinrichs," one of the best known criminals in New York, about a dozen years ago got away with an immense tray full of magnificent diamonds by resorting to that old ruse. He knocked the salesman down, grabbed the tray, ran out into Broadway, handed the tray to a confederate, who stepped into an adjoining hallway, and closing the door after him, while "Dutch" ran down the street bowling "Stop thief!" followed by the salesman, who had recovered and came forth making the same cry.

Everybody joined in the chase. The salesman soon fell out of the race, "Dutch" kept the lead until the crowd numbered hundreds, and then he quietly disappeared from the chase; fortunately without meeting a policeman, who might have recognized him. His confederate filled his pocket with the gems, left the tray in the hall, met "Dutch" that night and divided, giving Heinrichs the bulk of the wealth, of course. A few days later they saw "Uncle Jim Matthews," who gave them long green paper for the shiners.

This story was told confidentially, a few months later, in "Uncle Jim's" place on Broadway, near Twentieth street, and Heinrichs said insinuatingly: "Captain of precinct had 'good reason' never to suspect me in de game."

Right under the guise of "stop thief" was recently raised in the national house of representatives by a congressman, who made a great front of virtuous indignation about having been offered a bribe, and incidentally endeavored to besmirch the reputation of so good and honorable a gentleman as Samuel E. Quigg, who never wronged any man but himself.

This is said to be the first time in the history of our country that any representative has endeavored to bring odium upon the name of an honest individual, and he also a former member of congress. In 1894 there was a general hue and cry about certain senators making use of their positions to put money in their purses by speculating in sugar stocks. A special committee was appointed by the senate to investigate the charges which newspapers had made. One by one the senators appeared before that committee and denied having had anything to do with the stock market, until Senator Quay, of Pennsylvania, appeared, and he said:

"This committee has no jurisdiction over the actions of any senator. Nevertheless, I will tell you frankly that I have speculated in sugar stocks and in other stocks for many years, and that I shall continue to do so, as long as I please."

The first case of alleged bribery to come before the congress was on December 30, 1795, when Robert Randall and Charles Whitney were charged before the house of representatives with attempting to bribe members of congress to vote for a bill granting all of the lands lying between lakes Erie, Michigan and Huron, to a company of which Randall and Whitney claimed to be the agents. This proposed steal amounted to 20,000,000 acres of land; and the company of purloined benefiaries claimed to be able to extinguish and pay for the Indian titles. This was the precursor of the land grants on which Credit Mobilier was founded.

HANDING TRAY TO HIS PAL.

Randall and Whitney approached Congressman Giles, of Virginia, and told him that while the stock of the company was the best thing he could possibly take, because of its future dividends, they had with them $1,000,000 in cash to distribute among timid senators and representatives, who preferred cash to stock. Mr. Giles arranged an interview, where Randall and Whitney met other members and repeated their bribery proposals. Then Mr. Giles indicted them for arrest, who ordered the arrest of the bribers. But, by reason of a question of jurisdiction, the United States marshal did not make the arrest. Thereupon the sergeant-at-arms of the house of representatives arrested them on December 29, and on December 30 landed them before the bar of the house, where there was begun a debate, extending a protracted debate the house, by a vote of 118 to 45 ordered the arrest of Anderson, and he was arraigned before the bar of the house, the speaker (Mr. Clay) interrogating him as to the extent of the influence proposed in his letter.

"STOP THIEF!"

It was shown that Col. Anderson had been a very brave soldier, had been loyal to his country and received the command of a regiment tendered him by the British when they held Michigan; and he was also vouched for by Gen. William Henry Harrison. Postmaster General Meigs and others of national reputation. Consequently, when the old soldier stated that he had no intention of bribery, but honestly wanted to pay for extra services which were requested by him, he was mildly reprimanded by the speaker, and released from custody.

Charges of corruption in office have oftentimes been made in the public prints, but the records of congress show no other specific charges to be formally investigated." When ever any great revenue bill is pending, it has become customary for charges of a general nature to be bandied about, but it is creditable to our country that an atmosphere established by all of the people of this the public. And when they seriously entertain the idea of presenting a statue of the confederate leader to be set up in statuary hall in the great capitol building, they ought first to ascertain if it is at all within the range of possibilities for them to induce the acceptance of such statue, for erection in such a place.

The history of statuary hall ought to be known to all of the people of Virginia, and to all of the people of the republic; but it is not. The great hall was occupied by the national house of representatives for almost 50 years previous to 1864. In that year the new marble north and south wings of the capitol were completed, and occupied by the senate and house of representatives, respectively. The room formerly occupied by the senate was formally set aside for the use of the supreme court, and it is so used until this day.

STATUE OF JOHN HANSON.

The larger room, which had been occupied by the house of representatives, was set apart, by a joint resolution of congress, to be used as a hall of statuary: "Each state, now loyal to the union, to have the privilege of placing therein the statues of two of her most distinguished citizens."

Virginia was not then "loyal to the union," and she is not entitled to the privilege of placing any statue in that hall, nor can such privilege be secured without special legislation which, the senate would be loth to enact. The time may come when the name of Lee will be as highly respected as that of Grant or of Lincoln, but the time has not come now, not yet. If the members of the legislature of Virginia were aware of this simple fact of history concerning the origin of statuary hall, and the language of the joint resolution setting it apart for that purpose, they would not have spent so much time and energy this winter in debating the accomplishment of a desire which, however dear, is impracticable.

THE STATUARY HALL

Most Interesting Spot in the Great Capitol Building.

Maryland's Contribution to Its Treasures Consists of Bronze Likenesses of John Hanson and Charles Carroll.

[Special Washington Letter.]

"THE iggerance of some pa-aple be appallin'," said Irish Mary, who sold pies to the soldiers of the Army of the Potomac.

All of her pies were covered, and one of the soldiers asked her how it was that she could cut into pies with such accuracy and give them whatever kind was asked for. She pointed to an imprint and said: "Yez see that 'T. M.,' don't yez?"

"That manes 'Tin Mince!'" she said, dramatically.

But when one of the boys pointed out the fact that she had just cut an apple pie that had "T. M." on it, she said:

"The iggerance of some pa-aple is appallin'. That manes: 'Tain't Mince.'"

Well, the iggorance of thousands of educated people, on some points, is appalling." A niece of the writer, a high school and college graduate, a young woman of considerable force of character, who has been reared and exceptionally well educated here, recently made the assertion that the national house of representatives is superior to the senate, because the right to raise the revenue is vested in the house of representatives by the constitution; and she informed her veteran uncle that "as money is the source of power, and the house raises revenue, it has greater power than the senate."

But she easily learned in the course of conversation that the senate is a coordinate body, and, by the power of amendment, usually has really more to do with raising revenue than does the house, in which the revenue bills originate.

But one of the most astounding manifestations of lack of information among people generally believed to be well educated has been set forth by the legislature of the grand old state of Virginia during the past few weeks. The memory of Robert E. Lee, the great confederate military genius, is dear to the hearts of all of the survivors of his armies; and it is particularly dear to the people of Virginia because he was a Virginian. That is all right, and perfectly natural. Nobody quarrels with that sentiment; but, on the contrary, it is commended, because worthy of commendation.

The members of the legislature of Virginian, however, ought to be aware of the fact that the memory of Robert E. Lee is not any the more affectionately cherished by all of the people of this republic, but it is not. The great hall was occupied by the national house of representatives for almost 50 years previous to 1864. In that year the new marble north and south wings of the capitol were completed, and occupied by the senate and house of representatives, respectively. The room formerly set aside for the use of the supreme court, and it is so used until this day.

STATUE OF JOHN HANSON.

The larger room, which had been occupied by the house of representatives, was set apart, by a joint resolution of congress, to be used as a hall of statuary: "Each state, now loyal to the union, to have the privilege of placing therein the statues of two of her most distinguished citizens."

Virginia was not then "loyal to the union," and she is not entitled to the privilege of placing any statue in that hall, nor can such privilege be secured without special legislation which, the senate would be loth to enact. The time may come when the name of Lee will be as highly respected as that of Grant or of Lincoln, but the time has not come now, not yet. If the members of the legislature of Virginia were aware of this simple fact of history concerning the origin of statuary hall, and the language of the joint resolution setting it apart for that purpose, they would not have spent so much time and energy this winter in debating the accomplishment of a desire which, however dear, is impracticable.

During the civil war, because of its environments, because of the constant presence and mobility of hundreds of thousands of soldiers, Maryland remained in the union, albeit everybody knows that Gov. Hicks and the people of Maryland were as anxious to secede from the union as was Virginia or any other southern state. No matter, Maryland remained in the union, and recently that state took advantage of this fact by sending to the statuary hall the statues of two of her most distinguished citizens; and they were unveiled with the greatest of pomp and ceremony.

One of these is a statue of John Hanson, of whom superficial readers of history have never heard read or remembered, and yet John Hanson was not only one of the great figures of the ante-revolution, not only a great citizen of Maryland, but also of the embyro republic, and president of the congress of the revolution.

STATUE OF CHARLES CARROLL.

John Hanson was the powerful leader who prevented Maryland from ratifying the constitution of the confederation in 1777 and 1778, when all of the other colonies, or states, had entered into that agreement. Hanson insisted that Virginia should do as Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York had done, surrender all claims to the northwestern "back lands," or northwestern territory of the confederation. After Virginia surrendered her claims, the area of Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio became the common property of the confederation. This action of the state of Maryland, under the direction of John Hanson, led directly to the ultimate formation of the federal union. This was the beginning of the constitution, a public domain; the beginning of the acquiring of public lands in common for the federal union; lands out of which free states were carved. It was the common ownership of this public domain that did more than all else to cement the states into a more perfect union. It was Hanson's foresight which made not only possible, but necessary the ordinances of 1784 and 1787, from which the federal constitution developed.

The other statue, of course, is of Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, of whom every boy and girl has read and heard. The story is well known that when he had signed the declaration of independence some one said that there were so many Carrolls that the king would not know which one to take, if he succeeded in capturing the signers, so Carroll immediately wrote beneath his signature "of Carrollcapitol were completed, and occupied by the senate and house of representatives, respectively. The room formerly set aside for the use of the supreme court, and it is so used until this day.

STATUE OF JOHN HANSON.

The larger room, which had been occupied by the house of representatives, was set apart, by a joint resolution of congress, to be used as a hall of statuary: "Each state, now loyal to the union, to have the privilege of placing therein the statues of two of her most distinguished citizens."

Virginia was not then "loyal to the union," and she is not entitled to the privilege of placing any statue in that hall, nor can such privilege be secured without special legislation which, the senate would be loth to enact. The time may come when the name of Lee will be as highly respected as that of Grant or of Lincoln, but the time has not come now, not yet. If the members of the legislature of Virginia were aware of this simple fact of history concerning the origin of statuary hall, and the language of the joint resolution setting it apart for that purpose, they would not have spent so much time and energy this winter in debating the accomplishment of a desire which, however dear, is impracticable.

The Hawaiian as a Diver.

The working crews of the islands were quartered in suitable camps near their field of labor. They were native Hawaiians, good fellows, willing workers, admirably adapted to the duty required of them, which was largely in boats and in the water. I well remember one who excelled in diving. On a certain occasion, when the placing of a deep-water mooring had just been accomplished, it became necessary to detach one of the ends of a line. A swimmer, which had been made fast to the submerged part of a spar-buoy, about 40 or 50 feet below the surface of the sea. The man was told to take his sheath-knife down with him and cut the buoy's end near its end as he could, so as to lose as little as possible of the valuable cable. Taking his knife in his teeth, he disappeared beneath the water, and remained out of sight so long that he was almost given up for lost, when he suddenly reappeared, and, on being asked if he had cut the hawser as he had been told to, reported that he had when it without cutting off any part of it whatever.

The Chinese Language.

It has long been the popular impression that the Chinese language, like the Chinese people themselves, was a curious compound and almost beyond the comprehension of an occidentalist. But it is a matter of interest to know what some of its peculiar difficulties are, as they were stated by Mr. Herbert Allen Giles, the English orientalist, in a recent lecture before Columbia university. It seems, according to this authority, that there are really two distinct Chinese languages, the spoken and the written. The former may be easily acquired, but the latter, the "book language," is a study of a lifetime Few people can read a Chinese book or write a Chinese letter, and women in particular seem to fail in this. The Chinese never possessed a grammar. —Chicago Chronicle.

Arm in Arm with a Tigress.

It is related of Sir Edward Bradford, the chief police commissioner of London, that he once walked arm in arm, so to speak, with a tigress. He was out shooting, and, always a fearless sportsman, had come to close quarters with his quarry. He fired, and either the ball failed to take effect or but slightly wounded the animal. She sprang at him, and seized his left arm in her jaws. The pain must have been terrible, but Sir Edward kept cool, and, realizing that it would be death to drag his mangled arm away and allow her to spring at his throat, he deliberately walked a few agonizing paces until his comrade was able to take him and kill the brute. Thus his courage saved his life, though the amputation of his arm at the shoulder proved necessary. —London Globe.

Fleas Called "Wild Animals."

A custom house decision on fleas has been rendered in Switzerland. A package marked "Trained Fleas" reached Geneva. The nearest analogy the collector could find was that of June bugs, which had been ruled to be "edibles." The case went from one official to another, till it reached headquarters at Berne, whence, after much investigation and deliberation, the conclusion was reached that the fleas came under the head of "wild animals in a menagerie."—Toledo Times.

Relief Promised at Last.

"And what is to be the subject of our lecture to-morrow night, professor?"

"Well, my dear young lady, I can hardly hope it will be much interest for you. I shall lecture on 'Sun Spots.'"

"O, but that's of the greatest interest to me. I suffer from acne. You've no idea how I suffer from freckles."—Stray Stories.

Cost in Japan.

The value of coal mined in Japan is almost equal to that of all other minerals combined. It varies from the hardest anthracite to peat, but the quality is unusually inferior to that of American coal. Many machinery and methods have been introduced in the operation of many mines.—Mining Journal.

They Knew Him.

Towne—Judging from what D'Auber says, all his acquaintances must be very shrewd people.

Browne—Why, has he been boasting about it?

"Yes, indirectly. I heard him bragging that he didn't owe anybody a dollar."—Philadelphia Press.

Corn Croquettes.

Mix together one pint of grated corn, one pint of stale bread crumbs, one beaten egg, two tablespoonfuls of flour, and seasoning to taste. Form into small croquettes, roll in breadcrumbs, and fry in hot fat.—Ladies' World, New York.

Poetry at Home.

"Posterity will discover me," said the poet.

"If it does," replied his wife, who was all cired out because they couldn't afford to keep a girl, "it will probably regret any time it wasted in doing so."—Chicago Record-Herald.

From Experience.

Tommy—This paper says if you smoke cigarettes it changes your complexion.

Willie—That's right; I am always tanned when I get caught smoking them.—Chicago Daily News.

Something Wrong.

Mrs. Given—Did you try that recipe I gave you for "French fried?"

Mrs. Newlywed—Yes, but it turned out a domestic bluff. My husband hasn't spoken to me since he ate the stuff.—Philadelphia Press.

BREAK THE NEWS GENTLY.

Turkish Papers Have a Queer Way of Carrying Out the Edicts of the Sultan.

There is no such thing as "yellow journalism" in Turkey; the journalism of that country is of the bleached variety. The sultan of Turkey has a censor who is a censor not. He has views, and his views "go."

Sometime ago a traveling company attempted to play "Othello" in Constantinople, and the play was presented to the censor as a mere matter of form. It was not supposed that he would find any objection to it, but he did, and a very serious objection, moreover. He objected strongly to the statement that Othello, was sent to Cyprus, for the political reason that as the island belonged to Turkey no Venetian had a right there, and the manager of the company had to send Othello to some other island before the performance was allowed.

It is a rule of the sultan that no ruler can die what is called a violent death, and the newspapers have to state such occurrences in a very careful manner. The Fourth Estate has found in a newspaper of Turin some examples of the methods employed to evade the facts of royal assassinations.

When King Humbert was assassinated at Monza, the Turkish newspapers announced this sad event in this form: "King Humbert left the hall amid the frantic cheers of the people. The king, much affected, bowed several times, and to all appearances was immediately dead." Now that was an extremely clever way of stating a distressing fact.

THE PULQUERIES OF MEXICO.

Picturesque Resorts of the City Which Attract the Tourists' Attention.

"The pulqueries of the City of Mexico are a unique feature of the life in that country which never fail to catch the eye of the tourist and attract the attention of visitors," said A. S. Chewning, of El Paso, Tex., to a Washington Star man. *"There are nearly a thou*sand such places and they dispense many carloads of pulque every day. These pulque shops are open every day in the year, and surely present a picturesque appearance. The walls are decorated with the most extraordinary pictures, principally bull fights and prize fights. The extraction of the pulque from the stems is done by hollowing out a sort of cup in one end and letting the sap flow into it, which is done very quickly. Then it is emptied into a goatskin, which is carried by the pulque dealer. A plant will yield from three to ten gallons. Every pulque shop in the City of Mexico has a name peculiarly its own, such as 'Delights of Life,' 'The Smile,' 'The Farmer,' 'The Hope,' 'The Rainbow,' 'The Image of Jesus,' 'The Inspiration' and a lot of others of a similar nature. Pulque when taken in large quantities is intoxicating. It forms the principal drink of the Mexicans, and is a thin, whitish fluid, with the odor of sour milk."

ORIGINATED RAILWAY MAIL.

The Great Service First Thought Of by a Postmaster at St. Joseph, Mo.

"I ran across an old memorandum in looking through the files the other day that showed very clearly the origin of the vast railway mail service now in vogue in the United States," said a post office official to a Washington Star man.

"The man who started what is now an elaborate system was the postmaster at St. Joseph, Mo., at the time, appointed to the position by President Buchanan. His idea grew out of the old 'pony express,' which also had its origin in St. Joseph. He evolved an ingenious system of boxes for handling his mail expeditiously on the arrival of the 'express' by rigging up a lot of partitions in an old dry goods box, and labeled each hole with the name of an office served by the 'express,' on the arrival of the 'rider' he would sort out his mail and tie up the packages in the different partitions. When baggage cars were first in vogue, the bale-box idea was used, and, crude as it was, it added greatly to the rapidity with which the mail could be handled. From this crude beginning has been evolved the most elaborate railway mail service in the entire world, and from the one man who originated it it now takes nearly 30,000 men to carry it on."

SNUFF, BUT NO TAKERS.

Uncle Sam Buys Five Pounds Yearly for the Members of Congress.

Ever since the United States senate held its first session, snuff has been provided for the members. The secretary of the senate buys five pounds every year, which is kept in two boxes, one on each side of the entrances from the lobby. Any member who wants a pinch is free to take it.

There are no snuff takers in the present senate although in the old days, of course, nearly every senator took it. The snuff in the present boxes stands untouched from one year's end to the other, but it is always there and always fresh. The snuff is provided under an old rule that has never been abrogated.

In the last report of the expenditure of the contingent fund of the senate stands this item: "Five pounds of Copenhagen snuff, $29.60.

Germany's Ships.

Germany has built the finest, fastest vessels afloat, although she is not geographically a maritime country, and no other country is so largely dependent on others for the raw materials which enter into the making of a ship.

BAD HARD STRUGGLE

But Persistence Usually Pays in the Long Run.

If You Don't Believe It, Just Read This Truthful Story—Bill Collector Made Himself at Home and Won Out.

The following story is told by the New York Times of a certain young man in Mount Vernon who has been living rather close to the ground, as the saying goes, and who was badly in need of funds.

The young man went to a friend and told him of his predicament, requesting a loan at the same time. His friend was not "touchable," however, but he told the young man that if he would collect a bill he had against a certain man whose home was in the swell district of the city he might have half of the proceeds.

The fellow accepted and made his way to the home of the debtor. A young lady answered his ring, and he inquired for Mr. B., the man of the house.

"Mr. B. is not at home," replied the young lady.

"O, he isn't?" said the collector. "Well, I'll just step in and wait for him."

Without waiting for an answer he slipped inside the door, took off his coat and hat, and sat down in an easy chair in the parlor. He picked up a paper and made himself as much at home as if the house was his own. He had read about 15 minutes when Mr. B. came into the room and inquired as to the young man's business.

"Well," said that individual, "I have a little bill here that I wish to collect. It is from R. & S."

"I am very sorry," said Mr. B., "but I am afraid that I cannot meet it just at present."

"O, there's no hurry," said the collector, "I can wait awhile," and he settled back in the chair and resumed reading the paper.

Mr. B. looked at him in surprise, and after a minute's thought, said: "Really, it is dinner time, and I am quite hungry. You must excuse me."

"Why, certainly," was the reply. "I am a little hungry myself. I don't mind eating dinner with you at all," and before the astonished man could reply he was through the door and inquiring where his seat would be. Mr. B. did not know what to do, but he was polite, and made a place for him. They ate dinner, and had a cold bottle after it, and by that time it was growing late. They talked of the weather, and one thing and another, and in time the clock struck ten, and Mr. B. began to be worried. As a last resource he remarked:

"It is time that I should retire. While your company has not been anticipated it has been enjoyable. I hope that you will call again."

But the young man was not fazed. He calmly replied: "I have been pleasantly entertained, Mr. B. Now, if you will show me to my room, I shall retire also."

Mr. B. glared at the intruder. That person simply sat and smoked his after-dinner cigar, and looked at peace with the entire world. Then he arose, continued until early in the morning, when Mr. B. lost all control of himself, pulled out his check book, wrote a check for the amount of the bill and threw it to the young man.

"Now, you blank-blanked lobster," he said, "get out of this house as quick as you can. If you don't there'll be trouble."

The collector got his hat and coat and went out into the street with a smile on his face. It was a hard struggle, but persistence had won.

When the Butterfly Sleeps.

The butterfly never goes to sleep head downwards, its eyes looking straight down the stem of the grass. It folds and contracts its wings to the utmost, partly perhaps to wrap the body from the cold. But its effort is to reduce itself also and shape to a narrow ridge, making an acute angle with the grass stem, hardly distinguishable in shape and color from the seed heads on thousands of other stems around. The butterfly also always sits at the top of the stem, which increases its likeness to the natural finial of the grass. In the morning when the sunbeams warm them, all these gray-pied sleepers on the herb tops open their wings, and the chalkhill blue's beneath (Geumurbanum) are starred with a thousand living flowers.

Rapid Growth of Islam.

Trustworthy statisticians declare that there are 250,000,000 Mohammedans in the world. The Christian population is put at 447,000,000, but the increase of Islam is more rapid than that of the combined Christian denominations.

"OH, THERE'S NO HURRY."

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

BUSY TIMES AT HOSPITAL.

The amount of work that Muhlenberg Hospital is doing in these days is greater than ever before in its history, and the resources of the institution are being severely taxed to meet the demands made upon it.

Although the wards have a normal capacity for only eighteen patients there are at present twenty-three ward patients in the institution. In addition to these there are at present five private room patients, making a total of twenty-eight inmates. The number of patients admitted during the current hospital year which began in May last is 398 against 296 in the corresponding period last year, an increase of thirty-two patients.

On the night of the recent railroad wreck, thirteen patients were admitted to the hospital which with the twenty-one already there made a total of thirty-four to be cared for that night. Since that date the number of inmates has ranged from twenty-five to thirty-one.

On a single day within the past fortnight there were six operations performed in the operating room, of which three were what are called major operations.

THERE'S BEEN A CHANGE.

North Plainfield is still continuing under the municipal control of the men who were in power before the election of last Tuesday By a majority of nearly 200, the citizens put themselves on record as believing Mayor Smalley was the man they wanted at the head of the borough affairs. There is no question now that the people of North Plainfield recognize the fact that Newton B. Smalley has been a good mayor.

The post-election talk has brought out several important facts. There has not been a desertion from the ranks of the advocates of Greater Plainfield. Almost without exception the annexationists supported Mayor Smalley. But a number of borough citizens, who had heretofore declared themselves in favor of annexation, have volunteered the information that they believe annexation and consolidation would be desirable. This class is more numerous than some people think.

It is not surprising that the greater city cause should gain adherants all the time. So will every good cause if time is given. Prejudice and failure to investigate carefully will often place a worthy man or cause in the wrong side. None of us are infallible. But, as time goes on, the rights and wrongs of the question come to the fore and the real question is understood. Every day since the special election on the annexation question, that movement has gained ground. It will continue to do so. Today, we believe there would be a fair majority in the borough in favor of annexation. It will not be long before there will be an overwhelming majority in favor of annexation and subsequent consolidation.

THE COUNTY JAIL.

It has long been a subject of pride that Union county possessed one of the best county jails in the State. Not only was it kept in the best of condition and the prisoners particularly well cared for, but it was managed economically, much more so than many jails through the State that were by no means its equal.

Now the controlling power has changed from the Board of Freeholders to the Sheriff. This is according to law or else the Union county board would have never relinquished its control without a contest. It admitted the validity of Sheriff Corsell's claim to be now in possession. It looks, however, as if he was going to continue it on the same lines as before, retaining for the present at least Warden Dodd, who has been a very efficient officer.

The subject which is now troubling both the Sheriff and the Freeholders is the question of compensation. The county will have to allow Sheriff Corsell a certain amount per prisoner per day. Just at present, the Sheriff believes he should get more than the Freeholders are willing to give him. He is in possession, however, and that may make some difference in settling the dispute. The Freeholders have the advantage, however, of holding the purse-strings.

A MOSES NEEDED.

If we are to believe all we hear it really looks as if Somerset county was going into the Democratic column for good. The Unionist-Gazette comes out and, evidently speaking for the Thompsonite Republicans, openly threatens to throw Somerset county Democratic if the Legislature does not run North Plainfield's affairs to suit the county seat. This threat loses somewhat of its force, however, when one hears that the Republican leader at Somerville has just failed to land and that his candidates in his own ballywick have been defeated.

Last November's election gave practical illustration of how the people of North Plainfield feel at outside interference. That movement, instead of dying, is growing stronger every day. With North Plainfield to assert its rights on one side and Somerville to attempt to control North Plainfield's future on the other, it is difficult to see how Somerset can keep out of the clutches of the Democrats for sometime to come.

It may be, however, if Leader Thompson lies himself over to the Democratic fold that a Moses may appear in the G. O. P. and lead his party back to the promised land and victory. Just at present the name of Thompson doesn't carry the weight in G. O. P. circles that it did once.

LIBRARY WORKERS AT SHORE

PENNSYLVANIA AND NEW JERSEY ASSOCIATIONS TO HOLD JOINT MEETING.

Will Take Place March 27 and 28 at Atlantic City—Some of the Speakers.

The plans for the seventh joint meeting of the Pennsylvania and New Jersey State Library Association at Atlantic City March 27 and 28, are practically completed.

The plans provide for three busy business sessions as well as several social functions.

The important themes to come before the meeting are "How to Promote Serious Reading," through public libraries, university extension methods, universities, women's clubs and bibliographical enterprises.

A notable array of speakers has been invited to take part. Among them are Dr. George McLean Harper, professor of belles-letters, Princeton; Herbert Putnam, congressional library, Washington; Horace Wadlin, librarian, Boston public library; Thomas L. Montgomery, State librarian, Harrisburg, Pa.; Mr. Peoples, Mercantile library, New York; Frank P. Hill, Brooklyn; Miss Winser, Newark, N. J., public library; Miss Kroeger, Drexel institute; B. Lansing Collins and W. W. Bishop, Princeton.

Mrs. Thurlow, representative of the Women's civic club, and Mr. John Nolen, secretary of the university extension, will speak of the work of these organizations for the encouragement of the reading habit and the taste for better reading

The aims of the gathering are to do much in a definite way to clear the public mind of misapprehensions regarding the sort of reading that is fostered by the public library system. Although so great a proportion of library circulation is fiction, it is pointed out that it does not necessarily follow that it is all light reading, as much of the so-called fiction is books written with a purpose and conveying invaluable information in a way to fix it in the reader's memory, as well as to stimulate higher standards of living.

Change in Store Staff.

Miss Mabel Wilson is temporarily filling the position of cashier at Hill & Shupp's store, in place of Miss Elizabeth Day, who resigned. Miss O'Keefe, who has been one of the saleswomen in the store, will have the position permanently as soon as she becomes acquainted with the details of it.

Cake Sale at Grace Church.

The most successful cake sale ever held at the Grace M. E. church was held Saturday afternoon by the King's Daughters for the benefit of the King's Daughters' nurse. The sale netted $12. It was very largely attended and as was shown by the profits the patronage was generous.

Now at Cavite.

Nelson Giles, of Madison avenue, has received a letter from his son, "Dolph" Giles, who is now at Cavite. Enclosed in the letter was an excellent photo. Mr. Giles has enlisted for another year and he will probably not return home before his time is out.

Practicing for Easter.

The choir of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church are already practicing for the Easter music which will be rendered at that church on Easter Sunday. The rehearsing is under the direction of the choir director, Walter M. McGee.

Dr. Luther to Preach.

Rev. Dr. Luther, of Orange, will occupy the pulpit at the First Baptist church next Sunday. He was at one time pastor of one of the largest Baptist churches in Newark and is a very strong preacher.

Made Supreme Court Commissioner.

John H. VanWinkle has been appointed a Supreme Court Commissioner by the Judges of the Supreme Court of this State. His commission bears the date of March 16, 1903.

Next Council Meeting.

There will be an adjourned meeting of the Common Council Monday evening, when a number of important matters will be considered.

HIGH SCHOOL JUNIORS GAVE CLEVER PLAY

Scenes From "Cranford" Were Presented at Franklin Hall Saturday Evening.

LARGE AUDIENCE THERE

YOUNG WOMEN, OF CLASS OF 1904, WON MUCH DESERVED PRAISE.

Success Largely Due to Careful Training by Miss S. Lena Bass, of Faculty—Those Who Assisted in the Production.

The young women of the class of 1904 of the City High School won lasting laurels for the class by their clever presentation of "Cranford Dames" Saturday evening at Franklin Hall. The play given was a dramatization of some of the best parts of Mrs. Gaskill's famous story "Cranford" and the scenes were laid in England, about the year 1833.

The cast follows:

Miss Matilda Jenkyns, the rector's daughter, Frances VanDeventer
Mrs. Jamieson, sister-in-law to on card, Wilhelmine Fetten
Mrs. Forrester, the widow of a major, Martha Robert
Miss Pole, a friend of Miss Jenkyns, Dorothy Fleming
Miss Mary Smith, Miss Jenkyns' young cousin, Eloise Hayes
Miss Betty Barker, a retired milliner, Mae Batchelor
Martha, Miss Jenkyns' maid . . . Jean Douglas
Peggy, Miss Barker's maid . . . . . May Murray

Each member of the cast deserves much credit for the splendid success of the affair. All took their parts with an ease of bearing and speech which showed careful rehearsing. At the end of the third scene, Miss S. Lena Bass, of the High School faculty, was presented with a large bouquet of white carnations. The flowers were presented by VanWyck Brooks, president of the class, in the name of the cast in appreciation of Miss Bass' untiring efforts in the perfection of the play. Though valuable suggestions were offered by several, the success of the evening was almost entirely due to the careful training of the cast by Miss Bass.

There were over three hundred present at the performance and a neat sum was netted. This money will be devoted to the interests of the class and it is possible that part may be given to the Athletic Association of the school.

Interludes between the scenes were rendered by Suhr's orchestra. Home made candy was sold at a beautifully decorated table in charge of Miss W. Grace Wilcox and Miss Lillian Walsh.

Seats were provided by a corps of ushers consisting of Jose L. Tweedy, Francis E. Anderson, VanWyck Brooks, George L. Babcock, Harold C. Fenno, Arthur F. Conant and Alden R. Moore. The ushers were in charge of Ralph S. Lane.

The scenery used was secured through the efforts of George L. Babcock, the stage manager. Mr. Babcock was assisted by a stage committee composed of H. C. Fenno, F. E. Anderson and J. L. Tweedy.

Dancing concluded the evening.

Wants to be Remembered.

Chief T. O. Doane, of the Plainfield fire department, has received a souvenir postal card from Former Chief Auguste Saltzman from Vlissbadeng Germany, in which he says he has just arrived there and wished to be remembered to all the boys. He asked for some Plainfield papers which, he said, were always welcome.

Transferred to Pallites.

Rather unexpectedly Warren McLaughlin, who signed to play with the Pittsburg National League baseball team this season, has been transferred to the Philadelphia National League team and he will join the team at Richmond this week. The Philadelphia Press published an excellent photo of "Warry" Saturday.

Injured in Basket Ball.

While playing basket ball Friday afternoon in Reform Hall, Arthur Humble, of Somerset street, sprained his ankle sad was taken home, where he has since been confined. The injury is not a severe sprain and it is believed that he will be able to take part in the games which have been scheduled for future dates.

Fraternal Call.

A delegation of members from Martha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America, paid a fraternal visit to Star of Elizabeth Council, No. 37, of Elizabeth, Friday evening. The Plainfielders were entertained royally and report having had an excellent time.

Preparing for Easter.

Easter Sunday this year will be on April 12, and nearly all of the local churches now have in course of preparation extra music for that day.

Glee Club Concert.

The young men's Bible class of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church is planning to hold a glee club concert in the near future.

LITERARY.

The Cosmopolitan Magazine for March contains a number of noteworthy articles. "The Police Systems of Europe," by Avery D. Andrews, formerly Police Commissioner of New York, embodies many of the results of the investigations of the author on his recent official visit to Europe, where he went to study the police systems of the leading countries. It is capitally illustrated. "The Selection of a Home," by Clarence A. Martin, professor of architecture at Cornell University, is the first of twelve articles on the general subject of "How to Administer a Household." Other articles are: "The Young Napoleons," by Field-Marshal Viscount Wolseley, K. P.; "Mankind in the Making," by H. G. Wells; "Insurance as a Profession," by Charles F. Thwing, LL. D., President of the Western Reserve University; and "Beauty in the Modern Chorus." The March Cosmopolitan also contains four complete stories in addition to Henry Seton Merriman's new novel, "Barlasch of the Guard."

"Denis Dent," a novel of thrilling adventure in the Australian gold fields, by E. W. Hornung, who wrote the Amateur Cracksman stories, begins in the March number of Leslie's Monthly, which also contains the first account of the U. S. Expedition to explore the depths on the Pacific ocean, clearly and vividly told in photograph and story, and the history of the rise and present power of one of the newest and greatest of trusts, the tobacco combine. There is a story of graceful sentiment by Roy Rolfe Gilson, with drawings by Jessie Wilcox Smith, and an animal sketch by C. G. D. Roberts, with drawings by Charles L. Bull. Two other stories of sentiment and humor; a biting tale by Maarten Maartens, and an article on Theatrical First Nights, richly illustrated, and one on the Dismal Swamp. A clever satire, called "The Literary Graveyard," and an article on "Limericks" enliven the end of the magazine.

The March McClure's will not only be read; it will be talked about for many days to come. Lincoln Steffens's "The Shamelessness of St. Louis" is an article that can't be dodged; is is, indeed, as Mr. Steffens says "something new in the history of American municipal bad faith." Of distinct importance, also, is Samuel Moffett's article "The War on the Locomotive," which is a surprising revelation of what the trolley people are up to, in the new inter-urban development of electric travel. Miss Tarbell's fifth chapter of Standard Oil History treats of "The Price of Trust Building," and must certainly not be missed. Stewart Edward White begins his new series of "Blazed Trail" stories with "The Scaler," a logging tale such as Mr. White knows best how to tell. The Conversations of Father Cassidy" is the best of all Herminie Templeton's Irish stories. "Love Among the Blackboards," by Myra Kelly, recounts the very diverting experiences of "Teacher" in an East Side society. Arthur Stanwood Pier's new novel, "The Triumph," is in its second instalment, and promises to be as good a story as is anywhere running serially today.

The high authority of the series on the Government of the United States now appearing in Scribner's Magazine is again shown in the March number by the article on "The Supreme Courts of the United States" by Hon. David J. Brewer, Associate Justice. The instant favorable reception given to John Fox's serial, "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" has been marked by a flood of personal letters to the author and by enthusiastic praise in the press. The third instalment shows that Mr. Fox has got his pace and keeps it. Here "Chad" has many amusing experiences at school in the Bluegrass, where the customs of the mountaineer seem strangely out of place. This century is spoken of generally as one of utility and not of beauty and yet in an article on "The Twentieth Century City" John Corbin reveals many of the strikingly picturesque aspects of modern life. His text is fully borne out by a series of reproductions from remarkable photographs by the chief of our cameramen, Alfred Stieglitz. R. C. Peixotto, the artist, has been making studies abroad of Punch-and-Judy shows, and he writes very entertainingly about them, and illustrates them in his articles entitled "Marionettes and Puppet Shows." There are four illustrated short stories.

PRINCETON DINNER.

Will be Held at Park Avenue Hotel March 26.

The annual dinner of the Union County Princeton Alumni Association will be held at the Park Avenue Hotel, Thursday evening, March 26. Among the speakers who will be in attendance are Dr. Thomas G. Hall, of New York; Robert McCarter, of Newark, and Paul VanDyke. Samuel St. John McCutchen, of the borough, will respond for Yale. The committee which has the affair in charge consists of Walter Gaston, Dr. B. VanD. Hodges and Dr. W. H. Murray.

ORANGE BOYS WERE GUESTS OF Y. M. C. A.

Delegation From Association at Orange Came Here and Spent Saturday Afternoon.

PLAYED BASKET BALL

PLAINFIELD JUNIORS DEFEATED TEAM OF ORANGE JUNIORS.

Then Leal's School Boys Beat School Team From Orange—A Pleasant Afternoon Was Spent by the Visitors—Other Details.

Orange Day was observed at the Y. M. C. A., Saturday, when a large delegation of members of the Orange association were present and enjoyed the afternoon and the freedom of the building extended to them by the members of the local association.

A basket ball game was played between the junior members of the two associations and another was played between the students of the Orange Association and members of Leal's School. The result of the game between the juniors was 6 to 4 in favor of the local team, and the score of the game between the Leal's and the Students was 33 to 5 in favor of the Leal's.

The line-up of the first game was:

Y. M. C. A.	Orange Juniors.
Steiner	right forward
Manning	left forward
Webster	right guard
Bently, Gilmore	left guard

Livingston
Cole
Wachenfeld
Hill

The line-ups of the game between the Leals and the students was:

Leals.	Orange Students.
Bigiow	right forward
Schoenmacher	left forward
A. Abbott	center
E. Abbott	right guard
Doane	left guard

Tappin
Pearse
Slater
Condit
Schultz

In the first game C. E. A. Heywood was the referee and C. M. Chestly and Kenneth Robbie were the umpires. Mr. Chestly was the referee and Mr. Robbie and Mr. Heywood were the umpires in the second game, which was an exciting one.

After the games a social time was enjoyed in the parlors of the association during which refreshments were served by several women of the auxiliary, who were Mrs. Harry Gee, Mrs. S. H. Tugwell, Mrs. John Stewart and Mrs. N. Y. Hull.

NOVICE ATHLETES COMPLETE

THIRD NIGHT IN Y. M. C. A. INDOOR ATHLETIC CONTEST.

W. Bently Won Three Standing Broad Jumps, and Two Tied in Running High Kick.

The third night in the novice indoor athletic contest at the Y. M. C. A. was held Saturday evening. The two events which were run off were the standing broad jump and the running high kick.

The three standing broad jumps brought out some good work and the scores were as follows: W. Bently, 26 feet 6 inches; Ray Smith, 25 feet 6 inches; W. Swann, 24 feet 1 inch; Walter McNaughton, 24 feet; Ralph Collins, 23 feet 8 inches; H. Brokaw, 23 feet 4 inches; Chauncey Koons, 23 feet, 2 inches; Richard Tice, 23 feet 1 inch. The first place was taken by W. Bently.

In the running high kick Wilbur Bentliff and Walter McNaughton tied at 7 feet 10 inches. In the kick off McNaughton made 8 feet 1 inch and Bentliff made 7 feet 9 inches. The other scores were: Herbert Brokaw, 7 feet 9 inches; Ray Smith, 7 feet 5 inches; Ralph Collins, no score; Chauncey Koons, 6 feet 1 inch.

Saturday evening the fourth group of the events will be run off and they will be the standing high jump and the rope climb.

GOLF AT HILLSIDE.

That Course Will Open for Play May 1—Plans for Season to Come.

The formal opening of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club course is scheduled for May 1. It is expected that there will be the usual weekly competitions, together with many other competitions for cups. The course will be in the best of condition by the opening day. It is also intended to make tennis a strong feature this season and several competitions will be arranged.

George Bentliff, as president of the club, will undoubtedly plan for a season of much activity socially and otherwise. Within a short time the schedule will be out and plans will be made known. Steward Lord will probably not return. He is now in Brooklyn. It is said that negotiations are now under way toward securing another steward.

Mrs. Joseph P. Humble, of Somerset street, has been visiting friends at Bound Brook.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

The Standard Railroad of America.

PROTECTED THROUGHOUT BY THE INTERLOCKING SWITCH AND BLOCK SIGNAL SYSTEM.

On and after Jan. 18, 1903.

Trains will leave Elizabeth as follows:

For Boston, Fast line daily, with Pullman Vestibule Parlor Cars and Dining Car; Cleveland, Northern and Eastern Pennsylvania Express, daily.

For Buffalo, Niagara Express daily, with Pullman Vestibule Sleeping Cars and Dining Car; Cleveland, Northern and Eastern Pennsylvania Express, except Saturday.

For Pittsburg, Pacific Express, daily, with Pullman Vestibule Sleeping Cars, for Pittsburg; Chicago, daily, for Rochester, via Shamokin and Valley Route, for Cleveland, except Saturday.

The Southern's Palm Limited—1.20 p.m. week-days.

The Atlantic Coast Line Florida Special—2.35 p.m. week-days.

Seaboard Florida Limited—3.27 p.m. daily.

For Baltimore and Washington, and the South, 1.00, 3.30, 7.00, 9.00 a.m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 3.27, 4.00, 7.00, 10.00 p.m. Sundays, 1.00, 3.30, 7.00, 9.00 a.m., 1.00, 3.27, 4.00, 7.00 p.m.

On Sunday at 1.00, 9.00 a.m., 1.00, 3.27, 10.00 p.m.

For Newark and New York—5.00, 6.15, 6.45, 7.15, 7.30, 8.00, 8.15, 8.30, 8.45, 9.00, 9.15, 9.30, 9.45, 10.00, 10.15, 10.30, 10.45, 11.00, 11.15, 11.30, 11.45 a.m., 12.00, 12.15, 12.30, 12.45, 1.00, 1.15, 1.30, 1.45, 2.00, 2.15, 2.30, 2.45, 3.00, 3.15, 3.30, 3.45, 4.00, 4.15, 4.30, 4.45, 5.00, 5.15, 5.30, 5.45, 6.00, 6.15, 6.30, 6.45, 7.00, 7.15, 7.30, 7.45, 8.00, 8.15, 8.30, 8.45, 9.00, 9.15, 9.30, 9.45, 10.00, 10.15, 10.30, 10.45, 11.00, 11.15, 11.30, 11.45 p.m., 12.00 night.

For Philadelphia—5.00, 6.15, 6.45, 7.15, 7.30, 8.00, 8.15, 8.30, 8.45, 9.00, 9.15, 9.30, 9.45, 10.00, 10.15, 10.30, 10.45, 11.00, 11.15, 11.30, 11.45 a.m., 12.00, 12.15, 12.30, 12.45, 1.00, 1.15, 1.30, 1.45, 2.00, 2.15, 2.30, 2.45, 3.00, 3.15, 3.30, 3.45, 4.00, 4.15, 4.30, 4.45, 5.00, 5.15, 5.30, 5.45, 6.00, 6.15, 6.30, 6.45, 7.00, 7.15, 7.30, 7.45, 8.00, 8.15, 8.30, 8.45, 9.00, 9.15, 9.30, 9.45, 10.00, 10.15, 10.30, 10.45, 11.00, 11.15, 11.30, 11.45 p.m., 12.00 night.

For Atlantic City—10.30 a.m. and 3.35 p.m. week-days. Sundays—10.30 a.m. Parlor Cars and Vestibule Trains. Buffet Parlor Cars and Dining Car. 1.00 p.m. week-days. Vestibule Smoking Car, Parlor Cars, Dining Car and Buffet Parlor Car. Sundays—1.00 p.m.

For Cape May—8.00 a.m. week-days.

For Seaway—1.00, 6.44, 7.15, 8.00, 9.00, 9.07, 9.40, 11.07, 11.07, 11.40 a.m., 12.00, 12.40, 1.00, 2.07, 2.40, 3.07, 3.40, 4.00, 4.40, 5.00, 5.40, 6.07, 6.40, 7.07, 7.40, 8.07, 8.40, 9.07, 9.40, 10.07, 10.40, 11.07, 11.40 p.m., 12.00 night. Sundays—1.00, 6.44, 7.15, 8.00, 9.00, 9.07, 9.40, 10.07, 10.40, 11.07, 11.40 a.m., 12.00, 12.40, 1.00, 2.07, 2.40, 3.07, 3.40, 4.00, 4.40, 5.00, 5.40, 6.07, 6.40, 7.07, 7.40, 8.07, 8.40, 9.07, 9.40, 10.07, 10.40, 11.07, 11.40 p.m., 12.00 night.

For New Brunswick—6.44, 7.15, 8.00, 9.00, 9.07, 9.40, 11.07, 11.40 a.m., 12.00, 12.40, 1.00, 2.07, 2.40, 3.07, 3.40, 4.00, 4.40, 5.00, 5.40, 6.07, 6.40, 7.07, 7.40, 8.07, 8.40, 9.07, 9.40, 10.07, 10.40, 11.07, 11.40 p.m., 12.00 night week-days. Sundays—10.00, 11.44 a.m., 12.40 p.m.

For Perth Amboy—6.44, 9.40, 11.07 a.m., 12.40, 2.07, 3.40, 4.40, 5.40, 6.40, 7.40, 8.40, 9.40, 10.40, 11.40 p.m., 12.00 night week-days. Sundays—10.00, 11.44 a.m., 12.40 p.m.

For Rahway—6.44, 9.40, 11.07 a.m., 12.40, 2.07, 3.40, 4.40, 5.40, 6.40, 7.40, 8.40, 9.40, 10.40, 11.40 p.m., 12.00 night week-days. Sundays—10.00, 11.44 a.m., 12.40 p.m.

For Elizabeth—6.44, 9.40, 11.07 a.m., 12.40, 2.07, 3.40, 4.40, 5.40, 6.40, 7.40, 8.40, 9.40, 10.40, 11.40 p.m., 12.00 night week-days. Sundays—10.00, 11.44 a.m., 12.40 p.m.

For Metuchen—6.44, 9.40, 11.07 a.m., 12.40, 2.07, 3.40, 4.40, 5.40, 6.40, 7.40, 8.40, 9.40, 10.40, 11.40 p.m., 12.00 night week-days. Sundays—10.00, 11.44 a.m., 12.40 p.m.

For Metuchen—6.44, 9.40, 11.07 a.m., 12.40, 2.07, 3.40, 4.40, 5.40, 6.40, 7.40, 8.40, 9.40, 10.40, 11.40 p.m., 12.00 night week-days. Sundays—10.00, 11.44 a.m., 12.40 p.m.

For Trenton—1.00, 6.44, 7.15, 8.00, 9.00, 9.07, 9.40, 10.07, 11.07 a.m., 12.00, 12.40, 1.00, 2.07, 2.40, 3.07, 3.40, 4.00, 4.40, 5.00, 5.40, 6.07, 6.40, 7.07, 7.40, 8.07, 8.40, 9.07, 9.40, 10.07, 10.40, 11.07, 11.40 p.m., 12.00 night. Sundays—1.00, 6.44, 7.15, 8.00, 9.00, 9.07, 9.40, 10.07, 10.40, 11.07, 11.40 a.m., 12.00, 12.40, 1.00, 2.07, 2.40, 3.07, 3.40, 4.00, 4.40, 5.00, 5.40, 6.07, 6.40, 7.07, 7.40, 8.07, 8.40, 9.07, 9.40, 10.07, 10.40, 11.07, 11.40 p.m., 12.00 night.

For Lambertville, Phillipsburg and Belvidere, via Trenton—6.44, 9.40, 11.07 a.m., 12.40, 2.07, 3.40, 4.40, 5.40, 6.40, 7.40, 8.40, 9.40, 10.40, 11.40 p.m. Sundays—10.00, 11.44 a.m., 12.40 p.m.

For Flemington—11.40 a.m. and 3.40 p.m.

For Long Branch, Ocean Grove, via Monmouth Junction—8.00, 11.40 a.m., 3.35, 5.28 and 8.15 p.m. week-days. Sundays—9.07 a.m.

For Long Branch, Ocean Grove and Points on New York and Long Branch R. R. and Coast Line—8.00 a.m., 3.35 and 8.15 p.m. week-days. Sundays—10.28 a.m. and 4.51 p.m. week-days. Sundays—10.28 a.m. and 4.51 p.m. Stop at Interlaken for Asbury Park and Ocean Grove on Sundays.

For Brooklyn, N. Y.—All through trains connect at Long Dock with boats of Brooklyn Annex, affording direct transfer to and from Fulton Street, avoiding double ferriage. Through cars to Brooklyn Navy Yard.

Leave New York for Elizabeth—From West 23d Street, 5.45, 6.45, 7.45, 8.45, 9.45, 10.45, 11.45 a.m., 12.45, 1.45, 2.45, 3.45, 4.45, 5.45, 6.45, 7.45, 8.45, 9.45, 10.45, 11.45 p.m., 12.45, 1.45, 2.45, 3.45, 4.45, 5.45, 6.45, 7.45, 8.45, 9.45, 10.45, 11.45 p.m. From Cortlandt Street, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 a.m., 12.30, 1.30, 2.30, 3.30, 4.30, 5.30, 6.30, 7.30, 8.30, 9.30, 10.30, 11.30 p.m. From Desbrosses and Cortlandt Streets, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 a.m., 12.00, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p.m., 12.00 night.

For time from Desbrosses and Cortlandt Streets boats, consult time tables, or apply to ticket agents.

W. W. ATTERBURY, J. R. WOOD,
Gen'l Manager. Gen'l Pass. Agent

Vegetable and Flower SEEDS

Reliable and Tested. Catalogue Mailed Free

WEEBER & DON
Seed Merchants
114 CHAMBERS STREET
NEW YORK

A. WOLFF,

Manufacturer of

CIGARS.

And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from 261 West Front street, to South side of Somerset street, first door from Front street, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

AGENTS WANTED.

LIFE OF T. DEWITT TALMAGE, by his son, REV. FRANK DEWITT TALMAGE and associate editors of Christian Herald. Only book endorsed by Talmage family. Enormous profit for agents who act quickly. Outfit ten cents. Write immediately CLARK & CO. 227 S Fourth Street, Phila., Pa. Mention this paper. 2 14

GEORGE W. DAY,

General Auctioneer.

Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 192, Dunellen, N J, or at dress in care of Constitutionalist Terms reasonable

Woolston & Buckle,

PAINTERS.

Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies

141-145 North avenue.

An Assorted Social.

The Epworth League of Grace M. E. church will hold a social at the church, Friday evening. The committee, which has the arrangements in charge, has called it an "Assorted Social" and novel features and entirely new ideas will be inducements to a large attendance.

Reading System

New Jersey Central.

Stations in New York foot of Liberty, and South Ferry, Whitehall Streets.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT Feb. 8, 1903

Trains leave Elizabeth as follows:

For Somerville—6.00, 7.15, 8.03, 9.05, 9.54, 11.03 a.m., 12.05, 1.05, 2.05, 3.05, 4.05, 5.05, 6.05, 7.05, 8.05, 9.05, 10.05, 11.05 p.m. Sundays—8.00, 9.05, 10.05, 11.05 a.m., 12.05, 1.05, 2.05, 3.05, 4.05, 5.05, 6.05, 7.05, 8.05, 9.05, 10.05, 11.05 p.m.

For Bound Brook—6.00, 7.15, 8.03, 9.05, 9.54, 11.03 a.m., 12.05, 1.05, 2.05, 3.05, 4.05, 5.05, 6.05, 7.05, 8.05, 9.05, 10.05, 11.05 p.m. Sundays—8.00, 9.05, 10.05, 11.05 a.m., 12.05, 1.05, 2.05, 3.05, 4.05, 5.05, 6.05, 7.05, 8.05, 9.05, 10.05, 11.05 p.m.

For Bethlehem, Allentown and Mauch Chunk—9.05 a.m., 5.05 p.m. Sundays—5.05 p.m.

For Easton—9.05 a.m., 5.05 p.m. Sundays—5.05 p.m.

For Long Branch and Ocean Grove, 9.05 a.m., 5.05 p.m. Sundays—5.05 p.m.

For Asbury Park—9.05 a.m. Sundays—5.05 p.m.

For Lakewood—Same River as Asbury Park.

For Atlantic City—8.45 a.m. Sundays—8.00 a.m.

For Philadelphia—5.15, 7.45, 8.30, 9.15, 9.45, 10.30, 11.15, 11.45 a.m., 12.30, 1.15, 2.30, 3.15, 4.30, 5.15, 6.30, 7.15, 8.30, 9.15, 10.30, 11.15 p.m. 1.17 night. Sundays—4.15, 5.15, 6.30, 7.15, 8.30, 9.15, 10.30, 11.15 a.m., 12.30, 1.15, 2.30, 3.15, 4.30, 5.15, 6.30, 7.15, 8.30, 9.15, 10.30, 11.15 p.m. 1.17 night.

For Trenton—5.15, 7.45, 8.30, 9.15, 9.45, 10.30, 11.15, 11.45 a.m., 12.30, 1.15, 2.30, 3.15, 4.30, 5.15, 6.30, 7.15, 8.30, 9.15, 10.30, 11.15 p.m. 1.17 night. Sundays—4.15, 5.15, 6.30, 7.15, 8.30, 9.15, 10.30, 11.15 a.m., 12.30, 1.15, 2.30, 3.15, 4.30, 5.15, 6.30, 7.15, 8.30, 9.15, 10.30, 11.15 p.m. 1.17 night.

For Pottsville, Sunbury and Williamsport—9.05 a.m., 5.05 p.m. Sundays—5.05 p.m.

For Baltimore and Washington—9.14, 11.16 a.m., 12.05, 1.05, 2.05, 3.05, 4.05, 5.05, 6.05, 7.05, 8.05, 9.05, 10.05, 11.05 p.m. Sundays—Limited, 9.14 a.m., 1.05, 2.05, 3.05, 4.05, 5.05, 6.05, 7.05, 8.05, 9.05, 10.05, 11.05 p.m. Sundays—Limited, 9.14 a.m., 1.05, 2.05, 3.05, 4.05, 5.05, 6.05, 7.05, 8.05, 9.05, 10.05, 11.05 p.m.

Chasers cars at Round Brook.

For time tables, rates & See. Man'gr.
C. M. BURT, Gen. Pas. Agent.

Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Time Table in Effect February 8, 1903.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N.J.

Leave South Plainfield 10.24 a. m.

Daily (except Sunday) local to Mauch Chunk connecting with the Black Diamond express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Detroit and Chicago.

Leave South Plainfield 6.40 p. m.

Daily, Solid Vestibule train for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago and principal intermediate stations, except Hoboken and Jersey City.

For time of local trains see pocket time-tables. Telephone No. 113-B

FRANK BOWLEY, Ticket Agent,
239 West Front Street, Plainfield, N. J.

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POSTOFFICE.

Office opens 7 a. m.; closes 7 p. m.
On Saturday's closes half hour later.

Arrive—7.30, 9.40, 11.00 a. m., 2.30, 5.00, 6.30 p. m.
Close—8.00 a. m., 12.00, 3.00, 6.00, 7.30 p. m.

SOMERVILLE and RARITAN.

Arrive—9.40 a. m., 2.30 and 7.00 p. m.
Close— " a. m., 1.45 and 4.00 p. m.

ELIZABETH—Direct.

Close—1.00 p. m.

PENNSYLVANIA—West of Easton

Close 12.05 p. m.

DELAWARE—Direct.

Arrive—9.40 a. m., 2.30 and 7.00 p. m.
Close—7.30 a. m., 12.00 and 6.00 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—7.30, 9.40, 11.00 a. m., 2.30 and 7.00 p. m.
Close—8.00 and 10.00 a. m., 3.00, 6.00 and 7.30 p. m.

Mail for Europe by Steamer will be sent on hours close and sailing of ships.

Through fast mail for East, close 1.00 and 6.00 p. m.

WATCHUNG, WARRENVILLE & GALLIA (Mt. Bethel)

Arrive—1.00 p. m. Close—8.00 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 9.00 to 10.00 a. m.
Mail closes at 6.30 p. m.

R. H. BIRD, P. M.

NOTICE of Copyright Renewal, Class C. XXC. No. 4005, Library of Congress to wit: Be it remembered that on the 27th day of January, 1903, Mrs. Mary Runyon Lowry, of Plainfield, New Jersey, has deposited in this office the titles of twenty-four musical compositions, by Robert Lowry, viz: "All the way my Saviour leads me," "We will journey on," "When the Comforter came," "Yield, O Yield," "Take up the Cross," "Weary Sinner," "Wholly Thine," "Star of the Morning," "So near to the King," "Where is my wandering boy?" "Unto us a child is born," "One more song for Jesus," "Good night," "Every day and hour," "Where is my boy?" "Bless the Lord O my soul," "Our Children," "Shall we gather at the river," "Ye must be born," "Coming By and By." These in renewal for fourteen years from April 27, 1903. "Still with Thee," "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," for four-teen years from Nov. 19, 1903. The right whereof he claims as proprietor, in conformity with the laws of the United States respecting copyrights. Office of Register of Copyrights, Washington, D. C. Herbert Putnam, Librarian of Congress, by Thorvald Solberg, Register of Copyrights. 3 28 4

SETTLERS' TICKETS

TO WESTERN POINTS

ARE NOW ON SALE VIA THE

LEHIGH VALLEY RAILROAD,

At Extremely Low Rates of Fare.

Dates of Sale.

Daily to and including April 29, 1903.

Stop-overs.

Stop-over will be allowed by Western lines subject to the local regulations of the line over which the ticket reads. Detailed information as to points of stop-over, limits, etc., may be secured on application to agents.

Through Trains via the Lehigh Valley R. R.

Connect at Chicago with all lines for the North-west. Direct connections with Pullman Sleepers are included in all through tickets routed beyond Chicago where necessary.

Inquire of Ticket Agents Lehigh Valley Railroad, for time of trains, etc., or address Charles S. Lee, General Passenger Agent, 26 Cortlandt Street, New York. 2 5 4 7 ow C 3 5 7 ow

We Can Sell Your Farm,

Factory, business or Residence. No matter where it is located, we have hundreds of others. Why not register your property in our original method which secures both buyer and seller.

MAYOR MAKES APPOINTMENTS

At the First Session of the New Borough Council—Little Other Business Done.

ADDRESS BY THE MAYOR

Mayor Smalley Hopes for Sewers Soon—Favors Continuation of Widening of Somerset Street, and Wanted Plans for Engine House Carried to Completion.

Appointments were made and confirmed at the first meeting of the Borough Council for the fiscal year when that body met last Monday in the Council chambers. There was a large attendance at the meeting which lasted but an hour. The time was occupied in swearing in the new appointees and in getting in shape for another year's business.

When the meeting opened Mayor Smalley said that during the four years in which he has served the people of North Plainfield as their mayor the Council has supported and stood behind him and he hoped that the friendly relations would continue. He touched briefly on the sewerage question and said that he hoped a settlement of this important question would be made, thus providing the borough with this much needed improvement. He also touched upon the streets and said that he looked for many improvements especially since there had been an increase in the appropriation and referred to the widening of Somerset street north of Jackson avenue, an improvement which, he said, was necessary to the progress of the borough, and he was ready to go ahead with the improvement as soon as the Council should think it was advisable to do so.

In regard to the proposed new engine house he said it was his wish and hope that that matter would soon be straightened out and the plans of the original proposed house be carried out to completion.

The appointments made by Mayor Smalley were as follows: Borough clerk and auditor, Frank Bowley; recorder, Thomas Doud; counsel, Charles A. Reed; overseer of the poor, William G. Debele; chief engineer of the fire department, J. J. Stahl; first assistant engineer of the fire department, Herman Klinsman; engineer of Warren Engine Company, Louis Feiring; electrician, Alonzo Brokaw; janitor of Warren Engine Company, George Steward; janitor of the West End Hose Company, Frank Perry; chief marshal, William Campbell; regular marshal, Lawrence Fahn; borough physician, no appointment.

These are the special marshals appointed: Harry S. Potter, Frank E. Winn, Lemuel W. Pope, Francis W. Whitney, Herman Klinsman, Richard McDonald, Emile Coley, William Kierman, George Gunther, Patrick Regan, Alex. G. Mairs, Henry Myers, Robert Carson, Frank B. Woodruff, Harry Shearer, Dr. J. H. Buchanan, E. A. Francis, Peter B. Matthews, Dr. D. C. Adams, Walter Smalley, George Weiss, Peter Blake and Andrew F. Marsh.

The following committees were named by the mayor:

Streets and public health—James K. Arnold, chairman; Robert Clark, Jr., Morris C. VanArsdale.

Fire, water and lamps—Robert Clark, Jr., James P. Northrup, Charles A. Lee.

Auditing and finance—Charles L. Nichols, James P. Norshrup, James K. Arnold.

License and marshals—Charles Lee, Morris C. VanArsdale and Robert Clark, Jr.

Lamps, ordinances and taxation—James P. Northrup, Charles L. Nichols, James K. Arnold.

Stationary and supplies—Morris C. VanArsdale, Charles L. Nichols and Charles A. Lee.

R. C. VanEmburgh and Frank J. Hubbard were appointed borough engineers. All the work on the west side of Somerset street will be given to Mr. Hubbard and all that on the east side will be in charge of Mr. VanEmburgh.

Several important resolutions were offered and adopted. By Councilman Nichols: That the rules governing the Council in 1902 remain as the standard of government in 1903.

By Councilman Lee: That Councilman Northrup be chosen president of the Council. By Mr. Lee: That the regular marshal's bond be $500, and that the regular meetings of the Council be, as they have been in the past, on every first Friday in each month.

By Councilman VanAsdale: That the clerk and auditor give a bond of $1,000.

The Mayor announced the rates of salaries for the various borough officials as follows: Borough clerk and auditor, $800; counsel, $200; recorder, $200; borough physician, $125; chief marshal, $720; marshal, $600; special marshals, 25 cents per hour or $2 per day while on duty; chief engineer of the fire department, $100; engineer of Warren Engine Company, $90; janitor of Warren Engine Company, $75; janitor of West End Company, $65; electrician, $150; overseer of the poor, $150.

The only business transacted besides the naming of the appointees for the new fiscal year was the offering of the resolution by Councilman Arnold for the advertising for bids for crushed stone, flagging and curbing, which was adopted. The bids will be opened at a meeting of the street committee at some future date.

The meeting adjourned until the first Friday in April.

ASSESSOR FRENCH'S REASON

SAYS THAT THERE WAS NO FAILURE ON HIS PART TO ASSESS TAXES.

No Harm Resulted, He Says, Because More Than Enough Was Unexpectedly Received.

Assessor French stated in an interview this morning that the statement published recently in the Review to the effect that in 1901 he failed to assess $2,000 which the Borough Board of Education had ordered him to assess, and that, consequently, that amount had to be doubled in 1902, is absolutely false.

He declared that he assessed in 1901 every dollar which he was directed to assess and one of the principal members of the School Board had admitted that there was no doubling up in 1902. If the clerk of the School Board failed to notify him that $2,000 more was needed in 1901, he explained that no harm resulted from that because the School Board unexpectedly received from the State more than enough to make up this amount in that year. The result is, he said, that the borough taxpayers were saved $2,000 in 1901 and the tax rate in 1902 would have been just the same in any event as no less than 97 cents on the $100 would raise the amount which the Board demanded in 1902.

NEWARK TERMINAL

Announcement of Plans by the Jersey Central, is Expected Sometime This Month.

Announcement of the plans of the Jersey Central Railroad for the improvement of the Broad street terminal of its line at Newark is expected to be made some time this month.

Engineers have made preliminary surveys for the erection of various kinds of structures that might be suitable for such a site, and other preliminary matters arranged for. The company has determined to build and notification was sent to the tenants of the present depot building that the premises must be vacated by May 1.

One of the plans that was first taken under consideration by the railroad authorities was that of erecting a large combination terminal, with offices and stores. Another set of plans which it was reported the company has taken under advisement specifies a building for railroad use exclusively. The present Broad street depot buildings of the railroad have a total frontage of 100 feet.

TWO CLAIMANTS.

Surrogate Fitzgerald, of New York, Will Hold Hearing to Decide Which is Widow.

Surrogate Fitzgerald, of New York, has set aside March 24 as a day on which to take testimony and decide who of the two claimants as widow, is entitled to the estate of George E. Reed, of this city, one of the New Jersey Central wreck victims on January 27.

Letters of administration have been granted both women, Mrs. Eleanor Reed and Mrs. Mary Alice Reed, but curiously enough Reed left no estate. The only material advantage that will accrue from the decision will be the right to recover damages from the railroad. This, according to the basis of his probable earnings, will amount to $25,000.

Visitors From Stirling.

A number of boys, accompanied by Mr. Salaiman, an Armenian, visited the Y. M. C. A., Saturday morning, and enjoyed the privileges of the building. The party came to this city from Stirling and during the morning Mr. Salaiman gave a short talk to the boys on appreciating the things of every day life.

On Road to Recovery.

John Sheppard, of Watchung and Manning avenues, had an operation performed a few days ago for a cancer on his body. The operation was performed by Dr. J. Harvey Buchanan and the patient is now well on the road to recovery.

Thomas Meany, of Elm place, has gone to Jutland, N. J., on account of the serious illness of his mother.

BETTER HOURS; BETTER WORK

PROF. CHARLES ZUEBLIN TALKS ON "WORK AND WEALTH."

He Believes Shorter Working Days Was Necessary to Better Results.

The fourth of the university extension *course of lectures was given Sat*urday evening at the Y. M. C. A. Hall by Prof. Charles Zueblin, of Chicago University.

His subject was "Work and Wealth" and he treated it in a very masterful manner.

Public employment generally recognizes the need of a standard, he said, and during his lecture he showed that a shorter working day was necessary to better results. The proper observance of Sunday was also shown to be prolific of better results than by working men seven days a week and three-fourths of a day and sometimes more. Saturday, he affirmed, should be set aside for a half holiday for working men, as they would then have an opportunity of doing their shopping during the afternoon without obliging clerks to work Saturday nights.

Wealth, said the speaker, should make some concessions to labor and if these are granted, in the way of shorter hours, Saturday half holidays and summer vacations, wealth would soon follow the increased amount of work turned out by mechanics.

HE TOLD OF THE CHINAMEN

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE BY REV. DR. RHOADES AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

Related Entertainingly of Subject of Which He Had An Extensive Knowledge.

The illustrated lecture given in the First Baptist church last Sunday on "China" by Rev. Dr. C. L. Rhoades, of New York, was one of the best ever listened to. The speaker's extensive knowledge of the subject and his attractive and entertaining manner of telling about it held the closest attention of the large congregation throughout.

Dr. Rhoades commenced by showing the relation of all other countries to China and how they were faced toward the east. He told of the wonderful achievements of the Chinese and what a remarkable people they are.

In speaking of the Chinese that come to this country, the speaker said that they represented the poorest class yet, notwithstanding the fact that everything in the line of law and government was against them, they always succeeded. He explained that they were never seen begging, rarely were arrested for crime and that they are never seen in an intoxicated con*dition. Considering that this class is* the poorest, Dr. Rhoades did not wonder that the better class at home is so clever and that they are able to cope with the other powers of the world.

In conclusion Dr. Rhoades told briefly of the mission enterprises and what is being done to acquaint the foreign nations with a knowledge of Christ.

The lantern slides were operated satisfactorily by Charles E. Vail, assisted by his son.

WELCOMED BACK.

A Cordial Reception at Stamford, Conn., to Rev. J. W. Richardson.

The Daily Advocate, of Stamford, Conn., of Saturday, gives an account of the reception tendered to Rev. and Mrs. John Wilbur Richardson by the members of the Baptist church at Stamford Friday night, in recognition of Mr. Richardson's return to the pastorate of the church. The article states that the church was filled to overflowing with members and friends, all of whom wished the pastor and his wife great success in their work. The reception was attended not only by members of the Baptist church, but members from many other churches at Stamford. The affair was said to be one of the most notable gatherings ever held by the church.

Carpenters' Hall.

Local Union, No. 155, Brotherhood Carpenters and Joiners, will hold a ball April 23 in Gessag and Turn Hall, for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital.

Work of Police Patrol System.

The employes of the Gamewell Company expect to commence work in Plainfield this week in installing the police patrol system.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

TURNED TABLES ON CRACK ORANGE FIVE

Plainfield Y. M. C. A. Basket Ball Team Won After a Cleverly Played Game.

THE SCORE WAS 11 TO 7

WHEN TEAMS MET AT ORANGE, PLAINFIELDERS WERE BADLY BEATEN.

Good Clean Play Decided the Game for Home Team—A Social Time Followed the Game, But the Visitors Couldn't Stay.

While it was a bitter disappointment to the basket ball five from the Orange Y. M. C. A., to lose Friday night's game with the local Y. M. C. A. five, it was a cause for much rejoicing on the part of the victorious team. A few weeks ago these same teams played a game at Orange and the same team won by the unusual score of 53 to 7. The Orange boys expected to carry off the honors last evening, when they failed, being defeated in a closely-contested match by a score of 11 to 7. The game attracted a very large number of people interested in the popular sport and from start to finish there was no lack of interest and applause.

Man for man, the visitors weighed more and averaged greater heighth than those of the home five, but the winning team played the strongest game. The guard work was fine and equalled that of the Orange five. It must be remembered that the visiting team has had more practice and is considered to be one of the strongest fives in the Metropolitan district. There was little or no rough play.

In the first half Denton threw two goals from the field, Neal threw one from the field and Patten threw one from a foul, making the score 6 to 2 in favor of the home team. In the second half Denton threw three goals from fouls, Heinecke threw one from the field, Griffing and Blachley each one from the field and Parnham one from foul, thus making the final score 11 to 7 in favor of the Plainfield five. Percy Hand took Edward Neal's place in the second half playing a forward position. Throughout the contest the home boys played a sharp and aggressive game, winning on good straight work.

The teams lined up as follows:

Plainfield.		Orange.
Denton	right forward	Griffing
Cahoone	left forward	Blachley
Scull	centre	Parnham
Neal	right guard	Wright
Heinecke	left guard	Patten

Score—Plainfield, 11; Orange, 7. Goals from the field—Denton (3), Neal, Heincke, Griffing, Blachley, Patten. Goals on fouls—Denton (3), Parnham. Goals—Plainfield, 5; Orange, 2. Referee—C. H. A. Heywood. Umpires—A. M. Chesley, Orange, and Robert Mercer, Plainfield. Scorer—John H. Deane. Timers—Harry Thompson, Plainfield, and E. W. Austin, Orange.

After the game the Plainfield team and a few friends adjourned to the boys' parlors, where Miss Bass and Mrs. J. A. Robinson served sandwiches, cake and coffee and a social time was enjoyed. Much to the regret of all the Orange team did not have time to partake of refreshments, being obliged to take an early train.

LETTER CARRIERS TO MEET

ANNUAL MEETING TO BE HELD AT ELIZABETH IN MAY.

Decoration Day is Time Set—Some Important Questions to be Considered.

The annual meeting of the New Jersey Letter Carriers' Association will be held in Elizabeth, Decoration Day, and already the men connected with the local office are making extensive preparations for the entertainment of their several hundred guests of the day.

Nicholas A. Flynn, of Elizabeth, is president of the State organization. The delegates will be looked after by the Elizabeth carrier members of branch No. 67.

This will be the first time the State association will have met in Elizabeth. Decoration Day last year the postoffice clerks of New Jersey met there, and the local force secured so favorable a reputation as entertainers at that time that the carriers' committee, upon which the invitation was tendered, accepted it.

Several important matters will be discussed at this year's session, among which will be the question of increased salary, graduated according to term of service. At present a car*rier in his first year gets* $600. In his second year he receives $800 and in the third year $1,000. Thereafter there is no advancement for him. The carriers are anxious to better this state of affairs. They are at work all over the country in a movement to have salaries increased on a graded system until it reaches $1,200 a year.

THOUGHT BABY WAS DYING

ITALIAN HURRIED INTO ARMSTRONG'S PHARMACY SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

Was Afterwards Taken to Muhlenberg Hospital, Where Illness Was Found Not to be Serious.

An Italian, carrying an infant child, ran through North avenue Saturday afternoon to T. S. Armstrong's pharmacy, where he excitedly asked Mr. Armstrong to call for a doctor. He explained that his child was very ill and needed medical aid at once. Dr. M. B. Long was called and after he examined the little one, which lay in a semi-conscious condition, he advised the father to take his child to the hospital, where proper attention could be given.

The man was a stranger in Plainfield, being on his way to Philadelphia to meet his wife, when the infant was taken ill. He did not know where the hospital was, but a kind woman, who happened to be near and who took much interest in the case, called a carriage and sent the pair to the hospital. It was learned later that the child had an acute attack of indigestion.

Early Saturday evening the father resumed his journey to Philadelphia with his child. The man at first was extremely nervous, and he seemed unable to check his sobbing. He was fearful lest the child die in his arms.

SERMONS ON THE CHRIST

FIRST OF SERIES PREACHED BY REV. DR. CORNELIUS SCHENCK.

"The Incarnation of Christ" Was His Subject at Sunday Morning's Meeting.

Sunday morning at Trinity Reformed church, the pastor, Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., preached the first of a series of five special sermons to be given on succeeding Sunday mornings. The subject yesterday was "The Incarnation of Jesus Christ," and the pastor explained that in this act of grace Christ took on himself the form of man. He then divided his topic into four parts as follows: "The Fact of the Incarnation," "The Form of the Incarnation," "The Necessity of the Incarnation," and "The Benefits of the Incarnation."

Continuing Mr. Schenck said that the fact that Word became flesh was not only a Scriptural truth, but it appeals to the reason. When Christ was born it was the fulfillment of the expectation of men. Regarding the form the pastor said that in that the second person of the Trinity incarnated himself in human flesh the divinity of Christ was not lost, neither were the two natures merged. They existed side by side. As to the necessity of the incarnation Mr. Schenck said that if the need had not existed God would not have employed the means he did. God was revealed in the person of Christ that all might know him. His mission was to give life to all who would have it and to seek and save that which was lost.

In conclusion Mr. Schenck spoke of the benefits of the incarnation, showing that these are incalculable, that Christ is the helper and friend of all who would serve him, that His heart is touched with the troubles and burdens of His followers, and that He is always ready to give life, happiness and peace to those who see Him.

FOR THE LANDLORD.

Decision in Suit Regarding Heating of a House.

Before an eleven-man jury in Justice Moffett's court, Saturday, a verdict for the plaintiff was given in the demand for premises case of Hand against Apgar. The matter is one that had a previous trial, in which the jury disagreed. It is a question of heat in the house. I. P. Runyon represented the plaintiff, Charles H. Hand, and Mrs. Apgar's interests were in charge of S. S. Swackhamer. The jury was composed of Cornelius VanHerwerden, John H. Kitchen, Andrew Carpenter, W. S. Alpaugh, H. R. Part, Mathias Pennington, Jr., Clarkson D. M. Pond, J. J. Tilby, Abram VanCleef and Jonathan Smith.

Birthday Party to Little One.

The teachers of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church are planning to give a birthday party to the members of the primary department of the Sunday-school in honor of the little ones who have recently been promoted from the infant department to the primary grade. The party will be held Saturday afternoon between the hours of 4 and 7.

Not a Color Dance.

The plans for the dance which is to be given by the I. C. T. Club in their rooms on March 26 are rapidly maturing. This will not be the second of the series of three color dances but it will be none the less enjoyable.

Mrs. Edward Baker, of Somerset street, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Perry, of Paterson.

SUNDAY-SCHOOLS IN JERSEY

THERE ARE 2,338 OF THEM NOW ACCORDING TO ANNUAL REPORT.

Just Made Public by Rev. E. M. Ferguson, of Trenton, Secretary of State Association.

In New Jersey there are 2,338 Sunday-schools, according to the last report issued by Rev. E. Morris Ferguson of Trenton, general secretary of the New Jersey Sunday-school Association.

These schools are distributed through twenty-one counties, representing nearly forty Protestant evangelical denominations, and enrolling about 18.5 per cent. of the population.

These schools vary greatly in size and condition. The average membership of the Sunday-schools of Hudson county is 293, while in Sussex it is less than 84. About one-tenth (9.4 per cent.) of all the Sunday-schools are "union schools," meeting usually in district school houses. Over 17 per cent. have a home department, enrolling those who study but do not attend. A little more than half (50.8 per cent.) have a separate room for the primary class. Over seven-eighths (88.5 per cent.) are open all the year. Conditions are changing. Ten years ago the proportion were: Union schools, 11.3; home departments, almost none; separate primary rooms, 45.4; open all the year, 32.1. The average Sunday-school in Hudson county had 375 members; in Sussex, 82. The percentage of population in Sunday-school was 19.6. Interpreting these figures with the help of other information it is noted that the population has been moving from the country to the city; the city schools have increased in number and size, but not fast enough to take up the rapid increase in population; many small country schools have lapsed; the quality of the work done the past year has in several respects been distinctly improved.

The detailed statistics of the schools are as follows:

Officers and teachers	40,162
Scholars	308,834
Total attending membership	348,996
Average attendance	206,614
Home department members	15,922
Total membership, including home departments	364,618
Scholars joined church	10,438
Scholars church members (many large schools not reporting)	55,806

Epworth League Social.

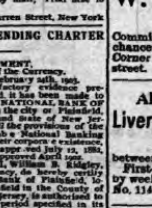
The arrangements for the social to be given Friday evening at the First M. E. church, under the auspices of the Epworth League of that church, are being pushed forward with considerable vim by the members of that committee and a pleasant evening is anticipated. Several novel features will be introduced.

For Passaic's Benefit.

A bill introduced recently in the lower house of the Legislature by Assemblyman William Newcorn provides for the termination of terms of appointive officers in cities at the time fixed by charter. The measure was introduced for the benefit of Passaic county, it being the desire of the people in that county that the provisions of the bill be applied to the officeholders there.

Carroll T. Runyon, of Easton, Pa., is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Runyon, of East Ninth street.

THE CLEANSING AND HEALING CURE FOR CATARRH is Ely's Cream Balm
Easy and pleasant to use. Contains no injurious drug. It is quickly absorbed. Gives Relief at once. It Opens and Cleanses the Nasal Passages. Allays Pain and Inflammation. Heals and Protects the Membrane. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Large Size, 50 cents at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size 10 cents, by mail.
ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York



CERTIFICATE EXTENDING CHARTER

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY,
Washington, D. C., February 24th, 1903.
WHEREAS, by satisfactory evidence presented to the undersigned, it has been made to appear that THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF PLAINFIELD, located in the city of Plainfield, in the County of Union, and State of New Jersey, has complied with all the provisions of the Act of Congress "to enable a National Banking Association to extend its charter and for other purposes," approved July 12th, 1882, and with the Regulations established by me in pursuance of said Act, approved April 3, 1884.
NOW, THEREFORE, I, William Ridgely, Comptroller of the Currency, do hereby certify that the First National Bank of Plainfield, located in the City of Plainfield in the County of Union and State of New Jersey, is authorized to have succession for the period specified in its amended articles of association; namely, until close of business on February 24, 1923.
IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, witness my hand and seal of office this twenty-fourth day of February, 1903.
WILLIAM B. RIDGLEY,
Comptroller of the Currency.
Charter No. 1,206. Extension No. 226. 3 5 5

DIED

DI A SON—At Dunellen, N. J., March 14, 1903, Agnes C., wife of Charles Dickason, aged 75 years.

GERST—At Scotch Plains, N. J., March 17, 1903, Harri t M., widow of the late Henry F. Gerst, in her 78th year.

Sanitary Plumbing
Brick and Portable Furnace
Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing,
Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.
Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in cases.

D. W. LITTELL,
No. 112 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.
Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.
A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!
My new barber shop at
143 NORTH AVE.
a new open ready for business.
All the latest appointments in the tonsorial line.
EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

CARNEY BROS.,
MADISON AVENUE,
Between Front and Second streets

Tinners,
Plumbers
Gas Fitters,

Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

DIME
Savings Institution,
Of Plainfield, N. J.,
Is now receiving deposits with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.
J. FRANK HUBBARD, President.
GEO. W. ROCKEFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.
Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

Guaranteed Salary $900 YEARLY.
Men and women of good address to represent us, some to travel appointing agents, others for local work. Rapid growth. Big interests. $900 salary guaranteed yearly. We control the best specialty in the world. Permanent, old established house. Grand chance for earnest man or woman to secure lasting employment. Spare time, also. Big profits and future. New, brilliant. Home. Write at once.
STAFFORD PRESS,
23 Church St., New Haven, Conn

W. B. CODDINGTON,
Counsellor-at-Law
Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-chancery, Notary Public. Office Corner of Park avenue and Second street.

ALBERT HEDDEN
Livery & Boarding Stables
FOURTH ST.,
between Watchung and Park avenues. Two First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 134.

Wm. A. Woodruff,
Fire and Life
INSURANCE AGENT,
OFFICE,
corner Front St. and Park Avenue,
Plainfield, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale or Exchange Money to loan on Approved Security

DECLARES TAX RATE MUST BE INCREASED

So Says a Man Well Acquainted With City's Affairs —His Reasons Why.

CANNOT PREVENT IT

HE THINKS INCREASE MAY AMOUNT TO TEN POINTS.

Says Raise in Different Departments Cannot be Made Up for by Any Increase in Taxable Valuations —The Situation Today.

"The tax rate in Plainfield is going up." So spoke a man prominent in municipal affairs and well acquainted with the existing conditions. "Mark me," he continued. "The tax rate this fall is going up and there's no use denying the fact. I honestly believe that it will rise at least ten points and it may go higher." For obvious reasons, the speaker required the promise that his name would not be used before he spoke further.

"It's all right," he explained, "for the members of the Common Council to say that there will be no rise in the tax rate. They may believe it but I know better. Have you noticed that the Council has already provided for increases in several of the different departments and others are to come? They say that the property values will increase sufficiently to make the rate low enough to meet the increase demands. It might if the increase was only a few hundred dollars but Plainfield is not growing fast enough to meet the increase that the Council is preparing to make this year.

"Just look for yourself. The taxable valuations in Plainfield last year amounted to scant $9,000,000. That means that the tax rate is going to increase a point for each $900 additional raised by taxation. The police patrol system is going to raise the rate four or five points of itself, then there are increased salaries and other things, all of which will combine to put the tax rate up at least ten points.

"Don't get the idea, however, that the expenditures are not worthy ones. I do not believe that the present Council has spent a cent that will not make proper return to the city. The fact remains, however, that they are increasing the city's expenses and that the tax rate has got to go up.

"It may be that the people will be willing to pay the extra amount when they learn that they are getting their money's worth. There has been some objection, that I know of, from certain city officials who have believed that this was not the proper time for starting some of these expenditures on the ground that it was inevitable that the tax rate would go up. But their councils didn't go for much and the Councilmen went ahead. It's foolish, however, to try to claim that the tax rate is not going up. It's bound to. Time will show the truth of that claim."

That is the story told by a man who is thoroughly familiar with the affairs of the city. Remarks of a similar nature have been heard before. It has been generally reported, however, that the Council did not intend to raise the tax rate although, as far as is known, no definite statement to that effect has been made.

TO NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Boys' Secretary Robbie Plans to Take Boys to Washington, D. C.

An excursion is being planned by Secretary Kenneth Robbie, of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A., to take a number of members of his department to Washington, D. C., early next month to spend three days there. Among those who will go are: Martin Stutsman, Irving Buckle, O. F. Mueck, Rex. Shoemaker, John Soofield, George Rittenhouse and several others. The trip will embrace three days and the start will be made April 13. An enjoyable time is anticipated.

Broken Ground for Factory.

Ground was broken Friday at Dewey Park for the erection of the new plant for the Aluminum Press and Plate Company. F. J. Hubbard is the engineer in charge and C. M. Mosher the contractor. A gang of thirty men is now employed in excavating the cellar. The work will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

The Stomach Is the Man.

A weak stomach weakens the man, because it cannot transform the food he eats into nourishment. Health and strength cannot be restored to any sick man or weak woman without first restoring health and strength to the stomach. A weak stomach cannot digest enough food to feed the tissues and revive the tired and run down limbs and organs of the body. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cleanses, purifies, sweetens and strengthens the glands and membranes of the stomach, and cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles. L. W. Randolph

ANOTHER TROLLEY FROM PLAINFIELD TO SHORE

Jersey Central Traction Company Wants Line From Here to Metuchen and South.

IT PLANS OTHER LINES

BELIEF THAT IT IS WORKING WITH MIDDLESEX AND SOMERSET CO.

Both Appear to be After Same Line, And Yet There Are No Evidences of Hostility—Are Working in Middlesex County Now.

The trolley committee of the Board of Freeholders met at South Amboy Thursday to consider the application of the Jersey Central Traction Company to cross the Cheesequakes bridge. It developed at the hearing that the Jersey Central Company plans to connect Plainfield with the shore, by way of South and Perth Amboy.

This, says the New Brunswick Home News, is significant when taken in connection with the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company's intention of going over the same route. A fight of way is being secured by the latter company and it is believed by some that the two companies are working in harmony. Certainly no evidence of hostility has shown itself as yet between these two companies. It is believed that if one or the other gets the right to cross the Amboy bridge that both will be satisfied.

The Central Company is building a line at present from Keyport to South Amboy, over a private right of way, and has almost completed it. Its route is almost parallel with the Keyport and Amboy road, which is now being macadamized by Middlesex.

This road crosses Cheesequakes creek over the famous Cheesequakes bridge, famous because it requires so much county attention. The trolley company does not want to build its own bridge, and so has asked the county to permit it to run along about 200 feet on the public road and then cross the bridge, after which it will go along the public road another 200 feet, when it will branch out on its private right of way again and go to South Amboy, following the line of the New York and Long Branch Railroad.

The company has already secured the consent of the Monmouth County Freeholders to cross the Matawan bridge.

At the last meeting of the Board of Freeholders the company presented a petition to the board and the matter was referred to this trolley committee to investigate and report back. The committee met at South Amboy yesterday at Freeholder Welsh's hotel. Mr. Welsh is chairman of the committee. The Freeholders then went over the proposed line.

The committee is opposed to granting any franchises unless the company agrees to strengthen the bridge, the present structure not being heavy enough to stand the extra strain of cars running over it.

The fact that the Central Company is backed by Philadelphia capitalists has given rise to an impression among some people that the promoters of the Trenton and New Brunswick "fast line" are behind this road, too. Thomas B. Hall, a Camden lawyer, is president of the Central Company. T. H. Paist is secretary.

The Central Company has an ordinance pending at South Amboy which, if granted, will give it a franchise direct to the Amboy bridge approach.

NEW HEADLIGHTS.

Acetylene Lights to be Used on the Jersey Central—No Danger in Accident or Wreck.

After about six months' trial, the New Jersey Central has adopted the lens mirror acetylene light for all engines, in place of the old-fashioned oil headlight. As rapidly as possible the new light will be applied to all engines. There is never more than a few cubic inches of gas on hand at a time, and in the event of a wreck the little gas flame would be instantly blown out. The generator contains but eight pounds of the large carbide lumps, each weighing a pound or more. These large lamps can be made to give off gas only very slowly, even when water is poured over them, and could not possibly cause or add to a fire.

Mrs. William Bartel, of Watchung avenue but formerly of Martinsville, visited her home at the latter place Saturday and Sunday.

Cold Comfort From Doctors.

Doctors say neuralgia is not dangerous. This is poor consolation to a sufferer who feels as if his face were pierced with hot needles and torn with a thousand pairs of pincers. A word of advice to him: stay indoors and use Perry Davis' Painkiller. The blessed freedom from pain which follows this treatment cannot be told. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'.

CURIOUS COURTSHIP.

Rich Miner Paid Attention to Daughter and in the End Married the Mother.

Many men have tried to win the daughter by courting the mother and have not found the plan a good one. The daughter never seems to like it. Don W. Farris, an old Richmond boy, who is now visiting in that place, reversed the plan, writes a Kansas City correspondent to the Chicago Journal, and it worked like a charm.

Farris is a rich young miner. Most of his holdings are in Old Mexico, and he is said to have cleared up as much as $130,000 in a single year. Six years ago he was at Excelsior Springs, Mo., dinking the waters for malaria.

One Sunday morning he was strolling about, when he saw a pretty little girl sitting on a bench. He sat down beside her, and noticed she was reading a Sunday school paper. A bootblack asked to shine his shoes. "No, I don't believe in having that kind of work done on Sunday," he replied. The little girl looked up. "And you don't, either, do you?" he added. "No, I don't," she answered. The miner and the little girl soon became good friends. Presently her mamma came up, and the miner concluded he liked her even better than he did her little daughter.

HE SAT DOWN BESIDE HER.

When he returned to Mexico he wrote the little girl a letter, and they corresponded until last spring, when, Farris being in the United States, Mrs. Nye invited him to come to see her daughter in St. Louis. The result of all which is that Farris and the widow are now wedded and visiting in Richmond, and the pretty little girl is his stepdaughter.

Farris has had an interesting career. He ran away from home at 16, and worked as a miner in the southwest. He caught smallpox in New Mexico, and John Silliman, the bandit, nursed him back to life, for which service Farris gave him every dollar he had. He has been making money quite rapidly since then.

ROMANCE IN BALLOON.

Dashing Aeronaut Wins Love of Kentucky Maiden While Making an Ascension.

A Kentucky correspondent of the Chicago Tribune is authority for the statement that Henry Prater, who thought he would figure as a bridegroom, is now acting only as a relator of facts. Another man is the bridegroom and Prater is interesting only because he tells the story. He was engaged to marry a beautiful young woman. He says she was beautiful, and Kentuckians are supposed to be believed. Everything was set for their marriage, when one day they went to a country fair.

A balloonist was preparing to make an ascension. Just before the ropes were cast off he looked about him and asked if some young woman, some pretty young woman preferred, would not like to make the trip with him. It was only a dare, but the young woman at Prater's side said she would do it. Prater did not offer objections, and she was helped in the car.

LOVE IN THE CLOUDS.

Off went the balloon. That was the last Prater ever saw of his bride-to-be. They have not been killed. There is good evidence to prove that they descended and made away safely. While up in the neighborhood of the clouds the balloonist found opportunity to make love to the young girl. She was attracted by him. A balloonist must be much like a soldier in attractiveness. Anyway, she could not resist him. By the time they alighted they were engaged to be married, and they hastened away for a marriage license —"just for the romance of it."

MUSIC AND SOCIABILITY

PREVAILED AT A SOCIAL HELD AT TRINITY CHURCH THURSDAY NIGHT.

Then There Were Recitations by Little Miss Ella Case—The Attendance Was Large.

The Ladies' Christian Work Society of the Trinity Reformed church held a delightful congregational sociable Thursday night in the lecture room. A feature of the evening was the vocal solos rendered by Miss Ethel Derby and Mrs. Thomas MacDonald both of whom were heartily encored.

Little Miss Ella Case, a pupil of Miss Addie Parker Jackson, won much applause in reciting a number of entertaining sketches, portraying different characters. She showed wonderful skill and several times she was encored. Among the selections which were particularly pleasing were: "A Little Quaker Sinner," and "A Surprise Party at Quarters," a southern plantation sketch which was very well received.

The committee which had the arrangements for the social in charge and who are responsible for the success of the affair, comprised: Mrs. P. M. Demarest, Mrs. Mary Disbrough, Mrs. Edward Cooley, Mrs. H. Van-Name, Mrs. H. B. Paul and Mrs. S. C. Baker.

After the musical and literary part of the programme refreshments were served. The attendance was unusually large.

INSTRUCTION IN SUMMER

A SUMMER SCHOOL FOR SUNDAY-SCHOOL TEACHERS.

Preparations Are Now Being Made for Gathering at Asbury Park Next June.

The tenth annual session of the New Jersey Summer School for Teachers (formerly the Summer School of Primary Methods), will meet, as usual, in the Beach Auditorium at Asbury Park, Monday, July 6, and will close on Saturday, July 11, at noon. A course for intermediate teachers (teaching pupils of ages 12 to 16), is offered, in addition to all the work hitherto given for beginners, primary and junior teachers.

Eleven lessons in blackboard sketching will be given by Miss Darnell. Each student will have free use of a lap blackboard for practice. In addition, five lessons in pad sketching will be given, for teachers of small classes who cannot make use of a blackboard. Following are some of the instructors:

Edward P. St. John, of Clark University, extension lecturer for the Bible Normal College, child study, intermediate lesson analysis; Sunday-school graduation.

Rev. William Byron Forbush, Ph. D., Boston, author of "The Boy Problem;" editor of "Men of Tomorrow;" work for boys of all ages.

Rev. Dr. Jesse Lyman Hulburt, Morristown, lessons on the Old Testament; intermediate supplemental work.

Mrs. M. S. Kennedy, Philadelphia, intermediate and junior work.

Miss Florence H. Barnes, Philadelphia, sketching.

Mrs. J. Woodbridge Barnes, Newark, lesson construction.

Miss Louise Westwood, Newark, music.

Rev. R. M. Ferguson, Mrs. Alonso Fotts, Miss J. E. Baldwin, Miss Paxson, Miss Lawson, Miss Thomas, Mrs. W. L. Smith, Miss Cairns, Mrs. Rogers, Miss Caroline Davis, and many others who have learned how to help their fellow teachers.

The State primary superintendent, Miss Josephine L. Baldwin, 33 Elizabeth avenue, Newark, will mail full programme after April 15 on application.

All Debts Paid.

All debts of the Eastern Bottling Company, which recently applied for a receiver, have been paid by the Ballentine Company, of Newark. There are now no outstanding obligations although the application will be given a hearing at Newark on March 24.

Princeton Alumni Dinner.

The Princeton Alumni dinner will be held at the Park Avenue Hotel, Thursday evening, March 26. It promises to be an unusually enjoyable affair.

A Remarkable Case.

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind., who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. She says: "The coughing and straining so weakened me that I ran down in weight from 145 to 98 pounds. I tried a number of remedies to no avail until I used One Minute Cough Cure. Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength." L. W. Randolph.

LESSON FOR SNITCHERS.

Police Teach Them to Be More Careful About Locking Their Windows at Night.

About three a. m. Mrs. Snitcher was awakened by noises in the kitchen. She shook Mr. Snitcher violently. Mr. Snitcher, says the New York Sun, rolled over and drowsily muttered:

"Leggo."

The stairs creaked.

"John, John!" whispered Mrs. Snitcher, again shaking her husband. "Wake up, John. There are burglars in the house."

"Huh?" asked John, rubbing his eyes.

At that moment the door swung softly open and two black, shadowy forms crept silently into the room.

"Help!" gasped Mrs. Snitcher, and she sank back on her pillow in a swoon.

Mr. Snitcher was about to do likewise when one of the intruders struck a match and calmly lit the gas. The very audacity of the thing caused Mr. Snitcher to sit bolt upright and stare at the supposed burglars.

"WE'RE DETECTIVES."

"Well," said one of them, removing the black mask which covered his face, "this ought to teach you folks to be more careful. We're detectives from the two hundred and twenty-fifth precinct, an' th' captain sent us around to show you guys how easy it would be for real crooks to break in. After a good philanthropic object lesson like this, I guess you'll remember to fasten your back windows better. Good night."

Soon after the men had gone Mrs. Snitcher came to.

"I knew they weren't real burglars," said Mr. Snitcher, "the moment I heard their footsteps."

He had rather a hard time next morning, however, trying to convince Mrs. Snitcher that the carrying off of all the silverware was merely the policemen's way of making their lesson more impressive.

A CHICAGO INVENTION.

It's a New Game, Named Typhoon Poker, and It Certainly May Be Called a Hummer.

"They're playing a new game of poker in Chicago," said a traveling man who has just got in from the west to a New York Sun reporter. "It's called Typhoon poker, and it certainly is a hummer.

"The game is a simple one to play, and I understand that it has already broken up a few Windy City families. Not more than five persons can play it, and it is a good deal like stud poker.

"Supposing that there are five persons playing, the dealer hands out four cards, face down, to each player. The fifth card is face up, and then the betting begins, the man who has the highest face card making the first bet on what he considers the value of his entire five cards. There is a limit, of course, but it needn't be high to make the game lively.

THE BETTING BEGINS.

"When the betting is over on the first five cards, each man is dealt another card face up. The betting begins again and keeps up until each man is satisfied that he has had enough.

"Once more the same operation is gone through, and by that time, each man having eight cards from which to make the best poker hand of five cards, there are some pretty stiff hands out. The betting increases in accordance with the value of the hands, and each man is ready to bet his pile.

"The next card, the ninth and last, is dealt face down. That means that four of the cards held by each player are exposed to those around the board and the rest are concealed except to the player.

"Now anyone who has played poker knows the sort of combination that can be made out of nine cards. And knowing that it isn't hard to figure out the kind of plunging that is done in Typhoon poker."

GAS COMPANY PLANS MANY IMPROVEMENTS

Plant on East Fourth Street to be Greatly Enlarged and Modernized.

MUCH NEW MACHINERY

OFFICIALS WILL SPEND $25,000 TO BETTER THE LOCAL SERVICE.

Work Now in Progress, But Will Not be Completed for Many Weeks — President Runkle's Explanation of Poor Gas.

In spite of the fact that electricity is branching out into many fields and doing the work which was formerly done with steam and gas, the latter seems to be dying a hard death in this city. This is very evident from the fact that the Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company has been and is still contemplating making great improvements in this city as its gas works. There will be about $25,000 spent in improving the present system.

The first step towards a practical accomplishment of the proposed improvements was the shipment last week of three carloads of machinery which is being installed in the gas works at the corner of Fourth and Washington streets. The machinery consisted of the fifty ton mate to the apparatus of the same size which was installed during the latter part of the fall. It includes several very heavy gas cylinders and retorts. They were supplied by the United Gas Improvement Company, of Philadelphia. They will not be in working order for three weeks.

In conjunction with the plans for improvements of the works and the service in this city the company has recently secured three houses in the neighborhood. Which in will tear down and on the site will be erected another large gas receiving and discharge tank. Work of demolishing the buildings has been started already. It will be several weeks before the material for the new receptacles arrive here.

H. G. Runkle, president of the gas company, said to a Press man, last evening, when asked in regard to the poor condition of the gas at present, that it was caused partly by the fact that while the improvements are going on, the old apparatus, which was in use before the new machinery was installed, was being used. He stated also that the main reason that the gas has been so poor was because of the fact of the oil, whic is used in making the gas, is of poor quality.

All the oil that has been used this year has been unsatisfactory and it is next to impossible to secure better at present. When the new machinery is in working order there promises to be much better service and a better quality of gas will be sold.

Crescent Avenue's Organist.

Arthur G. Drake, of Bound Brook, has been engaged as organist for the Crescent Avenue church. The new choir will be composed of Miss Rita Faxon, of Chattanooga, Tenn., soprano; Miss Grace J. Carroll, of this borough, contralto; Rhys Thomas, of New York, tenor; Hermann Greinert, of New York, bass. Mr. Thomas will be choir-master.

Letters from Women

Cured by the use of Kodol are received daily. Their troubles nearly all begin with indigestion or other stomach disorder.

If the food you eat fails to give strength to your body it is because the juices secreted by the stomach and digestive organs are inadequate to transform the nutrient properties of the food into blood. That is indigestion. The system is deprived of the amount of nourishment required to keep up the strength, and the result is that one or more of the delicate organs gradually grows weak and then weaker, until finally it is diseased. Here a great mistake is made. That of treating the diseased organ. The best doctors in the land make this very mistake. Why should they? It is so easy to see that the trouble is not there.

Kodol Cures

This famous remedy puts the stomach and digestive organs in a healthy condition so that right, rich blood is supplied through the veins and arteries of every muscle, tissue and fiber throughout every organ of the entire body, and by Nature's law of health, full strength and vigor is restored to such.

Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders.

I have taken Kodol for nearly two months after each meal and it is the only remedy that gave relief from the terrible pains I endured. After a time I would take it but once a day, and now, while I keep a bottle handy, I seldom need it, as it has cured me. Mrs. J. W. COOLSAUGH, Mills Center, N. Y.

Kodol Digests What You Eat.

Bottles only. $1.00 Size holding 2½ times the trial size, which sells for 50 cents.

Prepared by E. C. DEWITT & CO., CHICAGO

L. W. RANDOLPH.

SON'S ARREST CAUSED DEATH

Excitement and Worry About Son Brought on Fatal Stroke for James Gardner.

STRICKEN IN STREET

Son Was Arrested Thursday on Complaint of Mother for Abusing Her—Was Just Starting for Elizabeth When the News of Father's Death Came—Was Released.

While his twenty - year - old son George was detained at police headquarters, awaiting transportation to Elizabeth on a committment for incorrigibility issued by City Judge Runyon, James Gardner, of Madison avenue, fell dead on that thoroughfare, Friday a. m., while trying to reach his home. Excitement caused by the boy's sentence brought on an attack of heart disease that proved fatal. Word was immediately sent to Chief Kiely and young Gardner, who was just being placed on a trolley car with several other prisoners by Patrolman McCarthy for the Elizabeth trip, was ordered released. He heard of his father's demise in a most matter of fact way and then expressed pleasure at being freed.

The Gardners, who came to this city from Philipsburg a few years ago, with the exception of the mother, have given the police a great deal of trouble. Father and son, who chummed together, were constantly appearing in court on charges of drunkenness and disorderly conduct and the boy at one time for larceny. Wednesday Mrs. Garener had the son arrested for abusing her and when arraigned he pleaded not guilty. His trial was put off until Friday and the plaintiff's testimony convinced the court that the young man was incapable of caring for himself, owing to his craving for liquor. He was accordingly remanded to the care of the county probation officer previous to sending him to an institution.

Mrs. Gardner left the court room and informed her husband, who had been waiting at Park avenue and Front street, what had been done with the prisoner. He staggered a moment and then declared he was ill and would need assistance to his home. Mrs. Gardner managed to get him to Madison avenue when he sank down at Front street to the steps of a small shoe shop and expired.

Gardner was fifty-five years old and besids George, leaves two other boys and one daughter, Mrs. George Apgar, all of whom live in this city. The body was later removed to the home at Madison avenue and Third street.

TWO SCHOLARSHIPS.

Just Awarded to the City High School by the University of New York.

New York University has recently complimented the Plainfield High School by the unsolicited offer of two prize scholarships at the former institution. One of these scholarships is for $400 and the other is for $100. Both these scholarships will be accepted as tuition and are to be awarded by the principal to any pupil of the graduating class who ranks in the first third of his class in scholarship.

While it is possible for a pupil who stands well in his studies to secure a scholarship at any of the colleges and universities, a further condition usually imposed is that the student and his vouchers certify that the parents are in moderate circumstances. In women's colleges this scholarship aid is usually withheld until the beginning of the sophomore year. The scholarships offered by the New York University, however, are to be given wholly without reference to the financial condition of the recipient, and are based entirely upon proficiency in school work.

WEDDED TWO YEARS.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Nagle Celebrates Event With Aid of Friends.

In honor of her second anniversary of their wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton M. Nagle, of West Front street, entertained thirty friends from this city, Perth Amboy and New York last Thursday night.

A delightful time was had listening to a programme made up of solos by Louis Tallamy, Frank Hampston and Harry Runyon and J. Noll, of Philadelphia; piano solos by Miss Ida Tallamy and an "invisible" dialogue by Mrs. J. E. Henry, Mrs. Lindsey Woolley and Miss Helen Woolley.

The occasion terminated with the serving of a collation. The decorations were exceedingly pretty and were a combination of green and white and pink and white.

WHY GOVERNOR VETOED MR. NEWCORN'S BILL

Plainfielder's Measure Aimed to Get Easier Appeal for Policemen and Firemen.

MURPHY'S FIRST VETO

BILL WAS INTRODUCED LAST YEAR, BUT WAS DEFEATED.

Was Brought Up Again This Winter and Carried Through Both Houses of the Legislature, When Governor Vetoed It.

Assemblyman William Newcorn's bill, which aimed to permit any Supreme Court justice to summarily review any proceedings suspending, dismissing or retiring any fireman or policeman, was the first this winter to secure the veto of Governor Murphy.

The bill that attracted the Governor's disapproval was one introduced last year by Mr. Newcorn and lost in the Senate. He introduced it again this year and got it through. The bill was No. 6 last year, and No. 20 this year.

The Governor's veto stated that "this act allows any policeman or fireman in the State who, for misbehavior of any kind, has a sentence imposed on him by the Board of Police or Fire Commissioners, to have the judgment reviewed by any justice of the Supreme Court within ten days.

"In my opinion this privilege, if granted, will have a tendency greatly to lessen the discipline in the fire and police force of the State, already thought by many in some cities to be sufficiently lax. If any member of either force feels himself aggrieved by any sentence of the Board under which he serves, he already has the right to appeal in the usual way. To give him the power to have the case reviewed within ten days by any justice of the Supreme Court would, in my opinion, invite such action to a very large extent. If the controlling Board are made to feel that any sentence ordered by them is subject to easy and inexpensive review, they may be deterred in many cases from inflicting such punishment as they think just.

"There is a general impression throughout the State that policemen are held rigidly to the strict observance of their duties as they should be; that the firmness with which they hold their positions makes them to a certain extent somewhat indifferent to discipline. The effort of the Legislature should be to strengthen and not to weaken the influence of the governing Board upon the force. If members do their duty they are not likely to have any trouble. If they are charged with offences and found guilty after trial they should accept the punishment and not be encouraged to go to court for a review. If in certain cases they feel themselves aggrieved the present remedy, I think, is sufficient."

BERGEN TALKS.

In Delirium He Says Things Which May Have Bearing on Mysterious Death of Dunellen Man.

Through the startling exclamations made by one William Bergen, of 10 South street, New York, while suffering from delirium, the New York authorities have renewed their investigations of the mysterious death of one William Schelck, who formerly lived somewhere near Dunellen, but who, at the time of his death, resided with his mother, Mrs. John Schelck, on Suydam street, New Brunswick.

Schelck died prior to the election of 1901 for being illegally registered. In order to save himself from being sentenced he gave information which resulted in the arrest of his fellow lodgers. The night after his release from jail Schelck was found floating in the river with a deep gash in his forehead. It is believed that he was murdered by some of the men he betrayed and that Bergen was an unwilling witness to the crime and that the thing has preyed upon his mind until it has driven him mad.

Another Minstrel Show.

A minstrel show will be given by the Athletic Association of the North Plainfield High School on the evening of April 30 at the Y. M. C. A. Hall for the benefit of the association. The entire membership of the association will take part in the show and they will be coached by Wm. A. Schorb.

Warren's Trolley Route.

Surveyors have been at work in Warren county establishing the route for the proposed new trolley line between Hackettstown and Washington.

This Will Interest Mothers.

Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for Children, successfully used by Mother Gray, for years a nurse in the Children's Home in New York, cure Feverishness, Bad Stomach, Teething Disorders and regulate the Bowels and destroy Worms. They are so pleased by the many testimonials as to it. Children like them. Over 30,000 testimonials of cures. They never fail. Sold by all druggists, 25c. Ask today. Sample FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

PARK CLUB VETERANS HOLD WHIST TROPHY

Had No Trouble in Defeating Team From the Forest Hill Club Last Thursday.

THE SCORE WAS 22 TO 2

VISITORS WERE NOT IN MATCH AT ANY STAGE OF GAME.

Metropolitan Whist Trophy Will Remain in Plainfield for Another Week—The Park Club Four is Back in Its Old Form Again.

The Metropolitan challenge whist trophy is still in possession of the veteran Park Club whist four. That team defeated the challenger, the Forest Hill Club team, Thursday night by the very large score of 22 to 2. There never was any doubt but what the holders of the cup would win the match last evening, but the unusual score was not looked for.

The challengers scored two points in the first round and that was the end of their scoring. The Park four played a very strong conservative game throughout and took advantage of every point. Their play reminded one of the old days, when the team was fishing for large game in the American Whist League and by clever work captured the big trophy from the Hamilton Club of Philadelphia in 1895. That event brought great honors to the famous four and its fame spread throughout the whist world. The team then held the trophy against the Philadelphia Whist Club, but in the same year lost it to the Albany Club.

Two members of the Camera Club team watched the match last evening with evident interest, noting the various important plays. It was certain that the Forest Hill Club team was not up to the game, for at times the members made several mistakes which cost them many tricks. After the game a social time followed and light refreshments were served.

At the end of the first round the score stood 11 to 2 in favor of the Parks. In the second round the Parks added four points to their score, while the challengers failed to make anything. The last round showed a score of 9 to 0 in favor of the Parks, making a total score of 22 to 2.

Samuel Townsend, S. St. John McCutchen, George T. Rogers and Joseph H. Howell represented the Park Club, while A. W. Bray, Jr., J. G. Bray, J. F. Sisserson and C. M. Hopwood comprised the Forest Hill Club team.

The Knickerbocker Whist Club team is the next challenger and the match will be played Thursday evening, March 19, at 8 o'clock at the Park Club. This is a much stronger team than Forest Hill and the result will be watched with deep interest.

WHIST WAS ATTRACTION.

At Meeting of Geisha Whist Club Held Thursday Evening.

Miss Chandler, of East Fifth street, entertained the Geisha Whist Club at her home Thursday night. Mrs. Harry Connett and Miss Lillian Chandler received the first and second prizes for the women, while William Townsend was awarded the first prize for the men. Armstrong Mulford and William Abbott cut for second prize and Mr. Abbott won. Mr. and Mrs. Rose, of West Fourth street, will entertain the club at its next meeting.

PENNSY BEHIND IT.

Backing Syndicate That Would Lease Trolley Lines.

The latest reports in regard to the giant New Jersey trolley merger, declare the Pennsylvania Railroad is behind a scheme to lease the various roads for a continuous line from New York to Philadelphia. A meeting of the heads of the various companies in Hudson, Essex, Passaic and Union counties, was held in New Jersey City yesterday and the fact that President Cassatt, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, made a special trip from Philadelphia to attend, lends significance to that rumor.

Struck by Train.

Passenger train No. 6, westbound on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, struck a man named Guber at Goodman's Crossing, near Picton, Wednesday afternoon about 5 o'clock. The man sustained a scalp wound and cuts about the face. Dr. W. Kempton Browning was summoned to the scene of the accident and took care of the man, who was later removed to St. Michael's Hospital, Newark.

Anchor Lodge to Entertain.

Tuesday evening, March 31, Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., will entertain Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, Jerusalem Chapter, R. A. M., Trinity Commendery, No. 17 and a New York Lodge of Masons. The third degree will be worked. Many prominent guests and Grand Lodge officers will be present.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 25—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Lessons from the sermon on the mount: What Christ teaches about judging others.—Matt. vii, 1-6.

In the opening verses of this last chapter of the sermon on the mount Christ strongly condemns the censorious spirit, the spirit of always judging and usually condemning others. He does not say, "Do not condemn," for this would leave too much latitude, nor on the other hand, "Do not ever judge," for this is sometimes our duty, but "Do not be always judging." Our Lord opposes the censorious spirit. And how needful is this condemnation of Christ! How well that this subject should have had a place even in the sermon on the mount! How easy it is to fall into the habit of censoriousness, and how many people are thoughtlessly blighting their own lives and the lives of others for want of this! We may well lay to heart what Christ has to say upon this subject.

1. Christ teaches that judging others is dangerous. "Judge not that ye be not judged." The critic subjects himself to judgment. This is true among men. The life of no one is so rigorously judged as is the life of the one who is always judging others. Condemnation of others calls up our own faults and weaknesses. No one is so unpopular as a critic. He arouses the antagonism of men, and they are always upon the lookout for his offenses and are unstinting in their condemnation of them. Judging others is also dangerous from God's standpoint.

2. Christ teaches that judging others leads to hypocrisy. The man who is always looking for the sins of others will never see his own and will so magnify others that in comparison he will consider himself a saint, when he is a sinner. Had the Pharisee looked at his own sins instead of at those of others he would never have prayed as he did. If we want to guard ourselves against the sin of phariseeism, we should be specially on our guard against the evil of censoriousness. Criticism of others inevitably leads to self exaltation. The mote in our brother's eye hides the beam in our own, and it may then soon be said of us, "Thou hypocrite."

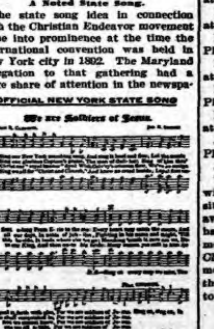
3. Christ teaches that judging others is useless. As Christians it should be our desire to help others, but this the censorious person can never do. A blind man could not operate on another man's eyes. Before he could be of service to the other he must get right himself. So the man with the beam in his eye must have it removed before he can take a mote from his brother's eye. A man blinded to his own sin cannot save his neighbor. "Christ the Saviour of the world was sinless. Christians must seek deliverance from their own sins before they undertake a crusade for the saving of their brethren. The humility that confesses personal unworthiness is the spirit best fitted for seeking to save lost and degraded fellow men and women."

BIBLE READINGS.

Mark iv, 24; Luke vii, 37, 38; John viii, 1-11; Rom. ii, 1; xii, 9, 10; xiv, 7-12; I Cor. iv, 1-5; Rev. xxii, 12.

A Noted State Song.

The state song idea in connection with the Christian Endeavor movement came into prominence at the time the international convention was held in New York city in 1892. The Maryland delegation to that gathering had a large share in the work, the newspapers by reason of their frequent singing of a specially prepared state song to the tune of "Maryland, My Maryland." The idea grew till nearly every state in the Union had its own special song for convention occasions, these songs for the most part being made up by adapting local words to familiar airs. It remained for New York to "set the pace" in the matter of a song entirely original in both words and music. The Christian Endeavor World spoke of it as a song by "the two John R.'s," the words having been written by John R. Clements and the music by Professor John R. Sweeney. In two years the song had a sale of more than 90,000 copies. Its reproduction here is its entirety is by permission of the owner of the copyright.



Quiz Box.

[Any question may be asked that pertains to any phase of Christian Endeavor work. Address Lock Box 671, Binghamton, N. Y.]

45. A Norwich, Conn.—The Christian Endeavor society is in duty bound to respect the wishes of its pastor. The pastor is invariably "the commander in chief."

46. T. New York City.—Rev. Dr. John F. Carson of Brooklyn held the office of vice president of the New York state union for one term.

ALL WENT ON HONEYMOON

NEWLY-MARRIED COUPLE WERE GIVEN A SURPRISE BY THEIR FRIENDS.

Party Accompanied Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Shanks to Bound Brook and Let Passengers Into Secret.

A very quiet wedding took place Mch. 11, at the home of Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, when Miss Lottie Connets, of East Fifth street, became the wife of William R. Shanks, of Philadelphia. The ceremony was performed in the presence of four friends: Miss Hines, William Yants and James Shay, of Somerville, and Miss Grace Rowland, of this city.

The bride was very prettily attired in a traveling costume of blue with trimmings of white lace. After the ceremony the bridal party was driven to the depot where Mr. and Mrs. Shanks departed for Philadelphia. They will spend their honeymoon there after which they will return to Somerville where Mr. Shanks is the superintendent of the Somerville Woolen Mills.

When the party arrived at the depot the bride turned as she was about to board the train, to say good bye but the entire party went with the bride and groom to Bound Brook and succeeded in advertising the fact to all the passengers that a newly married couple were on the train.

SCHOLASTIC BASEBALL.

Management of City High School Team Announces Its Complete Schedule.

Manager Albert D. Beers, of the Plainfield High School baseball team, has now announced the completed schedule for the coming season as follows:

March 28, Orange Field Club, at Plainfield.

April 1, Westfield High School at Westfield.

April 4, Pingry School, at Elizabeth.

April 8, Westerleigh Collegiate Institute, at Plainfield.

April 11, Brooklyn Boys' High School at Brooklyn.

April 15, North Plainfield High School, at Plainfield.

April 18, Newark Academy, at Plainfield.

April 22, Khlani Club, of Princeton University, at Plainfield.

April 25, Princeton Preparatory School, at Plainfield.

May 2, Stevens Institute Underclassmen, at Plainfield.

May 7, St. Francis Xavier Preparatory School, at Plainfield.

May 13, South Orange High School, at South Orange.

May 13, Rutgers College Freshmen, at Plainfield.

May 16, Rutgers Preparatory School, at New Brunswick.

May 20, Montclair High School, at Plainfield.

May 23, East Orange High School, at Plainfield.

May 27, Westfield High School, at Plainfield.

May 30, Rutgers Preparatory School, at Plainfield.

June 3, DeWitt Clinton School, at Plainfield.

June 6, Morristown, at Morristown.

The games to be played in town will be played at the High School field situated at the corner of Arlington avenue and Randolph road. This field has been secured through the management of the Cuban Giants Baseball Club and the High School management will erect a grandstand on it for the accommodation of those who wish to see the games.

PLAYED WHIST.

The Fortnightly Whist Club Held a Meeting Thursday Evening.

The Fortnightly Whist Club was entertained Thursday by Miss May McLaughlin, of Somerset street. Miss Mary Griswold won the first prize for the women, and Arthur A. Cannon the first prize for the men. John G. McLaughlin was presented with the consolation prize. Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Foote, of East Second street, will entertain the club Thursday evening, March 26.

Collection System a Success.

Postmaster E. H. Bird is much pleased with the new arrangement of collecting mail, recently adopted. Letter-Carrier E. T. Dunn now makes the early morning collection from all mail boxes, thus giving the other carriers more time to make their deliveries. The scheme thus far is a decided success.

In reply to inquiries we have pleasure in announcing that Ely's Liquid Cream Balm is like the solid preparation of that admirable remedy in that it cleanses and heals membranes affected by nasal catarrh. There is no drying or sneezing. The Liquid Cream Balm is adapted to use by patients who have trouble in inhaling through the nose and prefer spraying. The price, including spraying tube, is 75 cents. Sold by druggists or mailed by Ely's Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 25, "Christian Education."

Mon.—Prov. i, 7 Tues.—I. Tim. iv, 1-9; II Tim. ii, 15, 25.

"Holding a straight course in the word of truth."

There are two theories at least of education. One holds that cramming an amount of information is the proper mode, and knowing a mass of things is the end to be sought. This fairly well represents the Chinese theory. To a considerable extent it prevailed in our own land not so long a time since.

Another view places emphasis on the developing and training of the mental powers with little or no reference to things taught.

A combination of the two comes very near the ideal position. We need to acquire accurate information on a multitude of matters. The worlds around and within us are full of facts which we must learn. Reasons for things must be investigated; actions must be determined. We begin with a world of things and capacity to know. All else must be acquired. Every faculty of mind must do its part. Observation, reflection, recollection, imagination, judgment and every other power in its own sphere must aid us in the task of learning the things in order that we may come to our own.

The first ten years of life we learn more words and memorize more things than in any other period of life. Later we develop powers of imagination, then faculties of logical reasoning.

But any education which fails to recognize a Divine Power in the world of nature and the world of men has been fatally defective in observation and utterly lacking in its training of the spiritual faculties. The ultimate aim of all effort must be the proper development of the personal life. This can be accomplished only as the spiritual nature is given its proper position and its relation to God clearly and fully recognized. (Knowledge of God's works is very desirable. Knowledge of self and God is essential.

So Christian education means more than culture of intellectual powers and mastery of sciences and philosophies alone. It does not of necessity mean a course in specialistic theology, but it does include cultivation of all moral powers alongside the aptitudes of mind.

What one truly is himself is more important by far than what he knows. How to become the best we may be is the end sought in Christian education, not to know all we can nor to develop power to know. Life is far more than knowledge or capacity to acquire knowledge. It is being and power to become right and good and perfect men.

It is here that the schools of the church find their proper sphere—not in teaching about religion the theories current, but by training the young, under Christian influences, in an atmosphere of reverence and piety, fitting them for their part in the world and among men with eyes wide open and all capacities of soul as well as mind alert and in activity.

No secular school, however good, can fully substitute the work of the academy under real Christian leadership. Here is found cultured, Christian society, and the familiar friendly associations often exert an influence at a critical period which is of permanent benefit.

Bishop E. O. Haven used to remark that Christianity is piety and education. We need the two to be conjoined. We cannot afford either without the other. Christian education let all our young people persistently seek.

The Love of Christ.

Contemplate the love of Christ, and you will love. Stand before the mirror, reflect Christ's character, and you will be changed into the same image from tenderness to tenderness. There is no other way. You cannot love to order. You can only look at the lovely object and fall in love with it and grow into likeness to it. And so look at this perfect character, this perfect life. Look at the great sacrifice as He laid down Himself, all through life and upon the cross of Calvary, and you must love Him, and, loving Him, you must become like Him.—Drummond.

His Own Place.

He who finds it easy to excuse himself from all service requiring self sacrifice may imagine that he enjoys religion, but he is mistaken. What he fancies to be a religious experience is an emotional delusion. We cannot be truly religious without the Spirit of Christ. A selfish soul would be utterly miserable in heaven. Its society would not be congenial to him. Each one will find hereafter the home for which he lives here.—Northern Christian Advocate.

Throw Open the Shutters.

When a room is filled with darkness, one does not need to bail it out or carry it out or cart it away in order to secure the admission of the light. All that is necessary is to throw open the shutters, roll up the curtains and let the light in at the window, and as the light enters the darkness is immediately dispelled. In proportion as the light of God's truth enters into a man's soul doubt and darkness will disappear.—Lutheran Observer.

Faith's Transfiguration.

When He takes your work away and bids you wait longer to do good and obedient things, but only to be good and obedient, surely that is not the death of faith. That may be faith's transfiguration.—Phillips Brooks.

Favor With Him.

If we love God, we shall find favor with Him, whether we are able to please anybody else or not.—Ham's Horn.

CHANGES IN TROLLEY CO.

PHILLIP MAGUIRE APPOINTED DIVISION SUPERINTENDENT.

Other Changes Made Necessary by This Promotion—To Give Better Service.

Important changes have been made in the local management of the Plainfield, Elizabeth and Central Jersey Street Railroad, with a view of giving to the Plainfield traveling public a better service. The change went into effect Sunday and during the week there have been made noticeable improvements made in the running of the cars and in their condition.

Frank Brown, who was formerly division superintendent, has been raised to a responsible position at the Westfield Junction where he has charge of the offices there. In his place in this city Phillip Maguire has been placed. This is somewhat of a recognition by the company of the services of Mr. Maguire who for a number of years has been in the employ of the trolley company, having worked his way up from motorman and conductor to transfer agent and inspector in which position he served the company faithfully for over a year.

John Mowan has been appointed transfer agent at the Watchung avenue waiting room to succeed Mr. Maguire and H. Benwell, of Elizabeth, will succeed Mr. Mowan as night inspector and transfer agent.

JUST IN TIME.

Occupants of Lawyers' Office Discover Incipient Blaze That Might Have Been Worse.

A telephone call at fire headquarters Thursday afternoon from the office of former Senator Charles A. Reed, called part of the fire department out for a most peculiar blaze in the office of the Postal Telegraph Company on North avenue.

It seems that when the Smalley building was erected, the owner of the telegraph office bored a hole into the side of the big building for the purpose of connecting with one of the chimneys. The old chimney place in the office was left open and a new one was made. When the former occupants of the office moved out the new occupants placed a stove with connections to the old stove hole. The stove has never had the proper draught and yesterday it was apparent, from the lawyer's office, that the roof of the building was ablaze.

When the firemen arrived they found that the roof had been built over the chimney and all the smoke had been going into the attic, instead of out into the open air through the chimney. A serious conflagration was narrowly averted. The stove was moved and placed in a position where it received the proper draught from the chimney.

LOTS OF CANDIDATES.

Prospect of Strong Nine to Represent the City High School This Spring.

Much interest is being shown at the City High School in the baseball team for the coming season. Manager A. D. Beers has arranged for twenty games and daily practice is being held at the Olympia building under the direction of Captain F. T. VanAnken. A large squad is trying for positions on the team.

The candidates for pitcher are H. S. Munro and F. T. VanAnken, while either McGinley or VanAnken will be behind the bat. P. Smith and H. G. Thompson are both working for first base, and Miner will probably cover second. Either Munro or VanAnken will be at third and Craig will probably play his old position of shortstop. L. Walters, C. Ulrich, C. C. Roeap, H. Brokaw, E. M. Daniel and Douglass are all candidates for the outfield.

Work on the field and diamond will be started by the management as soon as the ground dries sufficiently to allow it. A grandstand and backstop will be erected.

Lived in Plainfield When a Boy.

Vincent Herring, son of the late Walter Herring, a former resident of Plainfield, died at home, 274 Manhattan avenue, Brooklyn, Wednesday, Mch. 11, after a short illness. The funeral services were held Thursday evening at 9 o'clock.

THE NEXT MORNING I FEEL BRIGHT AND NEW AND MY COMPLEXION IS BETTER.

My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and bowels, cleansing the system, and that it is made from herbs and is prepared for use as easily as tea. It is called "LANE'S FAMILY MEDICINE."

LANE'S FAMILY MEDICINE

All druggists or by mail 25 cts. and 50 cts. Buy it to-day. Lane's Family Medicine moves the bowels each day. In order to be healthy you must have a passage each day. Lane's Family Medicine makes you well. Sold by druggists or by mail. Address, Lane Med. Co., Rochester, N. Y.

GIRL'S SCREAMS SENT ANGRY MEN AFTER HIM

Henry L. Molleson, Afterwards Arrested, Charged With Assaulting a Woman.

HELD IN BAIL FOR TRIAL

CLAIMS THAT HE MISTOOK MISS WINSOR FOR ANOTHER WOMAN.

And That There Was No Assault and Battery, As Charged, But That He Merely Stopped Her—Crowd Pursued Him—Was Arrested.

Pursued by an angry crowd of men who had been summoned by his alleged victim's cries, Henry L. Molleson, a young man living on East Third street, made desperate attempts to escape, March 11, after it is charged, committing an assault upon Miss Cornelia Winsor, an eighteen-year-old girl, at the corner of East Front and Washington streets. He succeeded in eluding his pursuers by taking the New Jersey Central tracks into town but was picked up at 7 o'clock on Park avenue near Second street, by Patrolman Meyers. He pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault and battery and was remanded in $500 bail for trial before Justice Hoff this evening. He has retained Counsellor Francis J. Blats to defend him.

In her story to the police, Miss Winsor said she was on her way home at 6:30 from Scheuer's grocery where she is employed as cashier. She passed Molleson at Church street and had gone but a few feet when she noticed he was following her. When she quickened her steps he altered his accordingly and suddenly ran in front of her. She tried to run but, she says, he seized her and threw her down, and the same time slapping her face. By this time the terrified girl's screams were heard in all parts of the neighborhood and men came rushing from all sides. Molleson ran down Washington street with the crowd after him. He ascended the railroad embankment and, by counter moves, managed to get away.

Word of the assault was sent to police headquarters and the night men, who were just about ready to go on post, were given a description of the assailant and were hurried out. Patrolman Meyers had been one but a few minutes when he saw Molleson and immediately arrested him on suspicion. When taken to headquarters, he at once admitted he was the man, but declared he mistook Miss Winsor for another woman who is well known to the police and that he had only slapped her.

Miss Winsor, who lives with her uncle, George H. Alcorn, on East Front street, is a most estimable young woman and was unaware of the identity of her assailant until he was arrested. She was thrown into a high state of nervousness by her experience but today is much better.

The police were greatly stirred up over the matter and Chief Kiely declared, this morning, that if Molleson is guilty he will be punished. He further stated it was his intention to make the city streets safe for unprotected women at any time of day or night.

HOSPITAL NOT EXEMPT.

New Ruling of Court of Errors and Appeals May Affect Muhlenberg.

By a ruling of the Court of Errors and Appeals, sitting at Trenton Monday, the findings of the Supreme Court are reversed in the decision relating to the exemption of hospital property from taxation, which may make it necessary for the local assessors to appraise the property of Muhlenberg Hospital for taxation. Heretofore the local hospital has been exempt from taxation.

Is Now General Superintendent.

After a varied but very successful career of several years in railroading on many important lines, Manley H. Cutter has assumed his new duties as general superintendent of the Lehigh Valley, in charge of maintenance of way, maintenance of equipment, conducting transportation, lake marine and canal lines. Mr. Cutter was born in 1860 and at the age of sixteen years he began his railroad service with the position of messenger on the Chicago and North Western.

Good Shad Fishing.

Already the shad fishermen along the Delaware river are preparing for the approaching season, which promises to be the best in many years.

By Bribing the Nerves

with opium a cough may be stopped temporarily, but the inflammation of which the cough is a symptom goes from bad to worse. Do not waste time and money on delusive "cough mixtures." Remember that Allen's Lung Balsam does not merely put the nerves to sleep. It gets right down to the root of the trouble, and so cures even deep-seated affections of the throat and lungs.

ROUSING CLOSE OF HOPE MINSTREL SHOW

Final Performance Last Friday Was Witnessed by a Very Large Crowd.

EVERYTHING PERFECT

HOPE Y. M. A. WILL NET $500 FROM THE THREE PERFORMANCES.

Crowd Well Pleased — Everything Went Without a Single Hitch— Two Changes in the Programme —New Verse to Topical Song.

When the curtain rose last evening at the last performance of the Hope Y. M. A. minstrels, Hope chapel was crowded with people as in the two nights on each night on which the play was given. When it fell after the final act in which the troubles of "The Night Clerk" were portrayed the large lecture room rang with applause from the thousand people present; crowning the efforts of the members of the Young Men's Association of Hope chapel with approval and commendation. It was one of the greatest amateur productions ever given in this city and its entire success was perhaps never before equalled.

If there is any comparison to be made between the three performances given, it is safe to say that the per*formance of Friday evening was even* better than those which preceded it. The rough edges had been taken off and those who took part entered into the spirit of the show heartily and with enthusiasm.

There were but two changes in the programme. In the quartette, which comprised the Messrs. Tallamy, Fred Tallamy was confined to his home by illness but the selections were rendered by the other three, Bertram, Louis and William, and were received with hearty applause. In the olio, Joseph Lenghead was unable to take part with his banjo selections. These were the only changes.

As on the previous evenings, one of the features in the olio was the illustrated songs given by Elmer Cutting, with William Schorb operating the slides. He was encored twice and gave three selections as follows: "When Kate and I Were Coming Through the Rye," "A Dream of the Golden Past" and "In the City of Sighs and Tears."

The topical song given by Thomas Muir was received with still greater enthusiasm than on the previous evening and the audience refused to be satisfied until eight verses had been sung, the new one being as follows:

"When the baseball league was started, we were in the swim
But things are different now.
We thought we'd have the pennant hanging in the gym.
But things are different now.
We'll no'er again be caught in such a fix,
This year we'll show the people some new tricks,
The other people won't be one to six.
For things are different now."

Following the close of the show, the members re-assembled in black face for the first part and were photographed by George Fountain and J. Harvey Deane.

The Hope Y. M. A. for which the show was given, will net about $300 from the performances. This excels last year's profits by about $150. The money will be added to the association treasury and will be used for several improvements in the gymnasium, which has now become almost too small for the membership.

Credit for the complete success of the show is largely due to the untiring work of City Judge William N. Reagon, who had general supervision and acted as director and Will Holbert, who served as coach.

Gun Club Dance.

The Independent Gun Club is planning to hold a dance in Saengerbund Hall in May. The committee which has charge of the arrangements have arranged for a most complete programme and a very successful event is promised. The committee comprises: Frank Keller, Charles Jensen, William Mills, Charles Keller, Harry Dreier and Adolph Bohren.

Annual Meeting of Equal Suffragists.

The annual meeting of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield will be held in April when it is expected that a prominent speaker from out of town will be present. It is expected that a large number of people will be present to listen to the address which will, no doubt, be an interesting one.

Purchased Property.

D. Foster Updike, the real estate agent, has sold the Saydam property on East Front street, where Vail & Gardner's grocery store and Fowler's candy store are located. The purchaser is Wm. S. Fairchild, of East Orange, and it is his intention to put the property in good shape.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought
In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

CLASSES PLAY EVEN GAME

BOROUGH HIGH SCHOOL INTER-CLASS CONTESTS ARE CONTINUED.

Sophomore - Freshman Five Won Second Game by Single Goal— Play Off of a Tie.

Decidedly sensational was the second of the interclass basket ball games played by the boys of the North Plainfield High School Friday afternoon at Reform Hall. As in the first contest, the sophomore-freshman combination won, but this time, instead of being a one-sided game, it required five minutes extra play in order to decide a tie. The final score was 18 to 11 in favor of the sophomore-freshman team.

There was a surprise in store in the first half. The players of the senior-junior team started off at a pace that took their opponents off their feet. There was a semblance of team work and aggressive guarding combined with more accuracy in goal throwing saw the half end with a score of 7 to 0 in favor of the senior-junior five.

Early in the second half, the senior-junior team was weakened by the retirement of Humble with a sprained ankle while McCullough, who played such a fine game for the lower class contingent the week before, was put at his old place at guard. Then the younger players started a scheme of team work that told. Goal followed goal and the half ended with the score 11 to 11. Play was continued for five minutes when Nischwitz tossed the winning goal

The line up was:

1903-04.		1905-06.
Armstrong	right forward	Nischwitz
Humble.
Powlison	left forward	Mundy
Martin	centre	Webster
Adams	right guard	McCullough
George	left guard	Steiner

Score—1903-06, 13; 1903-04, 11. Goals from the field—Armstrong, Humble (2), Martin, Nischwitz (5). Mundy. Goals on fouls—Armstrong (3). Nischwitz. Fouls—1903-5, 6; 1903-04, 4 " Referee—Kenneth Robbie. Umpires—A. L. Clark and Ralph Lane.

New Pipe Line.

Six inch pipe for the new line of the Tidewater Oil Company is being distributed through Califon. The work of laying these pipes is made difficult on account of the line running across mountains, many places being hard to reach. The company is putting in a 1,000-horse power engine at the pumping station near Changewater and this has made the additional line of pipe necessary. Formerly the oil was forced at the station faster than the pump could push it over the mountain at that point.

The best pill 'neath the stars and stripes;
It cleanses the system and never gripes.
Little Early Risers, of worldly repute—
Ask for DeWitt's and take no substitute.

A small pill, easy to buy, easy to take and easy to act, but never failing in results. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are the sensitious and act as a tonic to the liver, curing permanently. L. W. Randolph.

YEAR AMONG ENDEAVORERS

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE ENDEAVOR SOCIETY OF FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

J. Henry Crane Elected President— The Other Officers—Reports Were Received.

The annual meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church was held last Friday, when all the reports were presented and officers elected for the coming year. The past year, it was shown, was not as successful as some others, but new life was taken on last evening and the new year opens auspiciously.

The report of the treasurer, Miss Carolyn H. Combs, showed the receipts to be $54.70 and the expenditures $43.68, leaving a balance of $11.04. The missionary fund showed receipts to be $23.77 and expenditures $14.50, with a balance of $9.27. The present membership includes sixty active and thirty associate. Four new members were added during the year.

The following officers and chairmen of committees were elected:

President, J. Henry Crane; vice president, Herbert DuBois; recording secretary, N. Douglas Drake; treasurer, Miss Carolyn H. Combs; corresponding secretary, Miss Hattie Mattison; junior superintendent, Miss Elisabeth Wilson; chairman lookout committee, Mrs. Hannah Flanders; prayer meeting, Mrs. M. A. Pierce; social, Miss Hattie Mattison; missionary committee, Miss Florence Marshflower. Miss Bessie TenEyck; music, Miss Carro Bird; Sunday-school, L. H. Biglow, Jr.; welcome and press, Miss Mabel A. Smith.

VILLAGE FILLED.

The Progress of the State Village for Epileptics Depends on the Size of Appropriation.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Managers of the New Jersey State Village for Epileptics, held at the village Friday, the superintendent, Dr. H. M. Weeks, reported seventy-two patients, male and female, filling the institution to its utmost present capacity. Two cottages are now in course of construction, one for women, one for children, besides two industrial buildings, which latter have long been needed. Many minor improvements are under way and the farm is constantly being developed.

The question of appropriations is now before the Legislature and upon the liberality of these depends the progress of the village, an institution which greatly contributes to the honor of New Jersey.

What's In a Name?

Everything is in the name when it comes to Witch Hazel Salve. E. C. DeWitt & Co., of Chicago, discovered, some years ago, how to make a salve from Witch Hazel that is a specific for Piles. For blind, bleeding, itching and protruding Piles, eczema, cuts, burns, bruises and all skin diseases, DeWitt's Salve has no equal. This has given rise to numerous worthless counterfeits. Ask for DeWitt's—the genuine. L. W. Randolph.

MUSEUM WITHIN A MUSEUM.

Pennsylvania Institution Has a Small But Valuable Collection of Sixth Century Relics.

It is a long reach from the sixth century before Christ to the present day, but the University of Pennsylvania museum has just incorporated a museum of that date which was discovered by Prof. Helprecht. The museum is not very big, being entirely contained in a large earthen jar, but the contents are very valuable from an historical standpoint, and show that the ideas of the early curator were very much like those of present curators, reports the Philadelphia Record. Whether the specimens were excavated or purchased is not known, but they undoubtedly represent a collection which must have been made during the time of Belshazzar, since it was found in one of the upper strata at Nippur. The best specimen in the jar is an inscription containing the titles of Sargon the First, who lived about 3800 B.C. There is a black stone votive tablet of Ur-Gur, 2700 B. C., which tells that this king built the great wall around the city of Nippur. Then there is a terracotta brick stamp of Bur-Sin, which is the first yet found of that king. Another tablet states that the large hall of the temple was called Emakh, and also that there were 24 other shrines to gods in the temple besides the ones that have been found of Bel and Ishtar Belits. An interesting tablet gives some astronomical observations on Virgo and Scorpion. The little museum contains 19 pieces in all, and the collection will be placed separately in the university museum.

UNDERMINED BY WORMS.

Foundations of Milwaukee Business Houses Damaged by a Singular Insect.

"Milwaukee buildings are being imperilled by a worm eating away the foundations and there appears no way of preventing it," said Raleigh T. Jacobs, of the western city, to a Washington Star man recently. "The city building officials are much worked up over the effects of the worm, which is known to science as the Limoria. The attention of the building department has been called to the sinking of buildings and the bulging of walls on business blocks, and in many instances it has been necessary to brace the buildings with heavy beams to keep them from falling.

"The old buildings, mostly of brick, which line the sides of the river in Milwaukee were built upon what builders call floating foundations. First a layer of cedar piles was laid and the stone foundation was placed on them. It is on these ties the worms are apparently at work. The worm floats along the surface of the water, and when the water recedes the worm is left to bore into the piles and walls. It works its way inside the foundation and bores continuously, so it can very readily be seen the amount of damage that can be done. The newer buildings erected on piles covered with cement are not affected by the worms."

PRECEDENCE IN AUSTRALIA.

Recent Distinctions Conferred by the King Give Rise to Contentions Among Officials.

The recent distinction conferred by the king on the cities of Melbourne and Sydney in giving their chief magistrates the enhanced dignity of lord mayor and the title of right honorable has raised some questions of etiquette and precedence, says the London Chronicle. It is contended in some quarters that the right honorable given the lord mayor of Melbourne, the temporary capital of the commonwealth, rank and precedence over the president of the federal senate and the speaker of the house of representatives, who are by courtesies now at the next great vicregal function the lord mayor of Melbourne attempts to go in ahead of the first commoner of the whole of the commonwealth, complications may arise. But perhaps in the meantime the herald's college in London will be consulted on this and kindred points, and an amicable solution arrived at. By the way, Montreal and Toronto, the leading cities of Canada, are the only two that have always had lord mayors. Well, if they bestir themselves and request Lord Strathcona to prefer the request in the right quarter, doubtless their ambition will be gratified. The Canadians are not so pushful in "making representations" as the Australians.

Germs of Epileptic.

The foot and mouth disease (epizootic apthæ), which has appeared after an absence of 20 years, is propagated by germs and is highly contagious. Persons carry the germs on their clothing or shoes, dogs can transport them and they can be taken into the systems of a healthy herd which passes over the same road that a sick animal passed over a few hours previous. Cattle are not the only animals subject to it, for it is contracted by sheep, swine, horses, poultry, and sometimes by man.

The Chinese Peach Bloom.

Neither the blight nor the early frosts can affect the value of the Chinese peach bloom, even if these things do affect the American fruit growers. This is because the Chinese peach bloom appears on small vases made 200 or 300 years ago. One of them, six inches tall, sold in New York for $3,500, enough to buy a good-sized peach orchard in Delaware or California.

Most Valuable Medal.

The most valuable medal in existence is the Blake victory medal, struck in 1653. It is of gold, oval in shape and its original cost was $1,500.

LIFE OF FUR TRAPPERS.

They Have Plenty of Pure Air, Wholesome Food and Good Times In Their Camps.

"You admire furs," commented an old trapper, as he sat contentedly smoking his pipe, relates the New York Tribune; "you should go where we get them. Ah, that is the life—pure air, plain, wholesome food, and then, after the season's work, that brigade of fur-loaded canoes going down the lakes. Every canoe is loaded, you know, almost to the gunwale, and they string out one behind the other, a long line of them. They usually start out early in the morning and paddle, paddle, paddle, hour after hour, down the stream, through that lake, and so into civilization.

"But they don't forget to eat—oh, no! About noon they go ashore. They 'snub' the canoes to overhanging trees and hunt around for a good flat rock on which to start their fire. Then those fellows don't take an hour for luncheon. Time is too valuable to them. They take a drink of tea, a bite of pork—that is about all. Then they are off again. The men spell each other at the paddles, and occasionally the canoes are bunched by steersmen for a good smoke.

"When night comes the brigade goes ashore and pitch their camp. Tents are put up, camp fires lighted and the supper prepared, fires kept free of black flies and mosquitoes hovering around. Some of the men busy themselves preparing the great brown flapjacks for the next day, while others dry their moccasins or get their blankets ready to bunk in. Perhaps a canoe has to be patched the next morning before the start can be made.

"Oh, it is a great life up there in the wilds of Canada, where they get the furs. You should try it."

AN ARCTIC MEAL.

The Eskimo Method of Preparing a Supper on a Polar Sheet of Ice.

Dogs were unhitched and fastened, as usual, and then each of the Eskimos climbed over the icefoot with his snow knife and disappeared behind the parapet, where the other two were already cutting snow blocks. I fastened my dogs, got out their ration of pemmican, cut it up and fed them, standing up with whip in hand to see that there was no bullying, and that each dog got his share, says Outing.

Then I unpacked the cooker, oil can and kitchen box, passing them up the icefoot as high as I could reach. I did not wait for the completion of the igloo to commence my preparations for supper, but with a few strokes of the spade excavated a niche in the snowbank, put the cooker in out of the wind, filled the pot with oil and the boiler with ice, placed a few snow blocks around it for still better shelter, and lighted up.

By the time the igloo was completed I had enough water melted for the tea, and supper was entirely ready by the time my men had fed the dogs; and they lost no time in freeing their clothing of snow and joining me in the igloo. Still less time was consumed in putting away the tea and biscuit and pemmican, and less again in falling off to dreamless slumber.

OPENING "BUCKING" SAFES.

Professionals Who Fight Matters When the Strong Boxes Get Out of Order.

The broncho buster of the western plains has a counterpart in New York. He is the man who goes in to tame recalcitrant mustangs, but to open "bucking" safes, says a New York exchange. Every big concern dealing in strong boxes employs a professional safe breaker against whom burglars and thieves coolly on occasions when the safe sold to some consumer "gets out of whack." The work of opening a bucking safe is usually a matter of minutes with the professional, but occasionally he is obliged to send for a half ton of tools before he is enabled to procure the magic sesame. Often a half hundred clerks are kept idle for hours and business managers spin around like tops while the safe breaker leisurely potters about with the cophination. When the safe or vault is finally opened it is usually discovered that some one connected with the firm is to blame for altering the combination and then keeping the matter to himself. The professional safe opener frequently has calls from out of town, and on these occasions he usually finds that some merchant who has just bought his safe changed the combination and then forgot it.

Cost of Wireless Messages.

The average rate of transmission by Atlantic cable is 20 words a minute. Marconi promises 200 words a minute through the air. The cable companies charge 25 cents a word. Marconi's contract with Canada stipulates ten cents a word as the maximum rate. The money is that the rate will be one cent.

American Invades India.

The Times, of Bombay, India, says: "Already there are signs, very distant, that the Americans have commenced their invasion of the commerce of this country in earnest. To every department of commerce America is contributing her quota. She has already laid the foundation of a prosperous business."

Microbe of Lockjaw.

Kitasato, a Japanese microscopist, first showed that the pin-shaped microbe of lockjaw lives in the earth. He says that it may multiply and poison the blood it must be deep in a wound so that air does not reach it.

THEATRICAL.

Once again they are to have that popular comedy-drama, "The Fatal Wedding," at the Grand Opera House, New York. This engagement will mark the fourth of this famous play at the Grand within the year. Since its earlier presentation at the Grand it has been seen in all the principal cities of the country and everywhere it has been proclaimed the melodramatic standard. The occasion of the half thousandth presentation of the piece will not be passed by without due recognition, the management having decided upon a special St. Patrick's Day souvenir matinee, when each woman attending will receive a handsome, heavily plated, 14 karat gold wedding ring.

Klaw & Erlanger have been responsible for many theatrical successes in New York during the last ten years, but none of their past achievements have attracted such marked public attention as their wonderfully magnificent production of "Mr. Blue Beard," which is now in its eighth week at the Knickerbocker Theatre. From the very first performance this great spectacle has been presented to audiences that have crowded the theatre to the doors and have enthusiastically applauded its many extraordinary features,. Up to this time 104,800 people in round numbers have seen the piece and every one of them has proved an ardent advertiser of its great merit, commending it to his or her neighbors as an entertainment that no one should fail to see. Klaw & Erlanger, through their enterprise and vast resources, have become the most important factors in theatrical life in America. Their New Amsterdam Theatre, now being built on Forty-second street, near Broadway, will be the finest theatre in America and will cost, exclusive of the land, $1,200,000. This theatre will be opened next September with the Rogers Brothers in "The Rogers Brothers in London" as the attraction, to be followed in November with "Mother Goose," the Drury Lane successor to "Mr. Blue Beard."

Henry W. Savage will have another musical comedy on Broadway when the new Pixley and Luders piece, "The Prince of Pilsen" opens Tuesday night, March 17, following "The Silver Slipper" at the Broadway Theatre. "The Prince of Pilsen" is said to be the brightest of new musical comedies. It has scored success in the large cities, Boston and Chicago, where it ran for more than eight months, and for that reason it is almost a foregone conclusion that New York will take kindly to Mr. Savage's latest offering.

The enormous success of "The Sultan of Sulu" since coming to Wallack's Theatre, New York, nearly three months ago, is responsible for the general opinion that this merry musical satire by George Ade will rival the long record engagements on Broadway before the public has enough of Comedian Frank Moulan and his quaint "R-E-M-O-R-S-E" song, "Since I First Met You," "My Sulu Lula Loo" and the other catchy numbers in the opera. This week, the twelfth of "The Sultan of Sulu" engagement will complete the first century of its metropolitan run. Eight regular performances are given each week and with three extra holiday matinees and the special performance at the Harmonie Club, the opera, Saturday night, will have been heard exactly 100 times since Dec. 29. Crowds have been turned away each night since the opening, and the pretty music is the favorite selection on all cafe and hotel orchestra programmes in town.

Spring Time in Washington.

Washington is a typical spring resort and its bustle is purely social and political. There are gathered in the Capital representatives of every nation and country, and their comings and goings are of no little interest. Then the doings of the Senate and House are features which every tourist delights in following and these features together with the visits to the numerous public buildings keep one busy all the while one is in Washington. The Royal Blue Line of which the New Jersey Central is the initial road is going to operate an excursion to Washington on March 26, and cost of tickets for the three days' excursion including all expenses is $12. Train leaves New York at 1 p. m.; and arrives Washington at 6:10 p. m. If you want to know about the trip drop a postal to C. M. Burt, general passenger agent, New York City, for four book. Free for the asking.

3 18 3 o

Miss Whitney's Concert.

Miss May Vincent Whitney announces a concert to be given at the Casino Tuesday evening, May 13. Miss Whitney will be assisted by her sister, Miss Bertha Hurst Whitney, who will contribute a series of poses plastiques and tableaux movant.

New Coaches for Central.

Last Saturday a number of new passenger coaches passed over the New Jersey Central toward Jersey City. They will be used to replace the old coaches on the road.

LINCOLN SCHOOL BOYS GIVE INDIAN PLAY

Dramatization of Garland's "Sitting Bull's Defiance" Was Cleverly Rendered.

AT THE LINCOLN SCHOOL

WAS DRAMATIZED BY MISS MOREY AND GIVEN BY HER CLASS.

Programme of Exercises Held at School Friday Afternoon—The Parents and Friends Were Well Pleased With Entertainment.

One of the most interesting affairs of the season took place at the Lincoln Public School, Friday afternoon. It consisted of a little Indian play enacted by the pupils of Miss Morey's class, together with songs and recitations. The class had been studying about the Indians and the early settlers.

The story of "Sitting Bull's Defiance" was read to the children which so pleased them that Miss Morey undertook the task of dramatizing it, with the result that they had a very creditable performance, which would have done credit to children of an older growth.

Collis Huntington Case, as Sitting Bull, stepping out of the tepee wrapped in his Indian blanket, would have aroused the enthusiasm of even Col. Cody. For these little Indians were in full war paint, and never did Col. Cody give more attention to details in his arrangement of the wild west show than was displayed in the tepee, the forest, and all trappings, necessary for the portrayal of this realistic scene. Never came out of the west more typical trader in cow-boy costume than Burnett Doane with his daring and courage as he faced the Indians.

James Crudup, as Uncle Sam's emissary acting as commissioner, with tact and policy in obtaining an interview with the Indians, would doubtless have won the approval of President Roosevelt had he been present.

Although these boys did exceedingly well, yet all the performers won deserved applause by entering into the play with enthusiasm and pleasure.

Quite an appreciative audience, consisting of the parents and friends of the children, was present. It is a well-known fact that Miss Morey takes great pride and interest in her pupils, showing a personal interest in each child. She is one of the brightest young women among the public school teachers. Aside from her ability as a teacher she is a fine elocutionist and has shown no mean ability in the literary field.

The following is the programme given yesterday afternoon:

"Our Flag," chorus; "A Mortifying Mistake," recitation by Harriet Cardner; "Sea-Saw," chorus by six little girls forming a human see-saw, Fredrica Connett, Harriet Cardner, Mary Hoffmeister, Beatrice Bedford, Anna Whelan, Bertha Bina; recitation, "Story of Pataan and the Wolf," Beatrice Bedford; "Story of Daniel Boone," Mary Hoffmeister; "There Are Many Flags in Many Lands," chorus; recitation, "Pine Tree Shillings," Rebecca Crudup; recitation, "Lady Yeardley's Guest," Fredrich Connett; recitation; "Hiawatha's Childhood," Collis Case, (in costume); choruses, "Fire-fly Song." "Owlet Song."

Scene from Hiawatha, "Hiawatha," Tommy Griffin; "Iagoo," Willie Conway; "Nokomis," Elisabeth Bowser; "Wabasso," Beatrice Bedford; "Adjidaumo," Bertha Bina; "blue-birds," Sarah Roscoe, Anna Whelan; "robins," Rebecca Crudup, Fredrica Connett.

"Sitting Bull's Defiance," a story written by Hamlin Garland, dramatized by Miss Morey. "Commissioner," James Crudup; "Wolf," Tony Paretti; "Clarke," Burnett Doane; "Gall," Alphonsus Stebor; "Black Moon," Harry Henry; "Sitting Bull," Collis Case.

Act I, A Council of the Commissioner; Act II, A Visit to the Indian's Tent; Act III, Sitting Bull's Defiance.

Unity's Big Time.

It has not yet been definitely decided as to the place of celebrating the anniversary of Unity Lodge No. 102, K. of P. At the meeting Thursday evening the committee reported progress. The celebration will be held Thursday evening, March 26, and professional talent will entertain.

Junior Dance.

The W. G. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., of Dunellen, is planning to conduct a dance in that town on March 27. The committee is making the necessary plans and Sahr has been secured to provide the music.

Women of Church to Meet.

A meeting of the women of Grace M. E. church will be held at the church parlors, Friday afternoon of this week. This will be an interesting meeting and a large number is expected to be present.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXVI. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, March 26, 1903. NO. 13.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

BUILDING BOOM GOES WITH NEW FACTORIES

Building of Many New Houses Are Planned in Neighborhood of Clinton Avenue.

TWO PERMITS GRANTED

UNUSUAL ACTIVITY IN THAT PART OF WEST END THIS SPRING.

Enlarging of Safe Works and Starting of the Pedrick-Ayer Co.'s Factory Are Responsible for Big Demand for Houses There.

Spring having arrived there seems to be unusual activity in the building industry in this city. It is usual at this time of the year for many property owners to apply for permits to make additions to houses and repair their property but this year there seems to be a general building boom. Evidence of expansion is to be seen in the applications for permits received at the office of Building Inspector T. O. Doane, as the progress in the city's growth seems to be in the direction of the West End.

The growth in this direction is explained partly by the fact that the Manganese Steel Safe Company has been enlarging its plant and the Pedrick-Ayer Company has just started its big factory. When these concerns were started it became apparent to the real estate dealers in this city, who were besieged by people who wanted houses to rent, that there was a scarcity of small houses in this town. The real estate dealers and property owners did some hustling with the result that new buildings are going up in this part of the city.

Many of these houses have been built in the neighborhood of Clinton avenue, and already that street is showing signs of building up still more. Two of the permits which have been granted in the office of the Building Inspector during the past few days have been for houses on that street.

Mrs. W. B. Gannath, Jr., of 179 Somerset street, was granted a permit to erect a dwelling on Clinton avenue near West Sixth street. The house will be 34x22x30 feet and will be fitted with all modern improvements. Bertram Tallamy will be the contracting mason and Still & Kenney the carpenters.

E. S. Ackor will shortly break ground for a house on Clinton avenue near West Third street. The house will be a dwelling and will be completed with all modern improvements. F. L. Lancaster will be the architect; D. A. Ackor will be the carpenter.

The Plainfield District of the New Jersey Home Buyer's League was granted a permit to erect a large double dwelling house at 313 Lee place, near West Third street. The house will measure 36x36x36 feet and will be two stories in height with attic. The houses will be fitted with improvements and will be built on the latest plans. F. L. Lancaster will be the architect and Walter G. Clawson will be the contracting mason. The carpentering work will be done by Thomas Wearan & Sons.

Mrs. R. R. Everest, of 622 East Seventh street, was granted a permit to erect a large chicken coop in the rear of her house. The building will be 16x16x16 feet and will be two stories in height.

Permit to erect a barn was granted to C. E. Gulick, of Marion avenue. The barn will be erected on Woodbine avenue and will be 30x30x30 feet. C. E. Gulick will be the architect, J. W. Mandy the mason and C. E. Gulick the carpenter.

Contractors for Mrs. L. Hoerster, of North Plainfield, have broken ground for a large house to be erected at the corner of Chestnut and South avenues. It will contain eighteen rooms and will be used as a boarding place.

Wedding of Miss Hawthorne.

Julian Hawthorne, the author, lived at Scotch Plains some years ago and made many friends in Plainfield, who will be interested to learn of the prospective marriage of his daughter, Miss Imogen Hawthorne to Dr. William Champion Deming, of West Chester, N. Y. The wedding will take place in the Swedenborgian church, East Thirty-fifth street, New York, April 15. The bride's sisters and brothers will serve as bridesmaids and ushers at the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Vail, of Los Angeles, Cal., have returned home after a short visit with friends and relatives in Plainfield.

SHOOTING RABBITS.

Three Italians Fined $20 Each for Breaking Game Laws in Somerset County.

Somerville, March 25—Sunday a rumor reached Game Warden George H. Miller, of this place, that three men were enjoying the hunting in the vicinity of Bernardsville. Summoning Warden Ayres the two officials went there and arrested Saverio Jabetis, Liby Joani and Balerino Lymorzie, who were after rabbits on the Sterling place. Justice Isaiah Bowers fined the three men $20 apiece and the costs amounted to $16.20.

All the Italians could raise was about $35 and accordingly bright and early yesterday they were brought here and lodged in the county jail. Unless some of their fellow countrymen can raise the price they will be obliged to remain thirty days.

IS ASSIGNED TO DUTY HERE

MAJOR-GENERAL BUFFINGTON TAKES PLACE OF CAPTAIN GILLMORE.

Captain Retires From Duty With National Guard on Account of His Command of Second Brigade.

Through a misunderstanding it was erroneously announced that Captain Quincy O'M. Gillmore, U. S. A., retired, had been assigned to duty with the New Jersey National Guard by Secretary of War Root. The announcement should have been that Captain Gillmore had been relieved of that duty, and that Major-General A. Buffington, U. S. A., retired, had been appointed to succeed him.

This action on the part of the War Department is taken as a very decided compliment to the State of New Jersey, and especially to the department of rifle practice of this State, which is headed by Brigadier-General Bird W. Spencer, of Passaic. Major-General Buffington, when in active service was chief of ordnance of the United States Army, and he is known as the inventor of the Buffington disappearing gun carriage and of the Buffington rifle sights, which are now in general use on nearly all rifles.

Usually such retired regular army officers attached to State forces are of the rank of lieutenant or captain, and New Jersey is perhaps the only State having the honor of the assistance of a major-general.

General Buffington has often been at Sea Girt, and he and General Spencer are warm personal friends. General Buffington resides at Madison, in this State.

His new duties will require him to be of what assistance he can to the State troops and to generally supervise them in the interests of the War Department. He draws full pay as a major-general retired.

Captain Gillmore is relieved because of his present position in the New Jersey guard. He was elected colonel of the Second Regiment, at the time of the reorganization of the guard after the Spanish War, and he is now brigadier-general in command of the Second, or South Jersey, Brigade. During the Spanish War he was lieutenant-colonel and then colonel of the Fourth New Jersey Volunteers. He is also United States army officer detailed to Rutgers College and draws the full pay of a retired regular army captain.

BONN'S OPENING.

Entire Store Devoted to Millinery Display—Opening to Last Two Days More.

The spring millinery opening at Bonn's, yesterday, was one of the most successful in the history of the store. It was filled with eager buyers all day, anxious to look at and procure some of the new designs in feminine headgear, not to be had at other places. The fact that Bonn's establishment is devoted exclusively to millinery makes it possible to present an extra large display.

The popular chrysanthemum hats predominate at the opening this year. They are to be seen in profusion, among them being a handsome effect in combined foliage and maline, topped off with shaded ribbons. It attracted a great deal of attention, yesterday, as did another one, flare shaped, with lace inserted in the crown and brim, set off by foliage beneath. They are also to be had in burnt straw, white horse hair and other effects with becoming decorations. The display will last two days longer.

Dr. Hall Preached.

Rev. Dr. William S. Hubbell, of this city, occupied the pulpit at the Crescent Avenue church Sunday evening. Prof. Hall preached in the morning.

NINETEENTH ANNUAL MEETING

HELD BY PLAINFIELD BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION MONDAY NIGHT.

Practically All of the Old Officers Were Re-Elected and a New Series Opened.

The nineteenth annual meeting of the Plainfield Building and Loan Association was held Monday evening, when all the reports showed a most gratifying condition of affairs. Practically all of the officers were re-elected, showing that the association is well-pleased with the management. Among the business transacted was that of opening the tenth series, and about $10,000 worth of money was sold. The tenth series will be kept open for awhile to afford an opportunity for those who wish to take shares.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, L. E. Barkalew; vice president, Henry Liefke; treasurer, W. H. Codington; secretary, B. Frank Coriell; finance committee, Wm. A. Woodruff, James P. Homan, Jacob Voehl; board of directors, L. E. Barkalew, Henry Liefke, W. H. Codington, Louis Klein, Jacob Voehl, James P. Homan, Wm. A. Woodruff, Joseph C. Blimm, J. E. Flannery, B. Frank Coriell, Peter McDonough and W. E. Collins. The two last named men take the places of Clarence Goss and D. W. Jones, who retire.

The officers are all men of well-known ability and the success of the association for so many years speaks well for it.

ADDITION TO HOME.

One of Provisions to Gift of James Clark to Children's Home, Will be Complied With.

There was an important meeting of the board of officers of the Plainfield Children's Home Association, yesterday afternoon, called for the purpose of accepting the generous gift of $10,000 from James Clark, of West Seventh street, in accordance with the conditions of the gift. These conditions are that the money shall be used for building an addition to accommodate at least twenty-five more children.

It is expected that the addition will be built during the coming season, but to prepare for this it is necessary that the association shall consider the matter. Mrs. Horace Kimball, president, has called a meeting of the advisory board to confer on the subject.

The regular monthly meeting of the association will be held Thursday, April 2, at which time there will be a general discussion of plans. The association is deeply grateful to Mr. Clark for his timely gift which will enable the members to accomplish a great deal of good.

ELECTED OFFICERS.

Woman's Foreign Mission Society Transacted Yearly Business at Meeting Yesterday.

The election of officers and the reading of several papers on "Africa," occupied the attention of the members of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society at the annual meeting held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the parlors of the First M. E. church. The meeting was well attended and much interest was evinced in the proceedings.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are: President, Mrs. E. M. Winter; first vice president, Mrs. W. C. Snodgrass; second vice president, Mrs. Erastus Clark; third vice president, Mrs. Daniel E. Davis; recording secretary, Miss Minnie Sharp; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Charles E. Horne; treasurer, Miss Susie Jackson.

Interesting missionary papers were read by Mrs. Daniel Davis, Miss Susie Jackson and Mrs. L. M. French.

Additional Receivers.

Judge Kirkpatrick, this week, signed an order appointing James A. Kerr and John R. Will, of Seattle, Wash., co-receivers with Thomas R. McGovern and George D. Hallock, the latter of this city, of the Pacific Packing and Navigation Company in the suit brought by the Colonial Trust Company and Rudolph Pfeiffer, of New York.

Wage Increase Granted.

Passenger brakemen and baggagemen on the New Jersey Central have been notified by General Manager Bowler that their request for an increase of wages has been granted. Ten per cent. is the amount of the increase.

Receives Valuable Stock.

Henry R. Bowen, of Watchung avenue, by the will of his stepmother, becomes a beneficiary to the extent of receiving several shares of stock of the Pennsylvania Railroad and of the Mechanics Bank, of New York.

HOUSE PASSES LOCAL BILL

Provides for Election of Collector by Plainfield Council by Three-Fourths Vote.

OTHER BILLS PASSED

Senate and House Kept Busy With Passaic Pollution and the Morris Canal Abandonment Bills—Date for Final Adjournment Fixed for Thursday, April 2.

Trenton, March 25—Between the Passaic pollution bill and the Morris Canal abandonment bill, the Senate and House were kept very busy yesterday. They found time, however, to transact a little other business and fixed the day for final adjournment for Thursday, April 2.

Of special interest to Plainfield was House bill No. 345, which went through the House. It provides for the election of a city collector by the Common Council of Plainfield by a three-fourths vote. It is the same bill which Assemblyman Newcorn attempted to get through the House and which was defeated largely through the influence of Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer.

The Republican members of the Assembly devoted the greater part of the midday recess to a caucus. The primary election bill was considered. Ex-Senator Stokes and Corporation Attorney Record of Hudson county attended the caucus by invitation and explained the bill, which was prepared by them working as the State Primary Elections Commission. It was decided to amend the measure by inserting a provision whereby every voting district in the State should be entitled to at least one delegate to all party conventions. The railroad codification measure also was considered. After prolonged debate it was decided not to make this bill a caucus measure, but it was agreed that some of the features of the old bill which had been eliminated should be restored. The special committee appointed by a Republican caucus a few days ago to consider this bill reported against a number of the changes which had been made in the new act.

Among the bills passed by the Senate were the following:

Providing that telegraph companies may be dissolved in the same manner as corporations under the general act.

Requiring railroad companies to blow a whistle or ring a bell for a distance of 1,200 feet on approach of a train toward an overhead or undergrade crossing, the same as now required at grade crossings.

Permitting the State Home for Boys to employ for the uses of the institution the revenue derived from the labor of inmates.

Regulating the manner of voting on constitutional amendments.

Appropriating $5,000 for a battle monument to be erected on the site of the old Revolutionary Fort Lee.

Authorizing carp fishing in the Hackensack river.

In the Senate last night the bill providing for a new normal school in North Jersey came up, but Mr. Martin announced that he was opposed to the bill, and at Senator Isobelier's request the bill was laid over, the Essex Senator being fearful that the bill might be defeated, as several of the senators were absent.

When Assembly bill No. 142, prohibiting the sale of milk from cows not duly supplied with pure water, came up, Mr. Martin voted for the bill with the understanding that the bill also required the water put in the milk to be pure.

Assemblyman Robert's bill, prohibiting the sale of cigarettes to boys under sixteen years, passed the Senate.

The Senate also passed the Assembly bill making it a misdemeanor to display any colors, designs or advertising device on the American flag.

Among the bills passed by the House were these:

Making it a misdemeanor for dealers to purchase junk from children under sixteen years of age.

Fixing September 22 for holding the special election on the proposed constitutional amendment.

Establishing a Bureau of Districts of shell fisheries.

Establishing the office of State Entomologist.

Compelling the erection of fans to blow from employes dust generated in factories.

Governor Murphy has signed the Scovel automobile bill passed by the Senate last week and fixing twenty miles an hour in country districts and nine miles an hour in cities as the minimum rate for automobiles.

THE CITY HIGH SCHOOL WON

DECIDING BASKET BALL GAME WITH BUSINESS MEN'S CLASS.

School Boys Won by Score of 21 to 14, Tuesday Evening—The Lineups.

In a hotly contested game of basket ball which was played last Tuesday in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium between the High School of this city and the business men's gymnasium class, the former won by a score of 21 to 14. This was the deciding game between the two teams as each had one game to its credit. The lineups were:

High School.		Business Men.
H. Thompson	rf	J. H. Stone
H. Monroe	lf	Paul Whitford, J. H. Doane
H. Collier	c	A. Spicer
F. Anderson	rg	W. E. Browning
Vincent Miner	lg	Charles Zimmer, G. Clark

The score after the first half was a tie at 9 to 9 but in the second half the High School players took a brace and won out by a score of 21 to 14. The officials of the game were: Arthur Denton and Walter Cabonce, umpires; C. E. A. Heywood, referee; timer, Harry Pittenger; scorer, William Doane.

During the intermission an exhibition game of gymnasium hockey was played between a scrub team called the "blacks" and the "whites." The "blacks" were captained by Chauncey Koom and the "whites" by Albert Uzzinger.

TALK TROLLEY.

Board of Trade Will Use Its Influence to Improve Existing Conditions.

An adjourned meeting of the Board of Trade, held last Tuesday, proved a very short session. The greater part of the time was devoted to a discussion of existing local trolley conditions and the devising of some way to better them. The sentiment was in favor of appealing to the officials to provide better and cleaner cars, prompt service and other changes and the secretary was instructed to correspond with the proper persons.

Three new members were elected, Clarence L. Murphy, William A. Coddington and William H. Abbott.

OWNER OF PIGEON.

Carrier That Sought Shelter Belonged to A. E. Faber, Jr.

A week ago Frank Keller, of Harrison avenue, was working in his barn when a pigeon flew in. He found that it was a carrier pigeon and when it died the following day he found on its leg a silver ring on which were the words, "Congo A." The bird belonged to A. E. Faber, Jr., of Mercer avenue, as he identified the ring as belonging to one of his birds which had escaped from the cage. The bird was a valuable one as it had traveled long distances in homing flights.

FELL OVER FENDER.

Geo. R. Fine Wants Damages Because Cars Were in His Way.

George R. Fine, of West Fourth street, has instructed Hetfield & Hetfield, attorneys, to claim damages from the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Railway Company, for injuries received by him. He was passing the West Fourth street barns on March 20 and was unable to get by owing to cars blocking the sidewalk. In attempting to go around one, he tripped over the fender and received painful hurts, besides ruining his clothes.

An Addicks Legislator.

Lavinus Austin, a member of the Delaware Legislature, and an Addicks man, has been the guest of his friend, H. O. Corsa, of East Second street. Mr. Austin has been very active in political affairs in Delaware, where for some time past there has been a hard fight between Democrats and Republicans.

All-Day Mission Meeting.

The nineteenth annual meeting of the Woman's Presbyterial Society for Home Missions in the Presbytery of Elizabeth, will be held in the Presbyterian church at Woodbridge Friday, with morning and afternoon sessions. A number of women from Plainfield will attend the meeting.

Much Improved.

Rev. E. E. Jackson, pastor of Mt. Olive Baptist church, who is at Southern Pines, S. C., for his health, writes that he is much improved. Several friends recently received some choice flowers from the south through the thoughtfulness of Mr. Jackson.

Birthday Social.

There will be a birthday social at the Monroe Avenue church, Friday evening, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society.

DEMOCRATS IN POWER.

Controlled the Bridgewater Township Committee When it Organized.

Somerville, March 25—The annual meeting of the Bridgewater Township Committee was held in this place Monday. The newly-elected members were sworn in. The committee is now constituted as follows: Oscar Dow, Raritan, D.; James Q. Tenbyck, Somerville, D.; Bernhard Meyer, Finderne, D.; William Harris, Somerville, R.; Christopher Ebel, Raritan, R.

Organization was effected by electing Mr. Dow chairman. The following appointments were made: Treasurer, Ferdinand Vander Veer; counsel, Alvah A. Clark; physician, L. M. Linning.

The road lists were gone over and other routine business transacted.

NEW TEMPLE AT NEWARK

MYSTIC SHRINERS TALK OF A TEMPLE IN NEW JERSEY.

South Jersey Shriners Want One Built at Trenton—Say Newark Isn't Central.

The new shrine, to be named Salaam Temple, of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, which was organized in the rooms of Damascus Commandery K. T., of Newark, recently, has already met with opposition on the part of members from Trenton and other more southern parts of New Jersey. It is the intention of the new organization to at once apply for a dispensation from the imperial potentate, Henry C. Aiken, of Tangiers Temple, at Omaha, Neb., and the new temple will be instituted without delay, if the dispensation is granted.

The opposition to the new organization comes from members who are affiliated with Lulu Temple, of Philadelphia, and who proposed very soon to institute a similar organization as Trenton. The first temple in the State is called the parent temple, and other Shriners who wish to organize must first get permission from it before they can make application. It was for this reason that the members in the northern part of the State worked quietly and kept their intentions secret. A committee has been appointed by the Shriners in the southern part of New Jersey and a conference will be held at Newark soon.

There is some talk of a compromise, provided the Newark Shriners are willing to make the Raritan river the dividing line so that Trenton may establish a temple in the future if it so elects and procures the permission of the imperial body. Their position is that they have no objection to the temple in the northern part of the State, provided they are not forced to affiliate with it.

There are a number of Shriners in Plainfield and they have all signified their intention of affiliating with the new temple at Newark as soon as the opportunity is offered. It is the belief of the local members that the existing differences can be settled to the satisfaction of all concerned.

THIRD WAGNER MUSICALE.

Given by Miss Neuhaus at Home of Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers.

The third of the series of Wagner musicles was given at the home of Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, of East Seventh street, Tuesday, when a large and fashionable assemblage of women was present to enjoy the subject "Siegfried," as interpreted by Miss Estelle Neuhaus. The subject was treated in a charming manner and the greatest interest was evidenced by those present. The last musicale will be given Tuesday morning, March 31, at the home of Miss Emilie Schipper, of West Seventh street, the subject being "Gotterdammerung."

Contract Suit.

The suit on contract between Hetfield & Company, coal merchants, against Emily M. Rand will be returnable in Justice Huff's court, March 31. Hetfield & Hetfield represent the complainant.

Wedding Bells to Ring.

George Harling, of North Plainfield, and Miss Amelia Kiebiock, of Myersville, will be married in the Myersville Presbyterian church Wednesday evening, April 15, by Rev. Christopher Baser.

Plainfielders Secure Honors.

In the mid-year examinations at Princeton College, Gustavus W. Faber, of this city, and Thomas L. Thomas, of Dunellen, secured second honors for academic seniors.

BOYS' DEPARTMENT ENJOYS A BANQUET

The Youthful Members of the Y. M. C. A. Dined by the Woman's Auxiliary.

THE YEARLY REPORTS

BRIEF STATEMENTS SHOWING THE PROGRESS DURING THE YEAR.

Interesting Remarks Made by Members of Association and Visitors —Those Who Assisted at the Banquet—Other Details.

An elaborate banquet was tendered the members of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A., Tuesday evening, when reports were read and addresses delivered by prominent workers among boys in this State. The dinner was given by the Woman's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. and fully 100 boys sat down to the feast at 6 o'clock.

Martin B. Stutsman, president of the boys' department, presided at the banquet and acted as toastmaster, after the last course had been served. The decorations were attractively arranged and on each table large lamps with fancy colored globes were set which gave a soft light to the room. Reports of the condition of the department were read by the chairmen of the various committees. Those who submitted accounts of the progress which is being made in that department were: Theodore Gavett, of the religious work committee, Arthur VanArsdale, of the social work committee, Harold Robbins, of the outing committee, Augustus Nash, of the rooms committee, Hudson Burr, of the membership committee, Frank Webster, of the athletic committee, and C. B. Leggett, of the musical club.

Remarks were made by C. B. Rogers, chairman of the boys' work committee, Charles P. Scott, State secretary of the boys' work, and Secretary Kenneth Robbie, of the local association.

Those of the Woman's Auxiliary who assisted in serving and looking after the comfort of the boys were: Mrs. W. S. Lowry, Mrs. Roger F. Murray, Mrs. F. J. Underhill, Mrs. L. M. French, Mrs. F. C. Harder, Mrs. Stephen Osborne, Mrs. Joseph Robinson, Mrs. E. R. Taylor, Mrs. John Valiant, Mrs. Harry Gee and Mrs. J. W. Gavett.

SPRING STYLES.

Shown at the Millinery Opening at Lederer's, West Front Street, Which Begins Today.

Without doubt, one of the finest millinery displays which have been seen in this city in many years is that of Isaac Lederer's on West Front street, this afternoon. The store had its spring opening today and it will continue it tomorrow and Friday. Much more space has been given to the millinery display this year and the styles are more beautiful and in greater varieties than ever before at that store.

Miss Mayme Casey is in charge of the department this year. She has been in the millinery business for years and while at Lederer's she has built up a large business.

A visit at the store will not fail to be of benefit to the prospective buyer of a spring hat. Trimmings for hats can also be secured at the store and flowers and ribbons, in special designs can be secured there at the most reasonable prices.

PLANS COMPLETED.

Company K Anticipate a Pleasant Time Monday Evening.

Company K has completed all plans for the dinner to be given in honor of the second anniversary of its organization. It will take place Monday evening in the Hotel Rozell and, in addition to local celebrities, many of the high officials of the Second Regiment are expected to be present as guests. Among the latter will be Brigadier-General Gillmore, General Wanser, Lieutenant-Colonel Kline and Major Dungan.

Placed on Committees.

Mrs. F. H. Andrews, of this city, has been appointed a member of the State committee of the Young Woman's Christian Association and a member of the sub-committee on colleges, of which Mrs. Robert E. Spier is chairman.

—The choral society of the First M. E. church met last evening for a rehearsal of the cantata "Queen Esther," which will be given in the near future.

The New Woman Has Arrived

BEYOND a doubt the American woman is improving physically and mentally. The other day two women found a burglar in their flat. The old woman's way would have been to screech and keel over in a faint. These two American new women attacked the intruder boldly. He ran into the street, they after him. They chased him into the arms of a policeman before they let up on him, and the policeman led him, panting, to the station house. Then there is that young Pawtucket high school teacher, Miss Rogers. She is a slender, delicate looking slip of a girl. The big boys of the high school had driven away several teachers before her because of mirthlessness and disorderly behavior. They thought to make short work of the new teacher. Led by the captain of the football team, six feet tall, the fellows refused to come to recitation. One slight secret, however, these ungallant boors did not know. Though little, the new teacher is mighty. She is a trained athlete and learned the womanly art of self defense at Wellesley college. When the captain of the football team showed insubordination, it seemed that a flash of lightning struck him in the nose. Blood flowed, and the captain of the football team went down upon the floor. Next came the next biggest high school bully who thought to defy a woman teacher. In the time of another flash of lightning he lay beside the vanquished captain of the football team. Then followed another and another defeat for the big boys who had scared off so many teachers. Now order reigns in Warsaw, and no wonder. Miss Rogers has laid down the dictum that impertinent remarks and disobedience will not be tolerated in that school, and not a soul disputes her. It was courage and pluck that enabled these women to score victory. They could because they thought they could.

* *

I have observed in the past ten years a notable change in the appearance of the girl clerks, stenographers and other business young women who go to shops and offices in New York city. The other morning I happened to be in among a number of them who were waiting for a train upon the platform of an elevated station. Almost without exception these fine American girls were tall, fat and not at all healthy looking, as though they cared for their bodies in the right way—by baths, wholesome food and plenty of air and exercise. What is more, their dress was beautifully appropriate to their duties. There was not one of those dirty, trailing skirts among them that I could see. In gowns, of black, dark gray or blue woolen fabric, with skirts of convenient walking length, plain hats that could defy weather and occasion, they looked the model business woman type all over. Their faces were bright, intelligent and many of them handsome, but there was none of that coquettish rolling of eyes and flirtapping of body that girls who used to go to business half to catch a husband adopted. Now the brave American girl knows her place in the business world and has settled into it. Coquettish and fond of man's admiration she may be, for that is natural, but this part of her manifestation she saves for her life outside of office.

* *

Eleanor Kirk says: "Don't nag. Don't even nag in your mind. Don't look naggy. It is worse than it is to say naggy. It is worse to look naggy than it is to say naggy things, because the nagger is apt to imagine more nag than there really is."

* *

Miss Edith Griswold, the New York lawyer, has been called as a patent expert to give testimony in an important law case, and she answered all questions put to her in a way that is a credit to herself and to womankind. A patent expert is one who has special knowledge of patent law, also wide experience in examining patent models. What is more, a patent expert receives for giving testimony $35 a day and upward.

* *

A spinster slept alone in one wing of a large house and felt timid about it. A married woman jeered at her for being afraid. "No wonder you are not scared," retorted the lone woman. "You've got a man and a pistol in your end of the house." Now, the man was a little bit of a chap, and he was not always to be depended on, for sometimes he was drunk. Besides that, the pistol was not loaded, though the man was at times. Nevertheless here were a man and a pistol, and the spinster thought a woman with these near her had no business to be frightened.

* *

Women, whatever you do, don't quarrel in your clubs and organizations and don't get jealous of one another's advancement and claw one another. That is the old woman's way, and it is the deadliest enemy to the real advancement of woman. Let men do the quarreling.

* *

A newspaper reporter had his sensibilities shocked because a considerable number of women were among the spectators who assembled to witness the death by electricity of an unruly and dangerous elephant. Such a spectacle is one that no sensitive person would care to see, but why was it worse for women than for men to be there? Really now?

* *

Mrs. Booker T. Washington is editor of a magazine called Notes, the organ of the National Association of Colored Women.

ELIZA ARCHARD CONNER.

GOWNS FOR MOURNING.

Many of Them Beautiful Creations of White—May Be Worn Always.

We all know that everything, whether good or bad, has its compensation, and therefore we are prepared to find a sort of subdued comfort in elegantly cut and fashioned garments, even though they are designed to express sorrow and mourning for the dead. One might even say that the fashionable mourning gowns are made more carefully and beautifully than those for ordinary occasions. The skirts are made to conform with the most stylish of the modes of the day. Haircloth and featherbone give them the fashionable flare at the base and cause them to fall in rich folds at the bottom. The materials used vary to a great extent, according to the age of the wearer and the degree of relationship. The silk warp endora still remains the one thing for elegant first mourning, but after that come soft textures of silk and wool mingled or of silk alone in some clever crape weave. Fine dull cashmere and a crape cloth made of mohair and Australian wool, woven in form of heavy crape, are also shown.

There is a kind of armure cloth which makes up into very pretty mourning gowns when draped with all the care used in making other handsome garments. One dress of this kind is shown at one of the stores. The skirt, which is just allowed to touch the floor in the back, has a twelve inch shaped flounce around the bottom. This is a little deeper at the back and is stiffened in the approved fashion with a black taffeta ruffle beneath as a protector. On the flounce is one band of English crape four inches deep and above that three rolls of the same crape, as small as they can be made. The skirt is cut in many gores, every one of them piped down with the crape. Where the flounce joins the skirt there is a flat band one inch wide. There is a short half fitting coat to wear with this of the same material. The revers, cuffs and pocket lids are of the crape. There is a vest of dull armure silk, and this is buttoned to the chin with crape covered buttons. The outside coat, which is fastened to the vest, is so made that the flat collar and revers render some such arrangement necessary. Like the poor, the high collars are always with us. The made of fastening the outside coat to the vest obtains in many of the new spring suits.

Even widows are now allowed by fashion to wear hats instead of uncomfortable little bonnets. It is not uncommon to see a lady with a large flat hat made, it is true, of crape, but tucked and puffed and ruched into something like grace and beauty.

There are many vest effects in mourning attire. Perhaps the wish to have something a little more modest has something to do with it. It is and always was a pretty fashion. Blouse bodices are often seen. Under those circumstances the waist is made ornamental with tucks and folds of crape and sometimes with a little dull chenille embroidery. A home gown for a young widow is made of voile, set over a taffeta slip. Around the shaped flounce are narrow rolled bands of crape, two at the bottom and two at the top. Around the hips the skirt is trimmed with very narrow pipings, and the blouse waist has revers of heavy English crape and a shirred vest of the same. The collar is a band of the voile, with a turndown collar of crape. The collars may be of white tucked lisse or fine mull, all white or with black stitching. This is a matter of individual taste.

ELEGANT MOURNING.

In matters of mourning costume more latitude is now allowed than some years ago. A woman in really deep mourning may now go to informal dinners and assist at semigrand functions at home after the first three months. For such occasions is the pretty fancy of a waist shown here. The skirt is of some regulation mourning goods, such as armure silk or eudora cloth, but the waist is made of black chiffon shirred in lengthwise rows and garnished with exceedingly narrow folds of crape in clusters of three. Around the sensible collets neck is a ruff of accordion plaited silk mull edged with a narrow ruche of chiffon. Just above that is an arrangement of folds of crape edged with dull jet beads. Jet ornaments in form of tight neck laces are very much liked. The older the style is the better is it liked.

Gloves for mourning are of suede or glace kid. One's handkerchief may be entirely white or embroidered black or with a hem of black. Full gowns of chiffon and brussels net made over silk are the proper thing when the wearer wishes to go to some dinner or reception permitted by the ordinary conventionalities. Some gowns are made simple, but others are much trimmed with jet.

HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

FOR SPRING WEAR.

Peterine Effects in Taffeta Modes. Chiffon Sashes.

Bias strappings of panne are much used on fine cloth, and narrow braid, gathered ribbon, silk cord or strappings outline panne bands.

The peterine effect is shown on taller made gowns, and smart velling or colienne costumes are finished with a deep cape collar of bruges lace edged with fur and sometimes bordered with plisse chiffon which matches the gown.

GOWN OF POINT D'ESPRIT.

Chiffon, lace and panne muffs and stoles are seen with touches of fur and marabou trimmings. In some muffs there is a little opening well protected by a silk lining for bouquets of real flowers.

The chatelaine purse is quite a costly accessory. The most useful and economical are made of steel beads. The enamel mountings with gilt chain purses are very elegant, and so are those in gold or oxidized silver set in turquoises.

A dainty point d'esprit gown is shown in the illustration.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

EVENING SKIRTS.

Yoke Effects—Short Boleros For Street Wear.

Some of the newest evening skirts are set into a close yoke, which is powdered with lace motifs or covered entirely with lace.

One very handsome model of primrose satin orientale had a hip yoke of white luxueil lace and long stripes of the lace running down the skirt from the yoke, the bodice being treated in the same fashion and finished with a bertha of lace.

EVENING GOWN.

The short loose bolero which reveals the waist is quite the style in Paris and Vienna, and this style is infinitely more distinguished than the belted blouse in Russian style and looks more suitable for outdoor wear.

Gray is to be much worn this spring, and there is a fancy for costumes all of one color.

A gown of spangled net with raised embroidery in chenille and silver tissue is shown in the picture.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FOR CHURCH FAIRS.

Little Things Which Do Not Cost Much and Are Useful.

The winter months are the favorite season for church fairs, and many the little articles which may be contrived by clever fingers at small cost.

For instance, the blotter in the illustration is made of two remnants of bright blue floen left over from a summer gown. These are ornamented with a coarse embroidery done in white and gold cord. The leaves of blotting paper are buff and blue.

Pincushions made to represent flowers and vegetables always sell readily and are easily contrived by those the least bit skillful with their paintbrush.

DESIGN FOR A BLOTTER.

Odd sofa cushions are made by appliqueing large cretonne cut out flowers on a plain linen ground. These are stitched flat and the edges concealed under cord of the same shade.

Picture frames are decorated with small representations of pipes, playing cards and beer steins for the men and powder puffs, love letters, Cupids and bunches of flowers for the girls. These can be cut out from magazine illustrations pasted and then colored, or they can be sketched in lightly with pen and ink and then tinted with water color.

Fancy pocket handkerchiefs combined with loops of fancy ribbon make a dainty pincushion covering.

Plain wooden boxes covered with cretonne are always acceptable for handkerchiefs, and so are boxes decorated in burned designs.

Anything pretty will be at the same time useful is bound to sell.

GRACE ADAMS.

MAKING HOUSEWORK EASY.

Hints Both For the City and the Country Woman.

This article applies both to women living in the cities and to those whose homes are in the country, although the latter have many more inconveniences to deal with.

Certain women who have large houses to keep in order and large families to take care of never seem to need help and, furthermore, have time to read, attend clubs and, in general, improve their minds. Others with not half the cares are continually at it from morning till night. Why is this?

It is simply a question of method.

Women do not realize that in housework one must make one's brains save one's heels and realize that method is as necessary as in other occupations. One of the most thorough housekeepers know spends twenty minutes every morning planning the work of the day. She says that by so doing she more than saves the twenty minutes twenty times over. Before getting up she lies and think how mang things you will need from the cellar and try to get them all at once. Have the stove as near as possible to the sink and cupboards. Have the mixing table high enough so that you will not have to bend over it, and have a high chair that you can sit in when mixing dough, peeling potatoes, etc.

BUILD THE WASHTUBS HIGH.

Why keep the flour barrel a quarter of a mile away from the pastry table? Why not have a little cupboard over the pastry table containing the necessary spices and ingredients?

Drop shelves are a great advantage, especially where room is limited, and zinc covered tables are also very useful.

The farmer's wife will find her work ten times easier if her tubs are placed in the kitchen proper instead of in the shed adjoining; also if there is a drain through which she can pour the waste water without having to go through an outside door and some distance from the house with her heavy burden. This can be erected at slight cost and is important on the ground of health also. Build the washtubs high enough to avoid that backache.

A refrigerator will save many weary trips down cellar, and so will a window box in the winter time.

Place things where they are most convenient, and keep them there. Have a different day for each phase of your work, and eliminate all of it which is not necessary. HELEN CLIFTON.

The Good Little Girls.

Good little girls who always do what they are told without question never cut much of a figure in the world.

WHAT IS WORN.

Panne Medallions — Very Much Flounced Skirts.

Very fine face cloth is much favored for spring gowns, and this is inlet with guipure arranged over panne. This is a pleasing mode of introducing color and is already taken up by first class modistes. Tabs have by no means had their day, but the little medallions of panne are newer and are most effective when incised in a wheel or diamond shaped motif of guipure or passementerie.

Lace flounces are rarely out of fashion, and just now it is quite modish to wear lace frills covering half the skirt. Plaited frills are also popular, and these are generally either very deep or very narrow. Not only are the skirts much flounced and frilled, but deep frills fall from the bodice or there is a wide bertha of lace or plaited chiffon which covers the bodice almost to the waist.

DOTTED NET DINNER GOWN.

The cut shows a dinner gown of dotted net.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

DAINTY EFFECTS.

Large Bows of Soft Satin Ribbon. Three-quarter Coats.

The choi is giving place to long windmill bows of soft satin ribbon, of which a pale lime green, tender ciel blue and a soft shrimp pink are the favorite shades. A cluster of violets, roses or carnations is usually tucked in at the side, and the delicate blending of color is a great improvement on a black or white gown.

Three-quarter evening coats of lace are lined with quilted satin and trimmed with plisse chiffon or much soft lace, and ivory cloth inlet with medallions of lace is lined with bright colored glace silk, which peeps through the lace and sets off a border of dark fur or ivory feathers.

The deep peterine of sable or chinchilla is finished with frills of chiffon and long stole ends of chiffon and fur. These are very smart for afternoon visits, and some new ruffles for early spring are of silk and marabou feathers. The large stole boas of marabou are useful for theaters and dressy occasions.

DRESS OF ROSE CHIFFON.

The dress shown is of rose chiffon.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

EVENING COSTUMES.

Chiffon Extremely Popular, Also Flowered Taffeta Modes.

Beautiful frocks are being made of orange chiffon trimmed with a keyhole pattern of chantilly lace and chenille. Many satin and chiffon dresses are decorated with lappets of mink or sable. These regal looking furs always seem adapted to the adornment of chiffon and satin.

Evening coats are made of flowered panne in various shades. Chiffon is more popular than ever for evening dresses, while oriental satin is almost equally so. Some of the most beautiful gowns for evening wear are made in three or four shades of one color; yellow ranging from pale primrose to flame color and palest shrimp pink to coral are most effective.

STREET GOWN.

Many chiffon frocks are trimmed with garlands of chiffon roses to match, sometimes also further decorated with paillettes. Glace is often intermingled to support these fragile roses.

A useful street gown is shown in the picture.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

MILLINERY NOTES.

Paris Trying to Bring Into Fashion Small Toques.

There is going to be a marked change in millinery, so Paris milliners declare. They are trying to bring in the tiny toque. Fine chip is the favorite fabric, although coarse straws will be used as well. Some smart toques in moire are trimmed with cords and tassels. The all round shape in toques will again appear in straw. Somehow these are always useful and becoming.

BLOUSE COSTUME OF SIBELINE.

Gorgeous ornaments and buckles will be a feature of early spring millinery. Judging from the models which have made their appearance on the Riviera.

One or two tiny toques are shown made entirely of bugle trimmings, forming a sort of fringe around the brim, a note of smartness being the bird of paradise plume or a big choux of lace at the side.

The cut shows a blouse costume of sibeline, showing the new cape effect.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

A Minister's Work For Colored Women

IT looks as if the coming occupation for the new woman will be cooking and housework raised to the aesthetic plane. A good cook in well to do city families will receive $35 to $45 a month. The ordinary woman who does general housework gets $20 a month in the cities.

The kitchen girl is undoubtedly better paid than the dry goods female clerk or the factory or sewing girl, for the kitchenmaid has almost no expense. The only drawback to hiring out for housework is that it leaves the woman less personal liberty than the shop or factory allows. This and the feeling that there is somehow degradation attached to kitchen work are what have driven ambitious girls from this now well paid field. Even at the prices quoted it is impossible to get reliable house service, so that many ladies are forced to perform their own household labor. On the whole, this is not a bad result, for it will elevate housework.

ONE OF THE SCHOOL OF SERVICE WAITRESSES.

Conditions being as they are, the noble scheme of Rev. L. G. Jordan, colored, of Philadelphia, develops in the nick of time to fill the most urgent want in civilized domestic economy. He has established a "school of service." He has devoted himself to his race, he says, and fifteen years has he been saving all the money he could to found his school. It will be the best work of his life, in his opinion.

All kinds of service required in a domestic establishment will be taught in Rev. Mr. Jordan's institution. All that style and flourish which appeal so to the fervid artistic negro imagination will be brought to bear in the working out of the plan. Even the large words which delight the Afro-American soul will be rattled to and fro constantly. For instance, kitchens here are not a kitchen, but a "laboratory of cooking." Young persons from the country, who, perchance, know their work fairly well, but who "lack style," will be taken up like American singers in Paris and licked into shape and turned out finished artists in the all important matter of style. While cooks, housemaids, laundresses and seamstresses will constitute the bulk of those graduated from the establishment, young men will also be taught their perfect duties as coachmen, butlers, valets and grooms, likewise cooks and waiters. One who has ever noted a handsome yellow coachman driving his carriage through the park will understand what is meant by "style." Being a school of service, men must be admitted to the institution to some extent. It is agreeable to know also that white students will not be discriminated against in Mr. Jordan's college, but will be admitted on equal terms with colored. Thereby Rev. Mr. Jordan heaps coals of fire upon the head of the white race.

The most interesting part of the establishment is naturally the "laboratory of cooking." Everything must be done right, from the boiling of an egg to the making of a plum pudding. When it is remembered how few kitchen girls have the nice judgment even to watch the clock and time the operation of boiling an egg, the importance of such teaching will be understood. Again, a professor of chamber work will stand over the student while she smooths the snowy bed linen, which process must be completed with a broomstick, or yardstick, and watch her to see that every scrap of lint and dust is removed from rug, floor and windows and that the sleeping room is aired perfectly as well. It is delightful to think of having in one's family a housemaid who will do hygienic chamber work.

With laundry work it is the same. Every piece must be turned out immaculate, all must be clean and orderly. To accomplish herself in laundry work the washerwoman to be must have ten lessons, the housemaid twelve lessons; the perfected cook, able for fancy cooking and invalids' diet, must take a course of sixty lessons.

The good work Rev. Mr. Jordan has here inaugurated for both black and white people cannot be measured. There are thousands of educated negro women who might be teachers, clerks and stenographers, but race prejudice prevents their securing employment. Here is sure occupation at excellent wages for every one who avails herself of the instruction in Rev. L. G. Jordan's "school of service."

MARY EDITH DAY.

PANAMA CANAL TALK

Main Features of a Stupendous Engineering Work.

New York Firms Hope to Get Contracts for Building the Ditch—Political Aspects of Canal Treaty.

[Special New York Letter.]

NEW YORK financiers and contractors are taking a deep interest in the progress of the Panama canal negotiations. It seems to be the consensus of opinion that both the United States and the little republic of Colombia are to be congratulated on the outcome of Secretary of State Hay's negotiations, according to which the United States is to pay $10,000,000 outright and an annual rental of $250,000, the latter to begin nine years after the ratification of the treaty. The canal strip is to be leased to the United States for 100 years, with the privilege of renewal; but all rights and privileges of sovereignty are reserved by Colombia. Even the right to enforce police regulations in the leased territory is granted only in case of emergency. According to article 23, in case armed troops are required, "Colombia agrees to provide the forces necessary; "and if these Colombian troops are unable to preserve order the United States may, with the consent of Colombia, bring in its own forces. Under exceptional circumstances, it is conceded, the United States may bring in troops without red tape, but in that case "as soon as sufficient Colombian forces shall arrive those of the United States shall retire." Colombia is to establish judicial tribunals within the canal belt; and joint tribunals, to consist of Colombian and American jurists, shall sit for the trial of all cases between citizens of Colombia and those of the United States. The only exclusive judicial jurisdiction the United States will enjoy in the canal zone, according to article 13, will be in cases "between citizens of the United States and citizens of any foreign nation other than the republic of Colombia."

VIEW OF CULEBRA CUT ON PANAMA CANAL.

The principal engineering feats of the canal are, of course, of universal interest just now. The isthmus of Panama is 35 miles wide in a straight line, but the canal will be about

ROUTE OF PANAMA CANAL.

38½ miles long, not including channel dredging in the terminal harbors. The general direction from the Caribbean to the Pacific outlet is from northwest to southeast. The Pacific port, Panama, is about 20 miles further east than Colon, on the Atlantic. The highest ground is off to the south, when the elevation sometimes is 300 feet above the sea level. The water supply comes from the Chagres river, to the eastward of the canal route. That stream joins the latter near Gamboa, and widens out into a lake, called Bohio, 12½ miles long. Much of this can be used for the canal at small cost. The general course of the Chagres is northwestward, and it empties into the Caribbean several miles west of Colon, having flowed through a low, marshy district north of the way. From Lake Bohio the canal follows a different route from the river. It is proposed to have the bottom of the canal 150 feet wide. The slope of the banks, and hence the width at the top, will depend on the nature of the soil through which the canal, which is to be 35 feet deep, is cut.

To the first stretch of 12½ miles southward from Colon there will probably be no interruption. In order to reach the level of Lake Bohio two or three locks will be necessary. Gen. H. V. Abbot advised having the lake, whose height will be determined by a dam across the old path of the Chagres, only 70 feet above sea level. The United States commission adopted 90 feet as the standard, although in the driest season this may fall off to 82.

Where the canal taps the lake two or three locks are to be introduced. The commission favored only two, each making a difference of 42 or 45 feet in the water level. Although such locks are feasible, it is remotely possible that three may be finally adopted, as it is safer to look up and down only 30 feet at a time. If a third lock is introduced perhaps it will not be located close to the other two, but be constructed at Tiger hill. An enormous dam, blocking the course of the Chagres, is to be built a little east of the Bohio locks. Engineers say that there will be less danger of seepage, or leakage through the soil, if there is a head of only 65 to 70 feet here, instead of one of 90. Still, if there is another lock at Tiger hill the same effect would be secured.

A spillway, to discharge the surplus water of Lake Bohio, will be constructed three miles to the southwest of the dam and locks, on a small tributary called the Gigante. A natural outlet exists here, 65 feet above sea level. Of course, the spillway must be higher than that to maintain the desired level in Lake Bohio. The commission proposes to have it 85 feet above the sea. From the Gigante the water will drain off through swamps to the lower Chagres, a little excavating helping the flow here. It is expected that the Gigante spillway will serve as an automatic safety valve in time of floods.

As already stated, about 12½ miles of the route lie through Lake Bohio. For fully seven miles there will be deep water. Only a little dredging will be necessary as Gamboa is approached. To the southeast of the latter point lies the heaviest work along the whole route. For nearly eight miles (7.95 to be exact) a cut in the backbone of the isthmus will be needed to bring the canal down to the proper level. This is known as the Culebra cut. The water will be no higher here than in Lake Bohio, and there will be no locks. However, as it may be desirable to drain the Culebra level some time, gates will be introduced near Gamboa (at Obispo.)

It may be remarked, in passing, that the depth of the Culebra cut bears a close relation to the height of the Bohio dam. The amount of excavation in the former was lessened 20 feet when the commission decided to raise the level of Lake Bohio to 90 feet above the sea, instead of 70 feet. On the other hand, if Gen. Abbot's recommendations had been adopted, it would have been necessary to go 20 feet lower in the cut. Part of the material to be removed here is rock, but a good deal more is merely clay.

Partly to control the excesses of the Chagres in very rainy weather, it has been proposed to build a dam at Alhajuela, 10 or 11 miles east of Gamboa, near the source of the stream. An artificial lake there would serve as a reservoir, take care of part of the surplus water when the precipitation was heavy, and help relieve Lake Bohio of a part of its responsibility. By affording storage it would, moreover, be able to reinforce the lower lake in the dry season.

At the southeastern end of the Culebra cut, at Pedro Miguel, there is a drop of 62 feet, managed by two locks. At Miraflores, a mile and a third further, another lock lowers the level 28 feet more. Beyond that point to Panama, over four miles, the canal is at sea level. Dredging in Colon harbor is the extent of 2.6 miles and at Panama for 3.6 miles will add materially to the work required, but these figures are not included in the estimates already given in congress for the canal proper.

HAROLD C. BRAINARD.

Tipping the Barbers.

In the largest private market in New York nearly every woman who buys meat has her favorite butcher whom she tips with a dime at each order, thereby compounding a felony, for the fee invariably obtains for her an overweight of the purchase. Recently four of the 26 butchers employed left their places and opened an opposition market three blocks away. This aroused the suspicion of their former employer, who proceeded to investigate. He learned that 20 of his butchers had been systematically robbing him for the sake of tips. If a woman ordered three pounds of steak she would get 3½ or four pounds in consideration of her dime. On Saturday a single order of meat worth seven dollars was found billed at $3.12. The day before the proprietor detected a butcher in the act of giving away a four-pound chicken to a woman who had tipped him regularly for years. She had reached the door when he collared her. Her pleading kept her out of jail.—N. Y. Press.

Missing Coronation Oath.

Strange things happen in the world in spite of the best-laid plans of men, but nothing more curious has happened in connection with the crowning of our kings than the mislaying of the coronation oath at the coronation of William IV. When the moment arrived for the king to swear to govern the people lawfully, the copy of the oath which had been specially prepared for his use, was missing from the altar, where it should have been placed, and the only way out of the dilemma was for the king to sign the oath printed in the book containing the order of the service. The fact that he did so is recorded in an interesting note by the primate of the time, which is historic as explaining a remarkable omission in the coronation roll which is stored somewhere in the national archives. The book to which King William signed his name is still to be seen in the manuscript library at Lambeth palace.—St. James Gazette.

Three Yards of Art.

It is said that his name was Dudley Dunn, but authentic history is silent on that point. At all events he had sought the house of Dauber, R. A., and held conversation with him.

"Canvases?" said the artist, flattered by the presence of the millionaire in his studio. "Yes, sir; I shall be happy to show you my best canvases. Something allegorical? Or do you prefer a landscape?"

"What I want," said Mr. Dunn, the eminent contractor, with decision, "is something about a yard and a half long and a yard wide, to cover some cracks in the frescoes."—London Answers.

Once a Cosmopolitan City.

Up to the time of the Prussian-Austrian war the old fortress of Mayence of the German confederation was beyond doubt the most cosmopolitan city in the world. At that time the official language was German, the law French, the government Hesse-Darmstadt, the church Roman Catholic, the administration Austrian, the military commander Prussian, the garrison mostly Italian, the post office Thurn and Taxis, the gas works Baden and the telegraph Bavarian.—London Chronicle.

Admitted Free.

"Have you any articles of value with you?" asked the customs inspector.

"Nothing," answered the returning traveler, "except a wealthy grass widow, whom I expect to marry as soon as I land."

"Well," mused the inspector, rubbing his chin thoughtfully, "I guess you can take her through. Seems to me she will come under the classification of baled hay, and that is free."—Baltimore American.

Not His Job.

"Your husband is a floorwalker in a department store, isn't he?"

"Yes."

"Then, why don't you have him get up and walk the floor with the baby when she cries?"

"I can't make him up. When I shake him and tell him what's the matter he mumbles something about soothing sirup in the drug department three aisles down, and then goes to snoring again."—Chicago Tribune.

No Extra Size.

"Are your safe deposit boxes extra large?" inquired the prospective patron.

"They are the full regulation size," replied the smiling attendant.

The stranger frowned.

"I'm afraid they won't do," he said. "I want one big enough to hold a load of coal."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Heat and the Human System.

The human system can endure heat of 212 degrees, the boiling point of water, because the skin is a bad conductor, and on account of the perspiration cooling the body. Men have withstood without injury a heat of 300 degrees for several minutes.—Science.

A Worthy Citizen.

Broadway—Van Astor lives a very unobtrusive life.

Manhattan—Yes, indeed. You never see his name in the paper except once a year, when he is swearing off his taxes.—Judge.

Accounted For.

Cumso—I wonder what makes Snooper look so sheepish.

Cawker—Well, there are his mutton-chop whiskers, you know.—Detroit Free Press.

Ten in Pill Form.

Ten pills are now sold. They run 24 to the ounce and each makes a large cup of tea.—N. Y. Sun.

TRAGEDY OF A KISS.

Chicago Man Slaps Girl Who Kisses His Lips and Is Fined Five Dollars.

A man in Chicago holds the sanctity of his lips above pearls and rubies.

He says that he has his faults, but no woman shall take him living. What she does when he has died in defending the only once kissed place under his nose he does not care.

Thirty years old, says the Chicago American, he has gone straight down the middle of the road, looking extremely at the primrose path and stuffing his ears with cotton to keep out the songs of the sirens. His name is William Gaunwald.

Miss Annie Williams, of 95 Wells street, loves him. She has fought against it in vain. Last Thursday morning she looked at him with her soul in her eyes; then, swayed by impulse, she threw her arms about his neck and kissed him resoundingly.

KISSED AGAINST HIS WILL.

Gaunwald staggered from the shock. For a moment he was too horror-stricken to do anything but gasp.

Then, every instinct of insulted modesty rising fiercely, he slapped Miss Williams, saying: "Take that, now!" She wept and had him arrested.

"This girl kissed me," he said to Justice Kersten. "I was not expecting such a thing. I was totally unprepared to defend myself. She gave me no warning at all. She just violently hugged me and kissed me. I don't permit any woman to take such liberties."

Justice Kersten could not see that he had been injured in any way, and fined him five dollars.

KLEPTOMANIA CURE.

Instead of Having Them Arrested, London Shopkeeper Administers Spanking to Shoplifters.

A London shopkeeper is credited with having adopted a novel and successful method of discouraging the feminine habit of shoplifting. The reported result is a standing reproach to those scientists who talk about "kleptomania," and offer all sorts of excuses for ladies who habitually pick up small but valuable articles on bargain counters when the clerk is not looking.

The shopkeeper's method when a lady has been detected "with the goods on her" is to conduct her to his office and offer her the choice between arrest and being then and there summarily spanked. The medical fraternity will be shocked to learn that all of the 20 women to whom this proposition was made thankfully accepted the alternative of a spanking.

The shopkeeper wishes it understood that he did not administer this punishment personally. He called in a vigorous woman employe about the

"TAKE YOUR CHOICE."

... as a sort of janitress whom ... could depend upon to lay on without remorse, as she had brought up a numerous family in good order.

The shopkeeper suggests that to prevent any collision with the authorities through the general operation of his remedy a law be passed permitting proprietors of large stores frequented by women to apply it at discretion. He remarks that not one of the subjects of his system has ever offended again.

Rewarded His Own Honesty.

While getting off a car in Hoboken, N. J., Mrs. H. Littlefield dropped a roll of bank notes amounting to $2,000, which she had just drawn from a bank. A polite gentleman picked the roll, returned it to her, and disappeared before she could thank him. On counting the money Mrs. Littlefield discovered that there were only $14 in the roll. The polite gentleman had kept $1,986 as a reward for his politeness.

There Is a Lucky Number.

The Greeks asked their faith in No. 3—the oracles were consulted three times, the tripod was sacred to the gods, etc.

SAVED THE COUNTESS.

Poor Hungarian Laborer Rescued Her from Drowning and Then She Proposed Marriage.

A pretty romance is reported from Tamesvar, Hungary, where a couple are now spending the honeymoon after a strangely brought about wedding. While Thomas Weber, a poor Hungarian laborer, was tramping along the shores of Lake Geneva, in Switzerland, bitterly bemoaning his fate of poverty and lack of work, he saw a carriage drawn by a pair of splendid horses. The horses took fright and ran away. Going too near the shore the carriage was overturned into the lake. The coachman escaped the bath, but a finely-dressed woman was thrown into the water.

She hardly had time to scream before Weber was at the shore line, with his coat stripped off. He plunged in, grasped the woman and brought her safely to land. There the coachman, who had stood by in terror, helped the rescuer to right the carriage. The horses had been caught and the woman rode off to her home, after making Weber promise to call on her.

HE PLUNGED BRAVELY IN.

When Weber kept his promise he found that he had rescued Countess Anna Liebeck, a widow in affluent circumstances, who had a villa near the lake. She thanked Weber for his bravery and said she could not repay him even with her great fortune. Weber told her his circumstances, but would not accept any money for his deed. The result of the meeting was that the countess fell in love with the poor laborer, and in a few weeks she proposed marriage, and he accepted. What was the poor man to do?

Weber is a good looking and fairly intelligent man of 25, while the countess is fair, plump and 40. The couple are spending the honeymoon in the same village where the bridegroom's father was a peddler and his mother a washerwoman. The parents have given up their hard life and every one is happy, the bride the happiest of all.

VICTIM OF BOYCOTT.

Mrs. Spencer Turned Unions Against Her Husband and Forced Him to Quit Business.

Imri A. Spencer, a wealthy resident of Waterbury, Conn., has announced his retirement from the Spencer and Pierpont company, dealers in groceries and provisions. His wife had long urged her husband's retirement from business, but in vain.

At last the trolley strike came along and Mrs. Spencer saw her opportunity. The labor unions of the city placed upon their "unfair" list the establishments of all business men who rode upon trolley cars manned by non-union men or permitted members of their families to ride thereon. In full knowledge of this Mrs. Spencer rode again and again every time in the city.

MRS. SPENCER AND THE PICKET.

At the conclusion of her first ride she entered her husband's store, closely followed by a union picket, who delivered the usual warning. Taking the man aside, Mrs. Spencer said: "My husband knows I am riding. He says he doesn't care. Now, I don't care whether or not you boycott him. It might do him good. At any rate, I shall keep on patronizing the trolley cars."

She continued her rides, says the New York World, the boycott was enforced and business fell off. The stockholders were frightened and urged President Spencer to show his wife the error of her ways. "I can't stop my wife, but I'll sell you my stock and quit the business," he said, and did so.

Canary Bird Industry.

Germany annually sends to this country 130,000 canary birds, 5,000 to France, 3,000 to England, and 2,000 to Russia.

TALK ABOUT GHOSTS.

Prof. C. W. Leadbeater Has Seen Many of Them.

According to His Observations They Appear in Seven Distinct Forms —A Few of His Startling Experiences.

[Special New York Letter.]

OUTSPOKEN believers in ghosts are hard to find nowadays, but just at present a distinguished Englishman is visiting New York who not only believes in their existence, but claims that he has seen and conversed with them. The gentleman who makes these remarkable assertions is C. W. Leadbeater, of London, one of the leaders of the International Theosophical society, who was a close friend of Mme. Blavatsky during the lifetime of that remarkable woman.

CHOKED BY A GHOST.

According to the English theosophist ghosts are classified in seven types, which he described to a friend, who is a member of the editorial staff of the Chicago Inter Ocean, as thought forms, shells, churchyard ghosts, astral impressions, double of living man, animal apparations and the genuine ghost.

"The astral impression is the most common kind of ghost," Mr. Leadbeater said. "It may be either seen or heard. Visible, it may be the specter of a ship or train wreck, a holocaust, a destructive volcanic eruption, or any scene in which great stress of emotion has existed.

"The genuine ghost is a thing that must be reckoned with in his haunt. He rarely appears to more than one person at a time. He has the power of speech, strength, the will to do good or evil, just as a living man has. He haunts the scene of his murder or some wrong that has been done him. But that is not always true. This real ghost more often appears when he is in great misery, and we do it a great wrong when we flee from it. It desires to offer aid or ask for it, or else it would not appear. I have talked and shaken hands with these ghosts and have learned more or less about their habits. They are not always visible, but sometimes appear as speaking ghosts.

"I visit every haunted house I can locate, and on one occasion had a terrifying experience with an obstreperous spirit. This ghost had driven the family from the house and made life a terror in the vicinity. No one ever saw it, but its unearthly yells and its insane actions struck terror into the hearts of all who heard it. I did not fear it, and went into the house. It was a lonely cottage, far from other habitation. As the sun went down and upon the owls screeched and hooted in the trees, and the night was as black as Erebus.

HAUNTED BY SPECTER DOG.

"When I reached the door I pushed it open and stepped into the room. A chill struck me and I felt faintly sick, but I was resolved to stick out the night, to see or talk with the ghost. I sat by a window and waited. Ten minutes passed and I heard nothing. I felt reassured. I waited an hour and still no ghost came, and I began to doubt the stories.

"I will never forget how long and fearful that hour seemed, although I was really not afraid, but I felt the chill again as midnight approached. At 12 o'clock the hush of deathly silence fell upon the room. I heard the faint rustling of a garment and an instant later felt two cold and clammy hands close upon my throat.

"I jumped from the seat and strove to free myself. I clutched at the hands, but they were not material. The ghost was throttling me. I felt my breath going and I was heartsick. I fought around and around the room and all the time those clammy fingers held me in a viselike grip.

"I tried to cry out. My hands beat at the ghostly hands at my throat, and I was rapidly becoming exhausted. Every second seemed an age. I lived an eternity, two minutes, and yet I had no hope of being able to release myself. My whole frame shook like an aspen leaf, my temples throbbed, and my heart grew heavy as lead. Yet the only sound to break the unearthly stillness of the night was my own scuffling and gasping.

"This fight against an invisible spirit kept up until I reached the open door. With one terrific lunge I threw myself at the opening and carried myself and my ghostly adversary into the open air. As I passed through the door the fingers slipped from my throat. I had won the fight, but I never shall forget it nor be entirely able, I fear, to determine why I was attacked.

"During my life I have seen two animal apparitions. They were as real as a human ghost. One was the specter of a favorite dog I had owned. It appeared to me, and I recognized it just as if it were living. These mystic animals are drawn to men and are always endeavoring to take some visible form. I doubt not they follow their former masters about, and the reason they are not seen is because the man has not developed the senses of the inner self, whence body the soul dwells within his body of flesh and bone.

"The other animal apparition I saw was that of a cat. The animal had been a pet in the family of a friend of mine, and I once beheld it as a ghost.

"The thought form is as truly a ghost as any one of the other six. It is visible, which is proof enough of its existence. The manner by which it makes its form is peculiar. I may desire greatly to be in some other place. My mind is striving to place me there, and in itself does project my other self to any distance. The other self takes visible form, and there I am seen, not as a misty, white-robed specter, but as a living, breathing body.

"The elves, fairies, and pixies are seen only in lonely places. Like the ghost of a dead man they choose wild, unreal surroundings. A shepherd playing his reed pipe, a child lost in the woods, or, sometimes, if they be in utmost sympathy, a pair of lovers will have visions of these little beings, which never existed in living form, but appear as spirits.

THE GRAVEYARD SPOOK.

"The most frightful of all the ghosts, the one about which more weird stories are told and which gives to death a horror, is the churchyard ghost. This ghost is harmless. It has neither a message to deliver nor a request to ask. It rises as a luminous vapor from the grave, hovers shivering above the mound, and then vanishes. Unknowing persons, seeing these things, are horrified. For the instant they are pinned to the spot, and then have an uncontrollable impulse to flee. By that time the ghost has disappeared and could in no wise harm a person.

"It is merely the ethereal body of the dead person, and may or may not be endowed with the senses of the spirit. It is the fear of the sight of this ghost that hurries a man fleet-footed past a cemetery. That kind of a spirit could not chase a man nor do him bodily harm.

"A ghost is a fine hypnotist and can work upon any human being. In this way the specter sometimes makes us see by influencing our finer senses. It never seeks harm a person by hypnotizing him. To understand all this, we must understand just what the finer body is. We are dual creatures with two living bodies. Death lays aside one, the other lasts. The dead are just as much alive as we are but until we develop our psychic sense we cannot see them. When we do develop those finer senses we can see and talk with them. This amounts to a clairvoyance of the highest kind, and even at the beginning of this great science enables us to see beyond the grave.

"Ghosts take on material form by gathering to their spirit bodies the physical substances surrounding them. A ghost in great anxiety, such as the spirit of a miser worrying over his hoarded gold, or a man who misplaced his will, is anxious to speak out, and in two ways he may make himself visible. One way is to produce materialization by his own will without human assistance, the other is to hypnotize a person and act upon his psychic sense.

"Dead men are very reasonable and listen to argument. They will not do a thing they are asked not to do. It is quite safe to be afraid of them, though. I know by experience they may be obstreperous."

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Fort[illegible] ... Proprietor

THE PUBLIC'S BUSINESS.

As public servants, the members of the Borough Board of Education will hereafter transact their business in public. No one thinks for a moment that the members of that board in the past have pursued anything but an honest and straightforward course. The board has, however, the handling of more public funds than the Borough Council and it is but the right of the public to see and know how it is spent and what the board does at its meetings. It may serve to save the board from a lot of criticism. When the people get an opportunity of inspecting the work of the board but once a year, the results do not always seem commensurate with the expenses and there is bound to be criticism where a perfect understanding of the conditions as they progress may change public opinion.

This action, which will admit the public to the sessions of the Board of Education of North Plainfield, was taken at the borough school meeting. A resolution to that effect, introduced by Former Mayor William L. Saunders, was passed by the unanimous vote of the five hundred borough citizens present. If there were any who opposed it, they failed to lift their voice in opposition. It will simply give the people of North Plainfield the right which the people of Plainfield have long enjoyed. It is not expected that the public at large will often take advantage of the right to attend the meeting; [the representatives of the local newspapers will, however, be at each meeting and give a full report of the proceedings thus enabling the people to keep in touch with the doings of the board.

The coming year promises to be an eventful one for the Borough Board of Education as well as for the Borough Council. North Plainfield has good schools but they do not yet serve to accommodate all the demands upon them. There are more children than there is school room and temporary class rooms have been established to tide over the demands until a new school shall be built. A new school must come. The board will have to solve the problem of securing this new school and continuing the present high standard without increasing the tax rate any more than is absolutely necessary. This is a subject that the borough public will be decidedly interested in and so it is particularly desirable that the sessions this year should be public and without any suggestion of secrecy.

THE MILK SUPPLY.

There is no subject of greater importance to a community than the proper control of its milk supply. Carelessness or negligence in that direction may imperil the health of the whole city. It is eminently proper, therefore, that the local Board of Health should demand that the dealers take every proper precaution to protect the welfare of the community. Next to the water supply, there is probably no one food supply that is so far reaching in its effects.

When the City Board of Health passed its new sanitary code, it included a section which provided for the licensing of all milk dealers in the city. In that way the board was given direct control of the milk supply and can now provide for the necessary precautions. Careful investigation of the provisions of this code fails to find anything unreasonable. Many of the careful dealers now comply with all the provisions and the only change that will affect them will be the one regarding a license. Other dealers, who have not gone into the business on such an elaborate scale, will find it necessary to expend a little more "elbow grease" and use more care in keeping their stables cleaned up.

It has been claimed that the stringent provisions of the State and local Boards of Health have forced the dealers to increase the price of milk. There does not appear to be anything in the new code that would make any increase necessary. Feed is high and that may prevent milk from dropping to six cents a quart this summer. The wise milk producer will, however, keep his stable in a sanitary condition whether the Board of Health insists or not. In the end it will be economy for him.

It is no more severe to insist that the conditions accompanying the production of milk shall be strictly sanitary than it is to object when the water supply is polluted. The public health cannot be watched too closely and any movement to better the safeguards will be regarded with favor.

We do not fear any enemy whom we can face in the open but the thought of some dread disease, the germs of which may reach us in a way we least suspect, is an enemy to be dreaded and guarded against in every way.

THE HOSPITAL NEEDS A LARGER REVENUE

Women's Auxiliary Board of Muhlenberg Hospital Wants More Yearly Contributors.

IT MAKES A STATEMENT

THE WORK NOW BEING DONE BY THE HOSPITAL.

Running Expenses of the Institution Have Increased More Rapidly Than Has Its Income—The Present Contributors.

The Woman's Auxiliary Board of Muhlenberg Hospital is endeavoring to secure additional yearly contributors toward the support of the institution. In connection with the appeal the members of the board are making the following statement:

The number of indoor patients treated last year was 403 against 376 the previous year and 298 five years ago. The number of dispensary visits last year was 2,147 against 1,927 the previous year and 913 five years ago. The number of operations (including dispensary) last year was 328 against 255 the previous year and 98 five years ago.

Of the 403 indoor patients last year 138 (over one-third) were treated gratuitously and 17% (about 44 per cent.) were ward patients who paid at the rate of $5 a week (or less) against the average cost per patient per week of $12 (exclusive of donations other than cash); no charge is ever made for dispensary patients.

The hospital is non-sectarian; its equipment is at the service of all, for any legally qualified physician may send patients to the hospital to be there treated by such physician privately; no person has ever been refused admission because of inability to pay for treatment. None of the Governors of the hospital receive any pecuniary compensation for their services, nor do any of the physicians or surgeons of the medical staff except in the case of private patients.

With the number of patients treated larger every year, the service rendered better and the cost of supplies greater, the running expenses of the institution have increased from year to year much more rapidly than has its income. Last year the treasurer of the hospital received (exclusive of Hospital Sunday collections) 150 cash contributions, and the previous year 128 cash contributions. There are at present 154 members of the Woman's Auxiliary Board who, by the payment of their annual dues and fines to the treasurer of the Woman's Auxiliary Board, make yearly cash contributions toward the work of the hospital.

The Montclair Hospital, supported by a community with about the same population as Plainfield and North Plainfield, receives yearly (excluding church collections which in amount exceed those received by Muhlenberg Hospital) cash contributions from over 1,000 persons.

The finance committee is desirous of materially increasing the number of yearly contributors and with a population of over 20,000 in Plainfield and North Plainfield, there are undoubtedly several hundred persons who will, in response to a personal appeal, thus gladly assist the good work of the hospital. There may be others who prefer to make donations without having their names placed on the list of regular contributors. All offerings will be gratefully received by William C. Kinney, treasurer, 828 Arlington avenue.

FUNERAL OF GEORGE LEWIS.

Service Was Held at Residence on Mountain Avenue.

The funeral of George Lewis, who passed away at his home on Mountain avenue, Thursday, were held from his late residence, Saturday afternoon. They were in charge of Rev. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church and were largely attended by relatives and friends. The floral tributes were numerous.

Following the obsequies the remains were interred in the North Plainfield cemetery. Those who acted as pall bearers were A. B. Wheeler, Harrison Coddington, Henry Weiss and Jules Bovey.

Golfer Took His Own Life.

C. W. Webb, formerly president of the Cranford Golf Club, and well-known in this vicinity, committed suicide, Saturday evening, at his winter home in Brooklyn. He cut his throat and wrist and then jumped out of a window. No reason is assigned for the deed. Mr. Webb was in the habit of spending his summers at Cranford at the Colonial House. He was general manager of a firm having a store in this city. The store is closed today on that account.

Mrs. E. S. F. Randolph, of Park avenue, was a guest on Sunday of her sister, Mrs. Pothemus, in Brooklyn.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETS IN PUBLIC SESSION

First Open Meeting of Board Saw Nothing But Routine Business Transacted.

TOOK BUT HALF HOUR

JAMES R. JOY WAS ELECTED PRESIDENT OF BOROUGH BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Robert Fountain Made District Clerk—Some Discussion of Question of One or Two Sessions—Referred to the Committee.

For the first time in the history of the borough, the members of the Board of Education of that municipality met in open session last Monday. The importance of the meeting, was after all, entirely confined to that fact. As far any the business actually done at the session, there was little outside of organization and routine *affairs and only a half hour was re*quired to accomplish it.

There were present: John Valiant, James R. Joy, Dr. J. H. Cooley, Murray Burtis, H. A. Woodruff, Samuel Townsend, Edward A. Overton, R. M. Fountain and the supervising principal, Homer J. Wightman.

At 8 o'clock, John Valiant called the meeting to order and James R. Joy was chosen president of the board with Robert Fountain, district clerk. The salary of the district clerk was made $50 per year. The rules of last year will govern the new board until further notice and what revisions are necessary will be made by a committee of two which was appointed by the chairman. It comprises Samuel Townsend and John Valiant. This committee will report at the next meeting which will be held a week from last evening.

The resolutions of the school meeting, calling for open meetings, were read by Mr. Townsend not to be binding but merely as a suggestion. It was decided to hold public meetings when it was practicable. It was also decided to hold the meetings hereafter in the school building auditorium, or some other class room, as the supervising principal's office was too small. The rules will be changed to allow this to be done. A definite order of business will be laid down at the next meeting.

Superintendent Wightman suggested that some circular letters be printed and distributed among the parents of the children for the purpose of ascertaining the preference of the parents as to whether they desired the one session or two session plan adopted. Mr. Joy suggested that this matter should be discussed by the committee on complaints. Mr. Townsend held that the School Board was chosen by the people to settle those matters and by motion it was referred to the committee on complaints which will be chosen with other committees at the next meeting of the board. The meeting adjourned at 8:30 after the board decided to pay Miss Ethel Whalen half month's salary for her services as music teacher after she was released last month. The bill amounted to $22 50.

THEATRICAL.

Good evidence of the enormous favor with which George Ade's "Sultan of Sulu" has been received in New York is furnished by the suburban matinees at Wallack's. The management was unable to accommodate out-of-town patrons and decided on a mid-week suburban performance when a portion of the best seats in the house should be reserved for mail orders. The new departure proved immensely popular, the house being filled from the very first. Seats are being engaged four Wednesdays in advance and as many are being turned away at the matinee as at any of the night performances.

James T. Powers, in George W. Lederer's beautiful musical comedy production, "The Jewel of Asia," will return to the home of his former triumphs, Daly's Theatre, New York, Monday, March 30, for two weeks only. Mr. Powers and this dainty, melodious homeycomb play, have been one of the great holiday successes for the past two months at the Criterion Theatre, and at the termination of this engagement go direct to Daly's Theatre, where for many seasons this star was the main factor in those great successes presented by the Augustin Daly musical comedy company, "The Geisha," "San Toy," "The Circus Girl," and "A Runaway Girl." Mr. Powers in his present play, "The Jewel of Asia," (of which he is the star), presents a character which recalls all of the humorous methods and inimitable mannerisms which have made him such a favorite with Broadway audiences. Besides Mr. Powers many notable players are included in this production—Blanche King, Rachel Booth, William Cameron, Carrie Perkins, George O'Donnell, Richie Ling, Harry Short, being most prominent.

DINNER FOR MAYOR.

Spread at Old Sebring Homestead at Greenbrook at Which Many Politicians Gathered.

In honor of Mayor Newton B. Smalley, Charles P. Sebring gave a dinner Saturday evening to a large number of prominent city officials and well known men from other parts of Union and Somerset counties. There were thirty present at the dinner which was held in the old Sebring homestead at Greenbrook.

The menu was an elaborate one. After the dinner Mr. Sebring assumed the role of toastmaster and elicited a few remarks from Mayor Smalley, Mayor O. L. Jenkins, of Plainfield; Mayor Brokaw, of Bound Brook; Borough Counsel Charles A. Reed, Rev. J. B. Cleaver and Former Mayor B. A. Hegeman, Jr.

Besides those named there were present W. C. B. Smith, H. S. Potter, Chief of the Fire Department J. J. Stahl, Borough Councilman Charles A. Lee, Recorder Thomas Doud, City Councilmen J. F. Buckle and Robert L. Lee, Chief of the Plainfield Fire Department T. O. Doane and others.

WHAT DRAKE SAYS.

In Communication to New Brunswick Home News About Plainfield.

In a recent communication in the New Brunswick Home News, Silas D. Drake, of Lincoln, has the following to say regarding Plainfield: "In securing the large Aluminum Press Works to locate at Dewey Park I have worked for the past ten months alone and single handed, in face of obstacles almost insurmountable. Through the development of Lincoln and Dewey Park is enhances the value of land for and near; it is a stimulus to the trade of the merchants of Plainfield; and opens up a diversified field for labor. Plainfield has a boom on in the erection of factories, dwellings and large mercantile houses that makes the hearts of its inhabitants glad, and the end is not yet, and you cannot check its material growth.

"Plainfield has many citizens who sleep with one eye open for advancement, and what benefits others benefits them. There is very little dog in the manger business about the progressive citizens of Plainfield, and I still control large real estate interests in Plainfield that I propose developing."

TWO GIFTS.

James Clark's Generosity May Permit Warren Chapel to Build New Quarters.

Through the generosity of James Clark, of West Seventh street, the Children's Home Association has just received a gift of $10,000 and Warren chapel a gift of $6,000. The gifts were unexpected and are therefore all the *more enjoyed because of the gen*uine surprise.

The gift to the Children's Home will enable the board of managers to amply provide for the growing needs. The money received by Warren chapel will help the congregation there to erect a suitable church or chapel on Watchung avenue, which has been under consideration for some time past. It is understood that the chapel has also received another cash gift to assist in the enterprise. If a change should be made the present property would be disposed of at a fair price and the money thus received would go toward erecting the new edifice.

NEW OFFICERS.

Chosen at Annual Meeting of Young Ladies' Missionary Society of First Baptist Church.

The annual meeting of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society, of the First Baptist church, was held Friday afternoon in the lecture room of the church. The election of officers was as follows:

President, Miss Ada Fountain; first vice president, Mrs. Frank W. Jones; second vice president, Miss Hattie French; recording secretary, Miss Carro Bird; corresponding secretary, Miss Mae Batchelor; treasurer, Miss Florence Serrell; collector, Mrs. R. W. Barnes.

The report of the treasurer showed a marked increase in receipts for the past year. Between $100 and $200 has been raised and there is a balance of $60 in the treasury. The receipts are divided between home and foreign missions, one-third going to home missions and two-thirds to foreign missions.

VISIT AT BRUNSWICK.

Boys From Plainfield Y. M. C. A. Entertained—Played Basket Ball.

Boys' Secretary Kenneth Robbie and six members of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. went to New Brunswick Saturday morning and were entertained during the morning by Secretary Buckalew and members of the New Brunswick association. The Plainfielders were shown the sights of the town, selecting the college, seminary, new library buildings and many other places of interest. During the morning a basket ball game was played which resulted in the local association being defeated by a score of 24 to 16.

ARGUMENTS FOR EARLY CLOSING FROM PULPIT

Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck Preaches on Labor Question and Hours of Work.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM

BROTHERLY LOVE BETWEEN CAPITAL AND LABOR WILL DO IT.

Something About Early Closing Movement in Local Stores Which He Commended—No Use for the Street Loafer.

"Labor and Its Problems," was the subject of an interesting discourse delivered at Trinity Reformed church last Sunday, by the pastor, Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D. The pastor took for his text a portion of the Sixth commandment, "Six days shalt thou work." He said that there is a tendency to confine religious thought and worship to one day, but he did not believe that the other six days should be given up to forgetfulness of God.

In the first place, Dr. Schenck spoke of his text being the supreme law for the sons of men. According to the divine injunction if a man will not work he shall not eat. Secondly, Pastor Schenck dwelt upon the dignity of labor and said that the happiest people in all the earth are those who work. In the third place the speaker had something to say about the problems of the question of mutual good will in labor. Dr. Schenck said that there should be brotherly love existing between capital and labor and thus would perplexing problems be settled.

The pastor criticized bargain-hunting and said that if such persons knew the conditions under which some bargains were offered, the purchaser would not touch them with a ten foot pole. When the people are willing to buy good goods and pay a fair price then will they help to solve a great problem.

In referring to the hours of labor, Dr. Schenck said that his text partially answered the question. He said that all should work, but that no one has the right to take the seventh day for labor. In some kinds of work he believed that six hours were long enough, while in other kinds ten hours or a little longer are within reason. He severely criticized the practice of young girls working in a store ten and twelve hours and he expressed pleasure that a local society had undertaken to see that no girl work eight hours long enough and he could not fancy that the proprietors of the local stores would ever return to the old rule, which he characterized as out of season. Regarding this, Mr. Schenck said that the remedy is with the public and he hoped that the people would do their shopping in reasonable hours. He also denounced the practice of young girls working in factories from 7 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the evening, with an hour for dinner, and he believed that fifteen hours are too long for men. He said that the body needs rest, the mind needs development and the soul needs nourishment and time to meet God.

In conclusion the pastor said that there is nothing menial or low in honest toil, but the loafer, the able-bodied man who stands about street corners and is supported by the public, was roundly denounced as a class that should not be encouraged.

SLOWLY IMPROVING.

Wilson Fredericks Has Received Skin From Forty-Two of His Masonic Brothers.

Wilson Fredericks, of Dunellen, probably the most severely injured of the surviving Westfield wreck victims, is getting along very nicely at Muhlenberg Hospital. The slow and tedious process of grafting skin on the scalded portions of his body have been going on unceasingly and he is bearing up well. So far, forty-two persons, all Masonic brethren, have given portions of their cuticle for the purpose.

The hospital authorities declare that with the present favorable symptoms, he will be able to leave the institution in two months. The skin grafting operations have been in charge of Dr. Albert Plain.

Settled With Trolley Co.

The case of E. J. Crudup and wife against the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway Company, for damages, has been settled out of court, satisfactorily, through Attorney William DeMeza. Through the same attorney, Henry McCann has effected a settlement with the New Jersey Central for injuries received in the Westfield wreck.

To Preach Again.

Rev. Dr. Robert Bruce Hull, of Brooklyn, will occupy the pulpit at the First Baptist church, Sunday. He is a talented divine and only a few weeks ago Plainfielders had an opportunity of hearing him.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

The Standard Railroad of America.

PROTECTED THROUGHOUT BY THE INTERLOCKING SWITCH AND BLOCK SIGNAL SYSTEM.

ON AND AFTER JAN. 12, 1903.

Trains will leave Plainfield as follows:

For Philadelphia, Atlantic City, Wilmington, Baltimore, Washington and the South—[illegible] a. m.—Fast line daily, with Pullman Vestibule Parlor Cars, for Pittsburg and Cincinnati, Monday and Saturday only. Dining Car.

[illegible] p. m.—Western Express, daily, with Vestibule sleeping Cars and Dining Car, for Pittsburg and Chicago, except Saturday, for Toledo.

[illegible] p. m.—Pacific Express, daily, with Pullman and Vestibule Sleeping Cars, for Pittsburg and Chicago, daily for Knoxville, via Shenandoah Valley Route, for Cleveland, except Saturday.

The Southern's Fast Mail Limited—1.20 p.m. week-days.

The Atlantic Coast Line Florida Special—2.05 p. m. every day.

Seaboard Florida Limited—1.07 p. m. daily.

For Baltimore, Washington and the south—1.05, 4.08, 9.07, 10.42 a. m., 12.05 night. On Sunday at 1.05, 9.07, 9.38 a. m., 12.05 night.

For Newark and New York—3.08, 5.31, 6.18, 6.38, 6.55, 7.55, 8.06, 8.36, 9.07, 9.36, 10.07, 10.36, 11.07, 11.36 a. m., 12.06, 12.36, 1.07, 1.36, 2.07, 2.36, 3.07, 3.36, 4.07, 4.36, 5.07, 5.36, 6.07, 6.36, 7.07, 7.36, 8.07, 8.36, 9.07, 9.36, 10.07, 10.36, 11.07, 11.36 p. m., 12.07 night. Sundays, 3.08, 5.31, 6.18, 6.38, 7.55, 8.06, 8.36, 9.07, 9.36, 10.07, 10.36, 11.07, 11.36 a. m., 12.06, 12.36, 1.07, 1.36, 2.07, 2.36, 3.07, 3.36, 4.07, 4.36, 5.07, 5.36, 6.07, 6.36, 7.07, 7.36, 8.07, 8.36, 9.07, 9.36, 10.07, 10.36, 11.07, 11.36 p. m., 12.07 night.

For Philadelphia—1.03, 6.38, 7.55, 8.06, 8.36, 9.07, 9.36, 10.07, 10.36, 11.07, 11.36 a. m., 12.06, 12.36, 1.07, 1.36, 2.07, 2.36, 3.07, 3.36, 4.07, 4.36, 5.07, 5.36, 6.07, 6.36, 7.07, 7.36, 8.07, 8.36, 9.07, 9.36, 10.07, 10.36, 11.07, 11.36 p. m., 12.07 night. Sundays, 1.03, 6.38, 8.06, 8.36, 9.07, 9.36, 10.07, 10.36, 11.07, 11.36 a. m., 12.06, 12.36, 1.07, 1.36, 2.07, 2.36, 3.07, 3.36, 4.07, 4.36, 5.07, 5.36, 6.07, 6.36, 7.07, 7.36, 8.07, 8.36, 9.07, 9.36, 10.07, 10.36, 11.07, 11.36 p. m., 12.07 night.

For Atlantic City—10.42 a. m., and 5.36 p. m. week days. Sundays, 8.36 a. m. Through Vestibule Parlor Cars and Coaches and Dining Car. Through Vestibule Parlor Cars, Dining Car and Standard Coaches on Sundays.

For Cape May—1.07 p.m. week-days.

For Long Branch and Ocean Grove—3.07, 9.07, 11.07, 11.36 a. m., 12.06, 1.07, 2.07, 3.07, 4.07, 5.07, 6.07, 7.07, 8.07, 9.07, 10.07, 11.07 p. m. Sundays—8.00, 9.07, 11.07, 11.36 a. m., 12.06, 1.07, 2.07, 3.07, 4.07, 5.07, 6.07, 7.07, 8.07, 9.07, 10.07, 11.07 p. m.

For Asbury Park, Asbury Park, Ocean Grove and Neptune—3.07, 9.07, 11.07, 11.36 a. m., 12.06, 1.07, 2.07, 3.07, 4.07, 5.07, 6.07, 7.07, 8.07, 9.07, 10.07, 11.07 p. m. Sundays—8.00, 9.07, 11.07, 11.36 a. m., 12.06, 1.07, 2.07, 3.07, 4.07, 5.07, 6.07, 7.07, 8.07, 9.07, 10.07, 11.07 p. m.

For Lambertville and Intermediate Points—8.36, 11.36 a. m., 4.36 p. m. Sundays—8.36, 11.36 a. m., 4.36 p. m.

For Bethlehem, Allentown and Mauch Chunk—8.36, 9.54 a. m., 2.11, 4.36 p. m. Sundays—8.36, 9.54 a. m., 4.36 p. m.

For Wilkesbarre and Scranton—8.36, 9.54 a. m., 4.36 p. m. Sundays—8.36 a. m., 4.36 p. m.

For Long Branch and ocean points, week-days, 11.36 a. m. Sundays, 11.36 a. m.

For Lakewood, Toms River and Barnegat—2.36, 4.36 p. m. week-days. Sundays—4.36 p. m.

For Atlantic City—8.00 a. m., 4.36 p. m.

For Philadelphia—3.17, 7.44, 9.25, 9.54, 10.44, 10.54, 11.24, 11.54 a. m., 12.54, 1.30, 2.44, 3.54, 4.54, 5.54, 6.54, 7.54, 8.54, 9.54, 10.54, 11.54 p. m., 12.54 night. Sundays, 3.17, 7.44, 9.25, 9.54, 10.44, 10.54, 11.24, 11.54 a. m., 12.54, 1.30, 2.44, 3.54, 4.54, 5.54, 6.54, 7.54, 8.54, 9.54, 10.54, 11.54 p. m., 12.54 night.

For Reading and Harrisburg—8.17, 9.54, 2.44, 4.54 p. m. (Parlor cars only, Royal Blue Line through trains.) If night, Sundays—2.44 p. m., 2.22 night.

For Lancaster—8.17, 9.54, 2.44, 4.54 p. m. (Parlor cars only, Royal Blue Line through trains.) If night, Sundays—2.44 p. m., 2.22 night.

For Williamsport—8.17, 9.54, 2.44 p. m. (Parlor cars only, Royal Blue Line through trains.) If night, Sundays—2.44 p. m., 2.22 night.

For Baltimore and Washington—9.14, 11.36 a. m., 1.36, 7.11, 4.16 (Parlor cars only, Royal Blue Line through trains.) If night, Sundays—1.36, 11.36 a. m., 2.22 night.

Chair cars at Bound Brook.

J. G. BRILL, Vice Pres. & Gen. Man'r.
GEO. M. SUSSET, Gen. Pass. Agent.

Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Time Table in Effect February 8, 1903.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Leave South Plainfield 10 54 a. m.

Daily (except Sunday) local to Mauch Chunk, connecting with the Black Diamond express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Detroit and Chicago.

Leave South Plainfield 6 49 p. m.

Daily, Solid Vestibule train for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Toronto, Detroit, Chicago and principal intermediate stations, except Rochester.

For time of local trains see pocket time-tables or consult agents.

FRANK ROWLEY, City Ticket Agent,
218 West Front Street, Plainfield, N. J.

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POSTOFFICE.

Office opens 7 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
On Saturdays open 7 a. m., closes 9 p. m. Money order office open until 8 p. m.

NEW YORK MAILS.

Arrive—1.30, 8.45, 11.30 a. m., 2.30, 5.00, 8.00 p. m.
Close—7.00, 9.00, 11.00 a. m., 1.00, 3.00, 6.00 p. m.

SOMERVILLE and RARITON.

Arrive—9.45 a. m., 2.15 and 5.30 p. m.
Close—9.15 a. m., 1.45 and 5.00 p. m.

ELIZABETH—Direct.

Close—1.30 p. m.

PENNSYLVANIA—West of Easton

Close 12.05 p. m.

NEWARK—Direct.

Arrive—8.30 a. m., 1.30, 5.00 p. m.
Close—7.00, 9.00 a. m., 1.00, 3.00, 6.00 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—7.30, 9.45, 11.30 a. m., 2.30 and 5.00 p. m.
Close—7.00, 9.00 a. m., 1.00, 3.00, 6.00 p. m.

Through fast mail for West and South close 6.00 and 6.45 p. m.

Through fast mail for East, close 1.00 and 6.45 p. m.

WATCHUNG, WARRENVILLE & GALLIA.

Arrive—1.30 p. m. Close—9.00 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 9.00 to 10.30 a. m.
Mail closes at 6.15 p. m.

E. H. BIRD, P. M.

NOTICE of Copyright Renewal, Class C. XXC. No. 42059. Library of Congress to wit: Be it remembered that on the twenty-first day of January 1903, Mrs. Mary Runyon Lowry, of Plainfield, New Jersey, U. S. A., deposited in this office the titles of twenty-four musical compositions, by Robert Lowry, viz: "All the way my Saviour leads me," "Calvary," "Come, Thou Fount of Comforter came," "Yield, O Yield," "Take up the Cross," "Where is my Boy To-night," "Christ, Prince, "Star of the Morning," "Go near to the Kingdom," "Out of the sacred land of rest," "Thou art born," "One more song for Jesus," "Good night," "Bless the Lord, O my soul," "Our Children," "Praise the Lord, O Israel, let not to leave," "Rise, Arise By and By," and "Shall we meet," for fourteen years from April 27, 1903. "Still unbridled," "Going Home," "Day by day," These in renewal for fourteen years from March 13, 1903. In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of my office on the day and year aforesaid. Signed, A. R. SPOFFORD, Librarian of Congress. The right whereof the above proprietors claim copyright is secured to them under the laws of the United States respecting copyrights, Office of the Register of Copyrights, Washington, D. C. Herbert Putnam, Librarian of Congress, by Thorwald Solberg, Register of Copyrights. 2 12 4

Reading System

New Jersey Central.

Stations in New York foot of Liberty, and South Ferry, Whitehall Streets.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT, Feb. 2, 1903.

[illegible]

For Somerville—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
For Bonnymede—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
For Bound Brook—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
For Bridgewater—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
For Raritan—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
For Neshanic—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
For Reaville—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
For Flemington—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
For Branchville—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
For Hampton—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
For Lambertville—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
For Stockton—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
For Milford—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
For Frenchtown—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
For Kingwood—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
For Baptistown—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
For Stockton—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
For Milford—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
For Frenchtown—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
For Kingwood—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
For Baptistown—8.00 a. m., closes 7 p. m.

For Bethlehem, Allentown and Mauch Chunk—8.36, 9.54 a. m., 2.11, 4.36 p. m. Sundays—8.36, 9.54 a. m., 4.36 p. m.

For Wilkesbarre and Scranton—8.36, 9.54 a. m., 4.36 p. m. Sundays—8.36 a. m., 4.36 p. m.

For Long Branch and ocean points, week-days, 11.36 a. m. Sundays, 11.36 a. m.

For Lakewood, Toms River and Barnegat—2.36, 4.36 p. m. week-days. Sundays—4.36 p. m.

For Atlantic City—8.00 a. m., 4.36 p. m.

For Philadelphia—3.17, 7.44, 9.25, 9.54, 10.44, 10.54, 11.24, 11.54 a. m., 12.54, 1.30, 2.44, 3.54, 4.54, 5.54, 6.54, 7.54, 8.54, 9.54, 10.54, 11.54 p. m., 12.54 night. Sundays, 3.17, 7.44, 9.25, 9.54, 10.44, 10.54, 11.24, 11.54 a. m., 12.54, 1.30, 2.44, 3.54, 4.54, 5.54, 6.54, 7.54, 8.54, 9.54, 10.54, 11.54 p. m., 12.54 night.

For Reading and Harrisburg—8.17, 9.54, 2.44, 4.54 p. m. (Parlor cars only, Royal Blue Line through trains.) If night, Sundays—2.44 p. m., 2.22 night.

For Lancaster—8.17, 9.54, 2.44, 4.54 p. m. (Parlor cars only, Royal Blue Line through trains.) If night, Sundays—2.44 p. m., 2.22 night.

For Williamsport—8.17, 9.54, 2.44 p. m. (Parlor cars only, Royal Blue Line through trains.) If night, Sundays—2.44 p. m., 2.22 night.

For Baltimore and Washington—9.14, 11.36 a. m., 1.36, 7.11, 4.16 (Parlor cars only, Royal Blue Line through trains.) If night, Sundays—1.36, 11.36 a. m., 2.22 night.

Chair cars at Bound Brook.

J. G. BRILL, Vice Pres. & Gen. Man'r.
GEO. M. SUSSET, Gen. Pass. Agent.

Vegetable and Flower SEEDS

Reliable and Tested. Catalogue Mailed Free

WEEBER & DON

Seed Merchants 114 CHAMBERS STREET NEW YORK

A. WOLFF,

Manufacturer of

CIGARS.

And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from 261 West Front street, to South side of Somerset street, first door from Front street, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

AGENTS WANTED.

LIFE OF T. DEWITT TALMAGE, by his son, REV. FRANK DEWITT TALMAGE and associate editors of Christian Herald. Only book endorsed by Talmage family. Enormous profit for agents who act quickly. Outfit ten cents. Write immediately CLARK & CO. 222 S Fourth Street, Phila., Pa. Mention this paper. 2 26

GEORGE W. DAY,

General Auctioneer.

Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 128, Dunellen, N. J., or address in care of Constitutionalist Terms reasonable

Woolston & Buckle,

PAINTERS.

Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies

141-145 North avenue.

Pythians to Give Thanks.

Grand Chancellor P. Frank Shanley, of the Knights of Pythias, has designated Sunday, April 19, as Pythian Thanksgiving Day. It will be celebrated by Perseverance and Unity Lodges, of this city, in an appropriate way, by attending divine service at a church yet to be designated.

SETTLERS' TICKETS TO WESTERN POINTS

ARE NOW ON SALE VIA THE

LEHIGH VALLEY RAILROAD,

At Extremely Low Rates of Fare.

Rates of Sale.

Daily to and including April 30, 1903.

Stop-overs.

Stop-overs will be allowed by Western lines at Buffalo and local regulations of the line over which tickets read. Detailed information as to rates, routes, limits, etc., may be secured from agents of the Company.

Through Trains via the Lehigh Valley R. R.

Connect at Chicago with all lines for the Northwest, West and Southwest, and transfer coupons are included in all through tickets routed between those points.

Inquire of Ticket Agents Lehigh Valley Railroad, for time of trains, etc., or address A. W. Nonnemacher, G. P. A., 26 Cortlandt St., Gen. General Passenger Agent, 26 Cortlandt Street, New York. P 3 4 7 cow C 3 5 7 cow

We Can Sell Your Farm,

Factory, ...ainess or Residence. No matter where it is located. We have hundreds of others. Why not sell yours? Our original method which never fails. Send us description and price and we will explain how.

MONEY

on Good Mortgages

Offices in all principal cities; highest references. Write for booklet. THE ROTHERT & CO., Real Estate Exchange, Established 1882.

MANY OPPOSE NEW SEWERS

Strong Opposition to the Proposed Sewer Extension to the Southwest.

ONLY ONE IN ITS FAVOR

After Hearing Arguments on Subject, the Council Refers It Back to the Committee on Streets—

No Definite Action Was Taken in the Matter.

Arguments against the proposed extension of the present sanitary sewer system in this city were presented with considerable force at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last Monday, when a hearing on the ordinance was given. The leading speakers against the improvement were Former Mayor Alex. Gilbert and Former Councilman John B. Dumont, while a few others also spoke against the proposition. The weight of evidence seemed to be against it for G. Herbert Taylor, who with a number of capitalists, is planning to improve a certain section of the city, was the only one present to speak in favor of the plan of extension.

Mr. Gilbert was the first speaker. He said that it was with no spirit of captious criticism that he appeared before the Council. He had carefully thought the proposition over in his mind and asked himself the question, "what would I do if I were a member of the Council or Mayor of the city, and I have come to the conclusion that I would vote against the proposition and would veto such a plan."

Mr. Gilbert said that he believed it neither wise nor prudent to start this improvement without good reasons. In support of this contention the speaker said that there is no impressive need of an extension of the sewer. He then went back to the time of the introduction of the present system and stated that it was solely the congested condition of the centre of the city that led to the installation of sewers. The cesspools in the heart of town were considered a menace to health and frequent complaints were heard about them. North Plainfield seriously objected to the use of Green brook as a dumping place for sewage matter from the North avenue sewer and even threatened the city with a suit if the practice was not stopped. It was then that the city system of sanitary sewers was decided upon. It was considered a part of wisdom to lay it main through Seventh and Eighth street and Park avenue, wherever the gravity system was practical.

Mr. Gilbert stated that he firmly believed that if it had not been for the congested condition of a certain part of the city, Plainfield's system of sewers would have been delayed at least five years. Otherwise there was no urgent need for the system. As for North Plainfield, which is growing rapidly, Mr. Gilbert believed that that community would be able to get along without sewers for some years to come, there being no imperative need for such a system now so far as the health of the borough is concerned. The speaker said that he recently drove over the route for the proposed extension of the Plainfield system and he believed that he was not overestimating when he said that fully three-quarters of the property is unimproved, and if this is true he thought he was entitled to a verdict. He did not believe that the Council under such conditions would think of spending $65,000 or more to extend the sewer system, when probably a number of the property-owners would not connect with it.

Continuing, Mr. Gilbert stated that this is a most inopportune time to build such an extension as proposed. A time when iron pipe is 100 per cent. higher than ever and labor also higher. He thought that probably these things have reached the maximum point and that in a few years both material and labor will be cheaper. He said that he wanted to see Plainfield occupy a first-class position, but he favored a Councilmanic hand on the lever which will regulate the tax rate. An excessive rate he believed retarded instead of helped the progress of a city.

In further support of his position, Mr. Gilbert said that certain statements had been made regarding cost and revenue in the matter of extension, but these things do not always work out as one sometimes think they will. He added that the city is on the eve of large expenditures for a new City High School and with this and other improvements will come the trouble of keeping the tax rate from going up. He spoke earnestly in behalf of the majority of the people, on whom taxes is a burden. He said that this majority paid taxes reluctantly and it was considered a burden. In conclusion Mr. Gilbert expressed much confidence in the present Council; adding that the city with one or two exceptions, has always had a Council worthy of this confidence and did not believe that a majority of the present body would favor the increased expenditure at this time.

Former Councilman John B. Demonet, who was a member of the committee of twenty-five that studied the question of sanitary sewers for Plainfield, and a member of the Common Council that contracted for the system and served as Councilman until the system was completed and the assessments were made, was the next speaker opposing the extension. At the outset he asked the Council whether an accurate estimate of the entire cost of the extension had been decided upon. In reply, Street Commissioner Gavett said that $65,000 was the amount estimated for the mains and pumping station. Mr. Dumont then referred to the care exacted by Corporation Counsel Marsh when the Council was considering and deciding upon the cost in the first installation of sewers so that no unfair assessment would be made. Mr. Dumont then referred to Sherman avenue, upon which he said a new house has not been built in thirty years. He said that the people had a right to know exactly from the Council the cost of this proposed improvement and they must know the whole figure, the people's proportion of the expense and that of the city.

The speaker then asked the Council as to the taxable value of the property to be improved. He said that he did not believe it would exceed $400,000, a small proportion of the present $9,000,000 total city valuation. Mr. Dumont impressed upon those present that Plainfield is not a boom town, people can come here and build if they want to and go on about their business, and he advocated a continuance of that policy. He considered that Plainfield has a municipal record not equalled by any city. He did not believe that there is two-thirds of this unimproved property that needs lateral sewers and the only fair way to give sewers to those who want it so much is to let them pay a larger share of the cost.

E. E. Elliott, who lives at 1048 West Eighth street, and who is a farmer, stated that he owns about one thousand feet frontage of farm land in the western end of the city and he protested against the extension of the sewer on the ground that he does not need it.

G. Herbert Taylor, of West Seventh street, who, with a number of capitalists, intends improving property in the southwestern part of the city, came in after the other speakers concluded their remarks, but he spoke for the proposition. He said that he, together with a few others, are trying to interest people to take up their residence in Plainfield and that the cooperation of the city officials is necessary to accomplish this.

"The plan is," Mr. Taylor stated, "to form a company whose aim will be to assist people to put up a number of high grade houses and these people will not build here if they have to stand all the expense of improvements."

Mr. Taylor added that not one cent would be spent in building if the city would not sewer this property. He said that the people interested intended to break ground within three weeks, but this would not be done without the guarantee that the property would be accessible to a sanitary sewer.

Alexander Jeffers, a farmer, residing at 1021 Sherman avenue, objected to the extension of the sewer on the grounds of the expense and that the people in his neighborhood do not need it at present.

George E. Fuller, of Arlington avenue, was the last speaker on the subject and he entered a protest, claiming that the number of people he had spoken to about the extension of the sewer, said that they do not need it.

Mr. Fuller said that other arrangements are now being made to take care of the sewer matter and besides the property-owners on that avenue do not feel like standing the expense for the proposed extension.

President Buckle assured those who spoke for and against the proposed improvement that the Council has only the best interest of all in mind and that great care would be exercised in arriving at a conclusion in the matter under consideration.

After the Council returned to the regular order of business, Mr. Tolles introduced a resolution which returned the ordinance providing for the proposed extension of the sewer to the streets and sewer committee for further consideration and a later report to the Council.

Informal Dance.

An informal dance was held Saturday evening in the old Common Council rooms, under the auspices of several well-known young men. There were sixteen couples present and everyone had a delightful time. Music for dancing was furnished by Westervelt, and this was a decided feature. The next dance will be held Wednesday evening, April 29, at the same place.

Y. M. C. A. WINS AT BASKET BALL

Deciding Game in Plainfield Amateur Basket Ball League Makes Exciting Contest.

WON BY A SINGLE POINT

Y. M. C. A. and Hope Y. M. A. Play at Latter's Gymnasium—Score 20 to 19—Spectators Went Wild With Excitement in Concluding Moments of the Game.

By defeating the Hope Y. M. A. by a single point in a wildly exciting game last Monday, the basket ball five of the Y. M. C. A. retained its place at the top of the Plainfield Amateur Basket Ball League and captured the trophy offered by The Daily Press. While there are two games to be played to complete the schedule, they cannot possibly change the result.

There have been exciting games in Plainfield but never one where every spectator was in a state of such intense excitement. It was of the heart-breaking kind from the very start. Everybody knew that a victory for the Y. M. C. A. meant the trophy. The Hopes had the advantage of playing in their own gymnasium but the recent minstrel show had intereferred with practice and the inaccuracy in goal throwing, which was undoubtedly owing somewhat to that was the most important feature in deciding the game.

The Y. M. C. A. boys have been playing the game of their life during the last two months and the first few minutes of play gave the appearance that the visitors were going to win handily. From the very start, the play was rough and very fast. Hope's boys could not seem to land the basket although Whitley was deadly in his aim in foul throwing. Of a sudden a change came over the home five. There was a brace. The ball began to drop into the basket. Dilks landed one of his backhand throws. Hop's famous "short" game developed fast. Y. M. C. A.'s guards seemed to weaken. Where Y. M. C. A. had led by a point or two, Hope went to the fore with a rush and the half ended with the score 12 to 7 in Hope's favor.

Even wilder excitement marked the second half. The play grew rougher despite the efforts of the officials to control it. The close quarters made a clean game at that pace impossible. Several changes on the Y. M. C. A. team worked to advantage and some of its famous team work began to develop. That sudden improvement in accuracy, which had marked the close of the first half, was not shown by the Hope boys in the second. Time after time the ball danced about the rim of the goal and failed to score. The Y. M. C. A. boys were throwing better.

Steadily the visitors pulled up until they were even with the Hopes. The half was then but half gone. Both sides redoubled their efforts and the strain told on the accurate throwing of both teams. There were but few goals thrown after that. Cahoone could do nothing at free throws and Denton tried but with indifferent success. Whitley made four out of six.

It was tie. Then Dilks landed one and gave Hope the lead. Denton tied the score with a clever goal. Whitey scored a single point on a foul. Then the last goal of the game, thrown by Smith, two minutes before time was called, enabled the Y. M. C. A. team to win out by a single point. It was so close that the scorers could not announce immediately who had won and the crowd, uncertain as to where victory was, cheered first for one side and then for the other. Then came the result, 20 to 19, in favor of Y. M. C. A.

The teams were:

Y. M. C. A.	Hope Y. M. A.
Smith, right forward	Dilks
Cahoone, Denton, left forward	Porter
Scull, Cahoone	centre — Whitley
Neal, Scull	right guard — Chamberlain
Mathews	left guard — McCombe

Score—Y. M. C. A., 20; Hope Y. M. A., 19. Goals from the field—Dilks (4), Whitley, Chamberlain, Denton (5), Smith (4).

Goals on fouls—Whitley (8), Cahoone, Denton (2). Fouls—Y. M. C. A., 12; Hope Y. M. A., 15. Referee—W. C. Geiger, of Jersey City. Umpires—E. M. Hoffman and P. W. Munger, Jr., of Jersey City. Timekeepers—Cecil Pitts, of Y. M. C. A., and J. Fred Wharton, of Hope Y. M. A. Scorers—John H. Doane and V.W. Nash, Jr., of Hope Y. M. A.

Violet Dinner.

A violet dinner was given by Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Barrows at their home on West Eighth street, Friday evening, for a few friends. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ladd, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. McGee, Mr. and Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Patterson, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Barrows.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

LOCAL ATTORNEY NASH CAPTURES WHOLE SHOW

And the Boonton Populace Strongly Resents the Interruption of Performance.

WAS A SMALL-SIZED RIOT

LAWYER NASH WAS REPRESENTING SOME PLAINFIELD CREDITORS.

"Innocent Beauties" Left Town With Some Debts Behind — But the Debtors Will Get Their Money Back, Thanks to Mr. Nash.

Attorney V. W. Nash, Jr., of this city, was the innocent originator of a small sized riot in the opera house at Boonton, this State, Saturday night. While the performance of the Fay Foster Burlesque Company was in full blast, the Plainfielder escorted a constable behind the curtain and spread consternation among the actors and actors by attaching the costumes. The entertainment was abruptly terminated and the audience was told it could go home, but the major portion didn't see it that way. This part of the crowd swooped down upon the box office and demanded a return of admission money but they were too late.

The Plainfield lawyer was ahead of them by an hour and all the cash taken in had also been attached on three writs sworn out by three debtors of the company living in this city. There was some excitement in the lobby for a short time but the cooler head prevailed and the crowd was eventually induced to go home.

The troupe, which is conducted by L. Eisemann, of New York exhibited in this city several weeks ago under the sobriquet of the "Innocent Beauties." Business wasn't exceptionally good and the company hied itself away leaving a reminder of its visit, it is said, in debts amounting to $60. The debtors are Mrs. Eva Rowley, of Park avenue, a boarding house keeper; Mrs. F. A. VanNest, who conducts a restaurant, and William A. Schorb, of the Central Theatre. They combined forces and kept tabs on the troupe until conveniently located. This happened Saturday when it appeared as Boonton and Attorney Nash was dispatched hence with the writs already made out.

He waited until 9 o'clock and then attached the evening's receipts. The manager argued, swore and threatened but the Plainfielder was firm. The treasury only contained $30 and when the rest wasn't forthcoming Nash made the master stroke by shutting up shop all around. Even then argument still continued until 2:30 Sunday morning, when the manager decided to give his note for the rest and the costumes were released. Nash had to spend the remainder of the night in the D. L. and W. depot, as the only available hotel was filled with the angry troupe which itched to get at him. He arrived home Monday afternoon and Mr. Eisemann's backer in New York agreed to pay the entire amount.

DEATH OF PATRICK FINNEY.

Old Resident Died at Home on Manning Avenue Saturday.

The death of Patrick Finney occurred Saturday afternoon at 2:30 after a long illness with a cancerous growth. He passed away at his home at 72 Manning avenue. He was a widower and leaves a son, Thomas, an expressman of this city and a married daughter who resides at Madison.

The funeral was held Monday a. m. at 9 o'clock from St. Joseph's R. C. church where Rev. Father Miller conducted the mass and made a few remarks on death. The remains were taken to Madison for interment. The pall bearers were Thomas McDonald, John Goodman, Patrick Duffey and David R. Weaver.

BRIDAL PARTY AS GUESTS.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan E. Lewis Entertained Bridal Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan E. Lewis, of Arlington avenue, entertained the members of their bridal party Saturday evening in honor of the first anniversary of their wedding. The real anniversary does not come until nearly a month later but it was celebrated Saturday in order that some of the out-of-town members of the party might be present. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Clay West on the exciting ride in pursuit of the newly-married couple the night of the wedding.

CONTRACT FOR 'PHONES FOR PATROL BOXES

City Fathers Approve of One With the New York and New Jersey Telephone Co.

BOUGHT TWO BICYCLES

ROUTINE BUSINESS AT MONDAY'S COMMON COUNCIL MEETING.

Award Contracts for Crushed Stone to H. B. Smalley, for Flag Stone to Andrew Roach—The Other Routine Business Transacted.

In regular order of business at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last Monday, there was not much of importance to consider, aside from several communications.

Two communications were received from J. C. Manning and other residents of Dunellen avenue and Albert street, who asked the Council to extend Dunellen avenue through to North Plainfield and change the name of the avenue to Myrtle avenue. The other petition asked the Council to macadamize Albert street and Dunellen avenue. These were referred to the proper committee. A letter from John N. Akarman, general manager of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Street Railway Company, acknowledging receipt of a communication from the Council calling attention to certain unsatisfactory conditions, and the contract of the Gamewell Fire and Telegraph Company and the city, which had been approved, were filed

The Home Real Estate Company, recently formed to develop certain property in the West End, petitioned the Council for four electric lights in the vicinity of Hunter and Hobart avenues. This matter was referred.

A resolution was offered by Mr. Tolles and adopted, awarding N. B. Smalley the contract for furnishing the city crushed stone and Andrew Roach the contract for furnishing crosswalks and curbing, their bids being the lowest. Mr. Smalley's bid was 85 cents for the number two and half size stone and 95 cents for the smaller sizes.

Mr. Randolph offered a resolution, which was adopetd, appropriating $35 for the purchase of two bicycles for the police department. The low price asked caused a ripple of laughter.

Mr. Randolph also offered an agreement, entered into by the city and the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, whereby the company agrees for the sum of $400 to take care of the Gamewell police patrol system, after it is installed, for one year and to make all repairs and furnish all necessary wires, etc. The company further agrees to install sixteen telephones, one in each of the police patrol boxes and an additional one at police headquarters to be used in connection with the system. It is understood that everything pertaining to the system, except the telephones, is to be the property of the city. The agreement was accepted.

Mr. Lee reported on the matter of the fire committee purchasing a new team of horses for the fire department at an expense which did not exceed $450. Mr. Lee explained that in accordance with a previous resolution giving the committee power to buy one horse at an expense not to exceed $250, the committee had found it necessary to buy a team instead of one horse and he asked the Council to authorize the expenditure. This was done.

Before an adjournment was taken, President Buckle requested the Councilmanic members of the Board of School Estimate to see that the amount thought to be necessary for the schools for the coming year be reported to the finance committee before the next regular meeting, when the budget for the year will be prepared and announced.

EXPECT TO CONTINUE.

Success of Friday Night Club Will be Continued Another Year.

So successful has the Friday Nights Club been during the winter that G. Herbert Taylor, who was the originator of the scheme, said at the closing night of the regular season that it was very probable that the club would continue to hold meetings next winter. He said that the club from the start took very well and has grown from a charter membership of 125 to a total enrollment of 180.

There have been requests by some of the members to continue the present season for several weeks longer but the committee decided that it would be best to give a closing entertainment and dance and close the season for the year.

Mozart Club Coming.

The Mozart Symphony Club, of New York, said to be one of the finest concert combinations in America, will be at the Casino Tuesday, April 7, appearing in a splendid programme of vocal and instrumental novelties.

NO CHANGE IN LEAGUE

City Baseball League Decides to Continue With But Four Teams.

ONE VOTE AGAINST IT

St. Mary's Representative Cast Dissenting Vote—Schedule Will Consist of Eighteen Instead of Twelve Games—To Open the Season on Decoration Day.

For another season the Plainfield Amateur Baseball League will comprise the original four clubs, namely, the Hope Y. M. A., the Manganese Steel Safe Company, formerly the Hibbard-Rodman-Ely Safe Works, the St. Mary A. and L. A. and the Y. M. C. A. This decision was reached at the meeting held last Monday when Manager Alex. Muir, of the Safe Company, made a motion to that effect and it was carried. The representative of the St. Mary team was the only one to cast a dissenting vote.

While none of the league officials made known their reasons for rejecting the applications of the four new teams, it is positive they are numerous and varied. Principal among them is the fact that it would make at least four games on each Saturday, a number that would do distribute the patronage that none of the teams could be made to pay expenses. It would also complicate matters in other directions and they feared interest would flag to such an extent that the entire league would suffer.

Other matters of importance were transacted at the meeting, the leader being an increase in the number of games to be played. The season will comprise eighteen games instead of twelve, with the first two to be played on Decoration Day as on last year. It is probable two games will be played on the Fourth of July which will consist last season.

Another meeting is to be held Saturday evening when the new constitution and schedule are to be submitted. The question of grounds was brought up and, at the next session, each club will name the site it expects to occupy.

Period of Prosperity.

Benevolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., is just now enjoying a period of prosperity. A week ago nine new members were initiated and last Friday evening five new members were initiated, four propositions were received and nine new members took the Oriental degree.

Social Time at Epworth House.

The primary and kindergarten departments of the Monroe Avenue Sunday-school had a social time Saturday afternoon in the Epworth House connected with the church. Games of various kinds and supper were among the attractive festures.

Sunrise Meeting.

Last year the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church held a sunrise meeting at 6:30 on Easter Sunday morning. It was so well attended and such a helpful meeting that the same society has decided to hold another one Easter Sunday morning, April 12. City Judge William N. Runyon has consented to take charge of the meeting.

Not Open Till Fall.

The man who has been in charge of some improvements under way at Music Hall, left Saturday for Johnstown, N. Y. Before leaving he said that no attempt would be made to open the hall before next fall.

CERTIFICATE EXTENDING CHARTER

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
Office of Comptroller of the Currency,
Washington, D. C., February 24th, 1905.

WHEREAS, by satisfactory evidence presented to the undersigned, it has been made to appear that THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF PLAINFIELD, located in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union and State of New Jersey, has complied with all the provisions of the act of Congress of February 14, 1903, entitled "An act to enable existing national banking associations to extend their corporate existence, and for other purposes," approved July 12, 1882, as amended by the Act, approved April 12, 1900;

NOW THEREFORE I, William B. Ridgely, Comptroller of the Currency, do hereby certify that the First National Bank of Plainfield, located in the city of Plainfield, in the County of Union and State of New Jersey, is authorized to act as executor of trust, and shall be entitled to exercised articles of association: namely, until the close of business on the 24th day of February, 1925.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF witness my hand and seal of office this twenty-fourth day of February, 1905.

WILLIAM B. RIDGELY,
Comptroller of the Currency.

Charter No. 667.
Extension No. 226. 3 5 5

DIED.

LEWIS—On Thursday, March 16, 1905, George Lewis, in his 16th year.

SMITH—At Lincoln, N. J., March 20, 1905, Peter A. Smith, aged 85 years, 4 months, 19 days.

MARRIED.

THORN—SMALLEY—On Monday, Dec. 14, 1903, by the Rev. Dr. George Houghton, of the Church of the Transfiguration, New York City, Miss Lillian B. Thorn to Frank Merwin Smalley, both of Plainfield, New Jersey.

Sanitary Plumbing

Brick and Portable Furnace Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing, Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Plumbers Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business at all times and in cases.

D. W. LITTELL,

No. 112 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

is now open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the tonsorial line.

EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

CARNEY BROS.,

MADISON AVENUE,

Between Front and Second streets

Tinners, Plumbers Gas Fitters,

Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use home but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. FRANK HUBBARD, President,
GEO. W. ROCKEFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

Guaranteed Salary $900 YEARLY.

Men and women of good address to represent us, some to travel upon time spoken for, others to look after our interests. $900 salary guaranteed yearly; extra commissions and bonuses. Steady work and advancement, old established house. Grand chance for ambitious men and women to secure pleasant, permanent positions. Illustrated outfit free. Now, brilliant times. Write at once.

STAFFORD PRESS,
23 Church St., New Haven, Conn

W. B. CODINGTON,

Counsellor-at-Law

Commissioner of Deeds, Master in Chancery, Notary Public. Office Corner of Park avenue and Second street.

ALBERT HEDDEN

Livery & Boarding Stables

FOURTH ST.,

between Watchung and Park avenues. First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

Wm. A. Woodruff,

Fire and Life

INSURANCE AGENT,

OFFICE,

corner Front St. and Park Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

Real Estate for Sale or Exchange Money to loan on Approved Security

LARGE AUDIENCE FOUND MUCH THAT PLEASED

Concluding Entertainment of Y. M. C. A. Star Course Was a Decided Success.

HALL WAS CROWDED

MAY PARKER'S LITTLE PICKANINNIES MADE A GREAT HIT.

Miss Louise Daisty Found Great Favor as a Reciter, and Was Repeatedly Recalled—Other Clever Entertainers on Programme.

May Parker's Little Pickaninnies and company of really clever entertainers were the attraction at Association Hall in the Y. M. C. A. building last Thursday and closed the Star Course of entertainments for the year with the best programme which has been rendered on the Y. M. C. A. platform in a long time. The audience filled the house so that not a seat was vacant and many had to be content to remain standing the in rear through the performance.

The company comprised Miss Bertha Webb, violinist; Miss Louise Dainty, reader; Miss Florence Beckett, flutist; Frederick A. Weaver, pianist; and three bright little pickaninnies, Edward Toy, alto and pianist; Richard Sparrow, tenor, and Little Phil, a clever miniature humorist and soprano.

Henry M. Maxon, chairman of the entertainment committee, stepped upon the platform shortly after 8 o'clock and made a few announcements of coming attractions at the Y. M. C. A. The programme was composed of musical selections and humorous recitations. Miss Louise Dainty, a very charming young woman, completely captivated her audience in her monologues and kept the entire house in an uproar of laughter. Aside from the pickaninnies she made the hit of the evening and was encored repeatedly. Miss Webb exhibited wonderful skill in playing violin and during the evening she rendered a selection, "Faust Fantasia," with variations giving with rare skill the effect of a large pipe organ with subdued tones. The imitation was perfect and was loudly applauded. Miss Beckett favored with many selections on the flute and showed clearly that she was a thorough master of the instrument. But the pickaninnies were the star features of the evening. Dressed in neat little military costumes and possessing fine voices with the true southern plantation ring, their interpretation of some of the true darky songs was exceptionally clever and was well received.

The committee, having the arrangements for the Star Course in hand and which is deserving of credit for the excellent list of entertainments which have been provided by the Y. M. C. A. during the year, comprising Henry M. Maxon, chairman; Dr. B. VanD. Hedges and Curtis M. Thorp.

MORE IMPROVEMENTS.

No Real Changes to Borough Streets Until Council Gets to Work.

Until the new Borough Council gets down to real work for the spring there will be but little done in the street work in the borough but James K. Arnold, chairman of the street committee, has been getting the streets in condition after the recent snows and making minor improvements here and there. A crossing pipe was recently laid at the intersection of Regent street and Watchung avenue and some holes in the roadway have been filled up.

Penney to Lakewood.

A rumor has been revived that the Pennsylvania Railroad is soon to operate trains to Lakewood by means of a trackage agreement with the New Jersey Central over a portion of the route between Farmingdale and Whitings. This has been made possible by the close alliance between these companies through the controlling interest now held in the Reading by the Pennsylvania and New York Central people.

Going to Grand Lodge Meeting.

Past Grand Master V. W. Nash, of the A. O. U. W., will attend the meeting of the Grand Lodge in St. Paul, Minn., this summer. He will be accompanied by his wife.

Erecting Pump.

The work of erecting the pump in the pumping station of the Plainfield Water Supply Company, near Netherwood, is going on rapidly. It is expected that within a month the work will be completed and the big machine will be at work.

This Will Interest Mothers.

Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for Children, successfully used by Mother Gray, for years a nurse in the Children's Home in New York, cure Feverishness, Bad Stomach, Teething Disorders, move and regulate the Bowels and destroy Worms. They are pleasant to the taste and guarantee to cure. Children like them. Sold by all druggists, 25c. A trial package FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

WHIST TROPHY STILL REMAINS WITH PARKS

Veteran Four of Park Club Beats Team From the Knickerbocker Whist Club.

THE SCORE WAS 17 TO 5

WORST DEFEAT FOR VISITING TEAM IN TWO YEARS.

Third Victory for Park Club Four Was a Decisive One—Next Challengers for Metropolitan Trophy From Brooklyn Whist Club.

The Knickerbocker Whist Club failed to "lift" the Metropolitan challenge trophy, last Thursday, in a match game with the holders, the veteran Park Club four. While the ardent supporters of the home team fels sure they would win, there were others who believed that the Knickerbockers would take the trophy home with them. The Parks played a better and stronger game and when the match was finished the score stood 17 to 5 in their favor. To use the words of the captain of the challenging team, B. C. Collier, "it was the worst defeat the club had experienced in two years," and this speaks much for the winning team.

The Parks played their same conservative game, which the visiting team was unable to overcome. In the first round the score stood 4 to 1 in favor of the Parks, and the second round resulted in a score of 8 to 1 in their favor, while the final round went to the Parks by a score of 5 to 3, making a total score of 17 to 5. This means that the trophy will remain in Plainfield at least another week.

The next challenger is the Brooklyn Whist Club, the leaders in the tournament. This club has eleven wins for the trophy and it requires fifteen to get permanent possession of the cup. This game will be played Friday evening, March 27, at the Park Club.

In last evening's match the same four, Samuel Townsend, S. St. John McCutchen, George T. Rogers and Joseph H. Howell, represented the Park Club, while B. C. Collier, captain; Dr. A. L. Robinson, Winthrop Pond and C. J. Norris represented the Knickerbocker Whist Club. Arthur F. Freeman, of the Camera Club, acted as referee.

After the play the Park four entertained the visiting team and refreshments were served.

MISSIONS ITS OBJECT.

Young Men of the Band of Earnest Workers Elect Officers and Listen to Reports.

The annual meeting of the Band of Earnest Workers of the Crescent Avenue church was held yesterday afternoon. Reports from the secretary and treasurer showed a marked growth in both membership and finances in the past year.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Van-Wyck Brooks; secretary, Lawrence Mead; and treasurer, Hugh G. Baldwin.

Mrs. Isaac L. Miller, the patroness of the band, spoke briefly of its work since its organization, seventeen years ago. The objects of the organization is to assist in the vast missionary work in foreign lands and there are now sixteen young men enrolled as members. The band was originally founded by Mrs. Christopher Goddard and Miss Elizabeth Goddard.

It was decided to send $40 to India for the support of the boys' school at Lodiana and $55 to China for the reorganization of the work in China.

Working in Brunswick.

City Engineer F. A. Denham, who has the contract to rebuild the streets in New Brunswick, has been very busy of late looking after details in connection with this work.

Sold His Trotter.

Patrolman James Totten, who recently purchased a speedy trotter, has disposed of the animal at a good price. He intends securing another in its place with a better record.

School of Methods.

The spring meeting of the Union County W. C. T. U. schools of methods will be held in the Methodist church, Dunellen, Thursday, April 30.

A Remarkable Case.

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude R. Fenner, Marion, Ind., who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. She says: "The coughing and straining so weakened me that I run down in weight from 148 to 92 pounds. I tried a number of remedies to no avail until I used One Minute Cough Cure. Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength." H. W. Randolph.

LAND LOST TO TEXAS.

As a Result of the Recent Surveys of the Lone Star State's Disputed Boundaries.

"Three portions of the boundary lines of the state of Texas are under dispute, and in each instance the territory of the lone star state is cut into," said Marshall T. Golden to a Washington Star man, recently. "There was recently filed in the land office of the state a report of the work under the act of congress requiring the secretary of the interior to establish the 100th meridian which forms a part of the eastern boundary of Texas. It was at first believed that Texas would gain an eight-mile strip from Indian territory, but on the contrary, according to the report, Texas will probably loose a strip three-quarters of a mile wide. Should this report be considered as final people holding property on what was always considered the Texas side will lose their title as a Texas deed to the land will not be legal.

"The same condition prevails along the entire panhandle on the western end of the state. Surveyors have fixed the 103d meridian so as to cut off a strip three miles wide, embracing 300,000 acres, from the lone star state and it has recently been brought to light that New Mexico disputes the boundary line extending from the westernmost point of Texas, and the lone star state is about to lose more land to New Mexico."

INFORMED ON CLOCKS.

Not to Be Wondered At That This Man Knew How to Make Them Run.

A fad more or less general is the collection of old clocks, from the tall grandfather variety to the curious timekeepers of foreign make. The garrets of old farmhouses from Maine to the Carolinas have been ransacked for the former, and there is many a man and woman in New York who keeps an eye on the pawnshops of the foreign districts for curious and ancient things from abroad.

"It is almost impossible to keep them all running," complained a woman who has two dozen aged and valuable clocks scattered through her Madison avenue home. "They seem to be in good order and run along for a while, then all of a sudden they stop for no reason at all.

"I have found an old German who knows more about the ways of old clocks than any one in the city. I sent him my German silver clock a few weeks and when it did not come back after the usual period of waiting I went to his shop. What do you think I found him reading?"

The friend did not have the slightest idea, says the New York Tribune.

"It was a little German volume with a title something like this: 'Thirteen Hundred Reasons Why a Clock in Perfect Order Won't Run.'"

BOOKS AND THE GENTLEMAN.

What the Man of Means Does and Does Not Read—Style of the Volumes He Purchases.

Whatever the quality of American literature and however low the standard of culture which severe critics find among us, the fact remains that Americans buy more books than people of any other nation. But we are not above receiving benefit from some hints for the wealthy and cultivated, which the London Author quotes from a German publisher, says Youth's Companion.

A gentleman, he says, does not give his daughter a dowry of half a million and expect to present her with a bookcase. He does not have a full cellar and empty book shelves. He does not borrow good books which he is in a position to buy.

A gentleman does not cut books with his fingers or touch them with soiled hands. He does not talk about the latest literature when he is acquainted only with what has been said about it in the newspapers. He does not purchase only such things which are without intellectual value.

Finally, he does not buy only cheap editions when he can afford better, or depend entirely for his reading on the daily journals or illustrated weeklies.

FLOOR OF THE PACIFIC.

Lofty Submarine Mountains Beside Which the Andes Would Look Like Hillocks.

If the waters of the Pacific could be drained, there would be revealed a vast stretch of territory comprising enormous plateaus, great valleys for which no parallels exist on the land surface —lofty mountains, beside which the Himalaya and the Andes would look like hillocks, and tremendous hollows or basins, only to be compared with those on the face of the moon, says Leslie's Monthly.

While there are great mountains, and huge basins or "deeps," the plateau areas are by far the most extensive, fully one-half of the floor of the Pacific as now at last revealed on its plateau areas, is level. There are undulations and depressions, but the general area is about the same depth below the surface.

Soundings develop a mean depth of from 2,500 to 2,700 fathoms. In shoaler spots there is a mean depth of from 2,300 to 2,400 fathoms. Deeper spots show from 2,800 to 2,900 fathoms.

Fastest Bicycle Record.

The fastest bicycle record is that of an American, who made a mile in a minute in the section of a railway train, planks having been laid upon the ties to furnish a track. Now a Frenchman has made 50 miles in an hour riding behind a motor pacing machine having a wind shield.

THEATRICAL.

Managers Sam S. Shubert and Nixon and Zimmerman have just issued through the firm of Ad. Greenfield & Co., a beautiful souvenir book of "A Chinese Honeymoon." Between the highly illuminated covers of this book are two-score of the prettiest half-tone engravings which have been turned out in recent years. The engravings show some of the most interesting scenes in the famous Casino success and also those of the principal players and prettiest among the show girls and understudies.

The high character of the entertainment at Keith's Union Square Theatre continues to afford thousands every week enthusiastic enjoyment. One of the many features of the lengthy bill next week will be the Rossow Midgets. The work of these Lilliputians is always a novelty and their comedy and acrobatic work is hard to improve upon. If music is desired the Miles Stavordale Quintette will furnish it as does no other combination in vaudeville today. The Bucciareas in their exceptionally clever juggling act, will demonstrate agility, while Callahan and Mack, Davis and McCauley, Brown and Navarro, will attend to the comedy, and all are great fun makers. Aurie Dagwell sings the old time songs in her inimitable way, and Genaro and Bailey and others will complete an entertainment to suit all tastes.

Following a successful engagement of six months at the Broadway Theatre, New York, "The Silver Slipper," a musical comedy by the authors of "Florodora" is booked for a week's engagement at the Newark Theatre, Newark, beginning Monday, April 6. During this engagement, John C. Fisher will present the original New York production, the same in every detail as that which is just ending a long run in the Metropolis. The cast will be the same and include the most talented and popular actors and actresses in musical comedy or light opera. There will be the same background of pretty and graceful young women with their expensive costumes; the same dazzling scenic and lighting effects and the same exquisite stage mountings, all of which tended to make "The Silver Slipper" the most successful musical play produced this season.

Nothing in a dramatic way has caught New York in many years as has Blanche Walsh in "Resurrection." Hillary Bell in the New York Press, one of its most conservative critics says "The Maslova of Miss Walsh is the most consistent, artistic and powerful stroke of acting that has been done this season, with the exception of Leslie Carter's "Du Barry." Managers Wagenhals and Kemper will book a late spring tour of the big Eastern cities for Miss Walsh and will close her season in San Francisco late in July.

Arrangements are now in progress whereby the entire production of "Mr. Pickwick" including company, costumes and scenery is to be taken to the Shaftsbury Theatre in London immediately upon the conclusion of the present run at the Herald Square Theatre, which will probably be about June 1. De Wolf Hopper's personal popularity in London and the enormous success of "Mr. Pickwick" in Toronto and other Canadian cities when the Englishmen abound are two of the reasons for the contemplation of this move.

Williams and Walker, the greatest colored comedians on the stage, will end their run at the New York Theatre Saturday evening, April 4, when their last performance of "In Dahomey", in New York will occur. This is the greatest production in which colored artists have ever been seen and gives the principals splendid opportunities to display their versatility. Mr. Williams is an exceptionally clever performer and has created something of a sensation in the singing of his latest comic song, "I'm the Jonah Man." The best people in New York attend the performances of Williams and Walker, the Vanderbilts, Sloanes, Depews, Astors and other prominent leaders of "the 400" occupying boxes at every performance. Box parties to see "the colored sensation" at the New York Theatre have really become a fad among the swell set of New York.

THE NEXT MORNING I FEEL BRIGHT AND NEW AND MY COMPLEXION IS BETTER.

My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and in a way no other medicine does. This drink is made from herbs and is a Breath of Life. Ask your druggist for it. Price 50 cents.

LANE'S FAMILY MEDICINE

All druggists or by mail 25c. and 50c. Book free. Dr. Lane's Sanitarium, Washington, D. C. Dr. Lane's Tooth Powder, 25c. Dr. Lane's Pile Ointment, 50c. Dr. Lane's Liver Pills, 25c. Dr. Lane's Kidney Pills, 50c. Dr. Lane's Blood Purifier, 50c. Dr. Lane's Cough Cure, 25c. Dr. Lane's Catarrh Cure, 50c. Dr. Lane's Rheumatic Cure, 50c. Dr. Lane's Nerve Tonic, 50c. Dr. Lane's Female Regulator, 50c. Dr. Lane's Worm Powders, 25c. Dr. Lane's Diarrhoea Cure, 25c. Dr. Lane's Headache Powders, 25c. Dr. Lane's Sarsaparilla, 50c. Dr. Lane's Dyspepsia Cure, 50c. Dr. Lane's Liniment, 25c. Dr. Lane's Vermifuge, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Drops, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Syrup, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Balsam, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Lozenges, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Candy, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Tablets, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Wafers, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Pills, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Powders, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Mixture, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Elixir, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Remedy, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Specific, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Antidote, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Preventive, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Prevention, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Protection, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Defense, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Guard, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Shield, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Armor, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Fortress, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Stronghold, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Bulwark, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Rampart, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Battlement, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Parapet, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Turret, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Tower, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Spire, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Steeple, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Belfry, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Bell, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Chime, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Peal, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Ring, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Knell, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Toll, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Dirge, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Requiem, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Mass, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Hymn, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Psalm, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Anthem, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Chant, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Song, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Ballad, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Lullaby, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Serenade, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Sonata, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Symphony, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Overture, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Prelude, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Finale, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Encore, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Bravo, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Applause, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Curtain, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Stage, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Footlights, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Orchestra, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Gallery, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Boxes, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Parquet, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Aisle, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Usher, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Ticket Office, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Box Office, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Manager, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Actor, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Actress, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Leading Man, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Leading Lady, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Villain, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Hero, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Heroine, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Soubrette, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Comedian, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Tragedian, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Singer, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Dancer, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Acrobat, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Juggler, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Magician, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Ventriloquist, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Clown, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Pantomime, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Ballet, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Chorus, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Supernumerary, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Property Man, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Stage Manager, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Director, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Author, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Playwright, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Librettist, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Composer, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Lyricist, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Publisher, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Agent, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Press Agent, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Critic, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Reporter, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Editor, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Publisher, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Printer, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Binder, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Bookseller, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Librarian, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Reader, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Student, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Professor, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough President, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Trustee, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Faculty, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Graduate, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Undergraduate, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Freshman, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Sophomore, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Junior, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Senior, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Valedictorian, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Salutatorian, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Class Day, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Commencement, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Diploma, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Degree, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Honorary Degree, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Alumni, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Alumnae, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Reunion, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Banquet, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Toast, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Response, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Speech, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Oration, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Poem, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Song, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Ode, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Hymn, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Prayer, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Benediction, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Amen, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Finis, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough The End, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Good Night, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Sweet Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Pleasant Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Happy Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Blissful Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Heavenly Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Angelic Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Celestial Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Divine Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Eternal Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Infinite Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Boundless Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Limitless Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Endless Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Timeless Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Spaceless Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Dimensionless Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Formless Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Shapeless Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Colorless Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Tasteless Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Odorless Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Soundless Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Motionless Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Lifeless Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Deathless Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Immortal Dreams, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Eternal Life, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Heaven, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Paradise, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Nirvana, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Oblivion, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Nothingness, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Void, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Chaos, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Creation, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Universe, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Infinity, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Eternity, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough God, 25c. Dr. Lane's Cough Amen.

THE FACE AND THE COLLAR.

A Stout Man May Make Himself Look Thin by Adopting the Proper Neckwear.

Men who do not want to look any fatter in the face than they can help have an easy means of accomplishing their purpose. Not all of them are aware of the effect that may be created by the form of a collar or cravat, says the New York Sun.

"The stout man who wants to look as thin as he can," said the haberdasher's clerk, "ought to wear a tie of the kind known as the four-in-hand. Preferably it should be dark in color and drawn tight. That carries down the line of the face and lengthens it to a degree that tends to make the face look thinner.

"Another aid to making a man look thin is in the height of his collar. Stout men who want to look thin should wear high collars and closed ones. Any collar that opens in front makes one look stouter under nearly every circumstance. Such collars are becoming to the thin men.

"The fat man should avoid the kind of tie that has a horizontal effect. This will add pounds to his appearance—in his face at least.

"On the contrary, this cross effect will make the thin man look stout. The broad plastron scarfs, as they are called, have a like effect on a man's looks one way or the other. When he wears them it is the collar that makes the difference.'

"He should, therefore, see that he wears a high one that does not open. If he wants to look as thin as possible, whereas if he wants to seem stouter, an open collar will produce that effect for him."

SCULPTURED IN A MACKINTOSH

Costly Statue in an Indiana Cemetery That Is Decidedly Out of the Ordinary.

Standing in Mount Hope cemetery at Logansport, Ind., is one of the queerest monuments ever erected to the memory of any individual, says the Cincinnati Enquirer.

It is over the grave of William H. Leighter. The statue part of the monument represents Mr. Leighter as he was attired when stricken dead by heart disease.

Mr. Leighter was a ditch contractor and prominent in his locality. It was on a rainy day that death came, and he was well prepared for the weather. He was wearing a broad-brimmed hat, a mackintosh over his suit of clothes, and his trousers legs were in his rubber boots.

The members of the family, wishing to remember him as he looked when last he bid them good-by, employed a man to model in clay and build an Mr. Leighter to have his photograph taken in the clothes last worn by the deceased, and when he had carried out his idea they replaced the head on the photograph with the head of a likeness of Mr. Leighter.

The picture was sent to a sculptor in Italy, with the request that a life-sized statue be made from it in Italian marble. The statue is true to life. It cost $3,000.

PHOTOGRAPHS ON FRUIT.

Explanation of the Manner in Which They Are Made by French Artists.

Apples upon the surface of which are perfectly reproduced the photographs of the emperor and empress of Russia and of the president of the French republic have been shown in France, says a consular report.

Before photography was employed images were produced by means of figures cut from paper and stuck on the surface. When the paper was removed the image appeared light and the fruit dark, or vice versa, according to the manner in which the paper was cut and applied.

At present, however, photographs are reproduced with all their details. Strong negative electrotypes are employed, having great resistance and reproduced on thin films. The films are obtained by photographing the subject many times. The film is held in place by two rubber rings or is stuck by some matter that will not obstruct the rays of light, such as albumen or the white of an egg.

English Not Sensitive.

An Englishman gives his impressions of Boston in the New York Independent, and suggests that Bostonians need never hesitate to display revolutionary relics to their English friends from any fear lest those reminders of national defeats may awaken painful feelings. He says his countrymen are hardened to that sort of thing, for they cannot even cross the English channel without remembering that Calais was a British possession for centuries.

Forage Crop and Fertility.

Those states which are noted for the production of forage crops not only have maintained the original fertility of the soil, but they spend for commercial fertilizers less than one per cent. of the annual value of their crops, while those states which pay least attention to forage crops have impoverished the soil and spend annually for fertilizers from five to nine per cent. of the total value of their crops.

Germany's City Governments.

The governments of German cities were, prior to the law of 1892, when Bismarck championed, notoriously corrupt through spoils of politics, but are to-day the models of efficiency and honesty. The prominent features of the law which caused their deliverance are home rule, compulsory service of the citizens in municipal affairs, long tenure of office and civil service.

PLEASED WITH SUPPER, SALE AND PROGRAMME

Annual Event of Women's Society for Christian Work of Seventh-Day Church.

WAS WELL ATTENDED

AFTER A SUBSTANTIAL SUPPER, A MUSICAL PROGRAMME WAS ENJOYED.

Bag and Apron Sale Held During Evening—Those in Charge of the Event—The Sub-Committees Who Assisted in the Affair.

The annual supper, entertainment and sale, held March 18, in the parlors of the Seventh-Day Baptist church under the auspices of the Woman's Society for Christian Work, was attended with the usual success. That the efforts of the women were rewarded was evidenced by the liberal patronage accorded by the members of the church and congregation.

From 6 o'clock until after 9 o'clock, those in charge were kept busy serving suppers. The menu, a novel one, included many tempting dishes from tomato bisque to ice cream, cake and coffee. The menu cards were prettily arranged and at the top of each was the following quotation:

"We may live without friends; we may live without books; but civilized man cannot live without cooks."

The supper room was attractively decorated with crepe streamers of a nile green and pink shade, and the tables were conveniently arranged for excellent service. In addition to the supper there was an informal entertainment of a pleasing character. This included piano duets by Miss Mabel Maxson and Miss Jessie Utter, piano solos by Miss Mabel Maxson and cornet solos by Robert W. Davis, accompanied on the piano by Miss Utter. Following the supper and during the various numbers on the programme, those present enjoyed a social chat. Another attraction was the bag and apron sale which was in charge of Mrs. H. M. Maxson, Mrs. T. C. Smith and Mrs. W. H. Rogers.

The whole affair was in charge of a committee of which Mrs. Thomas Titsworth was the chairman, assisted by Mrs. Joseph Miller, Mrs. Ira West and Mrs. Charles Randolph. Those who assisted as waitresses were Miss Bessy Fita Randolph, the Misses St. John, Miss Edna Randolph, Miss Olive Randolph and Miss Kissie Nesgis. The entertainment committee consisted of Miss Ernestine C. Smith, Mrs. J. Everitt Kimball and Miss Ida Spicer. H. M. Maxson was the cashier.

The affair was given for the benefit of the treasury of the Woman's Society for Christian Work and the gratifying proceeds will be used for carrying on the work of this society.

APRONS AND NECKTIES.

Sold for Benefit of Willing Workers' of Trinity Reformed Church.

Music and games formed the principal events of a most enjoyable evening at the home of Miss Stella Boss, of Somerset street, last Thursday when the Willing Workers of Trinity Reformed church held an apron and necktie social there. The aprons and ties were sold and the proceeds, which were large, will be devoted to refurnishing the rooms of the society.

There were fifty people present and they enjoyed the games which helped in passing an enjoyable evening. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

Those who had the arrangements in charge were: Mrs. Roy DeCamp, Mrs. Codington, Mrs. Esther Campbell, Mrs. R. V. Kenney, Miss Stella Boss, Mrs. Frank Platts, Mrs. Lafayette Rosenstiehl, Mrs. Jacob Higgins, Miss Sarah Hummer and Horace J. Martin.

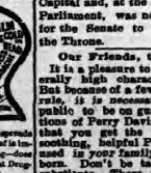
Date for Dance.

The date set for the dance and ball of the Independent Gun Club is May 4. An elaborate programme is being prepared, and it is probable that several prominent marksmen from out of town will be present as guests.

Meeting With Success.

Word has been received from Ephraim Vail, formerly of this city, but now of Gulf Port, Miss., that he is meeting with success in his position there, that of assistant engineer on a railroad.

Nasal CATARRH



In all its stages there should be cleanliness. Ely's Cream Balm cleanses, soothes and heals the diseased membrane. It cures Catarrh and Hay Fever, gives a cold in the head quickly.

Cream Balm is placed into the nostrils, spreads over the membrane and is absorbed. Relief is immediate and a cure follows. It is not drying—does not produce sneezing. Large Size, 50 cents at Druggists or by Mail; Trial Size, 10 cents by mail.

ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.

CEDAR BROOK CLUB READY FOR SEASON

Tennis Promises to Make That Club a Popular One This Summer.

OFFICERS ARE CHOSEN

ANNUAL MEETING HELD AT HOME OF J. HERVEY DOANE.

Several Locations for Club Courts Are Under Consideration—May Secure Last Year's Courts, Located on East Seventh Street.

With tennis growing in popularity, the prospects for the coming season for the Cedar Brook Tennis Club are very bright. There was a general examination of existing conditions and the formulating of plans for the future at the annual meeting of the club held March 18, at the home of J. Hervey Doane, of East Seventh street. Mr. Doane was the retiring president. Election of officers was the chief business transacted although the evening was devoted to a general discussion of plans for the summer.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Fred M. Letson; first vice president and chairman of the tennis committee, J. Hervey Doane; second vice president and chairman of the grounds committee, John H. Doane; treasurer, James A. Stafford; secretary, Alden E. Moore. The last three were re-elected. These officers compose the board of directors of the club which held a meeting immediately following the club meeting. President Letson will announce his committees in a few weeks.

Last year the club courts were located on East Seventh street near Richmond street. It is not definitely decided whether the club will use the same courts this year. Several locations are under consideration. The directors will reach a decision shortly when work will start putting the courts in order. It is expected to have courts ready to play on by April 15 unless bad weather interferes.

One new member was elected last evening and there are a number of applications to come before the board. It is expected that the membership limit will be reached this spring. There will be few of the old members who will withdraw and quite a number are desirous of joining.

TO SETTLE STRIKES.

Levering & Garrigues Company Has Joined National Association, Which Regulates Labor Conditions.

It was announced Thursday, that the Levering & Garrigues Company, of West Dunellen, was among the firms which had entered the National Association of Manufacturers and Erectors of Structural Steel and Iron Work. The organization has no officers, and while it is said its headquarters are in New York City, the exact location is withheld. It was formed for the purpose of obtaining and preserving equitable conditions between employers and employes.

Should a strike be declared, it is left by the firm to be settled by the association, and whatever it decrees, the firm must abide by. All the largest steel and iron structural concerns in the country are included in the membership.

AT NEW HOME.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Burroughs Gave Them a Surprise.

A number of friends of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burroughs gave them a happy surprise Thursday evening at their home on Somerset street. Mrs. Howard A. Pope and Miss Helen Burroughs arranged the affair and a most enjoyable evening was spent. Violin selections by John Barroughs and Martin A. Korff formed a pleasant part of the entertainment. The event was in the nature of a house-warming, as the surprised couple recently took up their residence on Somerset street. Before the guests departed for home a bountiful collation was served.

Appointed to Dominion Senate.

Among recent appointments to the Dominion Senate (and which is for life) is that of F. T. Frost, ex-M. P. for the Riding of North Leeds and Grenville, Ontario, and younger brother of George H. Frost, of Watchung avenue, this city. Senator Frost represents the Ottawa district, which includes the Dominion Capital and, at the recent opening of Parliament, was nominated to reply for the Senate to the address from the Throne.

Our Friends, the Druggists.

It is a pleasure to testify to the generally high character of druggists. But because of a few exceptions to the rule, it is necessary to caution the public to be on guard against imitations of Perry Davis' Painkiller. See that you get the right article, the soothing, helpful Painkiller that was used in your family before you were born. Don't be taken into buying a substitute. There is but one Painkiller Perry Davis'.

HOW BOROUGH SCHOOLS HAVE BEEN CONDUCTED

Annual Report of A. V. D. Honeyman, President of Borough Board of Education.

SUMS UP YEAR'S WORK

EXPLAINS WHY SCHOOL TAX WAS SO HIGH LAST YEAR.

No Great Need for a New School House in His Opinion—Explains the Various Details of School Management in Borough.

The report which was presented by A. V. D. Honeyman, president of the North Plainfield Board of Education, and which was read at the annual meeting of the borough schools, last week, is given in full. The report is an interesting one to those who have the school question in the borough at heart as it shows the conditions as they exist there and how the moneys are expended and the results obtained in the manual training department and other departments of the school.

The report follows:

To voters and citizens:

Last year you received in printed form an elaborate report made to the Board of Education by the Supervising Principal, and likewise the annual report of the board. Both were prepared with much care, in order that you might understand all the leading points connected with our various school departments and their necessities. As a result of this accurate knowledge, you did not hesitate to grant us the appropriations asked for. It has always been the case with this school district, that, whenever appropriations have been shown to be needed, whether for new buildings or for running the school itself, the voters have generously responded. We have taken this to mean that you really desire that our school shall not be a third, or even a second-rate school, but a first-class educational institution, to which you may point with pride, and which shall draw to this community families who are anxious to give their children a good, up-to-date education; as good as they could secure by living in any other favored locality.

At the same time we recognize the fact that you do not desire the taxation for your public school system to be burdensome. You wish us to administer our trust so as to be reasonably economical, while not scrimping to the lowest possible extent either in teachers' salaries or equipments.

Your board regretted to see it publicly stated last fall, after the proposed rate of taxation was published, that the appproprations asked for and obtained one year ago had actually increased the local tax bill, over the preceding year, nineteen points; that is to say, nineteen cents on the one hundred dollars. Such was the apparent increase. But it was only apparent. The fact was, that, through some error, the actual appropriation voted by this district in 1901 was not raised; that instead of it the sum of about $2,000 was not put in the school tax levy. As all taxes are not paid up previous to the spring meeting, nor, indeed, till long afterward, the board supposed the full amount appropriated had been levied and would come to us. But the levy was not made. The taxes voted in 1901 called for an assessment of eighty-six cents to the dollar on the assessed valuation, whereas only seventy-eight cents to the dollar were actually assessed. The taxes voted in 1902 called for an assessment of ninety-seven cents to the dollar on the valuation, and that amount was correctly assessed. Had the appropriation for 1901 been assessed as ordered, the increase last year would have been eleven points and not nineteen points, as published. Fortunately for us, the State appropriation last year exceeded our estimates, because of a very unusual school attendance, and we were also able to effect some unexpected savings in our expenditures. As a result, we shall see our way clear to close the fiscal year, which ends June 30, in better shape than at the end of last year—a fact which is very gratifying to your board and will, no doubt, be to you.

In reference to appropriations for a new year, the board has carefully considered whether it may not be possible to continue the school, without impairing its efficiency, by asking from your hands a somewhat reduced appropriation. While we know it will be necessary, in order to retain some good teachers, to slightly increase the salary list, we think we see our way clear to expend a less amount than last year on repairs, on text books and on supplies, and we have also reason to believe the appropriation from the State will come to our aid as to the proposed reduction. It is not possible to forecast what we shall receive from the State, as the official apportionment is not made until midsummer or later, nor can we foresee the extent of repairs and incidentals. Nevertheless, acting upon our best judgment, we have unanimously decided to ask you to appropriate in the whole $1,000 less than a year ago, and, if the sum be granted, we promise to do our best to maintain the school's present efficiency.

The State Board of Education annually publishes a statistical report covering every public school district in the State. By its last report we find the average paid in this borough for teachers is still, as we reported to you one year ago, below that paid by nearly all schools of equal standing. You will find the official figures on page 47 of the latest State report, and to it we direct your attention. We only allude to this now, because it proves that the board is not extravagant in the matter of salaries. We are only doing on this line what our finances enable us to do, and neither more nor less. What we annually raise enables us to do our full duty to as loyal, as intelligent, as energetic and as capable a corps of teachers as any school of our class in the State possesses. Fortunately we now have and long have had fine examples of noble teachers, who perform their work not because of the wages given, but because they love their occupation and have enlisted all their enthusiasm in the grand task of quickening the intellects and impressing lessons of gentleness, obedience and self-helpfulness upon the rising generation. We should again like some good teachers, as we do every year, because they will be called from us to better-paying fields.

The manual training department has met with signal success the past year. The following figures prove the results have not been expensive, while also showing how many boys and girls have been helped in this one department:

	No. pupils.	Cost of material.	Cost per pupil.
Drawing	1,004	$114.70	$ .11 ½
Sewing	206	46.41	.22
Cooking	157	94.11	.60
Wood work	216	20.45	.09 1-3

There have also been 280 pupils of the intermediate grade taking up basketry, and work with raffia and reed, a practical way of interesting the young in a really useful occupation, which will fit them to help themselves hereafter in home industries and employment. Your board is of opinion that the manual training school, for which one of our citizens donated the building, and for which the State now defrays one-half the cost, is one of the very best investments of the borough; that its influence is not to be transient, but far-reaching with nearly all pupils who are trained in it. Boys here discover for the first time what they have a genius for, whether for a handcraft or a scientific career; and girls here learn neat sewing and good cooking and are sure to grow up into womanhood with a zest for these plain essentials, which are so necessary and so useful if they would become good wives and housekeepers. The idea a few persons still possess that manual training is not practical, or not educational, always dwindles when this department of our school is actually visited by the critic. If any of you lack faith in it, will you not please the board and visit this department? We extend a hearty invitation to every citizen and taxpayer of this borough to inspect the manual training department on any school day.

The commercial department still continues to be a practical and much-sought-after feature of our school work. The class in stenography numbers forty-five, in bookkeeping thirty-two, and in typewriting sixty-one, of which is cared for by one teacher. We have not been able to graduate enough pupils from this department to fill one-half of the applications made to it for stenographers, bookkeepers and office assistants.

Your board closes its report with these few additional remarks: First, That our school is, in all departments, in better condition and is doing more satisfactory work today than it has ever done before. Second, That our graduating class in June will be larger than it ever was, and it is now soon to increase year by year. Third, That no complaint whatever, concerning principal or teachers, has been made to the standing complaint committee of the board during the past year. Fourth, That we regret to note that truancy is on the increase, owing to the laxity of the school laws and the indifference of many parents, especially of a certain class, to the advantages of a public school education. This matter we hope the present Legislature will help us to rectify, by a proper truancy law. But we also rest that public sentiment shall assist us, and make it popular to go to school, and unpopular to stay at home. To grow up in ignorance means for a child a sad future and for a community paupers and criminals to support.

The total enrollment of the school at present is as follows:

In the kindergarten	120
In the primary grades	568
In the grammar grades	290
In the High School	127
Total	1,105

Of these 926 are in the Somerset street school and in the two outside school rooms, and 275 in the Watchung school. The number of teachers employed is thirty-three, with two helpers and one supervising principal, making a total of thirty-six.

Your board is at present obliged to engage two outside school rooms. For the delay of work these ought to be another small school building erected, but we are not yet ready to go into this matter and probably shall not be so long as the pressure for outside accommodations is not greater than it is now.

A. V. D. Honeyman,
President.

For the Board of Education.

MADE MONSIGNOR.

Former Plainfield Priest Receives High Honors in Catholic Church.

Announcement has just been made that the Diocese of Newark has been honored by Pope Leo with the appointment of a new domestic prelate in the person of the Very Reverend John A. Stafford, president of Seton Hall College, South Orange. A few days ago an Apostolic brief came from Rome appointing Father Stafford a domestic prelate of the Pope, with the right to wear the purple robes of that office and with the title of Monsignor.

Monsignor Stafford was extremely popular, especially with the young people and through him the Young Men's Lyceum, which built the clubhouse at Sixth and Liberty street, was organized.

LITERARY.

Ray Stannard Baker, whose articles on "The Great Northwest" are ranked by The Century among the more notable and valuable of the year's offerings, found the nine thousand miles which he and R. L. Stinnecahein traveled gathering materials for their pictures, written and drawn, full of adventure.

"We visited all the important cities in the five Northwestern States," Mr. Baker says. "We took part in the land rush at the opening of the Fort Hole Indian Reservation in Idaho in June; we went into the lumber camps in Washington, down in the mines of Montana, out with the salmon-fishing fleet at the mouth of the Columbia river; we outfitted and traveled with wagons or on horseback across part of Idaho, through the forest reserves of Wyoming, and across Yellowstone Park, and we visited the old city of Victoria in British Columbia. In all of the different cities we were afforded every possible assistance in our work, given introductions to the clubs, invited to visit every seat of enterprise—to the limit of our strength. The people everywhere seemed deeply interested in having the country properly presented in The Century."

—Mrs. J. G. Mair, of the borough, is about to erect a dwelling on Montcalm avenue for her occupancy.

A Victory to Be Proud Of

is the final and absolute cure of a sore throat, in which the rawness and tenderness have been spreading dangerously near those guardians of life, the lungs. The luxury of a sound throat and robust lungs is most keenly enjoyed by people who have suffered all the consequences of "a little cold, you know," have been rescued from misery and danger by Allen's Lung Balsam.

Letters from Women

Cured by the use of Kodol are received daily. Their troubles nearly all begin with indigestion or other stomach disorder.

If the food you eat fails to give strength to your body, it is because the juices secreted by the stomach and digestive organs are inadequate to transform the nutrient properties of the food into blood. That is indigestion. The system is deprived of the amount of nourishment required to keep up the strength, and the result is that one or more of the following symptoms gradually grows weak, and then weaker, until finally it is disabled. Here a great mistake is made. That of treating the diseased organ. The best doctors in the land make this very mistake. Why should they? It is so easy to see that the trouble is not there.

Kodol Cures

This famous remedy puts the stomach and digestive organs in a healthy condition so that rich, red blood is sent coursing through the veins and arteries of every muscle, tissue and fiber of the body, every organ of the body, and by Nature's lawful health, full strength and vigor is soon restored to each.

Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders.

I have taken Kodol for nearly two months after each meal and it is the only remedy that gave relief from the terrible pains I suffered. After a time I would take it but once a day, and now, while I keep a bottle handy, I seldom need it, as it has cured me.—MRS. J. W. COOLBAUGH, Mills Corner, N. Y.

Kodol Digests What You Eat.

Bottles only. $1.00 Size holding 2½ times the trial size, which sells for 50 cents.

Prepared by E. O. DeWITT & CO., CHICAGO

L. W. RANDOLPH.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 30.—Commenced by Rev. S. E. Doyle.

Topic—A mission study of Africa.—Psalm 68:31; Isa. xviii, 2.

The continent of Africa comprises nearly 12,000,000 square miles. It is 5,000 miles long and 4,000 miles wide. It is as large as Europe and South America combined. It is crossed by both tropics, and the equator cuts it a little below the center. Then it lies largely within the tropics. Africa has been described as "a vast natural den of desolation, misery and crime," and no continent upon the face of the earth has been so characterized by degradation, wretchedness and woe. It has well been called "darkest Africa," for from all times the vast mass of its population has been submerged beneath appalling moral and spiritual darkness.

The population of Africa is supposed to be about 200,000,000, or one-seventh part of the globe. Many races and languages are found on the continent. Egyptians and Arabians principally occupy the northern and eastern part. The negro race occupies the greater part of the western and northern central Africa from the Atlantic to the Nile. The Bantu race comprises almost all the natives and tribes south of the equator. They resemble the negroes proper in many respects, yet have more regular features and speak entirely different languages. The Zulus and Kaffirs belong to this race. The Hottentot bushmen include the Hottentots, the bushmen and the pygmy tribes who live in the heart of the continent. This group is the lowest in the scale of African humanity.

Paganism is the original and principal religion of the native African tribes. African paganism includes a belief in a supreme being and in a spirit world. The grossest forms of superstition prevail. Polygamy, as usually understood, scarcely exists. It is replaced by fetichism, the worship of charms, which may be almost any object—a tree, stick, stone, shell or plant. These are supposed to have power to keep off danger and to give the power to injure enemies. "One guards against sickness, another against drought, a third against the disasters of war; one is used to draw down rain, another to secure good crops, and a third fills the sea and rivers with fish and brings them to the fisherman's net." Three-fourths of the people of Africa are pagans. Next to paganism Mohammedanism prevails. It was spread by fire and sword over northern Africa in the seventh century and it still advances in many years. Nearly one-fourth of the population is Mohammedan. The Mohammedans are found in north Africa, the eastern and western Sudan and on the eastern and western coasts. Several millions of the people are Christians. Of these about one-half are Copts and Abyssinians and the remainder Protestants and Catholics in about equal proportions.

For many years our great Christian societies have been making efforts to evangelize the dark continent. These efforts, though put forth in the face of tremendous obstacles, have produced remarkable results. Our God can redeem and save even Africa. Egypt is turning from Islam and gaudy prayer and offerings we should do our part in the redemption of this vast continent. The nations of the world have cursed it with slavery, opium, rum and immorality. Let us make retribution for the past by sending the gospel to these people who sit in great darkness and need the light of Christ.

NOTE.

Make a special study of your denominational mission work in Africa.

A Forward Movement.

Dr. Clark recently wrote the following stirring appeal, addressing it especially to New York state Endeavorers through the columns of their new official organ, Empire State Notes. The message has a wider application and is worthy of being put into operation not only in New York, but everywhere:

Fellow Endeavorers of New York—Let us make a definite forward movement in Christian Endeavor during the coming year.

Let us set a stake in advance and come up to it.

In this first number of your bulletin I would earnestly urge that we all honestly resolve and heartily strive to set a standard that the number of our societies, counting the new Junior societies, of course, as part of the aggregate, shall be increased one hundred per cent, and that we strive to add at least one-tenth to our total membership in every societies.

Our active members could be increased also by a vigorous canvass, for these are our working force.

The honorary membership might well be doubled, thus bringing new sympathy and support to the active members and all the other activities of the church.

These additions not up for more than one-tenth, but they are all easily possible, and they will all add to the spiritual life and power of the church.

Will New York state and the New York societies be on the honor roll of "Denver 1903"? I hope so. This will be for a definite forward movement for Christ and the church.

FRANCIS E. CLARK.

Nuggets.

Christian Endeavor stands for the devotional spirit.—H. A. Kimports, Secretary New York State Union.

We can't afford to be without a constant passion for souls. This is the chiefest aim of Christian Endeavor.—Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman.

Quite clear.

Easy question—Can you be asked that pertains to any phase of Christian Endeavor work. Address Lock Box 674, Binghamton, N. Y.

47. T., Erie, Pa.—The Pennsylvania union will run a special excursion to the Denver convention next July, and the New York state union will undoubtedly do the same thing.

48. S., Buffalo, N. Y.—Rev. Dr. Charles M. Sheldon, author of "In His Steps," is a most enthusiastic Christian Endeavorer, and the society in his church is a model one. It receives his personal encouragement and help.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 30.—"Missionary Methods: Heroes of Africa: Livingstone, Cox, Mackay, Good."

"Ethiopia shall haste to stretch out her hands unto God."

The progress of missions around among the young people of the country, is one of the noteworthy events of the times. It is one of the most hopeful indications as to the future of the church.

Events move with such marvelous rapidity that it is difficult to keep well posted in some matters of great importance. But the facilities put in our hands for a clear understanding of the work of missions makes it possible in every community by a little care to make our people thoroughly intelligent as to the progress, prospects and needs of our church work in all lands.

Africa is the least civilized of all the great divisions of the earth. Within the memory of many who are not counted old the whole interior of the continent was marked on maps "unexplored." Now the project of a railway from Cairo to Cape Town is actually under way.

The progress of discovery around the shores and through the interior of the continent is one of the most thrilling of stories. No one person has done more to open this vast land to civilization and Christianization than did David Livingstone, the missionary explorer, who died while in the very heart of the wilderness.

Every league should arrange one evening at least for a public meeting, when addresses or papers should be read on the work done by the men whose names we enroll on our topic for the week. Add to these a "Voice of Africa." Much interest will be added if a large outline map can be hung where all can see the places mentioned in the story of each man.

Cox will ever be remembered in the Methodist Episcopal church, not for the great work he did either in exploration or evangelization, but because of his indomitable zeal and faith as the first Methodist missionary to Africa and his memorable words, which have become the rallying cry of the church, "Though a thousand fall, let not Africa be given up."

The evangelization of Uganda is one of the miracles of this age. No greater triumphs of the gospel have of late crowned the nineteenth Christian centuries. No brighter examples of heroism and Christian martyrdom have been seen in any land.

These records should be given to our people and to their children thrill at the recital, and this not merely to raise more money for missions. It will have that effect, but that will not be the greatest gain. It will quicken the zeal, broaden the sympathies, deepen the faith and elevate the hope of multitudes who hear. The home churches will feel the inspiration of noble achievement and the fires of revival power will be kindled on the home altars. Young people will catch the greater glow themselves with the story, and the whole church will receive a divine uplift.

Partnership With God In Patience.

The example of God's forbearance and long-suffering of him that would prepare us for that self control and patient waiting which are perhaps the most difficult arts of living. Preachers of the strenuous life often forget that for one who dares to act there must be many who can wait, and wait long, and to endure. It is not the charge which commanders dread for their commands. It is the waiting before the word to charge is given. Action relieves the tension of the nerves and occupies the mind. The example of God's patience is not in itself a sufficient incentive in our time of need. God waits because He knows. He sees the end from the beginning and is never tempted to gather unripe fruit, as we so often are. He asks us to be sharers of His patience by the exercise of faith. We can wait because we believe. He trusts us in the partnership of work and waiting, and we renounce and have patience because we trust Him for the end He promises.—Congregationalist.

Life a Stewardship.

Time and again, in order to impress upon men the solemnity of living, the Master treated life as a stewardship, insisting that all life is a gift, that a faithful use of it is the one requisite to successful living and that for its use we must all give an account when the period of our stewardship is ended. So often are we to learned our lesson in this matter that the man with five talents frequently squanders them because he has five, and the man with one talent neglects it because it is only one.—Episcopal Record.

Serving Faithfully.

He who serves the Lord faithfully need have no regrets. Duty, rightfully performed, gives no stings at the dying hour. It is only he who would render it so hard to die. God "taketh pleasure in the death of His saints," not because of the grace then dominant, but because of the useful life then about to receive its coronation recognition.—Presbyterian.

Genuine Piety.

Genuine piety can always be distinguished from the spurious type. It never advertises itself; it never seeks to attract observation. It never tries to elicit the praise of men, but seeks by secret prayer and personal devotion to worship the Creator and Redeemer in spirit and in truth.—Independent.

The Path to God.

Faint not, poor traveler, though thy way Be rough like that thy Saviour trod; Though cold and stormy lower the day, This path of suffering leads to God.

—Andrews Norton.

SWACKHAMER IS A SURPRISE

HAS COME TO THE FORE DURING THE LAST TWO WEEKS.

Newark News Tells of Oratorical Ability in the Legislature This Session.

This year's Legislature is not an oratorical body, says the Newark News. There are only three members in the Senate who have exhibited any forensic powers. They are McKee, Hedspeth and Martin, the last two Democrats.

Wakelee, the Republican leader, is a good debater, but not a polished speaker. The same is true of Bradley, Bachelier, Gebhardt, Strong and Cross. President Hutchinson makes no oratorical pretensions. Lee, Haines, Stead, Misch, Brown, Welsh, Shinn, Skrimpe and Childs seldom leave their seats except to make a motion or explain some bill in brief and simple terms. Barber is handicapped by his deafness. Farrell, whom Democrats look upon as a coming governor, has been more modest and retiring than most new members and has sadly disappointed the men who predicted that he would upset traditions when he got into the Senate.

Oratory in the House has been at a premium. Hamill, the Hudson boy wonder, has let himself loose but once this session, and Hall, of Camden; Avis, of Gloucester; Stalter, of Passaic, Newcorn, of Union, and Garrabrants, Lord, Williams and Colby, of Essex, are the acknowledged Republican orators. Boyd, the Republican leader, is forceful and good in debate, as are Crosse, of Cape May; Cook, of Bergen; Miller, of Cumberland; Guichtel, of Essex; Leavitt, of Mercer; Hillery, of Morris, and VanBlarcom, of Passaic.

With the exception of Swackhamer, of Somerset, all the Democratic orators are in the Hudson group. They include, besides Hamill of Secaucus, Treacy, Stillwell and Fielder. Swackhamer has been the surprise of the session. A new member, he was silent until a couple of weeks ago; then, sure of his ground, he started in for a record. In appearance Swackhamer is as unexphonic as his name. He is tall and lank, and takes legislation very seriously. Two weeks ago Scovel stroked his fur the wrong way. The Somerset man made a forceful plea for the pending child labor bill. Scovel, unaware that Mrs. Swackhamer and Senator Childs' wife were in the gallery listening, tried to offset the effect of the speech by a sneering remark. Swackhamer waited a week and then got square.

"The gentleman's remarks reminded me," he said, "of the Mississippi steamboat that had a five-foot boiler and a twenty-foot whistle. When they blew the whistle the boat stopped. Nobody ever noticed anything remarkable in the Baalam's ass until he began to talk, then he became a public character."

CLEVER AS EVER.

The March Number of the Quiver Has Just Made Its Appearance.

The Quiver, the paper issued by the Qui Vive Society of the Randolph-Cooley Collegiate Institute has made its appearance for March and is just as clever and attractive as ever. One noticable feature of the current issue is a reproduction of the class pin on the front cover which was drawn by Miss VanBoskerck. Interesting articles have been contributed by Miss Constance Pittis, Miss Marjorie Walbridge Brown, Miss Dorothy L. Burke, Miss Rosa M. Woltmann and one under the nome de plume of "Snow Drop."

The paper is clever and credit is due to the editors for the bright and breezy style of the March issue.

OLD BUTCHER GONE.

George Lewis Died at His Home on Mountain Avenue Thursday.

Following an illness of several weeks' duration, George Lewis died at his home on Mountain avenue, last Thursday. Death caused by a cancerous growth of the face. He was fifty-eight years old.

Mr. Lewis was a butcher and for many years, with his brother, Israel, of Somerset street, conducted the most prominent market in the city. It was located on Park avenue where the Tier building now stands. He retired from business several years ago and his since lived quietly. He leaves a wife and four brothers.

The Stomach Is the Man.

A weak stomach weakens the man, because it cannot transform the food he eats into nourishment. Health and strength cannot be restored to any sick man or weak woman without first restoring health and strength to the stomach. A weak stomach cannot digest enough food to feed the tissues and revive the tired and run down limbs and organs of the body. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cleanses, purifies, sweetens and strengthens the glands and membranes of the stomach, and cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles. L. W. Randolph

BELIEVES TAX RATE WILL NOT INCREASE

City Collector Frank H. Smith Has Arguments and Figures to Back His Stand.

GIVES HIS REASONS WHY

MONEY ON HAND NOW TO INSTALL POLICE PATROL SYSTEM.

Big Increase Expected in Valuations, Especially in the First and Fourth Wards—About the Residential Park in Southwest Side.

While there are some people who firmly believe that the tax rate is sure to increase in the future, there is one person who quotes facts and figures to prove that Plainfield's rate should not increase for some time to come and that previous statements to the contrary are without foundation and only tend to injure property interests in this city. That person is Collector F. H. Smith, who is in a position to know about the city's finances and its resources.

A Daily Press reporter, in an interview with Collector Smith, learned many things that will surely interest tax payers. Regarding the installation of the Gamewell police patrol system, Mr. Smith explained that the sum of $5,000 which is needed for this purpose is on hand, as well as $1,000 saved out of last year's appropriation for the police department, and no provisions will have to be made this year in the tax rate for the expense of that improvement. The tax payers have already paid for the system.

The county rate, Mr. Smith believed, might go up one point, owing to the fact that the County House bonds will have to be provided for, but even this he did not believe would necessitate an increase in Plainfield's rate. The collector said he could see no reason why the city rate should be higher than last year. The police department is no larger, the new men appointed simply taking the place of those who have died or resigned. While the salaries of some officials have been raised even this is not sufficient to increase the tax rate was Mr. Smith's argument.

As to increased valuations, Mr. Smith said that this will be a large item, especially in the Second and First wards, this year. In the Fourth Ward there is the Pedersin Layer Company machine shops, the Lasher-Fray factory, besides a whole lot of new dwellings. In the First ward there is the stock of the Plainfield Trust Company, as well as the Woodhull & Martin new building to be assessed and this will bring up the valuation considerably.

As to the new septic tanks for the sewer system for the construction of which $41,000 worth of 4 per cent. bonds were issued, Mr. Smith explained that the interest on these bonds amount to $1,640, and this would only mean an increase of a point and a half, provided that there is no increase in valuations. Mr. Smith believes that the increase in valuations this year will be large.

In speaking of the new park system proposed for the Third ward, the collector said that no rate could be fixed on that for this year, as the county board meets July 15 next, and all estimates would have to be reported before that time when the rate is determined and fixed. In connection with the opening of the new part, the city is planning to extend the sewer system at a cost of $65,000.

"This," Mr. Smith said, "means that there will be $3,600 interest to be paid on the bonds issued for that purpose provided the extension is made. The plan is to build at least fifteen dwellings to cost not less than $10,000 each. This would mean a $6,000 assessment on each, a total of $75,000. The city tax rate on the rate would amount to $6,714, while the interest on the bonds would only be $3,600 a year.

"Now, if the police department should decide to build a new headquarters 4 per cent. bonds would be issued and if a $30,000 building should be erected the interest on that sum would only be $900 a year and at the present time the city is paying in rent for police purposes $720. These bonds would not increase the tax rate and I cannot see how the rate would be increased unless a new fire house should be erected in the east end. That might raise it a trifle."

Avoid all drying inhalants and use that which cleanses and heals the membrane. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and cures Catarrh easily and pleasantly. Cold in the head vanishes quickly. Price 50 cents at druggists or by mail.

Catarrh caused difficulty in speaking and to a great extent loss of hearing. By the use of Ely's Cream Balm dropping of mucus has ceased, voice and hearing have greatly improved.—J. W. Davidson, Att'y at Law, Monmouth, Ill.

REFORM CLUB BESTS I. C. T. CLUB FIVE

The Second Meeting of Those Clubs in Local Basket Ball League Friday Night.

ACCURACY THAT DID IT

FIRST HALF WAS DECIDEDLY IN FAVOR OF THE REFORM CLUB.

I. C. T. Club Team Braced Up in the Second Half, and Had Slightly the Better of It—But the Reform's Lead Settled It.

The last basket ball game in the Plainfield Amateur Basket Ball League series between the Reform Club team and the team from the I. C. T. Club was played Friday evening at Reform Hall and resulted in a victory for the home team, the score being 24 to 15. During the first part of the game the Reform Club team appeared much too strong for its opponents, the first half ending 16 to 6 in its favor. In the last half the visiting team braced up and did some excellent work. At the close of this half the score stood 9 to 5 in favor of the visitors, making the total score 24 to 15.

The Reform Club team showed marked improvement in every way, the result of practice. E. P. T. Smith played his first game with the team and his work was commendable. Taylor for the home team was the star player for the winning five, having a credit of five goals from the field and one from a foul. The I. C. T. Club five also showed improvement, although their weak point was in accuracy in throwing for goals. There were a number of opportunities for scoring, but the members of the team lacked accuracy.

In the first half Taylor threw five goals from the field, Galbraith threw two and Scott one, while Sherwin threw two from the field, one from a foul and Blimm threw one from a foul. In the last half Galbraith threw two goals from the field, Scott one from foul, Taylor one from the field and one from a foul, Sherwin one from the field, Cose one from the field and one from a foul and Blimm two from fouls.

The teams lined up as follows:

Reform Club.		I. C. T.
Taylor.	right forward	Reynolds
Galbraith	left forward	Sherwin
Scott	centre	Cose
Smith	right guard	Blimm
O'Loughlin	left guard	Herdle, Overbaugh

Score—Reform Club, 24; I. C. T., 15. Goals from the field—Taylor (5), Galbraith (2), Scott (1), Sherwin (3), Cose (1). Goals on fouls—Sherwin (1), Blimm (3), Scott (1), Cose (1). Fouls—Reform Club, 14; I. C. T., 8. Referee—W. C. Gilmore, Y. M. C. A. Umpire—H. M. Hoffman and W. W. Manger, Jr., of Jersey City. Timekeepers—Howard Drake and Thomas Eddy. Scorers—R. C. Larew and V. W. Nash, Jr.

DRUGGISTS AT DINNER.

Banquet to County Association by the Elizabeth Druggists.

A dinner was given Thursday evening at Elizabeth by the Elizabeth Association of Retail Druggists to the county association and many people from this city went down and spent a very pleasant evening. Those who were present from this city were Mr. and Mrs. R. B. F. Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Rowley, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton M. Nagle, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Randolph, B. J. Schreiner and Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Armstrong.

The programme was an elaborate one and was attractively gotten up. It was printed in Latin and was on slabs of flat elm bark.

The best pill 'neath the stars and stripes;
It cleanses the system and never gripes.

Little Early Risers of worldly repute—
Ask for DeWitt's and take no substitute.

A small pill, easy to buy, easy to take and easy to act, but never failing in results. DeWitt's Little Early Risers arouse the secretions and act as a tonic to the liver, curing by permanently. L. W. Randolph.

Came Here to Wed.

Announcement has been made of the made of the marriage of George W. Snyder, formerly of this city, but now of Westfield, to Miss Lillie Dammann, of New York. The ceremony was performed March 1 by Rev. J. O. McKelvey, at his home in the borough. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Diem, of the borough, acted as witnesses.

What's in a Name?

Everything is in the name when it comes to Witch Hazel Salve. E. C. DeWitt & Co., of Chicago, discovered, some years ago, how to make a salve from Witch Hazel that is a specific for Piles. For blind, bleeding, itching and protruding Piles, eczema, cuts, burns, bruises and all skin diseases, DeWitt's Salve has no equal. This has given rise to numerous worthless counterfeits. Ask for DeWitt's—the genuine. L. W. Randolph.

Miss Mary E. VanKuyk, of Delaware, Hunterdon county, is the guest of friends on West Third street.

900 DROPS

CASTORIA

A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of INFANTS CHILDREN

Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.

Recipe of OLD DR SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed
Alx. Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bicarbonate Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor

A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.

Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
NEW YORK.

35 DOSES—35 CENTS

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

IN DEFENCE OF FISHERS

ASSEMBLYMAN SWACKHAMER SPOKE AGAINST FISHING BILL.

Told Story of a Remarkable Man | The Story Brought Down the House.

An important bill, regulating the net fishing in the Raritan Bay, Staten Island Sound and tributaries, came up last week in the House of Assembly. The passage of the bill was advocated by Assemblyman Lehlbach. One of the opposers of the bill was Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer, who declared that the passage of the bill would destroy the industry of the pond fishers, in these waters, to the amount of thousands of dollars; that hundreds of poor fishermen had all their money invested in pound nets in some from $100 to $1,000, they had built up this business and had followed it for years, and to have their nets interfered with by the recreation of the wealthy sportsmen, who fish with rod and line, the Legislature is asked to wipe out the property rights of the fishermen, and in many cases beggar their families.

Some one stated that the fishermen were not so poor, that he knew of one family who had property to the amount of $8,000. Mr. Swackhamer replied that he had heard of one family so poor that they had not tasted of meat for several years; they had lived upon fish, clams and oysters to such an extent that their stomachs rose and felt with the tide. The head of the family was a very large man and he had to wear a plaid apron to keep a check on his stomach.

The bill was defeated.

ALL SORTS OF GAMES.

Borough Epworth Leaguers Enjoyed An Assortment of Them at Friday Night's Social.

The cabinet of the Epworth League of the Grace M. E. church conducted a social at the church, Friday evening, which proved to be an enjoyable one. There was a large attendance and the evening was spent in playing games and listening to musical selections by Miss Addie Giddis and Miss May Conroy.

It was an "assorted social," so named on account of the great assortment of games which were played. In two of these prizes were offered. In the art contest, Miss Maude Bowman won the prize for drawing the most perfect animal, and C. E. A. Heywood won the men's prize for best trimming a woman's hat in three minutes. Refreshments were served during the evening.

Those who had charge of the arrangements were: Mr. A. R. Wilson, Miss E. E. Smalley, Miss Mary Hoagland, Mrs. Charles Greer, Charles Hardee and W. M. Warren.

Democrats Reorganize.

The Democratic city committee met Thursday evening and reorganized for the year. The following officers were elected: Chairman, A. J. Nolan; secretary, Frank J. Shastic; treasurer, H. W. Marshall. A committee composed of F. J. Shastic and V. L. Frazee was appointed to revise the rules and by-laws. Adjournment was taken until April 2.

WHY HE NOMINATED SCHLEY

ELSTON M. FRENCH TELLS HOW HE CAME TO BE FIRST TO DO SO.

'Twas Done in Hotel Elevator at New Orleans During the Mardi Gras.

Assessor Elston M. French, of North Plainfield, has returned from his recent trip south and while talking to a Press reporter on his trip and the incidents of his stay in New Orleans spoke of how he came to be the first man to nominate Admiral Schley for President of the United States.

It was while he was stopping at the St. Charles Hotel, in New Orleans, while the Mardi Gras festivities were going on there. One morning, he was coming down in the elevator with General Joe Wheeler and others when the talk turned to the possible candidate for the next president of the United States when Mr. French said that he wished to settle all talk on that matter by placing Admiral Schley's name for the honor. In the same spirit General Wheeler seconded the motion.

Later in the day Mr. French was going up in the elevator when Admiral Schley stepped in the lift and the two exchanged greetings. Large black headlines in the paper which Mr. French held in his hands attracted the Admiral's attention and he thanked Mr. French for the honor but said that he thought that that honor would not be for him. The incident made quite a stir in the Louisiana capital for some time during the festivities there, and seemed to strike the right spot in the southern Democracy.

LITERARY.

The child labor problem, which is agitating the entire country at present is ably discussed in the leading article in the April number of Leslie's Monthly, an article which is written authoritatively by W. S. Waudby, special agent for the U. S. Department of Labor. Another article as remarkable for its photographs as for its text, is that on the Fire Walkers of Fiji, one of the unexplained miracles of our own day. The Autobiography of a Shop Girl, a true story of life, on the same lines as the successful Autobiography of a Thief, begins in this number.

A story by S. R. Crockett, of smuggling in Spain, and an Irish newspaper yarn by Seumas MacManus, sympathetically illustrated, with a thrilling sea story, and an excellent animal tale of a mule in the coal mines, make up the chief part of the fiction is this number.

At the end of the Magazine is a clever sketch by Carolyn Wells of the best scheme for producing the great American Trust-made novel of the future, and a number of light verses and short stories.

Will Provide Entertainment.

The fair committee of the T. A. B. Society met Friday evening and appointed an entertainment committee comprising John J. Kane, C. A. Shannon and David Mack. They will provide entertainment all during the week in which the fair will be held.

NO LIGHT ON KILLING

Mrs. Burdick Denies Knowledge of Husband's Slayer.

CHILDREN TESTIFY WITHOUT EMOTION

In Testimony of Widow Covering Week in Which Murder Was Committed She Denies That Pennell Had Her House Key.

BUFFALO, March 23.—"Have you received any information as to who killed your husband?"

"No, sir."

"You swear you have no knowledge or information as to who killed him?"

"I do."

The above questions were addressed to Mrs. Alice Hall Burdick yesterday afternoon at the inquest into the death of her husband by District Attorney Coatsworth. The answers were returned by Mrs. Burdick in a calm, clear voice. The questions came abruptly while the district attorney was drawing from Mrs. Burdick information about her relations with Arthur B. Pennell. She had denied that Pennell took her key to the front door of the Burdick home while they were in New York together and had several duplicates made of it. The district attorney put the question regarding the key to Mrs. Burdick in a number of different forms, but the answers were always emphatic denials that she or Pennell had ever ordered duplicate keys made or that the key had left her possession during her last exile from home.

Mrs. Burdick was calmer and more collected while testifying. She left the stand at 4:15.

To complete the examination of every one who was in the Burdick home on the night of Feb. 26, when Edwin L. Burdick was murdered, the district attorney called to the stand the two youngest Burdick children, Carol and Alice, aged respectively thirteen and ten years. The district attorney spoke kindly to the children, but questioned them closely about the events that occurred at their home on the night before and the morning after the murder of their father. The children displayed no more sign of emotion than did their grandmother or mother or elder sister while talking about the terrible death of their father. Their recollection of the happenings at the time of the tragedy were rather hazy, and "I don't remember" was usually the answer they gave when the district attorney pressed them closely on any point.

Mrs. Burdick's testimony covered the week in which Burdick was murdered, the week in which Arthur B. Pennell was constantly upon her lips. She trusted him implicitly in everything. The district attorney read a number of letters written to Mrs. Burdick by Pennell in which he said life was not worth living unless she was his and death would not be unwelcome. She knew nothing of a document found in her safety deposit vault bonding Pennell to pay her $25,000 in the event of his being unable to marry her. Although she was among Mrs. Burdick's private papers in the vault she claimed to have been ignorant of its existence.

Mrs. Burdick declared that the last time she saw Pennell was on the Tuesday before the murder. He left her apartments at the Mantic club, arriving in Buffalo Wednesday. She was informed of Mr. Burdick's death by a message from Mrs. Hull on the following Friday and hastened to Buffalo. She reached her home Saturday morning. A brief note of sympathy from Pennell came to the house that day. She never heard from him or saw him between that time and the day he was killed by his automobile plunging into the stone quarry.

Immediately leaving the stand Mrs. Burdick took occasion to say in reply to questions from her attorney that nothing improper or immoral had occurred between her and Pennell. At the same time she said her husband was fond of the society of other women and for some reason not quite clear said that Mrs. Pennell was quite familiar with the dining room and "den" in the Burdick home.

Palma Urges Ratification.

HAVANA, March 25.—The message of President Palma regarding the amended reciprocity treaty was read in the senate yesterday. The president considers that the amendments made by the United States senate should be adopted and refers the matter to the consideration of the Cuban senate. He explained that the exchange of ratifications must be made in Washington before March 31 or the treaty will lapse. He sent with the message a certified copy of the telegrams exchanged by Secretary of State Root and the Cuban minister at Washington, Senor Quesada; also the amendments. There were twenty senators present at the session.

National Packing Company.

CHICAGO, March 25.—Announcement of the incorporation of the National Packing company, capitalized at $15,000,000 and including several of the smaller plants in Chicago, Omaha and elsewhere, is made by J. P. Lyman, president of the company. The incorporation papers were taken out in New Jersey, and it is announced that the purchase is made for investment with the idea of doing a business of about $150,000,000 a year.

House Moved Into Another State.

GRAND FORKS, N. D., March 25.—A sensation was caused here when a house, the ownership of which was claimed by both Mrs. John Jacobson and Phil Nett, was moved into Minnesota despite the vigorous protests of Nett. Judge Buck and several attorneys were called upon, but before injunction papers could be secured the house was in Minnesota.

CANAL BILL PASSED

New York Senate For Hundred Million Plan.

FOURTEEN REPUBLICANS OPPOSE IT

Democrats Instructed by Leader Murphy to Vote For Measure. Malby and Grady Have a Lively Tilt.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 25.—After an entire day's debate upon the subject the senate at 6:20 o'clock last night, by a vote of 32 ayes to 14 nays, passed the Davis-Bostwick thousand ton barge canal bill. All the negative votes were cast by Republicans, the Democrats leading of a unanimous vote only that of Senator Frawley, paired with Senator Ambler, who was called home by illness.

There were fears early in the day that the bill would be defeated, but late in the afternoon Senator Grady received a special delivery letter from Leader C. F. Murphy of Tammany desiring the Democrats to vote for the bill. They did so solidly and saved the day for canal improvement.

A striking feature of the debate was the earnest contention of Minority Leader Grady that both parties were pledged to support the measure, while Senator Raines, Republican leader, squarely repudiated this claim, declaring that the Republican platform committed the party to canal improvement, but not to the $101,000,000 scheme nor to any scheme calling for direct taxation. Senators Malby and Allds also earnestly opposed the bill on similar grounds.

Senator Green, on the other hand, believed the party was pledged to support the measure and declared that his district (Broome) favored it.

Senators Malby and Grady had a lively tilt as to the relative importance of St. Lawrence county and the big cities, the former claiming that St. Lawrence county paid a larger proportionate share of taxes than New York city. Mr. Grady characterizing St. Lawrence county as a wilderness noted for game and fish and trees. He called Senator Malby's district a "dependent" district and declared that it would not even allow New York to better itself at its own expense.

Senator Malby introduced an amendment striking out the direct tax provision, but subsequently withdrew it.

Senator Lewis returned to the attack with an amendment changing the proposed route through Monroe county and calling for another million of dollars for the purpose. This was lost—yeas, 12; nays, 31.

Later he proposed a year's delay in submitting the question. This, too, was defeated—31 to 14—after which Senator Grady began his extended speech in favor of the bill and spoke for an hour.

He ridiculed the petition presented by Senator Lewis and said that not one of those mentioned had ever been indorsed by popular vote of the people.

"Where is Governor Coler?" asked Senator Elon R. Brown.

"No," replied Mr. Grady. "Even though Coler must fall let the truth of history be preserved."

Senator Grady contended that the state called on both parties to redeem their pledges.

Senator E. R. Brown replied to Senator Grady, saying his speech was simply a diatribe and contained no argument. He said the Republican platform called for canal improvement to be paid for from indirect taxation. He said he was against saddling the state with this great burden when the financial sky showed warning portents.

Senators Raines and Allds opposed the bill, contending that the Republican platform did not call for support of this bill.

The Bostwick bill is a special order on second reading in the assembly today. It has been agreed that the Davis bill passed by the senate shall be substituted and placed on final passage. The prospect is that it will be passed by a safe majority.

Stockholders Favor Expansion.

PHILADELPHIA, March 25.—The stock vote on the proposition to increase the capital of the Pennsylvania Railroad company from $251,700,000 to $400,000,000 and to increase the bonded indebtedness of the company, taken yesterday, resulted in unanimous approval. The shares voted represented 2,892,452, more than 70 per cent of the outstanding stock. The vote was the largest polled on any proposition in the history of the company. The voting legalized the action of the stockholders at the annual meeting March 10, when the increase in capital and bonded indebtedness was authorized.

General Miles in Auburn.

AUBURN, N. Y., March 25.—Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles was the guest last night of the Auburn Business Men's association at its annual banquet. The general was received with the utmost enthusiasm when he arrived in the city. He was escorted to the hall from the home of Mayor Osborne by the Second Separate company state militia. His toast was "Our Country," and the subject was treated along the same lines as in his recent speech in Boston.

Nicaraguan Rebellion Slight Affair.

NEW YORK, March 25.—In reply to a direct cable inquiry to President Zelaya, at Managua, Nicaragua, asking for full details regarding the reported revolution in Nicaragua, the following dispatch has just been received: "On March 19 a small uprising occurred in a part of the department of Chontales, east of Nicaragua. The government has surrounded the insurgents and will soon destroy them. The remainder of the country is completely tranquil."

TALKED, PLAYED AND LUNCHED TO MUSIC

Musical Social Given by the Epworth League of First M. E. Church at the Chapel.

A PROGRAMME OF MUSIC

SOME NOVEL FEATURES PROVED A DECIDED SUCCESS.

When Time for Refreshments Came, Guests Marched by Refreshment Tables, Helping Themselves After the Fashion of the Quick Lunch.

Under the auspices of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church, the social committee, of which Harry Gee is the chairman, arranged a pleasant "musical social" which was held in Vincent chapel Friday evening. The affair attracted a large number of members and friends of the league.

The programme was opened by the singing of "America," after which a quartette consisting of Mrs. Stephen H. Tugwell, Mrs. Thomas MacDonald, Miss Helen M. Shepp and Miss Carrie Mallford sang a selection. This number was followed with a violin solo by Mrs. Frank Smith, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Charles L. Lewis. Then Mrs. Stephen H. Tugwell sang a solo, accompanied by Mrs. Lewis on the piano and Mrs. Frank Smith on the violin.

The second part of the programme comprised a musical game, hidden music and musical refreshments. The first consisted of the hiding of a coin which George A. Horne attempted to find. While he searched about the chapel for the lost piece of silver, Miss Sharp presided at the piano and denoted his distance from the coin by playing loud when Mr. Horne neared it and softly when he was far from it. This was a very amusing part of the programme.

The hidden music game was the guessing of the names of well-known songs, illustrated in various ways. The musical refreshments, the final number, consisted of everyone marching about the room and passing a table upon which refreshments were placed. During the march popular selections were played on the piano.

A unique feature of the affair were the programmes. These were arranged in neat folders and on the title page appeared the photo of some well-known composer. After refreshments were served, the social terminated and everyone voted it to be a decided success.

GAVE NO WARNING.

The Friends of Mrs. Belle DeMott Walked in Unexpectedly.

Miss Edna Thompson and Miss Alice DeMott tendered a surprise to Miss Belle DeMott, of Somerset street, last Friday evening.

Those who were present were: Misses Bessie Titsworth, Ethel Garretson, Iva Dayton, Katherine Mc Loughlin, Nettie Wise, Tillie Uhrhan, Stella Eick, Roberta Fox, Florence Conroy, May Conroy, Addie Giddis, Lizzie Perrine, Nettie Perrine and Edna Thompson; Frank Fletcher, William Giles, Albert Corriel, Edward Clarkson, Steven Kennedy, Bert Sherwin, Ray Lambert, Fred Borrup, Lewis Stelts, Robert Lourner, Harry Hock, Ira Teeter, Edward Texier, Eugene Giddis, Aaron Kipsey and William Kenyon.

THEY WILL WED.

Announcement Made of Betrothal of Miss Nettie Leichtentritt and Nathan M. Samuels.

The announcement of the betrothal of Miss Nettie Leichtentritt, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Leichtentritt, and Nathan M. Samuels, of New York, was celebrated Sunday in a pleasant manner at the home of Miss Leichtentritt on West Front street. A reception was held from 3 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon, during which time there were guests present from New York, Brooklyn, Newark, New Brunswick, Perth Amboy and this city.

The event was a dual one, it also being the eighteenth birthday anniversary of Miss Leichtentritt. The young woman received a wealth of handsome presents, including a diamond pin from her prospective father-in-law. During the afternoon a bountiful collation was served and the social features were much enjoyed.

Miss Leichtentritt has been employed for over three years in the law offices of Assemblyman Newcorn and has a host of friends here. Mr. Samuels was a former resident of Plainfield, but is now associated with his father in business in New York. As yet no date has been set for the wedding, although it is will probably take place during the coming year.

Miss Carrie Weiss, of Regent street, who has been suffering from appendicitis, was removed yesterday to Muhlenberg Hospital. An operation will probably be performed.

LOCAL MILK DEALERS TO SECURE PERMITS

Provisions Regarding Milk Supply According to the New Sanitary Code.

ABOUT THE CONDITIONS

THE PERMITS ARE TO BE APPLIED FOR BEFORE APRIL 1.

Rules Regarding Production and Transportation of Milk—What Must be Done—Many of the Dealers Already Conform.

According to the provisions of the new sanitary code, recently passed by the Plainfield Board of Health, April 1 will see all the local milk dealers with permits from the Board of Health. The provisions of the code require that, by the first of next month, all the dealers in the city shall have made application for a permit to sell milk and filed a list of their customers and sources of supply.

This fact that dealers are obliged to secure permits has caused some comment in certain quarters and has led some people to believe that because the dealers are required to observe certain conditions in their business, it is sufficient reason why the price of milk should be raised from 6 to 8 cents per quart. Through information obtained at the office of the Board of Health, the facts do not seem to warrant such belief as many of the dealers already conform with requirements and will therefore not be affected by the change in the code.

Probably the real reason for the increased price of milk is due to the prevailing high price of feed. Aside from the $2 permit fee imposed by the Board of Health, the only other expense of any importance is that of plenty of elbow grease, soap and water. The Board of Health having the power to keep the dairies and surroundings up to a high standard of efficiency, has determined that this shall be done, believing that the public will support such effort and will welcome the placing of such restrictions upon the milk business as will insure pure milk.

All applications for permits to sell milk must be received by the Board of Health before April 1. They will then be investigated by the members and if the applicant is all right he will be given the permit. In securing a permit the dealer agrees to comply with all the rules and regulations of the Board of Health. The requirements are not stringent, being only such as would appeal to the common sense of anyone. Already many dealers have made applications for permits and in many cases there are a number of dealers who more than live up to the requirements of the board. Those who is not will have to make alterations accordingly.

Briefly, the section of the code referring to milk dealers, says that all persons who sell or deliver milk must secure a permit, the same to cost $2. This permit is issued for one year and may be revoked if in the judgment of the Board any dealer violates the provisions to such an extent as to warrant this action. Each dealer is required to furnish the Board a complete list of customers served and where he obtains his supply of milk, also of any change in source of supply. Utensils used for the collection and transportation of milk must be thoroughly washed with pure water and soap or soda and then sterilized.

It is further required that all milk shall be properly cooled immediately after it is produced and shall be removed from the stable to a separate room. Also no ticket shall be used more than once with the delivery of milk, and all milk bottles must be sterilized before being used the second time. Dealers who deliver milk in a wagon must have their name and the number of their permit painted plainly on both sides of their wagon.

As for the rules and regulations in regard to the production and transportation of milk, it is required that stables shall always be clean and that they shall have tight, dry floors with well strained drops, that cattle shall be groomed and kept clean, that manure shall not be allowed to accumulate in large quantities about stable yards, that only good wholesome food shall be used for cattle. These are the principal rules and regulations and it is agreed that any milkman who is particular about his milk business should be perfectly willing to comply with them.

Directors for Gas Co.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company for the election of directors to serve during the ensuing year will be held at 110 East Front street, Tuesday morning, April 7, at 9 o'clock. The polls will remain open one hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sharp, of Madison avenue, have returned home from a stay at Washington, D. C.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXVI. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 1903. NO. 14

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well as Its Limitations as to Its Authorities."—Madison.

GUESTS GAVE LINEN FOR THE HOSPITAL

Novel Tea and Reception for for Benefit of Muhlenberg Was Held Yesterday.

THEN THERE WAS CASH

EACH GUEST BROUGHT SOMETHING OF USE AT THE HOSPITAL.

Delightful Affair Given by Mrs. Gilford Mayer and Mrs. T. S. Wheeler, at the Home of the Former on Park Avenue.

At the home of Mrs. Gilford Mayer, of Park avenue, a tea and reception was given Tuesday afternoon between the hours of 2 and 6 o'clock for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital. That it was a success is shown in the fact that there were over $100 worth of linen towels and other things contributed towards the hospital and a little over $10 in money was collected. The reception was given by Mrs. Mayer and Mrs. Thomas S. Wheeler.

The entire lower floor of the house was tastefully decorated with yellow daffodils and greens which presented an attractive appearance. The same scheme of decorations were carried out upon the table at which the tea was poured.

It has been the custom in giving teas for the benefit of the hospital to have a silver collection taken but at the tea of yesterday that custom was departed from and instead, contributions in linen ware and other necessary articles used at the hospital were received. The idea took well and the contributions were very large. There were fully a hundred people present but contributions were received from many who were unavoidably detained.

Mrs. Mayer and Mrs. Wheeler were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Walter M. McGee, Mrs. Frank S. Martin, Mrs. N. Pendelton Rogers, Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, Mrs. Frank deL. Hyde, Mrs. Abram G. Hooley, Miss Cocks, Mrs. Otto Arens, Miss Edith Arens, Miss Mary Tweedy, Mrs. Josiah Brown, Mrs. W. E. Lowe, Mrs. Howard Fleming, Mrs. Frank Herring, Mrs. K. L. French and Mrs. J. K. Pendelton. Three members of the first Auxiliary Board of the Hospital, who were members when the hospital first opened in this city, were present and they were Mrs. Mayer, Miss Kenyon and Dr. Martha Stillman.

The young women who assisted in the dining room and who looked after the comfort of the guests were Miss Charlotte Lowe, Miss Lulu Holly, Miss Helen Martin, Miss Marjory Fleming, Miss Marie Finch, Miss Goddard, Miss Helen Brown and Miss Guion.

Last Wagner Recital.

The fourth and last of the series of Wagner musicales was given Tuesday morning at the home of Miss Emilie Schipper, of West Seventh street, by Miss Estelle Neuhaus. The subject was "Gotterdammerung," and its interpretation was equally as charming as the three preceding ones. There was a large and appreciative audience present, and much enthusiasm was evidenced during the musicale.

Fifty Dropped In.

A surprise party was tendered Adam Fritz at his home on Somerset street last Tuesday when fifty friends and relatives dropped in on him unexpectedly. The surprise was arranged in honor of his fifty-second birthday. The evening was pleasantly spent in playing games, dancing and in enjoying a feast which was spread for the guests. Many presentations were made.

Making a Success.

Paul Ackerly, formerly of The Daily Press staff, who has had remarkable success in the cultivation of tobacco in Connecticut, recently purchased a large tract of tobacco land in the town of East Granby, Conn. This is the fourth purchase made by Mr. Ackerly during the past year, aggregating more than 300 acres.

Ensemble Club Recital.

An interesting piano recital was given Tuesday afternoon by the Ensemble Club at the residence of Miss Anna O. Marsh, of Madison avenue. Italian music was discussed and selections from Rosinni and Verdi were rendered.

Well-Known Divine.

Rev. Dr. Paddock, of New York, well-known for his excellent work in the "Red Light" district of the city, will be the preacher at Grace P. E. church, this evening. He is an eloquent preacher.

CYCLIST HURT IN COLLISION

JACOB VOEHL, JR., INJURED IN A CRASH TUESDAY EVENING.

While Riding Without a Light, He Collided With Unknown Wheelman on Summit Avenue.

Jacob Voehl, Jr., the youngest son of Henry Voehl, the baker of Somerset street, was seriously injured last Tuesday in a collision between two bicycles on Summit avenue. He was taken into the house at the corner of Watchung avenue and Summit avenue in an unconscious condition and it was not until strong stimulants were administered that he regained consciousness.

Young Voehl was riding without a light when, in turning the corner of Summit avenue into Watchung, he ran into another man on a bicycle. Voehl was thrown violently to the ground and was injured on the chest. The man with whom he collided was hurt, and his wheel was wrecked but in the excitement he walked off and his name is not known.

Voehl was taken into the house by Sherman Haberle, of Chatham street, and word was sent for his father. Dr. Pitts was called in and he found that the injuries were serious. The young man is resting easier this morning.

ANOTHER PLANT COMING HERE

PLAINFIELD TOOL AND EQUIPMENT COMPANY TO HAVE A FACTORY.

Joseph Loughead Will Head Concern—Has Secured Several Options on Sites.

While not as large as some others which have preceded it, another manufacturing concern is destined for this city. Within a few weeks a company headed by Joseph Loughead, well known in Plainfield as the former superintendent of the Columbia Tool Works on East Fourth street, will open a plant that will employ twenty-five skilled machanics. It will be known as the Plainfield Tool and Equipment Company and the output will consist of a general line of machine tools, special machinery and punch and die work.

Mr. Loughead was in this city, yesterday, and secured options on several desirable locations. He will make a selection inside of a week. Associated with him are E. H. Snider and R. W. Brantwood, Philadelphia men, who are quite well-known in Plainfield manufacturing circles. They have invested $10,000 in the enterprise and intend to branch out as soon as the business is placed on a firm foundation.

SAFE WORKS GROUNDS.

Will Soon Start Putting the Myrtle Avenue Grounds in Condition.

It was stated this morning that the members of the Manganese Steel Safe Works baseball team will shortly begin operations towards putting their baseball field in condition for the coming season. A large grandstand will be erected and the diamond will be treated with a top dressing of a combination of macadam and clay. This makes a fine hard ground, which packs well and can be readily scraped and kept in condition. The grounds are on Myrtle avenue.

The grounds are used by the North Plainfield High School ball team and its first game will be played on April 11 with the Batten High School at Elizabeth.

Old Land Mark.

Jacob Kettelring, of Race street, yesterday afternoon cut down a large cherry tree in the front yard of his home which has stood for almost a hundred years. Years ago it was known about this town for its fine large fruit, but of late years it has borne poor fruit, and as evidences of dry rot began to appear the owner decided to cut it down.

Action As to Gifts.

The monthly meeting of the Plainfield Children's Home Association will be held today, when further action will be taken regarding the erection of an addition to the present home, in accordance with the recent gift of $10,000 from James Clark.

Valuable Property at Auction.

The valuable real estate, known as Nos. 315, 315, 317 and 319 East Front street, will be sold today after noon at 2 o'clock by H. Hand, auctioneer, to the highest bidder. Walter L. Hetfield is attorney for the owner. See ad in this issue.

Officers for Mission Band.

The Young Ladies' Mission Circle of the First M. E. church will meet this evening and elect officers for the coming year.

CITY OFFICIALS SEE 'PHONES AT TRENTON

Inspect Plant in That City as Guests of Company Looking for Local Franchise.

A DINNER FOLLOWED

INTER-STATE TELEPHONE COMPANY HAS A $60,000 BUILDING.

Visitors See the Exchange in Operation and the Company's Representatives Explain the Workings of Its Telephones.

Upon the invitation of the Inter-State Telephone Company, of New Jersey, a number of local officials went to Trenton Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of inspecting the plant of the company established in that city. Those in the party comprised Councilmen J. F. Suckle, R. I. Tolles, Robert L. Lee, Frank D. Randolph and Clarence L. Murphy, Chief P. S. Kiely, Andrew McCardell and a representative of The Daily Press. The party was escorted to Trenton by H. M. Coulter, a special agent for the Central New Jersey Telephone Company, the one applying for a franchise to operate in Plainfield.

Upon reaching Trenton the party was taken at once to the exchange of the telephone company, where a close inspection of the plant and system was made. The company is comfortably quartered in a $60,000 building and it was the opinion of those present that the plant is one of the most complete in operation. Mayor Katzenbach, of Trenton, met the party and solely from the standpoint of a public spirited citizen explained the benefits the company had been to Trenton.

The building is a three story and basement structure and is wholly occupied for the telephone business. The system in many respects is similar to the Bell system, but there are some changes. The telephone is not operated with a crank, the "central" being called simply by removing the receiver from the hook. Instead of the 'phone being supplied with batteries, this apparatus is at the "exchange" in storage battery form. The wall instrument used is about half the size of the one in use in this city. One advantage claimed is that if a party should leave his 'phone without hanging up the receiver there is a continuous musical sound in the receiver until the party returns and hangs it on the hook.

The entire equipment of the "exchange" is first-class and evidently no expense has been spared in making it a model plant. On the trip through the building the party was accompanied by C. W. Wright, auditor; Bruce Bedford, superintendent of construction, and B. C. Groh, electrical engineer, who explained in detail the working of the system.

After the inspection, Mayor N. H. Smalley, Samuel Townsend, W. C. Smith and H. S. Taylor, who were in Trenton on other business, called at the building and they, too, were shown through.

The party was then escorted to a local restaurant, where dinner was served and the various features of the telephone system were discussed. The company claims to be rapidly gaining ground in various parts of the State and it also has communication with Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Wilmington. While at the "exchange," members of the party were given an opportunity to talk to Camden. The courtesy shown by the Trenton officials was appreciated and they were thanked cordially.

HEAVY FINE.

For Woman Who Ran Disorderly House and Other Occupants.

The hearing of Eva Carter, who was arrested with two others Monday night charged with keeping a disorderly house on Race street, took place last evening before Recorder Dood in the borough court. The court scored the woman and Walter Britton and Maria Matthews who were also arrested. They were fined $20 each.

Fritz Bectle, who was arrested on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, was paroled in the custody of his counsel, Francis J. Stats.

In Justice Mosher's Court.

Summons have been issued from Justice Mosher's court in the contempt case of Wilkoff against Hand. They are returnable April 7.

—One hundred barrels of fancy seed potatoes just received at Nevius Brothers. Lot includes Maine Rose, Beauty of Hebron, Green Mountain and Early Rush. 2m.

ARMORY BILL SEEMS DOOMED

Brief Hearing Set for This Afternoon on the Annexation Law "Repealer."

ACTIVITY AT TRENTON

Senator Cross Reports City Armory Bill, Despite Objections of His Committee—Essex Armory Bill's Defeat Presages Fate of Other—Leavitt Working for Repealer.

Trenton, April 1—There seems little chance that the Plainfield armory bill will be passed by the State Senate this term. It was sent over to the Senate Monday night after having passed through the House. Senator Cross, to whose committee the bill was referred, reported back to the Senate this morning against the protest of the other members of the committee. It may come up for a vote this afternoon.

A general feeling exists that the bill will not pass the Senate, particularly as the Senate this morning voted down the bill which appropriated $125,000 for the Essex Troop armory at Newark.

Prominent citizens of both Plainfield and North Plainfield are in evidence here today. An attempt was made yesterday to rush the "repealer" to the annexation act through without a hearing. So much pressure was brought to bear that Assemblyman Leavitt, of Mercer, who is chairman of the committee to which it was referred, has reluctantly granted a brief hearing which will take place this afternoon. Assemblyman Leavitt is a supporter of State Senator Hutchinson and is following the latter's orders in attempting to rush the bill through the House. Assemblyman Newcorn is making a vigorous fight to defeat it. The fate of the "repealer" is in doubt. It may be reported back to this House this afternoon or evening.

BOUGHT OUT.

Patterson Brothers, Tobacconists Here for Thirty-Three Years, Dispose of Their Prosperous Business.

Papers were signed yesterday whereby the wholesale and retail tobacco business, conducted on West Front street by Patterson Brothers for the last thirty-three years, becomes the property of John R. Miller & Son, of Newark. The entire trade and good will of the old concern goes to the new firm. The business is now more prosperous than ever before since the firm was organized.

It is understood that the new firm will not continue the retail business but will transfer the stock to its Newark establishment and direct operations from there. Bert Boe, who has been in the employ of Patterson Brothers, will have charge of the business of the new firm in this section.

REMEMBERED THE DAY.

April Fool's Day Observed at Meeting of Duplicate Whist Club.

Miss Elizabeth Smalley, of Craig place, entertained the Duplicate Whist Club at her home last evening. After the regular play there was a social time and refreshments and then followed several practical jokes in keeping with April 1. At midnight a members of the club began playing an attractive two-step and just as the women were ready for the dance, the men disappeared, only to re-appear and "April fool" the fair sex.

Into New Enterprise.

John S. Johnston who, for some time past has been in charge of the carpet department at Woodall & Martin's store, has resigned his position to form a partnership with Theodore J. Shirley in the carpet and window shade business. The partnership was formed yesterday, and beginning May 1 the firm will engage in business in the corner store of the Babcock building, formerly used by Woodall & Martin as a carpet department.

Funeral of Mrs. Cuff.

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Henrietta Cuff were held from the residence of James Babbitt, yesterday afternoon. They were in charge of Rev. J. W. Mitchell, of this city, and Rev. Zebedee Mason, of Centralia, Va. Interment was made in Evergreen cemetery.

The baseball team of the City High School will play the Pingry School team at Elizabeth, Saturday.

CHURCH CHOIR GIVES ITS SECOND MUSICALE

A Large Audience Present at First Presbyterian Church to Hear It Rendered.

ENJOYED PROGRAMME

QUARTETTE CHOIR ASSISTED BY MISS AIMEE LOUISE EMMONS.

Also Two Members of the European Glee Club—The Selections Were Well Rendered and the Audience Was Well Pleased.

Another large audience greeted the quartette choir of the First Presbyterian church at its second private musicale, last Tuesday. The programme was, if anything, better than its predecessor. The members of the organization appearing were Miss S. Etta Raybert, soprano; Mrs. Stephen H. Tugwell, contralto; Elmer D. Cutting, tenor, and Sydney B Titsworth, baritone. For last evening they were assisted by Miss Elsie R. Giles, soprano; Miss Jessie Haynes, contralto; Max Honeyman, second tenor; R. Wilson Derby, bass, the latter two of the European Glee Club, and Miss Aimee Louise Emmons, elocutionist. Clifford A. Brieder acted as conductor and his work was particularly effective.

The opening selection was given by the Glee Club, "Ave Marie," and was rendered in the usual exact tempo and pleasing tones which has made the quartette popular. "At the Sign of the Cleft Heart," a recitation, by Miss Emmons, followed and was longly applauded. It is one of the best selections in her wide repertoire and affords her an opportunity to display the elocutionary talent she possesses.

Bennett's "Come, Live With Me" was given by the entire chorus and proved to be one of the most pleasing numbers of the evening. The voices blended admirably. Mr. Cutting followed with an excellently rendered solo, "My Ladies' Bower." A feature of the programme was a solo by Miss Raybert, "The Image of the Rose," assisted by the Glee Club. While she gave the solo part, the club continued a crooning accompaniment which was quite novel. Mrs. Tugwell was seen at her best in Thomas' "A Summer Night." The first part closed with Barnby's "Sweet and Low" by the chorus.

Part second consisted of Macy's "Pickaninny Lullaby" by the Glee Club, Zardo's "To the Angels" by Miss Raybert, Abt's "The Twilight Fast is Falling" by Mr. Tugwell assisted by the Glee Club, a monologue, "The Sweet Girl Graduate," by Miss Emmons, a solo, "Vulcan's Song" by Mr. Derby and Pinsuti's "Good Night, Good Night, Beloved" by the chorus.

The proceeds from the collection were quite large and will be added to the music fund. Those who acted as ushers, last evening, were Henry B. Drake, Harry Williams, Edward Burroughs, John Burroughs and Herbert DeBois.

Called Home by Illness.

Owing to the sudden illness of her father, Miss Abbie Hanna, one of the teachers in the North Plainfield High School, has been obliged to give up her duties there temporarily. She has gone to her home in New York State and during her absence the regular substitute is taking her place.

Company K's Dance.

A reception and dance will be given at the Casino, Wednesday evening, April 15, under the auspices of Company K. The committee in charge consists of George L. Apgar, Clarence Bilyea, Nelson R. Peterson, J. W. Turner, J. L. Niles. Music will be furnished by Westervelt.

Gone to Conference.

Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, Rev. John McMurray, Rev. R. L. Earp, Rev. Dr. W. C. Nelson, together with a number of local Methodists, left this morning for Newark where they will attend the session of the Newark Conference. The conference will continue until Monday.

Needed Steps to be Built.

Work will be started in a few days upon the erection of a pair of stone steps at the Park avenue approach to the depot. The steps will lead from the stone walk to the platform on a level with the railroad tracks.

Dunellen Engagement.

Many Plainfielders will be interested in the announcement of the engagement of Miss Virgie Tanison and John Penner, both of Dunellen.

THE GUESTS GAME AS FADS

A NOVEL SOCIAL HELD AT THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Arranged by the Women's Association and Christian Endeavor Society of the Church.

A "fad" social was held last Tuesday at the Congregational church which proved to be a most enjoyable affair. The social was given by the Woman's Association of the church, assisted by the members of the Christian Endeavor Society social committee.

The reception room of the church was arranged with palms and potted plants which gave to the rooms a most hospitable appearance. Each person who attended the social wore some article of clothing which represented some fad such as golf, rowing, tennis, burnt wood work, or embroidery. The plan was a novel one and was very well carried out.

During the evening Mrs. Lance sang several very pleasing solos and after a pleasant evening had been spent in playing games, refreshments were served by the committee which consisted of Mrs. J. V. Beekman, Mrs. F. A. Weeks, of the Women's Association, and Miss Marion Woodcock, of the social committee of the Christian Endeavor Society.

FORTUNE LEFT IN GERMANY

HENRY NISCHWITZ COMES INTO PART OF HIS FATHER'S ESTATE.

The Latter Died in Germany, and Left Fortune to His Three Sons.

Through the recent death of his father, Henry Nischwitz, the senior partner of the firm of Henry Nischwitz, grain dealers, at Watchung avenue, has been notified that he has been left a good sized fortune in Germany. Just how much the fortune amounts to is not known but it is believed to be quite large.

The death of John Nischwitz, the father of the above man, occurred at his home in Weinheim, Germany, several months ago. Recently the will has been opened for probate and it was found that the property left by the deceased is to be divided among three sons. The sons are Jacob, Philip and Henry, who resides in this city. A fourth son died recently.

Both the other sons are living in Germany and the will provides that they are to have the property, which consists of a large estate there and to Henry is to be given all the money, outstanding accounts and other negotiable property.

His attorneys advised a trip to Germany pending the settlement of the estate but he said yesterday that he thought he would remain right here and let his attorneys there settle the matter.

Asked if the sudden receipt of such a large amount as the estate is supposed to be worth would affect his business in this city he said that he would remain here.

MORE BUILDING.

New Factory Building and Enlargement of a Restaurant.

The restaurant of Thomas Timbo on North avenue is to be enlarged. It is to have an addition 15x15x40 feet built on to the rear which will be used to enlarge the kitchen. The contracting mason is W. H. Pangborn and the carpenter, Charles Rogers. A building permit was granted in the office of Building Inspector T. O. Doane, Friday, for the change.

A permit was granted to A. J. Swanson, to erect a large factory on North avenue in the eastern end of the town. The factory will be 60x80x24 feet and the framework will be of iron. It will be on same lot as old oil cloth factory.

Inspected Passaic Schools.

By special invitation of the school authorities of Passaic, Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, of the City Schools, spent yesterday inspecting the school system of Passaic. Among the prominent educators of the party are Dr. Green, of the State Normal School, State Superintendent of Schools Baxter, and Dr. Edson, assistant superintendent of schools of New York City.

In Justice Hand's Court.

The following summons have been issued from Justice Hand's court, all on contract: Tallman against Mundy, same against Edmonds, same against Crouse, same against Yetman, all returnable Monday; Bowers against Sherman, same against Angerbauer, returnable Monday; Griffin against Theis, same against Wiersenga, returnable Thursday.

MASONS OF ANCHOR LODGE PLAY HOSTS

Entertained Brethern From This City and Brooklyn in a Pleasant Fashion.

GRAND OFFICERS THERE

LOVING CUP TO ANCHOR'S RETIRING TREASURER, J. E. TURRILL.

After An Early Communication, There Came a Programme and a Collation for the Visiting Masons That Were Present.

Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., acted as host, last Tuesday, for large delegations of Masonic brethern, following an early communication. Representatives were present from Amor Lodge, No. 608, of New York; Bedford Lodge, No. 574, of Brooklyn; Jerusalem Lodge, Jerusalem Chapter and Trinity Commandery, of this city. In addition there attended the following grand officers: Right Worshipful Stephen D. Affleck, Right Worshipful Edward W. Mascord, Right Worshipful William D. Wolfskeil and Right Worshipful Walter Chandler.

A feature of the affair was the presentation of a beautiful silver loving cup to Anchor's retiring treasurer, James E. Turrill, who served in that capacity for fifteen consecutive years. He responded with an appropriate address.

The entertainment was prepared by a committee consisting of William N. Runyon, chairman, W. E. MacClymont, Elmer E. Runyon, Theodore Day and A. N. Randolph. It consisted of vocal and instrumental selections of a high order. On completion of the programme, an elaborate collation was served by Caterer W. W. Warnock.

The committee on reception consisted of Roger F. Murray, W. H. Cock, J. D. James, Emil Woltmann and S. H. Tugwell.

ARTIST OF ABILITY.

Is Richard Stoelzer, Who is to Appear at the Casino Tuesday.

Richard Stoelzer, manager of the Mozart Symphony Club, of New York, who will appear at the Casino on Tuesday, April 7, is a well known artist, born in Leipzig, Germany, and is a graduate of the Conservatory of that name. Very few musicians graduated with more marked ability than he.

Herr Stoelzer came to America to accept one of the very important engagements offered, since which time he has performed valuable services under Thomas, Arditi, Damrosch and Seidl. For many years Herr Stoelzer was principal soloist of the Boston Symphony Orchestral Club, which position he only recently resigned to become interested in the Mozart Symphony Club.

He is an ardent worker in the musical world, admired for the excellent technique, shading and expression he displays on that most difficult of instruments, the viola d'amour. See advertisement.

GIFTS OF 1904.

Juniors of City High School Dispose of Proceeds of Entertainment.

At a meeting of the class of 1904 of the city High School held yesterday, it was decided to give $25 of the amount netted at the recent class entertainment, "Cranford Dames" to the High School paper, The Oracle. The remainder of the proceeds, nearly $25, will be devoted to the purchase of art works to adorn the assembly hall of the High School. A committee consisting of Miss Frances Van Deventer and Miss Mary Dunham has been appointed to select the subject for the art work. This will be presented to the school at Easter.

FUNERAL OF MRS. SMITH.

The Services Yesterday Conducted by a Former Plainfield Pastor.

The funeral of Mrs. Nellie Udell Smith, wife of Clarence W. Smith, took place yesterday at 10 o'clock from the residence of Mrs. Charles L. Smith, of Belvidere avenue. The floral display was very elaborate and the services, which were conducted by Rev. J. W. Richardson, of Stamford, Conn., formerly pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, were very impressive. Two hymns were sung during the services by G. Morgan Stricklett which were "Abide With Me" and "O Eyes That Were Weary."

The interment will be in Fairmount cemetery, Newark, this afternoon.

JAMES R. GARFIELD.

Son of Former President Appointed Commissioner of Corporations by Mr. Roosevelt.

James R. Garfield, who is to be commissioner of corporations in the new department of commerce and labor, is the second son of the late President Garfield, and is a popular lawyer. At present he is a member of the civil service commission. Mr. Garfield resembles his father very much, and like the late president, he won his way by sheer force of ability. In 1899 he was married to Miss Helen Newell, of Chicago, daughter of the late president of the Lake Shore road.

For some time the president has had him under consideration in connection with the position of commissioner of corporations, which is regarded as second only to the new secretary in importance and power in the new department. The law provides that the commissioner shall have authority to make, under direction of the secretary, "diligent investigation into the organization, conduct and management of the business of any corporation, joint stock company or corporate combination engaged in commerce among the several state and with foreign nations, excepting common carriers subject to 'An act to regulate commerce,' approved February 4, 1887, and to gather such information and data as will enable the president of the United States to make recommendations to congress for legislation for the regulation of such commerce and to report such data to the president from time to time as he shall require."

JAMES R. GARFIELD.
(Commissioner of Corporations in Department of Commerce.)

It also will be the duty of the commissioner of corporations to gather, compile and publish careful information concerning corporations doing business in the United States and engaged in interstate or foreign commerce, including corporations engaged in insurance.

Several men had been under consideration by the president for the position of commissioner of corporations, including Prof. Jenks, of Cornell, but it was the desire of both the president and Secretary Cortelyou that Mr. Garfield take the place. He has accepted the proffer of the commissionership and will enter upon his new duties as soon as his appointment has been confirmed by the senate. The salary of the commissioner of corporations is $5,000 a year.

EMPEROR OF CHINA.

He Has Very Little to Do with Conducting the Affairs of His Wonderful Country.

The emperor of China is Tung-Chih, reigning under the style of Kwangsu. He was born in 1872.

He was chosen by the imperial family to succeed his cousin, who died without naming a successor, in 1875, and, until 1889, his aunt, the empress dowager, acted as regent, as she had done previously during the long minority of his predecessor, who was her son.

THE EMPEROR OF CHINA.
(From the Only Authentic Picture Ever Brought to Europe.)

On Sept. 22, 1898, in consequence of the emperor's action in decreeing radical reforms, he was sequestered, and the empress dowager resumed the active direction of affairs.

Under all write the plot was hatched to rid the country of foreigners, and in the summer of 1900 the legations in Pekin were attacked and the foreign settlements in Tientsin were bombarded for weeks.

The situation was relieved at its most critical moment by the arrival of an allied army, dispatched by all, or nearly all, the treaty powers. Tientsin and Pekin were captured. The imperial court fled and remained in voluntary exile until early in 1902.

The emperor and empress are now in Pekin, but the times in China continue to be more or less troublous for the rulers of the great empire.

MISTAKES GIRLS MAKE.

The Greatest Is Telling Their Troubles to Other Girls.

"What is the greatest mistake girls make, in your opinion?" asked little Miss Debutante.

"Telling their troubles to other girls," responded Mrs. Worldlywise promptly. "Lord help the innocent who does that! The number of women who cannot keep a secret is positively appalling. The shortness of women's friendships is also appalling. Now, while there are women who will keep secrets as long as a friendship lasts, there are practically none who will keep any kind of a secret after it is all over. Therefore, when you have confided in a woman, either don't quarrel with her or else resign yourself to have your secrets public property."

"I shall be pretty careful," was Miss Debutante's comment. "If you don't mind pouring out another cup of tea for me," continued Mrs. Worldlywise, "I can continue on this subject for a good hour, for certainly the way of the average girl is simply peppered with mistakes—mistakes for which she has to atone very heavily at times. If there is anything I despise, it is the girl 'rusher,' for instance, the politic girl 'rusher.' She discovers that you give little Sunday evening affairs, for example, or that you have a lot of men friends. That settles it. She becomes introduced to you, she 'dears' you and hangs around you until you invite her, then she haunts your house morning, noon and night until she has annexed all your desirable friends, principally those of the male sex. When your parties become fewer or else ancient history, she adjourns to another woman's house and does the same thing over again. Then there is the intense sort of girl. She writes you interminable letters, wondering why you don't call and begging you to ring her up on the telephone and say whether she has hurt your feelings. Oh, why will a girl have the interminable letter craze either with women, or, worse still, with men? Oh, the precious time wasted, the tears spent over them, the midnight oil burned! And if girls only knew the contempt men have for the letter writing fiend! Such an awful bore she becomes!

INTERMINABLE LETTERS.

"Being silent and talking about one's petty affairs is another ailment common to girls; being stupid or personal in their conversation when they are invited out is another. How can they help it? Why, you're not invited out to dinner, for instance, to make a clean of yourself and simply guzzle food. Do as a clever friend of mine did. She kept a little book in which she wrote every bright thing she heard, and she always had an anecdote, a joke or some witty saying ready. That girl never had to angle for invitations.

"One of the most heinous faults, though, is neglecting little courtesies, particularly notes and such. I know of a girl who lost the best friend she had simply by neglecting to thank her for a favor. When a woman puts herself out for you, the least you can do is to thank her. Girls who are careless in this respect may make friends, but they never keep them. A thoughtful little note, a mere line or two, means so much.

"One of the silliest things girls do with men is to lose their temper. I think nearly all the unhappiness between men and girls arises from this one cause. Always remember that it takes two to make a disagreement, and it never pays to lose your temper. If he has been inconsiderate, either pass it over in silence, be good natured about it or else drop his acquaintance entirely. Don't always be looking for offense. That is the trouble with girls—they are always imagining things which men don't even dream of, for men take a large view of things. They are not all the time looking for little snags. If you want men friends, be good natured—dignified, of course, but good natured. Don't nag and don't be cunning. Be sure the favor they are trying to injure your feelings. I think that is about all I have to say, but perhaps it can help you," Mrs. Worldlywise remarked dryly as she rose and put on her gloves.

MAUD ROBINSON.

To Tax Old Maids and Bachelors.

A bill has been introduced into the New York legislature providing for a tax on old maids and bachelors, the proceeds to go to the support of foundling asylums. This is not fair. Women may not pop the question, and when a woman remains single she is entitled to the benefit of the doubt whether or not it is her own fault.

WHAT WOMEN CAN DO.

Here Are Two Who Have Proper Physical Development.

Things one woman has done may at any time be done by another woman. Think on that proposition. Physical development is at present neglected among women to the extent of a positive sin, a sin against their beautiful bodies. Physical development is what the sex needs badly. How strong and splendid and able to take care of itself the feminine body is when properly trained you may know from the cases of a little girl and a young woman I shall tell you of. These stories will demonstrate to you what you feel in your bones already—that the alleged weakness and cowardice of woman are not really natural at all, but an artificial growth upon our civilization.

First there is Bertha Eloise Grant, cow girl of Arizona. It has been said that no cowboy rough rider in Arizona is the equal of this fourteen-year-old girl. That is probably stretching things, but she is certainly as skillful and fearless a rider as any man among the world's leading horse heroes, the cowboys.

Physically that female child is the most happy and fortunate who has no women over her to constantly repress her natural physical activity and for ever and ever keep nagging her and telling her little girls must not run, jump and climb trees or do this, that or the other because—heaven help us!—isn't "nice" for little girls to do these things. Oh, the sins mothers and grandmothers and aunts will have to answer for because of their stunting of the physical development of little girls! They have done it centuries until the most stupid, helpless, ignorant human creature in civilization is the middle aged and elderly woman. Now let the stunting be stopped for good and all.

THE COW GIRL.

That a splendid physical development in a woman is entirely compatible with purity of thought and modesty is proved by the brave cow girl, Bertha Grant. Wherever she is known she is mentioned in terms of admiration and respect, yet this girl has been riding astride in a divided skirt since she was old enough to sit upon a horse, and s knows no other way. She says she does not see how it is possible to sit a horse any other way than upon the cross saddle.

"If I were riding in a big city, I should do it just the same," she says. "I would imagine I was going to fall off all the time if I rode a sidesaddle."

"Broncho buster?" Oh, yes. She has never yet found the range horse that she could not master. The cowboys, whose pet she is, taught her horse breaking, and now she can do it with the best of them. Then, too, her admiring, devoted father has been her constant companion from her childhood. The broncho has a bad name for stupidity, treachery and obstinacy, but Bertha Grant says:

"Bronchos are hard to manage, but after you have them trained they are nearly as intelligent as a man. Once they know their master, he can do anything with them."

The hardly knows which to be more enthusiastic over, this Arizona girl horse trainer or that Maine woodswoman, Mrs. Freese. Her camping ground is the region of the headwaters of the Penobscot, with which she is probably more familiar than any other person living. She has absolute control over her nerves, never loses her head and is a noted hunter of game, large and small. She is a fine wing shot. She is rather slender in figure, but perfectly strong and lithe, and the gain this splendid physique, mark you, by active outdoor life, not drudging, stooping over the soil, nose to the ground, but by long tramps and canoe trips. She was born with the woods love in her blood. No narrowing, stunting female pruning could starve it out of her. Now she makes her enthusiasm pay by conducting hunting and tourist parties through her beloved haunts in forest and lake. She has about 1,500 registered and licensed guides, and of these Mrs. Freese is one of the most skillful as well as noted. Her nearest hunting ground is fourteen miles from her home, and by canoe she goes to it.

In the heart of the forest she has a winter lodge of logs. There she goes upon snowshoes and camps when the woods longing surges over her soul in cold weather. At these times she cuts holes in the ice of the Penobscot waters and catches fish. All this, bear in mind, without neglecting her household duties. So men need not be afraid of the physically new woman.

ALICE ZIMMERMAN.

An Editor's Views on Home Gardening

DON'T you think our readers would like something about spring garden work and flower planting?" asked the contributor, bitterly, of Spinnell.

"Yes," answered the editor, with some enthusiasm. "Some of my friends have already begun. They have a cold frame with flower and vegetable seeds planted in it. In this these spread and get large enough, they will be transplanted to the open ground and—go on and write. Tell ladies first to see that all the rubbish is cleared up from their grounds, especially in back yards. Some back yards I know of are a holy terror, with ashes, old shoes and bones and boards.

"Tell our ladies that if they have only the tiniest bit of ground, no bigger than a blanket, to have it covered with brilliant green grass. A grass plot in a very small yard looks better than a mingled up mass of flowers without the grass. In such case a rosebush or two may be set in a corner and other flowers, a few choice ones, be grown in pots. Large pots full of steadily blooming, perfectly cared for flowers dotted around the edge of the central grass plot will redeem the poorest, shabbiest little home from ugliness."

The editor warmed up to his theme. He leaned back and thought. "By the way," he began again, "here in this English magazine is a picture you may like. Suppose you have it copied to illustrate what I call decorated gateways. Wherever there are those old fashioned gate entrances to yards they can be made objects of artistic beauty. These are hardy running vines which drape everything with graceful masses of flower and foliage. One of the best of these is the perpetually blooming honeysuckle. A wooden arch or frame may be built up over the gate without trouble or expense. A woman can make it. Why, I could do it myself! Then plant beside each gate pillar an evergreen honeysuckle, or, say, a honeysuckle one side and a clematis the other, and let them twine in a true lovers' knot, like the rose and the brier in 'Villikens and Dinah.'"

"Anything else?" asked the contributor.

"It is a subject most interesting," continued the editor, "and I have my ideas about it, though I don't say much. Now, I for one, think village homes and country homes would be far handsomer with no fences at all around them. In New England are miles and miles of farms with scarcely a fence to be seen from the highway, and the effect is beautiful, giving a splendid expanse to the landscape. In villages, where lots and plots must be divided, it adds greatly to the sightliness of a street to have the line between them marked by a row of flowers or a very low hedge. Next door neighbor ladies do not have their differences any more, as they used to, I am told, since the advent of the new woman, so they can unite on the style of plant, flower or hedge that shall most attractively define the line between lots, and together they can keep that line beautiful. Different colored phloxes are among the most effective for borders, or where fences cannot be done away let them be covered with flowering vines. Morning glories are among the prettiest and most graceful, morning glories mixed with their exquisite shadings of red, white, purple and blue and striped. These, for the most unsightly old sheds and outbuildings can be completely hidden with ivy and others of nature's beautifiers. There is no artist like nature."

DECORATED GATEWAY.

"Anything more?"

"Why, yes, now you ask me. I notice throughout the country generally women are interested in village improvement, in cleaning up and making sightly neglected alleys and bare, ugly streets and houses. The same spirit is so much needed in farm districts as in villages to keep down weeds along roadsides and to plant shade trees and tend them till they are grown. All this belongs to the subject of making home beautiful, for one's whole neighborhood is his home, with civic rights to attend to these matters, I am sure. In some places already they have obtained from municipal authorities the right to turn vacant lots into summer gardens for school children."

"Really you know more than I do of the subject," said the contributor.

"Young woman," replied the editor, with dignity, "an editor needs to know everything."

JANE STORY.

ACCESSORIES OF DRESS.

Deep Berthas of Lace—Fashionable Evening Skirts.

Some of the new galloons and embroideries, besides being obtainable in the straight bands now so fashionable, have vandykes and lozenge shaped motifs which can be disconnected and employed in many useful ways. Entire gowns of panne decorated with lace are among the spring models, and for morning and country wear there are bolero costumes of serge and cheviot ornamented with braid or Russian galloon.

Skirts with a hip yoke are much favored, and these certainly lengthen the figure. Many evening skirts have the yoke of lace or entirely covered with tucks, and a tulle skirt nearly covered with puffs and frills is very smart made this way.

The deep bertha or frill of lace is very modish on evening bodices, and when the decolletage is very low and the frill deep there is quite a bolero effect.

BLOUSE OF POINT D'ESPRIT AND SILK.

Shirt waist dresses will be worn a great deal this summer, and they will comprise a great variety of material, from gingham to silk.

The new skirts are made with kilted effects and folds of the goods smartly stitched. The majority of the trimmings are placed perpendicularly to *give the long, flowing lines now consid*ered so necessary; still, there are a few new models which show horizontal, or, rather, sloping, effects. These consist of bands of shirrings or embroidery.

So far there are few actual novelties in sleeves, but slight modifications in cuffs or wristbands are sufficient to give an air of novelty.

The illustration shows a blouse of point d'esprit and silk.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

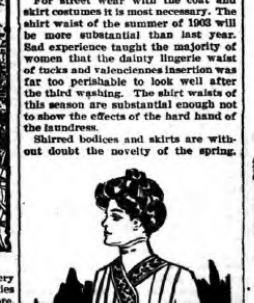
SHIRT WAISTS.

The Wash Waist Is Now Being Made of Serviceable Materials.

In spite of many adverse rumors the separate waist still continues to hold its own.

For street wear with the cost and skirt costumes it is most necessary. The shirt waist of the summer of 1903 will be more substantial than last year. Sad experience taught the majority of women that the dainty lingerie waist of tucks and valenciennes insertion was far too perishable to look well after the third washing. The shirt waists of this season are substantial enough not to show the effects of the hard hand of the laundress.

Shirred bodices and skirts are without doubt the novelty of the spring.



CASHMERE BLOUSE.

and nothing can be prettier than a gown of veiling made in this manner, the deep shirring around the shoulders of the waist being outlined with silk fringe.

Hats, particularly the dressy ones, are flatter than ever, the sole beauty consisting in the outline and in the tuckings and shirrings which cover the frame.

Sleeves continue to grow fuller at the cuffs, with no perceptible change at the tops.

The favorite material is doubtless white linen either made up plain or embellished by heavy linen embroidery. The sleeves, slightly full at the top, graduate into puffs at the wrist.

The collars worn are of stitched linen or of pique in the popular stock and four-in-hand effect.

The illustration shows a cashmere blouse which is useful for cold days during the spring and summer.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE PREVAILING MODES.

Fawn and Gray Tones Smart—New Cape Ruches Very Elaborate.

Fawn and pearl gray tones are even more popular than ever this spring.

The goods for dressy wear are of smooth surface, while those employed for the little walking costumes are of rough cheviot or Scotch materials.

The flat stoles of feathers which are seen in the shops at present will not retain their popularity, for they are utterly unsatisfactory as wraps and too flat and hard to be either graceful or becoming. This summer we shall see elaborate editions of the cape ruffle in velvet or lace and chiffon and in glace silk with tiny borders of feathers or chenille.

SMART STREET COSTUME.

For those who dress their hair high and adopt the present mode of flat shoulders something fussy round the neck is absolutely necessary. The new hats with spreading brims in front also make the broad ruffle indispensable.

The cut shows a smart street costume of the fashionable shades of fawn cloth.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

NEW HATS AND FRILLS.

White Silk and Satin Shapes—The New Capes.

Many of the new hats are of the picture order, but have flat crowns, and are trimmed tolerably low with an osprey or aigret in front.

The new shapes are shown in silk or satin incrusted with ivory motifs or ecru lace and bound with velvet. Two large choux of satin or two feather pompons are usually placed in front, but feathers droop on the sides of some and large velvet lilies or orchids are wreathed on others.

There are some figures to whom the new capes or pelerines are becoming, but for the average woman they are in nowise desirable, as they add to the width and detract from the height. Lace will be much used on spring gowns, and the newest motifs and appliqué designs show a combination of guipure passementerie and embroidery, or chine or pompadour medallions sometimes take the place of the embroidery.

GOWN OF WHITE NUN'S VEILING.

Very smart arrangements of jet in tarnished with black chiffon characterize the basic idea of these gowns. Pretty echos of black chiffon are trimmed with narrow black velvet bows, and these have tiny paste buckles in the center of each bow.

Nun's veiling is a material very much in fashion just now, especially in the paler shades.

The cut shows a gown of this material in white. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Handmade Philosophy.

Ingenuousness in a pretty girl is inquisitiveness to a homely one.

Some people show a friendly interest in our affairs, while others are trying to attend to our business.

Some people seem to delight in learning how we are getting along and others want to know too much.

Yet they all ask the same questions. —Chicago Tribune.

Keeping Lent.

The One Man—What is your wife giving up during Lent?

The Other Man (who has married a rich old woman)—Not a cent more than usual.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

MARBLE SLAB BENDS.

The Strange Action of an Old Monument in a Cemetery Near Washington, D. C.

Washington scientists are much interested in a monument in Rock Creek cemetery which promises to become famous all over the world. The unique feature is that of a marble slab bending under the action of its own weight, as if it were a thin like sealing wax. Marble is one of the principle rocks composing the crust of the earth, and has generally been regarded as a hard solid.

But the work of the scientists prove that the slab in Rock Creek is in reality a stick fluid, yielding slowly and changing its form under its own weight. The inscription on the monument indicates that it was placed in position about 1850. In the course of the half century it has sagged in the middle to the extent of over three inches, and thus assumed the curve shown in the figure. The slab is 70 inches long and about 35 inches wide and two inches thick. It is supported on the corners on four posts, and was evidently quite straight when placed in position many years ago. The bending of the slab has been extremely slow, indicating that marble is the most viscous of all known fluids.

THE SLAB THAT BENDS.
(Natural Freak to Be Seen in a Washington Cemetery.)

Scientists discovered about 40 years ago that the glaciers, which develop by the accumulation of ice and snow on high mountains, are in reality moving rivers of ice which slowly flow down the mountains under their own weight, like stiff lava from a volcano.

The glaciers advance sometimes at the rate of only a few feet per year. This is due to the fact that ice is almost a solid, its viscousity being very great.

Prof. James Thomson, of Glasgow, the famous brother of Lord Kelvin, first investigated the molecular behavior of ice.

The Washington scientist who has been studying the marble slab in Rock Creek cemetery now thinks that there may be extensive layers of the earth's crust composed of marble and similar rocks, which yield slowly and change their form under pressure as true fluids.

This indicates that the crust of the earth bends slowly and constantly and adjusts itself to the state of rotation of the earth. In the light of this new an explanation is found for many facts connected with the upheaval and settling of the mountains, and other geological phenomena.

It is thought that the viscousity of marble will prove to be greater than that of any other known fluid. Later investigations may bring to light other crystalline rocks of a fluid character, but so far the extraordinary slab in Rock Creek cemetery stands unique. Its bending is so slow that it is called secular, no measureable change taking place inside of several years.

NEW ARCTIC LEADER.

Anthony Fiala, Who Will Command Ziegler Expedition, Is a Courageous Man.

Great interest attaches to the personality of Anthony Fiala, the young New York photographer who has been selected by William H. Ziegler to command his next expedition in search of the north pole. The members of the Baldwin expedition commented freely on the ability shown by Mr. Fiala to withstand the cold and his recklessness in taking risks to secure good photographic results. He is a silent and somewhat reserved man and is possessed of considerable executive ability. He declines to give any idea as to his plans, simply stating that he will "do as he thinks best."

ANTHONY FIALA.
(Leader of the Next Ziegler Expedition to the Arctic Regions.)

Water in Bride's Outfit.

Among the articles comprising a bride's outfit in the Japanese island of Oshima is a big tub of drinking water. Water is very scarce in the island, and every prudent bride tries to have a supply on hand.

LOVE FOUND A WAY.

How Cupid Tricked Chicago's Marriage License Clerk.

When Antonio Couldn't Marry His Little Sweetheart Without Guardian's Consent, He Appointed Himself Guardian.

Cupid tricked the law, overwhelmed one lover and brought delight to another when he found a way the other day by which a man of 24 could legally marry a little miss of less than 15 years.

To do this the successful suitor had himself appointed legal guardian of his sweetheart and then, imitating the example of the chancellor in "Iolanthe," he asked of himself permission to wed his ward.

This permission was instantly granted.

Alligretto Antonietta came all the way from Naples to Chicago alone about six months ago. She made her home with her aunt in the heart of the west side Italian colony. Along came Joseph Marchesi, also from Naples, and began making violent love to her. Alligretto knew something about love, but she did not like the kind that Joseph offered. Her aunt said Joseph was a splendid catch. The child shook her head.

"You are all alone in the world," continued her aunt, "and few girls could get such a good husband as Joseph."

About this time Antonio Ardoini arrived on the scene. He was 24 and handsome. Little Alligretto fell a victim to his charms.

When Antonio appeared before the Chicago marriage license clerk he was given the disappointment of his life.

"You say she is just past 14 years," said the clerk. "Well, you can't marry her."

"But I love her and she loves me," pleaded Antonio.

"Can't help that," replied the interpreter of the law. "If you can get the consent of her parents or guardian you might be able to marry her."

"CAN'T YOU BE MY GUARDIAN?"

Antonio shook his head. "Her parents are in Italy and she has no guardian," he moaned. He carried the doleful news to Alligretto. She muttered a few soft Italian invectives against the law and then looking up said: "Why can't you be my guardian?"

Antonio was overwhelmed with hope at the suggestion. He rushed to an attorney and got some advice. Then with the blushing Alligretto he appeared before Judge Cutting. The girl addressed the judge by petition, asserting that her parents were in Italy and she was a minor and needed the services of a guardian.

"Whom do you want for a guardian?" asked the court. The little girl pointed to Antonio. The character and reputation of Antonio were investigated and found good. Thereupon papers were issued declaring him the legal guardian of Alligretto.

Next day Antonio again appeared before the marriage license clerk. This time he was all smiles. He proudly unrolled his guardianship papers and to the astonished clerk said: "I am her guardian and I consent to her marriage to me."

The papers were examined, found correct and a license was issued. In the meantime Alligretto's aunt was in ignorance of the turn that affairs had taken. Antonio with his license and his guardianship papers accompanied by Alligretto, faced her and announced that Joseph was out of the race.

"I am her guardian," said Antonio, "and now I am going to be both husband and guardian." The aunt accepted the situation and last Sunday, in the Italian chapel on Clark street, Antonio and Alligretto were made husband and wife.

"I did not understand that the young man I appointed guardian of the girl intended to marry her," said Judge Cutting. "Yet, had I known that, my action would have been the same."

His Copship Talked Back.

Burglaries have recently been very numerous in Richmond, Va. A local minister met a policeman in the street the other day and said to him: "What a number of burglars there are at work in the city at present! Why don't you officers arrest them?" The policeman regarded the minister solemnly. "Sir," he replied, "there are thousands of people going to Hades every day. Why don't you ministers stop them?"

Where Wives Rule Things.

It is the rule in Abyssinia that the wife is boss of the ranch. The house, with all its contents, belongs to her, and if the husband offends her she turns him out until he is fully repentant and makes amends.

Cold Drinks Ruin Digestion.

Cold drinks are bad for the digestion; therefore, the police of Berlin have issued an order forbidding hotelkeepers and cafe keepers to sell beverages below a certain temperature.

CAN'T GO ON 'CHANGE.

Prince Francis of Teck Forbidden by King Edward to Engage in Brokerage Business.

Other English men and women of title may go into "trade" as much as they see fit—and they are going in for it more and more—but the members of the royal family will not do so if King Edward can prevent it. The king has just put a determined veto on the plan of the gallant and sporty Prince Francis of Teck, who wanted to accept the tempting offer made to him by a wealthy "city" firm to represent them on the London stock exchange.

PRINCE FRANCIS OF TECK.
(King Edward Won't Permit Him to Become a Stock Broker.)

The prince is the son of the late duke of Teck and, incidentally, the brother of the princess of Wales, who, in all probability, some day will be queen of England.

The firm of Gordon, Hill & Co. offered his highness $15,000 a year for his services. Then several other houses made still higher offers, and it began to look as if the prince could get about any salary he pleased if only he played the different bidders against each other skillfully enough. At this point, however, the king stepped in with the remark that Prince Francis' going on 'change was out of the question. His highness' position as the close relative of one of the most prominent members of the royal family would, Edward VII. pointed out, be a delicate one as matters stand at present; while, in the event of the princess of Wales becoming queen, it would be impossible. So the prince will not go into the city—which is rough luck, for he gets no appropriation from the royal till, and is a bit hard up, as his father was before him. His highness, who is now 33, has had a military career thus far, being now major of the First dragoons. He was educated at Sandhurst, and has served in India, Egypt and Ireland. He saw part of the South African campaign as a captain in the remount department.

DOUBLE-BARRELED GUN.

Odd Cannon That Was Made for the Confederate Army, But Never Used in War.

In one of the city squares of Athens, Ga., stands an interesting relic of the civil war—what is probably the only double-barreled cannon ever made. It was designed by a resident of Athens for use in the confederate service, the idea being to discharge a projectile from each barrel simultaneously, the projectiles to be connected by a chain. No chain was found to be sufficiently strong, however, to withstand the strain, and the weapon was never tested in actual warfare. The cannon is made of cast iron, says the Scientific American, and was molded at one of the local foundries. It is of three-inch caliber, having a diameter across the muzzles of eight inches, and across the breech of 13 inches, while it is 55 inches in length. It is provided with what is familiarly known as a "touchhole" in the breech, connecting with both barrels, so that it could be discharged by igniting a fuse if desired. The idea of the inventor was to connect the balls by a chain several feet in length, the ends of the chain being fastened into each by staples. Chain-shot was often used in naval battles to carry away the rigging of an enemy. It was discharged once after being built, but unfortunately one barrel for some reason did not "go off." The force of the explosion of the other barrel tore the chain from the ball which remained, and gave a curved motion to the projectile. As a result of this accident, it was considered too dangerous to adopt for use, and was stored away. finally being discovered only a few years ago in a shed. It was then mounted upon its present carriage and placed in the park for an ornament.

RELIC OF CIVIL WAR.
(Doubled-Barreled Cannon Now Owned by City of Athens, Ga.)

SUPPLIED OCULAR PROOF.

Sow a Resourceful Missouri Lawyer Easily Won Over the Jury in a Slander Case.

"Resourcefulness in a lawyer is the actual trial of a case is as necessary as the same quality in a general on a battlefield," said Representative Champ Clark. "I saw my old law partner, ex-Lieut. Gov. David A. Ball, gain a slander case once under difficult circumstances—as it were, snatch victory from the jaws of defeat.

"Ball had for a client a wizen-faced, shambling, wild-eyed old tie-chopper named Sam Barnes, slim as a racer and short of stature. A fat, stocky, 200-pounder named Zack Boothe had accused Barnes of stealing his bacon, and had forced Barnes in his own cabin, in the presence of his wife and children, to hold out his foot for measurement to see if it would fit certain suspicious tracks.

HON. CHAMP CLARK.
(Missouri Congressman Who Is Famed as a Story Teller.)

"Barnes was poor as Job's turkey, but Ball is a sort of heaven-appointed attorney general or the poor. They are always with him, both in court and at the polls. Consequently, Barnes went to Ball with his bleeding heart and shattered reputation straight as a bird could fly.

"On the witness stand Boothe swore that the reason he knew that Barnes stole the meat was that the chief entered the smoke house through a window 10 by 16 inches, where two 8 by 10 panes had been broken out, and that Barnes was the only man in the neighborhood small enough to get through that hole.

"The jury scowled on Barnes and smiled on Boothe, and Boothe seamed oleaginously on everybody. He metaphorically patted himself on the back as a sure winner. But a change came over the spirit of his dream very suddenly. Ball had heard what he was going to swear that way, and was laying for him.

"While Boothe was in the midst of his self-congratulatory grinning Ball yanked a window sash 10 by 16 from under the table, and before Boothe the court or anybody else knew what he was up to, he had slipped that sash over Boothe's head, and it dropped over his broad shoulders and rotund 'abdomen with fat capon lined' to the floor.

"Then he asked a juryman, who was six feet four inches high, to stand up, and he passed him through that sash. The demonstration was complete and his triumph assured. He had furnished the jury what Othello demanded of Iago—'the ocular proof.' The jury caught on and transferred their smiles to Barnes and their scowls to Boothe. All the sheriffs ever commissioned couldn't have kept that crowd from cheering, and Barnes was awarded substantial damages."

GOVERNOR GARVIN.

Rhode Island's Chief Executive Is Mr. Bryan's Choice for the Presidential Nomination.

Dr. Lucius F. C. Garvin, governor of Rhode Island, who has been suggested by Mr. Bryan as good democratic presidential timber, was the only democratic candidate to be elected governor last fall north of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi. He is extremely popular in his state, and in the course of 10 years, during which he has been more or less in politics, he has served in the legislature many times when he was about the only democrat in that body. Dr. Garvin is a single tax apostle, an aggressive friend of organized labor and a Democrat of the southern school. He was born in Tennessee 62 years ago, served through the civil war in the Fifty-first Massachusetts volunteers, and has accumulated a comfortable fortune as a practitioner of medicine. He was defeated once for governor and twice for congress.

DR. LUCIUS F. C. GARVIN.
(Mr. Bryan's Choice for Democratic Presidential Nomination.)

REAL CHARITY WORK

Boston Church Conducts a Pawnshop for the Poor.

Four Per Cent, a Year is the Rate of Interest Charged—Bright Young Woman Manages the Unique Business.

In the heart of the exclusive Back Bay of Boston, under the very eaves of aristocratic Trinity church, a little pawnshop flourishes, remarkable not only for its environments, but in that it undoubtedly is the cheapest in the world, the only one conducted by a church and the only one that is run solely on a philanthropic basis.

Four per cent. a year is its rate, so cheap that every other pawnshop in the city and in the world, in fact, would be plunged into bankruptcy if run on a similar plan.

One can raise money on anything, from a tool to a jewel, at Trinity Chapel pawnshop.

The sexton at the chapel door said: "Yes, they do lend money here," and he pointed out a little room in the rear of the church, where the money is lent and jewels received.

It is a plain, uncarpeted, bare little room, big enough to hold a small bookcase, a desk, a chair and a settee, and a very few people at a time.

Miss Mitchell, the lady in charge, sat behind the desk, a book before her.

"Yes, we loan money," said Miss Mitchell to a woman who had just entered offering the usual hard luck story.

She was away from home, her money spent, and in need of a dollar or two till the next remittance came.

Miss Mitchell sympathized.

"I would like to raise the money on this ring," said the woman, slipping off an opal ring. (She couldn't say pawn in a church.)

"How much is it worth?"

"About $12," she said.

"How much do you want to get on it?"

"I can get along with $3," she replied.

Miss Mitchell took the ring. With scarcely a glance at it, she opened her pocketbook and taking out a two-dollar

IN THE CHURCH PAWNSHOP.
(Woman Trying to Raise Money on a Piece of Jewelry.)

bill and a dollar bill, handed them over.

"What is your name?" she asked.

This, with the address asked, she wrote on a receipt, which was detached from a book and given to the needy one, after both had been copied onto one of the stubs that are kept in the book, to record the loan.

"With only four cents interest on a loan of a dollar for a whole year, I shouldn't think it would pay to keep this place," said a visitor.

"It doesn't," Miss Mitchell answered.

"Though I am very busy here, and especially so on Saturdays, when many come to redeem their pledges, the profits barely pay my salary, but then it's a philanthropic, not a money-making scheme."

The business originated during an extremely hard winter a number of years ago, when there was great suffering among Boston's poor. It was the idea of several of the prominent members of Trinity church, who advanced the money to open and carry on the business until it might be self-supporting.

"In its ten years of existence," said Miss Mitchell, "hundreds of men and women in distress have been helped out in and tided over their hour of trouble by the Trinity Chapel pawnshop.

"Persons who come here are almost invariably those who have known better days. Our own poor of the parish we care for in a secret way, and we also provide coal for many who are not of our parish and who, though in actual need, are too proud to ask it of the city, even when they get down to their last shovelful.

"This, however, is for persons not so badly off as the others, or only temporarily inconvenienced, perhaps, who are sick, out of work, or hard up just for the time being, who have something which they can pawn and which they are glad as well to be able to offer as security.

"We scarcely ever give more than $10 as a loan on any one object," said Miss Mitchell, "though in times past we have.

"We used to advance money on salaries quite a good deal, but now only do it infrequently. If a person is really deserving, can furnish good recommendations, and will pay some of the interest each week to which money is advanced on their salary, but, as I have said, we do not do much in this line now."

Like all places of the kind, it has its drawer full of unclaimed articles, but the number is small compared with that of the shops where as much interest is charged for weeks as in the Trinity pawnshop for a year.

ROSE FROM THE RANKS.

Gen. Randolph, Chief of Artillery Service, Enlisted as a Private Early in 1861.

Gen. Wallace F. Randolph, chief of artillery, whose name has just been added to the list of brigadier generals in the regular army, is a striking illustration of the possibilities of American citizenship. Like Maj. Gens. Young, Wheaton, Hughes and Davis and Brig. Gens. Randall, Kobbe, Wint and Jesse M. Lee and several other high-ranking officers, Gen. Randolph began his military career as a volunteer in the ranks of the union army during the civil war and won his star by merit and

GEN. W. F. RANDOLPH.
(New Chief of the Artillery Service of United States Army.)

pure soldierly qualities. He was born in Pennsylvania and enlisted as a private in the Seventeenth Pennsylvania infantry in April, 1861, and was soon appointed second lieutenant of the Fifth artillery. He was brevetted captain in June, 1863, for gallant services in the defense of Winchester, Va., and major in 1865, for good conduct and gallant services during the war. While in the field in Virginia in 1863 his battery was captured and he, being wounded, was made prisoner and taken to Richmond.

In February, 1864, he effected his escape and reached the federal lines at Williamsburg. He was with his regiment in Pennsylvania during the labor strikes in 1877, and in October, 1880, he went abroad on the training ship Saratoga, acquiring professional information. During the labor troubles in Chicago in 1894 he had command of the artillery battalion ordered to that city. He became colonel of the First artillery by regular promotion in October, 1899, and served as a brigadier general of volunteers during the Spanish-American war.

In the reorganization of the artillery arm in March, 1901, he was made chief of artillery and rendered excellent service in improving the efficiency of that branch of the service. Notwithstanding his increased command and responsibilities, he was continued in the rank of colonel, until the passage of the act creating the general staff of the army, which provided among other things that the chief of artillery should serve as a member of that body and have the rank, pay and allowances of a brigadier general.

The efficiency record shows him to be an able and zealous artillery officer.

NEW JOB FOR STANLEY.

Ex-Governor of Kansas Appointed a Member of the Dawes Indian Commission.

Ex-Gov. W. E. Stanley, who has accepted a place on the Dawes Indian commission, came to Kansas from Hardin county, Ohio, in 1870, and was the third governor Kansas has had from that state. He lived in Jefferson county until 1872, when he moved to Wichita.

HON. W. E. STANLEY.
(Kansas Statesman Appointed to Place on Indian Commission.)

While Gov. Stanley has never been in the complete sense a politician, he has always taken an active part in public affairs. He has never been defeated for office.

During his brief residence in Jefferson county as a young lawyer he served as county attorney and also served in Sedgwick county three terms in this same capacity.

Gov. Stanley is rated as the leading member of the bar in his section of the state, and his practice has been one of the largest in the state. He is 57 years of age.

A Genuine "Short Line."

The shortest railroad in Missouri runs from Rock Port to Langdon, a distance of eight miles. It has only one locomotive and the patrons of the road disparagingly speak of it as "the peanut roaster."

"DOUBLE-QUICK" LOANS.

Great Sums Often Raised by Wall Street Banks on Very Short Notice.

An interesting question often asked in Wall street concerns the amount of capital that a large bank could raise on an hour's notice. That is, how much accommodation could a bank extend a customer unexpectedly confronted with pressing need, or for the purpose of financing a great deal. A banker or international experience is an authority for the statement that Wall street's facilities in this regard are superior to London's, in that a large undertaking could be financed here with much greater dispatch than on the other side, says the New York Post.

Said an officer of one of Wall street's most important banks: "It is no trouble at all nowadays to raise $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 within an hour. I have seen it done too often to think for a moment that it would tax seriously a large bank's resources. Five times that sum, say $25,000,000, can be raised at 24 hours' notice. It has been done. Of course, no one bank could do it, but the great Wall street institutions are linked together in such a way as to provide almost unlimited resources for the financing of any safe deal. The large banks think little of $1,000,000 or $2,000,000 loans these days, whereas in former years they attracted general attention, for such large amounts were released only after considerable negotiations. But that has all changed now."

TESTS OF THE HUMAN VOICE.

Experiment Proves That It Is Not Always as Recognizable as Is Commonly Believed.

Many persons imagine that the human voice is as easily recognizable as the human countenance; they think that they could never be mistaken in the voices of their friends; but in the branch telephone exchange of a big business house the other day an experiment proved that this was not altogether true, says the Philadelphia Record. One of the employes of the house took his place at the exchange, and, as various persons called for various members, he guessed who was speaking. Out of ten guesses, six were wrong. He erred in the case of his own brother's voice, mistaking it for that of the proprietor. He was sure that he had detected a fellow clerk on account of the pronunciation of coffee—"cawfee"—that he believed to be peculiar to this person, but the event proved that there were others in the building who also pronounced coffee in that odd way. The girl at the exchange said that she never attempted to tell people by their voices, especially over the 'phone. "When you make a mistake it is so embarrassing," she murmured. "A roguish voice says: 'Do you know who it is?' You answer: 'Yes, it's Harry.' Whereupon the disappointed reply comes: 'No, it is Jack.' That makes you feel small."

SET IN HIS WAYS.

Negro Farmer Who Had His Own Ideas About Crops and Stuck to Them.

"As an illustration of the need of new ideas in farming, and of the benefit which the long-continued cultivation of a single crop has upon one," says Booker T. Washington, in Everybody's Magazine, "I remember that some years ago I called on an old negro farmer into my office and explained to him in detail how he could make $30 an acre on his land, if he would plant a portion of it in sweet potatoes; whereas, if he planted cotton, as he had been doing for years, at best he could make only $15 per acre. As I explained the difference step by step, he agreed with me at every point, and when I came near to the end of my argument I began to congratulate myself that I had converted at least one man from the one-crop system to better methods. Finally, with what I fear was the air of one who felt that he had won his case, I asked the farmer what he was going to cultivate on his land the coming year. The old fellow scratched his head and said that as he was getting old, and had been growing cotton all his life, he reckoned he would grow it to the end of his few remaining years, although he agreed with me that he could double the product of his land by planting sweet potatoes on it."

A WORKING EMPEROR.

Kaiser Wilhelm Takes Matters Great and Small into His Own Autocratic Hands.

The world discovered long ago that the emperor of Germany is not a mere figurehead. He takes matters of state, great and small, into his own capable hands, and settles them in business-like fashion. A case in point is a story told by a London M. A. P. of an English professor in a small German university, who fell into a dispute with another professor. Finally the head of the department said:

"We must write to the kaiser about it."

"Surely, you would not trouble his majesty about such a small matter?"

"Indeed, I will, and he will settle it."

The Englishman expected that one of the kaiser's secretaries would send a formal and useless reply. But in a few days the chief professor showed the Englishman a letter, written at the kaiser's dictation, saying that he personally would in six weeks be visiting in the neighborhood of the university, and would make a call on the professors and consult them about the dispute.

At the time appointed the emperor came, discussed the matter patiently with great tact and judgment, and finally settled it to the satisfaction of all parties.

MR. LOEB PROMOTED.

Appointed Secretary to the President of the United States.

Knows More Public Men Than Any Other Man of His Age and Has Always Been Popular with Mr. Roosevelt.

William Loeb, Jr., who took the oath of office the other day as secretary to President Roosevelt, promises to make as popular and successful a man in the position as secretary Cortelyou. Mr. Loeb is business-like, discreet, tactful. He probably knows the president and his characteristics better than any man at the white house, and undoubtedly starts out with the complete confidence of the chief executive that his management of his new office will be all that it should be.

William Loeb, Jr., was born October 1, 1866, at Albany, N. Y., of German parentage. He graduated from public school No. 14 and entered the Albany high school, where he remained for two years. He then began the study of shorthand and found employment, first with a newspaper correspondent, and then with several business concerns. He was Bishop Doane's amanuensis for a time. His ambition was to be a law and general reporter, and in furtherance of it he formed a connection with the late Eugene Burlingame, a prominent attorney and the republican leader of Albany county. Mr. Loeb early evinced a taste for politics, and under Mr. Burlingame's tutelage he began to take an active part in political affairs and became his chief lieutenant. He was a member of the republican county committee for several years and was its secretary. He was also prominent in the management of the Unconditional Republican club, and was its vice president for two years. At the organization of the legislative session of 1888 he had strong political backing and was elected official stenographer of the assembly by four votes. For several years thereafter, in connection with his business of a general law stenographer, he reported various legislative and investigating committees, and served as private secretary and stenographer for Mr. Fassett, president pro tem. of the senate, Speaker Malby and Lieut. Gov. Saxton. He was Mr. Fassett's secretary when the latter was a candidate for governor against Roswell P. Flower, and accompanied him on his tour of the state. In 1894 he was a member of the stenographic corps that reported the debates of the New York constitutional convention. The year following he was prominent in the law providing for a district attorney and grand jury stenographer for Albany county, District Attorney Burlingame appointed him to the position, which he held until a few months after Mr. Burlingame's death, in 1896. When Mr. Roosevelt became governor, January 1, 1899, Mr. Loeb was appointed one of the four executive stenographers. His ability and familiarity with public men and affairs soon attracted the notice of Gov. Roosevelt, who made him his private and confidential secretary. When the governor was nominated for the vice presidency and made his memorable tour of the country Mr. Loeb accompanied him, and when he was elected vice president was made his secretary. When Mr. Roosevelt took up the reins as president he appointed Mr. Loeb his assistant secretary.

WILLIAM LOEB, JR.
(Mr. Cortelyou's Successor as Secretary to the President.)

Mr. Loeb has a home at 249 State street, Albany, N. Y., where his father, three sisters and brother Edward live. He was married December 12, 1901, to Katharine W. Dorr, of Albany. Their Washington home is No. 1726 Rhode Island avenue. He is prominent in masonic circles, being a member of Wadsworth lodge, No. 417, F. and A. M., of Albany, and of Washington chapter, No. 5, Royal Arch Masons, of Washington.

Heavy Tax on Bachelors.

Bachelors are heavily taxed in one of the provinces of the Argentine Republic. Between the ages of 20 and 30 he must pay five dollars a month; after the age of 30, ten dollars; when he is between 25 and 50, $20; between 50 and 75, $30. When a widower has been three years widowed, he must remarry or pay the tax. If he can prove that he has been unable to find a husband within one year, he is not taxable.

Sight Restored by Science.

Contact with poison ivy caused the total blindness of Miss Fanny Knowles, of Harrison, N. J. After enduring her severe affliction for ten years, an operation performed a short time ago completely restored sight to her left eye.

Onions Prevent Malaria.

In damp or marshy districts it is said that the eating of raw onions is a preventive of malarial complaints.

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. [illegible], Proprietor

WORK TOGETHER.

The remarkable growth of the rural free mail delivery system, and the willingness of Congress to appropriate money for extensions faster than the extensions can be made have been surprising even to the most enthusiastic friends of the system. "Why, the thing is spreading like wildfire," remarked a man who had been reading up on the subject, "At this rate, rural free mail delivery will be universal in a few years." At first place, this view appears to be correct, but in fact such a view is merely superficial. It takes no great amount of investigation to convince one that the system must meet and overcome some very great obstacles before it can even become general, to say nothing of being universal.

The great obstacle to the general spread of the rural free delivery system is the miserable roads of the country. So far the system has only been extended to communities blessed with good roads. Among the many communities demanding the introduction of the system, the postoffice department has been able to select those which have good roads, either as a result of favorable natural condition or superior wealth. The less favored communities which have been passed by have consoled themselves with the thought that their turn would come soon. But when these disappointed communities—and their number is increasing very rapidly—find out that they are permanently barred from enjoying the benefit of free delivery on account of the condition of their roads, a cry of indignant opposition will be raised.

Suppose the minority says: "Why don't you improve your roads, and thus secure the blessings of free mail delivery?" The majority can answer: "In improving our roads, we have to overcome greater obstacles, and our means are less. Why not help us improve our roads through general taxation," to which a demand as this is almost certain to result from the agitation for rural free delivery of the mails.

And what is there unreasonable or unjust about such a demand? The general improvement of the roads of the country is a work too stupendous to be left entirely to the small municipalities. Besides, is it not more deserving of national aid than the building of railroads and canals and the improvement of rivers and harbors?

A proper distribution of the expenses of general road improvement among the nation, the States, and the local communities appears to be the only practical solution of the road problem, and the road problem must be solved if rural free mail delivery is to be made general.

MORE EYLER TROUBLE.

It now looks as if the board of managers of the State Home for Girls would have to begin another probing into the affairs of the institution in order to ascertain just what sort of discipline is maintained by Mrs. Myrtle E. Eyler, its matron. It is declared the condition of affairs at present is similar to those which existed three years ago when Mrs Eyler narrowly escaped removal after an investigation that was the talk of several states.

If the inmates of the home are in the state of turmoil as reported it is, indeed, time that something was done in the matter and the board cannot act too quickly. Rules and regulations can be made and re-made but if the ones in authority are unable or incapable of forcing their observance very little is gained by the maintenance of the place and is may as well be given up. This home was erected and is supported by the people of New Jersey in order that the tendencies of wayward young women may be curbed until they are either outgrown or obliterated. If they are released at the end of their term, after having done about what they pleased, the State is a loser instead of gainer. During the Eyler administration it has been demonstrated more than once that something is wrong with the principalship. The investigation of three years ago should have revealed enough to cause a change in affairs, but it was finally allowed to pass over. Now agitation has started anew and it is to be hoped that the commonwealth will be spared the spreading broadcast of tales of incompetency, mismanagement and disorder at one of its most important institutions. By all means place the managerial reins in the hands of some one fitted for the purpose.

What a Hanging Cost.

It might be interesting to know that it cost Monroe county, Pennsylvania, $153.80 to hang Chas. Grether, the murderer.

HIGH SCHOOL DEFEATED BY ORANGE FIELD CLUB

First Baseball Game of the Season Took Place Saturday in Blustering Wind Storm.

THE SCORE WAS 4 TO 3

O. F. C. PLAYERS BEST IN FIELD WORK AND SUPPORTING EACH OTHER.

VanAuken in Fine Form and Proved An Enigma to the Opposing Battery — Other Details — The Lineup and Summary.

The Orange Field Club baseball team defeated the Plainfield High School, Saturday afternoon by a score of 4 to 3. The game was played on Stillman Field and was the first of the season for both teams.

Both played an even game until the sixth inning. At the beginning of this a strong wind sprang up and blew fiercely across the diamond. For fifteen minutes it was a regular gale while the High School boys were unable to judge the ball in the field. This netted two runs for the Orange Field Club.

VanAuken pitched a good game for the High School, striking out fifteen men. The team, however, gave him no support him in the field and made some costly errors. The Orange boys played a far better game in the field and won much applause by their neat pickups and assists. They hit VanAuken but four times, each for a single, but the hits were timely and well placed.

The summary follows:

ORANGE FIELD CLUB.

	R.	BH.	PO.	A.	E.
Swalm, rf	0	0	0	0	0
E. Sherwin, lf	0	0	0	0	1
Whitley, p	0	1	0	8	1
Egan, 3b	0	0	1	1	0
McVoy, cf	1	1	1	0	0
McNaughton, 1b	0	0	12	0	2
Herman, c	1	0	10	1	0
Brokaw 2b	1	1	2	2	0
Martin, ss	2	2	0	2	2
	4	4	27	14	6

PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL.

	R.	BH.	PO.	A.	E.
Thompson, 1b	0	2	7	0	2
Craig, ss	0	0	0	3	0
Munro, c	0	0	10	1	0
Stock, rf	1	0	1	0	0
Ulrick, lf	0	0	0	0	0
Smith, 3b	1	0	2	0	0
Miner, 2b	1	0	2	1	1
VanAuken, p	0	0	0	1	0
Roosa, cf	0	1	0	0	0
	3	3	27	5	3

Bases on balls—VanAuken, 2; Whitley, 5. Hit by pitched ball—P. H. S. 4. Struck out—VanAuken, 15; Whitley, 10. Umpires—A. Lederer and J. Montross. Scorers—A. E. Moore and L. L. Sheppard.

PROJECTOSCOPE ENJOYED.

Large Audience at Park Avenue Baptist Church Delighted.

The new model of Edison's projectoscope was seen by several hundred people on Thursday evening last in the Park Avenue Baptist church. It was the first time that the genuine Edison machine has been seen in Plainfield, and the large audience present was delighted. The pictures were perfectly steady on the canvas and remarkably clear and distinct. D. W. Robertson, the manager of the projectoscope received many warm congratulations on the success of the evening's entertainment, and was assured that he would be asked to give another exhibition of his wonderful machine in Plainfield in the near future.

Death of Aged Woman.

Miss Carrie White, an aged woman who for many years has been living on Elm place, died at Muhlenberg Hospital this morning at 1 o'clock. She had been a sufferer with Bright's disease and her death was not unexpected. She was a member of the Seventh-Day Baptist church and was a devoted Christian. She leaves one brother, who resides in Brooklyn.

Old Meeting House at Crosswicks.

"An old Quaker Settlement" is the title of a short illustrated sketch on the Friends' old meeting house at Crosswicks, N. J., published March 28 in the Saturday Pictorial Review of the New York Commercial Advertiser. This is the third in a series of articles on old meeting houses in New Jersey, written by Mrs. B. J. Shreve, of Grove street.

Cross Favors Appointment.

Councilman J. F. Buckle has received a letter from State Senator Joseph Cross in which the latter assures Mr. Buckle that he will do all in his power to secure the enactment of the law making it possible for the local Common Council to appoint the collector of taxes, instead of having him elected by the people.

Lucius Koons, of Sandford avenue, is detained at home by illness.

ANOTHER FACTORY COMING

RUSHMORE DYNAMO COMPANY HAS LEASED OLD CARPET FACTORY.

Manufactures Electric Devices and Will Employ in the Neighborhood of 100 Men.

Within a week or two another industrial establishment will be added to Plainfield's list of manufacturing plants. The Rushmore Dynamo Company, which is well-known in the business world, has leased the former carpet factory building on South avenue near Berckman street and has already nearly completed installing machinery. When running on full time the firm will employ in the neighborhood of 100 skilled men.

At present the company's factory is in Jersey City where it has been located for the past three years. An increase of business made it necessary to secure larger quarters and the Plainfield factory was selected. Many of the old employes will be retained and Rand & Son have already been engaged to move fifteen families to this city within the next two weeks.

The company manufactures search lights and a patented advertising device which, it is said, "reveals letters high in the air as night so they can be read at a great distance.

SONG AND STORY.

Basket Social of Swedish Lutheran Church Proves Highly Enjoyable.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Swedish Lutheran church a basket social was held Saturday evening in the German Lutheran church parlors. A pleasant evening was spent by fifty young people of the congregation. The social was given for the benefit of the church and the net proceeds were quite large.

The early part of the evening was devoted to song, recitation and story telling. A quartette from the Upsala College was present and favored during the evening with several selections. The quartette comprised: Wilfred Anderson, August Pearson, Carl Turnberg, Olaf Lundgrin and Alfred Lundgring, leader. Others who took part in the programme were A. M. Andrea, Carl Turnberg, Miss Anna Nelsen, Miss Vega Tulin, John Chester, Miss Deen, August Pearson and Rev. Hilmer Johnson, pastor of the congregation. The evening's programme closed with a short address by Wilfred Anderson.

Refreshments were served during the evening in baskets which were donated by the members of the congregation. Coffee was served by the committee having the affair in charge. It comprised: Mrs. Louisa Geier, Mrs. Charles Johnson, Mrs. John Gjetelson and Mrs. Charles Keller.

SUCCESSFUL SALE.

Neat Sum Realized by Junior C. E.'s of Trinity Reformed Church for Mission Work.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society, of Trinity Reformed church, conducted a successful cake and candy sale in the Primary room of the Sunday-school, Saturday afternoon, between the hours of 2 and 5 o'clock. Notwithstanding that a large number of cakes and considerable candy were contributed toward the enterprise, the young folks had no trouble in disposing of their entire stock at good prices. In all $12 were realized from the sale, $3 as the candy table and $10 at the cake table.

The candy table was in charge of Miss Ethel Lorton, Miss Louella Day and Miss Ida Tier, while Mrs. J. M. Tier and Miss Berkaw, assisted by members of the society were at the cake table. The proceeds will be devoted to the cause of missions, this object being contributed to systematically by the society. The members feel much encouraged over the success of the sale and are grateful to all who assisted them.

NO FOURTH OF JULY GAMES.

City Baseball League Decides to Omit That Holiday.

But little business of importance was transacted at Saturday evening's meeting of the City Baseball League, President W. N. Runyon presided and representatives from the four clubs were present.

It was decided to cross off the Fourth of July for games and to adopt the constitution of last year for the present season. A committee appointed C. E. A. Heywood and Thomas Comerford, a committee of two on schedules.

Red Men's Excursion.

Assemblyman William Newcorn is one of a committee from the Great Council, Improved Order of Red Men, that is arranging for an excursion of the New Jersey members to Atlantic City next fall. Mr. Newcorn introduced the matter at the meeting of Miantonomo Tribe, last week, and received assurances of hearty support.

Miss Fanny Mills, of West Front street, who has been ill with tonsilitis, has recovered.

GLEE CLUB PROVIDES A FINE ENTERTAINMENT

City High School Musical Organization Makes Initial Appearance Saturday.

IT WAS WELL RECEIVED

ORIGINAL SONG BY G. A. BRAKELEY A PROGRAMME FEATURE.

The Proceeds Are for the Benefit of the School Baseball Team for This Season — Those Comprising the Glee Club.

The Mandolin and Glee Clubs, of the City High School, gave an excellent concert Saturday evening in Franklin Hall. It was a departure from the regular order of High School entertainments and each number of the programme was well received.

The programme consisted of four numbers by the Glee Club and three by the Mandolin Club. Aside from this there were two recitations by members of the club, one a selection from Mark Twain by Norman C. Hill, and the other a dialogue from Mark Twain's "Innocent's Abroad," given by Norman C. Hill and Francis K. Anderson.

After the opening "Hail," by the Glee Club, Ralph S. Lane sang "Our Crew," the club joining in the chorus. As an encore to this, Mr. Lane sang "Blue Eyes." The Mandolin Club quartette, consisting of William P. VanEps, Louis T. Koons, Chester H. Briggs and Theodore Gavett, played "Blaze Away" in a highly spirited way.

The Glee Club next appeared in the parody "The Facult-e-e," sung to the tune of "Mister Dooley." This parody, composed by G. Archibald Brakeley, was the hit of the evening. It consisted of a verse for each member of the faculty, every one being a good-natured "hit" on the teacher. The verses were sung by Charles H. Titsworth while the Glee Club joined in the chorus.

The last number of the programme was the new school song "Red and Blue." This song was composed by Vincent B. Miner and was sung to the tune of "The Princeton Tiger."

The Glee Club consisted of the following young men of the school: Ralph S. Lane, leader, Francis K. Anderson, George L. Babcock, G. Archibald Brakeley, VanWyck Brooks, Harold C. Fenne, Norman C. Hall, Vincent B. Miner, Alden E. Moore, Michael T. Moynihan, S. Clarence Rocap, Charles P. Titsworth, Edwin J. Weseman and Albert F. Yaeger. Throughout the programme the piano accompaniments were played by Miss Mary Collier.

At the close of the concert, an informal dance was held. The music was furnished by Suhr's Imperial Orchestra. About $40 was realized from the affair and it will go toward the support of the baseball team.

CRITERION CLUB ACTIVE.

Is Planning Pleasant Affairs and Adding New Members.

The Criterion Club is planning to hold a dance in the Casino on May 7. It was intended to have it on April 23 but the committee has been unable to secure that date. Three pieces of music from Waterveit's orchestra will be present and a novel scheme will be introduced in serving the refreshments.

Plans are under way to hold a duck dance in June. The arrangements have not yet been completed but it promises to be one of the most successful dances ever given by the club.

At a recent meeting of the club four new members were received and applications have been handed in for five more. Negotiations are now going on with a view to securing rooms again in the Babcock building when the repairs to the structure have been completed. The club now holds its meetings in rooms on North avenue.

Sixth Birthday Anniversary.

Mrs. Alfred Seidel, of Jackson avenue, gave a party in honor of the sixth birthday of her son, Alfred, Saturday afternoon. Games were played for several hours by the twenty children present and refreshments were served early in the evening. Mrs. I. V. Smalley and the Misses Florence Smalley, Agnes Bailey and Edna Lewis assisted Mrs. Seidel in entertaining.

Registration Day Appointed.

The courts have appointed Tuesday, April 7, as registration day for the new borough of Garwood, and Tuesday, April 14, as election day. The latter date is the same as designated for the election of officials for the new borough of Westfield.

Elected to Classis.

The Consistory of Trinity Reformed church has elected H. E. Gayle and Robert Clark, Jr., as delegates to the Classis, which meets at Newark, Wednesday, April 15.

WANT PLUMBERS' LICENSES

BILL NOW BEFORE THE LEGISLATURE PROVIDES FOR THEM.

Would Establish Board in Plainfield to Examine and License the Plumbers.

Journeymen plumbers of this city are greatly interested in a bill that is now being considered by the Legislature. It provides for the appointment of a board for the examination and licensing of plumbers and the inspection and licensing of all plumbing work in cities and boroughs having a population of over 15,000, and would include Plainfield. The bill has the indorsement of the State Association of Journeyman Plumbers, which is affiliated with the national association and which includes steam fitters, helpers and gas-fitters.

The new bill requires that in municipalities of the kind stated above the Board of Health shall appoint a board consisting of four members, one of whom shall be the chief health officer of the municipality, one the plumbing inspector, one a journeyman plumber and one a master plumber. In cities or boroughs where the position of health officer of plumbing inspector already exists these officers shall serve on the board without additional compensation. The journeyman and the master plumber on the board shall each receive $5 for each day they are engaged in performing the duties of the board, provided that not more than $500 shall be paid in either in one year. If necessary the board of health of any city or borough may employ one or more assistant plumbing inspector.

The board shall have the power to enact ordinances not inconsistent with ordinances already in effect for the sanitary construction, alteration and inspection of plumbing and sewerage connection with every building in the municipality. It shall describe the kind and size of materials to be used and the manner in which such work shall be done. The board shall have the power to compel owners or contractors to first submit and specifications of the work that is to be done for the approval of the board.

The bill also provides that the plumbing boards shall adopt rules for the examination of all persons who desire a license to do work at the construction or repairing of plumbing, or to engage in the plumbing business. Licenses shall be granted only to applicants who show upon examination that they have a practical as well as theoretical knowledge of plumbing, house draining, ventilation and sanitation. Original licenses shall be renewed every year, unless it is shown that the applicant has become unfitted to properly carry on his occupation or business. The fee for the original license to a journeyman plumber shall be $1, and that of a renewal license shall be fifty cents. This would make it unlawful for any person to do such plumbing unless he held a license. Another provision is that any person violating any of the ordinances of any board established under the provisions of the act shall be liable to a fine of not more than $50 nor less than $5 for each violation.

LECTURING TOUR.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall Home From Long Trip Through Western New York State.

Mrs Florence Howe Hall has returned from the western part of New York State, where she gave several lectures last week and was the recipient of many kind attentions. At Geneva she read "Current Events from a new stand-point," before the Political Equality Club. At Rochester, the Women's Educational and Industrial Union gave a reception in her honor on Saturday afternoon, and in the evening Mrs. Hall gave her lecture "Personal Reminiscences of Distinguished People." On Monday, she addressed the Political Equality Club of Buffalo, a reception being also given in her honor at the residence of Mrs. Rowney. On Tuesday, Mrs. Hall read "Personal Reminiscences etc" before the Fortnightly Club of Jamestown, N. Y.

ANOTHER LEAGUE?

Baseball Clubs Outside of the City League Discuss Another Organization.

Representatives from four baseball teams met in Reform Hall, Saturday evening, and discussed the advisability of forming a second city league. The organizations represented were the Reform A. A., Clinton Avenue A. A., the Cuban Giants and Orange Field Club.

The Alis Club, one of the four applying for admission to the City League, refused to enter into the scheme. As the others depended upon it largely for support nothing in the way of a definite organization was accomplished. Another meeting is to be held Saturday night.

William Skinner, of West Third street, is confined to the house by a severe attack of grip.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

The Standard Railroad of America.

PROTECTED THROUGHOUT BY THE INTERLOCKING SWITCH AND BLOCK SIGNAL SYSTEM.

ON AND AFTER JAN. 12, 1902.

Trains will leave Plainfield as follows:

7.25 a. m.—Fast Line daily, with Pullman Vestibule Parlor Cars, for Pittsburg and Cincinnati, and Dining Car, for Philadelphia.

8.36 a. m.—Western Express, daily, with Vestibule Sleeping Cars and Dining Car, for Pittsburg and Chicago, except Saturday, for Toledo.

9.07 p. m.—Pacific Express, daily, with Pullman Vestibule Sleeping Cars, for Pittsburg and Chicago, daily for Knoxville, via Shenandoah Valley Route, for Cleveland, except Saturday.

The Southern's Palm Limited—1.50 p.m. week-days.

The Atlantic Coast Line Florida Special—4.05 p.m. daily.

Seaboard Florida Limited—5.07 p. m. daily.

For Baltimore, Washington and the South—1.05, 2.09, 4.07, 7.25, 8.36, 9.07, 10.05 p. m. On Sunday at 1.05, 2.09, 8.36, 9.07, 10.05 and 10.07 p. m.

For Newark and New York—6.02, 6.51, 7.25, 8.00, 8.36, 9.00, 9.07, 9.30, 10.05, 10.07, 10.41, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 12.02, 1.05, 2.09, 3.02, 3.35, 4.07, 4.30, 5.00, 5.07, 5.30, 6.00, 6.07, 6.30, 7.05, 8.00, 8.36, 9.07, 10.05, 10.07, 11.45 p. m. Sundays, 6.02, 6.51, 7.25, 8.00, 8.36, 9.00, 9.07, 9.30, 10.05, 10.07, 10.41, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 12.02, 1.05, 2.09, 3.02, 3.35, 4.07, 4.30, 5.00, 5.07, 5.30, 6.00, 6.07, 6.30, 7.05, 8.00, 8.36, 9.07, 10.05, 10.07, 11.45 p. m.

For New York only, 9.30 a. m., 2.30 p. m.

For Elizabeth, 6.02, 6.51, 7.25, 8.00, 8.36, 9.00, 9.07, 9.30, 10.05, 10.07, 10.41, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 12.02, 1.05, 2.09, 3.02, 3.35, 4.07, 4.30, 5.00, 5.07, 5.30, 6.00, 6.07, 6.30, 7.05, 8.00, 8.36, 9.07, 10.05, 10.07, 11.45 p. m. Sundays, 6.02, 6.51, 7.25, 8.00, 8.36, 9.00, 9.07, 9.30, 10.05, 10.07, 10.41, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 12.02, 1.05, 2.09, 3.02, 3.35, 4.07, 4.30, 5.00, 5.07, 5.30, 6.00, 6.07, 6.30, 7.05, 8.00, 8.36, 9.07, 10.05, 10.07, 11.45 p. m.

For Rahway, 6.02, 6.51, 7.25, 8.00, 8.36, 9.00, 9.07, 9.30, 10.05, 10.07, 10.41, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 12.02, 1.05, 2.09, 3.02, 3.35, 4.07, 4.30, 5.00, 5.07, 5.30, 6.00, 6.07, 6.30, 7.05, 8.00, 8.36, 9.07, 10.05, 10.07, 11.45 p. m. Sundays, 6.02, 6.51, 7.25, 8.00, 8.36, 9.00, 9.07, 9.30, 10.05, 10.07, 10.41, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 12.02, 1.05, 2.09, 3.02, 3.35, 4.07, 4.30, 5.00, 5.07, 5.30, 6.00, 6.07, 6.30, 7.05, 8.00, 8.36, 9.07, 10.05, 10.07, 11.45 p. m.

For Philadelphia, 6.02, 6.51, 7.25, 8.00, 8.36, 9.00, 9.07, 9.30, 10.05, 10.07, 10.41, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 12.02, 1.05, 2.09, 3.02, 3.35, 4.07, 4.30, 5.00, 5.07, 5.30, 6.00, 6.07, 6.30, 7.05, 8.00, 8.36, 9.07, 10.05, 10.07, 11.45 p. m. Sundays, 6.02, 6.51, 7.25, 8.00, 8.36, 9.00, 9.07, 9.30, 10.05, 10.07, 10.41, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 12.02, 1.05, 2.09, 3.02, 3.35, 4.07, 4.30, 5.00, 5.07, 5.30, 6.00, 6.07, 6.30, 7.05, 8.00, 8.36, 9.07, 10.05, 10.07, 11.45 p. m.

For Trenton, 6.02, 6.51, 7.25, 8.00, 8.36, 9.00, 9.07, 9.30, 10.05, 10.07, 10.41, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 12.02, 1.05, 2.09, 3.02, 3.35, 4.07, 4.30, 5.00, 5.07, 5.30, 6.00, 6.07, 6.30, 7.05, 8.00, 8.36, 9.07, 10.05, 10.07, 11.45 p. m. Sundays, 6.02, 6.51, 7.25, 8.00, 8.36, 9.00, 9.07, 9.30, 10.05, 10.07, 10.41, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 12.02, 1.05, 2.09, 3.02, 3.35, 4.07, 4.30, 5.00, 5.07, 5.30, 6.00, 6.07, 6.30, 7.05, 8.00, 8.36, 9.07, 10.05, 10.07, 11.45 p. m.

For Bristol, 6.02, 6.51, 7.25, 8.00, 8.36, 9.00, 9.07, 9.30, 10.05, 10.07, 10.41, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 12.02, 1.05, 2.09, 3.02, 3.35, 4.07, 4.30, 5.00, 5.07, 5.30, 6.00, 6.07, 6.30, 7.05, 8.00, 8.36, 9.07, 10.05, 10.07, 11.45 p. m. Sundays, 6.02, 6.51, 7.25, 8.00, 8.36, 9.00, 9.07, 9.30, 10.05, 10.07, 10.41, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 12.02, 1.05, 2.09, 3.02, 3.35, 4.07, 4.30, 5.00, 5.07, 5.30, 6.00, 6.07, 6.30, 7.05, 8.00, 8.36, 9.07, 10.05, 10.07, 11.45 p. m.

For Atlantic City—10.25 a. m. and 12.35 p. m. week days. Sundays, 8.50 a. m. Through Parlor Cars, Dining Car and Buffet Parlor Car. Stop-over Coupons on week-days. Sleeping Car, Parlor Car, Dining Car and Standard Coaches on Sunday.

For Cape May—1.45 p. m. week-days.

For Delaware, 6.02, 6.51, 7.25, 8.00, 8.36, 9.00, 9.07, 9.30, 10.05, 10.07, 10.41, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 12.02, 1.05, 2.09, 3.02, 3.35, 4.07, 4.30, 5.00, 5.07, 5.30, 6.00, 6.07, 6.30, 7.05, 8.00, 8.36, 9.07, 10.05, 10.07, 11.45 p. m. Sundays, 6.02, 6.51, 7.25, 8.00, 8.36, 9.00, 9.07, 9.30, 10.05, 10.07, 10.41, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 12.02, 1.05, 2.09, 3.02, 3.35, 4.07, 4.30, 5.00, 5.07, 5.30, 6.00, 6.07, 6.30, 7.05, 8.00, 8.36, 9.07, 10.05, 10.07, 11.45 p. m.

For Perth Amboy—7.44, 9.05, 11.07 a. m., 12.35, 3.07 and 5.36 p. m. week-days. Sundays—9.05, 11.45 a. m. and 10.15 p. m.

For East Millstone—7.10 a. m., 12.35, 3.07 and 5.36 p. m. week-days.

For Trenton—6.10, 7.10, 8.05, 8.36, 9.07, 9.30, 10.05, 10.40 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.05, 1.27, 2.09, 3.02, 3.35, 4.07, 4.30, 5.00, 5.30, 6.00, 6.30, 7.05, 8.00, 8.36, 9.07, 10.05 p. m. Sundays—8.05, 9.30, 10.40 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.27, 3.35, 5.30, 6.30, 8.36, 9.07, 10.05 p. m.

For Long Branch, Asbury Park, Ocean Grove and Point Pleasant—8.36, 11.00 a. m., 2.09 and 5.07 p. m.—9.45 a. m., 12.16, and 6.45 p. m. Sunday, 11.45 a. m., 12.16, 2.14, 5.14, 6.45 p. m. Saturday nights, week-days—10.05 p. m. Stop at Interlaken for Asbury Park and Ocean Grove on Sundays.

For Lakewood, Atlantic City through trains connect at Jersey City with boats of Pennsylvania Railroad. Direct transfer to Cortlandt from Fulton Street, avoiding double ferriage and journey across New York City.

For New York, Long Branch and Shore points, Twenty-third Street Station—4.15, 7.55, 9.35, 10.45 a. m., 12.15, 1.45, 3.45, 4.45, 5.45, 7.15, 8.15, 10.00 p. m. Sundays—1.30, 4.15, 5.45, 7.15, 8.15, 10.00 p. m. Stop at Elizabeth for Long Branch and Shore points on Sundays.

For Rockaway, Dover and Intermediate points, 9.35 a. m. week-days. Sundays—4.15 p. m.

For Somerville and Easton, 9.35 a. m. week-days.

For time from Dunellen and Cornbrook consult local time-tables to be procured from agents.

W. W. ATTERBURY, Gen'l Manager. J. R. WOOD, Gen'l Pass. Agent.

Vegetable and Flower SEEDS

Reliable and Tested. Catalogue Mailed Free

WEEBER & DON

Seed Merchants 114 CHAMBERS STREET NEW YORK

A. WOLFF,

Manufacturer of

CIGARS.

And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers articles, has removed from 301 West Front street, to north side of Somerset street first door from Front street, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

AGENTS WANTED.

LIFE OF T. DEWITT TALMAGE, by his son, REV. FRANK DEWITT TALMAGE and associate editors of Christian Herald. Only book endorsed by Talmage family. Enormous profit for agents who act quickly. Outfit 50 cents. Write immediately CLARK & CO., 737 S. Fourth Street, Phila., Pa. Mention this paper. 2 18

GEORGE W. DAY,

General Auctioneer.

Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 132, Dunellen, N. J., or at dress in care of Constitutionalist Terms reasonable

Woolston & Buckle,

PAINTERS.

Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies

141-145 North avenue.

Entertained Friends.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Dodd, of East Fifth street, entertained a party of twelve young friends at their home, Saturday evening. Music, games and dancing were features of the gathering that proved a delightful combination. An elaborate repast was served shortly before midnight.

Reading System

New Jersey Central.

Stations in New York foot of Liberty, and South Ferry, Whitehall Streets.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT, Feb. 2, 1902.

For New York—4.11, 5.15, 5.55, 6.25, 6.40, 7.10, 7.25, 7.40, 8.00, 8.10, 8.25, 8.40, 8.55, 9.10, 9.25, 9.40, 10.00, 10.10, 10.25, 10.40, 10.55, 11.10, 11.25, 11.40, 11.55 a. m., 12.10, 12.25, 12.40, 12.55, 1.10, 1.25, 1.40, 1.55, 2.10, 2.25, 2.40, 2.55, 3.10, 3.25, 3.40, 3.55, 4.10, 4.25, 4.40, 4.55, 5.10, 5.25, 5.40, 5.55, 6.10, 6.25, 6.40, 6.55, 7.10, 7.25, 7.40, 8.00, 8.10, 8.25, 8.40, 8.55, 9.10, 9.25, 9.40, 10.00, 10.10, 10.25, 10.40, 10.55, 11.10, 11.25, 11.40, 11.55 p. m. Sundays—4.11, 5.15, 5.55, 6.25, 6.40, 7.10, 7.25, 7.40, 8.00, 8.10, 8.25, 8.40, 8.55, 9.10, 9.25, 9.40, 10.00, 10.10, 10.25, 10.40, 10.55, 11.10, 11.25, 11.40, 11.55 a. m., 12.10, 12.25, 12.40, 12.55, 1.10, 1.25, 1.40, 1.55, 2.10, 2.25, 2.40, 2.55, 3.10, 3.25, 3.40, 3.55, 4.10, 4.25, 4.40, 4.55, 5.10, 5.25, 5.40, 5.55, 6.10, 6.25, 6.40, 6.55, 7.10, 7.25, 7.40, 8.00, 8.10, 8.25, 8.40, 8.55, 9.10, 9.25, 9.40, 10.00, 10.10, 10.25, 10.40, 10.55, 11.10, 11.25, 11.40, 11.55 p. m.

For Somerville—4.11, 5.15, 6.25, 7.10, 8.00, 8.10, 8.25, 8.40, 8.55, 9.10, 9.25, 9.40, 10.00, 10.10, 10.25, 10.40, 10.55, 11.10, 11.25, 11.40, 11.55 a. m., 12.10, 12.25, 12.40, 12.55, 1.10, 1.25, 1.40, 1.55, 2.10, 2.25, 2.40, 2.55, 3.10, 3.25, 3.40, 3.55, 4.10, 4.25, 4.40, 4.55, 5.10, 5.25, 5.40, 5.55, 6.10, 6.25, 6.40, 6.55, 7.10, 7.25, 7.40, 8.00, 8.10, 8.25, 8.40, 8.55, 9.10, 9.25, 9.40, 10.00, 10.10, 10.25, 10.40, 10.55, 11.10, 11.25, 11.40, 11.55 p. m. Sundays—4.11, 5.15, 6.25, 7.10, 8.00, 8.10, 8.25, 8.40, 8.55, 9.10, 9.25, 9.40, 10.00, 10.10, 10.25, 10.40, 10.55, 11.10, 11.25, 11.40, 11.55 a. m., 12.10, 12.25, 12.40, 12.55, 1.10, 1.25, 1.40, 1.55, 2.10, 2.25, 2.40, 2.55, 3.10, 3.25, 3.40, 3.55, 4.10, 4.25, 4.40, 4.55, 5.10, 5.25, 5.40, 5.55, 6.10, 6.25, 6.40, 6.55, 7.10, 7.25, 7.40, 8.00, 8.10, 8.25, 8.40, 8.55, 9.10, 9.25, 9.40, 10.00, 10.10, 10.25, 10.40, 10.55, 11.10, 11.25, 11.40, 11.55 p. m.

For Bound Brook—4.11, 5.15, 6.25, 7.10, 8.00, 8.10, 8.25, 8.40, 8.55, 9.10, 9.25, 9.40, 10.00, 10.10, 10.25, 10.40, 10.55, 11.10, 11.25, 11.40, 11.55 a. m., 12.10, 12.25, 12.40, 12.55, 1.10, 1.25, 1.40, 1.55, 2.10, 2.25, 2.40, 2.55, 3.10, 3.25, 3.40, 3.55, 4.10, 4.25, 4.40, 4.55, 5.10, 5.25, 5.40, 5.55, 6.10, 6.25, 6.40, 6.55, 7.10, 7.25, 7.40, 8.00, 8.10, 8.25, 8.40, 8.55, 9.10, 9.25, 9.40, 10.00, 10.10, 10.25, 10.40, 10.55, 11.10, 11.25, 11.40, 11.55 p. m. Sundays—4.11, 5.15, 6.25, 7.10, 8.00, 8.10, 8.25, 8.40, 8.55, 9.10, 9.25, 9.40, 10.00, 10.10, 10.25, 10.40, 10.55, 11.10, 11.25, 11.40, 11.55 a. m., 12.10, 12.25, 12.40, 12.55, 1.10, 1.25, 1.40, 1.55, 2.10, 2.25, 2.40, 2.55, 3.10, 3.25, 3.40, 3.55, 4.10, 4.25, 4.40, 4.55, 5.10, 5.25, 5.40, 5.55, 6.10, 6.25, 6.40, 6.55, 7.10, 7.25, 7.40, 8.00, 8.10, 8.25, 8.40, 8.55, 9.10, 9.25, 9.40, 10.00, 10.10, 10.25, 10.40, 10.55, 11.10, 11.25, 11.40, 11.55 p. m.

For Baltimore and Washington—2.14, 11.34 a. m., 12.11, 4.13 (Parlor cars only, Royal Blue) p. m. Sundays—2.14, 11.34 a. m., 12.11, 4.13 (Parlor cars only, Royal Blue) p. m.

For Reading and Harrisburg—8.11, 9.25, 9.55, 11.34 a. m., 12.11, 4.13 (Royal Blue) p. m. Sundays—8.11, 9.55 a. m., 4.13 p. m.

For Pottsville, Sunbury and Williamsport—8.11, 9.55 a. m., 4.13 p. m. Sundays—9.55 a. m., 4.13 p. m.

For Baltimore and Washington—2.14, 11.34 a. m., 12.11, 4.13 (Parlor cars only, Royal Blue) p. m. Sundays—2.14, 11.34 a. m., 12.11, 4.13 (Parlor cars only, Royal Blue) p. m.

Chicago cars at Bound Brook.

C. G. HANCOCK, Vice Pres. & Gen. Man'r.

C. H. BURT, Gen. Pass. Agent.

Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Time Table in Effect February 4, 1902.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Leave South Plainfield 10 34 a. m.

Daily (except Sunday) local to Mauch Chunk, connecting with the Black Diamond express for Hazleton, Niagara Falls, Detroit and Chicago.

Leave South Plainfield 4 46 p. m.

Daily, Solid Vestibule train for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Toronto, Detroit, Chicago and Cincinnati. Sleeping cars to Buffalo, except Rochester.

For time of local trains see pocket time-tables. Telephone No. 115-B

FRANK ROWLEY, City Ticket Agent, 218 West Front Street, Plainfield, N. J.

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POSTOFFICE.

Office opens 7 a. m., closes 7 p. m.

On Saturday's, closes at 12 o'clock noon.

NEW YORK MAILS.

Arrive—7.00, 8.00, 11.00 a. m., 2.00, 5.00, 6.00, 8.00 p. m. Sundays—7.00, 8.00, 11.00 a. m., 5.00, 8.00 p. m.

Close—7.00, 8.00, 11.00 a. m., 2.00, 5.00, 6.00, 8.00 p. m. Sundays—8.00 a. m., 5.00 p. m.

SOMERVILLE and BASTON.

Arrive—9.00 a. m., 2.30 and 7.00 p. m.

Close—9.00 a. m., 2.30 and 7.00 p. m.

ELIZABETH—Direct.

Close—1.30 p. m.

PENNSYLVANIA—West of Boston

Close 12.00 p. m.

NEWARK—Direct.

Arrive—9.00 a. m., 2.30, 7.00 p. m.

Close—9.00 a. m., 1.30 and 7.00 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—7.00, 9.00, 11.00 a. m., 2.30 and 7.00 p. m.

Close—9.00 a. m., 1.30 and 7.00 p. m.

Through fast mail for West and South clos

CLEVER CROOK OUTWITS POLICE

"Professor Litten," Who Has Operated in Plainfield, Escapes From Scranton Jail.

GAVE $2,000 AS SECURITY

Chief Kiely, of This City, Arrived a Few Hours After He Had Been Released From Jail—He Swindled Women in This Place Out of $800.

Wanted by the police of 100 cities, John Hazel, with a dozen aliases, was arrested and then let go at Scranton, Pa., Thursday, just a few hours before Chief Kiely of the local department, arrived to take him in charge. He was released on $2,000 cash bail, furnished by himself, without the knowledge of the Scranton police and immediately decamped. He was tracked twenty miles out in the country where all trace of him was lost.

Hazel is regarded by detectives and sleuths in every part of the country as one of the slickest swindlers that ever operated in the states. He generally works his graft under the guise of a clairvoyant and trance medium, his victims in nearly every case being women or servant girls. He has been known alternately as R. H. E. Waite, Dr. Hamilton and Professor Litten. Under the latter alias he operated in this city about eighteen months ago and got away with $800, all taken from poor women. One lot of $500 was taken from a West End victim and represented the savings of a life time.

At that time Chief Kiely made a determined effort to capture the man and received assurance from the head detective bureaus that he would be given the first chance at Hazel once he was captured. The fellow was heard from at various places, always getting away, until Thursday, when the Scranton superintendent of police telegraphed that Hazel was in jail and the Plainfield authorities could have him.

Chief Kiely left at once and arrived in Scranton, Thursday night. He was dumbfounded to find that the swindler had again outwitted the police and was at large. There was nothing for him to do but return and he is now waiting for news of Hazel from some other quarter as he has never been known to let an arrest keep him from operating.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Mrs. E. B. Doremus Passes Away After Appoletic Stroke.

Mrs. Rhoda B. Doremus, widow of the late Francis J. Doremus, died suddenly on Saturday at her home, 43 Prospect place, following an attack of apoplexy. She resided in this city for fifteen years, after which she took up her residence with her daughter at Orange for a time. Four years ago she returned to Plainfield, where she remained up to the time of her death.

She leaves two daughters, Mrs. W. C. Townsend, of Batavia, N. Y., and Mrs. F. J. Trost, of Orange; two sons, Monroe Doremus, of Geneseo, Ill., and John Doremus, of Green Village, N. J., also a sister, Mrs. Caroline Smith, of Passaic. The funeral services were held from the late home Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock and the interment was in the family plot at Chatham, N. J.

NEW WARREN CHAPEL SITE.

Option Secured on Ground at Fairview and Watchung Avenues.

The members of Warren chapel have secured an option on the lot at the corner of Watchung and Fairview avenues, belonging to Councilman Robert Clark, Jr., and it now seems an assured fact that a new edifice will be erected in the near future. This has been made possible through the generous gift of $5,000 by James Clark, of West Seventh street. Other gifts have also been promised. The present chapel and property will be sold and the proceeds will be used in erecting the new place of worship.

Quietly Married.

A quiet wedding was solemnized Saturday evening at the home of Rev. Dr. E. L. Earp, pastor of Grace M. E. church. The contracting couple was Harry Yawger, of Morristown, and Miss Florence Louise Annese, of this city. The witnesses were Charles Messersmith and Miss Olga K. Lockert. After the ceremony had been performed the newly married couple took a train for an extended wedding tour in the south.

Lenox Whist Club Dance.

The Lenox Whist Club is making preparations for a dance which will be given at the Casino on April 28. The dance is being arranged on an elaborate scale and a most enjoyable evening is anticipated.

LAST EXTENSION LECTURE

PROFESSOR ZEUBLIN COMPLETES THE INSTRUCTIVE COURSE AT Y. M. C. A.

Subject "Public Wealth" Was Ably Handled and Revealed Facts of National Interest.

Professor Charles Zeublin, of the University of Chicago extension course, gave the last of a series of lectures Saturday evening at the Y. M. C. A. His subject was "Public Wealth" and it was well handled. The course of lectures has been well attended and much interest has been shown in them by the people of this city.

The speaker said that the object of government is to insure a free life for each citizen. This, he said, necessitates the relaxation of many old restrictions and the imposition of new, especially economical regulations. Public functions are naturally being extended. Where the consumption of a commodity is compulsory there the government should undertake its provision and where no pecuniary return is received for the supply of any commodity or service, it is the function of the government to undertake it. Where the service is furnished irrespective of cost, it must of necessity be assumed by the government and where the good of the community demands that the consumption of any commodity or service be as great as possible there government intervention is necessary.

On the contrary, where it is desirable that the consumption be as small as possible, public regulation is necessary and the government should control all monopolies. Another form of necessary governmental control is found in the execution of public works. Other services in which public control is necessary are those which make possible an improved standard of consumption.

The speaker declared that public ownership promotes private initiative and good citizenship. The public ownership provides for the coming generation and thus fulfills the community's law of life. It also sustains and raises the standard of living of the workers.

THREE MORE EVENTS.

Novice Contest at Y. M. C. A. Getting Interesting and Drawing Crowds.

Three more events in the novice contest at the Y. M. C. A. was run off Saturday night. Many spectators occupied seats in the gallery and took much interest in the various events, which were the standing high jump, the running high dive and the potato race.

Walter McNaughton won the standing high jump by clearing the tape at 5 feet 11 inches. All the other contestants in this event tied at different heights. Scull and Koons tied at 3 feet 10 inches, Bentliff and Smith tied at 3 feet 9 inches and Swaim and Collins tied at 3 feet 8½ inches.

The potato race was one of the most exciting events of the evening. McNaughton and Smith tied at 1:50 1-5. The tie will be run off later. Other positions at the close of the race were: Koons, 1:50¾; Scull, 1:51 3-5; Sebring, 1:54 4-5; F. Neal, 1:56 4-5; Collins, 1:58 3-5; Martin, 1:59.

The running high dive was won by Walter McNaughton who cleared 5 feet 8 inches. Other scores were: Bentliff, 4 feet 11 inches; Tice, 4 feet 10 inches; Collins, 4 feet 9 inches; Smith, 4 feet 3 inches and Neal 5 feet 3 inches.

The official scorer was Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood. He has not yet given out the events for next Saturday evening.

MORE THAN A THOUSAND.

Depositors of the Plainfield Trust Company Increasing in Number.

The Plainfield Trust Company reports that the number of its depositors has now passed the thousand mark. This institution has in its ten months of business had a remarkable growth; its capital now amounting to nearly $600,000. It transacts a regular banking business and allows three per cent. interest on balances of $300, or more, subject to check. This liberal interest feature has induced many to place money awaiting investment on deposit with the company. The steady and rapid growth that the trust company has experienced is undoubtedly due in a great measure to its very strong and influential board of directors.

Wont Accept Money.

Because of his conscientious scruples, Walter Hardingham, of Dunellen avenue, father of Fred Hardingham who was killed in the Westfield wreck, refuses to accept any money damages from the New Jersey Central officials, for his son's death. He believes the boy's death was an act of Providence and will not allow himself to profit thereby, although he has been offered a large sum by the company.

Walter Hand, of Elmwood place, is quite ill at his home with an attack of bronchial pneumonia.

BOROUGH SCHOOL BOARD STARTS FISCAL YEAR

List of Committees Prepared by President Joy Submitted —The Routine Business.

DR. BUCHANAN'S REPORT

WATCHFULNESS OF TEACHERS HAS PREVENTED SPREAD OF DISEASE.

Report From Tax Collector Brown Shows Neat Balance on Hand—Adjournment Until Special Meeting Monday Night.

Besides appointing the standing committees for the year and paying some bills, nothing of importance was transacted at Monday meeting of the Borough Board of Education when it met in its first regular meeting of the new fiscal year. In spite of the inclemency of the weather all the members were present.

President of the Board James R. Joy named his committees as follows: Finance, John Valiant, chairman; Samuel Townsend and Robert Fountain; teachers' salaries and text books, James R. Joy, chairman; John Valiant and A. V. D. Honeyman; supplies, Hiram A. Woodruff, chairman; Dr. Cooley and Robert Fountain; grievances and truancy, Samuel Townsend, chairman; Edwin A. Overton and Murray Burtis; buildings and grounds, Dr. J. H. Cooley, chairman; E. A. Overton and Murray Burtis; auditing committee, John Valiant, chairman and Hiram A. Woodruff. A special committee was appointed to arrange for the commencement exercises. It comprises Dr. J. H. Cooley, A. V. D. Honeyman and the supervising principal, Homer J. Wightman, who is an ex-officio member of the committees.

The finance committee looked over a number of bills and offered a resolution that warrants be drawn by the president and clerk for their payment. The bills amounted to $355 56 for general expenses; $44.47 for manual training and $12.84 for library purposes.

By request of Superintendent Wightman a helper was ordered secured for the janitor of the Somerset street school at a salary not to exceed $30 per month. A communication in the shape of a report of the school physician, J. Hervey Buchanan, was received and read by the clerk.

It showed that during the past year, 628 cases were examined through the blanks furnished by the board. The result of the investigations were that eight pupils were found to have enlarged tonsils, 23 had an affection of the sight and three showed symptoms of having a defect in the hearing, and a few cases were found of mild illness of a varied character.

Dr. Buchanan closed his report by saying that the care of the teachers in looking after the health of the children and detecting the first stages of any contagious disease, had prevented their spread in the school.

A report from Collector George F. Brown showed that there was a balance on hand of $9,884 50.

A special meeting of the board is to be held Monday evening.

REDUCED RATES TO NEW ORLEANS.

Via Pennsylvania Railroad, Account Meeting National Manufacturers' Association.

On account of the meeting of the National Manufacturers' Association at New Orleans, April 15 to 17, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets to New Orleans and return, April 11, 12, and 13, good going on date of sale, and good returning to reach original starting point not later than April 19, from all points on its lines, at reduced rates. By depositing ticket with joint agent at New Orleans between April 12 and 19, and payment of fee of fifty cents, an extension of return limit may be obtained to reach starting point not later than April 30.

Amicably Settled.

A landlord and tenant case was returnable in Justice Mattison's court, Saturday, but before it was brought to trial it was settled out of court. The principals in the case were John W. Codington against Jas. Codington.

Next Attractions.

The Swedish Ladies' Quartette and Miss Edith M. Norton will entertain in the supplemental course of the Y. M. C. A., Thursday, April 28. April 30 will be the date of the last entertainment in the course.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS MEET

D. E. TITSWORTH AGAIN MADE SUPERINTENDENT—THE OTHER OFFICERS.

Reports Presented—All of Encouraging Character—Many Contributions During the Year.

The annual Sabbath-school meeting was held last Sunday at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, when reports for the past year were received and officers were elected. Superintendent David E. Titsworth called the meeting to order, after which J. P. Mosher was made chairman and George L. Babcock secretary. The reports were all of an encouraging character. The average attendance of the school each week has been 100 and during the year there have been eighteen additions to the school. The treasurer reported all bills paid and a balance on hand.

In the election of David E. Titsworth as superintendent, this marks the beginning of his twentieth year of consecutive service in this office. The other officers chosen are as follows: Assistant superintendents, H. M. Maxson and Asa F. Randolph; recording secretary, Miss Louella Clawson; treasurer, Miss Ermeline C. Smith; librarian, Charles Neagle; pianist, Miss Mabel Maxson.

The superintendent took occasion to refer to the contributions made during the year to all the city charities, as well as to many outside appeals.

HOW TO SEND PACKAGES

ARMY OFFICER EXPLAINS METHOD OF SHIPMENTS TO PHILIPPINE SOLDIERS.

Government Bears Cost of Transportation to Manila, But Places Restrictions.

D. D. Wheeler, assistant quartermaster general, U. S. Army, with headquarters at the Army Building, Whitehall street, New York, has issued a letter which will be of interest to many persons, including church societies in Plainfield. The letter reads as follows:

"Owing to the fact that many persons write for particulars relative to forwarding of reading matter to the soldiers in the Philippine islands, the following information is given for the guidance of all concerned:

"At this depot no reading matter of any kind is accepted by the Government for shipment unless all delivery charges from initial point of shipment to the Army Building, 39 Whitehall street, New York City, are prepaid. As the charges for freight between New York and Manila are borne by the Government, the reading matter must consist only of standard books and good novels and magazines of recent date, otherwise the property would not be worth the cost of transportation. Packages may be consigned to the various organizations on duty in the Philippines, to the general hospital or to the American Library, Manila, P. I., but in no case can packages be accepted when addressed to individuals, neither will the Government assume any charges for transportation beyond the City of Manila.

"All packages are to be plainly marked, properly packed for so long a voyage and sent in care of the 'depot quartermaster,' New York City, and the prepaid receipt forwarded to this office by mail. The above conditions cannot be deviated from for any cause."

TERMINAL AT CAPITAL.

Work Will Soon be Started on New Union Station at Washington.

Work on the new union terminal at Washington, D. C., will be commenced in a few weeks, and it is expected to be completed in three years. The total cost will approximate $14,000,000, of which $5,000,000 will be borne by the District of Columbia, the remainder being divided almost equally between the Baltimore & Ohio and the Pennsylvania. The station building will be of Massachusetts granite, and will cost $4,000,000, and will be a handsome structure, thoroughly in keeping with the Government style of architecture. The train-shed will contain twenty-eight tracks, which will, no doubt, afford adequate facilities for the handling of large crowds during the inaugural celebration and other large meetings in Washington.

THREE YEARS PAST.

Anniversary of Marriage Was Celebrated With a Surprise.

A pleasant surprise was given Mr. and Mrs. John Astee, of East Front street, Friday evening, the occasion being the third anniversary of their marriage. When Mr. Astee went home early in the evening he found that a number of his friends had taken possession and were making themselves perfectly at home. Before the guests departed, refreshments were served.

James G. Hoffman, of Milltown, N. J., was a guest of friends on Watchung avenue, yesterday.

BRIGHT FUTURE FOR CITY'S SOLDIER BOYS

While Banquetting, Company K Hears of Passage of Armory Bill by the Assembly.

MEDALS FOR SHOOTING

SECOND ANNUAL DINNER OF COMPANY K IS A GREAT SUCCESS.

The Soldier Boys and Their Friends Gather at Hotel Rosell—Captain Martin Acts As Toast-Master—Those Who Receive Medals.

Amid stories, cheers and a feast of good things the members of Company K recounted its successes and disappointments and incidentally built a new armory at the second annual dinner, given last Monday at the Hotel Rosell. It was a great night for the soldier boys and everyone, including the honored guests, enjoyed themselves fully. Plainfield's military company was praised to the echo for its good work in the past, and when, during the dinner, Captain Martin announced that he had just received word from Assemblyman Newcorn at Trenton that the armory bill, which was reconsidered, had passed the Lower House by a vote of 36 to 5, the applause and cheers were deafening. Congratulations were sent as once to Mr. Newcorn.

This news stirred the hearts of all and revived an interest in Plainfield's chances for an armory. It seemed to be the unanimous opinion that these chances are good, as city and county officials present assured the officers and members that they would do all possible for the success of the movement.

Captain Martin was the toast-master for the evening and he made a few happy introductory remarks in which he praised his company and spoke of the excellent record made since he took command. He said that during the first month the average attendance at drills was forty-five, the second month forty-three and he believed this month it would be still better. He said he was proud of the company and he wanted Plainfield to be also, and he said that he would not be satisfied until it is second to none in the State.

Mayor O. L. Jenkins, who occupied a seat of honor, was the next speaker and he, too, praised the company for its success. He was glad the armory bill had passed the Lower House and was sure that if it became a law, the people of Plainfield would do their share in supporting such a project. He promised his support and said he would write a personal letter to Senator Cross urging the passage of the bill in the Senate.

Col. Collins, of Elizabeth, was then introduced and he made one of the best speeches of the evening. He joined heartily in Company K's festivities and at the same time gave some excellent advice. He said it was possible for the company to be the leading one in the State. He hoped that the members would never forget to be gentlemanly at all times and thus honor the uniform they wear.

Other excellent speeches followed by Freeholder Wm. A. Westphal, Councilmen J. F. Bucle, Robert L. Lee and Clarence L. Murphy, in which they promised their influence and support for the new armory. They said that they were proud of Company K's showing. The former captain of the company, Dr. W. Kempton Browning, was called upon and he gave an interesting review of the work during his command. In conclusion, happy and appropriate remarks were made by Former Lieutenant J. P. Mosher and Captain John Wharly, of Company M, of Somerville, who were guests also.

All of these pleasantries followed the most excellent dinner served by Proprietor Rosell, for which there were nothing but words of praise.

Prior to the dinner and after the company drill at the headquarters on East Second street, marksmen's decorations were presented to those who won them last summer at Sea Girt. This work was particularly gratifying by reason of the fact that Company K won first in marksmanship, leading the other fifty-three companies in the State. The presentations were made by Col. Collins.

Those who won decorations are as follows:

Experts—Captain W. B. Martin, Captain W. Kempton Browning, Sergeant A. I. Littell, Corporals A. R. Phillips and Eugene Searing. Sharpshooters—Sergeants C. A. Peterson and Edgar R. Pearsall, Corporals O. Harold Whitney, Nathaniel Hort, Elias Giles, deceased, Privates J. Kenneth Anderson, A. E. Galloway, C. B. Pope, Walter Sampson and Howard Terhune. Marksmen—Lieutenants John M. Lewis and Harry Kitchell, Sergeants P. R. Cregar, Asa F. Randolph, A. M. Seidens, Corporals Oliver Pearson, George Agnar, Clarence Bilyeu, Private Conklin, Harry Bogart, Charles Bowden, Clayton Coe, Stanley Emmons, Robert Goldsack, Charles Glaenzer, W. B. Harsel, J. S. Johnston, Richard LaTourette, F. M. Letson, Harry Manning, W. H. Meegler, W. B. Mosher, Edward Mosher, A. G. Niles, J. L. Niles, Charles Overbaugh, Nelson Peterson, Stephen Stover, Nathaniel R. Titsworth, John Turner, Percy Vail, Elmer Walker, Vernon Waters, Frank Wikoff, Harry Wyckoff, W. E. Stewart. The last named member is in the honorary class. Those who received 100 per cent. for attendance at drills and who were presented with medals were Sergeants A. I. Littell, Corporals G. Harold Whitney, A. R. Phillips, Clarence Bilyeu, Trenchard, First Sergeant C. A. Peterson, First Lieutenant J. M. Lewis and Private J. L. Niles.

TAX RATE.

Council Members Believe That It Will Not Go Above 2.50 This Year.

There was a meeting of the Common Council, as a committee of the whole, last evening, when matters pertaining to the tax budget for the coming year were discussed. While there will be increases in nearly all of the department and some salaries have been raised, the Council does not believe that the tax rate will be over 2.50 for the coming year.

Of course, the county rate may be the means of increasing Plainfield's rate, but the Council is hoping that this will not be true. The members feel quite proud of the past year's record as to finance and it will be the effort to maintain that record.

Home From Long Trip.

Captain and Mrs. Stuart and daughter, Miss Ines Stuart, of Orange place, returned home Friday from a long trip on Captain Stuart's sailing vessel the "Virginia." While away the party visited the Canary Islands and the last port touched before reaching home was Santa Cruz, Cuba. Captain Stuart and his family started on the trip last November and it was a delightful one throughout.

Fell Twenty Feet.

Edward Hobby, of West Third street, is detained at home with a severely sprained wrist and numerous bruises recived by an accident, Saturday afternoon. He was standing on a ladder when it turned suddenly and threw him to the ground a distance of twenty feet. He was attended by Dr. VanHorn.

—Mr. and Mrs. Linsdey Woolley and Mrs. Henry VanMiddlesworth and family, of West Front street, moved yesterday to Oxford place.

—J. VanBoss, formerly editor of the Warren Tidings, of Washington, has resigned his position to accept one with a New York paper as advertising manager.

—The Ladies' Aid Society of St. Peter's German Lutheran church will meet at the home of Mrs. Fred. W. Gray, 934 Hillside avenue, this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

—"Where there's a will there's a way." The "way" to an account with the First National Bank is open to you; the "will" is for you to exercise. The mail will bring your deposits to them. The mail will also distribute your checks.

THIS REMEDY IS SURE TO GIVE SATISFACTION.
Ely's Cream Balm
Gives relief at once.
It cleanses, soothes and heals the diseased membrane. It cures where all else fails. Apply a balm in each nostril and it is quickly absorbed. It is agreeable. Sizes 50 cents at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size 10c by mail.
ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York
CATARRH
HAY FEVER

CERTIFICATE EXTENDING CHARTER

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
Office of Comptroller of the Currency,
Washington, D. C., February 7th, 1903.
WHEREAS, by satisfactory evidence presented to the undersigned it has been made to appear that THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF PLAINFIELD, located in the city of Plainfield, in the County of Union, and State of New Jersey, has complied with all the provisions of the Act of Congress "to enable National Banking Associations to extend their corporate existence and for other purposes," approved July 12, 1882, as amended by the Act, approved April 12, 1900.
NOW, THEREFORE, I, WILLIAM B. RIDGLEY, Comptroller of the Currency, do hereby certify that the First National Bank of Plainfield is authorized to act as the City of Plainfield in the County of Union, and State of New Jersey, is authorized to have succession for the period specified in its re-organization certificate of February, until close of business on February 24, 1923.
IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF witness my hand and seal of office this twenty-fourth day of February, 1903.
WILLIAM B. RIDGLEY,
Comptroller of the Currency.
Charter No. 6246. First National Bank of Plainfield, Extension No. 226. 3-5

DIED

WATERS—In this city, March 25, 1903, Patrick H. Waters.

KNEELAND—In this city, March 28, 1903, Mary E. Kneeland, daughter of Patrick Kneeland, in her 9th year.

DOREMUS—On Saturday, March 28, 1903, Rhoda B., widow of Francis Doremus, in her 88th year.

SMITH—On Saturday, March 28, 1903, Nelly Uddle, wife of Clarence W. Smith, aged 28 years, 2 months, 28 days.

BRAMBLE—On Tuesday, March 31, 1903, William H., infant son of James N. and Jane Bramble.

Sanitary Plumbing
Brick and Portable Furnace
Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing,
Etc., Etc., Etc.
I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.
Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in all cases.
D. W. LITTELL,
No. 112 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.
Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.
A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!
My new barber shop at
143 NORTH AVE.
is now open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the tonsorial line.
EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

CARNEY BROS.,
MADISON AVENUE,
Between Front and Second streets
Tinners,
Plumbers
Gas Fitters,
Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

DIME
Savings Institution,
Of Plainfield, N. J.,
Is now receiving deposits with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.
J. FRANK HUBBARD, President.
GEO. W. BOCKFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.
Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

Guaranteed Salary $900 YEARLY.
Men and women of good address to represent us, some to travel, others supervising agents, others for local work looking after our interests. $900 salary guaranteed. Yearly extra commissions and bonus. Position permanent, old established house. Grand opportunity for man or woman to secure pleasant, permanent position, liberal increase and future. New, brilliant lines. Write at once.
STAFFORD PRESS,
23 Church st., New Haven, Conn

W. B. CODINGTON,
Counsellor-at-Law
Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-Chancery, Notary Public. Office Corner of Park avenue and Second street.

ALBERT HEDDEN
Livery & Boarding Stables
FOURTH ST.,
between Watchung and Park avenues. First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

Wm. A. Woodruff,
Fire and Life
INSURANCE AGENT,
OFFICE,
corner Front St. and Park Avenue,
Plainfield, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale or Exchange
Money to loan on Approved Security

PRINCETON MEN HOLD BANQUET

Annual Dinner of the Union County Graduates Held in This City Last Thursday.

AT PARK AVENUE HOTEL

Elaborate Decorations, Unique Bills of Fare, Excellent Menu and Addresses by Prominent Men Combined to Make It a Great Success.

Yellow and black, the colors of Princeton University, predominated at the banquet of the Princeton Club, of Union county, when that organization held its annual dinner, Thursday night, at the Park Avenue hotel. The banquet was one of the finest ever prepared at that hostelry and the enthusiasm waxed warm during the evening when vivid recollections of college days, now past, were brought again to mind in story, song or speech. The old college yells and cells were shouted again by collegians who have become prominent in different professions, but who for a few hours permitted themselves to be carried back to the happy days at old Nassau.

The menu was prepared in a very attractive manner and the several courses were indeed a credit to Mrs. Wagstaff, who has recently taken the hotel under her management. On the outside of the menu card was a hand painted Princeton flag, the whole tied with a yellow and black bow. About the room the "Tiger" colors prevailed in every nook and corner. At the eastern end was hung a large banner on which was the word "Princeton," in large black letters while in front of the flag stood a bank of yellow jonquils. Beside each plate at the tables were little boutonnieres of the same flower tied with black ribbon. Through the centre of the tables ran a tapered strip of yellow and black sweting. About the rooms were hung festoons of banting fastened here and there with banners bearing the class numerals of each class represented in the club. The effect was pleasing and very appropriate.

Those who sat down to the banquet were Walter Gaston, president; Rev. H. E. Mott, toastmaster; Dr. P. W. Brakeley, H. C. J. English, Craig A. Marsh, Rev. Professor Thomas C. Hall, of Princeton; Rev. Dr. Henry Elliott, of Princeton; Prof. Paul Van Dyke, of Princeton; S. St. John Mc*Cutchen, and Judge E. D. Atwater,* of Elizabeth. These sat at the head of the table and among them were the principal speakers of the evening. Others present were: Augustus Van-Deventer, Dr. R. W. Hedges, John T. Baker, O. G. Waring, J. P. Murray, E. J. Patterson, Rev. W. E. Rommell, H. C. Munger, Dr. William H. Murray, George P. Mellick, Dr. B. van D. Hedges, D. W. Taylor, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, Gardner Miller, Conover English, S. H. Chidester, Henry O. Irons, James Hayes, William Atkinson, Mr. Shellenbarger, H. R. Waltsman, F. W. Morris, R. L. Mack, Mr. Scott, H. P. Howe, Schuyler Cady, John A. Bernard, Irving W. Clark, Knox Taylor, R. W. Bailey, McCready Sykes and Mr. Truesdale, Mr. Hack, Mr. Miller and Mr. Murray, who constituted a quartette from the college.

During the dinner the quartette sang several of the college songs which served to awaken enthusiasm in the breasts of those present. After the last course had been served and the cigarettes had been lighted, the toastmaster, Rev. Dr. Henry Elliott Mott, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church at Elizabeth, arose and in a jovial manner introduced the first speaker of the evening, Prof. Paul VanDyke. He responded to the toast, "The University." In a simple, though eloquent, manner he told of the aims of the university. He said that it was not aiming so much at teaching young men how to become wealthy but how to take care of wealth.

Prof. Thomas C. Hall, D. D., responded to the toast, "The Alumni," telling of the large number of graduates which have been turned out into the world where they have achieved prominence, wealth and in some cases fame.

S. St. John McCutchen was the next one to respond and after being introduced to the assemblage spoke on "Yale." He dwelt particularly on the good feeling which existed between the yellow and black, of Princeton and blue, of Yale, and said that he hoped that that feeling would continue to grow.

Craig A. Marsh was the next introduced and his response was "Union."

His address went right to the heart of those who were his hearers when he said that in the alumni being merged into clubs throughout this part of the State the best interests of the college were served as the alumnus is always in touch with his Alma Mater.

Other impromptu addresses were made during the evening and it was very late before the banquet broke up with many rousing cheers.

The committee which had the affair in charge comprised Dr. B. vanD. Hedges, Dr. W. H. Murray, E. J. Patterson and Conover English. The committee was assisted in decorating by Mrs. E. T. Patterson, Mrs. Henry Irons, Mrs. Joseph Shellenbarger and Mrs. W. H. Murray.

The oldest Alumni present at the banquet was Judge E. D. Atwater, of Elizabeth, who graduated in the class of 1853, Professor English came next, having graduated in the class of 1865 and Dr. P. W. Brakeley, of Dunellen, follows, having been a member of the class of 1867. From these classes the representation ran up to the undergraduates.

Previous to the banquet a meeting was held which, as is the custom of the club at that time, officers were elected. They were: President, Dr. W. H. Murray; vice president, Senator Joseph Cross; secretary, Dr. B. vanD. Hedges, and treasurer, Rev. H. E. Mott, of Elizabeth.

HELD THIRTIETH ANNIVERSARY

INTERESTING FACTS REVEALED AT FIRST BAPTIST W. F. M. S. MEETING.

Members Transact Business, Hear Reports and Listen to Missionary Address.

The thirtieth anniversary meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, of the First Baptist church, was held in the lecture room of the church, yesterday afternoon, when a number of interesting facts were recalled in the history of this society. Mrs. B. J. Shreve, the secretary, stated in her report that of the 374 original members, almost half have died. A few are working in the Park Avenue Baptist church, and there are still forty of the original members in the parent society. Of the first corps of officers, Mrs. Shreve and Mrs. David J. Yerkes are the only two living and still retain their respective offices. Mrs. David J. Boice has been a manager for thirty years and Mrs. Alex. Thorn and Mrs. Charles Smith, have been collectors continuously for thirty years.

Miss Ida Yerkes, as treasurer, reported that during the past year the society had received and expended for missions, $505.10. This concluded the business, and Miss Craft, a returned missionary from Burmah, was introduced. She told in a graphic and entertaining manner of her work in the mission schools in Burmah. She has a knowledge of medicine and nursing, and she said that these things had enabled her to cope with difficult problems in her work. She teaches the natives sewing, housework, music, etc., but there are many things the natives can do and these they are willing to do after once being shown how.

At the close of the address a social time followed and tea and wafers were served by members of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society.

Painter Lost His Coat.

A painter employed by Woolston & Buckele, of North avenue, met with a misfortune Thursday while at work on Miss Lincoln's building on West Fourth street. He had laid off his coat and a little later when a rag-man came along, some one living in the building sold a quantity of papers, rags, etc., and in some way the painter's coat was included in the deal. When the man quit work he could not find his coat and inquiry revealed the facts. The rag-man could not be found and the painter was obliged to return home without a coat.

Time for Sprinkling.

It is to be hoped that the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway Company will not forget the date, Wednesday, April 18. On that date the company is compelled by the city ordinance to commence sprinkling streets through which its cars are operated.

Good for Children.

The pleasant to take and harmless One Minute Cough Cure gives immediate relief in all cases of Coughs, Croup and LaGrippe because it does not pass immediately into the stomach, but takes effect right at the seat of the trouble. It draws out the inflammation, heals and soothes and cures permanently by enabling the lungs to contribute pure life-giving and life-sustaining oxygen to the blood and tissues. L. W. Randolph.

Easter Dance.

The entertainment committee of the Park Club announces that the Easter dance will be held at the clubhouse on Tuesday evening, April 14.

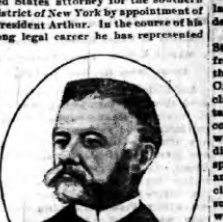
Many School Children are Sickly

Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for Children, used by Mother Gray, a nurse in Children's Home in New York, Break up Colds in 24 hours, Relieve Feverishness, Worms and Stomach Troubles, Destroy Worms, move and regulate the bowels, and destroy worms. Mrs. Emily Hanson, Le Roy, N. Y., says: "I have used them for my children with perfect success." Sold by druggists, 25c. Sample mailed FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

ALASKA COMMISSION.

Interests of United States to Be Guarded by Three of Its Foremost Statesmen.

Secretary Root and Senators Lodge and Turner, selected by the president as Alaska boundary commissioners, are considered unusually well equipped for the work which will devolve upon them. Secretary Root has had a brilliant though brief political career. He was appointed to his present post by President McKinley in July, 1899, at the close of the Spanish war. His only other political office was that of United States attorney for the southern district of New York by appointment of President Arthur. In the course of his long legal career he has represented



HENRY CABOT LODGE.
(Massachusetts Senator Who Will Serve on Alaska Commission.)

many noted litigants. He is recognized as a great lawyer. Mr. Lodge comes from a long line of distinguished people of New England. He was born in Boston in 1850, was educated at Harvard and in the Harvard law school, and at once dedicated himself to literature, in which he has been brilliantly successful. He was a strong supporter of President McKinley's policy of American expansion and is an aggressive defender of the army and navy. Senator Turner is said to be one of the most scholarly men in Washington, an able constitutional lawyer and an expert in international law. Born in Missouri, he became a brilliant young lawyer of Alabama in the early reconstruction days, was United States district attorney for that state, and on settling in the then territory of Washington in 1880 became a member of the territorial supreme court. In 1896 he left the republican party and was elected to the senate by a fusion of democrats and populists.

WASHINGTON'S PISTOLS.

Valuable Weapons Are Subject of Legal Dispute at Present Time as to Ownership.

Oddly, two flintlock pistols which belonged formerly to George Washington are the subject of a dispute just now as to ownership, incidentally to the settlement of an estate in Prince William county, Virginia.

The weapons which, says the New York Herald, are a perfectly matched pair, are in the possession of Miss Monnie Marsteller, who lives in Washington, at 225 E street, N. W.

Some time before his death Gen. Washington gave the pistols to Mr. Dandridge, his secretary, and when Mr. Dandridge died they were disposed of at public sale with the rest of his effects, under the direction of Mr.

THE WASHINGTON PISTOLS.
(Historical Weapons Now the Subject of a Legal Dispute.)

Bushrod Washington. They brought only a few pounds, such relics having not yet acquired the value placed upon them in later days. The grandfather of Miss Marsteller bought the weapons, and in due time he left them to his son, Samuel A. Marsteller, of Prince William county, Virginia.

Samuel was the father of Miss Monnie, and when he died, a short time ago, one of her brothers brought the pistols to her and said that she should have them.

Other relatives, however, have insisted upon forcing a sale of the property left behind by Samuel, and a suit, with this end in view, has been brought in the circuit court of Prince William county.

Incentive to Politeness.

In some of the large department stores of London "professional shoppers" are constantly employed. One firm has over a thousand attendants, and to find out whether every customer is politely served, a number of female spotters, who pretend to be patrons, are employed to call at the various shops. They are told to give as much trouble as possible, and sometimes to leave without making a purchase, after looking at nearly everything in the establishment.

DIVORCE PROCEEDINGS ENDED

PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT IN POILLON CASE DISMISSED BY JUSTICE TRUAX.

Has Been in the Supreme Court of New York for More Than a Year and a Half.

The divorce suit brought by Frederick M. Poillon against her husband, John J. H. Poillon, which has been pending in the New York Supreme Court for a year and a half, has at last been terminated in favor of the defendant.

The case was tried before Justice Stephen Isaac, this spring, and on appeal from the judgment rendered by him, the appellate division of the Supreme Court, in a unanimous opinion, declared that there was no evidence sustaining the charges, except the uncorroborated testimony of one colored witness, whose testimony was contradicted by the defendant, the co-respondent, the co-respondent's husband and several other witnesses; that the circumstances connected with and surrounding the parties at the time to which that witness referred, were such as to justly bring her testimony under suspicion, if not to render it unworthy of belief; that the finding based on that testimony was so manifestly against the weight of evidence that the judgment must be reversed on the facts alone, and it was unnecessary to consider any questions of law raised in the case; that it would not do to dissolve a marriage contract or injure the reputation of others not parties to it upon such testimony; and that a previously good character could not be destroyed in that way by judicial decree.

Upon the case being brought up by the defendant for re-trial, Thursday, before Justice Truax, the plaintiff asked leave to discontinue her action, and on the defendant's refusing to consent to that, her complaint was dismissed.

WILL JOURNEY TO HONDURAS

REV. GEORGE N. KARNER TO INSPECT LA MESA PLANTATION FOR LOCAL CO.

Property is Devoted to the Raising of Bananas, and Plainfielders Hold Stock.

Now that the Plainfield Banana Growers Company has secured subscriptions for 200 shares of the stock, arrangements have been made with Rev. George N. Karner, of Plainfield avenue, for the latter to visit Honduras and inspect the LaMesa property in accordance with the contract entered into on January 18, 1902, between the TaMesa Plantation Company and the trustees, Mayor O. L. Jenkins, J. Fred MacDonald and Frank H. Smith.

Mr. Karner is a graduate of Princeton University and the Princeton Theological Seminary. He was pastor of the West End Presbyterian church of Albany, for twelve years and chaplain of the New York State Assembly. He is the son-in-law of A. L. Cadmus, of Plainfield avenue, and was brought up on a farm near New Brunswick. He spent several months at his home and also some time among large farms in Dakota. In the judgment of all concerned Mr. Karner seems to be well fitted to go to Honduras and inspect the banana plantation in which so many Plainfielders have taken stock and are otherwise interested. Mr. Karner will make arrangements for the trip in the near future.

I. C. T. AS HOST.

Entertains One Hundred Friends at One of the Most Successful Dances Yet Given.

The I. C. T. Club again played host Thursday when it entertained fully a hundred friends at a reception and dance in honor of the most enjoyable affair. The rooms were decorated with bands of red bunting and gave to the ball a very pleasing appearance. The music, which was exceptionally fine, was provided by Suhr's Imperial Orchestra of four pieces. The committee having the affair in charge comprised Charles Overbaugh, William Waters, Edmund Texier, Irving Mills and Leonce Texier.

The dancing began shortly after 9 o'clock and continued until midnight when refreshments were served during an intermission. It was one of the most successful dances yet given by the club.

Rev. John Reid, Jr., of Great Falls, Mont., recommended Ely's Cream Balm to me. I can emphasize his statement, "It is a positive cure for catarrh if used as directed."—Rev. Francis Poole, Pastor Central Free Church, Bozeman, Mont.

After using Ely's Cream Balm six weeks I believe myself cured of catarrh.—Joseph Stewart, Grand Ave., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Balm does not irritate or cause sneezing. Sold by druggists at 50 cts. or mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., New York.

WAS QUITE SATISFIED.

As Long as He Was Perfect in Essentials, He Didn't Object to Lesser Deficiencies.

"Now—now we are engaged, dearest," he said, with an embarrassed air, "I ought to tell you something, indeed, I ought to have told you before, but—but—"

He paused and wiped his perspiring brow.

"Yes, Charlie?" she queried, expectantly.

"Why—why," he stammered, "I—I wear a wig, darling, for—for I am frightfully bald. Do—do you mind?" he asked, anxiously.

"Not—very—much," she answered slowly; "we can keep it a secret between us, Charlie."

"Bless you for those words, pet!" he exclaimed, fervently; "and—there is something else. My—my teeth are not my own; at least, they are my own, because I have paid for them; but—but you know what I mean. And—and—"

"I OUGHT TO TELL YOU SOMETHING."

Again he paused.

"Go—go on, Charlie!" she gasped.

"I will," he said, determinedly, bracing himself up, "for—for I must get it over. And—and my right leg is cor—cork; but it's a splendid leg, with a life-like spring; in fact, I spared no expense over it. And—and have you ever noticed, angel, anything peculiar about my left eye?" he quiveringly asked.

"I—I have noticed that it has a fixed look, as if it were trying to pierce the dim future; but—but I put it down to poetical fervor," she murmured, faintly.

"No, it is not poetical fervor," he sighed, "it's glass, the best of glass, Paris made, but still glass. Now, my own love," he continued, tenderly, "I have told you how I am made up, and if you would rather be released from your engagement, say so, though it would break my heart to lose you; and I couldn't get a new heart," he said, with a wan smile.

"There is one question I should like to ask you, Charlie," she said, thoughtfully. "Is—is that bankbook you showed me the other day made up, too?"

"No, darling!" he exclaimed, joyfully. "Not made up in the sense you mean, for the balance therein stated to my credit is perfectly genuine."

"Then, Charlie," she gurgled, "I do not want to be released!"

And she sank heavily into his arms, my London Tit-Bits, making his cork leg creak with joy, or perhaps extra weight.

YOUNG LOVER ANGRY.

His Sisters Opened Mail from His Best Girl and Then He Ran Away from Home.

It was maddening to Joseph Harold Barclay, ten years old, that Ethel and Maud, his sisters, should open his love letters. There was no mistaking his wrath when he explained to Justice Wyatt, in the children's court at DRIVEN FROM HO E.

New York, why this indignity had driven him from home.

Joseph Harold, who is a son of T. C. Barclay, a maker of blue prints for the government, of 3101 North Sixteenth street, Philadelphia, was found by detectives occupying an expensive room at the Colonial hotel, Eighth avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth street.

"I have a girl named Edna," Joseph Harold explained in court. "Also I have other girl friends, and my sister Ethel opened all my letters. That was mean for her to do so, and she broke Maud into doing the same sort of thing. I stood it as long as I could, and then made up my mind to leave home. Ethel laughed at me, but I guess she's cried herself sick since."

Joseph Harold was held until his father shall come for him.

UNITY LODGE PASSES TWO DECADE MARK

Knights of Pythias From This City and Vicinity Help Make It An Auspicious Event.

HAD A FINE PROGRAMME

VAUDEVILLE ARTISTS ENTERTAIN WITH STORY AND MYSTERIOUS TRICKS.

Grand Chancellor P. F. Shanley, of Jersey City, Addresses Gathering and Offers Congratulations—Those in Charge of Affair.

Twenty years of life as an organization were rounded out by Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., Thursday night. In honor of the event the members entertained several hundred Knights from this city and other places in Reform Hall. An entertainment of exceptional merit furnished by professional talent and refreshments afterward were the features of the gathering.

The artists taking part in the programme were from vaudeville circuits and were very clever. The house was kept in one continual roar of laughter by S. V. Sanford and Bert Forest, character comedians and vocalists. They had an inexhaustible fund of new jokes and performed some good impersonations. Another artist was Professor Neuman, an expert in mental telegraphy, mind reading and an adept handler of playing cards, doing some tricks that were startling in their originality. In his mind reading work he was helped by several of the lodge members who sought to baffle him but without success. Other numbers on the programme were given by Chris Praetorius, pianist.

In addition to these, the Knights enthusiastically received Grand Chancellor P. Frank Shanley, of Jersey City, who gave an address in his usual excellent and interesting way. He was unsparing in his congratulations to Unity and bespoke for it continued success during the next two decades. The address of welcome to the guests was made by George L. VanEmburg, chancellor commander of Unity, and a roll call of members showed a large per centage present. Following the entertainment, adjournment was taken to the lower hall where refreshments and a smoker were enjoyed.

The committee in charge during the evening consisted of Horace J. Martin, chairman; Jere VanWinkle, J. W. A. Banerman, B. C. H. Leonard and Frank Hampston. They were assisted by the majority of Unity members in receiving the guests. Among the latter were delegations from Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Crescent Company, No. 13, Uniformed Rank, of this city and K. of P. lodges at Bound Brook and Elizabeth.

CHANGED THE DATE.

Continental Chapter, D. of A. R., Makes New Plans for Proposed Entertainment.

Continental Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held a meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of the regent, Mrs. David P Hall, to make further arrangements for the entertainment to be given at Mrs. Philip V. R. VanWyck's. It has decided to change the date from Saturday, April 18, to Friday, April 17, since that date will be more convenient to some of the members of the chapter. The occasion will be in celebration of the Battle of Lexington, the anniversary of which falls on Sunday, April 19. There will be music and patriotic recitations. Simple refreshments will be served. The women of the tea and reception committees and the young woman who assist, will appear in colonial costume. The proceeds of the entertainments will be added to the fund for placing a suitable monument at Washington Rock.

Entertained Whist Club.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Potter, of East Second street, entertained the Fortnightly Whist Club at their home Thursday evening. Mrs. H. S. Potter won the first prize for the women, while F. H. Smith won the prize for the men. Miss Ella Titsworth was presented with the consolation prize. The club will be entertained Thursday evening, April 9, by Miss Ella Titsworth.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Adriance, of this city, are spending a few weeks with relatives at High Bridge.

For liver troubles and constipation There's nothing better in creation Than Little Early Risers, the famous little pills

They always effect a cure and save doctor bills.

Little Early Risers are different from all other pills. They do not weaken the system, but act as a tonic to the tissues by arousing the secretions and restoring the liver to the full performance of its functions naturally. L. W. Randolph.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN C. E.'S CLOSE YEAR

Reports Showed An Encouraging Condition of Affairs Spiritually and Financially.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED

COMMITTEES APPOINTED AND OTHER ITEMS OF BUSINESS TRANSACTED.

Society Has Been Active During Past Twelve Months, and Has Accomplished Much Good in Many Quarters.

The annual meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society, of the First Presbyterian church, was held Thursday night in the chapel, when reports for the past year were received and officers and committees for the coming year were chosen.

The reports showed an encouraging condition, spiritually and financially. While the active membership is but forty, much good has been accomplished in Endeavor work. Under the head of general expenses the report of the treasurer showed the receipts to be $38.92, the expenditures $30.44, leaving a balance of $8.48. The missionary fund showed receipts to be $96.79 and the expenditures $72.22, leaving a balance of $23.57. In all the society has contributed $80.46 to missions. The sum of $20 each is given to foreign and home missions and the balance to camp work, etc.

Among the other reports, the most noteworthy, probably, is that of the committee on good literature and temperance. This committee has during the past year, supplied two local hotels with copies of "The Christian Herald," and "The Endeavor World." All the other reports showed progress along the various lines of work.

After the transaction of the foregoing business, officers and committees for the coming year were chosen as follows: President, John S. Johnston; vice president, Robert Pruden; recording secretary, F. O. Lounsbury, Jr.; corresponding secretary, W. Edward Burroughs; treasurer, Norman Hill; superintendent Junior Christian Endeavor, Mrs. Charlotte Rose; assistants, Miss Beatrice Miner and Miss Leah Hammond. Prayer meeting committee—Mrs. John S. Johnston, chairman; Miss Leah Hammond, Miss Mildred Ulrich, Miss Lizzie Wilcox, Miss Mabel Conover, Mrs. Chas. Haseltine. Lookout—T. Edward Burroughs, chairman; A. V. Searing, Jr., Miss Jessie Pruden, Miss Bertha Wilcox, Miss Lizzie Bittenbender, Miss Kitty Aubert, Miss Beatrice Miner. Social and music—Mrs. R. Bond, chairman; Martin A. Korff, Rev. C. E. Herring, Wesley Messersmith, Howard George, Harold Luckey, F. C. Lounsbury, Jr., Norman Hill. Missionary—Miss M. Lon Karner, chairman; Miss Lottie Remsen, Miss Helen Burroughs, Mrs. A. R. Bond, Miss Florence Morrison, Miss Miriam Wilcox. Flower and visiting—Miss Gertrude Conover, chairman; Mrs. C. M. Hummer, Miss Mamie Mehl, Miss Catherine Finger, Miss Fanny Mills, Miss Gertrude Haseltine. Good literature and temperance—C. M. Hummer, chairman; J. B. Hill, Edgar George, Robert Pruden.

Wesleyan Glee Club Concert.

The reserved seats for the Wesleyan Glee Club concert, which is to be held at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church on the evening of April 16, are to be secured at Neaman Brothers grocery store at the corner of Watchung avenue and East Fifth street, at Hodge's pharmacy and at E. S. F. Randolph's drug store. The concert promises to be very good and the seats are already selling rapidly.

Building Canoes.

A number of the members of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. are busily engaged in building canvas canoes in anticipation of the canoeing trips which have been planned for the summer by the secretary of that department, Kenneth Robbie. Most of the young men have succeeded very well in their first attempts.

Due Notice is Served.

Due notice is hereby served on the public generally that DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is the only salve on the market that is made from the pure, unadulterated witch hazel. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve has cured thousands of cases of piles that would not yield to any other treatment, and this fact has brought out many worthless counterfeits. Those persons who get the genuine DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve are never disappointed, because it cures. L. W. Randolph.

Just As a Fire

spreads in dry grass and weeds, so does an inflammation of the throat—the result of a cold—grow down into the sensitive air passages of the lungs. The cold, like the fire, should be promptly dealt with. When you begin to cough, use Allen's Lung Balsam. It will certainly heal the sore throat and lungs and it may save you from consumption.

FIRE ALARM WHISTLE WILL BE GIVEN UP

To Be Abolished As Soon As the Fire Department Has Enough Regular Paid Men.

REASONS FOR ACTION

NOW USED TO SUMMON THE "CALL MEN" TO A FIRE.

Incidentally it Summons a Good Share of the Population—Dangers of Crowd That Hurries to Fire —No Change Immediately.

Plainfield's fire alarm whistle, the sonorous tones of which carry news of a conflagration to every part of the city, is to abolished. While it will not be given up this year, perhaps not next or the year after, it is only a question of time when that general alarm will be dispensed with and Plainfield will adopt the method used in the larger cities. Such is the aim of the fire committee of the present Common Council which it hopes to carry out successfully some day.

It was not with the intention of notifying the public that the whistle was utilized for a fire alarm. Like the old bells, it aimed to tell the volunteer fire fighters that they were needed. Incidentally, a great many other people took the message to themselves and hastened to the scene of action. When the "call system" was established, the whistle was still necessary as the call men were not on duty at the engine houses and had to be informed of the fire in some way.

Just as soon as the finances of the city will permit it, the regular paid men will be increased in sufficient numbers to meet all requirements and it will then be possible to attend fires without half the population of the city going too. The fire committee is hoping for that day and will work toward that end as rapidly as the city's best interests allow. With a regular paid department, the whistle will be abolished and the alarm sounded by tappers in the different engine houses.

"It will be the best thing in the world for the city when that whistle goes out of commission as a fire alarm," remarked a Plainfielder who, while not a city official, is fully in touch with the fire committee. "Every time the alarm sounds now, everyone who can spare the time hurries to the fire. They not only get to the way of the apparatus at the fire but they interfere with its progress on the road. People seem to forget everything except a wild desire to be the first at the fire. The result is that the streets are filled with hurrying vehicles and scorching wheelmen while running boys and men occupy most of the sidewalk. It is a great wonder to me that somebody has not been killed ere this by the careless drivers who run their horses to the fire.

"Of course, there would be a few who would go to a fire even if there was no public alarm. They would see the apparatus running and would follow it. But that number would be insignificantly small compared with the crowd that would be attracted by a whistle that could be heard all over the city. It would give the apparatus a clearer field and would eliminate a very dangerous feature which exists now. Every time that alarm sounds now, my heart comes up into my throat and I expect to see two or three people killed. The police could prevent some of that wild racing by arresting a few and making examples of them but the danger will always be great as long as the whistle continues to sound the alarm."

NEW WIRES AND RAILS.

Local Trolley Company is Repairing Its System.

The local trolley company has been making many repairs to its lines during the past three weeks. The repairs were in the shape of new cross wires in many places, new rails and repairing the road bed. Some of the cars have been receiving some attention although the repairs have not been very extensive. It will not be long before the summer cars are placed upon the local lines and then the winter, or closed cars will receive attention.

Dance by Whist Club.

Invitations will be issued in a few days by the Lenox Whist Club for the dance and reception to be given at the Casino on Tuesday evening, April 28. Westervelt, of Newark, will furnish music.

A Blow in the Back.

An overcoat is a necessary nuisance as it has the tendency to take it off on warmish days in late autumn and winter is as strong as it is unwise. A treacherous wind hits you in the back and the next morning you have lumbago. Rub well and often with Perry Davis' Painkiller and you will be astonished to find how quickly all soreness is banished. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'.

ORDERS FOR STATE CAMP

FIRST, FOURTH AND FIFTH REGIMENTS WILL GO FOR WEEK EACH.

Militia Men Will Not be Allowed to Send Substitutes—General Orders Just Issued.

Major General Wanser has issued orders through the adjutant general's department regulating next summer's encampment at Sea Girt.

The order assigns the Fifth, Fourth and First regiments, Battery A, field artillery, signal corps and First troop to duty at the State camp for one week each. The Second and Third Regiments were in camp last year.

The order reads as follows:

National Guard of New Jersey,
Headquarters Division,
Jersey City, March 19, 1903.
Special Orders No. 4.

1. Pursuant to permission granted by the Governor and commander-in-chief, by special orders No. 19, adjutant general's office, dated March 17, 1903, the several organizations of the First brigade and the signal and telegraph corps will encamp upon the State camp ground, at Sea Girt, as follows:

Fifth regiment and Battery A, field artillery, Monday, July 6, to Saturday, July 11, inclusive.

Fourth regiment and signal corps, Monday, July 13, to Saturday, July 18, inclusive.

First regiment and First troop, Monday, July 20, to Saturday, July 25, inclusive.

2. No man will be taken to camp who is not enlisted before the 30th of June, instant, and borne upon the quarterly returns of that date, and no substitute will be permitted under any circumstances.

3. Transportation, camp equipage and substance will be furnished by the quartermaster general and commissary general, upon requisition duly approved.

4. The troops so encamped will be paid by the paymaster general in accordance with the provisions of "An act concerning the military and naval forces," approved March 23, 1901.

5. The organizations herein referred to may, if they so desire, enter camp on Saturday, July 4, Saturday, July 11, and Saturday, July 18; provided, it is understood that no pay will be allowed for July 4, 5, 11, 12, 18 and 19.

6. One meal for July 4, 11 and 18, and one ration for July 5, 12, and 19 will be issued by the commissary general, on requisition duly approved.

7. Servants, grooms or other camp followers will not be permitted to wear the State uniform or any part thereof.

8. Brigadier General Edward A. Campbell, First brigade, is charged with the execution of this order.

By command of Major General Wanser.

THOMAS S. CHAMBERS,
Assistant Adjutant General.

GLEE CLUB ENTERTAINS.

Students From Rutgers College Give An Excellent Programme at Y. M. C. A.

Under the auspices of the North Plainfield High School Athletic Association, the Rutgers College Glee Club gave a most creditable concert in Y. M. C. A. Hall, Thursday. There was a large and thoroughly appreciative audience present.

While the club only has a membership of thirteen, its work was of a high order, showing much care in training under the direction of G. W. Wilmot, leader. The programme was a well selected one, comprising several new numbers. The club sang well together, while the solo work by Mr. Wilmot, Mr. Shivler, as well as the selections by a quartette, consisting of Messrs. Wilmot, Shivler, Gaston and Murphy, was excellent.

W. K. Flanagan's piano selections, as well as his recitations, assisted largely in making the programme one of great pleasure for all. The college boys were recalled time and again and they generously responded to the encores. There was a local interest in the concert by reason of the fact that Arthur Smith, a graduate of the Borough High School, and now a junior at Rutgers, appeared as a member of the club. It is believed that a goodly sum will be realized as profit from the affair.

THE NEXT MORNING I FEEL BRIGHT AND MY COMPLEXION IS BETTER.

My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys and is a pleasant laxative. This drink is made from herbs, and is known to druggists for ten and twenty cents. It is called "Lane's Tea" or

LANE'S FAMILY MEDICINE

All druggists or by mail 25 cts. and 50 cts. Buy it to-day. Lane's Family Medicine moves the bowels each day in order to be healthy. Lane's Tea, Lane's Medicine, Lane's Laxative, Lane's Liver Pills, Lane's Kidney Tea, Mailed for 25 cents.

POOR LITTLE GRACE.

Tragedy of a Sleepy Girl Told in a Touching Way.

Used to Get Up at 5:00 in the Morning for So Many Years That Now She Is Incapable of Enjoying a Change.

If there was one thing more than another that Grace detested it was having to get up early in the morning. In addition to the usual perverse sleepiness at the rising hour that every one experiences she had a deep-seated objection to getting up while other folks more fortunate were privileged to lie and sleep. It spoiled her temper for the day and her family learned to let her severely alone till about noon, when the atmosphere cleared and she emerged into herself.

All during her school years Grace was routed out at 6:30 in order to get her breakfast, collect her books, do half an hour's practicing and travel five miles to school and get there on time at nine o'clock. Those years were one continuous struggle with Morpheus, which was plentifully interspersed with the prophecy of the delicious hours she should sleep when she had come to the last period in her graduation essay. She had charming dreams of the languid way in which she would arise at 10 and 11 o'clock when that halcyon time arrived.

When she got out of school the family fortunes had changed, says the Chicago Daily News, and Grace went downtown to work in an office. She had to be there at eight o'clock and her alarm clock went off at six. Of course she never heard it, but no one expected her to. It was her heroic mother who took it upon herself to get Grace up and hurry her along. The young woman sat in a glower during every trip to the city. She did not read the paper like her fellow travelers—she brooded on the implacability of fate and tried to figure out if she lived to be 50 years old just how many times she would be dragged from slumbers delicious at pitch dark in the winter time and at the early peep of the robins in summer. The mathematical result did not add to her geniality. She meditated upon the revenge she would take after that, because she intended to save enough of her salary to retire upon when she reached the half-century mark, and she promised herself that she would sleep 23 hours out of the 24 from that time on.

BOUGHT AN ALARM CLOCK.

Then she got married. In jokes Grace had always vowed she would marry nobody but a waiter in a night restaurant, because his work would make it unnecessary to have breakfast before noon. Or, she admitted, a policeman who went on duty about 3 o'clock in the afternoon would do. However, the young man she wedded was a contractor. He had to be at his office at 7 o'clock precisely in order to get his force of men off for the day.

When the two came back from their wedding trip and opened the door of the dainty flat they had furnished Grace faced the prospect of arising still earlier than she ever had done before in order that Harry's coffee might be just right and his breakfast hot and tempting. For once in her life she did not growl. Harry appreciated to the full her immolation on the altar of devotion.

Grace purchased an alarm clock with a gong like a fire bell and hung it within two inches of her ear. The first time it went off she jumped from dreamland with a scream in the direction of the clock. That gave her a black eye and Harry a bad reputation among the neighbors. When even this alarm failed to arouse her Harry discovered and purchased a Swedish invention that stood across the room and shrieked. It makes a noise like 13 front door bells and in 15 seconds if one does not come over and release the alarm it repeats the performance, keeping it up until the harassed sleeper gets up in self-defense to silence it. Stern devotion to duty and this new alarm combined to get Grace up in time. She relinquished her dreams and was resigned to an early-rising fate.

When she had reached this point her husband had a fine business offer which made it unnecessary for him to get to the city till 9 o'clock or after and Grace welcomed the prospect with boundless joy. Instead of 5:30—the hour which stretched hideously back and over two years—she might sleep till 7 or after. It was too good to be true.

And so it proved. For the previous years had left their mark on her brain. Now she wakes up every morning regularly at the same old hour—3:30!

Ant-Eater is Toothless.

The South American quadruped known as the ant-eater is without teeth.

THEATRICAL.

Miss Mabelle Gilman who tripped gracefully into public favor as a comic opera star at the Bijou Theatre, New York City, last November, possesses the vivacious charm of Anna Held, the dainty ease of Lois Gilmore, and the sprightliness of Irene Bentley. This happy combination of attractive qualities, added to the fact that she sings and acts well, and has an uncommonly sympathetic voice and manner, insures for this young actress success and popularity when she appears as the Grand Opera House next week. Miss Gilman will play her first and only mid-week matinee of the season at the Grand on Wednesday.

The success of Miss Marie Cahill in the new musical comedy, "Nancy Brown," at the Bijou Theatre, has been one of the most pronounced of the New York season, the audiences, since the opening on February 16, being to the capacity of the theatre. Miss Cahill will remain at the Bijou until the warm weather makes it necessary to close the doors. Her manager, Daniel V. Arthur, received several offers to take the entire "Nancy Brown" production to other cities for a summer run, but he decided it would be wiser to allow his new star to rest in preparation for her next season's work.

Spring Time in Washington.

Washington is a typical spring resort and its bustle is purely social and political. There are gathered in the Capital representatives of every nation and country, and their comings and goings are of no little interest. Then the doings of the Senate and House are those which every scribe delights in following, and these features together with the visits to the numerous public buildings keep one busy all the while one is in Washington. The Royal Blue Line of which the New Jersey Central is the initial road is going to operate an excursion to Washington on April 9, and cost of tickets for the three days' excursion including all expenses is $12.. Train leaves New York at 7 p. m., and arrives Washington at 6:10 p. m. If you want to know about it simply drop a postal to C. M. Burt, General Passenger Agent, New York City, for tour book. Free for the asking.

S 30 S o o d-c

Held Barn Dance.

A pleasant surprise party was tendered to Miss VanCourt, of Oak Tree, Thursday evening. The affair was arranged by several young people and there were nearly forty couples present. The evening was spent in dancing, the large and commodious barn at Mr VanCourt's home being used for the purpose. At midnight supper was served, after which dancing was continued until early yesterday morning. The excellent music was furnished by Prof. Sam Frasee.

A Sweet Breath is a never failing sign of a healthy stomach. When the breath is bad the stomach is out of order. There is no remedy in the world equal to Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for curing indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders. Mrs. Mary S. Crook of White Plains, Ky., writes: "I have been a dyspeptic for years—tried all kinds of remedies but continued to grow worse. By the use of Kodol I began to improve at once, and after taking a few bottles am fully restored in weight, health and strength and can eat whatever I like. Kodol digests what you eat and makes the stomach sweet. L. W. Randolph.

KODOL
Digests What You Eat.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Kodol

Digests What You Eat

Mrs. Loring Nichols of Penn Yan, N. Y., writes: After eating my food would sour on my stomach and cause heartburn, and I would become very weak. Finally I got a bottle of Kodol and it gave me immediate relief. After using a few bottles I am cured.

Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders, and gives the heart a full, free and untrammeled action.

Bottles only. $1.00 Size holding 2½ times the trial size, which sells for 50c.

PREPARED BY
E. C. DeWITT & Co.
Chicago

L. W. RANDOLPH.

RICH GIRL FOR EARL

Lord Yarmouth Engaged to a Beautiful Heiress.

Young Man Has an Old Title, But is Short of Money—Young Woman's Mother Strongly Opposed to Match.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of the earl of Yarmouth to Miss Mary Thaw, daughter of the late William Thaw, the millionaire, of Pittsburg, who has passed the winter in Washington. Mrs. Mary Thaw, mother of the young woman, makes the announcement, but with the comment to her friends that "there is a long distance between the announcement of an engagement and marriage."

Mrs. Thaw, however, is stern in denouncing the alliance, and will cut Miss Thaw off from a few millions of dollars at her death. However, from almost no income at all to several million dollars, the amount of Miss Thaw's personal fortune, seems an alluring step to the earl, and when it is owned by a pretty and vivacious American girl, it is doubly worth his long efforts to secure a wife in this country.

The earl of Yarmouth came to Washington from New York some weeks ago as a guest of Harry K. Thaw, at his Lafayette square home, and almost immediately the attachment between the earl and Miss Thaw became current talk. The rumor of their engagement gained rapidly in society, but was warmly denied by Mrs. Thaw. After an evident failure to bring the earl's visit to a close, because his suit was highly favored by Mr. Thaw, Miss Thaw was gotten ready on short notice and sent to her sister, Mrs. George Carnegie, at Cumberland Island, their winter home on the southern coast of Florida.

Mrs. Thaw shut up the home in Lafayette square right in the middle of the social season, an action which in itself was a great surprise to all who knew her. She urged as a reason important business affairs in Pittsburg requiring immediate attention.

Miss Thaw was provided with a private car on the Palm limited, and furnished with what her mother considered proper company for the journey to the south.

MISS MARY THAW.
(American Heiress Who Is to Marry the Earl of Yarmouth.)

After the train was well on the way out of Washington, a well-dressed young Englishman in the sleeper just ahead of the special car made some inquiries as to the identity of those in the special, and a few minutes later the card of the earl of Yarmouth was carried by a porter to Miss Thaw, who expressed the greatest surprise at the coincidence.

The earl accompanied the party to Fernandina, Fla., where they were met by Mrs. George Carnegie, with the Carnegie yacht. The earl was presented, and evidently was well received, as he was a guest of the Carnegies for the remainder of his stay in Florida waters, where tarpon fishing and other pastimes were provided in plenty.

Mrs. Thaw learned of the earl's visit to the south, and the manner of his going, and forgetting the important business affairs in Pittsburg, posted to the south in her effort to head off the impending engagement. From the announcement just issued, it is evident she failed.

The earl of Yarmouth is the eldest son of the marquis of Hertford, and is almost as well known in the east end of London, having come to America three years ago in the hope of retrieving his fortunes, as his title, although one of the oldest in England, is entirely without estates. He is well known in theatrical circles, having played a short engagement at one-night theaters and written for the daily papers on theatrical topics. He had not been prominent in Washington society, but met Harry Thaw abroad, and came to the capital as his guest, after a visit to Pittsburg.

Miss Thaw's acquaintance with Yarmouth began barely three months ago.

American Brewery in Europe.

Americans are to show the Belgians how to brew good beer. An American brewery has been started in Ghent, and the entire outfit of the plant came from the United States. There are nine glass-enameled steel tanks, each weighing 5,500 pounds empty, and holding 135 hectolitres (3,445 gallons) when full. The beer never comes in contact with the atmosphere. Sterilized air only is admitted, under perfect regulation, during fermentation.

Snow Heats Mother Earth.

Under a thick coating of snow the earth is usually nine or ten degrees warmer than the air immediately above the snow.

REASONS FOR SINGLE SESSION IN SCHOOLS

As Prepared by Supervising Principal Wightman, of the Borough Public Schools.

GIVEN TO SCHOOL BOARD

HE BELIEVES THAT THE ONE SESSION PLAN IS MUCH PREFERABLE.

That Statement Brought Out by Objection at Annual School Meeting—Comparison Made of the One and Two Session Plans.

Supervising Principal H. J. Wightman, of the North Plainfield High School, prepared a short communication which was handed to the members of the Borough Board of Education as the meeting, last week, in which he sets forth reasons why the one session day plan is better than the two session plan. The one session plan had been objected to at the annual school meeting on the ground that the children are better off in school than on the streets. Under the two session plan the school hours are from 9 in the morning, to 12 noon and from 1:30 to 3 o'clock. The hour and a half intermission is utilized in going home, getting lunch and returning. In this plan all school studies must be done after school hours in the afternoon. The reasons why the one session plan is favored is because it is considered necessary for growing boys and girls to have at least two hours for exercise in the day. It is argued that it is not wise to break this up into small periods of time. Pupils in the grammar and High School grades have an average of two hours a day study at home if they would be successful in their work. It is claimed that, with the two session plan in use, the student is obliged to do his study at night.

Under the one session plan the hours of the school are from 8:20 to 1 o'clock in the afternoon, with a ten minute intermission for a sandwich lunch. This plan gives exactly the same time in the school as the other plan and also allows the pupil to be out of doors between the hours of 2 and 4 o'clock, besides having his lunch without the necessity of rushing back to school.

Mr. Wightman in his article puts forth many other reasons why it is far better to have the one session plan in vogue. He says that the one session scheme is conducive to better results in the moral, physical and intellectual sense than the other plan.

This important matter is to be considered by a committee on complaints and after due consideration will be reported back to the board.

HOTEL AT SPRING.

Watchung Spring Water Company is Preparing to Start Work on It Very Soon.

Plans are quietly being completed by the officials of the Watchung Spring Water Company to commence actual work on the hotel it contemplates erecting on Mountain avenue in the vicinity of its springs. An architect is preparing specifications and Monday a contractor inspected the Mair residence on the ground, with a view to devising the best method of razing it.

In its office on North avenue, the company now has a water coloring of the hostelry as planned and it shows a remarkable fine building. It is to have accommodations for several hundred guests. If matters can be arranged, ground will be broken about the latter part of spring.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

By Members of First M. E. Church Sunday-School Board at Annual Meeting Last Thursday.

The annual meeting of the Sunday-school Board of the First M. E. church was held last Thursday in Vincent chapel, when reports for the year were given and officers elected. The report of the secretary showed a total enrollment of 488, including forty-three in the Home department and twenty-six on the cradle roll. The treasurer, Arthur H. Crone, reported that all bills are paid and there is a balance of $8 in the treasury. He also reported that the missionary society of the school had raised $250 during the year for missions.

The officers elected for the coming year are as follows: Superintendent, James R. Joy; secretary, James A. Strafford; treasurer, Arthur H. Crone; librarian, Thomas H. Stafford. The officers for the missionary society were elected as follows: President, J. M. Darby; vice president, Samuel Bingaman; secretary and treasurer, Arthur H. Crone.

Annual Meeting.

On Wednesday evening, April 8, the annual meeting of the First Presbyterian church will be held, when reports for the year will be presented and officers will be elected.

TOLD OF EXPERIENCE IN PROBATION WORK

Miss Elliot Addressed Friendly Visitors of the Organized Aid Association.

YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

MISS ELLIOT IS NOW WORKING IN THE NEW YORK POLICE COURTS.

Her Successful Efforts in Behalf of Young Girls—Her Other Duties—Plainfielders Particularly Interested in the Good Work.

A largely attended and helpful conference of the friendly visitors of the Organized Aid Association was held Wednesday, March 25, at the home of Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, of East Seventh street, when for over an hour, Miss Ada Elliot, the probation officer for the Charity Organization Society of New York, told of her practical experience in probation work in that city and related the successes attending her efforts.

Miss Elliot has for her special field the police court and the Court of Special Sessions, and she has taken the place of the late Mrs. Foster, who was known for so many years as the "Tombs Angel." Her work is especially among girls, who are not really depraved, but who have been arraigned for first offence. The success of her work among girls can be learned from the fact that out of thirty girls cared for only one was rearrested. In the police court work Miss Elliot also has interested herself in non-supporting husbands and through the co-operation of the commissioner of charity the families of these husbands receive direct the necessary money for their support. The husbands give a bond to the commissioner and this secures these payments.

This work, although only two years old, has met with great success and this depends very much on the character of the probation officer. The officer must be truthful, honest and of unquestioned integrity. It is because Miss Elliot possesses these qualifications that she has been so successful. After her talk yesterday there followed an informal discussion of the subject which brought out many interesting facts.

It is the subject is of especial interest to Plainfielders, because the county now has a probation officer and the success of the work is being closely watched.

QUIETLY MARRIED.

Justice Mosher Called Upon to Unite Mrs. Ferdie Funks and Nicholas Klockner.

Justice J. P. Mosher was called upon on Thursday, to unite a couple in the holy bonds of wedlock and the genial Justice promptly responded. The bride was Mrs. Ferdie Funks, aged 50 years, of 420 Watchung avenue, and the groom was Nicholas Klockner, aged 52 years, a machinist, also a resident of Plainfield. The ceremony was performed at 7:30 o'clock at the home of the bride on Watchung avenue, and after the knot was tied, all sat down to enjoy a bountiful collation. Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Meisner, of Watchung avenue, were the witnesses. In celebration of the event, the couple gave a dinner to a number of their friends at the house Sunday.

TO GIVE FARCE COMEDY.

Members of Cup Bearers' Circle Want Funds for Worthy Cause.

The members of the Cup Bearers' Circle, King's Daughters, under the direction of Mrs. L. H. Biglow, Jr., are planning to give an entertainment at the Casino, Tuesday afternoon, April 14, at 3:30 o'clock, the proceeds of which will be used to employ a city missionary to take care of a reading room for girls at Miss Sara Curry's mission on Eighth street near Avenue B, New York. Girls about the age of the members of the Cup Bearers' Circle will be looked after and assisted in a practical way.

The entertainment will consist of a farce comedy in one act entitled "The Trouble at Satterly," to be followed with tableaux from "Cinderella." There will also be vocal and instrumental music.

A New Excursion Resort.

For pleasure clubs, lodges, singing societies and Sunday-schools—Squan Beach, N. J.,—ninety minutes ride from Newark direct to the Beach. Exclusive use of the grounds for guaranteed parties of from 200 to 3,000 persons; large dancing pavilion, bowling, bathing, fishing, merry-go-round, baseball grounds, and numerous other attractions. For descriptive pamphlets, rates, etc., apply to W. C. Walsh, Jr., district passenger agent, Central Railroad of New Jersey, No. 839 Broad street, Newark, N. J.

PARK CLUB WHIST FOUR WINS BY ONE POINT

First Ties With the Brooklyn Whist Club, and Then Takes the Deciding Match.

EXCITING AND CLEAN

REFRESHMENTS WERE SERVED DURING INTERMISSION AND AFTER MATCH.

The Game Was Not Completed Until After Midnight—The Next Game Will be Played With the Newark Bay Club.

Success once more crowned the efforts of the veteran Park Club whist four, Friday evening, when in a battle royal, the Brooklyn Whist Club, challenger for the Metropolitan challenge trophy, was defeated by one trick. It was by far the most exciting of the contests yet held in this city. So closely and evenly matched were the two teams that at the end of the regular game the score was a tie, each team having made nine points. There was some talk of playing off the tie at some future date, but after due consideration, all agreed to remain last evening and decide the match.

The Brooklyn Whist Club has eleven wins for the Metropolitan challenge trophy, and is in the lead. Every member of the team is a crackerjack and for this reason it would not have been surprising had this four taken the trophy last evening. The Parks were their equal and more, as the score of 11 to 10 shows. Both teams play practically the same style of game and for this reason the scores were so close.

At the end of the first round the score was even up, each team making six points. The Brooklyns took the second round 5 to 1, while the third round went to the Parks 3 to 0, making the score a tie 9 to 9. In the last round the holders of the trophy gave a fine exhibition of their skill, winning the round 2 to 1, and making the final score 11 to 10 in their favor. The play throughout was clean and sharp, very few mishaps being made on either side.

It was nearly 12:30 Saturday morning, when the game was finished. During the intermission and after the match, the Parks entertained their visitors, serving light refreshments. The next game for the trophy will be with the Newark Bay Whist Club. This will be played at the Park Club Thursday evening, April 2.

Samuel Townsend, S. R. John McCutchen, George T. Rogers and Joseph H. Howell represented the Parks last evening, and Adam Ohlweiler, E. A. Leslie, George Kling and E. S. Field were the challengers. W. J. R. Hegeman, Jr., was the referee.

Popular Excursion Resorts.

Walter C. Walsh, Jr., the experienced excursion manager, now district passenger agent of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, will be at his new office, No. 828 Broad street, Central Railroad building, Newark, daily and on Monday evenings until 10 p. m., to receive excursion committees. Mr. Walsh will cheerfully furnish all information regarding the Jersey Central's seashore, lake and mountain resorts.

From Police to Farm.

Marshal Frank Winn, of the borough, has purchased a farm in the mountains, back of the borough, and will soon resign his position on the police force to take up farming. His successor will be Peter Blalch. Mr. Blalch now conducts a bakery route, but John Wirth, the West Front street baker, has bought his interests and will conduct the business.

New Mileage Books May 1.

The interchangeable mileage bureau in trunk line territory will positively be in operation by May 1 by the selling of mileage books over all lines except those of the Vanderbilt system, Reading, New Jersey Central and Delaware and Hudson. The charge for these books will be $30. A rebate of $10 will be made if the contract is not violated by letting the books get in the hands of scalpers.

Porto Rico Experiences.

An important sewing meeting under the auspices of the Woman's Association of the Congregational church will be held in the parlors of the church Thursday afternoon, at which time Mrs. J. M. Whiton will relate some of her recent experiences while in Porto Rico. A full attendance of the members is desired.

Glanders at Newark.

An epidemic of glanders among horses has struck Newark and already several stables have lost many horses, which have had to be killed on account of this disease. This disease is very contagious and local horse owners and liverymen should be careful lest the disease reach this city. Glanders may be caught by a horse in drinking from a watering trough from which an infected animal has drank.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought
In Use For Over 30 Years.
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

PLAINFIELD WOMEN ATTEND

ANNUAL MEETING OF WOMAN'S PRESBYTERIAL SOCIETY AT WOODBRIDGE.

Mrs. I. C. Pierson, of This City, Was Elected Vice President—Next Meeting Here.

A number of women from the Presbyterian churches of this city attended the nineteenth annual meeting of the Woman's Presbyterial Society for Home Missions, held Firday at the Presbyterian church of Woodbridge.

There were two sessions, one in the morning and the other in the afternoon. The former was devoted to the hearing of reports and listening to addresses by prominent mission workers, including one by Mrs. T. Ames, a colored woman, who is at the head of Harbison College in the south. Devotional exercises, roll call and addresses occupied the afternoon meeting.

With the exception of the secretary of literature, the same officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows: President, Mrs. M. J. Gildersleeve, Westfield; vice presidents, Mrs. I. C. Pierson, Plainfield, Mrs. J. M. McNulty, Woodbridge; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. A. Fraser, Elizabeth; recording secretary, Miss Anna Alward, Basking Ridge; secretary Young People's Work, Mrs. Ad. Lyon, Perth Amboy; secretary for Freedman, Miss Ella Beale, Roselle; treasurer, Mrs. J. C. Keron, Elizabeth.

The next annual meeting will be held next March, at the First Presbyterian church of this city.

William R. Conover Dead.

Word has been received here that Wm. R. Conover, who resided in this city for a long time, died suddenly in Newark Friday night. He was employed by the Habne Company and succumbed to heart disease while seated in his delivery wagon. Up to a short time ago he conducted a pool room on East Second street. He leaves a wife and four sons.

Offers Valuable Privileges.

The Y. M. C. A., with its attractive building, is enabled to offer, at a low figure, privileges that cannot be duplicated in this city at any price. The privileges offered embrace gymnasium, shower baths, swimming pool and various other valuable privileges. A cordial invitation is extended to all young men to visit the building.

Judgment Rendered.

Judgment was rendered Friday in Justice Mosher's court in favor of William G. DeMess, who was the complainant in a suit for $100 against Charles Bock. Execution from the Court of Common Pleas has been issued against Bock's property on East Front street.

New Stationer.

W. T. Maxwell, stationer for the New Jersey Central, has resigned and has been succeeded by W. B. Darse, with office in New York City.

Miss Nellie Schutt, of New York, who has been the guest of borough friends for several days, has returned home.

BUILDING RESIDENCE PARK

WEALTHY NEW YORKER TRANSFORMING EIGHTY ACRES OF GROUND.

He Proposes Having Picturesque Drives, Walks, Fountains and Many Other Things.

J. H. Hand, a wealthy New Yorker, who recently purchased eighty acres of land opposite Oak Tree on Park avenue, near the turn on the road to Metuchen, has decided to lay out a park there for a private residence and work has already commenced. At present there are fifteen men employed on the place and it is hoped to have a good part of the work completed by July 4. J. H. Brown, of New York, is the architect, and A. B. Kyle, of this city, the landscape gardener and engineer, has charge of the work. Under him is W. H. Johnson, of Scotch Plains, builder and contractor.

It is proposed to build a handsome residence on the place, with all modern improvements and picturesque drives and walks, with fountains, flower beds, conservatory, etc., are also included in the plans. Mr. Hand has a family consisting of a wife and child, and he proposes to have a fine summer residence.

Mr. Kyle is especially well fitted for the work, having had wide experience. He was the one who laid out Glen Island and the Residence Park at New Rochelle.

Honors for Plainfield Boy.

Unusual honors have come to a former Plainfield boy. Harold A. Nomer, a graduate of the local high school, has won the first prize of $20 in an oratorical contest at Williams' College. He has also had the honor conferred upon him of being appointed on the debating team which will wrest for honors with the Dartmouth College at Dartmouth, this year. Mr. Nomer is a freshmean in college.

Probably at Casino.

It is quite probable that William Holmes will arrange to give the "Pirates of Penzance," at the Casino, after Easter. Those who are to appear in the opera have been rehearsing for some time past and excellent progress has been made. The dates will probably be May 21 and 22.

Dr. Hall Spoke.

Instead of the regular lesson review, the members of Hope chapel's Sunday-school, listened Sunday afternoon, to an address by Dr. Thomas O. Hall, of Union Theological Seminary. Solos were rendered by Miss Elizabeth Long, of the Crescent Avenue church choir.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting for the election of officers of the Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union will be held Monday afternoon, April 6 in the Y. M. C. A. building.

Closed During Funeral.

Owing to the death of G. F. Swift, of Chicago, the local beef house of the company is closed this afternoon during the time of the funeral.

Former Central Man Gone.

Henry R. Hawley, formerly for a number of years master mechanic of the New Jersey Central, died recently in Brooklyn, aged fifty-nine years.

THEATRICAL.

"The Prince of Pilsen" has "caught on" in New York and Henry W. Savage has another metropolitan success to his credit. The Finley and Leders' musical comedy has just closed its first week at the Broadway Theatre and that popular playhouse has been crowded at every performance. The New York critics have endorsed in unqualified terms the latest offering of Mr. Savage to Broadway and there is no doubt but that the tuneful piece will enjoy a long run in the metropolis. Mr. Leders' melodies are being whistled all over the United States.

Aubrey Boucicault will make his next appearance as a star as the Princess Theatre in April. Following the engagement of the Amelia Bingham Company at that pretty playhouse there will be a double bill of joyful comedy and intensest heart interest. The regular evening bill, and including the customary matinees on Thursday and Saturday, will be the London laughing success, "There and Back." This is the roaring farce - comedy, written by George Arliss who has made such a signal success in David Belasco's "Darling of the Gods." As a curtain raiser to "There and Back," Aubrey Boucicault will produce the fine half-hour play of laughs and sentiment, "The Man Who Stole The Castle." This little playlet is the work of Tom Gallon and L. M. Lion, a dramatization of the former's pretty story of the same name.

When the Casino company playing "A Chinese Honeymoon" goes to Chicago for its summer run at the pretty Illinois Theatre there will be two new faces among the many principals. Miss Estelle Wentworth will replace Miss Amelia Stone in the role of Princess Soo Soo, and Benjamin Howard will be the Capt. Tom Hatherton in place of VanRensselaer Wheeler. Miss Stone and Mr. Wheeler will remain with the Messrs. Sam. S. and Lee Shubert indefinitely filling new roles in the series of musical comedies which they are to produce from time to time at the Casino. Miss Wentworth who was the prima donna of the Lulu Glaser Opera Company in "Dolly Varden," is expected to make a big hit as the pretty Chinese princess of the merry musical play, as she is not only a beautiful woman, but the music of the role is particularly well suited to her.

Williams & Walker, who have attracted much attention during their long run at the New York Theatre, will end their engagement at this house Saturday evening. After which, therefore, presents the last opportunities to see these comedians and their great company of 150 people in "In Dahomey" on Broadway, where they have achieved a very notable success, playing to the best people in the city. Immediately following the departure of Williams & Walker, Klaw & Erlanger will begin the reconstruction of the New York Theatre, on which they will expend $150,000 in innovations and decorations. The house will reopen in September with an elaborate revival of "Ben Hur," presented on even a grander scale than during its run at the Broadway Theatre its first season. Instead of two chariots in the race scene there will be four and sixteen horses. It is a point of interest to note that the 1,000th performance of "Ben Hur" in this country was presented at the Great Southern Theatre in Columbus, Ohio, Thursday evening, March 26.

Politicians May Play Golf.

The New York Mail and Express is authority for the statement that "there is a chance of New Jersey political lights engaging in a golf match over the links of the Essex County Country Club. Assemblyman Evert Colby, who lives in Llewellyn Park, is trying to arrange a match between members of the House and Senate after the Legislature adjourns.

Palm Sunday Preparation.

Preparations are being made for Palm Sunday which falls on Sunday, April 5. Special services will be held in the Episcopal and Roman Catholic churches. At that time the ceremony of the blessing of the palms and the distribution of them will take place in the Roman Catholic churches after the masses in the morning.

D. of L. State Council.

The State Council of the New Jersey Daughters of Liberty will be held at Atlantic City, April 21 and 22. The reports of the State officers will show a membership of 15,003, a net gain of 743 for 1902. There is a net gain of five new councils for the year.

New Scale Satisfactory.

The new scale of wages agreed upon between the New Jersey Central and a committee representing the locomotive engineers has been accepted as satisfactory to all concerned.

Granted a Pension.

Michael Albert, of Warrenville, has just been granted a pension of $10 a month.

Fair After Easter.

A fair will be held in the parish house of Grace Episcopal church soon after Easter.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 5.
The Danger of Indifference.
Text. Heb. ii. 3.

"How shall we escape if we neglect so great a salvation?"

The special topic for the month of April is "Danger Signals." There are many foes to the earnest Christian life, and it is well to clearly recognize them and be guarded against them. Among our young people are many who have never made an open profession of faith in Jesus Christ and never taken vows of allegiance to God. They attend the services of the church as a matter of custom and find society among Christian young people, but do not reckon themselves as Christians or feel bound by rules which they think Christians ought to keep.

In actual, spiritual condition they vary greatly. Some feel a deep seated repulsion to the claims and offers of the gospel because to recognize them would be a confession of having been wrong and done wrong. Pride revolts against such a suggestion. The demand for a pure life of unselfish devotion and loving fellowship does not attract since it puts to shame and condemns the self indulgence which has become so confirmed in practice and disposition.

Some there are who have no positive dislike of religion, but habitually dislike earnest exertion of almost any kind. They prefer not to be disturbed by any serious thought or effort. Matters are well enough as they are, and there is no particular danger or cause for special anxiety. This inertia is very common among Christians as well as the nonprofessing friends of the church. Errors in belief and action are not such serious matters as to warrant excitement or anxiety and surely, they think, should be handled quietly and cautiously. Truth and right have never been of enough importance to them to awaken them from their indolent ease and apathy. Others among us are indifferent to the gospel of Christ because they are occupied so completely by other things. They have never stopped to think much about the matter. Mind and heart and time have been preoccupied, and as they have until now been indifferent.

There is danger of the gravest kind in such a situation. A soul not saved is a soul lost. There is salvation only through Jesus Christ. It is the privilege of every one among us to make choice of Him and accept Him as Saviour. Consciousness of personal salvation is the best thing this world can afford to any soul. No one should neglect deliberate choice. Any delay or continued indifference carries fearful consequences: The longer decision is delayed the more fixed the habits of mind and body become, and the more difficult to change. The strength to accept and do the truth weakens with each neglect, and all habits grow stronger. Favorable opportunities and inner impulses grow less with each rejection.

Awake, thou that sleepest!
Arise, shine, for thy light is come!

A Governing God.

When things get beyond your control, when you face an unknown future and when trying conditions confront you, remember that there is a governing God in Israel and that it is His to bring light out of darkness, joy out of sorrow and hope out of despair. Be patient and acquiescent. Let the Ruler of the Universe and the Lord of the individual manage affairs in His own way and at His own time. Neither grow weary nor become too anticipative. Roll upon a covenant keeping God your cares, taking His dispensations as they come and multiplying sorrow neither by distrust nor by foreboding. God unravels the future day by day, hour by hour and moment by moment, accompanying the distribution with His supporting and sanctifying grace.—Presbyterian.

What Is Prayer For?

God knows our needs before we ask. Then what is prayer for? Not to inform Him or to move Him, unwilling, to have mercy, as if, the sons of proud princes, He required a certain amount of recognition of His greatness as the price of His favors, but to fit our own hearts by conscious need and true desire and dependence to receive the gifts which He is ever willing to give, but which we can not always fit to receive. As St. Augustine has it, the empty vessel is by prayer carried to the full fountain.—A. Maclaren.

The Symphony of Life.

What a splendid symphony in life to one who knows how to interpret it, with its four movements and its one theme! For that one theme is love and God, and love and God are one. First, the dance and song of childhood, then the love music of youth; then the labor and martial music of manhood, mingled with the sweet home music of womanhood, with strains of pathetic minor enriching both, and, last of all, the peace of song of old age.—Outlook.

A Secret of Life.

One secret of sweet and happy Christian life is learning to live by the day. Even tomorrow is never ours till it becomes today, and we have nothing whatever to do with it but to pass down to it a fair inheritance in today's work well done and today's life well lived.—Central Presbyterian.

To Perfect His People.

The more the diamond is cut the brighter it sparkles and in what seems hard dealing God has no end in view but to perfect His people's graces.—Dr. Guthrie.

Safe to Forget.

Being in Christ, it is safe to forget the past; it is possible to be sure of the future; it is possible to be diligent in the present.—A. Maclaren.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 5.
Conducted by Rev. E. H. Doyle.
The parable of the good Samaritan teaches us.—Luke x, 25-37.

The parable of the good Samaritan is the second of those to be found only in Luke's gospel and is one of the loveliest and most suggestive of all the parables of Christ. If Luke had preserved nothing else than this parable and that of the prodigal son, the world would have been immeasurably indebted to him. Nothing so much as these priceless stories illustrates the fact that Christ "spake as never man spake."

The parable was called forth by the question of a lawyer, one whose business it was to interpret the Mosaic law concerning eternal life. Six times Christ met this question in some form: "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" The lawyer asked it that he might test Christ. In answer Jesus referred to the law, which the lawyer correctly quoted as embracing love to God and love to our neighbors. Attempting to justify his interpretation of the law, which was an exclusive one, the lawyer asked, "And who is my neighbor?" This question called forth the matchless parable of Christ, the good Samaritan.

1. The parable of the good Samaritan teaches us who is our neighbor. A man fell among thieves and was left half dead. A priest passed him by without looking at him. A Levite chanced along, "came and looked on him and passed by on the other side;" then came a Samaritan, a man of different race and religion, and he cared for him and in doing so illustrated neighborliness. In this story Christ teaches us that the man who needs our help and whom we are able to help is our neighbor, regardless of race, nationality, religion or social position. The Jews were most exclusive in their definition of neighbor, while Christ is most comprehensive. Any man the world over who needs our help, temporarily or spiritually, is our neighbor. This truth needs still to be emphasized, and the world needs more and more to see in Jesus Christ the ideal good Samaritan and to imitate His example.

2. The parable of the good Samaritan teaches us how to "love our neighbor as ourselves." How to do this is often a serious question. It cannot mean that there is to be as strong affection in our hearts for all men as for our own interest and that of those bound to us by the natural ties of life. God has placed us in peculiar relation to many people, and our duty is to them. What does it mean then? What did the Samaritan do? He did unto another as he would have had that other do unto him had the conditions been reversed. Undoubtedly Christ's Golden Rule is the best definition of loving our neighbor as ourselves. Such love is more in the action than in the heart. It is philanthropy rather than affection. The man who keeps the Golden Rule will always love his neighbor as himself.

3. The parable of the good Samaritan teaches that all men should love their neighbors as themselves. Priest and Levite are condemned for their failure to do so, while the Samaritan is commended. Christ also exhorts the lawyer to follow his example. The world is full of the needy and unfortunate. Let us, following Christ's example and precept, "do unto them as we would have them do unto us."

BIBLE READINGS.

Lev. xix, 18; Prov. iii, 27-29; Hab. ii, 15; Matt. v, 43-48; vii, 12; xxii, 36-39; xxv, 31-46; Rom. i, 14-17; xiii, 7-10; Eph. iv, 25.

The Quiet Hour.

Every comrade of the Quiet Hour will appreciate the following Scripture that bears out so strikingly the idea of the movement:

Our Master's Invitation.—"Come ye yourselves apart."—Mark vi, 31.

Our Master's Command.—"When thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret."—Matt. vi, 6.

Our Master's Example.—"And in the morning, rising up a great while before day, He went out and departed into a solitary place and there prayed."—Mark i, 35.

Our Master's Promises.—"Lo, I am with you always."—Mark xvi, 15. "And thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly."—Matt. vi, 6.

The Servant's Response.—"O God, thou art my God; early will I seek Thee; my soul thirsteth for Thee."—Ps. lxiii, 1. "Oh, Lord, in the morning shalt Thou hear in the morning, O Lord; in the morning will I direct my prayer unto Thee and will look up."—Ps. v, 3.

Begin the day with God!
He is thy sun and day;
He is the light that lights thy dawn;
To Him address thy lay.

Take thy first walk with God;
Let Him go forth with thee;
By sermon or sea or mountain path
Seek still His company.

—H. Bonar.

A Pointer For Workers.

The secretary of one county union issues a bulletin after each meeting of the county congress in which he gives interesting items from reports of local societies.

Quiz Box.

[Any question may be asked that pertains to any phase of Christian Endeavor work. Address Lock Box 674, Binghamton, N. Y.]

49. R. L. L., Langston City, Okla.; Mrs. H. L. B., Cuero, Tex., and Rev. E. J., Allenton, Ala.—Your questions will be answered by mail from the headquarters of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, Boston.

50. T. M. C., Cascade Valley, N. Y.—One of the surest ways to increase interest in your prayer meetings is by varying the conduct of the services. Keep out of a rut in the way of doing things, and your work will get to white heat.

FRIDAY EVENING CLUB CLOSES THE SEASON

Vaudeville Programme of Exceptional Merit Delights a Very Large Audience.

VERY CLEVER ARTISTS

MISS ELSIE MARTIN AND MCCRADY SYKES MAKE DISTINCT HIT.

Dancing and Other Amusements Follow—Those Who Have Had Charge During the Winter—Season Proved Very Successful.

As a closing event of a most successful season, the Friday Night Club held a vaudeville performance Friday evening at the Casino at which there were fully 250 people present, most of whom are members of the organization. Those appearing as entertainers were nearly all local society folk, although some New York people, amateurs before the footlights, assisted in the evening's entertainment.

Music by Mack's orchestra from New York was a feature and until the curtain rose several of the local popular airs were played, the chorus of which the audience joined in singing, as it did also between the acts. Shortly before the curtain went up the first act a large placard was brought out and placed upon the easel at the side of the stage announcing that the first piece would be a sketch by "America's Tone Artists," Fox and VanBuren. Miss Eleanor Landale Fox, of Philadelphia, and Laurens VanBuren were the first to appear and the sketch they presented was clever. They scored a decided hit.

The next number consisted of several songs by Mrs. Roy Mack. She sang popular airs with the snap and vim that won for her much applause. Miss Fox, in the next act presented an "animated song sheet" in a clever manner, and was encored several times.

One of the hits of the evening was the sketch by "Martin and Sykes." This was a little farce comedy in one act which figuratively brought down the house. Miss Elsie Martin and McCready Sykes were the performers in this and the manner in which it was produced was creditable. Miss Martin, a maid, was waiting for her mistress' father from the country who was expected in town to pay a visit when in walked Mr. Sykes as a typical suburbanite.

The visitor proceeded to make himself at home in the luxuriant surroundings and his antics convulsed the audience. While he was waiting he picked up a copy of The Daily Press and read several accounts therefrom. The first thing his eye lighted upon was the picture of W. G. Beeler and he remarked that he was glad to see that his photograph had gotten in the paper ahead of his arrival. Many timely jokes were cracked which were, in some cases, hits on the prominent members of the club.

Slave Scanlon gave several clever exhibitions of buck and wing dancing. Willard Wadsworth, of this city, contributed monologues which were well received.

"Orthello, or No More of Venus," was a good burlesque by McCready Sykes, under the name of "Tomaso Salvini." This was one of the best sketches of the evening and his renditions were well received.

Mrs. Mack again favored the audience with several Japanese songs, after which the programme concluded with the comedy sketch in one act, entitled, "A Proposal Under Difficulties." The cast consisted of Miss C. Grace Jerolomon, Miss Alice Jerolomon, Hugh MacKinnon and W. C. Thompson, all of New York. This was enthusiastically received.

After the performance dancing was enjoyed by some while others spent the rest of the evening on the bowling alleys or in the pool and billiard parlors.

The committee which had the arrangements for the performance in charge and who have been conducting the meetings through the season is composed of G. Herbert Taylor, Miss Florence Huntington, Miss Maude VanBuskirck, Mrs. Daniel Gunn, Evarts Tracy and Thomas R. VanBuskirck.

Whist Association Meeting.

The next monthly meeting of the New Jersey Whist Association will be held at the Jersey City Club, Friday evening, April 3. The game will be progressive pairs for prizes, including contest for possession of the New Jersey trophy.

Fad Social.

A "Fad" social will be held this evening at the Congregational church, when those attending will be expected to be present in some sort of attire carrying out the idea of a fad. Refreshments and a social time will follow.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXVI. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, APRIL 9, 1903. NO. 15.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well as Its Limitations as to Its Authorities."—Madison.

NOT PLEASED WITH ALL THE PUBLICITY

Members of the Councilmanic Alms Committee Didn't Like the Published Attack.

CALLED IT ILL TIMED

CHAIRMAN GLOAK SAYS THAT COMMITTEE HAD PLANNED REFORMS.

Had Already Agreed to Remedy the Defects, and Had Met in Conference With Members of Charity Organized Aid Association.

Regarding the recent attack made on the management of the Industrial Home by members of the Charity Organized Aid Association, Chairman W. L. Gloak, of the Councilmanic alms committee, takes some exception.

Mr. Gloak was seen a few nights ago about the matter and in expressing his opinion about the published article, said that he thought it was most untimely and out of place. He said that only a short time before the article was published the members of his committee held a conference with the Organized Aid Association representatives at the home of Mrs. Tiffany and plans for correcting irregularities were discussed at some length.

"This was no new matter," continued Mr. Gloak. "The alms committee was fully cognizant of the condition of affairs at the Industrial Home and had planned for an extra appropriation this year to provide for a sewer connection and plenty of water so that the Home would be strictly sanitary. As to the charge of intoxication, I believe that only more stringent rules will decrease the extent of it. The inmates are allowed to leave the Home at stated intervals and while they are in the city there is no power to prevent them from securing liquor if they are determined to get it. In my opinion I believe that the inmates are allowed to visit the city too often and the time off should be cut down somewhat to obtain better results."

Another member of the committee coincided with the utterances with Mr. Gloak when he said that the published article was inopportune. In his opinion the charity workers have simply placed the cart before the horse. Mr. Gloak assured the representative for The Daily Press that every effort will be made this year to correct any existing evils and a set of very strict rules will be put in force at the Home, the violation of them being punishable by severe reprimand.

TWO NEW HOUSES.

Permits Just Issued for New Residences in East and West Ends.

Two permits have been granted for the erection of dwellings by Building Inspector T. O. Doane. A. Russell Bond, of 148 East Second street, was granted permission to erect a two and a half story residence on South avenue near Woodland avenue. The house will be 30x32½ feet. Titus & Pope are the contractors.

George M. Phillips, of 1122 West Front street, will erect a house 24x37½ x35 feet on Dunellen avenue near Manners avenue. Charles L. Force is the architect, S. F. Tallamy the mason, and Harvey Apgar the carpenter.

To Determine Time of Meeting.

Next week there will be a special meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church for the purpose of ascertaining the consensus of opinion of the members as to whether to continue holding meetings Friday evenings or Sunday evenings. The meeting will be held Friday evening after which there will be a social time.

Seven Visitors.

Monday afternoon and morning there were seven school teachers who were visitors at the North Plainfield High School. Some were from Westfield, Buffalo, N. Y., Brooklyn, New York, Bloomfield and from this city.

Changed Day of Meeting.

The Junior Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church has changed its time for meeting from Friday afternoon to Thursday afternoon of each week. The hour of meeting is the same.

Tiny Ones Promoted.

A class of six was promoted from the baby department to the primary department at the First Baptist church Sunday-school session Sunday.

Congregational Church Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Congregational church will be held Wednesday evening, April 15.

CLASS GIFT.

Junior Class Will Present City High School With Statue.

The junior class of the City High School has decided upon the class gift to be presented to the school at Easter. The gift will be a cast of Michael Angelo's famous statue "Moses," and will be purchased with the proceeds of the recent class entertainment. The cast is a beautiful work of art about forty inches in height and will be presented on a handsome pedestal. It will be presented to the school on Friday morning, and will probably be placed on the platform in the chapel of the school. It is to cost about $35.

ASSIGNMENT OF PASTORS

WHERE SOME FORMER PLAINFIELDERS ARE NOW LOCATED.

They Were Appointed at Close of Newark Conference at Newark Monday.

Before the Newark Conference was concluded Monday, the various appointments were made. Some of these will interest Plainfielders. Rev. H. J. Johnston, formerly of Grace M. E. church, is continued at the First M. E. church, Bayonne. Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, formerly at Monroe Avenue church, is also continued at the West Side Avenue church, Jersey City. Rev. Dr. C. R. Barnes, who has been pastor of the Hedding M. E. church, Jersey City, has been made field agent for the City Evangelization Union. Rev. F. L. Rounds is assigned to Bound Brook, while Rev. S. K. Doolittle is returned to Dunellen. Rev. Francis E. Whiteside receives as his first charge the M. E. church at East Millstone.

The following persons well known here have been appointed on various committees: Committee on qualification, Rev. H. J. Johnston, of Bayonne; Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, Plainfield; Rev. Dr. J. L. Hurlbut, Morristown; Rev. C. M. Anderson, Westfield; triers of appeals, Rev. Dr. George W. Smith, of Passaic; conference board of home missions and church extension, Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass; trustees of the Centenary Collegiate Institute, Rev. Dr. G. H. Whitney, Walter M. McGee and J. W. Jackson, of Plainfield.

HOLY WEEK.

Special Services Are Being Held at St. Stephen's Church.

Special services are being held every day this week at St. Stephen's Episcopal church at Netherwood. Matins and litany will be sung at 10 o'clock in the morning and every afternoon at 4 o'clock excepting Saturday when the matins and litany will be sung at 9 o'clock in the morning and at 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

Good Friday there will be a special service at the church at 7:30 o'clock, the subject being "The Way of the Cross." This service, and all those during the week will be conducted by the rector, Rev. William V. Dawson. Matins and litany will be sung at 10 o'clock and a three hours' passion service will be held between the hours of 12 and 3 o'clock in the afternoon on that day.

IN HUFF'S COURT.

Batch of Cases, Which Have Been Started in That Court.

Justice Huff has issued dispossess papers in the case of William Hetfield against Elias McCready, and similar action has been taken in the case of Bernard Clark against Samuel Jones. The papers in this case are returnable April. In the landlord and tenant case of Fred Endress against Ernest Morris, possession has been given the plaintiff. The contract case of Titus & Codington against George H. Kenyon will be heard be heard before Justice Huff Tuesday, April 14. The case of Mamie Kelso against Alfred Cole, on a criminal charge, has been dismissed and similar action has been taken in the attachment case of Herman Klinaman against William Kennedy.

Secretary Ill.

Monday evening was the regular meeting night of the Borough Board of Health but owing to the illness of the secretary, Dr. W. E. Honeyman, the meeting was postponed.

—Local News on Page 3.

TROLLEY MEN CLAIM THEY'LL NOT STRIKE

Majority Are in Favor of Remaining at Work, Even If Request Isn't Granted.

A FEW TALKED STRIKE

AWAITING REPLY TO REQUEST FOR INCREASED WAGES.

Local Trolley Employe, Prominent in Circulating Petition, Declares That There Will be No Strike Under Any Circumstances.

"There will be no strike among the trolleymen," declared an employe of the local trolley system last night. Several days ago The Daily Press told of the petition sent in by the employes of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railroad Company asking for an increase in wages. It was rumored abroad and so stated by several of the trolley men themselves that failure to grant the request would result in a strike.

"There will be no strike among the trolley men," said the employe already quoted who was prominent in circulating the petition for signatures among the local employes of the company. "Whatever answer is made to our request, we have no intention of striking. There are a few hot headed ones who have talked about strikes but if they had read over that petition they would have seen that there was not the slightest suggestion of a strike. We do not intend to strike and are not going to strike, whatever is the outcome of the petition.

"Of course, we would like to get the raise if we could but it is not worth fighting for. The company has used us fairly and we are going to do the same by them. Everything would have gone all right if a few had only stopped talking. Their strike talk is ridiculous."

Talk with other trolley employes brings out that there is a strong feeling against a strike whatever the reception of the petition. A few men have talked strike but their ideas have not found favor, it is said, with a majority of the motormen and conductors.

CASH BURNED TOO.

Peter Sabriski Left Money With His Mother—Then Her Home Burned Down.

Somerville, April 8—The home of John Sabriski in Washington Valley was burned to the ground Monday night. The blaze is thought to have originated from a defective flue and before the old man and his aged wife could do anything to put it out the whole building was in flames.

Their son, Peter, was in Somerville. Before leaving for this place he placed $70 in his mother's hands, saying that she should keep it for him. She secreted the money in the house and it was burned up with the rest of the contents of the building.

Neighbors arrived and managed to keep the flames from spreading to the barn. The house and contents were partially covered by insurance.

YALE CLUB DINNER.

Will be Held at Yale Club, New York City, April 15.

The annual dinner of the Yale Club, of Plainfield, will be held Wednesday evening, April 15, at the Yale Club, 30 West Forty-fourth street, New York. The club now numbers sixty members and the newly-elected officers are as follows: President, James R. Joy; vice president, Edward Stevenson; secretary and treasurer, C. Westley Abbott; executive committee, Evarts Tracy, Howard Huntington and Charles Dupee. After this year the club will arrange to hold its annual dinners in Plainfield.

West Over B. and O.

Rev. Mr. Karner, of Plainfield avenue, who went to Honduras this week to inspect a banana plantation, in the interest of several Plainfielders did not go over the Pennsylvania Railroad, as reported. He went to Washington by the B. and O., purchasing his ticket at the North Avenue station. From Washington he took the Southern Railway.

Serious Charge.

Somerville, April 8—Samuel Johnstone, a Millstone colored man who is charged with assaulting little Anna Hall, a white girl, twelve years old, was brought here, yesterday, and given a hearing before Justice Kitchen, who held him for the Grand Jury.

FAHN IS DISMISSED FROM BOROUGH FORCE

Found Guilty of Being Intoxicated While Doing Police Duty in the Borough.

WAS GIVEN A HEARING

CHARGE PREFERRED BY CHIEF MARSHAL WILLIAM CAMPBELL.

Fahn's Defence Was That It Was a Cold Night and He Had to Drink Something in Order to Keep Warm While Doing Duty.

Lawrence Fahn has been dismissed from the police force in the borough on a charge of being intoxicated while on duty. He was arraigned before the police committee of the Borough Council last Tuesday and after a careful examination it was found that the man, while not asleep as was alleged, was under the influence of liquor and was incapable of properly performing his duties.

The charges were preferred against him by Chief Marshal William Campbell, who claims to have seen him coming out of a saloon, while he was supposed to be on duty, and enter Saengerbund Hall. It was shown that he did not drink anything in the hall but was found there by Chief Campbell who ordered him home and to remove his uniform. Fahn's defence was that it was a cold night and that he indulged in some liquid refreshments to keep warm. He was suspended indefinitely from the force.

An effort is being made by the police committee to improve the condition of the borough police force and the action taken Tuesday in Fahn's case was an example to the other marshals.

A MASON AND MILITIA MAN

MAJOR GILBERT SNOWDEN COOK, OF SOMERVILLE, IS DEAD.

Funeral of Prominent Somerset County Man Was Held at Somerville Yesterday.

Somerville, April 8—The funeral was held yesterday afternoon of Major Gilbert Snowden Cook, who was probably the best known man in Somerville a few years ago. He was born here and was for twenty-five years in the drug business in this place. When he retired from that he went in the straw-board trade in New York, but kept his residence here. He died in the city at the age of fifty-five years, from Bright's disease.

Major Cook was a veteran of the Civil War, having been a member of the Thirty-seventh New Jersey Volunteers. He was one of the organizers of Company H, Third Regiment, N. G. N. J., and at its first business meeting was elected its captain. In 1899, this company became Company M, Second Regiment, but Capt. Cook continued in command until elected a major in the latter part of the same year. He did not go to the Spanish-American war because of ill health.

He was a prominent Mason. He was made a Knight Templar in Coner de Leon Commandery at New Brunswick, but on the formation of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, at Plainfield, he affiliated with that order and was its first generalissimo. He was also a member of Mecca Temple.

He had been chief of the Somerville fire department and superintendent of both the First and Second Reformed Sunday-schools.

A widow, who was Miss Elizabeth Barcalow, survives him.

DIED IN PRISON.

George Vandervoort, of Somerset County, Sent There a Year Ago.

Somerville, April 8—George Vandervoort, who died in the State Prison at Trenton yesterday, was sent there from this place February 4, 1902. He was sentenced to three years of hard labor for assault with intent to kill. The confinement was too much for his delicate constitution and he succumbed to a lingering disease. The remains will be brought here for burial.

No Endeavor Meeting.

There will be no meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church this week as that society will join with the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church on Good Friday evening.

Walter Connors will drive stage for Adam Deter for a few days.

TO BUILD ADDITION TO PARK CLUBHOUSE

Club Authorizes Board of Governors to Go Ahead on the Proposed Changes.

TO START THIS SUMMER

ARCHITECT SMITH WAS PRESENT AT THE MEETING.

Will Have a Cosy Auditorium Well Equipped, and Other New Rooms on the First Floor—Will Also Have New Billiard Room.

It is now assured that the proposed addition to the Park Clubhouse on Washington avenue will be built this summer. Plans and specifications have been prepared by Architect Chas. A. Smith. Last Tuesday at a special meeting of the Park Club, the governors of the club were empowered to go ahead and the details of the addition were left to their discretion. The vote on the question was a unanimous one.

One member of the club, in order to permit the enlargement of the clubhouse at once, offered several months ago to meet half of the cost of the alterations if the other members would subscribe the rest. Another member came forward very generously and with the assistance of the remainder almost the entire amount necessary to complete the plans has been secured. There is still a small amount to be raised but the governors feel that there will be no difficulty in securing it.

At the meeting last evening, Architect Smith was present with the plans which were explained to those who had not seen them before. Most of the members were acquainted with them. The changes will make of the present building into an ideal clubhouse. There will be an addition on the rear which will convert the present hall into a cozy little auditorium with stage at the rear and galleries bounding it. Dressing rooms, a tea room and a kitchen will be located on the same floor. On the basement floor there will be a new and more commodious billiard room while the present billiard room will be converted into a club sitting room.

CELLAR GANG READY.

Each Member of That Famous Organization Will Dig Twelve Cartloads of Earth.

After the regular business meeting of the Warren Engine Company last night, a meeting was called of all the members present who signed the cellar digging compact for the new engine house. It was decided to begin digging the lot as soon as the staking out was completed. Each member of the company will dig twelve cartloads of earth. The work will probably be done by the members at night as soon as the weather permits.

There is no doubt that the digging, when once started will be rushed through to completion so as not to delay the work on the foundations of the new building.

To Paint School Houses.

The Board of Education is asking for bids for the painting of the Bryant and Franklin schools. The members will hold a special meeting in about ten days to award the contract in order to have the work done at once.

Good Friday Service.

A good Friday service will be held at the German Lutheran church Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock, and on Easter Sunday Holy Communion will be celebrated at 10 o'clock, when the pastor, Rev. Mr. Duensing, will officiate.

Hearing Probable.

Before any decided action is taken regarding the application of the Central New Jersey Telephone Company for a franchise in Plainfield, the Common Council will probably give a public hearing on the matter.

Annual Parish Meeting.

The annual parish meeting of the First Baptist church will be held in the church Tuesday evening, April 14, when reports will be submitted and trustees will be elected.

Union Good Friday Service.

A union Good Friday service will be held Friday evening at the Crescent avenue church, when the various ministers of the city will take part.

—Oliver R. Leonard and family, who have been living in Perth Amboy for a few years, have returned to their former residence on Madison avenue.

CELEBRATING HOLY WEEK.

Services Being Held This Week at St. Joseph's Church.

Holy week is being celebrated this week at the Catholic churches. At St. Joseph's R. C. church on Manning avenue a special service will be held this evening when Rev. Father Leahy, of Swedesborough, will preach a special sermon. Holy Thursday Rev. Father Miller, assisted by Rev. Father Leahy and another priest, will conduct the special service at the 7 o'clock mass in the morning when the solemn ceremony of hearing the blessed sacrament to the sanctuary will be held. Special services will be held at the church on Good Friday.

MUSICAL TREAT AT CASINO

CONCERT GIVEN BY THE MOZART SYMPHONY CLUB.

Artists of Ability Played With Much Dexterity on Many Instruments.

Something very much out of the ordinary in the way of a musical treat was offered at the Casino, last Tuesday, in the Mozart Symphony Club, of New York. It is to be regretted but few musical lovers were in attendance as the performance has seldom been equalled in this city. The audience, however, made up in enthusiasm what it lacked in numbers.

The club consists of four artists, Richard Stoelger, Theodore Hoob, M. Blodeck and Miss Marie Stori. They play with marvellous dexterity on a wide variety of instruments while Miss Stori is a soprano soloist of no mean ability. She favored with several selections and in one she accompanied herself with a violin.

Solos were given by the other members on the viola, violin, cornet, 'cello, herold's trumpet and the Alpine echo horn. The latter was handled by Herr Theodore Hoob and while delighting with its clear, musical tones, mystified by the succeeding echo. The overtures by the quartette were greatly enjoyed and a descriptive fantasi "In the Clock Store" was a distinct feature.

REPEALER SIGNED.

Governor Murphy Affixed His Signature to Annexation "Repealer" Tuesday.

Trenton, April 8—The annexation "repealer" which was passed by both houses of the Legislature this winter, was signed by Governor Murphy, yesterday. At the solicitation of President of the Senate Hutchinson, it was considered early in the list of bills before the Governor.

AUDITOR'S REPORT.

A Voluminous Report Prepared by City Auditor Collins.

The report of City Auditor Collins, which was presented to the Common Council Monday evening, consists of thirty-two pages, typewritten. Some of the time three typewriters were engaged on the work, but the bulk of this writing was done by Miss Grace Rowland, who is engaged in the office with Mr. Collins. There does not seem to be any disposition at present to make the report public, as the finance committee has not yet had an opportunity to examine it closely. For that reason it was referred to the committee Monday evening.

Ladies' Aid Elects.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Grace M. E. church held a meeting yesterday afternoon when officers were elected for the ensuing year. They were: President, Mrs. John Valiant; vice president, Mrs. E. G. Stevens; secretary, Mrs. Edwin L. Earp; treasurer, Mrs. Anna Mest.

Settled Damage Claim.

Daniel J. Courain, of Stebbins place, who was injured in the railroad wreck at Westfield on the New Jersey Central in January, settled his claim for damages, yesterday, with Claims Agent John K. Large, of the company. It is expected that another claim will be adjusted today.

Grand Officers Coming.

The Grand Lodge officers will meet with Senate Lodge, Knights of Honor, of this city, on Thursday evening, April 16. A full attendance of the members is desired.

Extra Voices for Easter.

Preparations are being made for special Easter services at the Crescent Avenue church, next Sunday. The quartette choir will be assisted by extra voices.

Easter Offering.

The Easter Sunday offering at the Crescent Avenue church will be for the deacon's fund of the church.

HILLSIDE CLUB OPENS FOR SEASON FRIDAY

The Course in Now in Good Condition and the Summer Greens Will be Used.

NEW MEMBERS ELECTED

COMMITTEES NAMED BY PRESIDENT GEORGE P. MELLICK.

Meeting of the Officers Held Last Night When Final Plans Were Made for the Opening and Members Were Elected.

An important meeting of the officers of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club was held last Tuesday at the home of the president, George P. Mellick, of East Seventh street, when plans were discussed for the opening of the course on Friday and committees for the season were appointed. The course will open on Friday and when the summer greens will be used. They are generally in fair condition. The clubhouse will not be opened for a couple of weeks, but arrangements have been made for the serving of sandwiches, tea and coffee on Friday and Saturday.

The club has secured the services of Miss Lena Hulstrum and Miss Catherine Quinn, the well-known society caters, to take charge of the clubhouse. Miss Hulstrum will be remembered as the one who served the "assembly" suppers so satisfactorily.

The following committees have been appointed:

House—L. E. Waring, chairman; Miss Maud VanBoskerck, Miss May Holly, L. G. Timpson, G. Herbert Taylor; golf—Thomas R. VanBoskerk, chairman; Howard Huntington, Reeve Stockton, Morris J. Dumont, George VanBoskerk; tennis—T. M. Day, Jr., chairman; Miss Mary Whiton, Miss Schuyler, F. W. Goddard and A. B. Beers; greens—E. T. Barrows, chairman; Walter Peterson and Dr. S. vanD. Hedges.

The following new members were elected last evening:

Active Members—

E. B. Shoemaker, 326 Kensington avenue; Edward E Ivemeager, Belvidere avenue; George E. Cathcart, 749 Belvidere avenue; Theodore W. Morris, Jr., 89 Myrtle avenue; Edward R. Rinehart, Jr., 836 Hillside avenue; Benjamin A. Hageman, Jr., 21 Myrtle avenue; Gerald F. Earle, 808 Central avenue; Ralph L. Vail, 211 West Eighth street; Henry D. Haven, 807 Franklin place; Middleton O'M. Knott, 1211 Putnam avenue; Robert A. Shebbeare, 1211 Putnam avenue; Hugh F. Fox, Central avenue; Lewis G. Timpson, 119 East Sixth street; Albert E. Barclay, 336 Central avenue; Joseph M. Shellabarger, 514 West Seventh street; R. Durell Lounsbery, 306 Dan Gran avenue.

Associate Members—

Mrs. Gerald B. Earle, Mrs. Edward E. Rinehart, Mrs. Edward E. Ivemeager, Mrs. Henry D. Hibbard, Miss Lily D. Wickersham.

Junior Associate Members—

Mrs. Lewis G. Timpson, Mrs. Henry D. Haven, Mrs. Joseph M. Shellabarger, J. Rez Shoemaker, Miss Antoinette G. Barclay, Mrs. R. Durell Lounsbery, Howard W. Ladd, Horace B. Earle.

Ready to Start Work.

A good part of the material for the police telegraph system has arrived and it is expected the Gamewell employes will begin actual work this week. The system must be in readiness for operation within 100 days. The patrol wagon, to be used in emergency cases, must be secured by the department additionally.

Did Damage While Dying.

A horse belonging to Joseph Feraro, of Fruit dealer of Somerset street, died last evening after a short illness from colic. In its dying struggles it kicked out the side of the stall and part of the side walls of the stable.

Special Services at Warren.

During every evening of this week, with the exception of Saturday, special services will be held in Warren chapel. Good speakers will be present and a cordial welcome is extended to all interested.

New Law Offices.

The rooms in the Howard building formerly used by the city clerk, is being fitted up for Clarion T. Gallup, the lawyer, as offices for his business.

—There is a great reduction in the price of White Label canned goods at Neuman Brothers. This unusual reduction is made on account of stock taking.

IDENTIFIED BY HIS DOG.

Money-Order Clerk is Fast Office Pays as Seeing Owner's Name on Dog's Collar.

Bank clerks naturally and necessarily require satisfactory identification of persons who ask to have checks cashed. The same rule is followed in the post office by clerks who cash money orders; but what the nature of the identification shall be, and by whom, is a matter which rests to some extent in the discretion of the clerk. The Boston Herald tells a story in which a dog bore witness to his master's identity.

A Boston business man called at the postal order department the other day to get an order cashed, but the clerk in attendance had only recently been appointed. He said the caller would have to be identified before payment could be made.

"Why, I have had hundreds of orders cashed here," he replied, with a show of impatience. "Isn't there some one here who knows me?"

"I'm the only one on duty just now. The others are out to luncheon," said the clerk.

"Will you take the inscription on my dog's collar as sufficient identification?" was asked.

"Yes, that will be acceptable."

The man whistled for his terrier, and, taking him in his arms, "boosted" him up to the window. The clerk read the name and address on the collar and paid the order.

FUN FOR THE ACTRESS.

Her Method of Calling the Elevator Suggests Good System for Arousing Hotel Guests.

"I was surprised at the thoroughness of the hotel fire alarms of Washington," said a guest of one of the leading hotels to a representative of the Star. "It was about two o'clock this morning when the thing went off. An actress came home from a late supper, and not getting the elevator in time, touched off the fire alarm. There is a little disc alongside of the elevator bell on each floor, about the size of an ordinary watch. A little nickel hammer is attached by a chain, and on the glass in the disc is painted the words: 'In case of fire break this glass.' The actress didn't do a thing to the glass, and as a result there was the greatest commotion you ever heard. The halls were filled with people looking for fire-escapes, and most of them had their summer clothes on. Windows were thrown open, and it is a great wonder some one did not jump out. Firemen ran hose in the halls in every direction in a few seconds, and then it was found to be a false alarm. Many of the ladies could not sleep again, and remained in the office the rest of the night. It was great fun for the actress, but it showed a most remarkable system of alarm. I would consider the system perfect, and I believe, unless people got very much demoralized, the entire hotel could be emptied in less than five minutes."

FRANKLIN'S GREAT TRIUMPH.

Ieklament Worn in Hour of Humiliation Saved for the Hour of English Defeat.

When the treaty of Paris, which established peace between the United States and England, had been finally signed and sealed, Franklin turned to the English commissioners:

"Gentlemen," he said, writes Alfred Henry Lewis, in Everybody's Magazine, "I observed you cast an eye upon this old, spotted velvet suit I wear. Let me tell you what I would have you tell to England. Once, years ago, when these differences we have just concluded lay still in the seed, I bore a petition to your English privy council. I was laughed and jeered at, if you will, as an outlander and a savage of no rights, by the grave chief justice and his associates. They put forward a Scotch cur, one Wedderburn, to mouth and worry me. I was helpless, with no friend save my conscience. On that, my day of heaviest burden, I was garbed in these spotted velvet clothes. I will not pretend I was unmoved, and in my hate and rancor of the moment I made a mental vow that this raiment, worn in the hour of my humiliation, I would yet wear in the hour of British humiliation and defeat. From that day to this I have laid these garments by; and now, please God, I keep my vow and put them on."

Healthiest Place in the World.

On the strength of mortality statistics prepared by the government of the province of Ontario it is claimed that Ontario is the healthiest place in the world. The death rate last year was 13.3 per 1,000. Most of the deaths are of infants and elderly people. The death rate of the great class between infancy and 55 years of age is only six per 1,000. This is a death rate for the working period of life lower than that of any other country in the world.

Insanity Among Women.

A German physician investigating the causes of insanity among women, and has come to the conclusion that if women are admitted into competition with men, the inevitable result will be a tremendous increase of insanity among the women. He finds that the percentage of women teachers who become insane is almost double that of the men teachers.

Scented Cloth Woven.

Scented cloth, designed for ladies' dresses, is the latest novelty from Paris. The fabric retains its fragrance no long as there is a fragment of the material left; you may tear, drench with rain, or fling aside the perfumed gown, but its particular fragrance will cling to it still.

SMART TRIMMINGS.

Lemon Dyed to Match Gowns—The Useful Black Lace Collar Cuff.

The greatest innovation in this way of trimming is the fashion of dyeing lace to match or contrast the material. Thus motifs of pale green lace are inserted or applied on brown cloth or pale blue on a deeper blue. It is decidedly original in effect, but the lace loses much of its daintiness and softness in the dyeing process.

The black lace coffee coat is unfailingly useful for home evening wear. It can be worn over colored blouses which are a little dubby, and if the collar band of the blouse is removed and a small V turned down in front quite a pretty demitoilet effect may be produced.

Fashion ordains that the well dressed woman should match her hats to her gowns, and this is comparatively easy in these days of ready made frames artistically covered and of trimmings all ready to slip on the hats.

BLACK CREPE DE CHINE GOWN.

The cap or pelerine effect is here to stay for some time. All the fashionable coats are made with it and quite a few of the bodices. For instance, a blouse of lace will be ornamented with a large cape effect of lace and applied silk, with touches of the same silk on the cuffs.

One of the most fashionable sleeve models is the three-quarter bell sleeve carved wide over a puffed sleevelet. This is a charming vogue for the lighter wool stuffs, and it works out prettily in voile. The whole affair is made on one foundation.

The cut shows a gown of black crepe de chine with the collar, epaulets and cuffs of ivory guipure.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHION HINTS.

Light Tones in Cloth and Zibeline. Dull Pastel Blue Tints.

Very light tones in cloth and zibeline will be worn this spring, and these are most attractive with a touch of black in the shape of a tulle boa.

A pale dull blue of the pastel order will undoubtedly be much worn, and just now a combination of light and dark blue is greatly in request and a welcome change from the black, emerald, brown and green which have been so general.

The all over lace waist will be much worn this spring and summer. The texture of the lace is somewhat heavier than last year. Little lace coats or blouses, the lace coarse of quality or bold of pattern, tinted to harmonize with neutral toned cloth skirts, will be among the season's most distinguished creations.

CLOTH COSTUME.

Soft satin is quite a popular fabric for evening gowns, and chiffon is the favorite trimming, although much lace is worn. Ribbons are used for a variety of purposes and chiefly for choux, which are now very large and often of two or three colors. Ellipse bodices are arranged on many of the new gowns.

The flowers on evening dresses are all mixed up with loops and trails of ribbon, and baby ribbon is still much used on net gowns.

The cut shows a cloth costume with collar and cuffs of plaid silk.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

SPRING FASHIONS.

Hats Worn on the Face In Paris. Flower Toques Popular.

Parisians are wearing their hats slightly tilted off the forehead, showing waved tresses. They are also dressing the hair on the top of the head.

Flower toques are always in demand for the spring season, the favorite flowers being shaded hyacinths, forgetmenots, roses, lilacs, mimosa, etc.

THEATER BLOUSE.

These are mostly mixed with tulle and chenille, and a great deal of nutmeg straw is being used.

The useful toques are mostly made in chip, though a coarse straw in a black and white biscuit mixture is a favorite combination.

Dead white straws are much used. Turbans are still worn tilted forward, and these are the most suitable to wear with tailor made frocks.

The tulle toque has entirely given way to light looking straws, which are certainly more practical, though nothing is prettier for restaurant dining than the white chiffon Monte Carlo toque draped with black chantilly lace and adorned with jet.

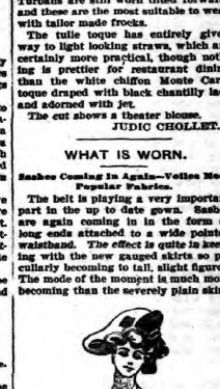
The cut shows a theater blouse.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

WHAT IS WORN.

Sashes Coming In Again—Voiles Most Popular Fabrics.

The belt is playing a very important part in the up to date gown. Sashes are again coming in in the form of long ends attached to a wide pointed waistband. The effect is quite in keeping with the new gauged skirts so peculiarly becoming to tall, slight figures. The mode of the moment is much more becoming than the severely plain skirt.



VISITING GOWN OF WOOL CREPE.

which showed up only too plainly every defect both of the wearer and the maker.

Voile or cotienne is a fabric which is very smart. The best voiles are those of a silky texture which fall very softly. There is not a great deal of difference between these and crepe de chine, but the former come a little cheaper.

Spots, from the smallest to the largest, are to be tremendously popular. Foulard is admirable in all spotted designs. There is something very chic, too, about a brightly spotted muslin.

The illustration shows a wool crape visiting gown.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Legally Qualified.

An old but sprightly patriarch stepped up to vote.

"How long have you resided in this precinct?" asked one of the judges of the election.

"Let me see," said the old man, musingly. "I moved here the next year after Lamech was born. Seven from nine leaves two. Eight from sixteen is eight. One to carry. Two from nine is seven. Something over 780 years, gentlemen. I am old enough to vote, too—if anybody should ask."

Whereupon, there being no objection Methuselah—for it was he—was allowed to deposit his ballot.—Chicago Tribune.

Women as Investors Of Money

ONE of the leading brokers of the United States recently made the rule that his firm should have no more business with women personally. For years he had an office for lady customers, where they had met to buy and sell stocks and watch the money market. They had undoubtedly enriched the curmudgeon broker by many thousand dollars, yet because one woman brought suit against him when she met with losses he shut down henceforth on all her sex. If a man had sued the broker on account of losses in the market, nothing would have been thought of it. Business would have gone on as usual. But one woman proved herself a fool; therefore in the mind of this perspicacious masculine reasoner all women are fools.

Women who have small or large sums of money to invest may learn from the above case the important lesson that when they meet with losses they must bear them "like a man" and not whine or go into hysterics. To meet adverse fate of all kinds with courage and calmness is the first step toward success of any kind.

Having decided that she will bear losses without squealing, the next consideration in the successful investment of money by a woman is to beware with perfect horror of get rich quick schemes. In at least ninety-nine cases out of a hundred they are mere traps to ensnare women and inexperienced investors. In a big city one lately collapsed that had defrauded scores of deluded women of all the money they had, some of it got by years of painful toil and skimping. When the end came and the concocters of the plot were arrested, it took half a dozen policemen to hold the cheated women in order, and then it was not done any too well. The unfortunate victims tried to do bodily violence to the rascals. "Just let us get at them!" they shouted. They crowded, they walked over each other, they shook their fists and screeched, and one or two tumbled over in as pretty a make believe feminine faint as you ever saw. Whatever you do, never do that. Don't be a fool.

Here is another don't—never lend any money for sentimental reasons to brother, uncle, friend or great-grandfather. You will be almost dead sure to rue it. Not long ago a widow with some money met a sweetheart of her youth. He appeared to be engaged in magnificent money getting schemes. He seemed to be more than ever devoted to her. He got $20,000 cold cash out of her "to invest." He swindled her as cleanly as even a woman's nearest friend or old sweetheart can do, and that is saying much. Now the woman has actually to do without proper food and lodging. Forget not this: Business is business. Never associate it with sentiment. If you do, it will be to your sorrow.

COLLAPSE OF THE GET RICH QUICK SCHEME.

Once more: Never intrust your capital to an agent who is going to take it far away and "invest" it in ways that will bring you in a million dollars a minute. New mining regions are full of these so called agents who are spending money like water and reveling in dissipation on the money that has been put into their hands by small owners to be invested. If those who have given them the money could see them spouting on it, the deluded investors would be cured, for good and all.

Where then shall women trust their money? To begin, let them learn to save money. She who can spare only $5 may put it into a savings bank and get 2½ to 4 per cent on it. A reliable savings bank is certainly one of the best places for the deposit of small sums. As these get larger there are state, city and county bonds, which are in general to be depended on.

The absolutely best thing, however, for a woman to do is to learn business and investment methods for herself. learn them thoroughly, then sail in on her own account. Lucia E. Blount, a shrewd and successful money investor, says: "Business ability is not a question of sex, but of training and opportunity. I believe there are hundreds of women who could make money ... ly if they would only set them ... learn, just as their brothers do." Why not?

KATE SHARP.

DAINTY EFFECTS.

Immense Amount of Work Required on Hats and Gowns.

Many of the new blouses show the most intricate hand work, and such garments are undoubtedly costly. On all sides dressmakers are complaining of the extra work demanded of them and of the illogical behavior of their clients who grumble at having to pay higher prices when at least two yards extra material are demanded than formerly, not to speak of at least one-third as much work again.

The same applies to millinery, for the most effective headgear is that which shows a great amount of expert hand labor. Truly this is a bad time for the amateur milliner. Every detail concerning hats must be perfect, and now that they are worn right off the face even the bandeau must be skillfully manipulated, to say nothing of the knots of ribbon resting on the hair.

FOR A BRIDE.

Hats entirely composed of rich foliage are trimmed simply with a bow of pale colored ribbon. This idea is particularly effective when carried out in russet foliage, with a pale blue bow.

A little handkerchief sleeve of lace set on a crisscross band of velvet caught through tiny paste buckles is a fancy to be noted, and it forms a charming evening effect.

A fancy for floral decoration revives with the spring. Fuchsias, forgetmenots, clematis and silver grapes are prominent among the decorations not only of headgear, but of evening coiffure.

The picture shows a bride's dress of white and silver.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FOR WARMER DAYS.

Smart Toques of Tulle — Unlined Wraps of Moire.

Cape collars are charming and will take the place of stoles, which in many cases have been very unbecoming. They look most effective over blouses or on tailor made coats. In fact, they are adaptable to nearly every costume of the day and will be as much a feature of the early spring fashions as the wide, pointed belt.

WHITE SERGE AND BROWN VELVET GOWN.

A smart toque of folded plain gray net was seen recently at an afternoon tea. It was trimmed with a large gray ostrich feather paling to white and at the very farthest tip touched with black.

It was further adorned with a scarf of the new gray lace.

Unlined coats of moire will be both picturesque and useful spring garments made with the three shoulder capes and a stole effect down the front.

Homespun in pale shades is smart for spring walking suits. White serge and all white wool goods will have a greater vogue than ever this season.

The picture shows a gown of white serge piped with brown velvet.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FOR THE STREET.

The Importance of the Belt—Smart Shades For Spring Costumes.

Almond and biscuit shades are very popular with the all black hat, and white is having its usual run of popularity.

The new rich claret tone is not so much seen as was predicted, yet a few well known leaders of society look wonderfully well in this shade. It had, of course, to be well carried out and only looks its best in costly fabrics.

A smart three-quarter length sack wrap for outdoor wear was of mixed cloth and panne of this shade, with falls of deep coffee lace and a lining of cream satin.

BLUE CHEVIOT TAILOR MADE.

Waistbands bought ready made are admirably arranged to keep the waist short in the back and long in the front, a generally becoming line. It is better to buy these belts ready made than to attempt them at home, as they have to be carefully boned.

The woman of slight figure who does not wear much of a corset needs a smart and becoming belt.

The illustration shows a tailor made suit of blue cheviot which is very useful for general wear.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

LACE AND NETS.

Smart Irish Crochet Trimming—Lace Combined With Chiffon.

Irish crochet and jet make a charming combination. Jet of a bright quality will be much used for smart afternoon gowns during the coming season.

Nothing is so effective for the demitoilet as black gauze or chiffon over an underdress of white showing a lot of Irish cream crochet.

Irish crochet makes very pretty gowns combined with blue linen. Ecru

LACE AND CHIFFON BLOUSE.

net seems still to hold its own for pretty matinees, blouses and tea jackets. Patterned nets will be used with a goodly supply of chiffon and silk vollea.

Where one has black or white skirts which are to be worn out at home an ecru coat is more than useful, while choux of bright colors will vary the toilet.

The all black point d'esprit gown is about the most economical and useful a woman can have, for it admits of many effects with the use of flowers, pale tinted chiffon, jewels, etc.

The cut shows a lace and chiffon blouse.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Discharged Himself.

An amusing story is told of a young Scotch lad who in a very quiet, determined way made his exit from a house in which he had been but a little while installed as a domestic help. He had been told that he would be dismissed if he broke any of the china under his charge.

On the morning of a great dinner party he was intrusted, rather rashly, with a great load of plates, which he was to carry upstairs from the kitchen to the dining room and which were piled upon his two hands.

In going upstairs his foot slipped, and the plates were broken to atoms. He at once went to the drawing room, put his head in at the door and shouted:

"The plates are a' smashed, and I'm awa'!"

QUIT THE TURKEY BUSINESS.

How Secretary Whitney's Good Intentions Were Spoiled by a Few Impatient Women.

The story of how a few impatient women destroyed a mighty good resolution was recently told by the chief clerk of the navy department. In 1887 Secretary Whitney was detailed in writing out his report, and finally had to push it through with a rush, says the New York Tribune.

"So well was the work done," says Mr. Peters, "and so pleased was the secretary, that two days before Thanksgiving he sent for me and said: 'Mr. Peters, I wish you would go to the market and buy a turkey for every employe of the government printing office.' 'But, Mr. Secretary,' I replied, 'it would require 3,000 turkeys to fill that order.' 'It makes no difference if 5,000 would be needed, buy them.' 'It is impossible,' I said; 'there are not 3,000 unsold turkeys to be had in Washington to-day.' 'Then,' said he, 'ascertain the names of the men who had the principal parts in getting out the report, get a turkey for each to-day, and order the necessary number—3,000 or 5,000—and see that they are delivered in time for Christmas.' Under these instructions nine turkeys were sent to the printing office that day. The next morning the secretary received ten letters. Nine were notes of thanks, and the other was a letter from 55 girls in the bindery, who demanded a turkey each because of the part they had taken in getting out the report. As soon as he read that letter the secretary of the navy said: 'Mr. Peters, I have gone out of the turkey business.' Nothing further was necessary. The Christmas distribution was not made, and all on account of the haste of 55 women to get recognition for their services.

WARMED-OVER SPEECHES.

Phonograph Cylinders Bought by Senator Hanna Were Not Just the Right Kind.

Senator Hanna bought a phonograph with six cylinders of the "Nancy Brown" and "Bamboo Tree" variety. He was pleased and told a servant to lay in a stock of ten more cylinders, reports the Baltimore Herald.

On the way to the phonograph store the servant passed an auction place where such cylinders, among other things, were advertised at cut rates. He purchased and carted the impressions home. The thinking is to be commended by his master for his shrewd business ability. Mr. Hanna that evening took up the first cylinder that came to hand, placed it in position and started the wheels to going. The announcement was made by the phonograph that there would follow "the great anti-trust speech of the Hon. William Sulzer, member of congress from New York."

Mr. Hanna cut off the wind of the machine, examined the rest of the apparatus and found that the reason he had gotten the cylinders so cheap was that they were all left over speeches by democratic orators on democratic subjects.

The next day he went to the phonograph store and laid in his own stock of impressions.

FROM PAGE TO PREMIER.

Remarkable and Romantic Career of the Prime Minister of Uganda.

The career of Apolo Kagwa, prime minister of Uganda, who attended the coronation in London, has been remarkable and romantic. When a young man he was a page in the court of King M'tesa, and after that ruler's death, rose to the rank of steward under the notorious M'wanga. He always held aloof from the barbarities prevalent at that time, and was in consequence more than once beaten and wounded by M'wanga.

Twenty years ago Apolo came under the influence of the Church Missionary society and has since remained a loyal and stanch friend of the missionaries, often at great personal cost. Though speaking little English, he is no mean scholar in his own tongue and has written three books on the history and folklore of his people.

It was owing to the strong representations of Apolo, says the London Express, that M'wanga in 1890 signed the treaty with Capt. Lugard by which Uganda became a British protectorate. He was head of the forces in 1892, and ruled the country with conspicuous ability during M'wanga's flight. Had it not been for his influence the chiefs would have rebelled and the country would have had to be reconquered.

Degerming of Corn.

The degerming of corn—that is, removing the yellow germ from the tip of each kernel—is necessary in all corn for export because the germs, when corn is in the hold of a vessel, start a fermentation which spoils the whole cargo. The product each year of this degerming is about 5,000,000 gallons of corn oil, which has been largely used to adulterate linseed oil, but now a process for clarifying it and removing its peculiar odor brings it into competition with olive and cottonseed oil.

Watermelon Railroad.

Probably the first railroad ever built in the United States principally to haul watermelons will be a branch which the Burlington is getting ready to construct in southern Missouri this spring. The line will be 50 miles long, and will run through a district which is distinctively the home of the watermelon. Enough melons are said to be produced there to keep one railroad busy during the season hauling them.

RALEIGH'S BURIAL PLACE.

Remains of the Gallant Courtier Claimed to Be in Possession of Two Churches.

The question of Sir Walter Raleigh's burial place has lately been revived in England. Three churches claim both the head and body of the gallant courtier, says the New York Tribune. Immediately after execution, which took place in Tothill street, Westminster, on April 29, 1618, his wife placed the head in a red bag and rode off with it in a mourning coach. This treasure she kept for 25 years. The body was buried in St. Margaret's church, but shortly after the execution Lady Raleigh wrote to her brother, Sir Nicholas Carew, asking permission to bury her husband's body in his church at Beddington, where she desired also to be buried. History is silent from that time on. It is known, however, that her son treasured the head as his mother had, and, according to the London Daily Chronicle, tradition says it was finally buried with him at West Horsley, Surrey. Dr. Brushfield, who made a thorough study of Raleigh history, is of the belief that when investigation is made the three bodies—father, mother and son—will be found buried together. The matter was brought to the British Archaeological society to inscribe the stone under which his body is supposed to be buried in St. Margaret's, London, with his name and coat-of-arms. No English memorial to this "universal genius" exists. The west windows of St. Margaret's, dedicated to his memory through the enterprise of Dr. Farrar, were the gift of this country.

GET THINGS FOR NOTHING.

Women Shoppers in New York Department Stores Have Many Things Provided for Them.

There is no city in the world where a woman, during a day's shopping, can get so many things for nothing as she can in New York, says the Times, of that city. Men and women are employed especially to make her comfortable. In any one of a dozen large department stores there is a parlor where she can write all the letters she wishes to, make appointments with her friends by telephone, find a maid to wait upon her, a compartment to put away the purchases she may make, and have them all tied up until she is ready to take the train for home.

She need not leave any one store all day, if the weather happens to be bad. She can get a delicious meal there at a reasonable price. As she wanders around demonstrators are constantly tempting her to try a cup of chocolate or some kind of breakfast food, served with cream on dainty little bonbons. She may collect no end of artistically illustrated booklets and samples of special foods to take home with her. In at least two stores she may hear a really good concert by well-paid musicians, either in the morning or afternoon. If she is accustomed to buying one particular brand of coffee or tea she gets a premium card with every pound that in time enables her to get for nothing a handsome piece of furniture, or a set of books.

SONG OF THE MORTAR SHELL.

Sounds Like Millions of Wild Geese Winging Their Way Just Overhead.

The mortars at Fort Hancock look like pocket pistols in comparison with "Little Animosity." The officer in command will be in a small pit on a bridge about the powder magazine, giving his directions to the crew. In whichever direction the eye may wander there is a gray mass of metal, an angel of death. It may be a rifle or a mortar. Both Sandy Hook and Merritt pronounce Fort Hancock impregnable, says the New York Press. There are 16-inch rifles, 12-inch rifles, ten-inch rifles, two mortar batteries of 16 guns each and a pneumatic dynamite gun. The work of a wheel or the raising of a lever controls the directing of many tons of steel, so perfectly balanced are the "angels." Springs resisting the recoil of the mortars look like elephants' legs. "Betty" is aimed at an angle of 45 degrees. A whistle like a postman's blows three times. "Are you ready; Gridley? Fire!" Some one concealed presses a button. The shell sounds like 4,000,000 wild geese making their annual fall pilgrimage from Labrador to Currituck. Wagner has tried to imitate it in the flight of the valkyries in "Die Walkure." It is said that no man has even seen a modern mortar shell in flight. Long after its sound has ceased, and you have forgotten about it, comes the splash out at sea.

Things That Make England.

The recent elevation of a certain English nobleman to the peerage was made the occasion of a presentation of silver plate from his tenantry, with an address of congratulation. The oldest tenant on the estates got up and said that he had himself attended 70 rent audits, and that his house had been lived in by people bearing his name for 300 years. It is little things like this that make England so sturdy, substantial and permanent, in comparison with the nervous, volatile, unstable life of this country.

Largest Electric Pump.

The largest electrical pumping plant in the world is that at Utah lake. It raises 600,000 gallons of water a day for irrigating the Great Salt Lake valley.

Spring of Violet Water.

A spring of liquid resembling essence of violet, to the perfume and in chemical composition, has been discovered in a valley near Milhau, France.

A CHICKEN-SOUP PLANT.

Hospital Patient's Unique Provision for Plenty of the Prescribed Luxury.

Mrs. H. C. Lounsbery, who was chief nurse at the Sternberg hospital at Chickamauga park, contributes to the American Journal of Nursing some amusing reminiscences of hospital life. A lady had given her a hundred dollars to spend for luxuries for the sick soldiers.

While the doctor was making his rounds one morning he said to the nurse in the patient's hearing: "This man may have some chicken soup tomorrow if his temperature keeps down to normal."

The next day there was a great "peep-peeping" under the man's bed. The nurse investigated, and found that he had a dozen tiny chickens there in a box. The patient explained that the doctor had said he might have chicken soup, and he had bought these chickens for four dollars from a darky who had passed through the ward. He wanted to be sure his soup was made from real chickens.

"But," said the nurse, "these are too little to cook."

"Well, yes," said the man, "but they'll grow, and I reckoned the boys would bring the crumbs to feed 'em."

The case was brought to Mrs. Lounsbery, who shuddered at the idea of bringing up chickens under the bed of a typhoid-fever patient. She bought the chickens and gave the man his four dollars, and then sent him some canned chicken soup. But she says she always thought he felt aggrieved that she did allow him to maintain his private poultry-yard.

FEW GRATE-FIRES IN HOTELS.

A Feature That Always Attracts the Patronage of Englishmen and Canadians.

A clerk in a once fashionable hotel, where nearly all distinguished English visitors used to go when they came to New York, was talking the other night about the falling off in custom in many down-town hostelries, reports the Times. "For many years," he said, "the down-town hotels kept up the grate fires, while the more modern hotels up-town abolished the grates and had nothing but steam at last. The Englishman will go every time where he can get a grate fire. Steam radiators are an abomination to him. When the down-town hotels began to make improvements and do away with grate fires they made a grand mistake. English and Canadian visitors particularly, when they saw that it was steam heat or nothing, went to the larger hotels, where they could see more people and get more for their money. Than is why down-town hotels. Steam heat is, of course, very much more convenient and less expensive for the hotel keeper, but guests object to it for many reasons, injury to health and noise from clanging pipes being the chief causes of complaint."

THEY BURN ALL LETTERS.

Chinamen Invariably Commit Writings to the Flames as Soon as Read.

Of all the quaint industries which furnish a livelihood for a corps of workers there is none more worthy of comment than the sacred furnace of Mon-War, erected and supported by the religious fervor and reverential sentiment with which the Chinese regard their letters and papers. In every Chinatown, however small, a building dedicated to Confucius can be found, and to every almond-eyed celestial that building is sacred—sacred to the inscription over the door to the blue smoke that curls up and mingles with the fog, for it is the oven wherein are incinerated all the letters, newspapers and old books of the Chinese quarter, says Leslie's Weekly.

Every scrap of paper upon which a Chinese character has been written or printed, when its purpose in the business or social world has been accomplished, is burned in a perfumed blaze and the ashes are disposed of with reverential care.

Novel Church Services.

Religious services held in absolute darkness are an experiment begun a few weeks ago in London. The purpose was not novelty or notoriety, but a desire to answer the objection raised by poorly clothed people against going to any place where their shabby clothes made them feel uncomfortable. The experiment was made at St. James', in Clerkenwell. A large sheet was hung across the east end of the church, and upon this the words and music of the hymns, the prayers and responses were thrown by a lime-light lantern.

The Useful Newspaper.

Many claims have been made on behalf of the modern newspaper. It is now held forward as the sole reasonable cure both of cold and poverty. If you stretch it over you at night, it is better than a warming pan, better than an eiderdown quilt. If you roll it up into wet balls and put it on the fire, it does instead of coals.

Color of Truth.

An American chemist has invented a tube for truth. You speak into it; the chemical solution changes color according to the tensity of your emotion, and truth and mendacity are described as being quite distinct and vivid colors.

Repatriated Boers.

Eighty-five per cent. of the Boers who have been repatriated in the Orange River colony have started to work on farms.

MORE OVERSHOES WORN.

The Number of Persons Who Put on Rubbers in Wet Weather Has Increased.

The men who wear overshoes and the men who wear rubber boots are increasing in number. It may have been commonly supposed that there was a decrease instead of an increase, but the facts show the reverse, says the Chicago Tribune.

There are more men and also more women and children now who never go out on winter days without putting on rubbers or rubber boots than there ever were in the country before. The number of cautious mothers who will not allow their children on the streets without rubbers has increased. The number of men who look for rubbers when they go into their offices in the morning has increased. The number of men who pull on rubber boots in the morning and sometimes forget to pull them off in the evening has increased.

The person who says that the rubber boot is becoming a thing of the past speaks without reason.

These facts are shown by the increase in the number of factories turning out such products. In 1880 there were nine factories in the United States. In 1890 there were 11. Now there are 22. In the past ten years the business has increased 100 per cent. The value of the products of all factories has increased from $9,000,000 in 1880 to $41,000,000.

In furnishing the rubbers and rubber boots to the public these factories use $21,000,000 worth of material, and employ nearly 15,000 wage-earners.

TWINS THE WORLD OVER.

In Some Countries One Is Killed and in Others a Double Birth Is Regarded as Unlucky.

The antiquary, when his son announced that the old man was now the grandfather of twins, looked almost as disgusted and pained as the father himself, relates the Philadelphia Record.

"John, if we belonged to the Khasias or Hindustans, we would kill one of these little strangers," said the antiquary, "and, faith, I'd say we were almost, we would kill one, too. The world over, John, twins are regarded as a misfortune. In Africa, that hut wherein twins are born is looked on as unholy. They burn it to the ground. The twins themselves may not dwell with either mother when they are compelled to live a wild and lonely life. On the island of Bali, near Java, the birth of twins in a family means the forced departure of the family to the seashore for six months. They must go to the sea; they must bathe thrice daily; they must say certain prayers. That is the ceremony of purification. They think on Bali Island that purification is needed after the birth of twins. Here in Philadelphia, John," the antiquary ended, "the punishment of the father of twins is inflicted in the form of sneering jibes, jokes and cuts. I pity you, John, for the next two weeks."

KNEW WHAT HE WANTED.

And the Overzealous Salesman Was Given in Concise Way to Understand as Much.

This is a tale told by the Baltimore News for the benefit of the overzealous salesmen and saleswomen who think they know better than their customers what their customers want to buy. A man walked into a haberdasher's shop and bowed politely to the clerk.

"I should like to look at some black gloves, stitched with white," said he.

"Black gloves stitched with white are not fashionable now," replied the clerk.

"I beg your pardon," said the polite customer. "You evidently misunderstood me. I said I should like to look at some black gloves stitched with white."

"They are no longer fashionable," reiterated the clerk, with impatient superiority.

"I find I must apologize again," said the other. "I came in here, thinking it was a haberdashery; I find it is a bureau of information. I'm sorry to have troubled you with so unimportant a matter, for I really didn't care to know whether the gloves I wanted were stylish or not. Perhaps I can buy a pair of some sort at the place across the street," and he went out.

TROUBLE GETTING COAL.

Strategy Employed by a Philadelphia Man to Obtain Necessary Fuel.

This is a true story of how a West Philadelphia man got a load of coal, reports the Philadelphia Record. He wasn't known personally to the dealer, and when he learned that several of the drivers were ill he dressed up in his oldest clothes and went to apply for a job. "I guess I can put you on for several days, but I can't promise you steady work," said the coal man. This arrangement was perfectly satisfactory to the applicant, and pretty soon he was sent out to deliver a load of coal. Instead of taking it to its proper destination he drove to his own home and dumped it into his cellar. Then he took the wagon back to the yards, handed over the price of the coal to the astonished dealer, and made a clean breast of the whole affair. "Well, that beats anything I ever heard of," said the coal man, and so great was his admiration for the new driver's nerve that he let him get away with the trick.

OHIO'S SCATTERED SONS.

More Than a Million and a Quarter of Them Are Living in Other States.

There are more than a million and a quarter natives of Ohio living in other states. No other state has such a record, relates the New York Sun.

New York and Pennsylvania have a much larger population than Ohio, but neither state contributes so much to the population of other states as Ohio. Nearly 20,000 of Ohio natives live in Indiana, 140,000 in Illinois, and 90,000 in Michigan.

Kansas has 90,000, Iowa, 90,000; Missouri, 80,000; Pennsylvania, 60,000; New York, 20,000; Colorado, 25,000; California, 35,000, and Washington, 20,000.

There are 10,000 Ohio natives living in Texas, 5,500 in Massachusetts, 7,000 in Montana, 15,000 in Oklahoma, 10 in Alaska, and 4,300 in Washington, the *national capital. Ohio men are dis*tributed throughout the country so generally that there is no state in which they are not to be found in considerable numbers, usually taking an important part in its public and business affairs.

Ohio is not so populous a state as Illinois, but at the time of the last federal enumeration it had a larger number of persons in the military and naval service of the United States than its more populous neighbor. It has more of its natives in Hawaii than Pennsylvania, and is practically the only state which has not largely contributed much to the population of New England. Ohio men are to be found everywhere in the United States, whether near or far from home.

A REASONABLE SULTAN.

Morocco's Ruler Allowed Foreign Visitors to Salute in Their Respective Home Forms.

Travelers received by the sultan of Morocco were at one time required to make the customary obeisance of the country; but that ceremonial is now omitted. The person, according to Lady Grove, in her "Seventy-One Days' Camping," goes back to a slight social awkwardness involved in carrying out that prescription:

A distinguished naturalist had been presented to the sultan, and, as he bowed his head to the ground, instead of supporting himself with his hands, he placed them behind his back. Consequently, his forehead came against the marble floor with a loud bang, and he fell directly on recovering himself.

The sultan was amazed. "Has not the gentleman had the honor of entering the presence of his own sovereign?" he asked another visitor, later.

"Probably he has had that honor, your majesty," was the answer.

"Then," said the sultan, "he should have learned the art of making salutations without the occurrence of such accidents."

Thereupon his majesty learned with astonishment that this lowly form of obeisance is not observed at European courts, and he immediately decreed that none but the usual customs demanded by European sovereigns should be required of Europeans when they entered or left his presence.

NO BANK CHECKS IN GERMANY.

Most Remittances Are Made in the Form of Money Orders Through the Post Office.

The Berlin correspondent of the Commercial Intelligence calls attention to the antiquated and cumbersome method of forwarding remittances that obtains in Germany. A check system such as has been developed and perfected as an instrument of commerce in England is practically unknown here, payments being usually effected by means of money orders taken out at the local post office. The English bank exercises the double function of adjusting accounts and guarding wealth, whereas the German bank, under favorable circumstances, scarcely does more than the latter. For the German merchant the post office is, in a sense, what the clearing house of the English banking system is for the British business man; it is an active partner in the settlement of differences between debtor and creditor. Yet even under the German postal system, whereby the amount of a money order is paid at the residence of the payee by a special functionary called the "Geldbriefträger," the post office is clearly an intolerably clumsy agent for liquidating accounts nowadays; and occasionally one hears a sermon bemoaning the steam-roller progress of his fellow countrymen *in the technics of pay*ment, and urging reform.

Cooperative Wedding Presents.

The cooperative wedding present is a new idea in Great Britain, where the fact that servants and tenants can estate clubs together and send one handsome gift seems to have suggested to somebody that friends might do the same. Thus one of the January brides was presented with a diamond ornament, and friends in Scotland combined to buy him an automobile. The American bride sometimes exchanges her duplicates; but that is not always convenient, and it tends to provoke misunderstandings. She, too, will rejoice if the English spirit spreads, so that, instead of pickle-dishes and the like, she may look forward to something substantial, such as a house and lot.

Must Go to Church.

To such an extent does religion prevail at Gonnetes, in the South seas, that every man, woman and child on that island who does not go to church at least three times a week is liable to be arrested and fined, the fines going to the king.

WHALING IN THE ARCTIC.

The Skipper and His Gun and the Precautions in Preparing for a Shot.

The gun, a solid, cumbrous affair of about three-inch caliber, is swung around on pins at the main joints of the bow, and then the chamber is swabbed out by the skipper himself, who plainly regards every step of this preliminary work as of the greatest importance. The number of times that this man has to mix the powder and the small that he takes pride in his record; and, in addition to his reputation, there is the value of the whale, says a writer in Harper's. A good-sized whale means $4,200 or so to himself who, besides being skipper and harpooner, is also owner of the ship and of the trying-out plant ashore. So, after inspecting the harpoon and wading brought from below, he swabs out the gun a second time, and then takes a pound of quick-burning powder, in a little white cotton bag, and rams it home. A big fistful of ropeends is *stuffed in after the pow*der, and following the rope-ends a thick rubber disk; after that another fistful of rope-ends.

Then ensues a most critical examination of the bomb lance, a heavy piece of cast iron, perhaps 18 inches in length, sharp pointed forward, but enlarged toward the rear, where is stuck a gray cylinder that is going to explode a few seconds after it is shot into the whale and deal the mortal wound.

KING TRIED TO HIDE DEED.

Gave Money for the Salvation Army and Refused to Give Donor's Name.

A good story of King Edward's interest in the Salvation Army is told by Walsh Dawson, a supporter of the army's social work, reports the London Social Gazette.

Two years ago Mr. Dawson, who had interested himself in obtaining donations for social work, was on his way one afternoon to call on a certain benevolent peer, when he lost his way in the thick fog. Suddenly he ran against a man near Buckingham palace. Apologizing, he asked the stranger if he could direct him to the house he was looking for. The reply was:

"Certainly, I am going there myself. I'll show you the house."

"We chatted away merrily," Mr. Dawson continues. "I told him all about my work and the labors of the Salvation Army. He seemed deeply interested and when I reached the house he said: 'It is dreadful to think that so many poor people live in this city. I want you to accept a little gift for the poor, suffering ones,' and he placed in my hand ten sovereigns.

"I was astonished and asked the unknown donor what name I should put down in the book. He replied, hurriedly: 'No name at all, please. Simply anonymous.' Suddenly I saw his face distinctly for the first time; it was the prince of Wales, now the king."

BOOK AGENTS RIDE IN CABS.

Some in New York City Make Five to Ten Thousand Dollars a Year with Little Effort.

A New Yorker out of work was attracted by an alluring advertisement from a publishing house. The compensation was liberal, the work was to commence, and more as sales increased. The young man was ambitious and had a good general acquaintance among the sort of men who buy books, reports the Times. When he went for the job he was told that the $30 a week proposition meant that the firm did not care to employ book agents who had not demonstrated their ability to earn that sum regularly on commission. There was nothing in the nature of a salary guarantee about it. He was told, also, that there were men book agents in New York who made their $5,000 to $10,000 a year without much trouble. These were the men who sold sets of the highest and most expensive publications. They had become acquainted with the individual tastes and peculiarities of rich men, who never questioned the price of a book if it was something they wanted. The trade of these men was entirely in editions de luxe. The agents made appointments with their customers by telephone, either at the homes or offices of the latter, and rode in cabs because they kept the appointment. If they did not ride they took a boy from the publishing house to carry the book.

Ants Are Strong.

A. R. Miller recently weighed a small ant and a dead grasshopper which it was dragging to its nest. The weight of the grasshopper was found to be 60 times greater than that of the ant. Force was exerted by the ant in dragging the grasshopper along the road was therefore proportionately equal to that of a man weighing 150 pounds pulling a load of 4½ tons, or a horse of 1,200 pounds a load of 36 tons.

City of Padlocks.

Irkutsk, in Siberia, is said to be a veritable city of padlocks. There are more padlocks on the shutters and doors of an Irkutsk shop than can be found in an English city of 200,000. There are as many as three padlocks on some shop doors, and all lower story shutter bears from one to five.

Record Shoemaking.

A pair of women's shoes made in Lynn, Mass., to establish a record for rapid shoemaking, required 57 different operations and the use of 42 machines and 100 pieces. All these parts were assembled and made into a graceful pair of shoes, ready to wear, in 13 minutes.

CUPID PREFERS A LAMP.

The Little Ruler of Hearts Does Better with the Aid of Good Old-Fashioned Coal Oil.

"Electric lights and gas are no good for courting purposes," said a Washington young man who is more than attentive to the object of his affections, a sweet girl of the West end.

"But do not the parents of your fiancee insist on there being light in the room?" asked a friend.

"Oh, yes; we use incense. There is nothing like it. Give me the good old coal oil for courting. My girl is of an inventive turn of mind. You can't beat her."

"What do you mean?"

"The piano lamp provides the parlor with light," replied the young man, according to the Washington Star. "It has a large red shade, which softens the light when it is burning. But, do you know, my girl has that light completely under control? She sees to the filling of the lamp and she has it down so fine that she knows just how much oil is needed to burn to a certain hour, the time that the old folks usually retire. When the flame begins to get dim you may bet every dollar you have that it is 9:30. That lamp, controlled by so charming a girl as mine, is a bonanza."

A POLITICAL DIVIDE.

Cascade Mountain Range Bisects Washington and Oregon in Legislative Interests.

With the meeting of the legislatures of Washington and Oregon, one fact cannot fail of being impressed on the mind of a person, who follows their work. That is the division based in the result of a compromise between those legislators from the west of the Cascades and those from the east of the same range of mountains, says a local report. The interests of eastern Washington are more allied to those of the western part of the state than those of eastern Oregon to those of the western part of that state. The interests of the western part of both states are identical, as well as the interests of the eastern parts of both states. Had the territory been divide on the Cascade range instead of the present division, there would have been two states differing greatly in their interests and products, but each would have been united within themselves. Instead of the warring factions in each state as there are found at present, harmony could prevail, for the operation of a law that would work injury to one part of the state would operate the same in all other parts.

ONE OLD MILL AN IMPOSTOR.

Reputed to Be of Holland Make, But Was the Work of an Irish Carpenter.

Along the line of the Trenton & New Brunswick railroad, between Milltown and Dayton, is a ramshackle old barn, at the end of which is a windmill tower and windmill that look like a piece out of a Dutch landscape, says the Philadelphia Press.

The natives tell wonderfully interesting stories of this mill's history, how it was brought from Holland in sections many years ago, and erected by the then owner of the farm, a worthy descendant of a line of burghers, and with an ancestry that would give him a seat of honor at a reunion of the Holland society.

As a matter of fact, the mill is only about 20 years old, and was built by an Irish carpenter, who was employed by the Scotchman who occupied the farm, renting it from a Frenchman who lived in Paris and sold him the property. But it makes an interesting, though a spurious antique, and is a veritable treasure trove for a small army of water colorists, sketchers and amateur photographers.

NEW IMPERIAL SERVICE ORDER

Birthday Honor Conferred by King Edward Upon Woman in Postal Work.

Among the birthday honors conferred by King Edward, perhaps the most unusual is that which has made a woman a companion of the new Imperial Service Order, says a London report. The woman in question is a Miss Smith, who nearly 30 years ago began with a staff of 20 clerks some small work connected with the savings bank branch of the general post office. Now her staff numbers between 800 and 900 women, and the work they do covers a great part of the whole savings business. Miss Smith has been a pioneer in the development of woman labor in other branches of postal work than her own. From her office the first woman clerks of the postal order branch were drawn, and it is to her power of organization that the great increase of woman workers throughout the post office is said to be due. With all her ability, Miss Smith receives only $2,500 a year—a large salary in English eyes.

Lady with Pink Teeth.

The newest turn in Parisian music halls will shortly be the appearance of a lady with pink teeth. She is a native of the Cape de Verde islands, so parents. Her teeth, which are perfect, are of a semi-transparent substance resembling pale-colored coral. A dentist who has examined them says that they will never decay. They are hard as diamonds, and the latter gems are the only material with which a mark can be made on their surface.

Prairie State Products.

Illinois ranks first among the states in the manufacture of agricultural implements, bicycles, cars, glucose and distilled liquors, and in slaughtering and meat packing.

TRAMP AND CLUBMAN.

Singular Behavior of a London Recluse Who Appears in Both Characters.

A curious story of a wealthy old recluse is told by an English correspondent of Household Words.

Not a hundred miles from London, and about five miles from a railway station, he says, stands a large house in beautiful grounds. Two rooms only in this house are occupied—one by the owner and the other by his servitor. The staircase is never used, and communication between the two rooms is by a hole in the floor and a rope ladder. The owner's meals, when cooked, are passed up through this hole.

The chief peculiarity, however, of this eccentric being is that twice a week, late at night, he comes down his rope ladder dressed as a tramp. He then walks five miles to the station reffered to, where he has a private room. Here he changes his clothes, emerges in full evening dress and goes by the last train up to London.

It has been ascertained that he then takes a cab to one of the big clubs in the neighborhood of Pall Mall. What he does at the club is not known, but he returns by the first (newspaper) train in the morning. When he repairs to his room at the station, puts on the tramp's clothes again and returns to his house, where he resumes his peculiar mode of life.

He has never been known to speak to anyone in the village, and no one can give a reason for his quaint behavior, but local gossip has it that he was jilted as a young man and vowed that he would never again speak to a woman nor, so far as he could avoid it, look at one again.

A COLLEGE GIRL'S IDEA.

By Diligent Study to Become an Expert Dietist, She Secures a Good Position.

The graduate of a woman's college who recently was engaged by the New York department of charities as consulting dietician appears to have discovered an entirely new field of endeavor for members of her sex who have received a liberal education. Moreover, it is one in which the possibility of male competition is very slight, says the New York Times.

While studying at college, the young woman realized that it was possible for her to become an expert on matters of diet, and planned her course of study to that end. Through an executive, she will soon be one of the most important officers of that branch of the city government, because she is sent upon investigations on everything concerning foods, their preparation, their nutriment, and their action on the various functions. She reports directly to and consults with the commissioner.

She has studied so as to be practical and scientific, too. She can cook, from soups to cake, and she has her wits. Atwater's food researches at her finger's end. Along with old-fashioned housekeeping she took up biology, physiology, chemistry and domestic science. A man would have a hard time competing with her unless he was an expert cook and had a good working knowledge of housewifery.

POSSIBILITIES OF ENGLISH.

Striking Illustration Given a French Lecturer by a Witty American Woman.

M. le Comte Robert de Montesquiou-Fezensac, here to lecture on French literature, met with a surprise the other day at a reception. He was talking to a dainty little lady, who spoke very good French, reports the New York Tribune, when he told of the vast possibilities in the English language, and, neglectful of the fact that he imperfectly understands the language, she gave him the following:

A flock of wild fowl is called a gang, a gang of angels is called a host, a host of fish is called a shoal, a shoal of cattle is called a herd, a herd of children is called a troop, a troop of partridges is called a covey, a covey of beauties is called a galaxy, a galaxy of ruffians is called a horde, a horde of coal is called a heap, a heap of oxen is called a drove, a drove of blackguards is called a mob, a mob of whales is called a school, a school of worshipers is called a congregation, a congregation of engineers is called a corps, a corps of robbers is called a band, a band of locusts is called a swarm, and a swarm of people is called a crowd."

M. le Comte asked the fair one to please write it out for him, as he wished to use a lexicon for purposes of translation. He tried it later and gave up in despair.

Pigeon Post on Ships.

The Compagnie Generale Transatlantique is not only trying the wireless telegraph on its ship, the Savoie, but employs pigeons, which have been given satisfaction. Out of 23 trials at distances of 150 to 250 miles from land, 18 succeeded. It is found possible to have news of a ship in this way 24 hours after it has passed 24 hours before she arrives at a port. Moreover, the birds become hardier with practice, their sense of orientation or homing instinct grows keener, and the percentage of birds lost is lowered.

Much Bookkeeping.

Before a recruit can be said to have joined the British army his name must be entered 62 times, and that of his superior officer 29 times, in the documents required by the war office.

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

A REPUBLICAN MISTAKE.

If the New Jersey Legislature had attempted any course of action that would effectually keep Somerset county in the Democratic column next fall, it could not have been done any more ably than it has. With no reason save for the unexplained desire of President of the Senate Hutchinson, the Legislature has taken away the right of the people of North Plainfield to say whether they shall remain in Somerset county or become a part of Union. The power of the majority to decide its own fate has been removed despite the earnest protests of greater city advocates and anti-annexationists alike. Able lawyers have declared that the "repealer" to the annexation law is not legal but, whatever is its future, the Legislature has put itself on record along certain lines and the majority party will have to suffer for its mistakes.

The personal animus shown by Senator Hutchinson, of Mercer, has been beneath the dignity of a man holding the presiding office of the Upper House of the Legislature. Ever since the "repealers" were introduced at his request, he has been vindictive and bitter and has refused to advance any reason for his conduct save that he will not going to be "fooled again." It is said that Mr. Hutchinson has gubernatorial aspirations. He would do well to restrain them until the present generation passes away. If he ever runs for any office which would bring him before the present voters of Plainfield and North Plainfield it is likely that he would discover what it means to deprive the people of their just rights.

If other localities were similarly treated by the Legislature, one would almost believe that the saying that "those whom the gods would destroy they first make mad," had come true in this case. No men in their sober senses can expect to see their party continued in power when they pursue such a course. From the Republican standpoint, this winter's session of the Legislature has been a dismal failure and it has lost more votes for the Republican party than it has gained. If the Democrats are quick to meet the emergency, they will have an excellent chance of carrying the State. Between the defeat of the Plainfield armory bill and the passage of the annexation "repealer," Plainfield is likely to be ripe for trouble. As for North Plainfield, Senator Hutchinson has effectually queered the Republican party there.

As far as the greater city movement is concerned, the consolidation act still remains and it will be possible to effect a consolidation of city and borough without changing the county lines. While that will not make an ideal arrangement, it will materially improve the present conditions. When we once have a single municipality, it will not be long before the general demand will compel the Legislature to change the county lines.

A NEEDED BRIDGE.

That new iron bridge over Green brook at Girard avenue is soon to be built. Is it pleasant news to the people of the West End who have occasion to cross into the borough. The new bridge will permit the opening of that throughfare to a proper width and form a new connecting link between the two boroughs.

It will be remembered that the question of the new bridge came up two years ago but was delayed because the Somerset county Freeholders refused to spend the requisite amount of money. This year the Somerset Freeholders have apparently seen the error of their ways because the request for the new bridge came from that side. Thanks to Freeholder Westphal, Union county has lost no time in acting on Somerset's request and there will be no delay in the erection of the much needed bridge.

There are no signs of the immediate demise of the game of golf, judging from the elaborate schedule which the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club has prepared. That club is now in its prime and its membership is growing steadily.

Reports from upper New York state tell of blizzards, sleighing and other incidents of winter. Weather Prophet Dan'l Hackenback's famous man, declared that April would bring a snow storm of serious dimensions.

The baseball fever has risen to such a high pitch that now an All-Plainfield team is being organized to play a mid-week game in order to entertain the cranks in the intervals between the Saturday games

Anniversary Service.

Rev. W. G. Nelson, of this city, delivered his fiftieth anniversary sermon at the Newark Conference at Newark Friday.

MID-WEEK BASEBALL GAMES

AN ALL-PLAINFIELD TEAM IS BEING ORGANIZED FOR THE SEASON.

It Will Play Strong Out-of-Town Teams Every Wednesday Afternoon.

Local baseball cranks who have been unable to witness games on account of Saturday being the only playing day, when business interests are not to be foregone, will have an opportunity this season of being numbered among the spectators at A 1 contests. Plans have been formulated whereby an All-Plainfield team, such as was organized last fall, will play mid-week games on Wednesday during the entire summer.

George E. Firstbrook and Thomas M. Muir, local newspapermen, are behind the scheme and are already at work on a schedule. They concluded arrangements, Saturday, with Manager Denman, of the Westfield nine, for a series of three games. The first will be played in this city on May 20 or 27 and will mark the opening of the mid-week season. None but the best semi-professional organizations will be booked and among those who have already asked for dates are the original Cuban X Giants, the Pearsalls of Jersey City; the Xavier Athletic Club, of New York; the Manjer A. C., of Brooklyn, and the strong Orange A. C., considered the crack semi-professional team of the State. Hope Common has been secured for the contests and they will commence at an hour convenient for all business men.

The best players on the City League teams will be selected for the All-Plainfield nine and "Ted" Shortman, the swift second baseman of the Hopes, has agreed to act as captain. He has his men under consideration and will announce the line-up as soon as possible.

TO FINAL RESTING PLACE

REMAINS OF JOHN H. CUTHBERT LAID AT REST MONDAY AFTERNOON.

Impressive Services Conducted at Grace Episcopal Church—Prominent Men Were Present.

Impressive in its simplicity was the funeral of the late John H. Cuthbert, which was held Monday afternoon at the Grace Episcopal church. There was a large attendance of prominent people, many of whom were business associates of the deceased. The services were conducted by Rev. E. M. Bonsman, rector emeritus of the church, assisted by Rev. J. C. Van deWater, rector of St. Andrew's church, New York.

There was no eulogy over the remains but the beautiful Episcopal service and the music rendered by the quartette made the service impressive The floral display was very handsome.

Among the prominent people who attended the funeral services were General Wade Hampton, Colonel Carter, George S. Richards, C. W. Bartis, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Dyer, P. S. Traynor, W. T. Peebles, John Golden, A. A. Sumner, Thomas H. Riter, Mr. and Mrs. Payne, Joseph E. Morse, R. D. Benson, W. W. Smith, J. Lombard, D. Q. Brown, H. G. A. Keeney, F. W. Edwards, J. G. Benton, C. H. Vanderbrock, C. A. Norman, P. B. Macintyre and P. R. Gray, representing the Standard Oil Company, the Manhattan Oil Company, the Tide Water Oil Company, the Tide Water Pipe Company, the Associated Producers, the Gas and Washburn Engineering Company, the Townsend-Downey Ship Building Company, and the Easter Jersey Railroad and Terminal Company.

During the services a quartette, comprising Miss Cornelia Miller, Mrs. E. J. Lee, Fred. J. Pope and W. B. Cock, rendered several selections in a feeling manner.

The remains were borne from the church to the Hillside cemetery where interment took place. The honorary pall bearers were Henry B. McGee, Samuel Lee Brown, Charles F. Smith, O. T. Waring, General Wade Hampton and John Bushnell.

Realty Transfers.

These borough real estate transfers have been recorded at the office of the County Clerk at Somerville: John W. Murray, et ux, to Jacob M. Higgins, $650, and Ella B. Stocker, to Henry Nischwitz, $1.

Death Claim Settled.

The death claim made in behalf of Frederick Hardingham, who was killed on the New Jersey Central at the Westfield disaster, has been settled by Claims Agent J. K. Large, of the railroad.

Granted a Loan.

The Union Building and Loan Association has granted a loan to Mrs. Mary Bowden to build a house and barn on West Third street, above Clinton avenue.

Mrs. O. T. Waring, of Park avenue, is much improved from a long and tedious illness.

MISSION SOCIETY MEETING

OFFICERS ELECTED AND REPORTS RECEIVED AT TRINITY'S SOCIETY.

Missionary Society Met on Sunday Afternoon After Sunday-School —The Officers.

The annual meeting of the Missionary Society of Trinity Reformed church was held Sunday afternoon after the Sunday-school session when officers were elected to serve for the ensuing year and an advisory board was appointed. A missionary talk was a feature of the meeting.

The officers elected, upon the report of the nominating committee, were: President, Henry P. Sender; vice-president, Elmer P. Wheeler; secretary, Mrs. Frank Platts; treasurer, Charles Zimmer. The advisory board for the year will comprise Charles M. Dolliver, Mrs. L. R. Schofield, John Hoffman, Mrs. J. A. Love, Henry Wyman, Mrs. Virginia Chickering, Miss Kate Bodine.

The nominating committee comprised, Horace J. Martin, chairman; Mrs. Cornelius Schenck, Miss Anna Searing, Miss Mabel Wilson and William F. Oliver.

Reports were read from the officers, treasurer, secretary and committees which showed that the work accomplished by the society during the past year was creditable. The treasurer's report showed, among other interesting items, that $140.93 had been raised and contributed towards foreign and domestic missions by the Sunday-school.

An address of unusual interest was given during the meeting by Rev. Danjel Rapalje who has been actively engaged in mission work in China for forty years. His talk was most interesting as he told of the real needs of the people of that country.

NEW MANAGER.

John A. Steiner Chosen to Manage Y. M. C. A. Baseball Team This Season.

At the meeting of the physical work committee held at the Y. M. C. A. last Thursday evening, the physical director, C. E. A. Heywood, requested that John A. Steiner be asked to take the management of the baseball team. Mr. Steiner is considered a thoroughly competent man to take charge of this work and as it requires the entire attention of one man his services will be of great value to the team. The committee voted unanimously in favor of the proposition. All communications for the Y. M. C. A. baseball team should be sent to John A. Steiner, Somerset street.

At that meeting it was decided to have the gymnasium painted and repaired and the time set aside for that work was during the third week in May.

PROPERTY CHANGES.

Several Deals Engineered by Agent D. Foster Updyke.

Through the real estate agency of D. Foster Updyke, several real estate deals have been closed during the past week. Most of the transactions have been in residential houses.

The house, formerly owned by Mrs. Emile Messersmith, at 128 Westervelt avenue, has been sold to Mrs. J. H. Bolen, of Hoboken. The consideration is said to have been $3,500.

Thomas C. Carrin, of Mountain avenue, has purchased the house at 114 Elmwood place, which was formerly owned by Mrs. Cornelia R. Howlett. The house at 1039 West Front street, formerly owned by James Trimmer, has been sold to E. A. Ramsey, of South Summer, N. J., for $5,000 and the house at the corner of Sixth street and Arlington avenue, which was formerly owned by Mrs. L. J. Taylor, of Chicago, has been sold to Joseph Harkins.

HONORARY PUPILS.

Those at St. Mary's Parochial School Deserving Mention.

The honor pupils of St. Mary's School for the month of March are:

First grade, John Kyle and Margaret Lutz; second and third grades, Martin Flatley, Helen Casey, Elizabeth Casey, Mary McCarthy, John McEachen, Lena Hillman, John Casey, Mary Moriarty, Elizabeth Boland, Anna Callahan and Margaret Flatley; fifth grade, Catherine McCauley, Lorretta Walsh, Catherine Keenan, Helen Smith, Mary Keily, Catherine Barry and Catherine Powers.

Bicyclists in Collision.

While riding her bicycle on Park avenue, Friday afternoon, Miss May Kelley, niece of Mrs. J. J. Coard, of East Ninth street, was run into by a messenger boy, also awheel. She was thrown to the roadway and received cuts and contusions about the head and arms. Her wheel was also partially wrecked. The boy escaped unharmed.

Miss Abbie Hanna, who has been one of the teachers of the North Plainfield High School, is in New York State where she was called on account of the illness of her father.

A LOCAL LODGE OF ELKS

PLANS ON FOOT TO SECURE A CHARTER FOR ONE.

Many Elks Reside Here, But Are Members Now at New Brunswick or Elizabeth.

Determined efforts are being made by a number of prominent men to organize a lodge of B. P. O. Elks, in this city. Success has so far attended their plan and within a short time, a charter is to be applied for. Fifty names have been placed on the charter list and there is a prospect for half as many more within the week.

There is already in this city in the neighborhood of fifty Elks, who belong to lodges at New Brunswick and Elizabeth. The time and trouble required to reach these places to attend meetings has been an incentive to have a home organization but no action was taken until recently. Those already in the order added to the new list, will see the lodge begin life with a membership of over 100. Several of the city officials are among those who have applied for admission.

TO COMMEMORATE LEXINGTON

INVITATIONS OUT FOR CONTINENTAL CHAPTER'S AFFAIR.

Daughters of the American Revolution Has Planned Celebration for Friday, April 17.

The cards of invitation for the celebration of the 128th anniversary of the Battle of Lexington at the residence of Mrs. Phillip V. R. VanWyck, on Friday, April 17, by the Continental Chapter, D. A. R., are now ready and will be issued this week. They are printed in blue on a buff ground, with the seal of the chapter in the corner. The envelopes are also buff.

They will be sent widely to all who will be interested as it is thought in the occasion, although their number is necessarily limited. The State Regent, Mrs. C. D. Putnam, of Elizabeth, as well as the various chapter regents of New Jersey, will be invited and members of the chapters of the neighboring towns of Somerville and Bound Brook.

The members of the local chapter on the various committees are as follows: Tea—Mrs. Phillip V. R. VanWyck, chairman; Mrs. F. G. Mead, Mrs. John Harman, Mrs. John G. Foster, Miss Manning and Mrs. Erickson; loan—Mrs. Isaac Field, chairman; Mrs. C. W. McCutchen, Mrs. David H. Rowland, Miss Virginia Negus, Miss Manning; music—Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers; reception—Mrs. David P. Hall, Mrs. Lawrence Myers, Mrs. Mason W. Tyler, Miss E. E. Kenyon, Mrs. Henry McGee, Mrs. Charles Fisher, Mrs. C. W. McCutchen, Mrs. David H. Rowland, Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers and all the other officers and members of the Board of Management. The young women assistants appointed are Miss Elsie Harman, Miss Mary Wells, Miss Matie Wadsworth, Mrs. Samuel Prescott Hall, Miss Blossom Randolph, Miss Walker, Miss Schuyler. Miss Maude VanBoskerck and Miss Fanny Cox.

ONE OF THE FIRST.

William Howatt, An Old Resident, Passed Away Sunday After a Long Illness.

William Howatt, aged eighty-four years, one of the oldest residents in Plainfield, died Sunday at his home on Grove street, after a long illness. For some time past Mr. Howatt has been very feeble, his death being expected at any time.

He was born in England and he was a carpet weaver by trade. This business he followed for many years. During the past few years he was unable to do anything. He was a devoted Christian and a faithful member of the First Baptist church, where he attended all of the services as long as he was able to.

At the outbreak of the Civil War, Mr. Howatt enlisted as a private in a New Jersey company and he served until near the close of the war, receiving an honorable discharge.

Mr. Howatt is survived by one son, Joseph P. Howatt, now of Asville, N. C. The funeral services were held from the home of Duncan Walker, No. 5 Grove street, Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Prize Choristers.

The prize choristers of Grace P. E. church for March were: Harold Miller, Harry Smith, Alfred Manley, Herbert Grant, Edwin Scheller, John Yoes, and the Misses Ethel Weseman, Mary Smith and Cornelia Simpson.

Sewer Hearing.

No date has been set so far for the public hearing on the sewer question in the borough. No date can be set until President of the Sewer Commission B. A. Hageman, Jr., returns to this city.

Miss Maude Honeyman, of Grove street, has returned to her studies at Wellesley College.

CITY SCHOOL BOARD FIXES TAX BUDGET

This Year's Figures Are $64,000, Which Are $2,000 More Than Last Year's Budget.

AT REGULAR MEETING

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH ENGAGED FOR COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

Speaker for Occasion Has Not Yet Been Secured—To Paint Bryant and Franklin Schools—An Exhibit of the Basket Work.

Beyond the introduction of the ensuing year's expense budget, nothing of importance was transacted at last Monday's meeting of the City Board of Education. All discussion in regard to the new High School was left to the Common Council and the subject was in no way touched upon by the members.

According to the finance committee's estimate, $64,000 will be needed to support the city's educational interest for the year 1903-4. This is an increase of about $2,000 over last year's appropriation and is exclusive of the State tax apportion which amounts to $35,000 for this district. The amounts must be submitted to the Board of School Estimate and may be allowed or decreased.

In the way of routine business, the tax collector's report showed $1,849 83 had been received during the month. The custodian of school money's report stated the receipts for the month to have been $2,992.26 and the disbursements $2,066.54, leaving a total balance on hand of $31,109 60. A request from the medical examiners to reimburse Dr. Norman H. Probasco for assistance in vaccinations was granted.

The bill for the new flagpole, erected in the Franklin and High School yard some months ago, and which was held up, was again presented by John Abbott. He asked $147 for a three-piece-pole, which is $60 less than a two-piece one would have cost and which he had constructed for. The bill was ordered paid.

Superintendent Maxson stated he had, as yet, been unable to engage a speaker for the commencement exercises but hoped to succeed within the month. In this connection, the president was authorized to secure the First Baptist church for the commencement on the usual terms.

The committee on buildings asked for permission to solicit bids for the painting of the Bryant and Franklin Schools, same to be opened at a special meeting. The request was granted and it was left to the committee on fuel to ask for coal bids.

After adjournment was taken; the members of the board were shown an interesting exhibit of basket work made by the pupils of the Irving School and arranged by Superintendent Maxson. The samples were taken at large from many others completed during school hours and showed a marvellous dexterity. The average age of the pupils being taught this work is ten years and the members of the board were greatly pleased with the results.

Theatre Goes Out of Business.

With the close of the Sawtelle Dramatic Company's engagement, Saturday night, the brief career of the Central Theatre came to a termination. Every effort was made by the managers to conduct it on a paying basis but without avail. Adam Dorber still controls the lease on the place but he has made no plans for its future.

Pythian Service.

Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., has accepted an invitation from Pastor L. R. Howard to attend divine service in Hope chapel on Sunday evening, April 19. This date is set aside each year as Pythian Thanksgiving day and every lodge in the State has a sermon preached under its auspices.

Sold Property.

William Jeffery, the real estate dealer, has sold Cornelius E. Gulick's property at 68 Jackson avenue, to William Birrell, of New York. The purchase price was $4,800.

For Easter Sunday.

Rev. Dr. R. M. Lather, of South Orange, will assist in the Easter services at the First Baptist church next Sunday. There will be special music of a pleasing character.

Surprise by Schoolmates.

A dozen schoolmates gave Miss Elsie Wyckoff, of South Second street, a surprise party Friday afternoon. Miss Annie Martin won the prize offered in the donkey game. A supper was served the little people.

Double-Decked Trolleys.

There is talk of double-decked trolley cars on the Elizabeth-Plainfield line this summer. Local officials of the company had heard nothing about them.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

The Standard Railroad of America.

PROTECTED THROUGHOUT BY THE INTERLOCKING SWITCH AND BLOCK SIGNAL SYSTEM.

ON AND AFTER JAN. 25, 1903.

Trains will leave Elizabeth as follows:—7.38 a. m., Fast Line daily with Pullman Vestibule Parlor Cars, for Pittsburg and Cleveland, Northern and Eastern Pennsylvania.

8.42 a. m.—Western Express daily, with Pullman Vestibule Sleeping Cars, for Pittsburg and Chicago, except Saturday, for Pittsburg.

1.27 p. m.—Pacific Express, daily, with Pullman Vestibule Sleeping Cars, for Pittsburg and Chicago. Dining Car for Crestline, Shenandoah Valley Route, for Cleveland. Second Interstate.

The Southern's Palm Limited—1.30 p.m. week-days.

The Atlantic Coast Line Florida Special—2.20 p. m. week days.

Southern Express—4.07 p. m. daily.

For Baltimore, Washington and the South—(10.45 a. m., 9.00 p. m.—Sundays—10.45 a. m.) 12.01, 1.30, 4.07, 7.00, 9.00 p. m. Through Vestibule Trains. Parlor Cars and Coaches. Dining Car on 10.45 a. m. train. Through Coaches for Washington, leave Elizabeth 12.01 a. m. week-days.

For Newark and New York—6.38 (5.45 a. m. to 5.45 p. m. hourly) 6.45, 7.07, 7.38, 7.45, 7.52, 8.00, 8.07, 8.15, 8.22, 8.30, 8.37, 8.45, 8.52, 9.00, 9.07, 9.15, 9.22, 9.30, 9.37, 9.45, 9.52, 10.00, 10.07, 10.15, 10.22, 10.30, 10.37, 10.45, 10.52, 11.00, 11.07, 11.15, 11.22, 11.30, 11.37, 11.45, 11.52 a. m., 12.00, 12.07, 12.15, 12.22, 12.30, 12.37, 12.45, 12.52, 1.00, 1.07, 1.15, 1.22, 1.30, 1.37, 1.45, 1.52, 2.00, 2.07, 2.15, 2.22, 2.30, 2.37, 2.45, 2.52, 3.00, 3.07, 3.15, 3.22, 3.30, 3.37, 3.45, 3.52, 4.00, 4.07, 4.15, 4.22, 4.30, 4.37, 4.45, 4.52, 5.00, 5.07, 5.15, 5.22, 5.30, 5.37, 5.45, 5.52, 6.00, 6.07, 6.15, 6.22, 6.30, 6.37, 6.45, 6.52, 7.00, 7.07, 7.15, 7.22, 7.30, 7.37, 7.45, 7.52, 8.00, 8.07, 8.15, 8.22, 8.30, 8.37, 8.45, 8.52, 9.00, 9.07, 9.15, 9.22, 9.30, 9.37, 9.45, 9.52, 10.00, 10.07, 10.15, 10.22, 10.30, 10.37, 10.45, 10.52, 11.00, 11.07, 11.15, 11.22, 11.30, 11.37, 11.45 p. m. and 12.00 night week-days. Sundays—8.00, 8.30, 9.00, 9.30, 10.00, 10.30, 11.00, 11.30 a. m., 12.00, 12.30, 1.00, 1.30, 2.00, 2.30, 3.00, 3.30, 4.00, 4.30, 5.00, 5.30, 6.00, 6.30, 7.00, 7.30, 8.00, 8.30, 9.00, 9.30, 10.00, 10.30, 11.00 and 11.30 p. m.

For Perth Amboy—6.44, 9.00, 11.07 a. m., 12.56, 3.16, 5.00, 6.30, 7.36, 9.51 p. m. Sundays—12.56, 12.56 night, week-days. Sundays—10.30 and 11.44 a. m., 5.51 and 10.15 p. m.

For East Millstone—7.10 a. m., 12.40, 3.07 and 7.32 p. m. week-days.

For Trenton—1.00, 6.55, 7.10, 8.05, 9.05, 9.07, 9.30, 10.05, 11.05, 11.07 a. m., 12.05, 1.05, 2.05, 3.05, 3.07, 4.05, 5.07, 7.54, 9.07, 10.05 p. m. Sundays—1.05, 6.07, 7.54, 9.07, 10.05 p. m., 1.56, 6.05, 6.07, 7.54, 9.07 and 10.07 p. m.

For Lambertville, Phillipsburg and Belvidere, via Old Bridge—7.10 a. m. week days and 7.32 p. m., 6.07 a. m. and 6.07 p. m. Sunday.

For Flemington—11.40 a. m. and 7.32 p. m.

For Philadelphia—(1.00, 6.55, 7.10, 8.05 a. m. Broad Street Station—2.05, 11.50 a. m., 4.38 and 7.15 p. m. Sundays—1.05, 6.07, 7.54, 9.07, 10.05 p. m.

For Long Branch, Asbury Park, Ocean Grove and Point on New York and Long Branch R. R.—9.30 a. m., 4.38 and 7.15 p. m. week-days. Sundays—10.37 a. m. and 10.07 night week-days. Sundays—10.37 a. m. and 10.07 p. m. Sundays. Through Cars for Asbury Park and Ocean Grove on Sundays.

For Brooklyn, N. Y.—All through trains connect at Jersey City with boats of Pennsylvania Annex, affording direct transfer to and from Cortlandt street, without double ferriage and journey across New York City.

Leave New York for Elizabeth—From Fast Line, 1.30, 3.35, 4.30, 5.00, 5.35, 6.00, 6.35, 7.00, 7.35, 8.00, 8.35, 9.00, 9.35, 10.00, 10.35, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 12.35, 1.00, 1.35, 2.00, 2.35, 3.00, 3.35, 4.00, 4.35, 5.00, 5.35, 6.00, 6.35, 7.00, 7.35, 8.00, 8.35, 9.00, 9.35, 10.00, 10.35, 11.00 p. m., 12.00 night.

For time from Deerpresse and Cortlandt streets consult local time-tables to be procured from agents.

W. W. ATTERBURY, J. R. WOOD, Manager. Gen'l Pass. Agent

Vegetable and Flower SEEDS

Reliable and Tested. Catalogue Mailed Free

WEEBER & DON

114 CHAMBERS STREET

Seedsmen NEW YORK

A. WOLFF.

Manufacturer of

CIGARS.

And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles, has removed from 261 West Front street, to South side of Somerset street, first door from Front street, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

AGENTS WANTED.

LIFE OF T. DEWITT TALMAGE, by his son, REV. FRANK DEWITT TALMAGE and associate editors of Christian Herald. Only book endorsed by Talmage family. Enormous profit for agents who act quickly. Outfit ten cents. Write immediately CLARK & CO., 297 S. Fourth Street, Phila., Pa. Mention this paper. 2 M

GEORGE W. DAY,

General Auctioneer.

Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 139, Dunellen, N J., or address in care of Constitutionalist Terms reasonable

Woolston & Buckle,

PAINTERS.

Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies

141-145 North avenue.

We Can Sell Your Farm,

Factory, business or Residence. No matter where it is located. We have sold hundreds of others. Why not yours? We have the original method which seldom fails. Send us description and price and we will explain how.

MONEY to loan on Good Mortgages. Offices in all principal cities; highest references. A. C. ROTHNEY & CO., 228 Real Estate Exch., Phila., Pa. Established 1892.

Reading System

New Jersey Central.

Stations in New York foot of Liberty, and South Ferry, Whitehall Streets.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT Feb. 1, 1903.

For New York—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night. Sundays—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Newark—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night. Sundays—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Elizabeth—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night. Sundays—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Somerville—8.55, 7.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night. Sundays—8.55, 7.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Plainfield—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night. Sundays—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Bound Brook—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night. Sundays—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Easton—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Allentown—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Bethlehem—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Mauch Chunk—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Wilkesbarre—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Harrisburg—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Pittsburg—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Chicago—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Cleveland—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Cincinnati—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Louisville—7.15, 8.15, 8.55, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 p. m., 12.01 night.

For Indianapolis

CITY FATHERS AUTHORIZE NEW HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING

Vote For Bond Issue of $125,000 to Meet Cost of Site and Erection of the New Building.

ADOPT TAX BUDGET FOR THE YEAR

INCREASE IN APPROPRIATIONS FOR FIRE AND POOR—DECREASE IN AMOUNT OF THE GENERAL FUND.

The Net Increase in Total Budget Amounts to $4,125—Fix Date for Public Hearing on Project of Sewer for Southwestern Section—Report of Auditing of City Books is Not Made Public—Lots of Routine Business Comes Before the Common Council.

It is now a settled thing that the hopes of those who have long waited for the erection of a new City High School are to be realized, for the Common Council at the regular April meeting last Monday in accordance with a resolution and the adoption on the second reading of an ordinance both introduced by Mr. Daniel, appropriated $125,000 for the purpose of purchasing lands and erecting such a school building. The sum appropriated is the same as recommended by the Board of School Estimate and reported upon some time ago. The recent decision declaring the McKee school act constitutional removed the last barrier in the way of the school.

In appropriating the $125,000, the ordinance provides for the issuance of bonds of $1,000 denomination each to bear 4 per cent. interest. The first sixty bonds will bear date of June 1, 1903, and the balance June 1, 1904. Three of the bonds are to mature September 1, 1912, and five more are to mature on March 1 of each year between 1913 and 1916 and the balance are to be payable in such manner so that they shall mature March 1 of each year from 1917 to 1933. The proceeds of the bonds are to be deposited with the custodian of school moneys, and taxes are to be assessed and collected in sufficient sum to meet the principal and interest on the bonds. The ordinance was adopted on first and second reading and ordered engrossed and advertised.

Next in importance to the new High School, the annual tax budget was considered. Mr. Daniel introduced the ordinance fixing the various amounts. The whole amount to be raised is $106,075 as against $101,950 last year. While there is a net increase of $4,125, there is also a decrease of $1,375 in the general fund. The sum of $46,975 to be raised includes $34,000 as a general tax for street improvements, salaries, rent, printing, stationery, Board of Health, exclusive of the other stated amounts. The amount for the police also comes out of the sum of $46,975. Last year the police received $16,500 and this year it is likely to be a little more owing to an increase in salaries.

The fire department appropriation is $23,000, an increase of $2,000 over last year. The poor department receives $6,000, an increase of $2,000 over last year. This also includes $1,000 which is to be given to the hospital for the care and treatment of the indigent poor who may be sent to that institution by the city physician, overseer of the poor or others who may have such authority. For street lighting the sum of $12,800 is appropriated, an increase of $300 over last year, while the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room receives $4,000. Included in the budget is $5,600 principal on the sewer bonds and $6,600 for interest on the sewer obligation. The ordinance will be advertised according to law.

Another important matter considered was an ordinance providing for an extension to the sewer system in the southwestern part of the city included in that territory which it is proposed to improve and build upon. Mr. Tolles introduced the ordinance which was adopted on first and second readings and ordered advertised. A public hearing on the subject will be given at the regular meeting Monday evening, May 4. The territory provided for in the ordinance includes Plainfield avenue from Stelle avenue to Pemberton avenue, Pemberton avenue from Plainfield avenue to Grant avenue, Grant avenue from Pemberton avenue to Sherman avenue, Sherman avenue from Plainfield avenue to Grant avenue, Drexel road, Upland way, Gwenid avenue and Beresford place.

Then followed considerable routine business of more or less importance. The Plainfield Electric Light Company notified the Council that ten electric lights have been put in position, as ordered, and the Plainfield Water Supply Company notified the Council that a hydrant has been located on West Second street as ordered at a previous meeting. Armstrong Mulford and other members of the City Board of Registry and Election, in a communication, informed the Council that a recent decision in the district court at Orange was favorable to the claim made by the board for double pay in election work and the board asked for favorable action in the local claims. The matter was referred.

A communication was received from the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital in which the board offered to take care of the indigent poor of the city for one year for the sum of $1,000, $500 of which is to be paid July 31 and the other $500 December 1. A little later the offer was accepted on a resolution offered by Mr. Daniel and provision for the expenditure was made in the tax budget.

Street Commissioner Gavett reported that twenty-one sewer permits were granted between December of last year and March of this year. City Judge Wm. N. Runyon presented his first quarter's report. This showed that 115 cases had been before him, of which number thirty were fined, sentence was suspended on sixty-eight, fourteen were committed and three were dismissed. The fines amounted to $213, of which amount $2.04 was turned over to City Treasurer Wm. P. Arnold, the difference being paid for expenses. Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported that twenty-seven building permits were granted during the month of March.

Mayor O. L. Jenkins appointed Joseph B. Clark, a call-man, to the position of regular fireman in the city department, and Wm. Jaeger was appointed a call-man to take the place vacated by Clark. Both appointments were confirmed.

Mr. Daniel reported on the petition of C. W. Ellis regarding the tax on a property in Netherwood, and upon the advice of Corporation Counsel Marsh, he recommended that no action be taken. Mr. Marsh said that Mr. Ellis should have appeared before the Commissioners of Appeal for redress and that the Council now has no authority in the matter. Mr. Daniel also reported on the petition of W. J. Dodd, who asked for exemption from paying a tax on three dogs because they were only puppies. Mr. Daniel stated that the law does not specify any particular age as which dogs can be taxed and no exception is thus made. Following this action Mr. Daniel offered a resolution fixing $2 as the dog tax for the coming year. He also, by resolution, fixed the appropriation for the Board of Health for the coming year at $3,750, an increase of $350 over last year. The same procedure was taken in the appointment of George B. Wean as city stenographer and copyist to the Common Council and committees, fixing his salary at $400 for the year. Mr. Daniel also offered a resolution providing for the borrowing of $1,000 for sewer improvements and another resolution transferring $2,500 from the general to the fire fund. These resolutions were all adopted by a unanimous vote.

Mr. Tolles reported on the petition for sidewalks on the northerly side of North avenue, between Richmond and Berckman streets, stating that the walks would be laid within a short time. He also reported back the petition from John Heusey and other residents on North avenue, regarding the bad condition of that avenue and he said that the matter should be referred to the Board of Health.

Mr. Randolph offered a resolution providing for the appointment of Frederick W. Pierce and Harry Adams as special police, on the recommendation of Mayor Jenkins.

Mr. Murphy moved that the petition of the Home Real Estate Company for electric lights in the West End be granted and that one of the four electric lights petitioned for by the Plainfield Real Estate Company be granted. This light will be located at the corner of Monroe avenue and West Eighth street. Another resolution offered by Mr. Murphy called for an appropriation of $100 for the purchase of a typewriter for the use of Tax Collector F. H. Smith. The resolution was adopted.

The long expected report of City Auditor Collins, who for some time past has been at work examining and auditing the city books, was presented, but a motion was made by Mr. Daniel that it be referred to the finance committee. Thus the public was not made acquainted with the facts in the report. Many believe that inasmuch as the city has expended $600 for this work the public has a right to know the result of the auditing.

Mr. Gloak, as chairman of the alms committee, presented a letter received from the Organized Aid Association regarding the management and operation of the Industrial Home. This communication is the same as was published in The Daily Press in which the management was criticised for laxity, etc. Mr. Gloak stated that the committee has for some time past had under consideration the correcting of certain irregularities and he spoke of the conference held between the committee from the Charity Organized Aid Association and the committee from the Council, when certain plans were discussed. He said that it is the intention of the committee to adopt more strict rules for the management of the Home.

Mr. Daniel offered a resolution authorizing the tax collector to enforce the collection of taxes for 1900 under the Martin Act by publishing the names of the delinquents and selling the property where the tax is not paid, to the highest bidder.

A petition from W. H. Rogers and others for an electric light on West Fifth street between Central avenue and New street, was referred to the proper committee.

Licenses were granted to the following persons: Truckmen—Paul Meissner, H. J. Wierenga, George Conover & Sons (2), Frank Mobus, Frank Rickert, C. H. Staats; cartmen—Cyrus Binn, Spencer Conway, Richard Randolph, Wm. Estes; peddler on foot—Minnie Ferris, Jacob Berman, Samuel Sobel; peddler with horse and wagon—L. M. Bird, Metropolitan Supply Company, Jacob Sachar, Metropolitan Specialty Company; junkman—Frank Haulenbeek; sprinkler—City Sprinkling Company; hackman—Henry Hansen.

INDOOR ATHLETIC CONTESTS

CONTINUATION OF NOVICE CONTEST AT Y. M. C. A. GYM.

Saturday Night's Events Were Fence Vault and Hop, Step and Jump.

The last but one of the novice contests which have been attracting so much attention at the Y. M. C. A. was held Saturday evening at the Y. M. C. gymnasium. There was a large number of spectators present. The events were the fence vault and the hop, step and jump. Good work was done by the contestants in both events.

Neal and Denton tied in the first position in the fence vault. Their records were 5 feet 10 inches. In the play off Denton won by jumping 5 feet 11 inches. Others who took part in that event were Koons, 5 feet 7 inches, Smith; 5 feet 5 inches; and Collins, 5 feet and ¼ inch.

In the hop, step and jump, Seull won first place by clearing 38 feet 3 inches. Hand took second place with 34 feet 11 inches; Swann, 33 feet 10 inches; Smith, 33 feet 9½ inches; Koons, 33 feet 8 inches; Sebring, 31.

Walter McNaughton, who has held high place in all the contests, was excused on account of sprained knees but will run off his events next Saturday night. Those who are playing for championship for all around athletes of the Y. M. C. A. are McNaughton, Collins, Smith and Neal. These four have taken part in all the contests and hold high points in all.

The contest closes next Saturday night.

Captain J. Frank Hubbard, of West Seventh street, is apparently improved from his severe illness.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

HILLSIDE PLANS BUSY SEASON

The Club's Schedule As Announced Shows Long List of Golf and Tennis Events.

OPENING DAY APRIL 10

Many Trophies Offered for Golf Play Which Will Continue a Feature—Tennis Arrangements and Rules Governing Matches—Other Interesting Matters.

According to the schedule of golf and tennis events, as announced by the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, the coming season promises to be one of unusual activity. Of course, the greatest attention is paid to golf and as effort will be made to exceed last season's success in this respect. As will be noticed by the golf schedule, the weekly competitions for the Boys' cup and the Woman's cup, is abolished. There will be stated play, however, for a woman's Handicap cup. The Club Championship cup is offered by George A. Chapman, while the Consolation cup and Handicap cup are presented by the club. This is also true of the Woman's Handicap and Holiday cups. The green's committee offers what will be known as the Green's Committee tankard and Alexander Gilbert again presents a cup for mixed foursomes. A new trophy will be known as the Golf Team cup, to be presented to the member of the team who wins the most matches during the season.

Friday, April 10, will be opening day at the club and the course will be opened for play at that time, although the scheduled events will not commence until the following day, April 11. In addition to the events announced, other golf competitions may be arranged by the committee.

The golf schedule is as follows:

April 11—Golf Committee cup, weekly competition to be played for each Saturday throughout the season.

May 16—10 a. m. Woman's Handicap cup.

May 23—2 p. m. Gilbert cup, mixed foursomes.

May 30—10 a. m. Holiday cup.
2 p. m. Green's Committee tankard.

June 13—10 a. m. Woman's Handicap cup.

June 20—2 p. m. Men's Handicap cup.

July 4—10 a. m. Championship cup, preliminary round.
Holiday cup.
1 p. m. Championship cup, first round match play.
Consolation cup, first round match play.
2 p. m. Green's Committee tankard.

July 11—10 a. m. Championship cup, second round match play.
Woman's Handicap cup.
Consolation cup, second round match play.
2 p. m. Semi-finals Championship cup.
Semi-finals Consolation cup.

July 18—2 p. m. Finals Championship cup.
Finals Consolation cup.

Sept. 7—10 a. m. Holiday cup.
2 p. m. Green's Committee tankard.

Sept. 13—10 a. m. Woman's handicap cup.

Sept. 26—2 p. m. Men's Handicap cup.

Oct. 17—10 a. m. Semi-finals, Woman's Handicap cup.

Oct. 24—10 a. m. Finals, Woman's Handicap cup.

Nov. 3—10 a. m. Finals, Men's Handicap cup.
Holiday cup.
2 p. m. Green's Committee tankard.
Kicker's handicap.

Nov. 22—10 a. m. Finals, Holiday cup.
2 p. m. Green's Committee tankard.

Nov. 27—10 a. m. Gilbert cup, mixed foursomes.

Play for the several cups will be regulated by the following conditions:

Club championship cup—George A. Chapman. Men's competition; active members only. The eight players who shall have qualified at medal play, eighteen holes, to compete at match play, eighteen holes.

Consolation cup—presented by the club. To be played for by the second eight to qualify in the Championship cup to compete, at match play for cup presented by the club.

Handicap cup—presented by the club. Men's competition, active members only, eighteen holes, medal play, to be played for June 20, September 26; the winners to play thirty-six holes match play for possession of the cup on Election Day.

Gilbert cup (mixed foursomes)—Alexander Gilbert. Handicap. Active, associate and junior associate members, eighteen holes, medal play.

Golf Committee cup—The golf committee. Handicap. Active members only. To be played for each Saturday throughout the season, the players returning the three lowest net scores to receive points, and the player scoring the greatest number of points throughout the season to receive the cup.

Woman's handicap cup—presented by the club. Woman's competition. Active, associate and junior associate members. To be played for May 16, June 13, July 11, September 12. The four winners to play off at (handicap) match play. No one will be allowed to score more than one preliminary win.

Holiday cup—presented by the club. Handicap. Active members only. To be played for each holiday, including Election Day, for members having a handicap of eighteen and over; the four winners to play off at handicap match play. No one will be allowed to score more than one preliminary win.

Golf Team cup to be presented to the member of the team who wins the most matches during the season.

The tennis events scheduled are as follows:

May 9—10 a. m. Mellick cup for women.

May 30—10 a. m. Decoration Day cup, men's singles, scratch.

June 18—10 a. m. Mellick cup for women.

June 27—10 a. m. Mellick cup for women.

July 4—10 a. m. Fourth of July cups, men's singles and doubles, handicap.

Aug. 21—p. m. Men's doubles, scratch.

Sept. 7—10 a. m. Labor Day cups, mixed doubles, scratch.

Sept. 19—10 a. m. Mellick cup for women.

Sept. 26—2 p. m. Club championship, men's singles, challenge cup, presented by the club.

Oct. 10—2 p. m. Finals, Mellick cup for women.

In the tennis events an entrance fee of 50 cents will be charged for each tournament, except in matches for the Mellick cup, in which no fee will be charged. Entries close at 6 p. m., on the day before each tournament. Entries for the men's events and the mixed doubles should be made to T. M. Day, Jr., 425 Carlton avenue, and for the women's matches to Miss Whiton, 321 Central avenue. The Mellick cup, presented by George E. Mellick, president of the club, is to be played for by the women club members, either active, non-resident, associate or junior associate, the four winners to play off in the finals. No one will be allowed to score more than one preliminary win for the cup. The tennis committee also expects to arrange matches with other clubs, the dates of which will be announced later.

Safe Makers at Traps.

The regular monthly meet of the Safe Works Gun Club was held on the club's grounds, Clinton avenue, Saturday afternoon, and in spite of the strong wind which was blowing during the target practice some very good records were made. The scores are as follows: Emmons broke 49 out of 60; Brosbart, 44 out of 60; Gorden, 38 out of 55; Ludgate, 13 out of 25; and Strachan, 13 out of 25.

Councilman W. S. Tyler was unable to attend the regular meeting of the Common Council last Monday evening, owing to the fact that he has been west on a business trip.

Boys who make Money after School Hours

Over 3000 Boys in various parts of the country are making money in their spare time selling The Saturday Evening Post. Some make as much as $10.00 and $25.00 a week. Any boy who reads this can do the same.

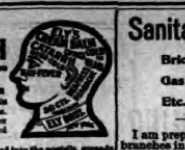
IN A DAINTY little booklet, which we will send to any boy free, the most successful of our boy agents tell in their own way just how they have made a success of selling

The Saturday Evening Post

There are many stories of real business tact. Pictures of the boys are given. Send for this booklet and we will forward with it full information how you can begin this work. No money required to start. We will send Ten Copies of the magazine the first week free. Write to-day.

The Curtis Publishing Company,
433 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Nasal CATARRH



In all its stages there should be cleansing and healing. Ely's Cream Balm cleanses, soothes and heals the diseased membrane. It does not cause pain and drives away a cold in the head quickly.

Cream Balm is placed into the nostrils, spreads over the membrane and is absorbed. Relief is immediate and a cure follows. It is not drying—does not produce sneezing. Large Size, 50 cents at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size, 10 cents by mail.

ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.

THEATRICAL.

"The liveliest, most musical and best musical show in town," is the declaration of the New York World, when "The Prince of Pilsen," Henry W. Savage's musical comedy opened its New York engagement at the Broadway Theatre. The metropolitan engagement promises to be a long and prosperous one, and Composer Luders' music is being whistled from the Battery to the Harlem.

Another signal triumph for the present managerial policy of the Grand Opera House, New York, is apparent in the appearance there this week of Klaw & Erlanger's magnificent production, "The Billionaire," with Jerome Rykes and the entire original company and stage paraphernalia employed in the one hundred and odd nights run, just ended, at Daly's Theatre. The stage of the Grand, being of unusual dimensions, proves a valuable aid for the proper presentation of the famous miniature theatre scene, which has been one of the greatest bits of the piece and, in fact, proved one of the most marvelous exhibitions of modern stage mechanism ever conceived.

The last souvenir performances of "A Chinese Honeymoon" at the Casino are now announced by Messrs. Sam S. Shubert and Nixson and Zimmerman. The 400th performance of this musical triumph in America takes place on the evening of Wednesday, April 23, and on that occasion a souvenir in keeping with the others which have been given away and of a pattern and metal to complete the set will be given to all women attending. The matinee performance on that day will be the 899th and souvenir books containing fine portraits of the players will be given away, making a double souvenir occasion.

Another brilliant array of vaudeville artists in pleasing specialties and sketches has been arranged for the coming week at Keith's. The Florodora Sextette, which made such a hit last week, will hold over. Davis and Mandy, the most amusingly funny sketch. "The Unexpected," cannot fail to please. The Watermelon Trust is another act that is well calculated to arouse and please the sense of humor. Irene Franklin, daintiest of Comediennes, Murphy and Willard in Conversational Oddities; Jess Dandy, King of Hebrew parodists; Flood Brothers, comedy and pantomimists acrobats; Felix and Barry in a comedy sketch; Charles Chase, monologuist; Armstrong and Wright, travesty artists and eccentric dancers, including Miss Wright's one foot endurance dance; Yeager and Yeager, best of ethiopian performers, in Coonological ideas; Reily and Currier, high class singing act; Bissonette and Newman, the novelty athletes and The Laurelles in their great dancing exhibition will provide a bill the equal of which has not been presented for some time and one that cannot fail to please all and every taste.

Says Has Another Husband.

William Abbott, of Newark, appeared before Justice Huff on Friday, April 2, and complained that Agnes Allen, also of Newark, whom he claimed to have married February 6, 1901, has another husband and he asked that such legal proceedings as are necessary in such cases be taken. It is said that the wife is now living in Long Branch.

Ill at Atlanta.

James J. Hammersmith, who formerly lived on Watchung avenue near Regent street, was stricken with paralysis at his home in Atlanta, Georgia, where he went eight years ago for his health. This was the second stroke he has suffered within a month

Brookholst K. Miller, of Watchung avenue, is home from Williams College for the Easter vacation.

DIED.

PATTERSON—Andrew Stuart Patterson, aged 66, of Paterson, N. Y., Thursday, morning, April 2, 1903.

JACKSON—At West Hoboken, April 2, 1903, Mary M., wife of Arthur Jackson, in her twenty-second year.

GALBRAITH—In this city, April 2, 1903, Mrs. Mary Galbraith in her sixty-sixth year.

ROGERS—In this city, April 2, 1903, Nellie Rogers, daughter of Mrs. Patrick Rogers, in her 27th year.

CUTHBERT—In New York City, on April 2, 1903, John R. Cuthbert.

MAIR—Entered into rest, April 2, 1903, Elizabeth, wife of the late John Mair, in her 83rd year.

HOWATT—Entered into rest, April 5, William Howatt, aged 84 years.

PEARSON—At Springfield, N. J., April 7, 1903, Elizabeth R., wife of Oliver Robert Pearson, of Woodside, N. J., and daughter of the late Amos J. Moffett, aged 53 years.

Sanitary Plumbing

Brick and Portable Furnace
Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing.
Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in cases.

D. W. LITTELL,

No. 112 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

is now open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the tonsorial line.

EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

CARNEY BROS.,

MADISON AVENUE,
Between Front and Second streets

Tinners, Plumbers Gas Fitters,

Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We have none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces, Sanitary plumbing.

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. FRANK HUBBARD, President,
GEO. W. ROCKEFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

Guaranteed Salary $900 YEARLY.

Men and women of good address to represent us, some to travel appointing agents, others for local work during spare time. $900 salary guaranteed yearly; $75 monthly and $3 a day for expenses and advancement. Old established house. Grand chance for earnest man or woman to secure permanent, permanent position. Many in rooms and future. New, brilliant lines. Write at once.

STAFFORD PRESS,
23 Church St., New Haven, Conn

W. B. CODINGTON,

Counsellor-at-Law

Commissioner of Deeds, Master in Chancery, Notary Public. Office Corner of Park avenue and Second street.

ALBERT HEDDEN

Livery & Boarding Stables

FOURTH ST.,

between Watchung and Park avenues. First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

Wm. A. Woodruff,

Fire and Life

INSURANCE AGENT,

OFFICE,

corner Front St. and Park Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

Real Estate for Sale or Exchange Money to loan on Approved Security

NEW ENGINE HOUSE COMING

Borough Council Orders Committee to Execute the Contracts at Once.

IT WILL COST $11,503

A Heated Argument Preceded Vote, and Incidentally Mayor Smalley Presented Sound Logic—Those Who Have Entered Bids—Other Details.

Warren Engine Company, of the borough, is now practically assured of a new headquarters house. At the meeting of the Borough Council held last evening, the fire, water and lamps committee was authorized by a unanimous vote of the members to execute the contracts for the building at a cost of $11,503, to the lowest bidders on carpentering, masonry and ironwork, eliminating the plumbing and the electrical work and fixtures.

The fact that the total amount of the lowest bidder came to $1,503 above the appropriation of $10,000 voted by the people at a special election, raised a storm of argument which did not subside until Mayor Smalley delivered some sound arguments in its favor. The resolution was then adopted without a dissenting vote.

After the bids were opened by Clerk Rowley, it was found that the amount necessary for the building was more than the appropriation. Chairman Clark, of the fire, water and lamps committee, offered a resolution asking the Council to authorize the execution of the bids. Councilman Northrop opposed the resolution on the ground that the appropriation called for an engine house not to exceed $10,000. Councilman Clark said that inasmuch as the lot was not paid for out of the appropriation there was still $2,500 of the amount which could be used for the erection of the building. Points in the borough law were discussed by Mr. Arnold and Mr. Northrup and after a rather heated argument the resolution was put to a vote and went through.

There were a number of bidders for contracts as follows: For masonry, W. G. Smith, $6,080; Titus H. Lacey, $6,091; W. N. Pangborn, $6,100; J. H. Snyder, $6,884; for carpentering, John H. Stryker, $3,918.16; George Hemmer, $4,000; John Milne, $3,880; ironwork, Hay Foundry Company, $1,971; Berlin Construction Company, $1,941, and W. T. Kirk, $1,841; heating and plumbing, C. W. Krusen, $965.81; Charles H. Datcher, $956; electrical fittings and wiring, Allan B. Laing, $920.

None of the contracts were awarded as that business is in the hands of the fire, water and lamps committee.

In routine matters, a petition was received signed by several property owners asking the Council to macadamize Walnut street between Harrison avenue and Wilson avenue. The amounts they would subscribe was placed beside their names. This was referred to the street committee and it will report at the next meeting. In connection with this matter Mayor Smalley said he would like to see the committee take under consideration the question of macadamizing Deer street as its upper end, Pearl street, between Washington avenue and Sherman street, and the widening of Greenbrook road beginning at Bookview avenue.

Treasurer George F. Brown reported that there had been spent during the past month $3,736.20 and that the receipts amounted to $5,789.98. The balance on hand March 1 was $987.33, cash on hand, April 1, amounted to $2,983.68. Claims amounting to about $4,855 were ordered paid.

Chairman Clark, of the fire, water and lamps committee, reported that $437.05 has been spent during the month. Councilman Lee, of the police committee reported that there had been 31 arrests made and $20 received from fines. Chairman Arnold of the street committee reported that $67.05 had been spent on the streets and that $95.20 had been spent for repairs and for crushed stone.

Mayor Smalley appointed Dr. A. H. Sneden borough physician for one year and Henry Johnson special marshal for one year. Both appointments were confirmed.

Good for Children.

The pleasant to take and harmless One Minute Cough Cure gives immediate relief in all cases of Coughs, Croup and La Grippe. Because it does not pass immediately into the stomach but takes effect right at the seat of the trouble. It draws out the inflammation, heals and soothes and cures permanently by enabling the lungs to contribute pure life-giving and life-sustaining oxygen to the blood and tissues. L. W. Randolph.

TROLLEY'S PROFIT IS SMALL

BIG INVESTMENT AND COMPARATIVELY SMALL PROFITS.

One Fourth of Trolley Companies Are Not in Active Operation—Facts and Figures.

Interesting figures concerning the trolley roads of the State are contained in the supplemental annual report of the State Board of Assessors, which has just been issued. It is shown by these figures that with an investment of over $150,000,000 in trolley roads in this State the stockholders in the various lines by which the State is traversed, received but a little over $300,000 in dividends in the year ending December 31, 1902. The figures compiled by the State assessors show that in addition to the sums included in the $150,000,000, which amount represents the cost of the railroads, the sum of $5,091,290 79 is required in a year's operation of the road for repairs, superintendence, management and the like.

According to the report, the total number of miles of trolley tracks in the State foots up to 891,384. The issued capital stock amounts to $83,353,940 and the total of the paid-up capital stock is $80,672,931.07. The funded debts of all the corporations amount to $56,357,500, while their other debts amount to $10,776,258 85.

The exact amount of the cost of the construction of the trolley roads, including equipment and appurtenances, is $150,041,915 84. The gross receipts, expenditures and dividends that have been declared, as compared with the board's report of a year ago, show an excess of receipts over the expenditures of $130,400.35, and that the trolley companies have paid in dividends $54,000 more than during 1901. The following statement will show the material points of difference between the reports:

1902—Gross receipts, $6,894,354 41; expenditures, $5,091,290.79; dividends paid, $540,640 00.

1901—Gross receipts, $6,137,076 28; expenditures $4,464,513.22; dividends paid, $486,640.00.

It is shown in the report that nearly one-fourth of the trolley companies in the State are not in active operation, never having constructed the tracks proposed. They have, in fact, never made better progress than to secure a fully paid up capital stock. All but about three millions of the capital represented by these companies have been turned into the "strong boxes" of the corporations.

Of the sixty-three chartered trolley companies in the State, there are fifteen of them which are not in operation. The majority of this number have yet to commence the construction of their tracks, the roads being merely projected, and on which work will be started some time in the future. Nearly all of the capital stock has been subscribed for in the case of these companies and paid in.

RESIDENTIAL CHANGES.

Many Residents Make Changes Through the Mulford Agency.

Through the real estate agency of E. C. Mulford & Son, of North avenue, Mrs. Henrietta Hetfield, of the borough, has leased the property at 517 East Second street; Richard Carver, of Washington street, has purchased a lot of the Mulford estate on East Fourth street, near Richmond street, and will build a house for his occupancy. W. H. Bohl, of Kensington avenue, has also purchased a lot of the estate on East Fifth street, near Franklin place, and he will erect a handsome house for his occupancy. J. Grierson, of the Cotton Exchange Building, New York, has leased Dr. Zeglio's house at 137 Crescent avenue and will take possession May 1. A. E. Farland, the well-known banjo player, of Jersey City, has rented the property at 407 East Second street, and has taken possession. A. S. Jarman, of Brooklyn, has rented Mrs. Sarah R. Runyon's property at 922 West Sixth street, and will take possession May 1. J. D. Philpitt, of West Front street, has rented the Sorrell property at 430 Plainfield avenue, and will take possession soon. W. L. Crawford, of Metuchen, has rented the property at 743 Carlton avenue, and has taken possession.

A Sweet Breath

is a never failing sign of a healthy stomach. When the breath is bad the stomach is out of order. There is no remedy in the world equal to Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for curing indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders. Mrs. Mary S. Orick, of White Plains, Ky., writes: "I have been a dyspeptic for years—tried all kinds of remedies but continued to grow worse. By the use of Kodol I began to improve at once, and after taking a few bottles am fully restored in weight, health and strength and can eat whatever I like. Kodol digests what you eat and makes the stomach sweet. L. W. Randolph.

Miss Minnie Green, of New York, is the guest of Miss Alberta E. Waterbury, of Craig place.

EARRINGS WORN FOR AGES.

Of All Ornaments Worn by Human Beings, They Are the Oldest Recorded in History.

Although few women in recent years have been wearing earrings, the fashion still survives, and at functions of select society pendants of brilliants are still frequently seen. Of all the ornaments used by human beings earrings are probably the oldest so far as historical research has been able to determine. They date from the remotest antiquity, the earliest mention of them in the Bible being in the time of Jacob, about 1732 B. C. This antiquity has been confirmed by the finding of costly and elaborate specimens in the Troad by Dr. Schliemann, in Etruria by Castellani and in Anglo-Saxon remains in England. Their use at first was not ornamental, but superstitious, states the Chicago Chronicle.

Amulets consisting of inscribed precious stones on pieces of metal were worn suspended from the neck or more frequently from the ears. Augustine speaks strongly against earrings worn as amulets in his time. It is a noteworthy fact that the ears of the famous statue Venus de Medici are bored, evidently for earrings.

The fashion of men wearing earrings, which is still common in Italy among the fishermen of Cornwall, England, with Portuguese sailors and many others, is a survival of the superstition that they were a protection against evil. Many of the Italians in New York wear earrings for this purpose.

CURLING AND HURLING.

Scotch Games That Have Been Played by Young and Old Since Time Out of Mind.

Curling, the game that was for a long time furtively indulged in here by a few braw laddies, has been placed on a substantial footing, with numerous well-organized teams and well-contested tournaments. Handball has been practically built from the monopoly of a few professionals, and today a hand-ball court is a popular feature of every well-equipped athletic club. Discus throwing, that the Olympian youths excelled in at the Olympian games, has recently become a regular scheduled feature of all big athletic meetings. More recently the royal and ancient game of golf has been transplanted from the hills of Scotland to the heights of the Hudson, where it languished for several years under the popular suspicion that it was merely a game cunningly devised to lure gouty old men into taking much-needed exercise. Then it began to grow in popular favor, until to-day tees and putting greens dot the country almost as thickly as baseball fields, and $15,000,000 is spent yearly for golfing implements, says the Brooklyn Eagle. The fad has long since ceased to be a fad, and golf, pointing to the time-stained documents carefully preserved in Edinburgh,

DEWEY'S NEW RESPONSIBILITY

Picture of the Hero of Manila on a Button That Was Put to Good Use.

The boy pupils of a down-town school were studying the history of the war with Spain, says the Philadelphia "Times." One boy seemed to have difficulty in remembering the names of some of the American naval commanders who were conspicuous in that trouble.

"Here," the teacher said, finally, going to her desk and taking out some souvenirs of the jubilee parade of 1899, "take these buttons home this afternoon, study them over night, and tell me in the morning which is Schley, which is Dewey and which Sampson."

The boy took his buttons bearing the likenesses of the three commanders, and the boy took them and went home.

In the morning the teacher called him to her desk and asked him if he knew the names of the three officers. He produced two buttons saying: "This is Schley, and—" handing out the second—"this is Sampson."

"That's right; that's right; very good! And of course the third is—where is the third button I gave you?"

"Please, ma'am," he replied, "me mudder took Dewey and sewed him on me fadder's pants dis morning."

French Women Sailors.

Questions having been raised on the subject of the decision of the French maritime authorities to allow women to be employed as sailors in the channel fishing smacks, the minister of marine has addressed a circular to all the French port officials, in which he says: "Women cannot navigate as captains, but, according to the French law, they cannot be prevented from embarking as members of the crews."

Singular Snow Columns.

"Nieves penitentes," slightly inclined snow columns resembling shrouded figures doing penance, are a peculiar phenomenon of the Andes to which Sir Mt. Conway has given attention. They are the last remnants of drifts or slides which have become hardened in nearly vertical strata of different densities.

Civil Service Examinations.

Of those taking civil service examinations for appointment in federal departments last year, 69 per cent received the required percentage and 31 per cent. fell short of it. Of those who passed the examinations 25 per cent. were and 75 per cent. were not appointed.

Uncle Sam's Women Workers.

Nearly 7,400 women are employed in the various government departments at Washington.

THEATRICAL.

"The Belle of Bohemia," Henry W. Savage's successful musical satire, has passed the two fourth month at Wallack's Theatre in New York and the theatre has been filled to capacity at every performance. New Yorkers stamped the seal of approval on the merry George Ade satire at the first performance and the piece is sure to continue to reign at Wallack's for many months to come. The anniversary of the 100th performance in New York was celebrated March 22. No changes have been made in the big cast since the metropolitan engagement began.

There are so many good things on the bill at Keith's for the coming week that one must go very early and stay late if he wishes to see all that is worth seeing. Variety is a good name for the entertainment for all tastes are catered to in the lengthy programme. An especial pleasing feature for the younger patrons is the Gillett troupe of trained dogs. Animal life always appeals to youth, and some of the tricks performed by these dogs puts human intelligence to the blush. Comedy will be afforded by Williams and Tucker, and Jones and Sutton, the latter sketch being entitled "Cream of Colorado Aristocracy." Moore and Haight is another turn in the lighter vein, the "Change your act or back to the Woods," being full of comical situations. Music lovers will be pleased with the work done by Wood and Vanticlden, while the power of mimicry displayed by both Sam Deane and Lotta Gladstone is very marked. Reed and Shaw, and the four Brothers Brady will show what skill can be attained in acrobatic work, and Zimmer's juggling is wonderfully dexterous. Others who will appear to advantage are Hodgkins and Leith, Kline and Clifton, and Adele P. Ouri.

"Mr. Blue Beard" is in its eleventh week at the Knickerbocker Theatre with not a sign of waning popularity in sight. The attendance still keeps up to the utmost capacity of the house and the advance sale continues at phenomenal figures. The attention with "Mr. Blue Beard" has attracted is another demonstration of the demand of the public for big things in the way of amusements, and also its willingness to patronize them to an extent commensurate with their merit. This production represents the highest attainment in scenic art, magnificence of costuming and in comic musical entertainment ever seen in this country and is therefore the most popular attraction in New York. The Saturday matinee performances are largely attended by women and children, special care being taken to provide for their accommodation and comfort. Seats may be ordered by mail or telegraph for any performance as far ahead as four weeks. All communications in reference to reservation of seats receive prompt attention.

Managers Sam S., and Lee Shubert announce that in the new Casino show, "The Runaways," they will have larger ensembles, a larger orchestra and the most expensive costumes and scenic settings which have ever embellished a musical comedy in this country. Principals, chorus singers and musicians will number 100. This is what made it necessary to enlarge the Casino stage and to buy the adjoining building for dressing rooms, etc. Rehearsals of the new play are progressing splendidly and it is confidently expected that it will be ready for production early in May.

If rehearsals are any indication of what a production can be, Chas. E. Evans and Chas. Hopper have what is termed "a winner" in the sprightly comedy "There and Back." This is the smart farce written by George Arliss, the talented player of David Belasco's "Darling of the Gods" company, and which was played with splendid success in London last summer by Chas. Hawtrey and his company. Mr. Evans and Mr. Hopper and their company are getting ready now for a few weeks "on the road" preparatory to going into the Princess Theatre at the end of the engagement of Miss Bingham and her company.

Judging by the amount of newspaper attention being paid to "The Sultan of Sulu" in New York, George Ade must be one of the most popular fellows to drift under the limelight in a long time or else his witty opera must be a spectacular success at Wallack's theatre. The breezy author left his new piece, "Peggy from Paris," to take care of itself in Chicago the past week and visited "The Sultan." The next morning every New York paper contained stories concerning how the librettist laughed at the merry capers of Sultan Ki-Bam. The centre of the stage of publicity seems to have been turned over to Mr. Ade by general consent and to be truthful, he seems to be just as picturesquely modest as if he were in the back row of the chorus. In addition to "The Sultan of Sulu" there are nine other musical shows bidding for favor in New York these days, but droll Ki-Bam played by Frank Moulan, and the "Cocktail Song" in which he is "Fables in Slang" style appears to be about the biggest hit on Broadway.

FISHTOWN DIALECT.

Portion of Philadelphia Where the People Have an Amusing Peculiarity.

A United States senator from an eastern state, according to the Washington Post, tells an amusing story about the residents of the northeastern section of Philadelphia, known as Fishtown. Many denizens of this famous old location have a dialect strictly their own, and intensely original. For instance, many of them invariably sound the letter "r" where the letter "w" should be respected, and vice versa. Once upon a time a public man, who had been reared there, was presiding at a gathering of Fishtown citizens, when a party of wags, who were present and knew the presiding officer's peculiarity of dialect, concocted a written sentence and sent it up to the desk to be read as a notice. It was as follows:

"Mr. Winton Wanx, clad in a variegated velvet vest, of which he was very vain, after voting, took a vinegar laden vessel to the Vine street dock for verification."

Amid shrieks of laughter the innocent presiding officer rendered it in this wise:

"Mr. Winton Wanx, clad in a wariegated west, of which he was very wain, after woting took a winegar laden wessel to the Wine street dock for werification."

X-RAYS FOR CANCER.

Great Promise of Permanent Cure Held Out in the Finsen Discovery.

Cancer proper has been generally regarded as hopeless. Having, however, used the Finsen ray with good results in a case of cancer of the skin, I decided in 1900 to prove its results upon the deeper-seated cancer of the breast, writes George C. Hopkins in McClure's. Here, however, entered a difficulty. The Finsen ray has slight penetrative power. The use of the Roentgen, or X-ray, in connection with the Finsen, suggested itself to me. The Roentgen ray has extraordinary germicidal qualities, but no curative properties. Therefore, to destroy the germs I used the X-ray, which broke down the cancerous tissue and killed the bacteria. Then I used the Finsen tube to heal the open sore which resulted. Under the double radial attack the area of ulceration quickly shrank, and, after several months of treatment disappeared. That was two years ago; there has been no return of the growth since.

Should the apparent cures of cancer prove permanent, we must regard Finsen's discovery as the greatest milligram of light ever thrown upon the first use of anaesthetics. And, in any case, the future of the new science is glorious with hope.

THE AMERICAN LANGUAGE.

Distinctive from the King's English in Many Respects as We Use It.

"It used to be considered a witticism to ask a man whether he spoke United States," said an Englishman recently when at the Lawyers' club the other day, reports a New York exchange, "but there is in fact an American language, distinctive from the king's English, not only in idiom and in the use of particular words, but in the clipping of words to save time and breath. On this side of the Atlantic one scarcely ever hears 'I have' and 'you are.' You hurrying Americans say 'I've' and 'you're.' You shorten up 'cannot' into 'can't,' and your purest speakers use 'don't' and 'won't,' and it is almost a universal habit among Americans to clip the 'g' off words ending in 'ing.' Even your professional English fail to sound the 'h' in 'righteous' and 'courteous,' and shorten 'knowledge' into 'knoledge.' I might recite scores of words that are practically shortened by a syllable in usage, and as usage makes language, we are surprised to find in a recent manuscript volume of 2,000 pages, which was entirely devoted to a study of humpbacks. Further investigation showed that for several years this man, who was himself stalwart, graceful athlete, had closely studied this curious subject and had visited various countries for that purpose.

According to his manuscript there are more humpbacks in Spain than anywhere else, the number in one small district at the foot of the Sierra Morena amounting to one in every 13 inhabitants. There are also many in the Loire region, in France.

From the statistics of all the countries of the globe it appears that there is one humpback in every 1,000 persons, which is equivalent to saying that there are 1,000,000 humpbacks in the entire world. The author of this manuscript says that the average height of each hump is about eight inches.

Rings Under Gloves.

According to a well known London jeweler, people who want their rings to last well should not wear them under gloves. The constant friction of the gloves wears the tiny points that hold the stones in place and the result is that the stones fall out unless they are closely looked after.

CHANGES TO PARK LINKS

THREE NEW HOLES HAVE BEEN LAID OUT IN THE COURSE.

The Changes Made Necessary on Account of Recent Improvement to the Hyde Estate.

No time is being lost in putting the course of the Park Golf Club in condition for play. Several changes will be made in the course this spring on account of the improvements being made to the property by the Hyde estate but these will not injure its excellent playing qualities and will be made in time for the real opening of the season. It is probable that play will begin there not long after April 1 but that temporary greens will have to be utilized at first.

A conference was recently held at the links when the changes were planned. Frank deL. Hyde, one of the owners, and a director and member of the green committee of the golf club, met with President C. W. McCutchen, Chairman George T. Rogers and Chas. A. Reed, of the green committee. The course, as laid out, met the approval of all.

There will be no change in the first three holes. The famous "third," 603 yards long, will remain the same. The fourth, fifth and sixth holes are to be laid out anew. When the old fourth hole need to extend toward the east, the new one will start from a teeing ground east of the third green, cross the gully again and run for some 300 yards to the south-west. The new fifth hole will start close by the new green for the fourth and, following a line parallel with the boundary fence, will end with the green formerly used to complete the fourth hole. This hole will be some 400 yards long and will have several sporty hazards on it.

In place of the famous "Desperation," the sixth hole will start close by the line of trees, north of the fifth green, and extend westward to a green near the end of the third hole. This will be a short hole, about 240 yards. The players will then cross the bridge over the gully and resume play at the old seventh teeing ground and follow the old course as before.

ELKS' COMMANDERS.

The Officers for New Brunswick's Lodge of Elks.

At a recent meeting of New Brunswick Lodge, No 824, B. P. O. Elks, in New Brunswick, the following officers were elected: Exalted ruler, William E. Everard; esteemed leading knight, William Schlessinger; esteemed lecturing knight, William F. Harkins; secretary, Joseph H. Ridgeway; treasurer, Theo. Kohn; trustee, John J. Harkins and tyler, J. Newton Blue, Jr.

The meeting was attended by a large delegation of the Plainfield Elks, as that is the fraternal home of some of the local members.

A handsome oil painting of the late Edward Wells Taylor, who was one of the members of the lodge, was presented to the order by his mother.

Commencement in Borough.

The Borough High School commencement will take place this year on June 19. At the meeting of the Borough Board of Education, last night, a committee was appointed to look after arrangements for the day and it is probable that there will be an interesting programme rendered.

N. H. Heidloff, of West Front street, is confined to the house by illness.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol cures indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach; combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does not only cure indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy cures all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Kodol

DIGESTS WHAT YOU EAT

Gives Health to the Sick and Strength to the Weak.

Bottles only. $1.00 Size holding 2½ times the trial size, which sells for 50c.

Prepared by H. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

L. W. RANDOLPH.

ARBOR DAY EXERCISES HELD

OBSERVED BY PUPILS OF PAROCHIAL SCHOOL FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

Consisting of Vocal and Instrumental Selections and Awarding of Honor Medals.

Exercises in anticipation of Arbor Day were held Friday afternoon in the assembly hall of St. Mary's School, when many of the pupils took part in song, reading, recitations and instrumental music. A feature of the programme was the awarding of honor medals to the pupils having the highest averages for the month.

The exercises opened with the entire school singing "The Palms," followed by Arbor Day selections by the pupils of Sister Mary Esther's class. The following members of the fifth grammar grade took part in the programme: Miss Loretta Welsh, solo; Joseph A. Tobin, reading; Miss Margaret Fitzgerald, recitation; Miss Adele VonOhl, recitation; Henry Hillman, solo; Miss Helen Harrihan, recitation.

One of the interesting events of the afternoon was a grammar contest between the boys and the girls, in which the girls won. Several of the older pupils favored with mandolin selections and their renditions were very well received. Those who took part were: Miss Katherine Harding, Miss Marion Smith, Miss Helen Callahan, accompanied by Miss Helen Harrihan on the piano. The exercises came to a close with a few remarks by Rev. Father Egan.

During the exercises medals were awarded to those pupils having the highest records for the month. They were conferred upon the following scholars: First grade, Miss Margaret Lutz; second grade, Martin Flatley; third grade, Miss Margaret Flatley; fifth grade, James M. Cullen and Miss Katherine McAuley; first grade primary, Miss Josephine Bock; second grade primary, Albert Kyle; third grade primary, Miss Anna Johnson; sewing class, Miss Nellie Callahan; Sunday-school medal, Cornelius McCarthy.

PHYSICIANS AT BANQUET

YEARLY GATHERING OF PLAINFIELD MEDICAL SOCIETY AT HOTEL ROSELL.

Dr. C. B. Lufburrow Was Chosen President—Paper Read by Dr. N. H. Probasco.

The yearly meeting and banquet of the Plainfield Medical Society was held at the Hotel Rosell, April 1, when officers were chosen for the coming year. Those chosen were: President, Dr. Charles B. Lufburrow; vice president, Dr. F. B. Oregar; secretary, Dr. Norman H. Probasco.

After partaking of the excellent menu prepared by Proprietor Rosell, Dr. Norman H. Probasco read a paper on "The different conditions in which white blood cells are increased or diminished." In connection with this the doctor used a microscope illustrating his subject. The paper was well prepared and the reading of it was listened to with considerable interest.

Those present at the meeting were Drs. O. L. Jenkins, W. H. Murray, B. VanD. Hedges, J. B. Probasco, Norman H. Probasco, J. Hervey Buchanan, Marcus L. Clawson, J. H. Carman, F. B. Oregar, Arthur H. Dundon, Frederick J. Hughes, Charles B. Lufburrow, A. H. VanHorn, W. Kempton Browning, J. T. Fritts, F. C. Ard and Albert Pittis.

Shows Signals.

A large diagram showing the various signals employed on the New Jersey Central has been placed in the telegraph office at the North Avenue station for the enlightenment of those concerned.

Opened Store Here.

Leo Sionia, formerly connected with the Boston store in New Brunswick, has opened a branch store on Park avenue, near Front street.

Miss Cosyne, of Green Knoll, N. J., has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Tillaspaugh, of this city.

Walter Sherwin, of the "Saved From the Sea" company, is home for two weeks, his troupe resting for that time at Boston.

THE NEXT MORNING I FEEL BRIGHT AND NEW AND MY COMPLEXION IS BETTER.

My doctor says it acts gently on the liver, kidneys and bowels, carries off all impurities in the blood, is made from herbs, and is prepared for use as easily as tea. It is called LANE'S FAMILY MEDICINE.

LANE'S FAMILY MEDICINE

All druggists or by mail 25 cts. and $1.00. Buy it today. Sample free. Prepared only by Lane Medicine Co., Rochester, N. Y. Sold in Plainfield by L. W. Randolph.

YEAR'S WORK SUMMED UP AT HOPE CHAPEL

The Annual Meeting Was Held at Hope Chapel Last Thursday.

IS GROWING STEADILY

REPORTS FROM THE VARIOUS CHAPEL ORGANIZATIONS WERE RECEIVED.

Chapel Membership Has Grown Twenty-Four During Last Year —Similar Increase Reported in the Various Organizations.

Reports of a most encouraging nature from all of its numerous departments showed that Hope chapel completed another successful year, when the annual meeting was held Thursday night. The onward march in the cause of good work has continued unabated and more has been accomplished than by institutions twice the size. The session was very well attended.

Rev. I. R. Howard presided over the business and Edward Young acted as secretary. The reports proved to be the most interesting feature and were listened to with great interest. Pastor Howard spoke for the church and declared the membership at present to be 575, a gain of twenty-four for the year. In the same twelve months three members were lost by death and six were dismissed by request. During that period, money was collected to the amount of $583.64, of which $180 had been expended by the relief committee for its work. These facts were furnished by the treasurer, Frederick Pearce.

Secretary George E. Firstbrook, of the Sunday-school, reported the total membership to be 604 with an average attendance of 340. This is a considerable gain and is considered excellent by the workers in this department. The pupils raised $583.09, which was expended with the exception of $4.37. Another important branch of the chapel is the Young Men's Association, a report of which was rendered by President William N. Runyon. It has an active membership of eighty-five and a clear balance of $800, secured within the past four years. Through its influence many young men are brought into the chapel and interested in its spiritual side as well as the social.

For the Ladies' Aid Society, Secretary Mrs. William Gray reported forty-two members, with an average attendance at meetings of twenty-three. The society has been unusually active during the past twelve months and raised a total of $416.44. Three hundred dollars of this amount were set aside for the new kitchen fund and the remainder was expended in various ways to the chapel's interest. It has at present a balance in the treasury of $17.17.

Other reports were presented as follows: Ladies' Missionary Society, Mrs. George Radford, secretary, membership, thirty-two, receipts and expenditures, $95.89. Young People's Society Christian Endeavor, Edward Young, president, membership, thirty-five, amount raised $35. Junior Endeavor Society, Hattie Walls, secretary, Rixie Rimmer, treasurer, amount raised $16 43. Wednesday Afternoon Girls' Club, Friday Afternoon and Wednesday Evening Men's Club, Young Woman's Sewing Society and the Penny Missionary Society, similar reports.

In conclusion, addresses touching on Sunday-school work were made by Superintendent H. C. Squires and Assistant Superintendent I. W. Travell. They outlined the work for the coming year and spoke words of encouragement to the officers of the societies which contribute so much to the welfare of the chapel.

OUTING FOR BANKERS.

New Jersey Bankers' Association is Planning for One in June.

The New Jersey Bankers' Association, organized two months ago, is in a fair way to accomplish its object of bringing together the banks and banking institutions of the State for the purpose of promoting closer personal acquaintance among the officials and to afford them an opportunity to discuss the questions of the day affecting their interests. The association now has a membership of ninety, or about thirty-eight per cent. of the total banking interests in the State. At present W. F. Arnold, cashier of the City National Bank, is the only local representative.

The members are planning for a big outing at Atlantic City in June, when it is expected that Congressman Fowler and Former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Banderip, as well as Secretary of the Treasury Shaw, will be present, also other prominent bankers men from this State and New York.

Miss Mabelle Symons, of East Third street, has gone to Belleville for a stay with friends.

INDOOR RECORDS AT Y. M. C. A.

HOLDERS' NAMES WILL BE INSCRIBED ON SHIELDS IN GYM.

Any New Ones Broken This Year Will be Added to the List—The Record Breakers.

When the novice contest, which has been one of the main Saturday night attractions at the Y. M. C. A. during the past month, comes to a close on the evening of April 18, each of those who has made a new record will be declared the champion of the association in that event and will have his name engraved upon a shield in the gymnasium. The list of record holders will be enlarged each year as the close of the contests.

The records made by the men who have taken part in contests in the past five years are as follows:

Putting the shot, G. P. Smith, '97, 38 feet 11½ inches.

Standing broad jump, F. O. Bristol, '98, 9 feet inch.

Three standing broad jumps, F. O. Bristol, '98, 29 feet 6 inches.

Standing hop, step and jump, R. Carroll, '98, 25 feet 9¼ inches.

Running high kick, R. Carroll, '98, 8 feet 5 inches.

Fence vault, F. N. Marcley, '98, 6 feet 5¼ inches.

Quarter mile run, G. P. Smith, '98, 1 minute 23 seconds.

Potato race, F. O. Bristol, '98, 1 minute 46 seconds.

Standing high jump, R. Carroll, '99, 5 feet 3 inches.

Running high jump, R. Carroll, '99, 5 feet 3 inches.

Running high dive, W. McNaughton, '03, 5 feet 3 inches.

Quarter mile walk, C. B. Koons, '03, 2 minutes 16 2-5 seconds.

The last two named are the record breakers of the present contest.

COAL PRICE TAKES A DROP

THE LOCAL RETAIL DEALERS AGREE TO $6 A TON.

It Will Continue Until June 15, When It Will Advance to $6.25.

The coal miners have issued a circular fixing price for coal at fifty cents reduction from former price for the month of April and an additional advance of ten cents per month for the succeeding five months.

Accordingly the retail coal dealers of this city at a meeting held last evening lowered the price of coal to $6 per ton, a reduction of fifty cents to continue until June 15, when the price will be raised to $6 25 per ton, corresponding with the advance of the wholesale dealers. The action of the meeting was that all orders given on this basis should be filled by the dealers at their convenience as early as practicable.

MISSIONARY TEA.

Mrs. J. W. Conkling Told of India Mission Field As She Had Seen It.

A missionary tea was held Thursday afternoon by the Missionary League Ladies' Christian Work Society, of the Trinity Reformed church, when a good sized representation of the members was present. The League held a meeting during the first part of the afternoon when Mrs. Theodore Mants rendered several very pleasing selections, accompanied by Miss Nettie Kreitling on the piano. Mrs. J. W. Conkling, of India, who has been in the field for some time, addressed the meeting and showed in a most interesting manner the great need of cooperation in this work going on there among the heathen people.

The committee which had the meeting in charge and served the tea comprised Mrs. H. B. Paul, chairman; Mrs. S. C. Baker, Mrs. Henry Van Name and Mrs. Edward J. Cooley. Light refreshments were served and a silver offering was taken.

Shuffle Board at Y. M. C. A.

The shuffle board, which has been expected so long as the Y. M. C. A., has arrived and has been set up ready for use. The members will shortly arrange for shuffle board tournaments. The new board is a fine one, regulation size and strictly up-to date.

To Act as Instructor.

Robert G. Brown, son of Yardley Brown, of Summit avenue, who graduates this year from Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., has been engaged by the faculty to return next year as an instructor.

Throat Sore?

There's no telling what a sore throat will do if you give it "right of way." U. certain remedies often cause dangerous delay. Make a cure sure with Painkiller, known for half a century as a specific for sore throat, croup, coughs, and all kindred troubles. Keep it by you for an emergency. It never fails. Avoid sub-titutes, there is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis', 25c. and 50c.

Miss Flora Roseberry, of West Front street, is seriously ill with a complication of diseases.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 13—Comment by Rev. S. R. Doyle.

Topic—Christ's teaching about the resurrection—John xi. 2-27, 45-54. (An Easter meeting.)

Easter is one of the most joyous of the Christian festivals. It speaks of those who have in sadness been taken from loved ones on earth, but it speaks also of hope—yes, even of assurance of resurrection from the dead and reunion with loved ones. Blessed hope of Easterside, first heard when the angels announced the fact that Christ was risen from the dead and never to cease to be heard till earth and sea shall give up their dead and those who died in Christ, having risen, shall reign with him forever and forever!

In consideration of the fact that Christ was divine as well as human and could see and understand life beyond the grave, what He had to say about the resurrection becomes of infinite importance. The Old Testament Scriptures, while giving us some information upon the subject of the future, is not as definite and comprehensive upon the subject as we might wish, and yet even here we are not without some support to our faith. This is shown in Martha's reply to Christ's statement concerning the resurrection. "I know," she says, "that He will rise again at the resurrection in the last day." Evidently therefore Martha had faith in a resurrection at the last day, and this was true of most of the Jews. The Pharisees at least had derived from the Old Testament—Genesis, Job, the Psalms, Daniel and Ezekiel—a belief in both the immortality of the soul and the resurrection of the body. And it is with joy that we hail the fact that Christ abundantly corroborated their faith upon these subjects.

It is one of the crowning glories of the New Testament that here Christ brings "life and immortality to life through the gospel."

1. Christ taught that Lazarus should rise again. To Martha in her sorrow Jesus said, "Thy brother shall rise again." Nor did He refer to a future but a present resurrection, and that His prophecy was true was soon afterward demonstrated by His miracle of raising Lazarus from the dead. This fact convinces us of the truthfulness of Christ's words concerning the general resurrection of the dead.

2. Christ taught the doctrine of a general resurrection of the dead. "I am the resurrection and the life. He that believeth on Me, though he die, yet shall he live." He came as man's life to make it possible for man to be raised again and to spend eternity in fellowship with him and the Father and all the redeemed. Christ's doctrine of the resurrection has been accepted and taught in all the Christian centuries. Paul developed it in all its phases, and little has been or can be added to what they have taught upon the subject. The fact is glorious, and it is true, and, accepting it as such, we can leave the mysteries and perplexities surrounding it until revealed in God's own time and way.

BIBLE READINGS.

Job xix. 26, 27; Ps. xvii, 15; Isa. xxvi, 19; Dan. xii; 1-3; Matt. xxii, 31, 32; Luke xiv, 1-14. John v, 28, 29; Rom. vi. 1-11; I Cor. xv, 12-58; I John iii, 1, 2.

A Stalwart Endeavorer.

Rev. Edwin Forrest Hallenbeck, D. D., of Binghamton is making an exceptional record as president of the New York State Christian Endeavor union, and in this connection his name is being prominently brought before the Endeavor world at large. Dr. Hallenbeck was born in Alexandria, N. Y., in 1864. He first came into marked prominence in state Christian Endeavor work in 1894, when he was elected vice president of the New York State union. The next year he was chosen president and is now serving his second term in that office as a recognition of his devotion to the work. He made an exceptional record as a convention speaker in connection with the "tour of the state plan," giving nearly three weeks of undivided attention to meetings "from Erie to the sea."

REV. E. F. HALLENBECK, D. D.

New York State's Keynote.

The New York state executive committee has selected "Soul Winning" as the keynote for the next year. An evangelistic committee has been added to the working force of the union, with P. H. Jacobs as chairman. Mr. Jacobs is secretary to William Phillips Hall, the noted evangelist.

Our Clearing House.

The prayer meeting is the clearing house, the stock exchange of the Christian business. I have a helpful thought, and I give it to you; you have one, and you give it to me, and God's business is doubly profited by the transfer.—"Business," by Amos R. Wells.

Quiz Box.

(Any question may be asked that pertains to any phase of Christian Endeavor work. Address Lock Box 614, Binghamton, N. Y.)

51. P. —Nineveh, N. Y.—Cultivate the spirit of interdenominational fellowship by arranging a social evening and inviting your sister society to enjoy its pleasures.

52. M. M., Liberty, N. Y.—If you will get a little leaflet on "The Corresponding Secretary," published by the United Society, it will give you just the information you seek.

LITERARY.

G. W. Orton, who won the American cross-country championship in 1897, and who is the two-mile world's steeplechase champion, in the April St. Nicholas tells his young readers about "Training for Intercollegiate Athletics," with some helpful points for inexperienced parents as well. Howard Pyle's April installment of "The Story of King Arthur and His Knights" gives the famous adventures a humorous turn, telling quaintly how King Arthur's knights served him under protest, believing him to be a kitchen drudge. "The Little Brown Pitcher" is the story of a true and charming incident of the Austro-Prussian War. Kate Dickinson Sweetser's "Marooned," Temple Bailey's "The Good Fortune of Molly Yea," and Eleanor Gate's "A Rose and a Rescue" round out the stories of the issue. "Straight Lines and Circles" show by description and dozens of drawings how snakelike fingers can get astonishing results very simple and easily. Ernest Harold Baynes describes "My First Hawk's Nest," with photographs made at some risk under trying conditions.

Of high importance among the magazine articles of the month is "The Restoration of the White House," written for the April Century by Charles Moore, clerk of the Senate Committee on the District of Columbia, whose account of "The Improvement of Washington City" appeared in The Century for February and March last year. Mr. Moore tells in detail the story of the president's house, its first plans, its occasional remodeling, and all the design and accomplishment of the present restoration, an event full of interest to every American. In illustrating the article The Century has employed its best illustrative resources. The exterior drawings by Jules Guerin and the interior by Alfred Brennan, bring out the intention of the architects to a remarkable degree. The frontispiece of the number is a picture by Jules Guerin of the new East Entrance on the occasion of an evening reception. Mr. Brennan has made, among other pictures, double drawings of the State dining room and of the new blue room. Miss Cecilia Beaux's portrait of Mrs. Roosevelt (with her daughter Ethel) is published for the first time.

In the April number of Scribner's Magazine a writer has revealed himself who can interpret the region of a great steamer "Below the Water-Line" with the force and insight and picturesque detail for which McAndrew longed in Kipling's famous poem. Benjamin Brooks, who writes "The Log of a Practical Machinist and Draughtsman, who has served on an ocean steamer as assistant to the engineer.

In a far different way the romance of what seems to many a dry subject is portrayed by Frank A. Vanderlip in his article on "The Treasury"—one of the very notable series on Government.

Mrs. Wharton contributes "A Torch-bearer," a beautiful and impressive poem on the moral quality of heroism, suggested by the heroic death of young Mr. Markoe in Philadelphia last November.

E. H. Sothern, the well-known actor, makes his appearance as a poet with a serious and very melodious piece entitled "Life the Lover."

There is a charming essay, "Books About Nature," in which Henry Childs Merwin discourses of the lovers of nature who have written books of literature.

There are four short stories, all of them illustrated:

An amusing tale, "A Procession of Umbrellas," by F. Hopkinson Smith, illustrated by E. M. Ashe.

The story of a Mennonite preacher, by Nelson Lloyd, full of humor, with an illustration by Howard Pyle.

"The Blue Dress," a story told by Josephine Dasham, with pictures by Jessie Willcox Smith.

The romance of a young Irish girl, told by Sydney Preston, with pictures by Shipley.

John Fox's serial, "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," gives in this instalment an amusing glimpse of the little girl who is to be the heroine of the story.

Funeral of Mrs. Galbraith.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Galbraith took place from St. Mary's church, Saturday. It was largely attended and was conducted by Rev. Father Egan. Interment was afterward made in St. Mary's cemetery. The pall bearers were Michael Nugent, Patrick Mack, Edward Cannon, Patrick Muldoon, John O'Keefe and Maurice Shannon.

New Soda Fountain.

The handsome soda water fountain recently purchased by Dudley S. Miller, the Park avenue druggist, has arrived and is now in position.

You Cannot Change

the course of a storm by tearing down the signals that give warning of its approach. Neither can you cure a cold by temporarily stopping a cough with opium-laden "medicines." Allen's Lung Balsam, in which there is no opium, cures throats and sore lungs because it allays the inflammation and rids you of the mucus that stops up the air passages.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 13, "The Danger of Idleness." Text, Prov. xxiv, 30, 31. Rom. xii, 11.

"Why stand ye here all the day idle?" The first thought would be that we of this age and nation are not open to the charge of idleness. We are usually represented as intensely active. We believe ourselves to be busy and fully occupied. We seem to be ever on the rush. How, then, can there be any danger to us from idleness? Ought we not rather to be exhorted to slow down and take matters more quietly and cultivate a little more the habit of leisure, if not of idleness?

Closer attention may show us that while we are unduly active in some things we may be entirely idle and negligent in others. While cultivating one field others have been neglected.

There is the matter of church attendance. A person may work so hard all the week that when Sunday comes it seems almost a physical necessity for him to get ready for another week of labor. It is such hard work to get up in time for morning service. Then if one does go all tired out the service does not seem to do much good. The sermon is dull, the singing does not interest, the mind is on business, and perhaps it is better to stay at home and rest. That is the excuse made by many. Whatever the cause, the fact remains that there is idleness in the place that should not be. However pressing the daily work may be, the soul cultivation is far more needful, and the public worship ought not to be unused.

The same is true in regard to the steady study of the Bible. Comparatively few of our young people have acquired the habit of regular Bible reading for devotional purposes. If they are in the Sunday school they may find give some attention to the study of the lesson. Outside of this the Bible is not consulted from one week's beginning to another by very many who are Christians and members of the Epworth League. Such idleness bears fruit in ignorance. If there is lack of study, there must be lack of knowledge of God's mind and will and all that belongs to Christian living. This in turn affects the whole life and it is hard and difficult to see how such Christians differ from the people of the world.

Diligence is the opposite of idleness. It is essential for success in every line of human effort. No one can grow in the graces and gifts of the Christian life without constant communion with God. The prayerful spirit must be cultivated. The habit of prayer in secret must be acquired. This never can be done by idleness and neglect.

Christian testimony is born from experience. However diffident one may be by nature, persistent effort will give some facility in the expression of one's views. Constant and regular practice in speaking, as there is opportunity in private and in meetings, will give any one some proficiency in Christian testimony and exhortation.

It is quite possible that a person may be a consistent Christian life and finally be saved who has never spoken in meeting and has done some things which the Methodist church discountenances. But beyond all question the best course for all young Christians who wish to "grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ" is to "give all diligence to make their calling and election sure."

Read the things which aid to the knowledge and love of God more than any other literature.

Attend the services of the church and allow no other thing to interfere with this.

Persistently practice the expression of Christian experience and hope in the meetings for that purpose.

Be not idle, but watchful for openings to help some one in whatever way is possible.

Cultivate habits of regular and systematic and proportionate giving of your income.

Be not idle, but diligent in all goodness.

When Pride Is Sinful.

When is pride sinful? When it becomes the excuse of the underlying motive. Wrongful pride is the undue exaltation of self. It is regarding oneself from a mistaken point of view in reference to one's abilities, characteristics or disposition. It is centering thought upon self to the exclusion of others, their interests and the obligation which one sustains to them more than is consistent with duty to them. In other words, it is selfish, and whatever is selfish is so far sinful. The false notions which thus are begotten about ourselves lead to false adjustments of our lives to the lives of others.—Congregationalist.

Always the Same.

From generation to generation the creeds of men change, but Jesus Christ is unchangeable. He is "the same yesterday and today and forever." Faith that is centered in Him hath foundations that are immovable and eternal joys therefore are sure, and ever yield its rich blessings to its possessor.—Christian Advocate.

Prayer.

Only a word for the Master,
Lovingly, quietly said;
Only a word, yet the Master heard,
And some fainting hearts were fed.

Only some act of devotion,
Willingly, joyfully done;
"Surely 'twas naught," so the proud world thought,
But yet souls for Christ were won.

"Only"—but Jesus is looking Constantly, tenderly down
To earth and sees those who strive to please
And their love He loves to crown.
—Endeavor Hymnal.

APRIL FOOL'S DAY IS NOT FORGOTTEN

Plainfielders See the Usual Amount of April Fool Jokes Played on Unsuspecting.

ALL SORTS OF TRICKS

HISTORY OF HOW THE DAY CAME TO BE OBSERVED.

The Ingenious Ones Found Much to Amuse Them, But It Was Quite Different With the Ones on Whom Jokes Were Played.

With delightful spring weather was April Fool's Day received. It offered unusual opportunities and the small boy of city and borough was not slow to grasp them. So Wednesday proved somewhat more entertaining than usual to a select few while the victims of the countless practical jokes bore the brunt of it with either resignation or denunciation.

There were pocket books, strange and tempting packages and all other form of delusions known to the mind of the small boy. Those who forgot what day it was ate candy which proved to be full of red pepper or else smoked cigars which suddenly developed pyrotechnic qualities. Then the mild weather of the evening offered further chances for fun and all sorts of unusual things happened. The day managed to pass off without any very serious results from the varied styles of fun which marked the operations of the jokers.

April Fool Day, or All Fools' Day, is observed almost universally throughout Christendom in the playing of more or less asinine tricks upon one's neighbors.

Of the origin of this custom nothing positive is known. It probably had its origin with the French. This nation took the lead over all Christendom in commencing the new year, January 1, instead of March 25. Before the change the new year merry-making culminated on the octave of the feast, April 1, when visits were paid and gifts bestowed. With the adoption of the reformed calendar in 1564, new year's day was carried back to January 1 and only pretended gifts and mock ceremonial visits were made April 1, with the view of making fools of those who had forgotten the change of date. The custom once started was kept up after its origin had been forgotten. Its continuance was helped on by the fact that it appeals to an integral part of human nature which has asserted itself at all times and in all countries.

The English borrowed their April fooling from the French, the custom seeming to have been begun in Great Britain about the beginning of the eighteenth century.

LOTS OF COAL.

Lehigh Valley's Coal Storage Plant at South Plainfield is Crowded With Coal.

It seems like awakening from a terrible dream when one thinks of the great scarcity of coal in this district only a few months ago while today, at South Plainfield, only one mile from the heart of the business district of the city there is more coal stored than has ever been known in that place. This is one of the storage plants of the Lehigh Valley Railroad and while the high black tent—like piles of fuel climb higher, trainload after trainload comes into the place weekly and deposits more, making other piles which soon grow to great proportions.

There are fourteen of the great stacks and each of them is estimated to contain 43,000 tons. This means that there is no less than 598,000 tons of coal in South Plainfield. Heretofore the Lehigh Railroad Company have given the South Plainfield storage plant's capacity 315,000 tons which makes the amount now in storage there 273,000 tons more than has ever before been stored in that place.

G. A. R. Men's Trip.

Lincoln Post, G. A. R., of Newark, has arranged with W. C. Walsh, Jr., district passenger agent of the New Jersey Central, for a four-day excursion from Newark to Atlantic City, June 10 to 13, inclusive. The party will be limited to 300 persons, and while at Atlantic City they will be quartered at Hotel Rudolph.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of steamers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrhal troubles the proprietors prepare Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price, including the spraying tube, is 75 cents. Druggists or by mail. The liquid embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation. Cream Balm is quickly absorbed by the membrane and does not dry up the secretions but changes them to a natural and healthy character. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

PROMINENT CITIZEN DIES AT HILLCREST

Andrew Stuart Patterson, Many Years a Resident Here Passed Away.

WAS PROMINENT EXPERT ACCOUNTANT IN NEW YORK.

Retired From Active Business Four a Year Ago—Member of Many Societies—Rev. Dr. Richards Officiated at the Funeral.

Andrew Stuart Patterson died at his home, Hillcrest, Patterson, Putnam county, New York, Thursday morning. Mr. Patterson had been in failing health for several years but the end came suddenly of Bright's disease. Within half an hour after he was stricken he passed away without having experienced any pain or suffering.

Mr. Patterson was born in Logansport, Indiana, nearly fifty-eight years ago. His parents moved to New York when he was very young and except for three years spent in St. Louis, Missouri, Mr. Patterson has always lived in or near New York, the period from 1885 to 1900 being spent in this city.

Mr. Patterson was formerly business manager of the Christian Intelligencer and for a number of years was in the auditing department of the Standard Oil Company. This he left to establish an accounting business of his own in which he was very successful. For a number of years he supervised the accounts of Tiffany & Company and many other large interests in New York. At the time of his retirement a year ago he was a senior member of the firm of Patterson, Teele & Dennis, accountants at 30 Broad street, New York. He was several times called upon to investigate the accounts of the city of Plainfield and the borough of North Plainfield.

Mr. Patterson was a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church and formerly a teacher in the Sunday-school. At the time of his death he was a member of the Chamber of Commerce, of New York, the Sons of the American Revolution and the Society of the Colonial Wars. He formerly belonged to the Union County Country Club, the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, the Park Golf Club, of this city and the Lawyers' Club, Uptown Association, and Colonial Clubs of New York.

Mr. Patterson was married in 1870 to Mary Hoyt Patterson and has had four children, all of whom with his wife survive him. These children are Stuart H. Patterson, who is a member of the accounting firm of Patterson, Teele & Dennis, and Edward J. Patterson, a lawyer, both of this city, and two daughters, Isabelle and Florence.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Wm. R. Richards at Mr. Patterson's late home at Patterson, N. Y., Saturday morning.

FIGHTING VERDICT.

Trolley Company Opposing Verdict for $600 to Miss Sheehan.

Frank Bergen, counsel for the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Railway Company, has commenced argument in the Union county court to have set aside a verdict for $600 rendered by a jury in February, 1903, against the concern in favor of Miss Elizabeth Sheehan, of Jersey City. The woman was injured by being thrown from an open trolley car at the Watchung avenue terminus in this city. Former Judge Thomas F. Noonan, of Jersey City, opposed the motion and Judge Vail reserved decision.

URGENT APPEAL.

Made by Rector Downey, of the Holy Cross Church, for Repair Fund.

Rev. W. Montgomery Downey, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, has issued a circular letter to the members of the parish asking them for loyal support in the matter of improving the church property. The idea is to redecorate the interior of the edifice, which is a positive necessity. The amount required to meet the proposed expenditure and to make the needed improvements is $600. There is already in hand a fund of $430, which has materialized through the efforts of the Woman's Guild. The rector makes a strong and urgent appeal for a large Easter offering.

Miss Grace Geddis, of Regent street, is detained at home by illness.

Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for children. Mother Gray, for years a nurse in the children's Home in New York, tested and proved successful in her Home for Children, the Powders which are now sold by druggists under the name of Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for Children. They are harmless as milk, guaranteed to contain never fail. A positive cure for feverishness, constipation, headache, teething and stomach disorders and remove worms. At all druggists, 25c. Don't accept any substitute. Sample sent FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS REVIEW YEAR'S WORK

The Annual Meeting of That Church Held Sunday Afternoon and Evening.

THE OFFICERS ELECTED

SUPPER AND SOCIAL HOUR BETWEEN THE SESSIONS.

Reports From the Church and Its Societies Received at the Evening Session—Results of Business Meeting in Afternoon.

The congregation of the Seventh-Day Baptist church met Sunday for the annual meeting to close up the year's work and prepare plans for the coming twelve months. The session began at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and with an intermission for supper, lasted until 9 o'clock last night.

Following a social greeting and devotional exercises, the afternoon session began with a business meeting, during which the usual elections were made as follows: Trustees, for five years, William M. Stillman; church clerk, Asa F. Randolph; assistant treasurer, George E. Stillman; auditors, Charles H. Dunham and A. L. Titsworth; subscription committee, Frank L. Clawson and Fred F. Stillman; chorister, David E. Titsworth; organist, Miss Jessie M. Utter; ushers, Orra S. Rogers, George L. Babcock, Arthur J. Spicer, Irving F. Niles, George Clarke and Paul Whitford.

Church matters were discussed informally until 5 o'clock when a social and fellowship hour was held. During this time, as is the annual custom, letters were read from members of the church who were unable to attend the meeting but wished to be remembered to the congregation. Supper was served at 6 o'clock by the members of the Women's Society for Christian Work and the Christian Endeavor Society. The meal was prepared under the supervision of Miss Ernestine Smith and Dr. Martha Stillman.

The evening session was devoted to the rendering of reports by Pastor George B. Shaw, Clark Asa F. Randolph, the Sunday-school committee, the Woman's Society for Christian Work and the Christian Endeavor Society. Verbal communications were also made by members of the church connected with charitable, philanthropic and other Christian work in the city and elsewhere.

In all the reports evidence of a successful year were apparent, especially in that of the pastor, which showed an encouraging gain in membership. The finances of the institution are excellent and in the various societies much good work is being accomplished.

The committee which arranged and had charge of the meeting consisted of Orra S. Rogers, Rev. G. B. Shaw, David E. Titsworth, Mrs. Amanda T. Maxson and Miss Ida L. Spicer.

EXEMPTS ELECT.

Officers of the Exempt Firemen's Association for the Ensuing Year.

The Exempt Firemen's Association met last Monday and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, B. A. Mumford; vice president, J. E. Flannery; secretary, Guillermo Thorn; financial secretary, George W. Clark; treasurer, E. M. Laing; trustees, D. W. Littell, W. A. Woodruff, E. M. Laing, V. W. Nash and J. H. Hubbard; representatives to State Exempt Firemen's Association, D. W. Littell, W. A. Woodruff, J. E. Flannery, E. M. Laing, V. W. Nash; representatives to the Plainfield Relief Association, Guillermo Thorn and Charles Conover.

The incoming officers made brief addresses and the remainder of the meeting was passed with a smoker.

MRS. MAIR'S FUNERAL.

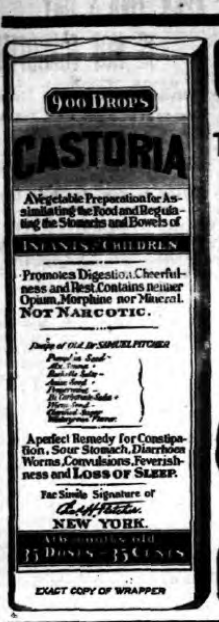
Four Sons Bore Casket to Its Final Resting Place.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. John Mair, who passed away in her eighty-third year, Thursday, was held Monday from her late residence on Leland avenue. The services were held at 2:30 and Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, officiated. During the services several selections were rendered by Mrs. Newton Honeyman. The interment was at Hillside cemetery. The pall bearers were the *four sons of the de*parted: James, John, Thomas and Alexander Mair.

Invitations to Marriage.

Invitations have been issued to the marriage of Miss Mary E. MacMurray, of Mountainside, Westfield, and Louis J. Geary, of New York, which will be celebrated Saturday afternoon, April 25, at the home of the bride's mother.

G. E. Crandall moved to Dunellen, Wednesday.



CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

RAGING TENNESSEE NEGROES

MISS RACHEL JEFFERSON TELLS OF THE WORK AT INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

Address at Vincent Chapel Under Auspices of Women's Home Missionary Society.

Under the auspices of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, of the First M. E. church, a meeting of exceptional interest was held April 1, in Vincent chapel, when Miss Rachel Jefferson, of the Morristown, Tenn., Industrial School for Negroes, was present and gave a talk. She told in a very entertaining way the work being done by this school and of the progress of education.

There are between three and four hundred boys and girls at the school and the girls are taught housekeeping, sewing, etoc., in addition to the English branches. It is hoped to teach the boys the various trades as soon as the income will permit. Miss Jefferson says that in her section of the south the negro is not nearly as dependent and slothful as in other parts of the country, especially the Yankees. They are beginning to realize the importance of doing for themselves and making their own living and she said that with the passing of the old negro a more ambitious and intelligent type is coming on.

She spoke words of praise for the religious training of the negroes, saying that it is only when they are truly converted that they come into a full realization of their duties. She thanked the Board of Home Missions for its constant and earnest support of this work and hoped that the work would go forward with even greater success.

Miss Jefferson is a descendant of President Jefferson and is a bright, intelligent and ready speaker.

Commissioners of Deeds.

The following persons from North Plainfield borough and township have been appointed commissioners of deeds for Somerset county: Augustus Mobus, Charles P. Sebring, William Demler, David D. Smalley, Andrew Lutkins, David J. Carney, Elston M. French, *Richard H. McCullough, Phillip Cur*rin and Dr. D. C. Adams.

For Her Guest.

A social gathering was held Thursday evening at the home of Miss Ada VanHorne, of Grove street, in honor of her guest, Miss Schooley, of Elizabeth. Dancing, games and music were the features of an enjoyable evening. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

Due Notice is Served.

Due notice is hereby served on the public generally that DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is the only salve on the market that is made from the pure, unadulterated witch hazel. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve has cured thousands of cases of piles that would not yield to any other treatment, and this fact has brought out many worthless counterfeits. Those persons who get the genuine DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve are never disappointed, because it cures. L. W. Randolph.

Criterion Dance.

The dance of the Criterion Club, which is to take place in the Casino, has been fixed for May 7.

WAS ONCE A PLAINFIELDER

JOHN H. CUTHBERT PASSED AWAY AT NEW YORK HOME THURSDAY.

Was Connected With Tide Water Oil Company at Time of Death—Thirty-Second Degree Mason.

John H. Cuthbert, for many years a resident of Plainfield, died Thursday afternoon at his home in the Melrose, 108th street and Central Park West, New York, of cancer of the stomach. He was well-known in this city.

Mr. Cuthbert was born in New York April 14, 1836, and received his education at Columbia Grammar School. He entered oil business and in the early '60s was one of the few independent refiners in New York. He finally sold out to the Standard Oil Company and moved to Plainfield and later to Titusville, Pa. In 1883, he accepted the place of auditor of all the companies embraced in the Standard Oil Company and originated the system of accounting which that company still uses. In 1893, he gave up this position to become a director and treasurer of the Tidewater Oil Company, both of which places he held at the time of his death. He was also a director of the Associated Producers Company and of the Townsend & Downey Shipbuilding Company. Of late years Mr. Cuthbert lived at Cranford.

He was a member of the Pennsylvania Society, a thirty-second degree Mason and a veteran of the Seventh Regiment, having been a member of Company D, with which he served in the Astor place riots. He was a member of Anchor Lodge, No. 140, F. & A. M., and Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum.

He was married twice. His first wife, who was Miss Maggie Dunn, died in 1886. He married Miss Rose Bass, of this city, in 1891. She and one son, Frederick T. Cuthbert, survive him.

PERSONAL.

Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk is detained at his New York home by illness.

Charles Keller, formerly of Rose street, is now residing on East Fifth street.

Miss Mabelle Symons, of East Third street, has returned from a visit with relatives in Belleville.

Dr. T. H. Tomlinson, of East Seventh street, has recovered from a long and tedious attack of the grip.

T. B. Cardner, of Orange place, has been confined to his home for the past two weeks by grip and pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Johnston, of Summit avenue, have returned from a visit with relatives at Hackettstown.

Mrs. Cornelius vanHarwerden, of South avenue, has returned from a visit with her daughter in Philadelphia.

A. R. Fisk, of New York, has been spending several days in Plainfield with his friend, R. D. Waring, of Park avenue.

John, the son of John H. Carney, of Lincoln place, who has been seriously ill at Bayonne, is now well on the road to recovery.

OLD HOME REVISITED

President Greets His Former Neighbors and Friends.

SIOUX CHIEFS PROMISE FRIENDSHIP

Pleased With Treatment of "Great Father." They Hope He May Be Chosen Again to Rule—A Barbecue at Bismarck.

LIVINGSTON, Mont., April 8.—The presidential train arrived here at 1 o'clock this morning and a few minutes later left for the Yellowstone over the National Park branch road. Telegraph wires have been strung from Clanabar to the park, and over these wires all executive business will be handled.

Major Pitcher and an escort of Troop C will be with the president constantly in order to keep him in communication with the outside world. Newspaper correspondents will be accorded every courtesy as long as they obey regulations that have been imposed. In case any of them shall attempt to enter the park or follow the president he will be arrested and placed in the guardhouse, there to remain until after the president shall have finished his visit and departed.

The president yesterday traveled through familiar country and received hearty greetings wherever his train stopped. At many places he recognized old friends, and from his conversation it was evident that he had been one of the most enjoyable days of his trip. At Fargo, Jamestown and Bismarck he made stops of more than half an hour to an hour and discussed the conditions in the Philippines, the tariff and the general prosperity of the country. Stops also were made at Casselton, Tower, Valley City, the home of Governor White; Dawson, Dickinson and Nedora.

At Bismarck a number of Indian chiefs were introduced to the president. Some of them had fought against Custer. The president had traded with two of these Indians eighteen or twenty years ago, and he instantly recognized them. The chiefs presented an address and a pipe of peace to the president, who had a few words of greeting and thanks for each man.

The most interesting ceremony of the day occurred at Nedora, where the president at one time owned a ranch and which was his postoffice address sixteen years ago, when he was sheriff of Billings county. Nedora is a small place, but the residents from the surrounding country had come into town, and they gave the president a truly western reception. Joe Ferris, the president's old foreman, and his brother, S. N. Ferris, met the president at Bismarck and rode with him to Nedora.

Standing in the private office of Governor White at the state capitol at Bismarck, President Roosevelt received the assurance of the friendship and support of the great Sioux Indian tribe and similar assurances from the chiefs of the Mandans and Grosventres. Twenty of the most distinguished chieftains of the tribes had come from their agencies to see the "great father" and to assure him of their support and good will. There were many famous Indians in the assemblage. John Grass, the orator and chief justice of the Sioux, made the presentation of the tribe's good will in a translation of the address which had been agreed upon in council of the chiefs. At the same time Grass presented the president a peace pipe of beautifully carved pipe stone in token of the good will and friendship of the Indians.

"We have been treated well by the good 'great father,' " said Grass, "and we hope he will again be the 'great father' when his time is over." Water, chief of the Mandan Indians, also presented written assurances of the good will of his people. "Tell him," the Mandan Indians have always done well." Then the wrinkled old chieftains grasped the president's hand and solemnly granted their approval.

The president's train reached the capital city of the state on schedule time, and the president and party immediately were taken through lavishly decorated streets to the state capitol. Three immense portraits of the president were ranged on three sides of the depot, representing the president at the ranch, at San Juan and at the White House. At the capitol a brief reception was held in the private office of Governor White, where the president met and shook hands with many of the friends of his western days. Following the reception he delivered a brief address from the balcony of the capitol building to a crowd of several thousand people assembled from all parts of the Missouri slope. "I am an old settler of this state," said the president. "I lived here twenty years ago and feel that I am an old timer."

"I knew the people of the west," he said. "There are two ways to know a man—by working with him or by fighting by him, and on the ranges there are men with whom I have worked and with whom I have fought."

Concluding the president laid stress upon personal responsibility and personal effort as the essentials in all well doing and public life. At the conclusion of his address the president was called upon again to meet a number of old friends and after a five minute interview the members of the party reentered their carriages and were driven back to the depot.

President Roosevelt stopped long enough at the barbecue to receive a huge sandwich of roast beef and rye bread, which he ate with genuine relish.

HILL HITS PRESIDENT

Sensational Speech Before the Court of Appeals.

FRANCHISE TAX CASE ARGUMENT.

The Former Senator Declares That Roosevelt When Governor Acted With "Haste, Fickleness and Inexperience."

ALBANY, N. Y., April 8.—Seldom, if ever, in recent years has a more sensational speech been made before the court of appeals than that of former United States Senator David B. Hill, who concluded the argument of counsel for the corporations in the special franchise tax case.

In extended prefatory remarks Senator Hill attacked President Roosevelt for his course as governor of this state with reference to the passage of the special franchise tax law. He emphatically denied that the corporations were responsible for the alleged unconstitutional features of the law, declaring that Governor Roosevelt himself recommended them in so many words.

Governor Roosevelt he characterized as a man of very limited experience in the administration of state affairs, and he accused him of forcing the special franchise tax law upon the legislature as "a political expedient" at the behest of "certain minor, semipolitical and largely socialistic organizations—self constituted, irresponsible and noisy associations, mostly of non-taxpayers, assuming a monopoly of the championship of the people's alleged rights." The bill, Senator Hill declared, was rushed through the legislature in three days and signed by Governor Roosevelt without a hearing on the next day thereafter, "the product of haste, fickleness, inexperience and undue clamor."

Mr. Hill remarked that Governor Odell seemed to have given the subject of taxation "more cool and patient consideration than his predecessor."

The court made no comment upon Senator Hill's attacks upon the former governor, who is now president of the United States, and Attorney General Cunneen, who himself was accused by the former senator of citing before the court an alleged history of the statute which was "neither full nor accurate," made only brief reference to it.

"Governor Roosevelt needs no defense at my hands," said the attorney general, "if he did nothing else than take the initiative steps which will place these enormous values in such relation to the tax law that they will bear their share with the owners of cottages, business enterprises and other property now the subject of taxation, he would have deserved the promotion with which he has been rewarded."

Philippine Coinage.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The war department has been in correspondence with Governor Taft by cable with reference to the subsidiary coinage for the Philippine Islands. Secretary Root has requested the treasury department to make arrangements for coining subsidiary coin for the same manner as for coining the pesos. Governor Taft has recommended the coining of 10,000,000 50 centavos, 12,500,000 20 centavos, 15,000,000 10 centavos, 10,000,000 5 centavos, 30,000,000 2 centavos and 20,000,000 half centavos, making a total of 9,950,000 pesos out of a total of 60,000,000 pesos of currency. The treasury department has purchased for Philippine coinage 1,171,300 ounces of silver at a cost of $533,002. This bullion will coin 1,422,436 pesos.

"Jack the Ripper" Hanged.

LONDON, April 8.—Protesting his innocence to the spring of the drop, declaring that he was an American and his real name Thomas, Severin Klosbowski, the Southwark public house keeper, who was more than suspected by the London police of being the long sought and notorious "Jack the Ripper," was hanged yesterday in Wandsworth jail. He was convicted at the Old Bailey on March 19 of the murder of three women who had lived with him as his wives at different times.

Tillman Indicted For Murder.

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 8.—The grand jury has returned a true bill against James H. Tillman, charging him with the murder of N. G. Gonzales, editor of the State, who was killed in this city last January. The indictment also carried with it the charge of carrying concealed weapons. The prisoner will be arraigned today, which will give him four days to prepare for trial, the case having been set for next Monday. Judge Klugh will preside during the trial.

Rear Admiral Belknap Dead.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—A dispatch has been received at the navy department from Key West announcing the death of Rear Admiral George E. Belknap, U. S. N., retired. Death occurred from apoplexy. The deceased was detailed for duty in the execution of certain plans proposed by the general board for establishing a naval base. He will be buried at Brookline, Mass.

Bonilla's Troops Take a Town.

PANAMA, April 8.—Advices from Honduras received by way of San Salvador state that General Davila, one of the generals of Senor Bonilla, president elect of Honduras, in the latter's struggle against the retiring president, Sierra, captured the town of Choluteca, sixty-eight miles south of the capital, Tegucigalpa, after a nine hours' battle and is now besieging Nacaome.

American For Philippine Archbishop

ROME, April 8.—The Right Rev. George Montgomery, coadjuter archbishop of San Francisco, has been appointed archbishop of Manila.

PALM SUNDAY OBSERVED AT LOCAL CHURCHES

Appropriate Services Held Sunday at Catholic and Episcopal Churches.

MUSIC WAS A FEATURE

BLESSING AND DISTRIBUTION OF PALMS AT R. C. CHURCHES.

Details of the Services at the Local Churches — Remarkable Decorations of Palms at Holy Cross, Brought From Florida.

Palm Sunday was celebrated Sunday in both the Roman Catholic and Episcopal churches. The services were very impressive and the music was especially fine. The attendance was large at all the services, particularly at the Catholic churches where the ceremony of the blessing and distribution of the palms was observed.

At St. Mary's R. C. church, Rev. Father Egan conducted the 10:30 mass with Rev. Father Smith as deacon and Rev. Father Leando, of Bloomsbury, as sub-deacon. During the mass the special choir rendered music appropriate to the day. In the evening the sermon was preached by Rev. Father Egan.

The blessing of the palms and the distribution of the same was solemnized at the 10:30 mass Sunday morning at St. Joseph's church. The services were conducted by Rev. Father Joseph Miller who read the "Passion." The music was especially fine and was rendered by the choir composed of children of the Sunday-school. All during the Lenten season the children have been rendering the music at the church without the aid of the organ and yesterday morning they did remarkably well with the special selections. In the evening, Rev. Father Miller continued his course of special lectures to his congregation upon the Sacred Shrines of Europe. He dwelt more particularly on St. Peter's and the Vatican last evening.

At the Episcopal churches services appropriate to the day were read. As most of them decorations of palms were arranged about the pulpits and chancels while special music was rendered by the choirs.

Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson conducted the services at Grace Episcopal church where Communion was held. He was assisted by Rev. E. M. Rodman, rector emeritus, at the morning services. The evening services were held as usual, the sermon being preached by the rector, Mr. Stevenson.

The Church of the Holy Cross was elaborately decorated Sunday with palms in honor of Palm Sunday. The decorations were most complete. The palms were sent up from Jupiter, Florida, the winter home of Edwin S. Hooley. There were two crates of the greens and each pillar of the church was completely covered with the branches giving to the interior of the place the appearance of several avenues of palm trees.

Services were held in the morning at 10:30 when the rector of the church, Rev. W. Montgomery Downey, assisted by Rev. William H. Neilson, officiated at communion. Special music was rendered during the morning by the choir. In the afternoon vesper services were held which were conducted by the rectors.

Services were held Sunday morning and afternoon at St. Stephen's church at Netherwood, Rev. William V. Dawson officiating. The alter and chancel were decorated with palms and in the afternoon special music was rendered by the choir.

Pleased With Lincoln.

A number of Newark capitalists visited S. D. Drake at Lincoln, Saturday, for the purpose of looking over some property upon which to build a factory. The visitors were much pleased with the town and its advantages.

Installing Huge Vault.

The First National Bank of Easton, Pa., is having a seventy ton manganese vault placed in its new building. The vault was made by the Manganese Steel Safe Works, of this city.

Raised Quarantine.

The Borough Board of Health has raised the quarantine on the house of Theodore Smith, of Allen place. There has been a case of diphtheria there.

For liver troubles and constipation There's nothing better in creation Than Little Early Risers, the famous little pills

They always effect a cure and save doctor bills.

Little Early Risers are different from all other pills. They do not weaken the system, but act as a tonic to the tissues by arousing the secretions and restoring the liver to the full performance of its functions naturally. L. W. Randolph.

FIRE WHISTLE DIDN'T SOUND

Weak Batteries Responsible For Failure of Fire Alarm to Work Properly.

TWICE FIRDAY EVENING

House Gongs Didn't Ring on Second Alarm, and Alarm Was Discovered Only by Accident—Neither Blaze Amounted to Much—Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Nolan Badly Burned.

Within the space of an hour, the fire department was sent scurrying out on two alarms, early last Firday. The blaze in neither case amounted to anything.

The first was turned in from box No. 47 for a small fire in the yard of Frank Cullen's store on South Second street. It threatened the barn but was put out before the department arrived.

Shortly after the apparatus returned to the house, it was summoned to the home of Andrew J. Nolan, of East Front street. Mrs. Nolan had lighted a lamp with a piece of paper and, throwing the remains away, did not notice they were ignited. She was first made aware of it when flames began creeping about her clothing, her dress having caught. Her screams brought her husband to the scene and both were quite badly burned in putting out the blaze. Patrolman Meyers had also been made aware of the fire and turned in an alarm. Mr. and Mrs. Nolans burns were dressed by Dr. Pittis.

In neither case did the fire alarm system work right. When No. 47 was pulled for the first fire, the gong recorded two blows only, at the uptown *houses the proper number was regis*tered and at the West End house, the men did not know there was a call until the other apparatus went by. For the second fire, Patrolman Meyers pulled No. 12 at the corner of Front and Somerset streets, but hearing no blows from the gong, ran to the keyless box near Compton's alley. Again no blows were heard and he then went to a telephone.

Headquarters, however, had received the first alarm in a peculiar manner. Chief Doane was conversing with his wife over the telephone for the purpose of learning what number had registered on his home dial. As she looked to see, the figures changed to 12 and she at once informed the chief. Not a bell had sounded at headquarters but looking to be saw the house figures had changed, too. Not one of the men had noticed it and probably would not have but for Mrs. Doane.

Linemen were placed at work in order to locate the trouble and late last night discovered it to be weak batteries. Chief Doane ordered a general overhauling of the system and will insist on its being carefully examined at more frequent intervals.

FUNERAL OF MRS. DREIER.

The Services Sunday Conducted by Rabbi Freid, of New York.

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Rachael Dreier were held from her late home on West Front street, Sunday afternoon. The house was filled to overflowing with relatives from this city and many other places.

Rabbi Freid, of New York, was in charge and conducted the regulation Orthodox service, preaching in English, German and Hebrew. Aside from this the obsequies were very simple. The body was afterward taken to Gateville, near Bound Brook, for interment.

Those who acted as pall bearers were M. Leichtentritt, Morris Abrams, Kalmon Rothberg, Joseph Block, H. Moledesky and H. Moskowitz.

Promotions at Big Store.

Harry Kesselring, of the carpet department at Woodhull & Martin's store, has been promoted to the position formerly held by John S. Johnston. The latter resigned his position on Saturday and within a few weeks will engage in business with Theodore Shirley.

Castings Delayed Work.

Owing to a delay in receiving castings, work at the Pedderick-Ayer shops has been slack for the past week. A number of men have been laid off but they will be re-instated as soon as the material arrives. Within a short time the plant will be in full blast and by summer the full quota of men will have been taken on.

In Charge at Campbell's.

Lewis D. Woods, formerly proprietor of the Whitehall Hotel in New Brunswick, has taken full charge of Campbell's road house on Park avenue. He took possession Tuesday, and he announces that he will have several shooting matches at his grounds during the summer months.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXVI. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, APRIL 16, 1903. NO. 16

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

BOROUGH BOYS MUST NOT PLAY "HOOKEY"

North Plainfield School Board is Determined to Stamp Out Truancy in the Borough.

HAS BEEN LOTS OF IT

NEW BOARD WILL SEEK THE AID OF THE STATE LAW.

Believe That Few Examples Made Would Check Truancy—Will Consider It at Next Meeting of the School Board.

A determined effort is to be made by the Board of Education of North Plainfield to stamp out the great amount of truancy which exists among the pupils. For several years the practice has been going on and while efforts have been made to stop it by notifying the parents the law has not been called into force.

The new board has decided to seek the aid of the State school law in the matter. There is a law on the statute books which make it possible for the board, after notifying the parents of the pupils to bring them up before a magistrate or a city judge and have a fine imposed. It is believed that if a few cases were made an example of the large number of truancy cases would diminish. The law says that a fine not less than $1 and not more than $25 or imprisonment for not more than a year can be imposed upon parents who do not stop their children from truancy.

A meeting of the board was held a few days ago when this matter was brought up for discussion. It was decided that the letter of the law would be enforced as far as it was able.

One objection to the truancy among the pupils is that it takes off so much every year from the State appropriation. The appropriation is made according to the number of scholars in actual attendance and when there are a number of pupils absent many days out of the year the appropriation is necessarily decreased. This makes the appropriations every year much less than it should be. Besides when children are playing "hookey" from school it costs considerable to have a truant officer busy looking them up.

This matter will probably come up before the next meeting of the board when definite action will be taken.

SPRING EXHIBITION.

Programme for Important Event at Y. M. C. A., April 21.

At the meeting of the programme committee of the gymnasium work at the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening the programme for the spring exhibition was arranged.

The exhibition will be opened by a dumbbell drill led by Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood, followed by class formation and apparatus work by the leaders. Other features of the proposed programme will be fancy work on the apparatus, potato race, wheelbarrow race, hand wrestling, window diving, sack race, fencing, wrestling (catch-as-catch-can), in three different weights, tumbling and a gymnasium hockey game.

The exhibition will be held on the evening of April 21 and promises to be one of the great events in that department of the year.

Sale at Parish House.

Preparations are now complete for the sale of useful and fancy articles as well as the entertainment to be held at Grace Episcopal church parish house, Wednesday and Thursday afternoon and evening, April 22 and 23. A hot supper will be served each evening from 6 to 8 o'clock. A feature will be the presentation of two short plays each evening by Mrs. C. E. Brooks and W. B. Cook.

Missionary Library.

President of the Young Men's Christian Association Stephen Osborne has presented to the Forward Movement Club of the association a missionary library. It is a most complete collection of standard works on the subject of missions and missionaries.

Borough in Good Health.

At present there are no cases of any contagious disease in the borough. The last quarantine was taken from the house of Mrs. Jacob Kitzer, of Walnut avenue, yesterday afternoon, by Health Inspector Wm. N. Pangborn.

Wedding Next Month.

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Mrs. Mary S. Hunt to J. J. Unangst, Tuesday evening, May 19, at 8 o'clock, at 209 Richmond street.

GARWOOD'S FIRST ELECTION

FRANK W. MORSE ELECTED MAYOR WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

Only One Candidate on Ticket Was Defeated—Those Who Were Elected.

Garwood, April 15—Garwood held its first election yesterday and selected its first officials. There was only one ticket in the field and a contest developed but for one office, commissioner of appeal. Albert J. Beckley, the regular nominee, was scratched and George Pierson was elected in his place.

Frank W. Morse, founder of Garwood and manager of the Garwood Land and Improvement Company, was chosen mayor. There were 113 registered voters in the borough of which 99 voted and Mr. Morse received 57.

The rest of the ticket elected was as follows: Borough Council, Wallace Kaylor, Sr., Walter F. Sergeant, Phillip Mohr, Jr., John J. Miller, William Darroch, John J. Kraus; assessor, Chas. S. Beadle; collector, Peter M. Eriksen; commissioners of appeal, Wm. J. Kelly, George Pierson, David Austin. Mayor-elect Morse and the other officials will be sworn in Monday night when they take office.

Mayor-elect Morse went to Elizabeth this morning to see County Superintendent W. J. Shearer regarding the establishment of the separate school district and the appointment of school trustees to take charge of it.

BIG G. O. P. CONVENTION

ONE OF THE EFFECTS OF NEW PRIMARY LAW JUST PASSED.

Will Greatly Increase the Representation—From 825 to 1,185 Delegates.

One of the efforts of the new primary law will be to increase the number of delegates in the next Republican State convention by over 350, and to change very materially the present relative strength of the various counties in such convention. The effect of the law will be very slight in these respects so far as Democratic State conventions are concerned, because the Democratic State Committee in apportioning delegates to the different counties in the past has allowed at least one delegate for each election district, even though the delegates may have been chosen by wards or townships. The number of delegates in the next Democratic State convention will show an increase of only fifty-eight and of these twenty-nine will go to Hudson county.

The Republican State convention of 1904 will be composed of 1,185 delegates, as compared with 825 in the convention that nominated Governor Murphy. Nearly all of the smaller counties will have large relative increases, but Hudson is the county that will have the greatest actual increase in the number of delegates. The jump will be from 111 votes in the 1901 convention to 191 in the next convention. The increase for Essex will be only thirty-five, or from 161 to 196. Camden will have the same increase in number as Essex, but that county will become a much more important factor in conventions than heretofore, as the raise is from fifty-five to ninety, an increase of nearly seventy per cent.

In Union county the increase is eighteen, or from forty-six to sixty-four. The effect as regards the Democratic representation for Union county in the Democratic State convention is an increase of only three or four, from fifty-seven to sixty delegates.

Aid for Hospital.

Mrs. Clifford Mayer and Mrs. T. S. Wheeler wish to thank most heartily the women who so generously contributed the sheets, pillow cases, towels and napkins for Muhlenberg Hospital, which were so greatly needed. In all there were received seventy sheets, seventy-eight pillow slips, fifty towels, twelve napkins and contributions of money.

Tour Through Europe.

Mrs. E. H. Cory, of Somerset street, has planned to enjoy a three months' trip abroad with a tourist party. The party will sail from New York, Saturday, June 27, and the tour will include trips through Germany, France, England and Holland. It is expected that the party will reach New York on the return trip September 14 or 15.

Miss Edith Osborn, of Montclair, is the guest of Miss Adelaide Howard, of Mercer avenue.

YOUNG WOMEN GIVE PLAY AND TABLEAUX

Clever Entertainment Given by Cup Bearers' Circle of King's Daughters.

HELD AT THE CASINO

STORY OF CINDERELLA PICTURED IN SERIES OF TABLEAUX.

"The Trouble at Satterlee's" Was Farce Comedy Given—Sale of Home-Made Candy Followed the Excellent Entertainment.

The success attending the affair at the Casino Tuesday afternoon, under the auspices of the Cup Bearers' Circle of King's Daughters, was indeed flattering to the enterprising and ambitious members of that worthy organization. The very inclement weather did not dampen the ardor of the large audience within, there being over three hundred people present, and the entertainment was given with a great deal of enthusiasm and in a manner that delighted everyone. The Casino was prettily decorated for the occasion, spring flowers being used in profusion to brighten the cosy corners and the stage of the auditorium.

The first part of the programme was devoted to the presentation of that laughable farce-comedy, "The Trouble at Satterlee's," and from beginning to end the audience was convulsed with laughter. This farce is unusually bright and is filled with amusing incidents, all of which were enacted in the true spirit. Too much commendation cannot be given the participants for their excellent work. The honors were evenly divided between all who comprised the cast, yet special mention is due Miss Lucie Badlong, Miss Louise Saunders and Miss Gladys Biglow for their impersonation of very difficult parts.

The dramatic personae was as follows: "Miss Ophelia Satterlee," Miss Lucie Badlong; "Dorothy," "Alice," "Mildred," "Bertha," "Marian," and "Edith," who belong to Miss Satterlee's select seminary for young women, Miss Louise Saunders, Miss Norma Northrop, Miss Florence Stewart, Miss Marion Hall, Miss Anna Garrigues and Miss Alice Titus, ghosts, Miss Margaret Curtis, Miss Josephine LaTourette and Miss Antionette Hill; "Kathleen," a Celtic maiden employed in the seminary, Miss Gladys Biglow.

During an intermission Mrs. William L. Saunders favored the audience with two delightful soprano solos, "If No One Ever Marries Me," and "A Disappointment," and Miss Jean Griscom rendered "Swan Song," from Lohengrin, and another selection on the piano in a delightful manner.

In part second, the beautiful story of "Cinderella" was given in tableaux. Those taking part presented the various scenes in a clever manner. Mrs. William Fesmire read the story as the tableaux were given. In every case the hearty applause of the audience called for the drawing of the curtains several times after each scene, and at the close of this performance, as well as that of part first, each participant received a bouquet of cut flowers. Mrs. L. H. Biglow, Jr., who is the present of the Circle, also received a large bouquet of roses, as a slight evidence of the appreciation of her efforts.

The characters in Cinderella" and those impersonating them were as follows: "Cinderella," Miss Helen Ray Hooley; "Prince," Miss Katherine Titus; "King," Miss Elizabeth Flanders; "Queen," Miss Edith Griscom; "Stepmother," Miss Mai Faber; "Proud Sisters," Miss Helen Stephens and Miss Aurelia Aston; "Fairy Godmother," Miss Mabel Hooley; "Herald," Miss Katherine McCutcheon; "Officiating Clergyman," Miss Anna Garrigues; "Court Ladies," Miss Alice Haven; Miss Gladys Peck; Miss Ruth VanVleit, Miss Verna McCutcheon and Miss Marion Hall.

The proceeds from the entertainment will be devoted to missionary work among young girls in New York City. A home having been secured in Miss Curry's mission house, 93 East Eighth street, which will be furnished as supplied with games and suitable literature, a trained worker being in attendance under Miss Curry's supervision.

Following the entertainment, a sale of home-made candy was held in the parlors of the Casino, those in charge being Miss Margaret Curtis, Miss Marion Brown, Miss Fredericka

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 5.)

HIGH WATER AT ELIZABETH

Lower Part of the City is Flooded and Much Damage Done to Lumber Yard.

WATER IS STILL RISING

Tracks on Newark and Southern Branches of Jersey Central Are Blocked by Rising Water—The Port is Partly Flooded—Record Breaking High Tide.

Elizabeth, April 15—Never before in the history of this place has the tide on Newark bay been so high. The steady east wind has backed the water in towards the shore and many of the shore houses, some of which are workshops and residence, have been flooded.

Last evening the line of the Jersey Central Railroad connecting Elizabeth and Newark was flooded. This morning the last train which traveled the road went out at 10 o'clock but was not expected to return. Many of the business houses in the Port are flooded. The shore branch of the Jersey Central had its tracks submerged and traffic over it was entirely suspended.

The Elizabeth river is high and the water is still rising. At some places the banks have been overflowed and sometime during the night the lumber yard of Heidrieger & Co. was washed away, doing about $30,000 worth of damage.

VACATION FOR JUDGE.

Judge Strong, of New Brunswick, Will be Absent Until September.

New Brunswick, April 15—Judge Woodbridge Strong, who has recently recovered from a serious illness and who was to have resumed his duties on the bench yesterday has been prevailed upon to take a much needed vacation. He will not appear in court again before the September term and in the meantime the work of the Orphans' and Criminal Courts will be divided between Judge Schenck, of Somerville, who has been taking Judge Strong's place during his absence, and Justice Fort, of the Circuit Court. By this plan Judge Strong will be enabled to enjoy a much needed vacation without any additional expense to the county.

SPRING ROAD WORK.

Started in Borough, But Stopped on Account of the Storm.

Work on the borough streets began Monday when the spring cleaning up was started but on account of the stormy weather yesterday it was discontinued. Some of the streets, including Lincoln place, Somerset street and other important thoroughfares, were scraped and where needed, repairs were made. The rain will put back the work already started and it will not be resumed before the latter part of the week. The work was in charge of the chairman of the street committee, James K. Arnold.

FUNERAL OF C. P. WHITALL.

Services Held at Residence on East Fifth Street Tuesday Afternoon.

The funeral of Charles P. Whitall was held from the residence on East Fifth street, Tuesday afternoon. Rev. Chas. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, officiated at the simple services. The pall-bearers were William Whitall, of Philadelphia, a brother; Chas. S. Clifton, of this city, a brother-in-law, and two cousins, Paul, of this city, and Charles, of Stonington, Conn. The interment was in Hillside cemetery.

Change in Shops.

The New Jersey Central will remove the large machine shops and roundhouses now in the anthracite district to a point on the New York division, near Manch Chunk. It will also change the train terminals, transferring about thirty-five crews to the new terminal, which will necessitate their moving to that point.

Rev. Mr. Shott to Preach.

Rev. Gideon M. Shott, of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, will occupy the pulpit at the First Baptist church Sunday morning and evening.

Erwin S. Leland, of Sandford avenue, left today for Williams College after spending his Easter vacation in town.

T. A. B.'S EFFORT TO ENLARGE ITS HALL

Big Bazaar Opens in T. A. B. Hall With Many Attractions and Big Crowd.

PRETTY DECORATIONS

THE FANCY TABLE AND REFRESHMENT BOOTH ARE PROMINENT FEATURES.

Many Book Contests Have Been Arranged—Dancing Was One of the Chief Attractions—Those in Charge of the Affair.

The bazaar, to raise funds for enlarging T. A. B. Hall on West Fourth street, opened last Tuesday in the hall and, in spite of the inclement weather the attendance was large and the patronage generous. The rooms has been very tastefully decorated in red, white and blue bunting, while hung from the ceiling at points, where the long festoons of bunting are caught, are numerous Japanese lanterns. The effect is at once attractive and pretty.

The fair is being held under the auspices of the T. A. B. Society, whose members have generously donated almost all the articles displayed for chance or contest. It is this fair to be a most successful affair and judging from the numbers who attended the opening night the proceeds will be large. Dancing is a feature of the bazaar and the music is being rendered by Prof. O'Reilly's complete orchestra.

Two booths are arranged on each side of the hall. One is the fancy table and the other is the refreshment counter. Of the former, Miss Katherine Mack is chairman, assisted by Misses Theresa McGinley, Jeanette Somers, Julia Meaney, Margaret Meaney, Mary Hines, Sadie Lynch, Marie Carty, Blanche Skinner, Margaret Harkins, O'Connor, Meade, Winnie Kane, Mamie Higgins, Helen O'Keefe, May Day and Elizabeth Day. Miss Mamie Carthy is the chairman of the other table and is assisted by Misses Margaret O'Connor, Margaret Connolly and Nellie Casey.

All those mentioned have donated something towards the fair. The articles thus donated will be chanced off on the closing night. Some of them are: a sideboard of oak, a Morris chair, and many fancy articles. Those who have books on which chances may be secured are: sideboard, the Misses Lizzie Crosby and Mamie Kane; parlor table, the Misses Carey; parlor rocker, Misses Elizabeth and May Day; hammock, the Misses Nora Doyle and Theresa McGinley; dress suit case, the Misses Winifred Kane and Mae Burke; barrel of flour, the Misses Burke and Julia Meaney; sofa pillow, the Misses Mamie O'Connor, Katherine Birmingham and Mamie Meade; silk umbrella, Miss Mamie Connolly; meerschaum pipe, John Flynn and John King; and a toilet set, the Misses Kate Gallagher, Margaret Whalen and Margaret Meaney.

The Misses Ethel Walsh and Julia Connolly are in a contest for a diamond ring or a gold watch. They are endeavoring to raise a sum of money and the one securing the most can select between the two prizes. The boys are in a contest which is known as the brick pile. Each contestant is supplied with cards on which are numbers and each number represents a brick. For a small sum a hole is punched into the card and the boy having the largest number of punched cards gets $10. The boy getting the next highest number gets $5 and the one coming third secures $3.50 in gold.

James Kane is the chairman of the entertainment committee. He has arranged events for each night. This evening there will be a musical programme rendered by Miss Anna Daly, Albert Squires and Albert Matthews. Tomorrow evening the fair will remain open all night and during the evening Albert Leonard and William Lawrence, of the West Side A. C., of New York, will entertain with some sparring. James Kelly, of Keith's New York circuit, has been secured and will entertain with popular songs and Harry Dilts will favor with bag punching. Friday evening the Misses Julia, Margaret and Elizabeth Day will entertain with some solos.

The general committee which has the arrangements in charge comprises: Miss Katherine Mack, Edward T. Lynch, Richard J. Birmingham and Clarence Waldron.

For Baptist Home.

The collection at the First Baptist church, Sunday, will be for the New Jersey Baptist Home for the Aged.

PARK CLUB EASTER DANCE

CLOSING FORMAL EVENT OF SEASON AT THAT CLUB.

Enlarging the Clubhouse Will Prevent Many More Events This Spring.

With the Easter dance given at the Park Club last Tuesday, the large entertainments for the season are brought to a close. Several smaller entertainments are being arranged for next month, but as plans for enlarging the clubhouse are now well under way, no effort will be made to hold large affairs until next fall. The dance last evening was attended by a very large number of guests from both the city and borough and all pronounced it to be one of the most enjoyable yet held at the clubhouse. There were not only a number of young people present, but the attendance of the older married people was noticeable.

Music for the dance was furnished by Prof. Garland, of New Brunswick, and this was a feature. During the evening refreshments were served by Stephenson, the caterer, and this was not the least of the enjoyable features.

The regular entertainment committee of the club, of which Mrs. S. St. John McCutcheon is the chairman, who was assisted in receiving by Mrs. B. A. Hegeman, Jr., Mrs. Francis DeLacy Hyde, Mrs. Edward A. Ladd, Jr., Mrs. Henry A. McGee, Mrs. Charles A. Reed, Mrs. Walter M. McGee, Mrs. Samuel Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Saunders and C. E. Murray, the last four named being members of the entertainment committee.

EVENING CHURCH WEDDING

MARRIAGE OF MISS CLEFFIE L. LUDLOW AND B. S. H. BAKER.

Ceremony Performed in Trinity Reformed Church—Reception Followed at Dunellen.

A very pretty church wedding was solemnized at Trinity Reformed church, Tuesday night when Miss Cleffie Latourette Ludlow, of Dunellen, and Benjamin S. Hayzard Baker, of Summit, were united in marriage, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of the church, performing the ceremony.

Precisely at 7 o'clock the couple entered the church to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by Organist Arthur L. Titsworth. Miss Ludlow was attended by Miss Mabel B. Parkhurst, of Westfield, while the best man was Edmund R. Halsey, of Summit. Preceding the couple were the two little flower girls, Marietta J. Parkhurst, and Louise Bannister, of Westfield. The ushers were Arthur D Reeve and Robert F. Reeve, of Newark, John J. Finnegan, and William Nichols, of Summit.

The bride was gowned becomingly in white silk peau de cygne, trimmed with medallions and chiffon applique and carried white bridal roses. The maid of honor was gowned in blue silk peau de cygne, trimmed with chiffon and ribbon and carried pink bridal roses. The flower girls looked very pretty in white point d'esprit over blue and carried baskets of pink and white sweet peas. The church was decorated with green and white.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Randolph Vail, of Dunellen. The happy couple then left for a wedding trip to an unknown destination. Upon their return they will reside in Summit where the groom is in business as a civil engineer.

Guests were present at the ceremony from Summit, New York, Westfield, Newark and other places. A large number of beautiful and costly presents showed the esteem in which the couple are held.

New Organist.

Arthur G. Drake, of Bound Brook, has been engaged as organist of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, to commence May 1. He has acted in the same capacity in several churches in this vicinity and at present is connected with the Second Reformed church, of New Brunswick.

Only Twenty Now.

For the first time since the wreck on the New Jersey Central at Westfield, there are now less than twenty-five patients at Muhlenberg Hospital. The number now under treatment is twenty.

Another Residence.

Fred J. Harris has awarded the contract to W. H. Kirch, the builder, for the erection of a large dwelling house on West Seventh street, west of Monroe avenue, to cost nearly $5,000.

BELIEVE CARMAN WAS KILLED BY ACCIDENT

Suicide Theory Is Scouted After Investigation Into Death of Dunellen Resident.

FUNERAL IS ARRANGED

WAS FOND OF FIRE ARMS AND OFTEN SPENT HIS TIME EXAMINING THEM.

Theory is That He Was Examining Shot-Gun, and Either Dropped It or Snapped Hammer by Accident—The Funeral Friday.

Dunellen, April 15—A careful investigation seems to disprove the theory of suicide in the death of William H. Carman, who was found dead at his home yesterday morning with the upper part of his head blown off and a discharged shot gun beside him. The theory of suicide was scouted by the family from the first and it now looks as if there was no question but he met his death accidentally.

Mr. Carman's duties as manager of the most department of Scheuer's Plainfield grocery were exhausting and he had not been in the best of health for some time previous to his death. The day before he suffered from a fainting spell. Yesterday morning he had a cold and, the day being so stormy, his wife persuaded him to remain at home.

When Mrs. Carman last saw him alive, he was lying on the lounge in the parlor. He was very fond of hunting and shooting and while, of late, he had not had much opportunity to enjoy his favorite pastime, he was always fond of taking a rifle, shotgun or revolver and cleaning it or trying its action. It is supposed that he started to examine his shot-gun yesterday morning and that being rather weak, he either dropped the gun so accidentally discharging it or else unintentionally snapped the hammer. He was ordinarily very careful in handling fire arms but his poor health may have made him a trifle careless on this occasion.

Further investigation has failed to reveal any possible reason for self-destruction. In a moment of temporary aberration, he might have performed such a rash act but the general belief is now that the death was an accident. The fact that a revolver would have been much more convenient and so easy to obtain would seem to support that theory.

Arrangements were completed last evening for the funeral which will be held from the Presbyterian church Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. A. J. Martine, of Marlboro, N. J., who was pastor of that church when Mr. Carman became a member, and Rev. N. J. Sproul, the present pastor, will officiate. The interment will be at Bound Brook.

Don't Know Him.

In this morning's Staats Zeitung, a German publication of New York, there appears an article narrating the troubles of Dr. Lawrence Gerold, of Lexington avenue, Plainfield. The doctor, it appears, was making a tour of the slums when he was set upon by robbers and was being relieved of his valuables when the police gathered him in for safe keeping. The directory gives no such name of any physician.

Great Preparations.

Great preparations are being made by the members of the Continental Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, for the reception and loan exhibit to be held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Phillip VanWyck, of Stelle avenue. The object of the affair is to raise money with which to preserve an historic land-mark at Washington Rock.

New Railroad Lamps.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company is replacing the old switch and signal lamps, which burn kerosene, with the new eight-day lamp, which has been generally adopted. They need to be filled only once a week and require only one-eighth the quantity of oil.

Expect to Lease Inn.

Negotiations are now under way for the leasing of the Mountain Park Inn to a Philadelphia party. J. F. Vail, the North avenue real estate agent, has the matter in charge and expects to close the matter in a few days.

In Justice Hand's Court.

Summons were issued, yesterday, from Justice Hand's court in the contract case of McDonough Brothers against Rogers. They are returnable Monday.

The Easter of the Present Time

"EASTER is hardly more than a name compared to what it used to be," sighed the woman who was fond of recalling the past.

"Well, all I know is that it's the end of Lent and mortifying the flesh and that sort of thing," remarked the girl of the party.

"What's that? Mortifying the flesh?" jeered her brother. "A nice lot of mortifying you society buds have been doing at Palm Beach and Aiken!"

"The truth of the matter," put in the young matron, "is that Lent has practically gone out of style, and that means, of course, Easter also."

"Oh, I wouldn't say that! Think of the lovely church services—and—and the florists' windows and the candy shops and the church parade"—

POTTED PLANTS TO THE HOSPITAL.

"There I have you. There isn't any more church parade. When you are in New York, go up on Fifth avenue on Easter morning and you'll see the smart people dressed exactly as they are every other Sunday. Time was when there was a wild scramble to get into new clothes on Easter day. No matter how inappropriate the clothes or how inclement the weather, the two had to go together willy nilly. Airy creations of tulle enveloped necks that yearned for furs, and openwork straw lifted itself coquettishly over noses blue with the raw wind. To wear one's winter clothes, one's felt hat above all, was a disgrace almost beyond expression. Mothers slaved that their daughters might have an Easter outfit; girls worked, stitched away patiently into the wee small hours of holy week and even denied themselves necessary things that they might dazzle their neighbors and rivals on Easter day. From Grand street to Fifth avenue the craze was the same. Thank the Lord, that is over! If it's warm on Easter day, you see straw hats and silk gowns. If it's warm before Easter, you see the same hats and gowns. On the other hand, if it's cool on Easter day, for a fortnight after Easter you will see heavy garments. We are no longer swayed by a certain day."

"But you can't put the florists out of style!"

"No; they have remained over from the old Easter. People don't send the ridiculous and useless Easter gifts they used to. Instead they give a pot of blossoming plants or a little bunch of cut spring flowers just to herald the coming of the spring. These floral gifts are more elaborate this year than ever, by the way, and it's quite a fad to send with the flowers an odd vase, into which the stems are slipped. For instance, a bunch of violets should be placed in a little copper bowl of the sort displayed in the florist's windows, orchids should rest in a dainty holder of opalescent glass, etc. Even the simplest pot of spirea which goes out is wrapped in pink and white tissue paper, plaited after the fashion of a dancer's skirts and tied with a big bow of ribbon. And, speaking of spireas, I want to say that one kind hearted rich woman sent a thousand pots of these pretty white blossoms to the sick people in the hospitals last year, which shows that we still do have an Easter feeling, but it's a sensible one instead of a silly, extravagant one"—

"And the children's Easter?"

"Oh, they always with us—the wonderful sugar eggs, with a peephole through which one can catch glimpses of fairyland; the rabbits, the wee chicks, and, above all, the wonderful eggs so popular for children's parties! These are made with artificial flowers and open by means of a spring, disclosing as many smaller eggs as there are little guests present, each small egg being filled with candy. Take it all in all, I think the children get the best of Easter, just as they do, for that matter, with every holiday throughout the year."

MAUD ROBINSON.

New Waists.

So many of the separate waists are and will be made of some soft and pliable stuff and overlaid with heavy lace of one kind or other that they require a special relay of skirts if one is to wear them. These skirts are to be mostly black, and there is variety enough in the materials offered to please any one.

HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

BLACK NET GOWNS.

How They Are Made—Other Fashion Notes.

Some of the most elegant gowns are made of plain black net, and this is trimmed in various ways. One of the most effective styles of developing this material, in itself so insignificant, into beautiful gowns is to overlay it with chenille or silk stars or crosses and then trim the whole skirt, disregarding the stars and their contours, with narrow lines of black satin ribbon in the narrowest width or black velvet ribbon, with bands of black chantilly insertion around, arranged to form a certain design. Sometimes it is done to represent bands of a stimulated flounce, and again it is simply set around and around. Again it may be put on in horizontal or perpendicular lines, but, however it is applied, it is handsome. The decision as to how the lines of lace should be applied should be made with due consideration of the height and figure of the wearer. The pointed effect as shown in the illustration comes nearest to fitting all figures, even the unduly stout one.

Black net gowns should be worn over a black taffeta slip, but if one wishes to do so any color preferred may be adopted. The waist for a gown of this description is generally made in full blouse form, and it may be high or quite low on the neck and shoulders. So many afternoon dresses are made of lace in whole or in part that this one would serve for a guide to all, with such differences as each individual case might require. For day wear the sleeves may be in the bishop form and as ornate as wished.

The beautiful grenadines of this season are trimmed so lavishly with lace that they might almost be called lace. There are sets of bolero, stock, deep cuffs and skirt trimmings, besides many distinct motifs, as the separate pieces are called, and these are applied as taste dictates. What we did before this very useful fashion came in vogue I do not know; but, according to all present signs, it is here to stay. I may add in passing that every kind of lace is seen—yak, mohair, silk guipure and cotton and linen as a matter of course. And this does not take into account the new mercerized silk laces, which are made wide and narrow, with straight edges of application on the different garments. Some of the castle braids of this wool fiber silk are made so fine and open that they bedeck half the handsomest costumes. They are called Russian silk lace. The effect of bands of this lace over the ever beautiful china crape gowns is indescribably rich, and it has the merit of novelty, for it is new.

The new deep pelerines and capes and the long stole collars of the heavy yak or renaissance lace are much used for this, and they may even displace the fluffy boas of chiffon. These are so very becoming that it is a pity to allow even the lace pelerines to take their places.

For skirts for everyday wear at home or in the street mohair in one of its many varieties is the favorite. Never have we had such a rage for mohair. An extended description of the varieties of designs in this fabric would be profitless and impossible, but we may note the black china crape, half silk and half wool and all silk, the cotienne and the voiles. These are silk and fine wool mixed and very soft, lustrous and beautiful, and also some of the newest of the all wool blacks, such as corols, batte, corvette, roselle and veiling. Roxane is wool and mohair, and there are some handsome muffle of silk and mohair. All these and many more are all black. In fact, nearly nine-tenths of the street skirts are black except in tailor costumes. Twine cloths, nub cloths, serges, etamines, twilled and smooth faced broadcloths and German brunella are among the black goods offered for skirts to wear with the waists above mentioned. All of these are produced in colors, but good taste would dictate black.

BLACK NET GOWN.

But, if black is best form in the wools and mixtures, there is no dearth of colored silks. There are many of the old favorites and some new ones in the list, such as taffeta, peau de soie, peau de cygne and moire velour. The colored silks embrace all those mentioned, besides liberty, soie de crepe and polka dotted satin liberty foulards. Louisines are shown in great variety, many designs being in small checks and stripes, while fancies in foulards are figured. Pongee, plain and richly embroidered or planned to be decorated with lace, is among the best of the summer silks. The checks are very stylish, particularly the tiny pinhead checks, which were always very Frenchy.

EGG DISHES.

And How They Should Be Prepared For Easter.

Salad Eggs.—By using eggshells as molds many table delicacies may be given an Easter coloring, or, rather let us say, Easter contour. Croquettes made of any kind of powdered meat may be baked in shells. Always put a little water in the pan holding the shells to prevent burning. To make salad eggs select fresh eggs with firm shells and make a small opening in one end of each. With a small spoon stir up the contents of each, pouring out a very little. Have minced ham at hand and put some of it, with a little salt, pepper and a very little mustard, into the egg, adding a drop of vinegar. After thoroughly mixing each egg place them, open end up, in a pan so tightly together that they will hold each other up firmly. Choose a pan just large enough to hold every egg, or a cup may be placed in the center to fill up if necessary. Pour water in around the eggs and boil them until thoroughly hard. Remove the shells carefully.

Cake Eggs and Jelly Eggs.—You may bake any kind of cake dough in shells, leaving space for "rising," and you can roll the cake eggs in frosting afterward. Wine and lemon jelly hardens perfectly in eggshells. Cocoanut kisses and candied fruit juices also harden well. The red homemade canned cherries are very satisfactory made into Easter egg bonbons as follows: Strain the cherries out of the juice and boil the juice until it "candies," using extra sugar as needed. Add the cherries to the candied juice. Harden in small shells. These cherry bonbons are very attractive and delicious.

A Delicious Easter Omelet.—Boil some fresh calves' brains until done. When cold, chop them fine, adding pepper, salt, chine and suet butter, together with a few mushrooms. Make an omelet of three fresh eggs, stirring in the above preparations, and serve hot.

AN ART NOUVEAU BEDROOM

Odd Effects in Decoration Are Greatly Sought For Nowadays.

The odder the room the better it seems to answer the requirements of the up to date home. The accompanying illustration shows an art nouveau bedroom which is one of the latest examples of this style.

The walls are of whitewood paneling, and there is a wide frieze of greenish character. The carpet is plain green and the furniture mahogany. Notice especially the quaint little settle upholstered in green which is a fixture in the wall close to the fireplace. The latter is of green enamel and copper. The washstand is likewise of green enamel, and it has a medicine closet with green glass panes.

GREEN AND WHITE.

The windows are made up of tiny panes of glass, and the curtains are of green and old rose taffeta cretonne.

R. DE LA BAUME.

Tailor Finished Waists.

Even the cotton as well as the heavy linens are made into tailor finished waists. Among the best of the season's values for these are silk and cotton cheviots, linen canvas, crash, pique and linen mesh. All these are heavy and thick, and they will take any kind of ornamentation from lace to braid. Some of the waists, notably the piques and the heavy but plain linen, like the butcher linens, are elegantly and beautifully trimmed with narrow black soutache in fancy designs. Some others are trimmed in lighter manner, and it is difficult to say which kind is the more desirable.

Return of the Bonnet.

Bonnets are in! After such a long and undeserved banishment bonnets are suddenly blossoming out, and they are certainly beautiful, and they will take the place of the exaggerated picture hat so long in evidence. Flowers, ribbon and lace, with an occasional feather, are the materials used now, as ever, to make bonnets, but there is a new twist somewhere or somehow that gives the bonnets of today a new look They have strings of ribbon to tie under the chin. These are becoming to elderly women.

The Child Labor Evil.

What conditions are with regard to child labor in some of the states of this Union may be gathered from the fact that the Virginia legislature has found it necessary to pass a law forbidding the employment in factories of children under twelve.

NEW FASHIONS.

Walking Suits Most Popular—Shirtwaist Suits.

A walking suit, ankle length, will be found indispensable this summer. Black or navy blue, either in mixed or plain goods, is the most serviceable. The jacket should be blouse and the skirt strapped or plaited.

For afternoon wear nothing can be prettier than an examine, either in white, cream or pale gray with touches of satin or panne and a little white about the neck and front.

SPRING HAT.

Light crushed strawberry is admirable with black and pale blue and lends itself admirably to touches of ecru lace.

For cool days there are very effective flannel shirt waists with bands of embroidery which transform them, and for warm weather very smart linens and batistes embroidered in white. There is besides, of course, a full line of dainty sheer waists.

Skirts with yokes are just now very fashionable, and this is a very becoming style for the woman whose hips incline to plumpness.

The hat in the illustration is of red straw, trimmed with poppies.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

DRESS TRIMMINGS.

Artistic Bits of Lace and Fringe Which "Make" a Gown.

Lace collars are greatly improved by touches of embroidery, and it is quite easy to find some large wheel or scroll which can be removed or altered to admit an embroidered medallion.

The very deep collar of Richelieu shape is extremely chic for present wear and will appear on all the new costees and bolero and on evening coats and carriage wraps. Everything will be done to give an air of novelty to these collars, and velvet tabs of various designs will be used and ribbons run in and out of the more open designs.

EVENING DRESS.

Fringe is used to give a good effect on smart wraps, and it is seen on dressy gowns of all kinds. It is dyed to match the gown with which it is used.

Dresses with the trimmings, even to the laces, dyed to match are a fad of the hour.

Utility dresses of black and white figured and checked foulards will be much seen this year. These gowns are made without any lace as trimming, and they are decorated simply with strappings, tiny pipings and fancy buttons.

The all black gown is, as a rule, very effective, particularly if the bodice be embroidered with really good jet or silver. Black lace robes with many ruffles around the bottom are trimmed with jet stripes or detached figures.

The picture shows an evening gown of cream mull over green silk. It is trimmed with medallions of black and white lace.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

LADY LABOR CONTRACTOR.

Mrs. Atwood and Her Success in a New Field.

One woman to evince great capacity in a wide field hitherto untrodden by her sex is Mrs. S. J. Atwood of Denver. Seventeen years ago Mrs. Atwood was a little widow with a baby, a father and mother and herself to support. The only legacy her husband left was a great deal of debts.

Her husband had busied himself at being an employment agent, contracting for the labor of men on railways, ranges and various construction works. He had made a poor showing at the business. Mrs. Atwood, however, knew something of it and resolved to continue it and make it successful. The husband apparently had not known what he was about. His widow did know.

SHIPPING MEN BY THE TRAINLOAD.

She opened a small office in Denver and let it be known that she would supply men laborers wherever they were wanted. At once her business struck root and grew. Soon it became so large that she had not always time to eat or sleep, but had to attend to that part of her existence when she could and where. She herself accompanied her laborers to their destination and saw that their contracts were properly executed. This led to her making railway journeys east, west, north and south. Ere long she found herself shipping laborers by the trainload.

In this occupation Mrs. Atwood struck her gait, and she has kept to it ever since. Meantime the child that was a baby when Mrs. Atwood opened her little office became a young lady, eighteen years old. She had grown to womanhood in the midst of her mother's business and seemed to understand it without specially learning it. She, too, has part in her mother seems a natural influence over men and can control and direct them. Suppose Mrs. Atwood receives a telegram for 200 men to work on a railroad 500 miles away. She gathers her men, and if business calls her elsewhere, so it is not convenient for her to deliver the goods—that is, the men—at their destination, she sends this eighteen-year-old girl as director and guide of the 200 laborers while they are on the train. Mrs. Atwood declares that this young daughter is the only woman beside herself in the world whom she would trust to conduct a trainload of men from New York to San Francisco.

The woman employment contractor's scheme has broadened out till it takes in the width of the continent. With headquarters at Denver she has branch offices in six cities. On one of the leading northwestern roads all the laborers are employed through Mrs. Atwood, who also manages their boarding trains and living arrangements. Her employment agency is the most extensive one in the world, yet she herself is a small, delicate looking woman physically.

Mentally, however, she seems to have trained herself according to the noble ideal of the ancient Stoics, who taught their disciples to say in the face of discomfort and suffering of what nature soever: "It is nothing. It will pass."

She says of herself: "I have schooled myself to endure whatever comes to me and to adapt myself to any situation. It is nothing to me to go eighteen to twenty hours without sleep. I have been nine days without removing my clothing, except for the purpose of taking off soiled garments and putting on clean ones. I can endure long spells of fasting without inconvenience."

Does it seem wonderful that a mere woman can endure so much? Yet it is no more than nearly all women—mothers, that is—have been equal to since the world began. They have watched day and night beside their children, have gone without food, sleep or rest many days at a time in their homes, and nobody thought they were doing anything heroic.

In the region in which she operates Mrs. Atwood is called the "hobo catcher" because many of the men on her list are tramps at times. She finds these not so black as they are painted, and she is eminently successful in dealing with them. She is a philosopher too. She says, "Each of us has a groove, and if mine is catching hoboes I would better stick to it."

Another of her sayings to be commended to women in particular is, "It is no undertaking at all to handle man in the plural number, but in the singular he is absolutely formidable."

MARY EDITH DAY.

FASHION NOTES.

Italian and Irish Lace—Simplicity in Fashions.

Imitations of coarse Italian lace will be popular as the season advances and will prove a rival to the Irish lace, but the latter is smarter for the adornment of outside garments owing to its raised figures.

The pelerine or little loose sack coat may be skillfully manipulated by the amateur. The chief difficulty in making a pelerine is the fitting on the shoulders, and the amateur must guard against making the woman with already sloping shoulders look ridiculous.

The keynote of the best fashions is simplicity—costly simplicity if you like, but still simplicity. Great discretion is used in the matter of trimmings. The worst of trimmings is that once they are used the uninitiated are apt to overdo them. We become a little tired of cords, passementerie and Armenian embroideries. They are all very well in their way, but directly they are overdone and copied in all sorts of cheap stuff the smart woman will have none of them.

EVENING WRAP.

The woman who is unable to spend much on her gown had better put it into cut instead of trimming.

The illustration shows an evening coat of black lace.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

PICTURESQUE EFFECTS.

Rare and Becoming Gowns of Chiffon and Lace.

The picture dinner gown was at one time known as the tea gown. Now tea gowns are chiefly known by the name of picture frocks. It is difficult to draw any definite line between the two, for once we arrive at the floppy, comfortable gown it is exclusively for lounging purposes and is known as the peignoir.

With a very few exceptions there is no doubt that the picture frock is exceedingly becoming. Chiffon and lace of course form the chief elements in the composition of the picturesque toilet. Other fabrics are oriental satin, crepe de chine and all such clinging and yet sumptuous looking materials. Old brocades are being used but sparingly and in soft weaves. All the soft fabrics of the hour lend themselves admirably to the picturesque.

HOUSE GOWN.

Fichus of white lace or point d'esprit edged with lace add greatly to the appearance of such a gown.

Hemstitched and also fagoted materials are to be bought by the yard beautifully made.

The picture shows a house gown made of soft plaited silk and trimmed with an odd effect of heavy lace.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

In the Domain of the New Woman

MEN are desperately put to it sometimes to give plausible reasons for endeavoring to hold all the money and the power in their own hands. If they would come out square and say, "We've got the power, and we mean to keep it," one could have some respect for their honesty at least. But when a city board of education gives among its reasons for steadily discriminating against women in the distribution of the higher and better paid places for teachers that women are unwilling to serve under women principals and superintendents this may be considered a little too much. Plainly, as a general statement, it is not true. If there ever was a time when women had this harem like jealousy of one another, that time is happily gone by. Women now know that the advancement and happiness of each depend upon all of them standing together as one. "I looked and saw that all the women held one another by the hand," says Olive Schreiner in one of her marvelous mystical "Dreams." With here and there a lonely blighted exception, women are standing together. They know that womanly sympathy, help and friendship are priceless to women themselves. Wherefore all women of heart and brain rejoice every time one of their sex is elevated to a post of honor and emolument. Each knows that in such a case her own chance for promotion and better pay in every field is by so much bettered. Women teachers gladly serve under women superintendents and principals. They know that thereby they are upholding the banner of the splendid advancing army of womanhood, that army which shall draw all the world after it into the kingdom of love, and which is made up of the glorious Brunehildes of this coming army the petty, spiteful woman who opposes the promotion of a single one of her own sex becomes a hideous black dwarf.

* *

Beautiful garments were meant originally to adorn the body, but in all cases to be secondary to the body's own beauty. Many women appear to have lost sight of the original intention and to regard clothes themselves as the end instead of one of the means. So long as they have the clothes, everlastingly the clothes, they apparently consider that any sort of an old body will do to hang these on. It is the worst mistake that even a woman can make.

* *

"I wonder," said the absentminded professor, "what is the reason women don't marry nowadays?" "They don't have to," promptly responded the girl bachelor.

* *

The more splendid and beautiful clothing there is piled upon an ugly, disgraceful body the more hideous it looks by contrast. If women cared less for elaborate clothes and more for beautiful bodies to hang them on, the human race would rapidly grow toward perfection. Every woman not positively deformed can make her body beautiful and graceful by industriously and perseveringly using means within the reach of all. Natural and hygienic physical culture is the means. American women are born queens, and they ought to look it.

* *

Do something. Be of the noble army of those who do things.

* *

Women sometimes call themselves "critical" when they are only fault finding. There is a difference between the critical faculty and the fault finding one.

* *

Now go outdoors. Get the sun and rain in your face, the wind in your hair.

* *

A young wife lately tried to commit suicide because for the first time her husband stayed out late one evening. Never mind, young woman. Just stay in the flesh five years longer, and then you won't mind it. There are wives who feel like committing suicide because their husbands do stay at home nights.

* *

Many American young women are studying Egyptian and Babylonian hieroglyphics with the view of becoming professional translators of these. Professor Hilprecht considers that here women will find a lucrative and literary occupation. In America in various museums are over 150,000 hieroglyph bricks waiting to be read. Professor Petrie's chief assistant is a lady, Miss M. A. Murray, who is now in Egypt with him, making excavations. Miss Murray has written and published a hieroglyph primer, showing how the glyphs may be read.

* *

Mrs. John Mitchell Clark, a musician and musical composer of New York, has invented for the piano a sounding board which adds greatly to the sweetness and resonance of this instrument. It is attached to the piano lid.

* *

Following the new woman trend of today, a number of ladies in Alabama have established a company of their own for the purpose of drilling for oil in the Tennessee valley. The president of the new company is an Englishwoman, Mrs. P. Collings, the sister of Sir Marcus Sampels. All the officers of the corporation are women. The secretary and general manager is Mrs. Kay Nelson of New Decatur, Ala. All the ladies actively engaged in the enterprise are women of means. The company is capitalized at $2,000,000.

ELIZA ARCHARD CONNER.

SWALLOWED OCTOPUS.

Surgeons Used Stomach Pump and Brought Out a Curious Little Marine Monster.

Curious neighbors are flocking to the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Wendt, at No. 42 Bergen Line avenue, Guttenberg, N. J., to learn the details of the remarkable operation which she had performed in St. Luke's hospital to remove a reptile from her stomach.

While at Long Branch, N. J., two summers ago Mrs. Wendt drank a glass of spring water from a natural well in the yard of one of the country homes. As she swallowed the water she felt a peculiar wriggling sensation in her throat which caused her to cough violently. She suffered from severe choking spells for several months, but thought nothing of the matter until six months ago, when she felt an unaccountable gnawing sensation.

She consulted a physician and told him that she believed she had swallowed a frog, as she could distinctly feel the reptile plusate. The doctor laughed at her fears, but she remained convinced.

After spending a small fortune in seeking the advice of many medical authorities Mrs. Wendt applied at St. Luke's hospital in New York. The doctors persuaded her that a pump would answer, and Saturday the instrument was applied.

To the surprise of all the physicians who assisted, the stomach pump brought to light a writhing, spider-like reptile about the size of a woman's hand, possessing tentacles like those of an octopus. On the extremities of these quivering tentacles were little cups capable of producing a powerful suction.

GODMOTHER TO FOUR.

Startling Experience of Duchess of Connaught During Recent Visit to India.

People are wondering if the duchess of Connaught will ever have another experience similar to one she has just had, in India. The duke and duchess were staying at the principal hotel in the Hill Station, Mussourie, kept by a clever, energetic little Swiss. In the hotel there was a woman who had been sent to the cool climate to await a happy event. Her husband was obliged to remain in the plains, but he had been promised by the hotel proprietor that he should have a telegram directly there was any news. At last Fritz's services were required to send the telegram; he ordered his horse, galloped down to the post office, and wired "Boy arrived, send chad" (native wet nurse). On returning to the hotel he was met by the doctor, who told him that there was another baby. Back he rode, and sent off a second telegram:

ARRIVED WITH FOUR BRIDE.

"Another baby, send two dhais." This happened twice more, until four telegrams had been sent to the astonished husband, and a message from him to the Swiss. "Repeat telegrams," had been complied with. Within 24 hours the unfortunate man arrived with four wet nurses in his train. The duchess was godmother to the four infants in order to give some encouragement to the little strangers who had so bewildered their parents by coming in numbers.

Mirror Behind the Bait.

Some fishermen in France use a tiny mirror, which is adjusted just behind the morsel of bait. It is believed that when a fish sees itself in a glass it will conclude that some other fish is trying to carry off the bait, and will make haste to secure the tempting morsel itself, the result being that it will speedily be caught on the relentless hook.

The First Human Majesty.

The first ruler honored with the title of "his majesty" was Louis XI., of France. Before that time sovereigns were usually styled his or her "highness." The Bull of the modern regulation bowling alley has been attained, except for some freak scores, say a majority of the rollers. They were not prepared to say this until a perfect score of 300 had been made in competition. They were loth to admit that the famous Empire team of greater New York had gained the top notch for five men in totaling 1,103, and were pleased when claims were made to Secretary Sam Karpf of the American Bowling association for a certificate for the Montgomery team of five rollers of Newark, N. J., on its total of 1,132, made in a regular league series. The total of 1,165 said to have been made this season by the Rolfe team of Humboldt, Ia., may have been done on alleys that were regulation. If that is proved the A. B. C. will issue a certificate to this team and the honors of the decade will be given to Messrs. Showers, Finn, Carroll, Barnes and Wheeler, the quintet that composed this team. But there is little danger of the A. B. C. having to issue a certificate for any performance excelling this. To make a total of 1,165 on regulation alleys requires some very high rolling. In the case of the Rolfe team, every man on it is credited with a score of more than 200, of course, except one bowler, who totaled 197. Showers rolled better than this by seven pins in the following games, but he could not join the 200 class in the record-breaking contest. Finn rolled 248; Carroll, 237; Barnes, 240, and Wheeler, 243. Compare this total to the work of the greater New Yorks, who invaded the west a few years ago and swept all teams before them with totals of 900 and thereabouts!

JOHN J. VOORHEIS

In golf there has been a terrible howl among professionals against the use of the patented rubber filled ball on the score that the distances of the holes on standard courses will have to be changed if the players stick to the use of the rubber cored ball. But so long as the patrons of the game are pleased with that style of ball the sphere will have its vogue. So in bowling the loaded ball will have its vogue so long as the bowlers take kindly to it. There is nothing particularly strange about a loaded bowling ball. Years ago when it was possible to get the heaviest and best seasoned lignum vitae—the supply was fair and the demand not so great as it has been for three or four years—the regulation bowling ball turned out by the manufacturers ran more than 15½ pounds. Now the wood is exceptionally good if it yields a regulation ball of that weight. Take a trip to a factory and inspect a half hundred bowling balls that are not green and you will find about one in ten that is heavy enough to suit the roller. He must load it to get the desired weight. And the secret of loading with lead so as to preserve the center of gravity is now solved by all who attempt it. A poorly loaded ball is a nuisance.

Some Pertinent Questions for the Lovers of Bowling

HAS the limit of the modern bowling alley been reached? Will the loaded ball be interdicted by the American bowling congress?

Are bowlers going to remain in the class of amateurs and continue to roll for cash prizes?

Who is the most consistent roller of prominence in the country?

Has the game shown a decline this winter, and will the small town afford sufficient patronage to keep alleys going another season?

These are the questions that I have been asking every well-known roller that can be found in the list of entries to the annual tournament at Indianapolis who has appeared at bowling

PHIL WOLF.

headquarters. The Bull of the modern regulation bowling alley has been attained, except for some freak scores, say a majority of the rollers. They were not prepared to say this until a perfect score of 300 had been made in competition. They were loth to admit that the famous Empire team of greater New York had gained the top notch for five men in totaling 1,103, and were pleased when claims were made to Secretary Sam Karpf of the American Bowling association for a certificate for the Montgomery team of five rollers of Newark, N. J., on its total of 1,132, made in a regular league series. The total of 1,165 said to have been made this season by the Rolfe team of Humboldt, Ia., may have been done on alleys that were regulation. If that is proved the A. B. C. will issue a certificate to this team and the honors of the decade will be given to Messrs. Showers, Finn, Carroll, Barnes and Wheeler, the quintet that composed this team. But there is little danger of the A. B. C. having to issue a certificate for any performance excelling this. To make a total of 1,165 on regulation alleys requires some very high rolling. In the case of the Rolfe team, every man on it is credited with a score of more than 200, of course, except one bowler, who totaled 197. Showers rolled better than this by seven pins in the following games, but he could not join the 200 class in the record-breaking contest. Finn rolled 248; Carroll, 237; Barnes, 240, and Wheeler, 243. Compare this total to the work of the greater New Yorks, who invaded the west a few years ago and swept all teams before them with totals of 900 and thereabouts!

JOHN J. VOORHEIS

In golf there has been a terrible howl among professionals against the use of the patented rubber filled ball on the score that the distances of the holes on standard courses will have to be changed if the players stick to the use of the rubber cored ball. But so long as the patrons of the game are pleased with that style of ball the sphere will have its vogue. So in bowling the loaded ball will have its vogue so long as the bowlers take kindly to it. There is nothing particularly strange about a loaded bowling ball. Years ago when it was possible to get the heaviest and best seasoned lignum vitae—the supply was fair and the demand not so great as it has been for three or four years—the regulation bowling ball turned out by the manufacturers ran more than 15½ pounds. Now the wood is exceptionally good if it yields a regulation ball of that weight. Take a trip to a factory and inspect a half hundred bowling balls that are not green and you will find about one in ten that is heavy enough to suit the roller. He must load it to get the desired weight. And the secret of loading with lead so as to preserve the center of gravity is now solved by all who attempt it. A poorly loaded ball is a nuisance.

Mayor Bookwalter, of Indianapolis, president of the A. B. C., and the enthusiast who declined reelection at the big meeting in his city February 23 to 28, hit the nail on the head, no doubt, when he discussed the amateur standing of the roller who took cash prizes. He could be an amateur sportsman and take cash, because the distinction between the professional and the amateur bowler is not attempted by one critic out of 500. All of the leagues have to have money for running expenses. It falls upon members to put up that money. To give the members an incentive for high scoring all through the season, prizes are offered. Who shall say that John Smith, a jeweler, say, is a professional bowler because he wins $50 for making the best average of the season? If the banker on the same team wins the money, he invariably turns it into the expense fund of his club, yet he accepts the prize. The only real professional in bowling is the man who sells his services to a league simply to participate in a big match. And under the lax rules of the bowling association, even he is not a professional. The occurrence is soon forgotten.

John J. Vorheis, of New York, and a member of the All-American team that made its great transcontinental trip under the most unfavorable circumstances and participated in 324 games on all sorts of alleys with a grand average of 192 129-324, is on the face of the returns the most consistent roller of prominence in the United States. An era in bowling was made by this team. It won every one of the 81 series played and lost only 53 games of the 405 played. Ernest Peterson, average of nearly 185 for the trip; Phil Wolf, average nearly 199, and Al Selbach, with an average of about 181¼, are all men of good physique. Selbach is a baseball player, who has plenty of outdoor athletics. But little Johnny Vorheis, whose record for the trip will never be equaled say the critics, had hard work recuperating from a severe illness in time to start on the transcontinental campaign. It is doubtful whether he ever rolled a ball weighing more than 13½ pounds, and all efforts to match him against Champion Fred Strong, the latter to use the same weight of ball as Vorheis, fell through. It would have been absurd to ask a muscular, vigorous bowler of the Strong type to consent to bowl with a light ball against a man whose work for the trip was never equaled. Sam Karpf, who engineered the All-America's trip and who seems destined to be the perennial secretary of the A. B. C., is not understood in some communities because of his cry against the loaded ball. But those who have watched his progress in bowling are satisfied that Mr. Karpf wants the game to continue as long as possible. He is interested like Uncle Nick Young used to be in baseball. Before Sam Karpf came along there was little to bowling as a game—it was a sporadic adjunct of saloon life in big cities. Before Uncle Nick Young organized baseball it was scarcely destined to become the national game. Sam Karpf has documents that prove conclusively that, while bowling may die out in some places, it bounds stronger than ever in neighboring towns.

CHARLES A. BOOKWALTER

SAM. KARPF

F. G. WESTLAKE.

The Pleasure and Excitement of Tarpon Fishing

How the Great Game Fish of the Gulf of Mexico Are Caught with Rod and Line.

IT IS not easy to sum up in a word in what the charm of fishing consists. There are many kinds of fishing, and many kinds of pleasure to be derived from each variety.

It may be found in the actual casting of the line, in the fighting of the fish, in the quiet and seclusion of the occupation, in the character of the scenery, in the exercise of a personal dexterity which it has taken long to acquire, or in the hope of catching something big.

In fishing for tarpon the desire of catching something big is certainly present, and is an important element in the sport. But mere size is not in itself enough. A few fish, which may hang on to the unfortunate tarpon-fisher for the greater part of the day, is as heavy as four or more tarpon, but is a subject rather for condolence or the cutting of a line than for congratulation. No—an ideal fish to catch, whether big or small, must be a great fighter. The tarpon fills this bill. He is a reckless and impetuous fighter. He will just as soon come straight at you, and even into your boat, as fly from you. He thus possesses two great requisites in a sporting fish, size and gameness.

Even when apparently well hooked, the element of uncertainty, which lends so much pleasurable excitement to fishing generally, is abundantly present. A tarpon can never be counted yours till he is actually landed. His mouth is so hard and bony that it affords but little purchase for any hook that is not well driven home. Frequently the exhausted angler sees the hook come away with a last little feeble wag of the head when the round is nearly won. In pass-fishing for tarpon this is the chief cause for the presence of the element of uncertainty, but there are many others. The risk of the line breaking under the great strain which must of necessity be put upon it is greater than in most other forms of fishing, because not only is it under comparison with the weight of the fish, but the salt water and the hot sun act injuriously on the best of lines. Sharks, too, are apt to rob you of your prize in the very moment of victory. In the Boca Grande Pass, off Florida, they abound naturally, and the capture of tarpon also attracts them. They lie in wait for the fish, and when it is nearly exhausted will attack it, and one bite of a large shark will cut the fish in two. The presence of large numbers of sharks in time drive away the tarpon, and places once frequented by them in large numbers gradually become deserted.

GAFFING A TARPON.

There is another attraction about the tarpon which lies in the fact that he shows himself, and shows himself with no little violence, and a fish that jumps is always more exciting than one that does not. There are few finer sights in angling than the first mad leaps of the tarpon; like a bar of burnished silver, whence he gets his name of Silver King, he flings himself high into the air, and with vigorous shakes of his great head tries to cast away the restraining hook, which he too often succeeds in doing.

When a tarpon jumps you must hold on to him, and not lower the rod or slacken the line, as in the case in pass-fishing, the reason being that unless the strain on the line is kept up, the hook will lose its hold, which, as a rule, is not a very secure one. Indeed, so hard and so well protected is the bony layers in the tarpon's mouth that for some time it was considered impenetrable to the hook, and it was not until the proper tackle and hooks had been invented that any success attended the efforts to land the fish, unless he had swallowed the bait well down, in which case a firm hold could be obtained in a softer portion of his anatomy.

But still-fishing for tarpon has to a great extent died out. I have never practiced it myself, but from all accounts it was not a very exhilarating pastime, and it was always full of disappointments. The plan was to moor the boat in some likely spot and cast the bait out some distance from you and let it lie on the bottom. When the line began to move, it was paid out, or allowed to run out from coils at the bottom of the boat, so that the fish should have time to swallow the bait before he was struck. The advantage of this system consists in the fact that when hooked the fish has much less chance of getting off, but the disappointments are innumerable, as the waits are long and dreary, and when the line moves at last it is very often not the work of the lordly tarpon, but of some small shark, catfish, crab, or other insignificant robber of the sea.

In pass-fishing, where the boats are not too numerous, there is opportunity for movement as well as for the exercise of a greater amount of skill in the change of bait, in working it, in finding by experience the best depth at which to fish on different days, and in playing the fish itself. A fish hooked in the mouth will give much more sport in the sea than a fish hooked in some more vital place will do in fresh water where still-fishing used to be carried on, and he will be more difficult to land, as, the hold being less secure, any slackness in the line is usually punished by the escape of the fish.

The attraction of tarpon fishing lies primarily in the great struggle with the big fish, and to prepare for this struggle it is as well, if possible, to exercise those muscles which will be called into play before engaging the fish himself. The first tarpon will probably cause more exhaustion than a dozen or more caught in a single day when the muscles required have become hardened and skill has been added by experience.

Although another and still larger fish, the so-called flying tuna, can be caught off Santa Catalina, on the coast of California, it is doubtful whether it shows such sport as the great game-fish of the Gulf of Mexico. Its nature is more monotonous, consisting in straight runs away from its would-be captor, unvaried by the great leaps and impetuous antics of the tarpon, which invariably supply a strong element of the unexpected, and until a new sporting fish is found, I think the tarpon in the sea, as the salmon in fresh water, can still claim to be the most exciting quarry of the angler with the rod and line. My best fight was with a fish that I had foulhooked in the middle of the back. It towed my boat out to sea and was on the hook just an hour and a half, but I got it into the boat at last.

W. H. GRENFELL.

WHY MEN ARE BALD.

According to This Account, Frequent Cutting Has Much to Do with It.

"The cause of baldness has at last been found," said a physician to a barber. "We know why it is that men get bald while women don't."

"Well, why is it?" asked the other.

"It is because men wear their hair short," the physician answered, according to the Baltimore Sun. "The proper length for the hair is the natural length—a foot, two feet, or even more. There is a system of muscles at the roots of the hair that need exercise, that need hard usage if they are to keep healthy. If a hair is long its muscles must work hard in order to hold it in place—for a long hair is naturally heavier than a short one—and in order to supply life along its length. Thus pleasantly and healthfully engaged the muscles grow fat and hearty and they keep the hair hearty.

"But if the hair is cut short every month the muscles that must look after it have a slothful, idle existence. They do not work; they get flaccid and anemic; they become worthless. And in consequence the hair they support becomes worthless, dries, shrivels and finally falls out.

"Hence the hair must be worn long if baldness is to be avoided."

The barber had listened with a frown of disapproval. Then he said:

"That theory is all right, but why doesn't it hold good in the matter of the beard? The beard is worn as short, by most men, as it can be shaved, but we never hear of anyone getting bald on the cheeks or the chin."

Indefinite.

"You say his wife's a brunette? I thought he married a blond."

"He did, but she dyed."—Michigan Wrinkle.

Maud Gonne, the "Irish Joan of Arc," Soon to Wed

A Sketch of Her Romantic Career and the Struggle She Has Made for Ireland.

Major McBride.

It is not always a harmony of enthusiasm that is responsible for a mating, but we believe we now have one to chronicle. Not that we assume we are personally acquainted with the details of the love-making, the perhaps thousand and one reasons why Miss Maud Gonne and Maj. McBride out of all the world chose each other for wedded companion; but we certainly have cause to imagine that the views they held in common in regard to Irish affairs proved a bond to unite them.

Miss Gonne is famous for her beauty and her wealth, but especially because she has devoted these gifts to the uplifting of downtrodden Ireland. She has given her money for the cause she espouses, has made use of her beauty to influence others to become supporters of that cause, and has traveled many miles to lecture upon the wrongs she deplores. Not only has she taken the part of the Irish peasant, but during the burgher's war with the England's position. As we said above, Miss Gonne is a good hater.

And yet she still has many friends left in England; many warm admirers. Her good looks, which are unquestioned, probably help not a few to forgive her extreme views and her bold expression of these views.

Unlike the French Joan, Miss Gonne was not born in a humble walk of life. Her father was wealthy and a colonel of dragoons in the British army, thus possessing not only wealth but also social position. Both he and his wife were loyal to England. Maud was born in Dublin castle, and whilst a child was a great pet with the viceregal set in Dublin. In the capital city of Ireland she spent her early years, and then lived for seven years in France. When she returned to Ireland, it was expected she would take her "proper" place in society, would identify herself with the class to which she belonged.

But one day the story of an eviction started the warm-hearted girl to try to right the wrongs she saw all about her. She departed from the doctrines and principles of her old friend (her parents now being dead), united herself with the nationalists; and, at the age of 19, entered heart and soul into

MAUD GONNE.

Irish she spoke in behalf of the battle-worn Boers. So you see, she and the major have much in common.

In this day, when we are apt to decry sentiment, or at least are a bit ashamed of it, we smile a little at the grandiloquence of the phrase "Irish Joan of Arc." And yet Miss Gonne, if not a figure of mold heroic enough to compare with the tragic Maid of Orleans, certainly is picturesque and very interesting. In appearance she is decidedly impressive. She is extremely tall for a woman, quite six feet. Her nobly-shaped head is crowned with hair of light brown hue, below which shine out wonderful eyes, also brown of hue. Form and carriage both are queenly, and, notwithstanding her unusual size, she is very graceful. Miss Gone is now about 35 years old.

By no manner of means is this well-born Irish enthusiast to be taken for an ordinary platform ranter; she is every inch a lady. A writer in Harper's Bazar describes her as she appeared before a New York audience: "She has none of the earmarks of the platform lecturer. She is gentle in voice and manner, beautiful, illogical, sympathetic, very much in earnest. She lectures in a low-cut black velvet gown, which is caught at the breast with an immense silver brooch, and carries a loose bunch of white roses. She is everything the artist could desire, for she might have stepped down from one of Gainsborough's canvases. When this fervent, poetic creature stands before a crowd of yelling Irishmen, with the flags of the Transvaal and Ireland and the Orange Free State waving about her, and Father Drumgoole's brass band crashing out martial airs, the enthusiasm and applause are tremendous."

Though a lady, Miss Gonne is a good hater, neither in lecture nor interview dealing lightly with those she considers oppressors. She is an agitator of agitators, and her fire and fervor find instant response in the impulsive crowd to whom she is accustomed to appeal. Concerning the pro-Boer agitation she carried on in this country a short time ago, some of the American papers remarked that Miss Gonne's vindictive clamor was made because she frankly acknowledged "England's difficulty was Ireland's opportunity;" and that it was her policy to assail England wherever the chance offered, regardless of the right or wrong of the work to which she believed herself called. To help solve the difficult problem of reducing the wretchedness of the Irish poor, to labor for the freeing of the political prisoners of Ireland, to this she resolved to dedicate her talents.

The following anecdote is told concerning the particular eviction that aroused Miss Gonne's sympathies:

"But one evening, at a brilliant dinner party, she heard the host, an Irish landlord, tell the story of an eviction.

"A man had refused to pay rent. Discrediting his story that the holding barely yielded enough to keep tenant and family from the grave, the landlord turned them out.

"'I saw the reward of their obstinacy this evening,' said the host. 'I passed them on the way home. They are living in a ditch. His wife,' added the landlord, 'is ill; I think she will die to-night.'

Miss Gonne awaited an outburst of sympathy. But from the brilliant company came only complaints of stubborn tenants.

Miss Gonne decided to do something for these "stubborn" people. She called on Parnell, Davitt, O'Leary and other leaders, who at first were suspicious of the genuineness and strength of the intentions of the rich young girl. But she proved her earnestness by her works. She went among the evicted tenants, and preached to them the need of supporting home rule. She boldly stirred up tenant against landlord, reinstated evicted tenants, and in cases where the cabins of the homeless had been burned, herself built new ones. She restored an entire village, though near by was a garrison of English troops. Finally, a warrant was issued for her arrest, and she fled to France. There she found many supporters, and also found a home.

After close study of conditions at home, Miss Gonne traveled extensively to make them conditions known abroad. Twice she has visited America on lecturing tours. On the continent she has traveled a great deal, exerting her energies especially in France and Belgium. In Paris she established a paper, Ireland Libre.

Of a truth, there is much work waiting to be accomplished in Ireland. Whether it is to be accomplished by the impetuous or some one fanatic, or by a slow revolution who shall say?

KATHERINE POPE.

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

THE GOVERNOR'S WORK.

Governor Murphy has managed to wade through the mass of bills passed by the Legislature. To 126 of them he attached his signature. Twelve he vetoed. Of the latter, one was a measure he much desired but it was found defective and so he vetoed it in order to avoid any possible complications. It was the bill which makes it a misdemeanor to use the American flag for advertising purposes.

Of really great importance was the act, among those he signed, that fixes September 22 as the date for a public vote on the State constitutional amendment regarding the judiciary. It decides whether the people of New Jersey want a change in the courts.

There were some bills which received the Governor's signature before the Legislature adjourned. The bulk of the measures were passed during the last few days and Mr. Murphy has been taking his time about signing them. Governor Voorhees tried to get rid of the measures as soon as they came from the Legislature and sat up late nights working on them. Mr. Murphy's more deliberate plan seems the better one as it may be the means of discovering some improper bill, rushed through in the last hours of the Legislature.

A GREAT MISTAKE.

Governor Murphy must certainly have had the courage of his convictions when he vetoed the bill which prohibited the sale of cigarettes to all boys under sixteen. The mere vetoing of such a measure would raise storm enough from certain quarters by itself but Governor Murphy's remark about it is going to make him the subject for a lively attack. "Most boys at sixteen smoke and generally without injury" the Governor is quoted as saying.

Even if Governor Murphy did think that cigarette smoking was not injurious to boys and young men, it must be admitted that it was very poor judgment to publicly proclaim that fact. As a private citizen Franklin Murphy has a right to think as he pleases but, as chief executive of the State of New Jersey, it is a very poor policy to make such an assertion when it is recognized as a scientifically proved fact that cigarettes are harmful and when the entire educational department of the State is doing its best to point out the evils of that same habit to the rising generation.

It may be that Mr. Murphy has been wrongly quoted but there seems good reason to believe that he was not. If he has said that, he has stamped himself a man of poor judgment and narrow mind. There wasn't anything particularly harmful in his recent statement that the record of the last Legislature was one to be proud of although it was rather amusing to anyone who had followed the happenings at the State House this winter. Now, however, he has, if the quotation is a true one, made a statement that may seriously interfere with the efforts of one of the State departments and one, too, which deserves the Governor's strongest support. Whatever may have been his ideas regarding an attempt to legislate a bad habit out of existence, it certainly is not fitting for the Governor to thus encourage that which is of menace to the welfare of the young men and boys of the State.

WHY CHANGE WAS MADE.

One of the bills signed by Governor Murphy, which has thus become a law, is the one which provides that the Common Council may, by ordinance, provide for the election of a city tax collector by the Council by a two-thirds vote. This measure was introduced by Assemblyman Wm. Newcorn for the express benefit of Plainfield. A bill, somewhat similar, was introduced early in the session but met defeat, Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer being loud in his opposition to it. A subsequent explanation of the situation in Plainfield led the opposition to the first bill to disappear and the second one went through without much opposition.

Most cities that have a collector elected by the people possess a delinquent tax collector, who is appointed. Plainfield used to have one but the office of delinquent collector was abolished and the two places combined into one which was filled by popular vote. The trouble has been that collectors were not anxious to round up delinquents with a sharp turn when they realized that each enemy made meant a vote lost at the next election. So it was argued that, in order to obtain the greatest efficiency for the office, it was necessary to take it out of the elective list and have the Common Council make the choice.

Now that the measure has become a law, it is to be expected that the Common Council will act under it. An election will then be held in the Common Council and Frank H. Smith, the present city collector, will undoubtedly be chosen to fill the place. Then one can expect that Mr. Smith will go after the delinquents with a sharp stick. While the Martin act enables him to round up delinquent taxes on real estate, the tax on personal property has always been hard to collect. He will now be enabled in new more drastic methods without fear of injuring his chances of re election.

REPORT OF ORGANIZED AID.

Intelligent helpfulness in place of impulsive and unthinking almsgiving underlies the operations of the Organized Aid Association in its dealings with poverty and misfortune.

The president of the association, Henry M. Maxson, gives an idea of the breadth of the work in the closing words of his annual address:

"It is not merely a 'charity' society, it is an employment agency; a legal aid society, a children's aid society; an association for the improvement of the condition of the poor; a refuge for the friendless; a society to care for the insane, the feeble-minded and the imbecile; a society of female guardians; a lend-a-hand society; in short, a center of information and aid both for those who are no longer masters of their own fortunes and for those who wish to lift up the fallen and relieve the needy."

The report of the general secretary, Miss Sarah Manton VonBoskerck, is full of encouragement and chronicles 1510 calls made, 980 calls received, 603 letters written and 391 letters received. The analysis of cases, showing the disposition of applications and the causes of distress tell a story of wise judgment and careful investigation.

"In the multitude of counsel there is wisdom," is an old and true saying, and the problems that would baffle one single handed and alone, can be brought to the bi-weekly conference for friendly visitors and before the district committee that meets monthly. Prevention and cure are the results of this careful study and oversight, and the community is wise that appreciates the value of such an association as the Organized Aid in Plainfield and co-operates with the leaders in their good work. Co-operation does not mean shifting all responsibility for your charitable work on this organization and saying work for me. It means rather, working with, and side by side.

A DELUSION.

In closing an editorial about the passage of the annexation "repealer," the Somerville Unionist-Gazette remarks:

"We trust that the minority of annexationists will now settle down and submit to the will of the majority gracefully."

Poor deluded people! They still insist that the situation in North Plainfield today is the same as it was last fall when the annexation election was held. They forget that things are vastly different now as a municipal and a school election have shown. And they might just as well wake up to the fact that annexation and consolidation are both going to come to pass even if the Legislature and Governor Murphy have attempted to prevent the borough from submitting to the will of the majority gracefully or otherwise.

YEAR'S WORK.

Superintendent F. E. Smith Summarized It at Trinity Sunday-School Yesterday.

At the Sunday-school session at Trinity Reformed church, Sunday, Superintendent F. E. Smith presented a report summarizing the year's work. The total membership of the school is 666, an increase of four for the year. The largest attendance on any one Sunday was 413 and the smallest 68. The average attendance for the year was 289. The receipts for the year amounted to $747.06 and the disbursements $633.93, leaving a balance in the treasury of $113.13. The sum of $190.93 was collected for missionary purposes and $10 was received for a special purpose, making a total of $140.93 for the missionary fund. This makes the total receipts for the year, $887.99.

In the report of the home department, it was shown that there is an increase of sixty five in the membership. There are thirteen visitors in this department, and 138 members.

Gymnasium Dinner.

A gymnasium dinner will be served at the gymnasium at the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening, April 27, when the members of the association will be the hosts. Donation until Noon and the committee under whose supervision the arrangements are being made.

Retail Clerks' Dance.

The Retail Clerks' Mutual Aid Association will hold its reception and dance at the Casino Thursday evening, April 23.

Only One Case.

The only case before Recorder Dond in the borough court Saturday night was Henry Bodenheimer, who was arraigned on a charge of drunkenness. Sentence was suspended.

OVER THREE HUNDRED AT CHOIR'S EUCHRE

Successful Event Given by Choir of St. Mary's Church Monday Evening.

MANY PRIZE WINNERS

AFTER THE GAME WAS OVER, DANCING WAS ENJOYED.

The Attendance Was Very Large and Euchre Was Declared to be a Great Success — Those Who Won the Various Prizes.

Success from every point of view attended the grand euchre given by the choir of St. Mary's church, in the school hall, Monday evening. First among the social events to take place after the Lenten season, the attendance was very large and gayety reigned supreme. The proceeds from the affair will be devoted to the fund for organ improvements.

Play began shortly after 8 o'clock with eighty tables in use. Nearly all of the participants were expert players and the result was some spirited contests. Games were contested until shortly before midnight when the prize winners were announced. Among them were the following:

Miss Margaret Harding, first, 10 games, china coffee set; Miss Mamie Casey, second, 10 games, umbrella; others were Miss Theresa McGinley, Miss Jeannette Summers, Miss Marie Flynn, Miss May McLaughlin, Miss Julia Day, Mrs. John Traynor, Mrs. Frank McInerny, Mrs. Frederick Burner, Edward Harding, Michael Connolly, Thomas Carty, Jr., and Robert M. Clark. The prizes were exceptionally handsome affairs and were contributed by friends of the choir.

When the prizes were awarded, the hall was cleared for dancing and the rivals for euchre honors dropped antagonism for the delights of Terpsichore's art. Music for the occasion was furnished by O'Reilly's orchestra. It was 2 o'clock before the enjoyable occasion terminated.

Credit for the arrangements and carrying out of the euchre rests with the church choir, the members of which worked hard to make it successful. There were no particular committees outside of the reception which consisted of Miss Katherine Carty and Miss Anna O'Keefe. Miss O'Keefe was in general charge and he was assisted by all the members in caring for the players. Daniel Corinne acted as floor manager during the dancing.

BADLY BEATEN.

City High School Defeated by Boys' High School at Brooklyn Saturday Afternoon.

The baseball team of the Brooklyn Boy's High School defeated the City High School team Saturday afternoon by a score of 16 to 2. The game was played in Brooklyn.

The Brooklyn boys had no difficulty in defeating their opponents, scoring almost at will. Though there was an improvement in the batting of the local team, the Plainfield boys seemed unable to connect with the ball in the field. The Brooklyn team was in excellent form both at the bat and in the field. Twelve singles were made off VanAuken and only three errors, against eleven by the High School.

VanAuken was in good form in the box, striking out eight men. He had no support in the field and the large score was due to the errors in the field.

The score by innings follows:

B. B. H. S.	1	1	7	1	1	2	3	2	—16
P. H. S...	0	0	0	0	1	0	1	0	—2

HIGH SCHOOL SITE.

The Building Committee of School Board Empowered to Select a Site.

The City Board of Education held a special meeting, Saturday evening, for the purpose of discussing matters relating to the proposed new High School.

The building committee was empowered to select a suitable site and report at another special meeting to be held April 26.

It was also decided to engage a consulting architect in preparing plans.

Soloist Been Ill.

Miss Lonella C. Harris, soprano soloist at the First Baptist church, who has been detained at her home in Elizabeth with a severe attack of the grip, has about recovered and she filled her position at the church Sunday morning.

Bruised by Trolley.

William Conaway, of the borough, was struck by a trolley car on the local systems, Saturday night. He was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital but as his injuries consist mainly of bruises he will be detained but a short time.

Miss Annie Cooper, of Sycamore street, is visiting her grandmother at Raritan for a few days.

HOW THE GOVERNOR VIEWS THE SESSION

His Publicity Expressed Opinion as to the Acts of the Legislature This Winter.

HE SAYS HE IS PLEASED

BUT HE EXPRESSES REGRET ABOUT CERTAIN SUBJECTS.

He Reviews the Work Done by the Legislature and the Most Important Measures That Were Passed at the Session.

It is rather interesting to hear how Governor Murphy has summarized the work done at the last session of the State Legislature. After the final adjournment of that body last week, the Governor made a public statement. Under the existing conditions, it was requisite that he should find as much good as possible. Those who remember his recommendations to the Legislature when it first convened and his repeated messages to that body will find this summary particularly interesting.

"The result obtained," the Governor said, "have been particularly gratifying and pleasing to me, and I think they will be quite as gratifying to the public.

"As we all know, the Legislature was slow about getting down to work. In fact, most of the important measures were left to be acted upon until nearly the end of a session which was rather longer than usual. As we also know, there was some natural apprehension as to what the outcome might be. Happily those apprehensions were wholly dissipated, and the laws passed will be found, I believe, of more far-reaching importance to the people of the State than any results reached by any Legislature of our time.

"Of course, in Newark, we think the Passaic pollution question was the most important subject of the session, and because of the large population in that part of the State and the vast interests involved I personally think it was the most important that was considered. After a long fight the Trunk Sewer bill was passed by a handsome vote. Now, we are going carefully to watch the Passaic and clean out and wash out the filthy river, and rid the great Passaic Valley of what has come to be an intolerable nuisance.

"Next in importance, if not really more important, is undoubtedly the primary election law. When everything else that this Legislature has done is forgotten, I believe that law will remain a monument to its memory. While not entirely what the people as a whole would like to have had, I believe that the bill contains the essentials of a competent primary election law. Experience, I think, will show that it can be improved, but it will accomplish much in doing away with the corruption propagated by separate primaries, the votes of the same men at the primaries of both parties, and other evils of the old methods, and will convince the independent voters that they can control primaries and nominations when they desire to do so. It is peculiarly gratifying to me that the bill should have been finally passed as a non-partisan measure.

"One of the other important laws is that for the purchase of voting machines. We are going to have as a first instalment enough of the machines to give them a fair and thorough trial. If the results prove to be satisfactory we can provide next year for the purchase of the machines for general use.

"The new child labor law is another important measure. It is simple, and yet comprehensive. What it does is to raise the employment age for boys from twelve years to fourteen years as the time when they may begin work in the factories or elsewhere. A companion law makes it compulsory for boys to attend school until they are fourteen years old, and does not require them to go to school after they begin work. This is reasonable. It is hardly fair to ask a boy to work in a factory ten hours a day and then spend two hours in study at night. The new law will simplify factory inspection and give the factory inspector a chance to enforce the law with less difficulty.

"Another thing as important as any we have done is to provide for a hospital for the consumptive poor. The appropriation for the institution is $300,000, and I have taken the contract to see to it that the hospital is completed within that amount. If I live and retain my health I shall endeavor to fulfil the contract.

"The Morris Canal Commission plan is, I think, a wise one. Whether it be right or wrong, there is a belief that some facts should be known before the proposed abandonment of the canal is permitted, and the Legislature apparently has been unwilling to vote for the abandonment until it knows more about it. From the investigations made and the conclusions reached by the eminent men I have asked to do this work, I believe the question may be settled next year to the satisfaction of all.

"Strange to say, no measure of the year seemed to attract more public attention and discussion that that for the regulation of the speed of automobiles. The bill which was passed seems to satisfy almost everybody, and it puts New Jersey among the foremost of the States that have adopted automobile statutes.

"We also have passed a law to prevent the desecration of the flag. Why this was not done before, I fail to understand. About thirty States have a similar law, but our own State has held up this measure for a long time. It is right that the flag should be protected from desecration, and I am glad that we are going to do it.

"All in all, the session has been satisfactory and gratifying to me, and the Legislature is to be congratulated on its work."

The Governor expressed some disappointment that the bills putting county officials on salaries and establishing a commission to report upon the advisability of a State Board of Control had not been passed. He also said that he was disappointed that the Legislature had not passed the bills advocated by him to prevent strike suits against corporations.

EASTER MESSAGE.

Dominant Thought at Impressive Funeral Service of Walter Raynolds Sunday Afternoon.

The Easter message was the dominant thought at the beautiful service held yesterday afternoon in loving memory of Walter Raynolds, who died on the morning of Good Friday. The service was held at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Raynolds, at Jackson avenue, at 4:30 o'clock and was very largely attended.

Mr. Raynolds was deeply interested in both the religious work and the musical life of Plainfield, and had many friends in the church and social circles in which he moved. He was secretary of the Congregational church Sunday-school, and a member of the Endeavor Society, and both were very largely represented among these present.

The service was conducted by Rev. Charles Lyman Goodrich, the young man's pastor, assisted by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis. A quartette, composed of Mrs. F. M. Ward, Mrs. Gidden, and Geo. Smith and Wm. Holmes, rendered the following hymns: "I Need Thee Every Hour," "Hark, Hark, My Soul," and "Never Alone."

The Scripture readings were passages of the Revelation which describe the beauty and happiness of the heavenly home. In his address, Mr. Goodrich dwelt especially on the beautiful character of his young parishioner, and his influence in his home in giving himself with his Father's work in boyhood, serving Him through life, and dying on the anniversary of the Saviour's death. He also emphasized the thought that to one so beautiful in character death was not a defeat, but a conquest of suffering and weakness, and a going to his reward and the presence of his Saviour.

The tender and heartfelt prayer offered by Dr. Lewis was full of the Easter joy and thankfulness for the blessed life of the reunion in the better land.

Many beautiful floral tributes were placed about the casket. The burial will take place in Concord Mass.

DEATH OF C. D. WHITALL.

Passed Away at His East Fifth Street Home After Long Illness.

Charles D. Whitall, of 223 East Fifth street, passed away very quietly on the morning of Easter Day, after a long illness. He was fifty-seven years of age.

Mr. Whitall was a native of New Jersey, but much of his youth was spent in and near Philadelphia. As a young man he was connected with the firm of Whitall, Tatum & Co., glass manufacturers, of Philadelphia and New York. He married a Plainfield young woman, the sister of Charles H. Clifton, of West Seventh street. Soon after his marriage he went to Minneapolis, where he became a leading book seller and stationer. He lived in Minneapolis nineteen years. In 1897 he moved to this city, where he has since resided, being engaged in the stationery business in New York. At the time of his death he was proprietor of a stationery store in Nassau street, New York.

Mr. Whitall was connected with the Orthodox Society of Friends in Philadelphia. He leaves a wife and seven children: Charles P. Whitall, of Stonington, Conn., and two daughters and four sons who reside in this city. He also leaves a brother and a sister, both of whom live in Philadelphia.

Policeman to Speak.

Roundsman William Nesbitt, of the Thirty-eighth Precinct, New York, will address the men's mass meeting at Y. M. C. A. Hall, Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The National Staff Band, of the Salvation Army, will render selections and accompany the singing.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

The Standard Railroad of America.

PROTECTED THROUGHOUT BY THE INTERLOCKING SWITCH AND BLOCK SIGNAL SYSTEMS.

ON AND AFTER APR. 9, 1905.

Trains will leave Plainfield (Park Avenue Station) as follows:

7 35 a. m.—Western Express, daily, with Vestibule Sleeping Cars and Dining Car, for Pittsburg and Chicago, except Saturday, for Toledo.

8 07 p. m.—Pacific Express, daily, with Pullman Vestibule Sleeping Cars, for Pittsburg and Chicago, daily for Knoxville, via Shenandoah Valley Route, for Cleveland, except Saturday.

Seaboard Air Line Express—1.07 p. m. daily.

For Rahway, Elizabethport and Newark, 6 05, 7 28, 8 07, 9 20 a. m., 12 02, 1 36, 3 08, 4 10, 5 07, 6 20, 10 06 p. m. On Sunday at 1 00, 8 07, 9 20 a. m., 4 10, 5 07, 6 20, 10 06 p. m.

For Newark and New York—6 05, 6 35, 6 55, 7 28, 7 55, 8 07, 8 35, 9 20, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 a. m., 12 02, 12 30, 1 00, 1 36, 2 08, 2 38, 3 08, 3 38, 4 10, 4 40, 5 07, 5 37, 6 20, 6 50, 7 20, 7 50, 8 20, 8 50, 9 20, 9 50, 10 06, 10 30, 11 00 p. m. Sunday—6 05, 6 35, 7 28, 7 55, 8 07, 8 35, 9 20, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00, 11 30 a. m., 12 02, 12 30, 1 00, 1 36, 2 08, 2 38, 3 08, 3 38, 4 10, 4 40, 5 07, 5 37, 6 20, 6 50, 7 20, 7 50, 8 20, 8 50, 9 20, 9 50, 10 06, 10 30, 11 00 p. m.

For Philadelphia—1.35, 6 45, 7 15, 8 00, 8 30, 9 07, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00 a. m., 12 00, 12 30, 1 00, 1 30, 2 00, 2 30, 3 00, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00 p. m. Sunday—1.35, 6 45, 7 15, 8 00, 8 30, 9 07, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00 a. m., 12 00, 12 30, 1 00, 1 30, 2 00, 2 30, 3 00, 3 30, 4 00, 4 30, 5 00, 5 30, 6 00, 6 30, 7 00, 7 30, 8 00, 8 30, 9 00, 9 30, 10 00, 10 30, 11 00 p. m.

For Atlantic City—10.23 a. m. and 2 35 p. m. Sundays—10 23 a. m. and 2 35 p. m. Through Parlor Cars. Buffet Parlor Cars and Vestibuled Trains. Buffet Parlor Cars and Smoking Car, Parlor Cars, Dining Car and Standard Coaches on Sundays.

For Ocean Grove—7.07 a. m. week-days.

For Rahway—1 01, 6 45, 7 28, 8 05, 9 07, 9 40, 11 00, 11 40 a. m., 12 40, 1 17, 2 07, 2 42, 3 42, 4 37, 5 42, 6 30, 7 05, 7 40, 8 45, 9 55, 11 05 p. m. Sunday—1 01, 6 45, 7 28, 8 05, 9 07, 9 40, 11 00, 11 40 a. m., 12 40, 1 17, 2 07, 2 42, 3 42, 4 37, 5 42, 6 30, 7 05, 7 40, 8 45, 9 55, 11 05 p. m.

For New Brunswick—1 01, 6 45, 7 28, 8 05, 9 07, 9 40, 11 00 a. m., 12 40, 1 17, 2 07, 2 42, 3 42, 4 37, 5 42, 6 30, 7 05, 7 40, 8 45, 9 55, 11 05 p. m. Sunday—1 01, 6 45, 7 28, 8 05, 9 07, 9 40, 11 00, 11 40 a. m., 12 40, 1 17, 2 07, 2 42, 3 42, 4 37, 5 42, 6 30, 7 05, 7 40, 8 45, 9 55, 11 05 p. m.

For Woodbridge—6 45, 9 40, 11 00 a. m., 12 40, 2 42, 4 37, 6 30, 7 40, 8 45, 9 55, 11 05 p. m. Sunday—1 01, 6 45, 9 40, 11 00 a. m., 12 40, 2 42, 4 37, 6 30, 7 40, 8 45, 9 55, 11 05 p. m.

For Perth Amboy—6 45, 9 40, 11 00 a. m., 12 40, 2 42, 4 37, 6 30, 7 40, 8 45, 9 55, 11 05 p. m. Sunday—1 01, 6 45, 9 40, 11 00 a. m., 12 40, 2 42, 4 37, 6 30, 7 40, 8 45, 9 55, 11 05 p. m.

For Lambertville, Phillipsburg and Belvidere, via Trenton—6 45, 11 00 a. m., 2 42 p. m. week-days. Sundays—6 45, 11 00 a. m., 6 30 p. m.

For Flemington—11 00 a. m. and 6 30 p. m.

For New Hope—11 00 a. m. week-days, via Monmouth Junction—6 05, 11 40 a. m., 2 38 and 5 23 p. m. week-days. Sundays—9 07 a. m.

For Long Branch, Asbury Park, Ocean Grove and Points on New York and Long Branch R. R.—9 07 a. m. week-days. Sundays—9 07 a. m. and 8 00 p. m. Stop at Interlaken for Asbury Park, Ocean Grove and Sunday Service.

For Brooklyn, N. Y.—All through trains connect at Jersey City with Brooklyn Transit Company's Annex, affording direct transfer to car at Exchange Place, avoiding ferry. Interstate and Suburban New York Cars.

Leave New York for Elizabeth—From West Twenty-third Street Station—5 40, 6 40, 7 25, 8 25, 9 25, 10 25, 11 25 a. m., 12 25, 1 25, 2 25, 3 25, 4 25, 5 25, 6 25, 7 25, 8 25, 9 25, 10 25, 11 55 p. m. Sunday—5 40, 6 40, 7 25, 8 25, 9 25, 10 25, 11 25 a. m., 12 25, 1 25, 2 25, 3 25, 4 25, 5 25, 6 25, 7 25, 8 25, 9 25, 10 25, 11 55 p. m. From Cortlandt Street—5 00, 6 00, 6 45, 7 45, 8 45, 9 45, 10 45, 11 45 a. m., 12 45, 1 45, 2 45, 3 45, 4 45, 5 45, 6 45, 7 45, 8 45, 9 45, 10 45, 11 45 p. m. Sunday—5 00, 6 00, 6 45, 7 45, 8 45, 9 45, 10 45, 11 45 a. m., 12 45, 1 45, 2 45, 3 45, 4 45, 5 45, 6 45, 7 45, 8 45, 9 45, 10 45, 11 45 p. m.

For time from Dodyenaae and Cortlandt Street, consult local time-tables to be procured from agents.

W. W. ATTERBURY, Gen'l Manager. J. R. WOOD, Gen'l Pass. Agent.

Vegetable and Flower SEEDS

Reliable and Tested. Catalogue Mailed Free

WEEBER & DON

Seed Merchants 114 CHAMBERS STREET NEW YORK

A. WOLFF,

Manufacturer of

CIGARS.

And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers articles. Factory from 361 West Front street, to south side of Somerset s reet first door from Front street, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

AGENTS WANTED.

LIFE OF T. DEWITT TALMAGE, by his son, REV. FRANK DEWITT TALMAGE and associate editors of Christian Herald. Only book endorsed by Talmage family. Enormous profit for agents who act quickly. Outfit 50 cents. Write immediately CLARK & CO., 277 S. Fourth Street, Phila., Pa. Mention this paper. 2 18

GEORGE W. DAY,

General Auctioneer.

Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 123, Dunellen, N J., or address in care of Constitutionalist Terms reasonable

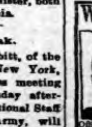
Woolston & Buckle,

PAINTERS.

Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies

141-145 North avenue.

We Can Sell Your Farm,



Factory, business or Real-estate anywhere, wherever located. We have sold hundreds of others, why not yours? We have an original method which seldom fails. Send description and price and we will explain how.

MONEY

Offices in all principal cities; highest references. A. J. ROTTNER & CO., 278 Broadway, New York. Established 1891.

Reading System

New Jersey Central.

Stations in New York foot of Liberty, and South Ferry, Whitehall Streets.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT, Feb. 5, 1905.

Trains leave Plainfield (Central Railroad of New Jersey time) as follows:

For Somerville—5.35, 7.10, 8.05, 9.05, 10.05, 11.05 a. m., 12.05, 1.05, 2.05, 3.05, 4.05, 5.05, 6.05, 7.05, 8.05, 9.05, 10.05, 11.05 p. m. Sundays—8.35, 9.35, 10.35, 11.35 a. m., 12.35, 1.35, 2.35, 3.35, 4.35, 5.35, 6.35, 7.35, 8.35, 9.35, 10.35, 11.35 p. m.

For Bound Brook—5.35, 7.10, 8.05, 9.05, 10.05, 11.05 a. m., 12.05, 1.05, 2.05, 3.05, 4.05, 5.05, 6.05, 7.05, 8.05, 9.05, 10.05, 11.05 p. m. Sundays—8.35, 9.35, 10.35, 11.35 a. m., 12.35, 1.35, 2.35, 3.35, 4.35, 5.35, 6.35, 7.35, 8.35, 9.35, 10.35, 11.35 p. m.

For Bethlehem, Allentown and Manch Chunk—5.35, 9.05 a. m., 2.05, 5.05 p. m. Sundays—9.35 a. m., 5.35 p. m.

For Williamsport and Sunbury—9.05, 9.05 a. m., 5.05 p. m. Sundays—5.35p. m.

For Long Branch and ocean ports, etc.—7.10, 9.05 a. m., 4.05 p. m. Sundays—8.35 a. m., 5.35 p. m.

For Red Bank (except Ocean Grove), etc.—7.10 (11.35 p. m. Wednesday and Saturday only), 9.05 a. m., 4.05 p. m. Sundays—8.35 a. m., 5.35 p. m.

For Hackettstown, Stroudsburg and Water Gap—9.05, 9.05 a. m., 5.05 p. m. Sundays—5.35 p. m.

For Trenton—5.35, 6.35, 7.10, 7.45, 8.05, 8.35, 9.05, 9.35, 10.05, 10.35, 11.05, 11.35 a. m., 12.05, 12.35, 1.05, 1.35, 2.05, 2.35, 3.05, 3.35, 4.05, 4.35, 5.05, 5.35, 6.05, 6.35, 7.05, 7.35, 8.05, 8.35, 9.05, 9.35, 10.05, 10.35, 11.05, 11.35 p. m. Sundays—8.35, 9.35, 10.35, 11.35 a. m., 12.35, 1.35, 2.35, 3.35, 4.35, 5.35, 6.35, 7.35, 8.35, 9.35, 10.35, 11.35 p. m.

For Reading and Harrisburg—5.35, 6.35, 9.05, 10.05 a. m., 12.05, 1.05, 4.05, 5.05, 6.05 (through train), 7.10 miles Sundays—5.35, 9.35, 10.35 a. m., 5.35 p. m.

For Pottsville, Sunbury and Williamsport—9.05, 9.05 a. m., 5.05 p. m. Sundays—5.35 p. m.

For Baltimore and Washington—2.35, 11.35 a. m., 12.35 a. m., 3.15 (Parlor cars only, Royal Blue) p. m. Sundays—2.35 a. m., 12.35 night.

For Atlantic City—1.30, 11.35 a. m., 3.15, 6.00 p. m. Sundays—11.35 a. m., 3.15, 6.00 p. m., 12.35 night.

Chicago cars at Round Brook.

W. G. BESLER, Vice Pres. & Gen. Man'r.

C. M. BURT, Gen. Pass. Agent.

Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Time Table in Effect February 5, 1905.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Leave South Plainfield 10 34 a. m.

Daily (except Sunday) local to Manch Chunk, connecting with the Black Diamond express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Detroit and Chicago.

Leave South Plainfield 4 40 p. m.

Daily, Solid Vestibule train for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Toronto, Detroit, Chicago and Cleveland, connecting with local additions, at Mauch Chunk.

Other time of local trains see pocket timetables. Telephone No. 112-R

FRANK ROWLEY, City Ticket Agent, 32 West Front Street, Plainfield, N. J.

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POSTOFFICE.

Office open 7 a. m. to 6 p. m. Sundays, 9 to 10 a. m. Carrier's collection every hour later.

NEW YORK MAILS.

Arrive—5.00, 8.00, 10.00 a. m., 12.00 m., 3.00, 5.00 p. m.

Close—7.30, 9.30 a. m., 12.00 m., 2.30, 5.30 p. m.

SOMERVILLE AND BASTON.

Arrive—8.40 a. m., 2.35 and 7.00 p. m.

Close—8.30 a. m., 2.15 and 6.00 p. m.

ELIZABETH—Direct.

Close—2.30 p. m.

NEWARK—Direct.

Arrive—9.40 a. m., 2.35, 6.00 p. m.

Close—7.30 a. m., 12.00 m., 2.30, 5.30 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—7.00, 8.00, 11.00 a. m., 2.35 and 7.00 p. m.

Close—7.30 a. m., 12.00 m., 2.30, 5.30, 10.00 p. m.

Through fast mail for West and South close 8.30 and 10.00 p. m.

Through fast mail for East, close 1.00 and 6.00 p. m.

WATCHUNG, WARRENVILLE & GALLIA (Mt. Bethel)

Arrive—1.02 p. m. Close—8.30 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 9.00 to 10.00 a. m.

Mail closes at 6.15 p. m.

E. M. BIRD, P. M.

SETTLERS' TICKETS

TO WESTERN POINTS

ARE NOW ON SALE VIA THE

LEHIGH VALLEY RAILROAD,

At Extremely Low Rates of Fare.

Dates of Sale.

Daily to and including April 29, 1905.

Stop-overs.

Stop-overs will be allowed by Western lines subject to the usual regulations of the line over which tickets read. Detailed information as to points of stop-over, limits, etc., may be secured on application to agents.

Through Trains via the Lehigh Valley R. R.

Connect at Chicago with all lines for the Northwest, West and Southwest, and transfer coupons are included in all through tickets routed beyond Chicago where necessary.

Inquire of Ticket Agents Lehigh Valley Railroad, for time of trains, rates, or address, Charles S. Lee, General Passenger Agent, 26 Cortlandt Street, New York. 2 347 ow C 3577

Sold Farm.

John Wolff has sold his farm at Rose Hill to Mrs. Parnier, of New York. The new owner will make many improvements to the place and will make it a model summer home. It is said that the price paid for the property was $6,200.

New Soprano.

Miss Cornelia Miller has signed a contract for one year to sing at the Congregational church as soprano. The other members of the quartette are Mrs. Charlotte M. Ross, contralto; R. Wilson Derby, bass; and Fred Talamy, tenor.

More Room for Express Co.

A large brick addition is being built to the building on Park avenue occupied by Voorhees & VanZandt, for the purpose of giving the U. S. Express Company more stable room.

New Steps at Station.

The new cement steps being erected on the east side of the railroad bank near the Park avenue walk to the station, are about completed and will be ready for use in a few days.

Augustus Moerdyke, of Oakland, California, is being entertained by his uncle, Peter Moerdyke, of West Fifth street.

EASTER SUNDAY IN PLAINFIELD

How the Day Was Observed at the Local Churches Sunday.

BEAUTIFUL FLOWERS

The Rain of Saturday Did Not Affect the Attendance at the Morning Services—Details of the Celebration at Various Churches and Schools.

Although Easter morning did not dawn bright and clear, the day proved an eventful one. The shower of the early morning but slightly affected the attendance at the morning services while the clear weather of the afternoon and evening brought out large congregations for the later services. Beautiful music and gorgeous floral displays marked most of the Easter celebrations.

MONROE AVE. M. E.

Rev. John MacMurray was in charge of both morning and evening services at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church and preached appropriate sermons. His subjects were "Easter Joys" and "Easter Thoughts." Pretty decorations of flowers were in evidence about the pulpit.

In the afternoon a special programme of carols, songs and recitations was given by the members of the intermediate and primary departments. They were in charge of Miss Charlotte Aldrich and Miss Emily Haff. Those who took part were:

Intermediate department — Matilda VanDuzer, Margaret Camp, Ada Thompson, May Stafford, Florence Brown, Agnes Brown, Harry Lude, Marion Praed; kindergarden department: Victor Lindabury, Roy MacIntyre, Helen Davenport; primary department: Florence Gilbert, Edith Gray, Gertrude Gray, Bessie Gunzleman, Louise Praed, Clara Brown, Zeta Voorhees and Edith Schwartz. Miss Mae Brower rendered an acceptable solo.

At the evening service solos were given by Mrs. Bender and Miss Ida M. Tallamy.

ST. MARY'S R. C.

Never before in the history of St. Mary's R. C. church has there been a larger congregation than Sunday morning when the Easter services were held and there has never been a more elaborate display of flowers in that edifice.

The largest attendance was at the 10:30 mass when Rev. Father Smith was the celebrant and Rev. Father Hangley, of Bloomfield, deacon. Rev. Father Leanado was the sub-deacon and John Batcher, of Seton Hall Seminary, was master of ceremonies. In the evening solemn vespers were held, when the rector, Rev. Father Egan was celebrant, Rev. Father Smith was deacon and Rev. Father Leanado sub-deacon. The singing at both the services was under the leadership of M. J. Cashin, the chorister. At the morning service Rev. Father Egan preached eloquently on the Resurrection and in the evening a sermon was preached by Rev. Father Smith on the "Spirit of Easter."

ST. JOSEPH'S R. C.

Every seat and aisle in St. Joseph's R. C. church was filled Sunday morning when the Easter services were held. There were no less than 800 people in the church at the 10:30 o'clock mass, when Rev. Father Miller was the celebrant, assisted by Rev. Father Tyrrell, of Newark, as deacon and Rev. Father Brennan, of Trenton, as sub-deacon. The choir, assisted by sixteen extra voices and Korff's orchestra, rendered Giroux's third mass. Other selections were rendered including Mozart's Benedictus and Giroux's Regina Coeli. The decorations included Easter lilies, cut flowers, potted plants and palms and many ferns.

Those who took part in solos in the morning service were Miss Tina Smith, contralto; Miss Harriet Hilton, alto; Alfred E. LaPorte, tenor; and James Bailey, bass and leader. Mrs. Alfred E. LaPorte presided at the organ.

GRACE P. E.

Resplendant with beautiful cut flowers including Easter lilies and potted palms and ferns Grace Episcopal church held a large congregation at the morning services. Special music was one of the great features of the Easter service and was under the direction of Mrs. W. A. Freeman, the organist.

The services were conducted by the rector, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, assisted by Rev. William H. Neilson, of this city, and Rev. Dr. E. M. Rodman, rector emeritus.

During the morning service the new alms basin, which was presented to the church by the women of the Channel Society, was dedicated and was used for the first time. A sermon was preached on the "Resurrection," by the rector. At the evening service an Easter sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. Roper, a professor in the Union Theological Seminary. An Easter service of song and prayer was held in the afternoon by the children of the Sunday-school when Rev. Mr. Stevenson presented each child with an Easter card. He also sent to each communicant of his church an Easter remembrance.

GRACE M. E. CHURCH.

Rev. Dr. Edwin L. Earp, pastor of the Grace M. E. church, preached a sermon Sunday morning on the topic "An Exaggeration Turned to Prophecy." The choir was under the leadership of John Steiner, the chorister. The organist was Miss Alice Carroll. Solo parts were sung by John Steiner, Miss Agnes Tingley and Miss Carrie Tingley. During the afternoon a children's carol service was held by the members of the Sunday-school led by Superintendent John Valiant. Those who had the arrangements in their charge were Miss Mary Steiner, Miss Belle Langer and Mrs. Dyckman Winkler.

In the evening a sermon was preached by the pastor on "A Message of Life."

ST. PETER'S CHURCH.

Nothing was attempted in the way of special music at St. Peter's German Lutheran church Sunday morning on account of the illness of the chorister, Mr. Ebel. The services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. Theodore Duensing, who preached on the lessons of the day.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN.

At the same church in the afternoon the Swedish Lutheran congregation held Easter services which were conducted by the pastor, Rev. H. Johnston, of the Upsala College. The services were very largely attended and the music was very fine.

TRINITY REFORMED.

Easter services at Trinity Reformed church were opened at 6:30 o'clock in the morning with a sunrise prayer meeting which was led by City Judge William N. Runyon. There was a good attendance and the meeting was a helpful one. Miss Bessie Martin rendered a solo, "There is a Green Hill Far Away."

At 10:30 o'clock, the regular morning service was held when Rev. Dr. Cornelius Shenck preached a sermon on "The Significance of Christ." The music at that service was very fine, and was rendered by a chorus choir.

In the evening the Easter exercise, entitled, "Resurrection Glory," was rendered by the children of the Sunday-school. Those who took part were Ralph Martin, Russell Abbott, Henry Kinney, Harold Schenck, Percy Emory, Howard VanArsdale, Harold Storr, Ida Sauns, Clara Lee, Anna Vail, Mildred Preamer, Raymond Stevens, Benj. Cooley, Clifford Cole, Russel Hoagland and Adelaide Cole. Part of the programme consisted of a march entitled, "The March of the Lilies." Those who took part in this part of the programme were Helen Woolley, Edna Oliver, Edith Richards, Elsie Tier, Helen Roberts, Rosamond Rogers, Ethel Vail, Gertrude Schleif, Margaret VanDeventer, Lula Terwin, Lillie Smith and Jessie Smith. The children's programe was in charge of Mrs. J. M. Tier, superintendent of the primary department. The pastor, Rev. Dr. Schenck, made a short address.

At the evening service Organist A. L. Titsworth was assisted by Kenneth Stuart, violin; Elmer Wheeler, flute; and Miss Lillian A. Force, piano.

The floral decorations were especially fine and were under the charge of Mrs. J. C. VanDyke, chairman, Mrs. H. VanName, Mrs. Curtis M. Thorp and Mrs. S. C. Peck.

SWEDISH PILGRIM.

Easter services were held morning, afternoon and evening at the Swedish Pilgrim church when Rev. Mr. Lindholm officiated. Special decorations of flowers and banners were arranged about the church. The music was very fine.

WARREN CHAPEL

The people of Warren chapel celebrated Easter with a service in the morning when Rev. J. O. McKelvey officiated. The Sunday-school held its exercises in the afternoon. In the morning the communion service was held when the individual cups were used for the first time. The afternoon exercises, which were presided over by Dr. Thomas C. Hall, were followed in the evening with a praise and preaching service led by the pastor.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

The services at the First Baptist church were elaborate and attracted large congregations both in the morning and afternoon. The floral display was one of the finest seen in several years. At the morning service the chorus choir rendered several pretty anthems and there were solo parts by the quartette, Miss Louella C. Harris, soprano; Mrs. F. M. Ward, contralto; William Holmes, bass; and George Smith, tenor. An appropriate discourse was given by Rev. Dr. R. M. Luther, of South Orange.

In the afternoon the Sunday-schools of the home church, Mt. Olive Baptist church and the East Third street chapel, assembled and joined in a special service. Howard Case presided at the organ and Miss Jessie Utter played the piano. This programme consisted of carols, anthems, Scripture reading, special exercises by the primary and junior departments. In one of the anthems, Mrs. Ward, contralto, and Mrs. Giddis, soprano, rendered a pretty duet. Dr. Luther spoke especially to the children.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

Special Easter services were held morning, afternoon and evening at the First M. E. church. In the morning the chorus choir under the direction of Charles S. Lewis, rendered several Easter anthems and Rev. Dr. W. O. Snodgrass, the pastor, preached an appropriate sermon. The church decorations were very pretty.

In the afternoon in Vincent chapel the Sunday-school enjoyed a special programme, and assisting with the music were the following: R. Wilson Derby, violin; Alvah V. Davis, flute; Kenneth Shupp, trombone; A. H. Derby, bass; Miss Gertrude Sharp, piano. There was an exercise entitled "The Lord of Life and Death," in which the teachers of the school took part, and an exercise was given by Misses Frances Edward Orone, Jubilee Rowland, Blanche McVey and Edward Hartpence, little tots from the primary department. Interspersing these exercises there were carols by the school. Superintendent J. R. Joy was in charge of the programme and made a short address. Last evening the choir of the church rendered several anthems and Dr. Snodgrass again delivered a sermon appropriate to the day.

A feature of the afternoon exercises was the placing on the cradle roll of the name of Alfred Hart Stafford, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Stafford.

HOLY CROSS CHURCH.

At the Church of the Holy Cross, Easter services were held at the morning and evening sessions. The music was exceptionally fine. The decorations were in keeping with the day. The services were conducted in the morning and afternoon by the rector, Rev. W. Montgomery Downey.

The Sunday-school Easter festival was held in the afternoon in place of the afternoon service. Rev. W. Montgomery Downey officiated, assisted by Rev. William Neilson. Easter carols were sung by the school and there was a brief address by Rev. Neilson. The children's Lenten offering was taken up at the close of the service. This offering amounted to $66.74.

The Easter offering of yesterday morning at the Church of the Holy Cross amounted to a trifle over $402. The money will be added to the almost completed fund to be used for the redecoration of the interior of the church.

ST. STEPHENS' CHURCH.

Large attendances were noticeable at all services in St. Stephens' church, Sunday. At the 11 o'clock service the sermon was delivered by Rev. W. Vincent Dawson. It was a full vested service, a choir of sixteen voices taking part. It was assisted by E. C. Martin, baritone; Owen Smith, tenor and Kenneth Stuart, violinist. The members of the choir were in charge of J. B. Buckley and showed by the excellent rendition the careful training they had received.

The elaborate floral decorations were arranged by a committee consisting of Mrs. Elizabeth Wright, Mrs. William Wheeler, Mrs. Hugh Knox, Mrs. J. H. Buckley and Miss Miller.

CONGREGATIONAL.

The Easter services at the Congregational church Sunday morning were according to the programme, with one exception. Fred Tallamy, of the quartette, was taken ill Saturday night and this made a change in the vocal selections. The entire programme will be given next Sunday.

In the afternoon special services were held under the auspices of the Sunday-school. There were Easter carols, exercises by the primary department, a violin solo by Arthur Hudson and vocal solo by Willard Wadsworth, and an address by the pastor, Rev. C. L. Goodrich. He also delivered an appropriate sermon in the morning.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTIST.

Services appropriate to Eastertide were held at the Seventh-Day Baptist church Saturday morning, when an augmented choir of twelve voices rendered several anthems under the direction of D. E. Titsworth. The floral decorations were exceptionally attractive. During the service the pastor, Rev. George B. Shaw, delivered a sermon explaining the significance of Eastertide and the resurrection.

WILSON MEMORIAL.

The Easter services at the Wilson Memorial chapel, Sunday afternoon and evening, attracted large congregations. In the afternoon the exercises were under the direction of the Sunday-school and there was music by a string and double quartette, comprising solos and anthems. Rev. Theodore Duensing, of this city, made an address in the afternoon. In the evening the address was made by George A. Chapman, of this city, and there was special music. The decorations were unusually pretty.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN.

The Easter services at the First Presbyterian church Sunday including special music at the morning service by the regular quartette, Miss Rita Raybert, soprano; Mrs. R. H. Tugwell, alto; Elmer D. Cutting, tenor; Sydney R. Titsworth, bass, assisted by Dr. Frederic Sies, of New York, violinist. Mr. Cutting was the soloist at this service. The anthems included "Christ Our Passover," and "Welcome Happy Morning." The pastor, Rev. C. E. Herring, delivered a fine sermon.

In the afternoon services were held under the auspices of the Sunday-school, Superintendent E. M. Cox being in charge. There were carols being in charge. There were carols by the school, a reading entitled "Mary," by Mrs. Charles Haseltine and selections by the quartette of the church. There was also an address by Rev. Mr. Herring.

In the evening the regular quartette choir rendered several anthems. The solo work was by Miss Etta Raybert, soprano. Dr. Nice also played "Meditation," from Bach, on the violin. The quartette work at all the services was very commendable, also the work of Dr. Nice. Clifford A. Braider, organist, had charge of the musical programme.

MT. OLIVE BAPTIST.

Previous to the preaching service in the Mt. Olive Baptist church, last Sunday, exercises appropriate to Easter were given by the following members of the Sunday-school: Mabel Jones, Lue Stout, Bertha Hill and Maude Green. The choir rendered several selections and Pastor E. M. Jackson was presented with a handsome bouquet of flowers by the Faithful Workers. The decorations were arranged under the joint auspices of the Faithful Workers and King's Daughters.

MT. ZION A. M. E.

Outside of carols, there were no special Easter features at the Mount Zion A. M. E. church. The floral decorations were unusually elaborate and were admired by everyone. They were arranged by Mrs. E. B. Maynard.

CRESCENT AVENUE.

At both morning and evening services in the Crescent Avenue church, the musical programme was in keeping with the day. The services were well attended and the floral decorations about the pulpit were more attractive than in former years. At the Sunday-school session the pupils were addressed by Superintendent George Strong and Rev. W. S. Hubbell.

HOPE CHAPEL.

Simpleness marked all three ceremonies at Hope chapel. In the morning, Rev. I. R. Howard preached an appropriate sermon and two infants were baptized. At the Sunday-school session, an interesting programme was furnished by the members of the primary department. Carols were sung and a recitation was given by Edith Thompson while Anna Warnock contributed a pleasing solo. Rev. Dr. Riggs, a returned missionary from Italy, was in charge of the evening service and gave an address dealing with his labors in the far-off field.

PARK AVE. BAPTIST.

At the Park Avenue Baptist church, Rev. Mr. Braker, of Brooklyn preached in the morning and three anthems were given by the choir. George E. Watts contributed two solos. Rev. Mr. Braker again addressed in the evening and the choir rendered appropriate music.

The entire Sunday-school membership marched into the church in the afternoon and held a special Easter programme. Five carols were sung with the assistance of the choir and Whitney Frazee on the cornet after which songs, recitations and emblematic pieces were given by the following members of the school: The Misses Elsie Giles, Emily Runyon, Cora Brokaw, Arline Brown, Alice Brown, Autumn Delaney, Mildred Odam, Marguerite Ostrom, Florence Smalley, Mary Leveridge, Mabel Stutsman, Elinore Stutsman, Anna Clarke. Those from the primary taking part were Edith Lowry, Ruth Adele Frey, Samuel Voorhees, Anna Staats and Nellie Voorhees. There were recitations by a quartette composed of Miss Cora Brokaw, Miss Adelia Runyon, Nelson Runyon and Harry Cuming. D. E. Davis presided at the organ.

HEAVENLY REST.

Communion services were held in the Church of the Heavenly Rest Sunday morning at 10:30 and in the afternoon at 4 o'clock, the childrens' services took place. Special music had been arranged and was given under the direction of Garrett Dunham.

Dance of Carpenters.

A dance is to be given at Saengerbund Hall Thursday evening, April 23, by the Carpenters' and Joiners' of this city.

LOCAL YOUNG PEOPLE SPRING A SURPRISE

Miss Florence Williams and Wm. S. Loiseaux Wed in New York a Week Ago.

AT HOTEL MANHATTAN

HAD EXPECTED TO KEEP THE MARRIAGE A SECRET.

They Were Engaged and Were to be Married This Spring or in the Fall — The Ceremony Was Performed Sunday, April 5.

Tuesday morning's New York papers had something of a sensation for their Plainfield readers in the announcement of the marriage of two young people from this city. Miss Florence Williams, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Williams, of West Seventh street, and William S. Loiseaux, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Loiseaux, of Brook avenue, were married at the Hotel Manhattan, New York, Sunday, April 5, by Alderman Isaac Marks. The facts given concerning the marriage were correct although the details regarding the couple were more or less exaggerated and incorrect.

Both of the young people have resided in Plainfield for many years and have been well acquainted for a long time. They have a large circle of friends here. Mr. Loiseaux, although a young man, has been very successful in business. Their engagement was announced last fall and it was expected that the marriage would take place either this spring or in the fall. There was no objection to the match by either family.

The day the marriage took place, the young people were visiting friends in New York. Accompanied by Miss Josephine W. Sadler, a friend of Miss Williams, they went to the Hotel Manhattan where the ceremony was quietly performed. A dinner followed and then the party returned to Plainfield. It was understood that the marriage should be kept secret but, in some unknown way, it leaked out.

Mr. and Mrs. Loiseaux are now stopping at the home of Mr. Loiseaux's brother, Paul, in New York. They are expected to return to Plainfield this evening. While the marriage was a decided surprise to all but its few who were in the secret, it was not a runaway match. The parents of the young man have been wintering in Nassau and are now at one of the southern resorts on their way home to Plainfield. They are expected to arrive this week.

A member of the Loiseaux family, interviewed this morning over the telephone, expressed great displeasure over the affair and declared that the whole family was heartily ashamed and disgusted that Mr. Loiseaux should seek such methods to get married. The first intimation of the marriage was learned last evening, when the Loiseaux family obtained knowledge of it through the reports from the New York newspapers.

When Mrs. P. Williams was asked over the telephone concerning the marriage, she said that she was not prepared to say whether it was true or not and she would not give out any statement until she learned the facts. She said that her husband had cautioned her not to say anything about the affair for publication and she begged to be excused from talking.

For Fresh Air Camp

An entertainment was given at the home of Miss Bertha Jones, of Essex street, Saturday evening. The entertainers were Miss Bertha Jones, Miss Alice Thorburn, and Thomas Thorburn. The programme was ended with the Scotch bag pipes and clog dancing. The proceeds of the entertainment, which was well patronized, will go towards the fresh air camp at Netherwood.

Entertained Her Class.

Miss Eleanor VanDevanter, of Willow avenue, entertained the members of her Sunday-school class in Hope chapel at her home, Saturday evening. The young guests were kept busy with games and prizes were won by Edward Howes and William Firstbrook. Refreshments were served previous to the termination of the evening's fun.

Attending Classis.

Rev. Dr. Schenck, H. E. Gayle and Robert Clark, Jr., of Trinity Reformed church, and John M. Schorb and Christian Debele, of the German Reformed church, are today attending the Classis being held in the Clinton Avenue Reformed church in Newark.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

BLEW OFF HEAD WITH SHOT GUN

Wm. H. Carman, of Dunellen, Killed Himself Supposedly With Suicidal Intent.

HIS WIFE FOUND HIM

Found Dead in Parlor Tuesday Morning—Wife Attracted by Sound of Shot—Entire Upper Portion of Head Blown Off — Death Was Instantaneous—Cause Unknown.

Dunellen, April 14—With the entire upper portion of his head blown off and his brains scattered to every part of the room, the lifeless body of William H. Carman, of this place, was found in the parlor of his home on Front street at 8:45 this morning. The discovery was made by his wife who was attracted by the report of a shot gun followed by a heavy fall. She was nearly overcome by the horrible sight which greeted her gaze but managed to retain her composure long enough to summon assistance.

Neighbors called Dr. P. W. Brakeley, but the man was beyond all aid. Death must have been instantaneous. The county physician was notified and will examine the body this afternoon.

There is little doubt the fatality was the result of suicidal intent and not accidental. His wife, however, can assign no cause for the act as his home life had always been pleasant and, outside of slight attacks of indigestion, he enjoyed the best of health.

For the past three years he had been manager of the meat department of Scbener's grocery at Plainfield but for some reason did not go to work this morning. Mrs. Carman paid no attention to his movements and was unconscious of his whereabouts until the gun was fired. He had removed it from an upper closet but just how it was made to explode will remain a mystery.

Beside the widow, he is survived by three sons, Clarence, Ellis and William, the latter but two years old. No arrangements have yet been made for the funeral.

A report was current in the borough, today, that he was to be superseded in the management at Schener's which might have caused him to brood until he decided to make way with himself. The head of the firm was questioned and declared emphatically that no change was to be made or had been contemplated that would in any way effect Carman.

YOUNG WOMEN GIVE PLAY AND TABLEAUX

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1.)

Mead, Miss Marjorie Howard, Miss Lucie Booth and Miss Madeline Reed. Much success attended this sale, all of the goods being quickly disposed of at good prices.

The officers and members of the Cup Bearers' Circle of King's Daughters are as follows:

President, Mrs. Lucius H. Biglow, Jr.; vice president, Miss Dorothy Averill; secretary, Miss Alice Titus; treasurer, Miss Lucie Budlong; the Misses Dorothy Averill, Aurelie Aston, Gladys Biglow, Marion Brown, Lucie Budlong, Louise Booth, Margaret Curtis, Mai Faber, Elizabeth Flanders, Anna Garrigues, Jean Griscom, Edith Griscom, Marjorie Howard, Helen Ray Hooley, Mabel Hooley, Alice Haven, Marion Hall, Anotinette Hill, Hope Ivins, Lillian King, Josephine LaTourette, Fredericka Mead, Verna McOutcheon, Katherine Mc Outcheon, Carolyn Martin, honorary member, Norma Northrop, Mollie Perkins, Gladys Peck, Madeline Read, Florence Stewart, Louise Saunders, Marion Smith, Helen Stephens, Alice Titus, Katherine Titus, Ruth Van Vleit.

DIED.

SCHEELEIN—On Tuesday, April 7, 1903, Franz Scheelein, in his 74th year.

COLLINS—In this city, Wednesday, April 8, 1903, Martha A. Collins, aged 28 years.

RAYNOLDS—On Friday, April 10, 1903, Walter, youngest son of George R. and Mary G. Raynolds.

WHITALL—On Sunday, April 12, 1903, Charles D. Whitall, aged 57 years.

WARNOCK—In New York city, April 12, 1903, Alexander Warnock, son of the late Alexander and Laura Warnock, in his 38th year.

McGINNES—In North Plainfield, N. J., on Monday, April 13, 1903, Miss Mary McGlone, aged 66 years.

DRAKE—In this city, on Wednesday, April 15, 1903, Whitfield H. Drake, M. D.

CARMAN—At Dunellen, N. J., April 14, 1903, W. H. Carman, aged 43 years and 26 days.

MARRIED.

CRAFT—BARTINDALE—On April 7, 1903, at Brooklyn, by Rev. Mr. Robertson, Eleanor P. Craft to William G. Bartindale.

Sanitary Plumbing
Brick and Portable Furnaces
Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing.
Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Plumbers Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in all cases.

D. W. LITTELL,
No. 112 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.
Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.
A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL!
My new barber shop at
143 NORTH AVE.
is now open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the tonsorial line.
EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

CARNEY BROS.,
MADISON AVENUE,
Between Front and Second streets
Tinners,
Plumbers
Gas Fitters,
Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Cobbers' prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

DIME
Savings Institution,
Of Plainfield, N. J.,
Is now receiving deposits with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.
J. FRANK HUBBARD, President,
GEO. W. ROCKFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.
Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

Guaranteed Salary $900 YEARLY.
Men and women of good address to represent us, some to travel, appointed as agents, others to work locally, good salary and commission. $900 salary guaranteed yearly; extra commissions and expenses, rapid advancement, old established house, grand chance for earnest man or woman to secure permanent, permanent position, liberal income and future. Few, brilliant lines. Write at once.
STAFFORD PRESS,
25 Church St., New Haven, Conn

W. B. CODINGTON,
Counsellor-at-Law
Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-Chancery, Notary Public.
Office: Corner Of Park Avenue and Second street.

ALBERT HEDDEN
Livery & Boarding Stables
FOURTH ST.,
between Watchung and Park avenues.
First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

Wm. A. Woodruff,
Fire and Life
INSURANCE AGENT,
OFFICE,
corner Front St. and Park Avenue,
Plainfield, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale or Exchange
Money to loan on Approved Security

YEAR'S WORK IN TWO CHURCHES

Election of Officers, Reports and Other Business Transacted at Annual Meeting of Local Presbyterian Churches.

FIRST PRES. CHURCH

Total Receipts for the Year Were $4,713.52—Slight Deficit Which Will Probably be Made Up Later On — Church Membership is 373—Reports of Sunday-School and Various Organizations Connected With the Church.

The annual meetings of the congregation and trustees of the First Presbyterian church were held in the chapel of the church April 8, with a fair attendance considering the inclement weather. While the finances of the church show a deficit, this is almost sure to be made up at the Easter service on Sunday. The general condition of the church is excellent as shown by the various reports for the past year.

The congregational meeting was held first. Rev. C. E. Herring, the pastor, was chairman, J. M. Bottman, clerk and H. A. Pope secretary. The report of the clerk of the session, Mr. Bottman, the showed membership to be 373, about the same as last year. During the year there were six additions on confession and ten by letter, while sixteen members were dismissed to other churches and there were nine lost by death. The benevolent contributions for the year amounted to $1,504.97.

The treasurer's report for the missionary fund showed that $348.62 was collected and disbursed, with a balance of $83.11. The report of the treasurer of the Christian Endeavor Society showed receipts in the general fund to be $38.92, with a balance of $8.44. The receipts for the missionary fund were $93.08 and the disbursements $71.82, leaving a balance of $21.26, or a total balance of $29.03. The King's Messengers received and disbursed about $16.

The treasurer of the Woman's Home Missionary Society reported total receipts of $339.68 and disbursements $293.21, leaving a balance of $2.47. The society also sent several barrels of clothing and literature away to home mission fields. The receipts and disbursements reported by the treasurer of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society were $137.30. The deacons fund showed receipts and disbursements of $268.86, with a balance of $27.61, which will be used to pay the General Assembly assessment.

The treasurer of the Ladies' Aid Society reported the raising of $700, which amount was used in building a kitchen addition to the church. Aside from this the society collected $40.45 and disbursed $33.02, leaving a balance of $25.43. The superintendent of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society reported the total membership to be fifty-four, with an average attendance of thirty at each meeting. The society raised $8.11 during the year and there is a balance of $3.43 in the treasury.

This concluded the presentation of the reports at this meeting. They were all read by the secretary, Mr. Pope, after which LaRoy Gates was re-elected an elder and Charles Hummer a deacon for the full term. The meeting then adjourned.

Immediately afterward the meeting of the trustees was held. Robert Radford was chosen chairman, while Mr. Pope continued to act as secretary. An interesting feature of this meeting was the presentation of the treasurer's report by William H. Shotwell. This showed that the total receipts for the year amounted to $4,713.52, all of which was disbursed. There is a deficit of $812.50. This is partially accounted for by reason of the fact that the report last year included two Easter offerings and other smaller receipts. It was believed that the Easter offering this year would wipe out the deficit and Mr. Shotwell read a portion of his report at the service last Sunday morning for the purpose of urging the members to contribute more liberally.

It was unanimously voted to make the pastor's salary for the coming year the same as last year, $2,500 and it was also voted to give a sufficient amount of money to provide for the church music, including the salary of the organist, choir and the purchase of music.

In electing trustees, John Abbott was chosen for three years, J. R. Hill for two years and A. V. Searing, Jr., for three years to succeed Mr. Gano, who has moved out of the city. After a vote of thanks was given to Miss Lettie Remsen for her faithful service as pianist during the year, the meeting adjourned.

CRESCENT AVE. CHURCH

Church Raised $45,021.39 for All Purposes During the Year—Total Membership of Church and Chapels is Now 1,589, An Increase of Nine — Reports of Chapels, Sunday; - Schools and Other Auxiliary Organizations to the Church.

Elders and deacons were elected, reports were read showing the work being done in the different departments of the church work and other business was transacted at the annual meeting of the members of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church held in the chapel of the church April 8. The attendance was not large on account of the storm.

The meeting was presided over by Rev. J. O. McKelvey, moderator of the Session. Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, the clerk of the church, performed the duties of secretary. The first matter of business was the election of elders to succeed those whose terms expire. Alfred W. Duxbury and Frederic H. Andrews were re-elected and William D. Murray was appointed to succeed Silas Yerkes, who declined the nomination for another term, as he is no longer a resident in Plainfield. The deacons elected were Samuel F. Kimball and S. H. Whitney. The tellers were J. K. Myers and William Sandford, Jr.

Following the election of the elders and deacons the meeting proceeded to the hearing of the reports. The first was the nineteenth report of the Ladies' Aid Society. It now has a total membership of 209. Boxes of clothing and other gifts whose estimated value was $654.75, was sent out to the families of missionaries and schools. $3,333 09 is the sum total of the missionary gifts of that society.

As an adjunct to that society reports of numerous other organizations were read. The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society reports $1,181.70 as the total receipts of the year. Satisfactory reports were read of the Sunshine Mission Band, Woman's Home Missionary Society, Boys' Mission Band, the Chinese Sunday-school, where there are five pupils with a corresponding number of teachers and where much good work is being done; the floral committee, the McAll Auxiliary, and other societies. It was with pride that Miss Julia Jermain Ketcham, the secretary of the society, reported that during the past year the gifts of the Home and Foreign Missionary Societies exceed those of any pervious year. This interesting report is closed with the statement that $4,910.44 has been devoted to missionary purposes.

The report of the Christian Endeavor Society of the church was most encouraging financially, although it was reported that there had been during the year a decrease in membership of twenty, making the total membership now forty-two. There are six associate members. The treasurer reported $153.05 received and after expenses for the year a sum on hand in the treasury of $5.02.

The report of the Sunday-school showed that there was a total of 167 pupils and twenty-four teachers in the upper grades and eighty-five pupils and twelve teachers in the primary department. There are fifty-one pupils in the primary department and five teachers making a total membership, including eleven officers, of 253. The total enrollment for the preceding year was 295. The average attendance was 183. The loss in the number of pupils enrolled is ascribed to the fact that many of the teachers have moved away. The disbursements for the year amounted to $575.38, all of which was devoted to missionary purposes. In the report of the Sunday-school the resignation of Librarian Joseph B. Coward was read. He has served in that position for many years.

The total amount raised by the church during the past year amounted to $43,021.39. For benevolent purposes, $35,835.06, for congregational expenses $12,271.31, and paying off church debts $4,925. The total expenses of the church amounted to $12,271.31. For chapels, $7,022.52, balance on Hope chapel, mortgage and interest paid, $1,014.75. $7,500 has been subscribed for a new building for Warren chapel.

As treasurer of the Session of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Andrew J. Garvin reported that $5,106.67 had been received for special offerings, and receipts from organ recitals, offerings and a gift from Dr. Richards for chapels, amounted to $2,351.72. The total amounted to $7,458.39. The church membership is 927. Bethel has 60, Hope 378, Warren, 224, making a total of 1,589. The total Sunday-school roll in church and chapels is 1,664.

Charles S. Cook, as treasurer of the Sunday-school, reported that $575.38 had been received by contributions, all of which was paid out for missionary purposes.

Reports were read of the work being done at the three chapels. These proved interesting. Bethel chapel has sixty members, or an increase of three over last year; Hope has now a membership of 378, or an increase of twenty-four, and Warren has a membership of 224, or an increase of ten over the total enrollment of last year. The total increase in the membership of the church and three chapels is nine, the figures this year being 1,589 while last year it was 1,580.

The Sunday - school collections amounted to $295.49, church collections were $594.03, and Friday nights men's services, $103.44. $142.75 was spent for foreign missions and through home missions $735.55 was spent.

Bethel mission reported through its pastor, Rev. F. D. Tilden, that its entire enrollment is now sixty members, it being three more than last year. This is the largest enrollment since 1896. The receipts amounted to $366.10 and the disbursements to $362.60, leaving a balance on hand of $3.45.

Hope chapel has made a gain of ten members. The enrollment in the chapel is 234. The report of the work at the Sunday-school was very encouraging, the receipts amounting to $2,407.16, most of which was spent for missionary purposes. The result of the good work being done there and in the different classes and departments of the week day and Sunday societies was pointed out and a tribute was paid to City Judge William N. Runyon for the work he has done there among the young men. Rev. L. B. Howard, the pastor of the chapel, told of the work being done there among the girls under the charge of Miss Lucy Humphrey and Miss Hazen. It was recommended that a boy's secretary be secured by the Y. M. A. so that the junior members of the chapel could enjoy the out door recreations like the members of the Y. M. C. A.

Stuart H. Whitney, treasurer of the Board of Deacons, reported that the receipts amounted to $1,181.71 and the disbursements, $965.94, leaving a balance on hand of $195.87.

Mrs. Katherine H. Pierson reported on the list of deaths which have occurred among the members of the church during the past year. Those who have passed away are Miss Anna M. Bunting, Mrs. Caroline B. Brunsun, Theodore J. Gillies, Willard Randolph, Charles W. Barton, Peter P. Dumont, Mrs. Martha Aborn, Mrs. Caroline A. Miller, Mrs. Joseph Myers, Mrs. Fanny P. Ketchum, Clarence E. Ackley, Miss Saran B. Hockwell, William Chapman, Miss Louise M. Holmes and Mrs. Elizabeth Mair.

Stephen Cahoone closed the meeting with a prayer.

FLORIDA GROVE GONE.

Resort for Many Years Where Tough Things Have Occurred Becomes a Claybank.

The indications are that Florida Grove's career as a resort has ended. For a number of years Joseph Fugen has managed the place, and this year he has leased a grove on Staten Island.

Florida Grove is situated on the shore of the Raritan river, just west of the Perth Amboy city line. It is several acres in extent and it is about fifty feet above the level of the water. It was one of the original salt water day resorts, and it has been in use every year for more than three-quarters of a century.

Until a few years ago prize-fights and cock-fights were pulled off there, and the old grove has been the scene of more than one greasegoods transaction. About two years ago the National Fireproofing Company bought the property from a brewery company for the clay deposits which underlie the grove.

Exposure to a sudden climatic change produces cold in the head and catarrh is apt to follow. Provided with Ely's Cream Balm you are armed against Nasal Catarrh. Price 50 cents at Druggists or Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York, will mail it. The Balm cures without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the patient. It inflammation, cleanses and cures. Cream Balm quickly cures the cold.

Church for Sale.

The National Building Loan and Provident Association is advertising the Calvary Baptist church for sale. The sale will take place Wednesday, April 29.

Month After Mouth

a cold clings to you. The cough seems to tear holes in the delicate tissues of the throat and lungs. You lose weight and you wonder if you are threatened with a disease you scarcely dare to name. Are you aware that even a stubborn and long-neglected cold is cured with Allen's Lung Balsam? Do not spend more of your life in coughing and worrying.

CUPID'S STILL AT IT.

Busy as Ever Making People Do Silly Little Tricks.

Just for the Romance of It Bonyer Couple Eloped One Day Too Soon—Married on Railway Train.

"Just for the romance of it." Cupid's willing victims urge that reason for the methods they employ in attaining matrimony more often than any other. Just for the romance of it they adopt some unusual way of uniting their fortunes for good or bad. They want something out of the ordinary. The story may be old, and lovers may be content that it should be old, but they want the method to be new.

Just for the romance of it they puzzle their parents and their friends. One reading an account of these affairs could not, with justice, exclaim that romance is growing out of the world. Romance is getting more romantic every day.

There was no other earthly reason, says the Chicago Tribune, why Miss Pearl Walker, of Denver, and George W. Ballard, of Pueblo, Colo., should have been married as they were. They could have issued invitations, had a formal church affair, and have gone away on their wedding trip with shoes and rice following after them just as well as not. This was not the kind of a wedding they wanted.

They had the necessary license. The minister had been engaged. The house had been furnished. Everything was prepared for a quiet conventional wedding, when the young people decided that was not exciting enough. There was not enough romance in it to mark the beginning of their new lives. So they changed it.

The way they did it was this: They got married in advance of the day arranged. Then, as staid married people, they "eloped." The bride's parents did not know of the wedding, and they knew nothing of the elopement until the young people were missed. They left no inkling as to where they had gone. An investigation proved that they had been in the newly-furnished house which was ready for them after the wedding. They simply slipped away without any fuss or formality, avoided all the wedding tricks which sometimes are played on newly married people, avoided congratulations and best wishes, and left.

THE "ELOPING" COUPLE.

The parents of the bride—her father is an official of the Colorado Fuel & Iron company—decided that they had "eloped" just for the romance of it, and are not worrying much about their disappearance. "Tracers" were sent out along the various railroad lines to find them, but the parents fully expect that they will be home again when they have completed their "romantic" trip.

"Just for the romance of it," is probably as good a reason as any to give for the following unusual marriage: Miss Jennie B. Jessup, of Anderson, boarded an eastbound train at Indianapolis for Greenfield. When the conductor looked at her ticket he told her that the train, an express, did not stop at that station. There was a predicament for the young woman. Whether or no she had to be carried past the town in which her friends were and into a strange city. It was a puzzling situation which the conductor might have met by the simple plan of stopping the train in spite of the fact that it was not scheduled to.

Cupid, however, had other plans for Miss Jessup. For no other reason than to carry out his plans he had a passenger on the train by the name of W. E. Johnson, a mining broker, going to Pittsburg. He became interested in the young woman and discussed possible ways of remedying the matter with her. The simplest thing to do, as it occurred to him, was for him to marry her. Some people do think of the most preposterous things and have them accepted. It was thus with Johnson. Miss Jessup, just for the romance of it, probably, said yes.

The whole train load of passengers then entered into the growing romance. The conductor telegraphed ahead to Columbus, O., for a marriage license, and a deputy went out to meet the train with it. As soon as the license was delivered a clergyman was found among the passengers. He consented to perform the ceremony. By the time the train was pulling out of Columbus the mining broker and the young woman from Anderson, Ind., who never had met each other or heard of each other before in their lives, were married.

DISROBED IN CHURCH.

Demented Woman Upset Sacristy Lamp and Surprised Sexton of Parish Sanctuary.

When the sexton of St. Joseph's church at Biddeford, Me., entered the basement of the church about six o'clock he was startled to see a woman divested of the greater part of her clothing. The woman was acting strangely and seemed to be muttering to herself.

The sexton discovered the sacristy lamp extinguished and lying on the floor, where it had been upset. It was in its proper place and burning when he left the church for the night.

The woman proved to be Miss Leda Hebert, who formerly worked in one of the mills. She is about 35 years old. She expressed a desire to go to the home of a friend living on Alfred street, and there she was taken by a physician who had been called.

THE SEXTON WAS SHOCKED.

It seems, says the New York Journal, that Miss Hebert has not been right mentally for some time, and about two months ago she was taken to her old home in Canada by relatives.

She recently left her friends in Canada without their knowledge and returned to this city. Last evening she went to the basement of St. Joseph's church during a service, and it is the theory of those acquainted with the affair that she either fell asleep or concealed herself in the church through the night.

It is supposed that the woman fancied that she was in her own home and disrobed, and in accounting for the upset sacristy lamp that she took it from the place where it belongs as if to light herself to her room, and that she dropped it, the light being extinguished when it struck the floor.

HIS CLEVER NEPHEW.

New York Broker Thinks the Young Man Will Develop Into a Great Financier.

A certain member of the New York Stock exchange has set his nephew up in business three times, but the young man lacks something essential to success in the line selected for him, and has failed with each effort. Recently, when he came with the fourth request for financial assistance, the uncle demurred:

"You must learn to lean on yourself," he said. "I can't carry you all your life. It would be an unkindness in me to keep supplying you with money to carry on enterprises that invariably end in assignments. I'll tell you what I'll do. You owe a great deal as the result of that last failure. Pitch in on your own hook, and go it alone till you pay off those debts. When you've done that I'll give you a check for all they amount to. Such an experience will do you more good than all the money I could give you now."

"I BORROWED THE MONEY."

Two months later, says the New York Times, the nephew walked in with every claim receipted in full, and the uncle was so delighted that he gave him the promised check.

"Now, that's something like it," he said, "and I'll wager you feel the better for the hard training. How did you manage it, Dick?"

"Borrowed the money."

Now the old gentleman is telling them that there is the making of a great financier in that nephew.

Russian Students Called Down.

By a law recently enacted in Russia, any university or high school student who creates or causes disorder shall be drafted into the army for a period of from one to three years. This is to curb the rashness and fondness for mischief of college students who imagine they have the privilege to annoy all creation.

FIRST BAPTIST CHOIR GAVE LENTEN SERVICE

A Sacred Cantata "St. Mary Magdalen" Was the Chief Feature of the Service.

A RARE MUSICAL TREAT

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH WAS CROWDED AT THE SERVICE.

Cantata Given by Quartette Under Direction of E. J. Fitzhugh, and Assisted by a Large Chorus and a String Quartette.

An audience, which tested the capacity of the edifice, greeted the choir of the First Baptist church at the Lenten musical service which it gave last Thursday. In point of excellence the affair equalled, if not surpassed, those similar given by the organization on previous occasions.

Previous to the choir's offering of the sacred cantata, "St. Mary Magdalen," a service took place in charge of Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes and Rev. Dr. Edward Judson, of New York. A feature of it was several selections by the string quartette which accompanied during the evening and which was composed of Otto K. Schill, first violin; Miss Dorothy Waldo, second violin; Fullerton L. Waldo, viola; and Dr. Leonard Waldo, violincello. This quartette has been heard in the church on several occasions but never fails to be enthusiastically received. The numbers given were from Haydn and Schubert and were played with the precision and definess which has always characterized the artists' work.

Edward J. Fitzhugh, of New York, was in charge of the cantata and its success in a great measure was due to his leadership. The excellent tempo and blending maintained revealed the training to which the vocalists had been subjected by him. The soloists who took part were Mrs. Anna Burch, soprano; Mrs. Ferdinand M. Ward, contralto; George H. Smith, tenor; and William Holmes, baritone. Howard M. Case was at the organ and Miss Jessie M. Utter at the piano. They were assisted by a chorus of twenty voices.

The parts allotted Mrs. Burch and Mrs. Ward afforded them an opportunity to display their ability. While Mrs. Burch is a new comer to Plainfield audiences she was warmly received and her solos were among the best given. She is possessed of a voice that is strong, yet sweet, and its range seemed in no way confined. Mrs. Ward was at her best and her contralto solos were greatly enjoyed. The trio number was especially good.

In the rendition of the tenor and baritone numbers, Mr. Holmes and Mr. Smith were perfectly at home and their admirers were delighted. Both are capable artists and their singing could not be improved upon. Backed by the splendid work of the chorus, which was far above the average, the musicale was indeed a treat. The words of the cantata were compiled and written by Rev. William John Sparrow-Simpson, B. A.," of Trinity College, Cambridge, while the music was composed by John Stainer.

Previous to the close of the service a brief address was made by Rev. Mr. Judson, bearing upon the musical subject. Benediction was pronounced by Dr. Yerkes.

'PHONE COMPANY THAT WANTS EXCHANGE HERE

Something About the Central New Jersey and Its Ally at Trenton.

THE INTER - STATE CO.

INDEPENDENT COMPANY IS TRYING TO GET INTO NEW YORK.

Arguments Pro and Con for Granting Franchise to the Invading Company—Something About the Rates—Other Details.

In connection with the application of the Central New Jersey Telephone Company for a franchise to operate in Plainfield, it might be well to give a few facts and figures to show how extensively this concern, which is known in Trenton as the Inter-State Telephone Company, is in operation. The present company has only been in operation in Trenton six months where there are today nearly 1,700 subscribers. Bordentown has 200, Mt. Holly 260, Morristown 85, Camden 2,100, Bridgeton 350, Millville 280, Vineland 150, Ocean City 80, Atlantic City 1,200, Elizabeth 375, Paterson 1,200 and Passaic 400, while it has connections with over 23,000 subscribers in Pennsylvania, besides others in Wilmington and Baltimore.

This shows the extent of the independent company. According to the statement made by Mayor Katzenbach, of Trenton, the company is a benefit to that city. It makes competition and thus reduces the rates to the subscribers. The Inter-State Telephone Company installs a 'phone in a business house for $36 a year and in a residence for $24 a year. This is on a direct wire and there is no limit to the number of calls. As demonstrated at Trenton recently, the system apparently works just as well as that of the opposition company.

It is the purpose of the independent company to gradually cover New Jersey and then make an effort to establish a plant in New York. It has been said that the company will never be able to get in New York on account of the opposition of the Metropolitan Telephone and Telegraph Company. It has even been said that the company has put more money than that of the independent company of New Jersey have lost all their money in this attempt. On the other hand a substantial argument is offered in the fact that the present company in New York has 65,000 subscribers and this does not begin to represent the population of Greater New York. The independent company claims that there is a field big enough for two companies in New York and the rates would be cheaper. However, it can be depended upon that no opposition company will get in New York without a big fight.

The objection offered by many Plainfielders to another company is that it would mean two telephones in many houses and business places. They say that half of their friends would have one kind of a 'phone and the other half the other kind. In every place where the independent company is in operation the price for local messages to a non-subscriber is five cents, while in Plainfield it is ten cents. The difference in subscribers' rates is quite an item. In Plainfield it costs $90 a year for a direct wire in a business house and $60 for a direct wire in a home, while for party wires a rate of $30 is made for residences.

It cannot be denied that the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company has by the extent of its service a large advantage over any independent company and that company is in a position to defend itself ably in a fight. As for rates the company, if it was so disposed, could cut them down just as low if not more so than another concern.

As stated recently, the members of the Council are disposed to give the Central New Jersey Telephone Company a fair showing and the matter will be thoroughly investigated.

"If the company will agree to do all that the New Jersey Telephone Company has done," said a member of the Council, "it will be a difficult matter to turn them down."

Additional Facilities.

To facilitate the handling of the rapidly-increasing amount of freight on the Pennsylvania Railroad, a number of important improvements are being planned in and near Philadelphia. Additional tracks will be laid and there will be an entire rearrangement of all tracks used for freight.

Thomas Duffy, of Terrill road, is convalescing from a few days' illness.

When Your Joints Are Stiff and your muscles sore from cold or rheumatism, when you slip and sprain a joint, strain your side or bruise yourself, Painkiller will take out the soreness and fix you right in a jiffy. Always have it with you, and use it freely. Avoid substitutes, there is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'. Price 25c. and 50c.

ANY BOY who is willing to devote a few hours each week to this work can earn many dollars selling

The Saturday Evening Post

Among neighbors and relatives. He to begin at once. Absolutely no money required to start. Write us to-day and we will send the first week's supply of ten copies free. These are sold at 5 cents each, and will provide capital to order the next week's supply at wholesale rates.

$225 In Extra Cash Prizes Next Month

Booklet containing photographs of some of our boy workers, with letters telling how they work, sent free.

The Curtis Publishing Company
433 Arch Street, Philadelphia

JERSEY'S DEAF MUTES HAVE UNIQUE PAPER

The Boys in State School at Trenton Publish "The Silent Worker."

BEST PAPER OF ITS KIND

HOW THIS STRANGE PUBLICATION IS PREPARED BY THE BOYS.

This Monthly Journal Holds a Place of Distinction Among Enterprises of Its Kind Throughout the Entire World.

While New Jersey has utterly failed to keeping pace with representative States in the making of material provision for the education of the deaf, the children of silence who study the art of printing at Trenton take part in the production of a monthly journal that holds a place of distinction among enterprises of its kind throughout the world, because of its progressive style and tone, relates the Newark News. This publication a few rooms are kept apart in the small industrial building where the printing office engine sends its smoke and steam from a conspicuous brick chimney in the rear of the ancient brick building of the New Jersey School for Deaf Mutes, formerly occupied as the "Soldiers' Orphans' Home."

Ten years ago "The Silent Worker" was as amateurish a specimen of deaf-mute literature as might be found anywhere. It was printed on a small job press and had no list of paying subscribers. Today, under the management of a practical typographical artist and teacher, it is printed on a high grade of book paper, handsomely illustrated with half-tone engravings made on the premises with the aid of students, has a large and growing support in this country and Canada and goes regularly to England, Australia, Sweden, Italy, Germany and China. It is acknowledged by "The British Deaf Mute" to be the best deaf mute publication in America, and that is surely as unreserved a compliment as could be expected from an English contemporary.

From a typographical point of view the present status of "The Silent Worker" is the achievement of Prof. George S. Porter, who fills the complex role of publisher, associate editor, foreman and instructor, and imparts to his students the same spirit of earnest and painstaking application by which his own success has been won. His work is predominated by the unwavering conviction that the chief should consider themselves thoroughly a part of the gay, busy world and strive to be as much like other people as possible.

At 8:30 o'clock in the morning of each school day the printing office is taken possession of by a company of children not yet in their teens, who engage in sweeping, washing rollers, cleaning presses and galleys and sorting "pi." In spite of the mingled and complex details of printing and teaching the room is a model of neatness and order. Mr Porter gives the beginners a short lesson at the case, where they learn to point out as random the letters and characters in the various boxes and to distinguish n from u, b and d, and p and q.

Of course when these little printers begin to handle type they get things badly mixed. Their first proofs are apt to be so bad that they must "distribute" and begin over again, and the teacher is often obliged to give the order to "clean cases." With sticks and rules in hand, and mounted on several tiers of boxes, they begin with the lower case and set up all the "a's" therein, returning the wrong letters to their proper apartments, and so on through the alphabet and the entire contents of the cases.

Intermediate pupils occupy the early afternoon hours at the printing school. With them uniform spacing, justification of lines and clean proofs are insisted upon, wrong notions corrected and habits of punctuality, neatness and accuracy encouraged. They are made to feel that it is dishonorable to be slovenly or to shirk work. When these students are transferred to job work, the stone, and the press, the teacher begins to take substantial pride in the fruits of his labor with them, and, although the advanced students spend but one hour each day with their instructor, they are an important factor in the publishing of "The Silent Worker." They manage the presses, mark out "overlays" to secure uniform surfaces of impressions, and set up jobs and advertisements that please the most exacting customers of the concern.

When the students complete their course of practical training and leave school they are able to earn fairly good wages at once, but often they prefer to avail themselves of the advantages of a post-graduate course and further perfect themselves in their art. Photo-engraving was instructed as a feature of the school work several years ago, and has been successfully developed. Prof. Porter believes that in order to get the best results in the printing from half-tone plates the young printer must know how these engravings are made. This is characteristic of his thoroughness. He requires his students to cultivate artistic judgment. They inspect the proof sheets of "The Silent Worker" and learn to discover and remedy the slightest defects.

During Prof. Porter's management of this interesting printing school two of his pupils have become foremen in offices outside the field of deaf mute endeavor, several have established job printing offices of their own and many are making a comfortable livelihood as employes.

YEAR FOR RESCUE MISSION

FIRST ANNIVERSARY WAS CLEBRATED THERE LAST THURSDAY.

Presentations to Workers Who Have Been Active in That Organization.

The first year of the existence of the Rescue Mission was closed last Thursday as it began, very auspiciously John Goodwin made a few remarks. Howard T. Scheckler, superintendent of the Rescue Mission at Elizabeth, spoke on "Soul Saving." Remarks were also made by Rev. J. W. Carpenter, of Washington, and W. S. Oakley, of Elizabeth.

John Goodwin, who was the founder of the society, was presented with a floral wreath by Percy Ohl, Jr., on behalf of the members of the society and Mrs. John Manley, who has faithfully presided at the organ during the past year, was the recipient of a silk umbrella by the members of the mission through Mr. Ohl.

Others who took part in the programme in song and in recitation were: Miss Jennie Reynolds, Miss Sadie Stelle, Miss Lavinia Seader, Arthur Gaskill, Irving Manley, Harold Leach, Miss Manley. Mr. F. Goodwin sang a song entitled, "The Drunkard's Dream." He was loudly applauded.

The officers chosen for the ensuing year are: President, John Goodwin; vice president, H. J. DeMott; secretary, Samuel Fish and treasurer, Fred Goodwin.

The committee comprised: Miss Etta Garey, Mrs. George Bowers, Mrs. John Manley, Mrs. H. J. DeMott, Mrs. Albert Manley, Mrs. Adam Seader, Mrs. Sarah Mattox and Mrs. H. Angleman.

BUT ONE COLOR.

All Cars on Pennsylvania Railroad to be Painted Red.

President Cassatt, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, has issued orders that will result in changing the color of the entire equipment of their trains, such as the Pennsylvania Limited and Congressional Limited, to the standard color of red, thus doing away with the tri-color, the limited having been cream and dark green. The Pullman Company now paints all its cars running on the Pennsylvania Railroad red, to harmonize with that road's standard color.

Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, of the Brick Presbyterian church, New York, who came to Plainfield last week to take part in the Good Friday service and to officiate at the Yates-Holman wedding on Saturday, has returned home.

Like a Comet

This famous remedy does for the stomach that which it is unable to do for itself, even if but slightly disordered or overburdened.

In the sky comet the star of health to the weak and weary despondent dyspeptic, curing all stomach troubles and digestive disorders.

Kodol

supplies the natural juices of digestion and does the work of the stomach, relaxing the nervous tension, while the faltering muscles and membranes of that organ are allowed to rest and heal. It cures indigestion, flatulence, palpitation of the heart, nervous dyspepsia and all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying and strengthening the glands, membranes of the stomach and digestive organs.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

Your Dealer Can Supply You.
Bottles only. $1.00 Size holding 2½ times the trial size, which sells for 50c.
Prepared by E. C. DeWITT & CO., CHICAGO.

L. W. RANDOLPH.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 22—"Power Real Prayer"—Text, Rom. xiii, 12; Prov. vi, 24; Phil. iii, 8.

The chief difference between an egotist and a wise man is that one thinks he knows a great deal, and the other thinks there is a great deal which he does not know.

The danger is self conceit and vanity. If one thinks he knows much, he will be apt to close his eyes to what he does not know and think it of little account when, in fact, it may be far more important than all he has learned. Again, he will be quite likely to look contemptuously on those whom he rates as less learned than himself and in despising them fall in gain friendships of great value. His conceit will lead him to make false estimates of himself and his knowledge and so lead him into embarrassments and perhaps dangers which a juster view of matters would have led him to avoid. Self conceit makes one ridiculous, uncompassionable and unreliable.

2. Prejudice. "Be of the same mind one toward another." John Wesley rendered this, "Agree to the same affection toward each other."

This danger signal follows close after the previous one of self conceit. That danger lies in misjudging oneself; this lies in misjudging others. It is fatal to all fraternity and destroys the bonds of unity and hinders un-Christian. "Judge not that ye be not judged" is the Master's way of stating the warning. What skill it needs to rightly estimate others at their true value! Rather let us say what love it needs to do justice to others. Perhaps the most common lack is in ourselves and not in others. They are more worthy than we think. Prejudice jaundices the judgment. The disease is in us. Beware of prejudice!

3. Jealousy. "Jealousy is the rage of a man. He will not spare in the day of vengeance; he will not regard any ransom."

This lies the next station beyond prejudice. Dislike has risen to anger and hatred. The vision is not now distorted, but resentment has blinded sight. This is a torment of hell. The soul that feels jealousy has reached the antithesis of love. "Jealousy is cruel as sheol; the flames thereof are flashes of fire." Who passes this danger flag rushes to ruin. Yet what liability the common affairs of life give for jealousy unless the warning is heeded in time! A little self conceit switches us from the main track, where pettiness and prejudice throws us still farther over, and the first thing any one knows we are on the track of jealousy and far from the road of righteousness and love.

4. Reckless handling of another's name. "Speak not evil one of another." Is not this caution often neglected? With what carelessness are incidents related to the injury of the absent one! The itching tongue is responsible for much of the gossip that is to be sociable and be thought witty, and "in the multitude of words there wanteth not sin." Let a watch upon thy lips. Better still, let thy heart be pure and right with God. Then shall these signals guide to safety.

Cheerfulness and Success.

The world is beginning to see that people who can radiate sunshine and carry dinner and good cheer where ever they go, although they may be poor, are of infinitely greater value to society than the millionaire of money who pauperizes everybody who comes in contact with him by his close, oppressive methods. Largeness of heart and generosity of soul make millionaires of character, who are worth more to the world than mere moneyed millionaires. The time will yet come when all men will have to depend on life insurance for a competent fortune. Character will become so enriched in the upward growth of the world that the surroundings, however costly, will be considered but a cheap setting of a precious life stone. Cheerfulness is a potent factor of success.—Friendly.

The Only Enduring Grandeur.

Moral power is the only enduring grandeur. It is the power that grows in the dark, in the years of unpaid labor and unrequited pain, and that, unobserved, indefatigable, survives the fret and storm of life. God searches through the years, carefully picks out and burnishes the heroic. All else He leaves to oblivion. Into the tissue of this mighty, august humanity enters the long tried patience that cries not that meekly endures, and, unseen, unrequited, does its brave work.—Rev. C. F. Bradley.

For Good or Evil.

On trifles that seem light as air deep and farreaching issues are hung. A word, a smile, a frown, a moment's hesitation, a thoughtless step—who can tell what destinies shall turn on them? For this reason God has determined that men shall give account in the day of judgment for every idle word they shall speak. An idle word may be a potent word for good or evil.—Luther.

One Value of Work.

Thank God every morning when you get up that you have something to do that day which must be done whether you like it or not. Being forced to work and forced to do your best will breed in you temperance and self control, diligence and strength of will, cheerfulness and content and a hundred virtues which the idle will never know.—Charles Kingsley.

Salvation.

Salvation is as great as is the distance between the eternal and the perishable, the omnipotent and the feeble, immortality and death.—Religious Telescope.

PASSION MUSIC.

(Written after hearing the Lenten musical service at First Baptist church Thursday evening.)

Searing voices, violin,
Longing flames of wailing,
Raise their sweet and shrill of din,
Martyred saints are hailing.

Cries, tempestuous, pleading, plaintive,
Discordance of pain, heart of lover,
Low, in abysmal depths,
Sobs for a Savior.

Singing from immortal silences,
Mongrels the mystic viols,
Grief and pain and suffering, blending
With love that shall never know ending.
Quietly there, where He sleepeth,
Mary of Magdalen weepeth.
Maundy Thursday, '05. M. C. P.

THEATRICAL.

Western music lovers are now in a position to congratulate New York since "The Prince of Pilsen" has scored its pronounced hit at the Broadway Theatre. Wherever this tuneful and laugh-provoking musical extravaganza was seen in the west it was pronounced one of the best entertainments of its kind yet brought out by Henry W. Savage. Record breaking business greeted it and there is a general impression that its authors, Pixley and Luders, have excelled their "King Dodo" in the new piece, at least New York thinks so.

"Mr. Bluebeard," at the Knickerbocker Theatre, continues the reigning theatrical success of the season in New York. Up to its eleventh week, it has been seen by 182,000 people, who have endorsed it as the greatest theatrical entertainment ever presented in this country. Such is undoubtedly the fact, as there is much more of attractive novelty in each act than has ever been presented in any piece in its entirety. It is the conception of its predecessor, "The Sleeping Beauty and the Beast," last season's big hit. Klaw & Erlanger engaged a very strong company for "Mr. Blue Beard," its roster of comedians, headed by Dan McAvoy as "Mr. Blue Beard" and Eddie Foy as "Sister Anne," presenting the strongest array of comedy talent ever seen on Broadway in any one production. One of the great features of the production continues to be the most discussed theatrical incident in New York—the flight of the premiere of the Grigolatis flying ballet from the stage to the upper balcony rail and return, sixty feet above the heads of the audience, distributing natural flowers. This is the most thrilling and sensational feat ever seen in a New York theatre. Prices for the evening performances and the Saturday matinee range from 50 cents to $2; at the Wednesday matinees, from 50 cents to $1.50. All orders for seats received by mail or telegraph receive prompt attention through the mail order bureau. Seats may by ordered a month ahead.

BANK HAS NEW CHARTER

GRANTED BY TREASURY DEPARTMENT TO FIRST NATIOTAL BANK.

The Early History of One of Plainfield's Most Flourishing Institutions.

By reason of the fact that the old charter of the First National Bank recently expired, application for a renewal of the charter for a term of twenty years has been made to the treasury department at Washington and granted. The charter will expire at the close of business on February 24, 1923.

In the renewing of the charter, many of the older citizens will recall the early history of this bank. It originally was the Union County State Bank with offices where Griffin's hardware store now is. At the time the State Banks had been done away with, as they proved a handicap to general business. The property now occupied by the First National Bank was purchased from "Tinker" Smith, and the land began business in a small building on that site. Afterward the institution was transferred to where the Hotel Rossil now stands. A little later a more modern building was erected on the property, with a store underneath. This structure remained until a few years ago, when the present handsome building was erected.

One of the original stockholders of the bank is L. E. Barkalew. For many years Carman Parse served the bank as cashier, being succeeded by F. S. Runyon, who still is over it. Ago. The present cashier is David M. Runyon. The institution has been most successful in its affairs, being conducted on sound business principles, which predict a promising future.

The Misses Etta and Sadie McKenzie, of East Second street, are the guests of friends at New Rochelle, N. Y.

Many School Children are Sickly

Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for Children, used by Mother Gray, a nurse, in Child ren's Home, New York, break up Colds in 24 hours, relieve Feverishness, Stomach Troubles, Teething Disorders, move and regulate the Bowels, and destroy Worms. Mrs. Emily Marcom, Elkton, Ky., says: "It is the best medicine for children when feverish and complaining." Sold by all druggists, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 23—"Endeavor for the Sabbath"—Topic—The sacred Sabbath.—Matt. xii, 1 and 12.

The Lord's day is one of the great facts of Christendom. Account for it; explain it. It is an effect; give us the cause. To do this brings us face to face with Jesus Christ and the resurrection. On that day all Christendom is at rest. Mills, factories and stores are closed. Why so different from other days? That is a twentieth century fact worthy of meditation.

The Sabbath is one of the oldest institutions. When the Decalogue was written, it simply referred to and confirmed an established institution. "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

Why was the day of rest and worship changed from the seventh day of the week to the first?

The seventh day Sabbath shared the displeasure of Christ, but not His resurrection. One was the Sabbath of nature, the other the Sabbath of grace; one was the Sabbath of a rejected, crucified and buried Christ, the other the Sabbath of a risen and exalted Lord; one was the Creator's Sabbath, the other the Redeemer's Sabbath. The first day of the week Sabbath is one of the strongest proofs of Christ's resurrection. The disciples of Jesus had been bigoted Sabbatarians. They would have died to defend the seventh day Sabbath. Suddenly they change and by a silent revolution accept the Christian or first day of the week Sabbath. Some mighty influence must have been exerted. Why did they change? They met us that it was because Christ rose from the dead on the first day of the week. He appeared to them again and again on the first day of the week and breathed on them the Spirit. The ascension and Pentecost occurred on the first day of the week. They must have understood Christ to teach by all this that the first day of the week was to be henceforth their holy day. Intuitively they abrogated the seventh day of the week and accepted the first day as the Christian Sabbath. The Sabbath we use is a witness of Christ's resurrection and will remain the day of worship until the end of the world.

The day is to be kept holy and free from secular employment.

1. Because God commands it. This day "was not smuggled into our calendar by a crafty church," as some other holy days have been, "nor is it sustained by designing priests." God made the Sabbath for man.

2. Because Christianity demands it. If you remove the Sabbath or secularize it, then the Bible becomes a sealed book, the gospel ceases to be proclaimed, churches are closed, mission work halts, the people cease to worship, and the world returns to heathenism.

3. Because man's constitution demands one day in seven for rest. Aside from the gift of God's beloved Son, heaven never bestowed a greater blessing on a race of toilers than a Sabbath of rest. People who can rest when they please may not appreciate it, but the great mass of humanity are in the ceaseless grind of toil. Remove this day of rest, and life becomes a desert without an oasis. The Sabbath of rest is the workingman's inalienable, heaven born right, and no human institution has a right to take it from him.

In America secularism is threatening the holy day. If saloons and candy and cigar shops are permitted to remain open on the Sabbath, why have not all stores the same right? If newspapers, steamships, electric and steam cars are allowed to operate on the Sabbath, why not the mills and factories, the mines and farms? If secularism continues, as it likely will, man will be forced to labor seven days in the week, with no day of rest, and the nation will surely deteriorate. Continental Europe has no Sabbath, and look at her mental and moral degradation. All Christians should sustain the sacred boon of the Sabbath by word and by life.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ex. xx, 8-11; xxxi, 13-17; Lev. xix, 30; Neh. xiii, 15-21; Isa. lviii, 13-14; John xx, 19, 26; Mark ii, 23-28; Matt. xii, 10-12; Luke xiii, 14-16; Matt. xxvii, 1; Acts xx, 7; I Cor. xv, 3; Tit. iii, 10; Rev. i, 10.

Endeavor.

Though the clouds gather round,
And the struggle may be long,
And the power of evil strong,
Still endeavor.

For to patient, brave endeavor
Cometh utter failure never,
And the crown at last forever
Shall be won.

—Anon.

The Pastors' Verdict.

The verdict of an army of pastors at a recent international convention was that the best agency for Christian Endeavor societies there is intense loyalty to the Sunday and midweek church meetings.

A Big Convention.

The last New York state convention at Troy had a registration of more than 3,000 delegates.

Quiz Box.

[Any question may be asked that pertains to any phase of Christian Endeavor work. Address Lock Box 674, Binghamton, N. Y.]

53. I. K., Grand Canyon, Colo.—The highest ambition of a committee chairman should be to keep every member of the committee at work—never to strive to do the work of the committee himself.

54. N. O. M., Portage, Ill.—The quotation you ask for is probably this, from an anonymous source:

What kind of a church
Would our church be
If every member
Were just like me?

Apply it to your Christian Endeavor society.

WOMEN'S CLUBS TO GATHER

SEMI-ANNUAL MEETING OF STATE FEDERATION MAY 6.

Will be Held at Madison—The Programme for Morning and Afternoon Sessions.

The semi-annual meeting of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs will be held in the Madison Assembly rooms, at Madison, Wednesday, May 6. The official notice and general outline of the programme has been sent, by the executive board, to the clubs throughout the State, the same urging upon the membership a large attendance. The invitation is extended by the Thursday Morning Club and the Fortnightly Jaunts.

The morning session will open at 10:30 with special music, followed by the usual invocation. Mrs. George Warren Cass will make the address of welcome in behalf of the entertaining clubs, and Miss Mary McKeen, the State president, will respond. Further music will be rendered, and after the regular routine of business, the question box, in charge of Miss Belle R. Snyder, with questions pertaining to the department work of the federation, will be opened for general discussion. Greetings from notable guests will close the programme of the morning, after which a luncheon will be served at 12:30 o'clock.

The afternoon meeting will be called to order at 2:30, and after a musical number Prof. M. S. Woolman, of the Teachers' College, of New York City, will make the address of the day on "Arts and Crafts." After the federation song the "President's hour" will conclude the programme.

OYSTER SUPPER.

The Young People From Trinity Attended a Marconaire Festival.

An oyster supper was served last Friday at the home of Mrs. E. Van Court on Park avenue for the benefit of Marconaier chapel. There was a large stageload of young people who were taken from this church. The supper was a most elaborate one although the attendance was not large on account of the close of the Lenten season. Those who had charge of the supper were Miss Leonora VanCourt, Mrs. Samuel K. Swain and Mrs. E. VanCourt. The supper was held for the purpose of raising funds for painting the chapel.

PRINCETON '04 WON.

Defeated Hillside's Team in Opening Golf Match of Season.

The Hillside Tennis and Golf Club opened the season, Friday, with a four team match with Princeton '04. Though Hillside was defeated, the team made a good showing considering that it was the first time this season the team has played as individuals, even. The summary was as follows: Wright 2 down to Baker, Abbott 5 down to Sloan, Glenney even up with Conklin, A. R. Fisk 2 down to Poole.

There was a large attendance on the course during the day. The clubhouse will be kept open from now on, but after today no meals will be served until Saturday, April 18, when everything will be in readiness for the fall season.

Double Rental.

A double rental of the property at 114 Elmwood place was made yesterday. Through the agency of J. T. Vail, of North avenue, one half of the house will be occupied by Mrs. Mary V. Morgan and daughter, of Brooklyn, while through the agency of G. Foster Updike the other half will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Abram V. Nelson, of Dunellen.

Disorder Must Cease.

Deacon Spencer Conway, of the Calvary Baptist church, wishes The Daily Press to state that all lounging and boisterous talk in the vicinity of the church must cease. Stringent measures are to be adopted to prevent such persons from blocking the walk near the church and making a disturbance.

Elected Vice President.

At the reunion of Hooker's Old Guard at Trenton on Thursday, Wm. Hand, of this city, was elected vice-president of the association.

Its Own Insurance.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has organized a mutual insurance company to do its own fire underwriting.

DO YOU COUGH
DON'T DELAY
TAKE KEMP'S
BALSAM
THE BEST COUGH CURE

It Cures Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Croup, Influenza, Bronchitis and Asthma. A certain cure for Consumption in first stages, and a sure relief in advanced stages. Use at once. You will see the symptoms effect after taking the first dose. Sold by dealers everywhere. Large bottles 25 cents and 50 cents.

PARKS KEEP TROPHY; BEATING JERSEY CITY

Veteran Whist Four Wins Its Sixth Consecutive Victory for Metropolitan Trophy.

GAME VERY CLOSE ONE

NEXT CHALLENGERS ARE FROM THE ELIZABETH CHESS AND WHIST CLUB.

Strong Team of Jersey City Whist Club Goes Down to Defeat by a Score of 8 to 5—The Parks Regular Team Plays.

The veteran Park Club whist four still hold the Metropolitan challenge trophy, which was won from the Camera Club team six weeks ago and the record made of six consecutive victories is a source of much pleasure to the friends of the team. Thursday the Parks met the strong team from the Jersey City Whist Club, challengers, and defeated them by a score of 8 to 5. The match throughout was very close and in some respects just as exciting as the recent match with the Brooklyn Whist Club. The Jersey City team is considered to be one of the strongest in the State, it having won many honors in the whist field. The challengers lost the match last evening in the first and second round.

The Parks took the first round by a score of 3 to 2 and the second round 3 to 1, while in the third round the team broke even, each scoring two points, making the total score of 8 to 5 in favor of Parks. The Elizabeth Chess and Whist Club is the next challenger and the team will play the Parks on Thursday evening, April 16.

That evening the challenging team consisted of Daniel Bowly, captain; O. S. Mecabe, H. L. Scott and J. Howard Bamsted, Jr., while the Park team comprised the original four, Samuel Townsend, captain; S. St. John McCutchen, George T. Rogers and Joseph H. Howell. After the match the Parks entertained the visiting team in the usual pleasant manner with light refreshments.

American Cup Races.

Many local people are interested in the coming American Cup races, and the regatta committee of the New York Yacht Club has announced the dates for the races as follows: August 20, Thursday, Sandy Hook Lightship; August 22, Saturday, Sandy Hook Lightship; August 25, Tuesday, Sandy Hook Lightship; August 27, Thursday, Sandy Hook Lightship; August 29, Saturday, Sandy Hook Lightship.

Repairing Crosswalks.

Street Commissioner Gavett's men are still busy repairing crosswalks and culverts in various parts of the city. There is also some needed repair work being done on Richmond street.

Improving Richmond Street.

Under the direction of Foreman David Bowden, Richmond street from East Second street to Putnam avenue is receiving the attention of the street repair gang. It will be remacadamized and placed in first-class condition.

Fire Companies Elections.

The election of the West End Hose Company will be held on the evening of the first Monday in May, and the election in the Warren Engine Company will be held on the evening of the first Tuesday in May.

To Assist Employes.

The Erie Railroad Company has announced that it will transport free of charge the household goods of its employes as may wish to move from one part of the road to the other.

Closed for Easter Vacation.

John Leal's School for boys is closed for the Easter vacation.

Good for Children.

The pleasant to take and harmless One Minute Cough Cure gives immediate relief in all cases of Coughs, Croup and LaGrippe because is does not pass immediately into the stomach, but takes effect right at the seat of the trouble. It draws out the inflammation, heals and soothes and cures permanently by enabling the lungs to contribute pure life-giving blood and life-sustaining oxygen to the blood and tissues. L. W. Randolph.

A Sweet Breath

is a never failing sign of a healthy stomach. When the breath is bad the stomach is out of order. There is no remedy in the world equal to Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for curing indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders. Mrs. Mary S. Crick, of White Plains, Ky., writes: "I have been a dyspeptic for years—tried all kinds of remedies but continued to grow worse. By the use of Kodol I began to improve at once, and after taking a few bottles am fully restored in weight, health and strength and can eat whatever I like. Kodol digests what you eat and makes the stomach sweet. L. W. Randolph.

SOCIETY AT A COTILLION

Easter Dance of Cotillion Club Marks Resumption of Social Activity After Lent.

ONE NOVEL FEATURE

Two Orchestras and Cotillion Has Double Set of Figures So That There Are No Intermissions—Sets Led by Mr. and Mrs. Timpson and Mr. and Mrs. Waring.

Lent, with its forty days of sackcloth and self sacrifice, had hardly been closed by Easter before society came forth in brilliant array to resume its rounds of gaiety. The first event was the cotillion held at the Casino last Monday by the Cotillion Club. It was the last of a series of three and was by far the most brilliant in point of decorations and attendance. It was the Easter cotillion and the decorations were arranged to harmonize with the season. The usual decorations of bunting and palms were missing but in their stead were fancy cut flowers, orange blossoms, daisies and roses. The effect was at once pretty and attractive.

In the main ball room the decorations were red while in the dining rooms the color effects were pink and green. Upon the stage behind a hedge of very handsome Easter lilies, roses and a great profusion of daisies sat the large orchestra of T. G. Austin, of Brooklyn. Something novel and decidedly original was introduced at the cotillion in that the music was continuous. There was no stop between the dances. The orchestra comprise fifteen pieces which was divided in two sections. One section played while the other half rested thus giving continuous music.

The cotillion was led by Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Timpson and Mr. and L. E. Waring. It was danced without any intermission. One set of figures were led by Mr. and Mrs. Waring and as soon as that was completed Mr. and Mrs. Timpson, directed another set. Some of the favors were very clever and all were appropriate to Easter. Among them were Easter eggs, fancy pipes in which were imitation tobacco, golf clubs, tennis racquets, canes, horns, and even flowers made of paper arranged on long sticks. Some of the figures were the horse shoe, the windmill, basket and chain. Most of them were entirely original and were introduced by Mr. Waring and Mr. Timpson.

In the last figure before the supper the participants led to the dining rooms where tables were set for almost a hundred guests. On each table were arranged small candelabra of pink set off with decorations on the tables of green.

The patronesses who gave out the favors were Mrs. Elliot T. Barrows, Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, Mrs. F. G. Meade and Mrs. Edward H. Ladd, Jr.

The committee in charge of the dance comprised L. G. Timpson, F. W. Yates, R. T. Barrows and L. E. Waring.

Some of those who were present as guests were Captain and Mrs. Patrick, of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Victor, of New York; Mr. Raymond DeForis, of New York; Mr. Baldwin, and Mr. G. T. Waite, of New York.

Two More Meetings.

The Fortnightly Whist Club will hold two more meetings this season. Miss Mary Griswold, of Madison avenue, will entertain the club Thursday evening, April 23, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hollingsworth, of West Fourth street, will entertain Thursday evening, May 7.

Daughter Christened.

The young daughter of Mr. and Mrs George Bremmer, Jr., of Harrison avenue, was christened Saturday at the home of its parents. The occasion was marked with a social time during which refreshments were enjoyed. Music was a feature of the evening.

Annual Musicale.

A programme of unusual merit is being prepared for the annual musicale to be held at the Seventh-Day Baptist church Thursday evening, April 30, under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought
In Use For Over 30 Years.
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

THIS REMEDY IS SURE TO GIVE SATISFACTION.

CATARRH

Ely's Cream Balm
Gives relief at once.
It cleanses, soothes and heals the diseased membrane. It cures Catarrh and drives away a Cold in the head quickly. It is absorbed. Gives Relief at once. It opens and cleanses the Nasal Passages. Allays Pain and Inflammation. Heals the Sores. Protects the Membrane. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Full size 50 cents, at Druggists or by mail; Trial size 10c. by mail.
ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York

POND'S MEN ENDOW A BED

A PROMPT RESPONSE TO HOSPITAL'S APPEAL FOR AID.

Action Take by Pond Tool Works Beneficial Association Saturday Afternoon.

Prompt response to Muhlenberg Hospital's recent appeal for aid was made by the Pond Tool Beneficial Association at its regular meeting, Saturday evening.

On recommendation of a committee, composed of Edward Harding, chairman; James Bell, John King, George H. Batchelor, Samuel Foster, James Brown and J. Fred Wharton, the members appropriated funds from the treasury to endow a bed for a lifetime and made an additional contribution of $100 to be paid at once. The society has had the matter in contemplation for some time, mainly for the reason that so many of its members receive medical care and attention at the institution.

The gift will be doubly appreciated when it is realized that the money is paid by the shop employes and not the officials. A committee, consisting of George Batchelor, James McKeon and Edward Harding, was appointed to confer with the Hospital Board in making arrangements for the bed endowment.

Saltzman at Geneva.

A postal card has been received from Former Chief of the Plainfield Fire Department Augustus Saltzman, who is now at Geneva, Switzerland. He sends regards to all the members of the department and states that he is about to start for London where he will attend the firemen's convention at that city.

Planning Long Trip.

William Edwards, of West Seventh street, who recently purchased a forty-horse power steam motor carriage, is making plans for a long trip as far as Chicago. He will go by easy stages through Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana. He will be accompanied by his wife and a chauffuer.

Society Interested.

Society is much interested in the fact that Mrs. Charles E. Brooks and William R. Cock are to appear again in theatricals. They will act in two short plays, entitled "He and She" and "A Pair of Lunatics" in Grace Church parish house on the evenings of April 22 and 23.

Appointed Railway Postal Clerk.

Walter Fisher, of Watchung avenue, has been notified by the postal authorities that he has been appointed a railway postal clerk.

Moved Store.

L. Singer, proprietor of the New York Bargain Store, has removed from North avenue to 324 West Front street, his former place of business.

Progress on Hospital.

Excellent work is being done on the new hospital and the present work contracted for will be completed according to schedule time.

Mrs. Sykes' Tea.

Cards have been sent out by Mrs. Charles L. Sykes, of Scotch Plains, for a tea to be given Saturday, April 18.

M'NAUGHTON IS THE WINNER

NOVICE CONTEST AT THE Y. M. C. A. COMES TO A CLOSE.

Last Two Events Contested Saturday Night—Four Take Part In All Contests.

The novice contest at the Y. M. C. A. came to a close Saturday night. The winners were Collins, in the shot put, and McNaughton, in the running high jump. They made 32 feet, 8 inches, and 4 feet, 11 inches, respectively.

Walter McNaughton took first place in the entire contest with 636 points, Smith came next with 533, Collins, third, with 505, and Koons, fourth, with 445. McNaughton made up his deficiency in fence vaulting in which he made 5 feet, 9 inches, and in the hop, step and jump he made 33 feet, 2 inches.

The figures made in the shot put were: Collins, 33 feet, 8 inches; Scull, 32 feet, 4 inches; Neal, 30 feet, 6 inches; Denton, 30 feet, 4 inches; Smith, 28 feet, 2 inches; McNaughton, 26 feet, 7 inches; Koons, 26 feet, 2 inches.

In the running high jump: McNaughton, 4 feet, 11 inches; Denton, 4 feet, 7 inches; Collins and Neal, 4 feet, 6 inches; Smith, 4 feet, 5 inches; Koons, 4 feet, 3 inches.

Out of the nineteen contestants four took part in all of them.

SUCCESSFUL CHAPEL.

A Gratifying Report Presented at Marconnier Chapel Sunday.

A most gratifying report of the condition of Marconnier chapel for the past year was presented Sunday afternoon at the session of the Sunday-school. The balance at last report was $102.03 and the receipts for the year were $773.27. The disbursements for the year were $641.29, leaving a balance in the treasury of $131.98, a decided increase over last year. There were no special Easter exercises at this time. The school usually waits until Children's Day to celebrate.

Her First Great Grandchild.

The life of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, of Boston, has been so helpful and full of loving service to the world that all that concerns her is of public interest. The birth of a child to Mrs. Henry Marion Hall, of East Orange, is told through the land, the child having the distinction of being Mrs. Howe's first great grand-child. Mr. Hall is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Prescott Hall, of Madison avenue, and his early years were spent in Scotch Plains and Plainfield.

For liver troubles and constipation There's nothing better in creation Than Little Early Risers, the famous little pills

They always effect a cure and save doctor bills.

Little Early Risers are different from all other pills. They do not weaken the system, but act as a tonic to the tissues by arousing the secretions and restoring the liver to the full performance of its functions naturally. L. W. Randolph.

HACKLED A BRONCHO.

New York Newspaper Man Shows Great Enterprise.

But the Only Reward He Got Was an All-Around Soreness and the Sympathy of His Devoted Wife.

The average newspaper man will endure toil, face danger and surmount difficulties to furnish readable copy of which the public knows little. Here is a story told by a New York newspaper man who was "down on his luck" and willing to do wage in almost any desperate enterprise to "raise the wind." "Of course," he said, "it don't mean that we are willing to do all these things for the benefit of the dear public, because we expect money as well as satisfaction, but I can tell you of one instance when I made quite a sacrifice and didn't draw a check for it either.

"The summer is always a bit dull for us in the metropolis, and some of us who make the pictures have to do some close figuring. I was out of a job when Buffalo Bill's wild west show came to town, and I went around to one of the Sunday editors and made a suggestion for a story. I told him I would go out and try to ride one of Buffalo Bill's bucking steeds and write it up. I had it all planned out, headlines and all, something like this: 'The world as seen from the hurricane deck of a bucking broncho.' I made a pretty stiff talk to the editor, for I needed the money, but he gave me the laugh, and told me the story was no good, and even if it was I couldn't hang onto the broncho. I went out of the office determined to try my luck at riding, and thought I might get a sufficient amount of interesting matter to sell the story somewhere else. I went out to the show grounds and in a tent back of the arena came across a lot of cowboys, so busily dressed up like cowboys. I told them I was a newspaper man, and stated my case, telling them I wanted to tackle one of their bucking horses. I had spent two years in the west and felt able to stick onto pretty nearly anything in the line of horse flesh.

"The cowboys looked at one another and winked. Then they told me they could accommodate me if I was in earnest. I told them that I had made the proposition on the level, and they brought out an under-sized, scraggy roan and saddled and bridled him. He stood there very quietly—too quietly, in fact. His ears were titted slightly back and his tail moved with short, nervous jerks. 'Here's trouble,' I said to myself, and I was not mistaken. The cowboy who was holding the horse by the head told me to get on. I grabbed the saddle-horn and made a flying leap, for I knew the broncho would get under way immediately. The cowboy turned his head loose before I could get my feet into the stirrups, and away we went. The beast made a few short jumps and then started to bucking. He was a wonder, and the way he arched his back was worthy of a tom cat. He came down stiff-legged on his four feet like a piledriver. I could not regain my stirrups. I was too busy to think of them. I tried to pull up his head to keep him from bucking so much, but before I could do it he made one wild leap in the air, came down so hard that I felt my back teeth jar loose, and then he made another jump and I sighted. I lit on my shoulder and I thought I had been killed.

STARTED TO BUCKING.

"The cowboys came running up to me and I did not let them know I had been hurt. I then asked for another horse, owning up to the fact that the roan was too much for me. They brought out a black one, which I had seen them riding in several performances. I knew his style of bucking and hung on to him long enough to satisfy them that I was not a tenderfoot. After my performance we went over to a nearby saloon and they told me the roan was the toughest proposition they had in the outfit. I went to bed as soon as I got home and it kept my wife busy for several days attending to my shoulder, which had turned purple from the bruises. When I went around to the various newspaper offices offering my story with illustrations it was turned down so flatly that I concluded that personal sacrifice did not pay in the newspaper business.

New Name for a Drunk.

A doctor in Hiattville, Kan., is fond of his tod, and he frequently becomes demented under the influence of drink. He was lately arrested as an insane person, and his friends begged his release, that he might attend to his patients. The judge released him, with the reprimand that if he became insane again (that is, went on a spree) he would be shipped to an asylum quicker than a cat can bat its eye.

LIVES IN A BARREL.

Diogenes the Second Just Discovered in Paris.

Once He Was a Cab Driver, But Now M. Ratelet Is a Philosopher Who Makes Less Wise Men Support Him.

Diogenes the Second has been found. You will remember Diogenes the First. He lived something over 2,000 years ago and requested Philip of Macedon, or was it his son Alexander? to get out of his sunshine and thus make his life completely happy. Diogenes the First lived in a tub and said bitter things about men in general. Diogenes the Second lives in a barrel and cracks a whip for a living.

Diogenes the Second is a Frenchman. He used to be a cab driver, but he had bad luck and he gave up his profession. He still cracks a whip, but he does that at county fairs and the like, and he plays tunes on it.

M. Ratelet is the modern tub dweller, only his tub is a barrel. He took to this mode of living from necessity at first. He now sticks to it from choice. He was one of the thousands of Parisian cab drivers who are said to live by legalized piracy on Americans.

If they be, then M. Ratelet was not piratical enough. His seagoing hack did not make enough captures to justify him in living. So he quit the business. He found a piece of waste ground at Champigny, not far from Paris, and he also found a barrel. He bricked over the top of this, having laid it lengthwise on the ground and left an opening into which he could crawl. This was cheaper than trying to rent a steam-heated flat. You probably know how hard it is to find a suitable flat with the desired exposure and the proper kind of a bathroom. There bar rents times, no doubt, when you would have been ready to crawl into a tub or barrel just to escape the trouble of house hunting.

M. Ratelet probably had had all those experiences. He did not have any money and he probably did not care to move every month to save the rent. So he fixed up the barrel. Luckily it was a large barrel, about the hogshead size, but even at that it was necessary for M. Ratelet to double up when he went to bed. It was not a case of a folding bed, but of a folding sleeper. He did the folding; the bed couldn't.

M. RATELET AT HOME.

With his home furnished the ex-cab driver turned his attention to making a livelihood. He had his whip. That is all that fickle fortune had left him from the wreck of his seagoing hack. With this whip he could play tunes. Any number of Parisian cab drivers can do this. The tunes are not strictly and technically musical. An orchestra of whip players would never do as an accompaniment to grand opera, but still it is amusing and people will pay to hear a good whip player.

M. Ratelet therefore took his whip and took himself to neighboring fairs and gatherings of country people. He played on the whip before large audiences and collected a few pennies at every performance. He has a repertoire of 20 different songs and airs with which he entertains the folks at fairs and fetes. The practical demonstrations he can give of his skill are most entertaining. He can render the French national air in a way calculated to bring tears to the eyes of the true French patriot. Then he was able to do any number of what are known as "odd jobs." That brought him in a little more money.

Altogether he was in possession of a respectable income before long for a man who lived in a barrel, but he did not give up his mode of life. He still resides in the barrel. He never has had to buy furniture on the installment plan. You wouldn't have to spend $99 to furnish his flat; you could do it for four cents.

If he earns a few pennies a day that suffices to buy a sausage, a loaf of bread, a bottle of wine, and some tobacco or cigarettes. Nothing more is required to make the ex-cab driver perfectly happy.

Inventor of Queer Motor.

Nathan Stubblefield, of Calloway county, Ky., who claims to have discovered a system of wireless telephony, is still engaged in perfecting his scheme. He announced to the world some years ago that he had, in experimenting on a perpetual motion plan, accidentally discovered an earth current motor that would revolutionize the electrical world. He also claimed to have discovered a method whereby he would telephone without wires. He has guarded his secret well, and the people of this section of the country are yet wondering whether he is simply crank or will really emerge some day from his obscurity to astonish the whole civilized world with a great discovery.

WEDDED AT CHURCH ON EVE OF EASTER

Marriage of Miss Clementine R. Yates and Clarence D. Holman, of Pittsfield, Mass.

THE BRIDAL PARTY

REV. DR. W. R. RICHARDS AND REV. DR. K. P. KETCHAM OFFICIATED.

Following the Church Ceremony There Was An Informal Gathering at Home of Bride's Parents —To Reside at Pittsfield.

One of the pleasing features of Saturday was the 5 o'clock wedding of Miss Clementine Robinson Yates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Yates, of this city, to Clarence Dudley Holman, of Pittsfield, Mass., at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Rev. Dr. William R. Richards and Rev. Dr. Kneeland P. Ketcham officiating.

The bride was given away by her father. Mrs. Frederick W. Yates was the matron-of-honor and the bridemaids were Miss Margaret Yates, sister of the bride, and Miss Margaret Tracy Preceding them in the bridal procession were the bride's small nephew and niece, Master Frederick Yates Borden and Miss Katharyn Yates Borden, who carried between them a basket of flowers.

The groom was attended by his brother, S. L. Holman, of Methuen, Mass. The ushers were Frederick W. Yates, Harry Voorhees Borden, Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, Leslie M. Daniel and George S. Clay, all of this city, and Samuel S. Slater, of New York.

The church was beautifully decorated with palms and Easter lilies. The gown of the bride was of heavy white silk canvas, with point lace medallions and collar, and she carried a shower bouquet of trailing arbutus and maiden-hair-fern. The matron-of-honor wore a gown of white organdie, trimmed with white velvet ribbon and lace applique, and the bridemaids, accordeon plaited gowns of cream chiffon and lace, and all carried bouquets of pale pink sweet peas and maiden-hair-fern. As the bridal party entered the church, the Norwegian wedding march was played by Frank J. Smith, of New York, the former organist of the church.

Following the church ceremony was an informal gathering at the home of the bride's parents in East Seventh street, of the relatives and old school friends of bride and groom, among whom were the following from out of town:

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Frost, Mr. and Mrs. James Case, of Boston, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Robbins, of Springfield, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Zimmerman, George Hall, Mr. and Mrs. George Clark, of Pittsfield, Mass.; S. L. Holman, of Methuen, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Wood, Harold Wood, Pierce Wood, of Gardner, Mass.; Rev. and Mrs. B. F. Wright, Frank Cornwell, of New Haven, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Mead, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Mead, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Holly, of Greenwich, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. Parichild, of Albany; Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Wood, of Trenton; Mrs. Frank Monroe, Mrs. Irving Brown, of Newark; L. D. Yates, Mrs. Karl von-Rydingavard, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Slater, Bishop Edward Andrews, Miss Andrews, the Misses Elizabeth and Jessie Smillie, Miss Kate Kissam, Mr. and Mrs. S. Cristy Mead, Mrs. William Detmold, Miss Grace Tunstead.

After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Holman will take up their residence at Pittsfield, Mass.

Convention at Brunswick.

Local members of the Knights of Columbus will be interested in knowing that the State convention of the organization is to be held at New Brunswick, Tuesday, May 5. The council at New Brunswick is making many elaborate preparations for the event, and it is probable that many of the local members will attend.

Contributions Needed.

The Relief Association asks for contributions of money to carry its work through the summer, as the treasury is empty. Donations of second-hand clothing and household goods would be very acceptable. A general sale can always be held if enough salable articles are forthcoming.

Due Notice is Served.

Due notice is hereby served on the public generally that DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is the only salve on the market that is made from the pure, unadulterated witch hazel. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve has cured thousands of cases of piles that would not yield to any other treatment, and this fact has brought out many worthless counterfeits. Those persons who get the genuine DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve are never disappointed, because it cures. L. W. Randolph.

Edward Mosher, Jr., of Kimwood place, has been detained at home by illness.

GOOD FRIDAY UNION SERVICE

Memorable Service Held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church Friday.

LOCAL PASTORS THERE

Brief Addresses on the Words of Christ From the Cross—Rev. Dr. Wm. R. Richards Returned to Take Part in the Service—

What Was Said in Part.

The Union Good Friday service, held Friday evening in the Crescent Avenue church, attracted a large and devout congregation of worshippers, and the words spoken by the various pastors echoed the true spirit of the occasion in short talks on "Meditations on Words from the Cross." This service has been an annual one for several years past, bringing together the members of all the evangelical churches.

In the opening part of the services, Rev. E. M. Rodman offered prayer, Rev. John MacMurray conducted the responsive reading, and Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass read the Scripture lesson and was the first speaker, being given the first word — "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do." The chief thought here expressed was the forgiving Spirit of Christ, that in His divine, as well as human nature, He had only the most devoted interest for those who had persecuted Him. The speaker impressively spoke of the divine relationship between Christ and God and how this is transmitted to those who believe in Him.

Rev. E. M. Rodman took the second word—"Verily, I say unto thee, today shalt thou be with me in paradise." He spoke of the sudden conversion of the thief on the cross, who had asked the Father to remember him. Here, again the divine and human nature was shown and the strong example of forgiveness. Dr. Rodman said he believed that the thief was truly repentant and for this reason Christ assured him that he would soon be with Him in paradise.

The third word—"Behold thy son; behold thy mother," was given to Rev. R. V. Stevenson. He pictured an impressive scene many miles from Plainfield, where a white haired old woman sits in loneliness deriving her only comfort in the knowledge that she has given to the world those who can labor for Christ and do His will. He said that Christ must claim the assurance of all because of the good life He lived. In conclusion he drew a strong picture of the divine sympathy and love of Christ and he urged all to cultivate this love and thus exercise in toward others in the true spirit of Christ.

Rev. E. L. Earp spoke on the fourth word—"My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" The speaker said that inasmuch as Christ had been tempted in all points, it was imperative that He should experience the withdrawal of the Father's face for a time. He was shut out from the face of the Father, the same as those who refuse to seek Christ and believe in Him. He urged all to live close communion with Christ and not lose sight of Him.

"I thirst," the fifth word, was given to Rev. C. L. Goodrich. His chief thought was that Christ knew what it was to be tired, hungry and thirsty, that He was a real man suffering as a human being. He spoke of the terrible thirst Christ experienced, likening it to the thirst of those who seek and follow Christ.

Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph.D., spoke on the sixth word—"It is finished." He made an impressive point of the fact that Christ's work was finished and completed, that He had rounded out His life on earth. He said that it was no ordinary work, but the accomplishment of the world's redemption through His atonement. He thanked God that this redemption is completed, that Christ died for the redemption of the world.

The last word—"Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit," was the subject given to Rev. D. W. E. Richards, of the Brick Presbyterian church, New York, who came to Plainfield to attend the service. He spoke briefly of the great divine love of Christ and of His resignation into the hands of the Father. He thought it was an unanswerable argument in the divinity of Christ and His power to save.

After a brief silent prayer, Rev. Dr. W. C. Hubbell offered prayer. An offering was then taken for the Children's Home. After the singing of a hymn, the benediction was pronounced.

Mrs. Probasco's Tea.

Mrs. John S. Probasco, of East Front street, has sent out cards for a tea in honor of Mrs. Joseph Davis Phillips, of Netherwood, to be given Wednesday, April 23, from 4 until 6 o'clock.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXVI. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, APRIL 23, 1903. NO. 17

"Support the Constitution. Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well as Its Limitations as to Its Authorities"—Madison

COURT WEEK IN SOMERSET

Grand Jury Investigates Murder of John Driff at Bound Brook Christmas Day.

LICENSES ARE GRANTED

Former Senator C. A. Reed and Other Prominent Men on Grand Jury—Twenty-Six Inns and Taverns Licensed—Several in North Plainfield—Other Business.

Somerville, April 22—This is what is known as "court week" at Somerville and many comparative strangers are seen in town. The Grand Jury that began its labors yesterday is quite a remarkable one. Charles J. Fury, formerly proprietor of the Somerset Hotel and at present manager of the New Jersey Bottling Association, is its foreman. Among the others are Wm. O. Worth, Former Senator Charles A. Reed, David J. Carney and Abram E. Hegeman, of North Plainfield, former Assemblyman Edward E. Cooper, of Warren, and Former Sheriff W. H. H. Wyckoff, of Raritan. These jurors are now investigating the charge of murder against Joseph Erner, of Bound Brook, who, it is alleged, killed John Driff on Christmas morning.

Justice Garretson charged the Grand Jury as follows:

"The court understands there is one charge of homicide to be investigated by the Grand Jury. A man was killed at Bound Brook—struck by a club in the hands of someone lying in wait for him. A person is in jail charged with the crime. It is your duty to give careful consideration to the matter and if the evidence satisfies you that there is cause you should indict him for murder."

James R. Duke, president of the American Tobacco Company, who was drawn as a Grand Juror, did not appear until the others were sworn. It is said he expressed disappointment, but it is believed he was only bluffing.

There were more licenses granted yesterday that at one term before in years. In all twenty-six inns and taverns, seven saloons and four wholesale liquors were licensed. Among those of interest to North Plainfielders were: Inns and taverns, Henry Pedefious, Smalleytown; Charles Jensen, North Plainfield; Fred A. Nelson, Watchung; wholesale, New Jersey Bottling and Rectifying Company, and Adolph Behren, North Plainfield.

The license of Thomas Howard for a hotel at Peapack, which has never known such a luxury, was deferred for a hearing on May 1.

Judge Schenck announced that he would take up the trial of indictments on May 11, the Justice appeals on May 13 and the Court appeals on May 23.

In the Circuit Court yesterday there were objections by a number of people to the assessments made by the commissioners on the Pinckamin and Skillman roads and the matter was laid over for a hearing Monday. There being no one opposing the benefits assessed on the Hillsborough road the court confirmed the report.

The Somerset County Bar Association had its annual meeting after court had adjourned for the day. Officers were elected as follows: President, A. A. Clark; vice president, Louis H. Schenck; secretary, Miss Mary M. Steele; treasurer, Nelson Y. Dungan.

GIVEN A DIAMOND.

Fred Shepherd Receives Valuable Remembrance for Saving Lives.

Fred Shepherd, of Park avenue, who is a brakeman on a New Jersey Central local between New York and Somerville, has just received a handsome diamond pin from two women, residents of Dunellen, whose lives he saved last winter. They were passengers on his train and stepped off the rear car into a snow bank which so confused them, they walked directly in front of a Blue Line express. At the risk of his life Shepherd sprang to their rescue and dragged them to safety as the train sped by. The generous gift came entirely unexpected as the incident had left his mind.

Retail Clerks' Dance.

The Retail Clerks' Mutual Aid Association will hold a dance at the Casino this evening.

—Rockdale print butter at 24 cents per pound. It is impossible to secure a better quality. Neuman Brothers.

PARKS SECOND FOR TROPHY

BROOKLYN WHIST CLUB IN LEAD FOR METROPOLITAN WHIST TROPHY.

Standing for That Cup—Parks and Cosmopolitans Tied for Second Place—Play Tomorrow.

As there has been a revival of interest in the game of whist in Plainfield this past winter and spring, it will be interesting to many to know about the standing of the various clubs for the Metropolitan challenge trophy. The Brooklyn Whist Club holds the lead with eleven wins, while the Cosmopolitan Club and the Park Club teams are tie for second place with eight wins each. Seven of the eight wins by the Park Club were consecutive victories. Next comes the Knickerbocker Club with seven wins, the Newark Bay Boat Club with six, the Camera Club with five, the Elizabeth Chess and Whist Club with four, while the Forest Hill and Jersey City Clubs each have one win for the trophy.

The challengers next in line are: Cosmopolitan, Camera Club, Forest Hill, Knickerbocker and Brooklyn Whist Club. The Parks will play the Cosmopolitan Club team on Thursday evening at the Park Club and as both teams have the same number of wins the match is sure to be of more than ordinary interest to those who have followed the whist play this season. The Parks' old team scored one victory last year for the trophy thus making the total number eight.

AS MEMBERS LOOKED ONCE

"PHOTOGRAPH PARTY" HELD AT PARK CLUB TUESDAY NIGHT.

Unique Affair in Which Members Guessed Each Other's Identity From Youthful Pictures.

A unique affair was held at the Park Club last evening under the auspices of the entertainment committee. It was called a "photograph party," and a most profitable and pleasant evening was spent. The idea was this. The entertainment committee asked the various members of the club to send photos of themselves and their families to them. There was a generous response, nearly 120 pictures being received. These were placed about the walls at the clubhouse and those present were expected to guess the names of them all. There were prizes for the man and woman who guessed the greatest number correctly. Miss Daisy Elsberg won the prize for the women, she having guessed sixty-eight, while Walter M. McGee, who guessed forty-six, received the prize for the men.

One may understand how difficult the task was when it is known that the pictures showed the various people at ages ranging from two years upward, most of them being between eighteen and twenty years of age. There were a number of daguerreotypes and these were the hardest to guess. Some of the pictures were comical and caused no end of fun for the guests.

At the conclusion of the guessing refreshments were served under the direction of the committee and a social time followed. The committee in charge consisted of Mr. and Mrs. S. St. John McCutchen, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Saunders, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. McGee and C. E. Murray.

MUST ATTEND.

Borough School Board Calls Attention to the Law Regarding Truants.

The members of the North Plainfield Board of Education have prepared circulars which will be sent to the parents of pupils in the borough schools calling attention to the fact that by law children between the ages of seven and fifteen years are obliged to attend school regularly. The announcement further states that failure to obey this law makes a parent liable to fine or imprisonment.

This is the first step which the board has taken in an effort to compel a more regular attendance at the school sessions across the brook. The first case which comes to the notice of the board will be made an example of and the attention of the parents of pupils in the borough is called to the determined action taken by the board.

Opened to Public.

The new steps leading from the walk to the eastbound railroad station were opened yesterday to the public. They make a handy short cut from Park avenue to the railroad bank when one is in a hurry to catch a train.

WORKED FOR MISSIONS FOR QUARTER CENTURY

Twenty-Fifth Anniversary of Woman's Home Missionary Society of First Baptist.

REPORTS OF ITS GROWTH

ADDRESS BY MISS RAPP, BAPTIST MISSIONARY AT ELLIS ISLAND.

Told of Her Work Among the Immigrants—Review of the Society Since Its Organization—Forty-Nine Original Members Living.

The twenty fifth anniversary meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, of the First Baptist church, was held Tuesday afternoon in the lecture room of the church, when reports for the past year as well as preceding years, were given. Mrs. David J. Yerkes, as president of the society, occupied the chair and conducted the devotional exercises.

The report of the secretary, Miss Laura J. Runyon, was read by Mrs. John H. French. This showed that in 1878 there were 125 members, the society being connected with the First Baptist and Park Avenue Baptist churches. In 1887 the Park Avenue Baptist church members formed a separate society. The First Baptist church society now numbers seventy members. Of the original members forty-nine are now living and two, Mrs. Stockbridge and Mrs. Rhees, moved to western cities. Many have died since the organization of the society, but those living in Plainfield are still connected with it.

The report of the treasurer showed that during the past year there was received and disbursed $483.65 and in the twenty-five years there has been received and disbursed $10,000. The banner year was 1896-1897 when over $900 was received.

After the presentation of reports the members were introduced to Miss Rapp, a missionary employed by the Woman's Board of Home Missions of the Baptist church to labor among the immigrants at Ellis Island. She told of her interesting work among the many foreigners who are constantly arriving in New York. She also told how the immigrants are divided into separate classes, according to nationality. They are brought from steamers to Ellis Island on barges and sometimes they are detained for one reason and another as long as a month. During this time Miss Rapp has an opportunity to do missionary work among these people. On Good Friday Miss Rapp said that 7,000 immigrants arrived at Ellis Island.

Miss Rapp related many touching incidents how families are separated by illness and death before they have a chance to leave Ellis Island and reach their destinations. She told of the conversion of many immigrants and of their uniting with churches soon after taking up their residence in this country. The missionary's talk was intensely interesting and after the meeting many remained to meet Miss Rapp.

OFFICERS CHOSEN.

For the Home Building and Loan Association.

The Home Building and Loan Association held its annual meeting Monday evening, when the following officers were elected: President, I. W. Rushmore; vice president, G. H. Batchelor; secretary, S. R. Struthers; treasurer, W. F. Arnold; attorney, J. H. VanWinkle; directors, Thomas Hanna, A. W. Vars, W. T. Kirk, Alex. Muir; auditor, Frank H. Smith. All of the reports presented showed the association to be in a healthy condition financially. There are now sixty-four series running.

Martin Act Tax Sale.

The date for the Martin Act tax sale is Thursday, May 7, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. While several delinquents have seen Collector Smith and settled, there will still be a number of properties to sell.

Auto Truck for Baggage.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is to have an "electric auto" baggage truck for use in Jersey City to move baggage from the cars in the train shed to the ferryboats.

Move Cars for Erie.

The Erie Railroad Company has ordered 1,000 hopper gondolas of 100,000 pounds capacity from the Pressed Steel Car Company.

Afternoon for Euchre.

The women members and friends of the Park Club will meet for euchre at the Park Club this afternoon.

TEMPLARS' LAST FAREWELL

CONDUCTED THE FUNERAL SERVICE OF FRANK A. VAN AUKEN.

Services Held From the East Sixth Street Home Tuesday—Templars' Service.

Simple, yet beautiful funeral services of a nature seldom seen in this city, marked the last and rites over the remains of Francis A. VanAuken at his late home on East Sixth street, last Tuesday. Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., was in charge and the Templar form of service was fully carried out by the members. There were present also delegations of members from the two Masonic lodges in this city and prominent officials from various parts of the State.

Eminent Commander Samuel Bingaman conducted the obsequies in a ritualistic sense and Prelate Rev. J. W. Richardson, of Stamford, Conn., was his assistant. The latter confined himself to no set form and took occasion in his remarks to lay stress upon the sterling worth of the brother just departed. His expressions of sympathy for the bereaved relatives were silently echoed by everyone within hearing as no one knew him but to love him.

During the service three beautiful selections were sung by the Masonic quartette composed of Elmer E. Runyon, W. T. Jeffery, William E. MacClymont and R. Wilson Derby. They were "Asleep in Jesus," "I'm But a Sojourner Here" and "Lead, Kindly Light." The floral tributes were unusually numerous but the pieces contributed by friends were extremely pretty. There were Masonic pieces and two from the pupils of the City High School of which Mr. VanAuken's son is a senior.

The remains were taken yesterday to Dover Plains, N. Y., for interment. They were accompanied by the pall bearers, B. Frank Coriell, D. C. Adams, Jacob Kirkner and Henry Woodland and also an escort from Trinity Commandery.

ANOTHER CONTEST.

Started by Y. M. C. A. Members to be Held on the New Shuffle Board.

A tournament has been arranged among the members of the Y. M. C. A. on the new shuffle board which has recently been added to the list of games at the association. The first game will be played on the evening of April 23 and the tournament will close on the evening of April 30.

The entries for the first game are W. M. Weintraub, A. Ahlholm, W. Osborne, A. Spicer, C. B. Koons, C. A. B. Jones, Walter McNaughton and L. M. Hummer. For the second game which will be played on the evening of April 28, the entries are A. V. Utsinger, P. R. Collins, H. S. Brokaw, W. B. Mundy, John Doughty, Wilbur Smalley, A. L. Denton and Kenneth Robbins. The third and last game will be played Monday evening, April 30, when the following members will play: W. Edward Neal, A. Pittinger, W. Nischwitz, George Wyckoff, H. Osthers, W. Letourette, Ray Smith, A. L. Conant, F. A. Martin and W. Hetfield.

Social times will be enjoyed after each game and some good scores are expected to be made as the members have been faithfully practicing at the game and some have become very proficient.

After New Industries.

By recent moves the new management of the Lehigh Valley Railroad has shown that it will be more aggressive. Efforts will be made to locate new industries along the line of the road.

Club Cars on Erie.

The Erie Railroad Company is following in the footsteps of the New Jersey Central. Two club cars have just been completed at the Buffalo shops for service out of New York.

Largest Locomotive.

What is reported to be the largest locomotive ever built has just been completed at Schenectady, N. Y. This engine, it is said, can haul a train a mile and half long.

Oldest Pensioner Dead.

John Frail, who was believed to have been the oldest pensioner on the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's pay-roll, died last week, aged eighty-seven.

Contracts for "Cut Off."

Contracts have been given out for the work of changing the line of the Pennsylvania's Trenton "cut-off." The job will be completed by September.

Colonist Rate.

The colonist rate of $30 to California points has been extended until June 15.

MANY WITNESS WORK OF Y. M. C. A. GYMNASTS

Annual Spring Gymnastic Exhibition Held at Association Gym Tuesday.

SOME CLEVER WORK

CONTESTS IN SEVERAL EVENTS ADDED TO THE INTEREST.

Clever Contests on Wrestling Mat and With Polis—Show Stunts on Various Apparatus—Physical Director Heywood in Charge.

Nearly two hundred people who are more or less interested in the work of the Young Men's Christian Association in this city were given an excellent idea of the work being done at the association in the physical department at the annual spring exhibition of the gymnasium classes Tuesday night. The members were all in good trim and the showing made was gratifying, not only to the physical instructor, C. E. A. Heywood, but to those who witnessed the gymnastic feats of strength and skill.

The programme opened with a dumb-bell drill by the members of the gymnasium led by Mr. Heywood. Several changes were made in the programme which was handed around to the audience. This was necessitated on account of the non-appearance of several of the members of the class. In the class work exhibition on the apparatus the "buck" was substituted for the low bar which was broken the night before. This was led by Percy Bank, while the work on the "horse" was led by H. Brokaw. Charles Zimmer led the work on the parallel bars and Ralph Collins was the leader on the high bar.

McNaughton, Neal, Denton and Bland took part in the high diving and while no new records were made the work was of a very capable class. Individual work on the apparatus showed the skill and strength of each participant. The "horse" work was led by W. E. Neal, the parallel bars by A. L. Denton, high bar by W. E. Cahoone, and flying rings by W. McNaughton. On each apparatus two moves were made with one optional move for each man, while the leader made three.

The potato race was one of the laughable features of the evening. It was won by Zimmer with Brokaw a close second. Collins took third place. Koons and Collins won in the wheelbarrow race while the other contestants were Denton and Neal and McNaughton and Cahoone.

One of the interesting events of the evening was the "hand" wrestling. Utsinger won from Brokaw, Neal from Denton and Conant from Smith. Following that event R. M. Smith led the class in window diving. The aperture 11x18 inches in dimention, was dived through with perfect ease amid loud applause.

Another laughable feature of the evening was the sack race in which Denton, Cahoone and McNaughton took part. This race was won by Denton by a few inches with Cahoone and McNaughton close seconds.

In the fencing there were two teams. One was the beginner's and the other consisted of adepts in the art. The first team comprised Collins and Kline while the second comprised A. L. Denton and W. E. Neal. No winners were announced in this event.

Three weights were represented on the wrestling mat, feather, light and middle. In the first Ahlholm and Sebring fought and the decision was awarded the latter. In the second Conant and Mundy went at it and the decision went to the former while in the third, or middle weight, Denton and Neal faced each other. This was declared a tie.

The tumbling work brought out the result of the work in the gymnasium in good form as it showed the skill and ease in which the various tumbling feats are accomplished. Bentiff and Gluck, of Westfield, were the leaders in that event.

The evening closed with a gymnasium hockey game in which all the members took part. The two teams were captained by Utsinger and Koons and after a hard fought battle the honors were awarded to Utsinger's team who scored over their opponents by a score of 6 to 3.

More than usual interest was shown in the exhibition this year and not in four years has there been so many people in attendance at a spring exhibition as the gymnasium as there was last evening.

AFTER A NEW DRILL FLOOR

COMPANY K IS CONSIDERING MOVING TO NEW QUARTERS.

Some Talk of Postponing Field Day From June to September.

Besides the inspection of Company K Monday evening when Lieutenant Colonel Clime complimented the members of the company very highly for the good work done during the past few months, much business of importance was transacted. One item of great importance was the probable postponement of the athletic games which were to have been held in June to sometime in September. This was deemed advisable for many reasons, one of which is that the men will be in better trim then they are at present. This matter has not been decided upon definitely and will come up again before the next meeting which will be held in May. It is understood that some of the members are in favor of holding the games as planned.

Another important matter which came up before the meeting was the question of whether or not to move from the present hall to more commodious rooms. There is some talk of securing the large hall in the Scheppflin building on West Front street, which was recently purchased by Morris Abrams. This hall is said to measure 50x80 feet and its appointments and style are just what the company needs.

CHURCH FINALLY SECURED

PLAINFIELDER COMES TO AID OF A TOWN IN ALABAMA.

In Memory of His Mother, Who Attended Church There, Col. John F. Wilson Pays Bill.

There's a little town down in Alabama, Tuscumbia they call it, which looks at Plainfield today with pride for the reason that this city numbers among its inhabitants Former Mayor John F. Wilson. For Tuscumbia has good reason to remember Col. Wilson. There stands in that town as pretty a little sanctuary as one could wish to see which was only made possible through the generosity of this same Plainfielder.

Col. Wilson's old family home was located near Tuscumbia and in the day before the war it was to the thriving Methodist church in that community that his mother, Mrs. Susan Anne Wilson, used to worship weekly. She was an active worker there and beloved by all who knew her. When the Civil War came, the planters lost much of their wealth. The Methodist church was destroyed and the once thriving congregation lacked the means to build another.

It was only recently that the Methodists of Tuscumbia decided that they would make a final effort to rebuild their church. An architect was consulted, plans drawn and the work of collecting funds begun. By dint of much effort, $1,000 was raised. Then there was a halt. It was at this time that Col. Wilson learned of the situation and came to the rescue. In memory of his mother, he offered to meet the remainder of the cost of the church as planned. He also arranged for a beautiful memorial window, properly inscribed. The church is now completed and stands in the Alabama town free from debt. And that is why the people of Tuscumbia have such a warm place in their hearts for Plainfield and one of its residents in particular.

FUNERAL OF MISS ROSEBERRY.

Services Held From Her Home—Interment at Phillipsburg.

Funeral services over the remains of Miss Flora Roseberry, who died in Muhlenberg Hospital, Sunday, were held from the home of her mother, Mrs. Ida Roseberry, of West Front street, yesterday at 11 o'clock. They were in charge of Rev. L. R. Howard, of Hope chapel, of which the young woman was a member. Numerous floral tributes were in evidence.

The body was afterward taken to Phillipsburg for interment in the family plot, the casket being borne to the grave by M. D. Sweeney, George Conover, Alexander Muir and Augustus Feiring, Jr.

Invitations Out Soon.

In a few days invitations will be issued for the annual musicale to be given in the Seventh-Day Baptist church, under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society, Thursday evening, April 30.

FLOOD COMES THROUGH FIRE

Blaze Melts Water Pipe and Floods Home of Former Fire Chief G. H. Fairchild.

FAMILY WAS ABSENT

Mr. Fairchild Felt Something Was Wrong and Discovered Flood—Then He Found Fire—Department Called Out—The Damage Will Amount to About $50.

Former Fire Chief George H. Fairchild, of North Plainfield, was called upon to extinguish a blaze in his house on Grandview avenue yesterday. The fire did but little damage but through the melting of a lead pipe water flooded the kitchen and cellar.

Mr. Fairchild's family were away attending a funeral and he, having a premonition that all was not well at his residence, left his work at the store of C. Frank French and went home. As he entered the kitchen he found the place flooded. He rushed to the cellar to turn off the supply and then went upstairs. There he found the bathroom ablaze while from beneath the washstand, a lead pipe, which had been melted by the heat, was emitting a copious flow of water.

He tried to smother the flames but found that they were gaining headway. He rushed to the corner of Somerset street and Grandview avenue and turned in an alarm from box 143. He then hurried back to the house and with the aid of neighbors extinguished the blaze before the department arrived.

The damage done will probably amount to $50, chiefly by water. The fire was caused by mice gnawing matches.

RIOT IN SALOON.

Three Arrests Made for Trouble on West Third Street—Trial Set Down for Saturday Morning.

John Newman, James Barry and Benjamin Monroe, the latter colored, were arraigned in the city court, this morning, charged with fighting and disorderly conduct in a West Third street saloon, Saturday night. The testimony was so conflicting City Judge Runyon was unable to place the blame and laid the matter over until Saturday when witnesses will be present.

David Bowden, a West Third boy, was arraigned on complaint of Chief Barschowski, who said the Bowden boy had annoyed him by throwing stones through his shop windows. Bowden preferred counter charges against the complainant of giving and selling cigarettes to small boys for stealing coal car him. Barschowski denied the charge and the case was continued until tomorrow.

Sentence was suspended on John McCann who was arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct.

ROBBED FIREMEN.

Sneak Thieves Took $40 in Cash and Other Things.

While the firemen of No. 3 hose company were exercising the horses yesterday morning, thieves entered the engine house and ransacked the lockers. A roll of bills amounting to $40 belonging to Callman Alexander Muir and several razors and other articles belonging to Drivers Feiring and Dugavan, were taken. The matter was reported to the police and several suspects are being watched.

H. Clay Brose Injured.

Henry Clay Brose had the third finger on his right hand broken yesterday morning in a most peculiar manner. He was standing on West Front street in front of the Babcock building when a man rushed out of a store and hurried to catch a car. The man pushed the young man against a post and his fingers doubling up under his hand as he reached out to keep from falling and was broken near the first knuckle.

Captor Was Dragged.

Hackmas Charles Barry, of Howard place, had one of his horses run away yesterday noon on Somerset street while he was in a store. The animal made a dash up Somerset street but at Race street a young man named Cubberly rushed out and grasped the bridle. He was dragged almost to Manning avenue before he was able to check the plunging steed. No damage was done.

NEW SPECIES OF HORSE.

A Breed Discovered in Central Asia That Differs from the Common Kind.

Prof. Ewart has recently described a new species of horse from the western islands. Until recently it has been the accepted theory that all living horses belong to one and the same species, and that all the breeds of European horses are descendants of domestic varieties from the orient.

The etchings found on the walls of caves indicate that the horse may have been domesticated in Europe before the arrival of neolithic man, says a London paper.

Horses, donkeys and zebras differ markedly in that the two latter have no callosities such as the horse possesses.

The discovery of a new variety of small horse in central Asia by Col. Przevalsky will be remembered, and now Prof. Ewart describes still another variety. It was a pony, not a dwarf horse, with no callosities on the hind legs and resembling the wild horse of central Asia in having only short hairs on the upper part of the tail.

As the most typical specimen of the new variety was found in an out-of-the-way part of Iceland there is no chance that it is the result of a cross with the Przevalsky horse, though it was exactly of the color of the central Asian horse. Not having callosities, it agreed with the asses and zebras, and, like them, it was highly specialized in the size, form of the head, ears and under lip and in the position of the eyes.

COAL DEALER AND GROUNDHOG

Why a New Yorker Came to Adopt Picture of the Animal as an Emblem.

At least one man in this city believes that if the ground hog sees his shadow and goes back to his hole on Candlemas day, February 2, there are six weeks more of winter to come, says the New York Tribune.

A few years ago, at this time of year, a coal dealer was struggling with the problem presented by a big stock of coal and an exceptionally mild, open winter. He had about decided that he had best wind up his business and get out as whole as he could, when a friend advised him to hold on.

"Wait until Candlemas day," said the friend, "and then you can tell by the ground hog whether or not there will be cold weather enough to pull you through."

So the dealer waited for the ground hog's decision, and as Candlemas day was bright and sunny he prepared for plentiful sales of coal for six weeks of winter weather. The sign held true, and the dealer sold his stock at good prices.

In gratitude he adopted the ground hog as his emblem, and its picture appears on all his letterheads, and is even painted on his carts. And if one drops into his office he will find a man who has a warm spot in his heart for the ground hog.

ONE-CLIENT LAWYERS.

Business Men of To-Day Want a Lawyer to Work for Them Alone.

The poverty of briefless barristers is as proverbial as that of the church mouse. It would not be an unnatural mistake to consider a barrister with only one client hardly better off than one with none. But the modern "one-client lawyer" is usually a prosperous individual, says World's Work. Said a man well known in the business world some years ago to a friend: "I want a young lawyer to put down at a desk beside mine. I'll familiarize him with my affairs and then I want him to keep me out of trouble." The counterpart of this lawyer, whose duty it is to act as his own client's ounce of prevention, may be found in the office of many large concerns. He is often connected with trust companies, banks, banking houses, railroad and other transportation companies and large wholesale mercantile houses. When a merchant found himself in a tangle it was once the custom for him to go to his lawyer for advice. The results were a written "opinion" and a fee. A business man to-day obtains a lawyer who shall work for him alone. Again the field of the general practitioner is narrowed.

THE PROCESSIONAL ELEPHANT.

Its Build and Gait Are Peculiarly Adapted for Spectacular Parades.

There can be no real procession without an elephant; he was built for processions. His gait is processional. The old Sanskrit poets note the grace of the rhythmic sway, for when they particularly compliment a woman, they say: "She walks like an elephant"—"As the swan swims," says Everybody's Magazine.

In India "first catch your elephant" is only a preliminary, for he is but the foundation of an architectural structure, all except glittering eye and rakish tail being covered. The howdah, solid gold, silver gilt, or sandal carved, rises in temple turrets; he sways beneath gold-crusted, jewelled robes; his harness studs are disks of precious gems, his ears fringed with pearls, his tusks gold-tipped. His anklet would liberate a slave, his forehead moon light a harem.

He is massive as the rock temples of Karli. His rhythm the circling of the planets. His eye twinkles with the wisdom of lost Lemuria.

HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

THE NEW SHIRT WAISTS

Fashion Never Devised Anything Daintier or More Enticing.

Surely fashion never devised anything daintier or more enticing than the materials now offered for and in the shirt waists for the season. Linen is produced in styles of weave and degrees of coarseness, roughness and also delicate fineness never before thought of. The linen knickerbocker effect is entirely new and makes up into suits with the blouse instead of shirt waist. This comes in several shades and colors and looks exactly like wool knickerbocker suiting. Linen is so well liked that one finds it in every quality and every degree of shade from the natural flax to the bleached batiste, which is so fine that it is a wonder it is ever woven. Many beautiful and dressy house frocks are made of pure white linen in such weave as best pleases the wearer. They are trimmed with rather heavy lace in cream and sometimes even in butter color. The linens are shown in all the season's best colors, and they are fast, so that the wearer need not fear to put as much trimming as she will on them. The tints are blue, pink, heliotrope and sulphur yellow. These are all beautiful when trimmed with lace.

Lace in small separate figures called medallions is set along the front fold on yokes and among tucks wherever they seem called for. They are very dainty and are used on so many of the waists and skirts that it would be unprofitable to mention them in detail.

A long list of materials especially adapted for waists for summer are shown, and it seems that nearly everything is mercerized. This means that the fabric has been made frosty and lustrous by some treatment with silica ground to an impalpable powder. It is certainly handsome, but so far as my experience goes will not survive the laundry. So let whoever buys it be careful and keep it out of the water. Everything, even the stiff swiss muslins, is mercerized. The new silk and linen batistes are exquisite. They show lacy lines and lines where there are swivel-woven blossoms in natural colors on a natural grass tint. Silk and cotton woven together make another very delicate and dainty fabric, for the most part in tints with Pompadour figures.

Quite a number of the light materials have a border of embroidery woven along the edge so that it can be utilized as trimming. Some materials are shown with quite wide stripes of openwork like lace or embroidery, and between them the plain linen.

Shirt waists are made of all of these and many more, but the shirt waists of this season are marked by neater effects than they were—that is, they are built more compactly. Few of them have that ugly and obstreperous extension to go under the belt. These have the finish of a belt, and very many waists have a sewing lining stiffened with featherbone, which washes like cord.

Almost every waist has the bishop sleeves, with cuffs narrow or deep, as suits the wearer best. Many have yoke effects and are trimmed as fancy dictates, but in a close and neat manner. All have high collars more or less ornamental. Quite a new fancy is to have a yoke in a sort of bertha shape, with long, pointed ends which reach down like the front of the bodices in the pictures of Queen Elizabeth. The blouse shape is modified somewhat and the point in front is accentuated. One made in this style was of soft pale blue lonsdale satin. The yoke was tucked across and the bertha had two rows of fine insertion and a narrow edging to match. Medallions of lace were set all around the bertha and on the stock. The sleeves to this came but to the elbow. It is intended for a dressy occasion. The belt and bands around the sleeves were of dark green velvet. Another pretty waist of chiffon foulard was open in front, like a vest, and the front was closely tucked and of a shade lighter than the silks in the embroidery which ran down each side. The waist had sleeve caps; so did another made of figured silk. This had a simulated yoke outlined by a skillful application of lace and medallions. One pleasing style has tucks along the shoulders and down the outside of the sleeves, while three embroidered straps add to its finish.

HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

ECONOMICAL HINTS.

Slips Which Can Be Worn Under More Than One Gown.

The newest slip skirt is made with a tightly gored top and a godet flounce of graduated length in order to give fullness at the edge. One or two narrow gathered frills may edge the slip, or a single one will do if the skirt is fussily trimmed. The slip bodice may be sleeveless, or there can be a tight sleeve to the elbow only. The neck can be cut square or high. These details depend entirely upon the make of the gown to be worn over them.

The woman who is able to make some of her clothes at home would do well to invest in some of these slips. With three slips much variety may be obtained, and one of black, one of white and one of some pale color will be found very effective worn under cream or lace robes. A pretty sateen slip can be used under muslin gowns.

The number of robes all ready to be made up in lace, veilings, crepe de chine or other materials is increasing all the time. There is a great demand for fine embroidery and also for gowns which can be run up at home by an inexpensive dressmaker. By means of the robes dresses can be obtained at one-third their actual cost when made by a good dressmaker.

A gown of pale rose veiling is here shown. The skirt has the fashionable triple effect and the latest sleeve, having a wide, tight cuff. The wide belt and rosette are of oriental satin.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

SMART MILLINERY.

Becoming Shapes For Dressy and Ordinary Wear.

The new hat shapes are decidedly becoming and artistic. The chief characteristic consists in a clinging effect in the back and a shovel effect in front.

Hats entirely composed of flowers have upturned brims and for sole trimming a big bow of velvet.

The flat aigret is one of the most popular trimmings. It is placed at the left side of a rough straw turban in such a manner that it projects slightly in advance of the hat.

Double faced hats, the upper part being white and the under black, are very becoming and smart.

Shapes of black chiffon trimmed with a single ostrich feather are both becoming and useful.

Hydrangeas and jonquils are among the novelties in artificial flowers.

In general the trimmings may be said to be, if anything, flatter than ever, but the outlines of the hat are more raised.

The tailor made hat of the season is much more becoming than formerly, for instead of the universal sailor shape an unusual variety of modes are shown, all of them with rolling or irregular brims and flat or round crowns. With an aigret or a smart bow of ribbon, the trimming is complete, and this can easily be contrived by the woman with a little skill in her fingers.

Nearly all the hat shapes this year have flat tops and very rolling brims.

The illustration shows a smart hat of coarse black straw trimmed with two black ostrich feathers.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

NEW WAISTS FOR WARM DAYS.

GOWN OF ROSE VEILING.

BLACK STRAW AND OSTRICH TIPS.

VISITING DRESS.

HANDSOME EMBROIDERIES.

They Figure In All the Modish Gowns This Season.

The very newest form of embroidery consists of medallions and lozenge shaped motifs surrounded by lace, and the more elaborate trimmings have very elaborate frames of lace. Clever girls with little pocket money might do worse than copy those embroidered galloons with floral silk or ribbons, as circles, diamonds and ovals can be cut out of broche or pompadour designs in silk and then featherstitched or buttonholed with colored silk and laid on fine lace.

Take for instance some medallion lace with one large oval and a small circle or square alternately, then a pompadour silk with one very small spray or flower and one large one. These can be cut out slightly smaller than the lace medallions, lined with muslin, worked around and appliqued on the lace, and there is a charming trimming quite of the latest style.

Painted silk can be used in the same manner, or fancy ribbon, satin and gauze, and as embroidered galloon is by no means inexpensive the result is worth a little trouble, and the work is so fanciful that it is suited for a drawing room.

The cut shows an embroidered coffee jacket and one of the latest petticoats.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FOR SPRING WEAR.

Jaunty Little Suits—Cape Collars and Sleeves.

The most important person at present is the tailor, for he is evolving any quantity of chic and becoming little suits.

Very smart are the little short coats in black or tan worn with a skirt of walking length.

Of equal importance with the cape collar is the sleeve, which every day becomes more intricate and elaborate. In soft materials the big sleeves look charming and admit of a fair amount of tucking and gauging at the top, falling full from the elbow to the wrist, but in cheap, wiry materials, however, an adherence to plainer styles is to be commended.

Blouse sleeves in silks, muslins and other such fine fabrics are either simply gauged at the top, tucked by hand or, more effective still, inserted with silk veining.

The cut shows a visiting dress of pastel blue cloth trimmed with silk fringe, collar, cuffs and waistband of black panne.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

WHAT IS WORN.

Separate Waists—Bare Arms No Longer the Fashion.

Bare arms, except for very full dress occasions, are not seen so much. Even ball gowns boast some suggestion of a sleeve. The best frocks are a perfect harmony of color even to the trimmings.

The intelligent observer cannot but be struck by the improvement in shirt waists. The blouse is no longer a sloppy, untidy garment, but even those which are composed of the most inexpensive fabrics have a certain style of their own, are extremely well cut about the neck and shoulders and have plenty of fullness across the bust, which used to be the chief fault with the ready made waist.

Unless a woman wants something very exclusive and expensive she had better buy her waists ready made at one of the big stores.

Fancy wraps will be a feature of the summer season. Now that the tailor made is no longer considered dressy, gowns will be worn for all important occasions, and this makes it necessary to have some light, becoming wrap of lace or silk to protect the wearer's shoulders on cool days.

Many of the smartest new wraps are made entirely of all over lace trimmed with fringe and lined with mousseline de soie or silk.

The cut shows a smart silk waist made with a fancy embroidered collar and a soft frilling down the front. This would be well carried out in pale blue silk.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FOR THE SUMMER SEASON.

Costumes of Thin Cloth—Chiffon and Lace Boas.

The new floral hats and toques will certainly be fashionable during the entire season, as there is no possibility of confusing the exquisite copies of roses and orchids with the cheaper imitations. Red and pink fuchsias and begonias with waxy foliage are not likely to be copied in cotton, while the delicate roses in soft coloring, with dark green leaves, are quite unlike the commoner type of flower.

Stunning boas of chiffon are combined particularly in the brown shades with ecru lace or Russian galloon.

The woman who dresses smartly will enrich her wardrobe by a coatee and skirt of thin cloth with medallions of black guipure laid on black panne and with a deep belt of panne with little tabs of the cloth and panne intermixed and finished with steel buttons.

Suede gloves, both white and black, are taking the place of the glace kids in women's favor. They make the hand look smaller and are far easier to clean.

The cut shows a costume of blue veiling over deep red silk. The hat is of yellow straw and trimmed with a blue and white scarf.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

SILK WAIST.

VEILING SUIT.

THE LONG SHOULDER.

Cape and Sleeve Effects Which Accentuate This.

One of the leading fashion notes of the season is the return of the pelerine or cape. Lovers of the old masters are chiefly responsible for this revival of the long shoulder and the cape collar. The leading dressmakers today can adapt any fashion to the wearer; consequently there is no suggestion of dowdiness about the pelerine of the hour.

From an economical point of view this is an excellent way of renovating a last year's coat or blouse and of using sale remnants of lace or embroidery.

Irish crochet lace is being made in ecru and cream, as the all white was found very trying. For mixing with cloth linen—and, indeed, velvets and satin—there is nothing smarter than this heavy make of lace.

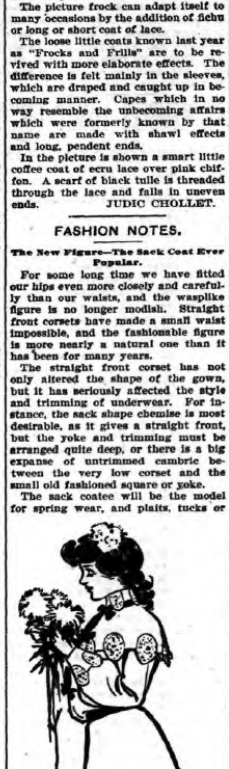
The picture frock can adapt itself to many occasions by the addition of fichu or long or short coat of lace.

The loose little coats known last year as "Frocks and Frills" are to be revived with more elaborate effects. The difference is felt mainly in the sleeves, which are draped and caught up in becoming manner. Capes which in no way resemble the unbecoming affairs which were formerly known by that name are made with shawl effects and long, pendent ends.

In the picture is shown a smart little coffee coat of ecru lace over pink chiffon. A scarf of black tulle is threaded through the lace and falls in uneven ends.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

COFFEE COAT.



CHILD'S DRESS.

FASHION NOTES.

The New Figure—The Sack Coat Ever Popular.

For some long time we have fitted our bodies even more closely and carefully than our waists, and the wasplike figure is no longer modish. Straight front corsets have made a small waist impossible, and the fashionable figure is more nearly a natural one than it has been for many years.

The straight front corset has not only altered the shape of the gown, but it has seriously affected the style and trimming of underwear. For instance, the sack shape chemise is most desirable, as it gives a straight front, but the yoke and trimming must be arranged quite deep, or there is a big expanse of untrimmed cambric between the very low corset and the small old fashioned square or yoke.

The sack coatee will be the model for spring wear, and plaits, tucks or folds will be seen on all coats, whether long or short. The tailor delights in flat plaits, and this season he has full scope for elaboration in this form. All folds must be sharp and clear and thoroughly pressed, and pressing in tailor fashion is quite an art, as the folds are practically indestructible.

There is a possibility that accordion plaited skirts will return and a certainty that tucks will stay in style. On the new cloth gowns there is a trimming running up and down between the tucks, and very often this trimming is handsome and elaborate, though very narrow.

The picture shows a child's gown of brown granite cloth.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

ENGINEER OF NOTE.

Isham Randolph, of Chicago, May Be Selected to Finish the Great Panama Canal.

Isham Randolph, the chief engineer of the Chicago sanitary district, whose skill directed the work of building the drainage canal, is a self-made engineer. To use his own term he "broke into the engineering ranks something like 30 years ago with an ax." Engineers admit that there is scarcely a feat of engineering in the world which eclipses Chicago's drainage ditch. The Suez canal is not so great, and when the Panama channel is completed it alone will exceed in magnitude the great waterway which connects Lake Michigan with the Mississippi river.

Yet this work was done by a man who learned the rudiments of civil engineering by hewing with an ax pathways for the men who handled the instruments. And rumor from Washington says he may be the one chosen to lead the work in completing the great Panama canal. His name is now before President Roosevelt for membership on the Panama commission and wholly without any solicitation on the part of Mr. Randolph or of his friends, it is reported that Senator Spooner, of Wisconsin, is working in his behalf.

ISHAM RANDOLPH.
(Chicago Engineer Who May Complete the Panama Canal.

In telling of his early experiences last night Mr. Randolph said: "While I am free to admit that my first work in the line of engineering was done with an ax, yet I never expected to cut a gash across the state of Illinois."

Mr. Randolph took charge of the construction of the canal in 1892, when ground was first broken in Will county. It was he who, on the night of Jan. 17, 1900, led a party to the gates at Lockport and let the water through from the lake for the first time to head off an injunction which he learned was to be asked of the supreme court at Washington by St. Louis the following morning. After a long delay the water was finally turned on just 15 minutes before the injunction was applied for.

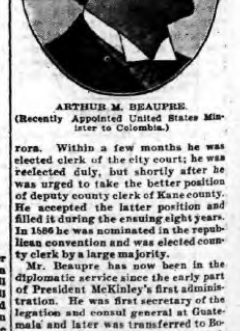
Before becoming identified with the drainage canal Mr. Randolph was connected with railroads.

ARTHUR M. BEAUPRE.

Illinois Man Appointed to Represent the United States in the Capital of Colombia.

Arthur M. Beaupre, of Aurora, who was recently appointed United States minister to Bogota, Colombia, to succeed Minister Charles B. Hart, was born July 29, 1853, in Oswego township, Kendall county, which is about five miles south of Aurora, Ill. His early boyhood was spent at the home of his parents in Kendall county, and when they removed to De Kalb, in 1865, he went with them. Some time after, at the age of 16, he entered the newspaper business as editor of the Kendall County News. When 21 years of age he moved to Aurora. Within a few months he was elected clerk of the city court; he was reelected duly, but shortly after he was urged to take the better position of deputy county clerk of Kane county. He accepted the latter position and filled it during the ensuing eight years. In 1886 he was nominated in the republican convention and was elected county clerk by a large majority.

Mr. Beaupre has now been in the diplomatic service since the early part of President McKinley's first administration. He was first secretary of the legation and consul general at Guatemala and later was transferred to Bogota, the capital of Colombia, in a similar capacity. Three years ago Mr. Beaupre began his duties at Bogota. The family of Mr. Beaupre is with him. His family consists of his wife and one daughter, who was recently married to Mr. Spencer Simard Dickson, British consul at Bogota.



ARTHUR M. BEAUPRE.
(Recently Appointed United States Minister to Colombia.)

Criminals Have Big Ears.

A French physicist says that has discovered that nearly all criminals have large ears.

RYE AND THE GOSPEL

Combination Put a Texas Colonel Into a Sound Sleep.

But It Seemed to Have No Effect Whatever on the Young Man Who Tried to Guide Him to a Better Life.

He wore a big black hat—wore it first on one side of his head, then on the other, according to the way he had last pushed it. He was a cowboy of the old sort and he was weather-beaten, but my, how tough he was, and even now at the age of 49, how capable and ready either for rough riding or heavy drinking!

This man, says the Denver Post, was Robert Leflingwell, of San Antonio, if the Brown hotel register told the truth, and its veracity could hardly be doubted, as Mr. Leflingwell made the entry himself. He was very quiet, while being assigned to a room, and beyond pulling at his crimpled gray mustache a bit he made no motion till he had been duly quartered in a high up but comfortable room.

"Now, Bill, I'm hooked," he said, turning to an old friend who waited for him; "it's up to you to show me the town." And the two started out.

But they had no more than stepped out of the hotel when Mr. Leflingwell's pace encountered a brilliant row of electric lights.

"What's the 'Nav-er?" he asked.

"That's the Navarre," replied his friend.

"Well, I don't keer what you call it; it looks good. Le's go there."

And there they went, and there they found material which seemed to generate good humor in Mr. Leflingwell and caused his lank cheeks to corrugate with cheerfulness.

"I always been pretty fond of licker," said the tall Texan, "and I never keered who knowed it. I never found it done me no harm s' long's I didn't try to dreen the en-tire town—

FOR HIS STOMACH'S SAKE.

though I did that once or twice—yes, may be more'n that."

Mr. Leflingwell stayed his speech and leaned affectionately against the bar.

"There was one feller, though," he resumed, as if he were addressing the yellow-glowing, appreciative tankard of "rye" that stood waiting beyond the man in white, "one feller that did me up proper at my own game—well, I won't just say 'game'—but beat me lushin', and at that time I was fool enough to be mortified over it. I reckon, though, it was more the way it come up.

"I was down to Lehi. That's a little place that had just sprung up. I was with a small Rar-Tee-Cross outfit roundin' up. But we put in Sunday there and there was some sort of a young men's prayer meetin' and, we bein' camped so clost, we went to it.

"Well, I kine of set there and let 'em talk and pray and go on, but I didn't take much interest. I was pretty dry and I knowed I had a jug of good licker up at the camp, and I wanted to git at it. One of the loudest of these here young whoopers come around and begin to talk religion to me. I told him that was all right, but it wasn't my game. I told him that what I hankered for more'n anything else was about three inches of old rye. I thought that would settle him. He said that he didn't see nothing wrong in taking licker in moderation for the stomach's sake, and when I got up to go to camp he said he'd like to go along with me and talk me up a lot more if I didn't mind.

"I told him he could do as he pleased about it and he was welcome to talk as long as he d'rn pleased. And, say—that's what he done. I reckon you never heerd no sich talker in all your born days. He just kep' up a reg'lar streak of talk, only breakin' into it for one thing, and that was to take a drink, for when we got to camp I got out the jug and told him to help hiss'f, which he done, good and plentiful, sayin' sayin' it was for his stomach's sake and right in line with scripter.

"Well, sir, I don't know how much we drunk that night, me and him, for I couldn't say exactly how much was in the jug at the start. I started to count one drinks, but I lost track and finally fell over back'ards and couldn't get up. The last I heard this here religious friend of mine expoundin' something about the 'way of the transgressor,' or some stuff or 'nother like that, and then —well, I just nacherly winked out.

"When I had slept it off the jug was empty and me friend had gone. But he had done his duty. He had fit the good fight and finished his work."

Red Hair Lasts Longest.

Red-haired people, it is stated, are less liable to become bald than those with hair of any other color.

HONORED BY WOMEN.

Suffragists Observe Birthday of Susan B. Anthony.

For Over Fifty Years She Has Toiled to Secure Equal Legal and Political Rights for the Gentler Sex.

February 15 was the anniversary of the eighty-third birthday of Miss Susan Brownell Anthony. It was more or less generally observed throughout the country by members of woman suffrage associations and other acquaintances of this noted reformer. "Possibly no woman ever lived," says one of her friends, "who has given so many years of active work to a reformatory measure and has been left with such wonderful vitality."

Born at South Adams, Mass., in 1820, this girl of Quaker parentage was early taught the importance of courage, self-reliance and of thinking and acting for oneself. Indeed, courage has always been her strongest characteristic. Miss Anthony's early education was obtained from a school supported by her father for his own children and those of the neighborhood, and later at a Quaker boarding-school in West Philadelphia. At about this time her family moved to Battenville, N. Y. She began teaching at the early age of 15, though this was unnecessary at the time. When she was about 18 years old, however, her father, a cotton manufacturer of considerable wealth, lost every penny of his fortune. The teaching had to be continued and it was 12 years later before Miss Anthony gave up this line of work for the one which has made her so well known all over the world. She was teaching away from home when the first woman's rights convention was called at Rochester. Later she became interested in its cause and has ever since been its most ardent supporter. In 1852 she aided in organizing the first State Woman's Temperance society (N. Y.). She became active during the civil war in anti-slavery and women's rights work and was secretary of the Woman's National Loyal league. During the early discussions on the woman's property-right bills Miss Anthony personally circulated hundreds of petitions, both civil and political, traveling through the state in all sorts of weather and in all sorts of vehicles—sometimes even tramping on foot—and often meeting with most discouraging, even insulting rebuffs. In 1868 she founded a women's rights paper, the Revolution, and managed it for several years.

SUSAN B. ANTHONY.
(Her Birthday Has Been Made a Holiday by Suffragists.)

There is scarcely a state in the union where Miss Anthony has not worked, and she has lectured widely both in America and England. Since 1869 she has been granted a hearing before committees of every congress. During the 34 years of the existence of the National Woman Suffrage association she has held high offices and is now president of that organization. Her contributions to leading magazines have been many. With Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Mrs. Matilda Joslyn Gage she is joint author of a three-volume work, "The History of Woman Suffrage."

In the preface to her "Life and Work of Susan B. Anthony," Ida Husted Harper says: "The transition of the young Quaker girl, afraid of the sound of her own voice, into the reformer, orator and stateswoman, is no more wonderful than the change in the status of woman, effected so largely through her exertions. To-day American women are envied by those of all other nations, and stand comparatively free individuals, with the exception of political disabilities. During the 50 years which have wrought this revolution, just one woman in all the world has given every day of her time, every dollar of her money, every power of her being, to secure this result. She was impelled to this work by no personal grievance, but solely through a deep sense of the injustice which, on every side, she saw perpetuated against her sex, and which she determined to combat. Never for one short hour has the cause of woman been forgotten or put aside for any other object. Never a single tie has been formed, either of affection or business, which would interfere with this supreme purpose. Never a speech has been given, a trip taken, a visit made, a letter written, in all this half-century, that has not been done directly in the interest of this one object. There has been no thought of personal comfort, advancement or glory; the self-abnegation, the self-sacrifice, have been absolute—they have been unparalleled."

Canary Bird Industry.

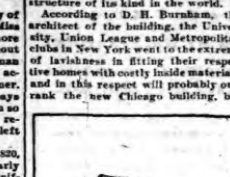
Germany annually sends to this country 150,000 canary birds, 5,000 to France, 3,000 to England, and 2,000 to Russia.

MODEL CLUB HOUSE.

Plans of the Union League Club of Chicago for a Home That Will Cost $1,000,000.

Following the action of the Chicago Union League club at its annual meeting in voting to build a new clubhouse, work will be begun, as soon as the financial plans are completed, on a building that will stand comparison with any structure of its kind in the world.

According to D. H. Burnham, the architect of the building, the University, Union League and Metropolitan clubs in New York went to the extreme of lavishness in fitting their respective homes with costly inside materials, and in this respect will probably outrank the new Chicago building, but



NEW CHICAGO CLUB HOUSE.
(To Be Erected by the Union League at the Cost of a Million.)

in no other particular will any of the leading club homes of the world surpass that of the new Union League in Chicago. The cost of the building will be about $1,000,000.

The frontage on Jackson boulevard will be 100 feet and on Fourth avenue 150 feet, and the height ten stories above the sidewalk. The architectural style is the Italian renaissance, the front to be almost entirely of stone, probably of some light color. The entire structure will be thoroughly fireproof. The basement will contain power plant, cold storage and wine storage rooms. The ground or entry floor will be reached from the sidewalk by two steps leading into a stone lobby, on one side of which will be a coatroom and visitor's room and on the other the officers' and directors' rooms. At the rear will be the barber shops and lavatories. From this floor a stone staircase will lead to the grand hallway on the main floor, which will contain two rooms, each 96 by 50 feet, connected with a hallway, a large reception room and retiring room for women. A dining room across the entire Jackson boulevard front, a central hall 40 by 50 feet, a breakfast room 30 by 45 feet, kitchens and serving rooms will take up the next floor. Here the grand staircase ends. The library, banquet room, women's dining rooms and private dining rooms will occupy the fourth floor.

More than 100 bedrooms, each with both room that opens to the outside air, will occupy the fifth, sixth, seventh and eight floors. Some of these bedrooms will be very large and all will be extremely airy and pleasant. The ninth floor will be devoted to servants' quarters and storage.

The interior finish of the first three floors will be stately, the material being cement so cast and colored as to give the fullest architectural treatment, as in the old Florentine houses. There will be little wood or marble.

ELEVATED TO BENCH.

New York Lawyer Appointed Justice of the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands.

John T. McDonough, formerly secretary of state of New York, has accepted provisionally the appointment of justice of the supreme court of the Philippines. The conditions on which he accepts are said to be of such a nature that his appointment undoubtedly will be made.

JOHN T. M'DONOUGH.
(New Justice of the Supreme Court of the Philippines.)

McDonough was born in Ireland in 1843, coming with his parents to America in 1850. They settled in Dankirk, N. Y., where he attended the public school until 15 years old. He then took a full course in St. John's college, and later graduated from the Columbia Law school.

He served two terms as police magistrate in Dunkirk, and in 1876 was elected special surrogate of Chautauqua county. Since then he has made his home in Albany. He served with distinction as a member of the New York state constitutional convention in 1890, and in 1896 he was made commissioner of the bureau of labor statistics. In 1899 he was elected secretary of state of New York.

PAINTED HIM GREEN.

Farmer Beers Roundly Treated Because He Objected to Wife's and Son's Loitering.

Because he objected to roystering, in which his wife, his son and Frank Gordon engaged, John Beers, an old farmer of Good Springs, Franklin township, N. J., is said to have been beaten by them, chained in a dilapidated barn and held there a prisoner for several days. He was bound in such a manner, it is alleged, that he had to get on his hands and knees to eat the little food put on the floor of the barn for him. He was famished and nearly dead when rescued by neighbors. Mrs. Beers, her son Elijah and their friend Gordon were arraigned before Judge Shipman on a charge of inhuman cruelty.

PAINTED HIS FACE.

The complaint was made by neighbors. Beers is 60 years old. His wife is more than 20 years his junior. It is alleged that for the last three months Mrs. Beers practiced extreme cruelty on her husband. At present he is in the care of two sons living in Pennsylvania, who, on being advised of his condition, took him to their home. Gordon, after being arrested, admitted some of the cruelties practiced on the old man, but said it was all done in a "joke." He and certain characters from villages and towns in this section have made it a practice for years to visit the Beers house, and it is said they would immediately chase the old man out of the house in order that their roystering, to which he objected, would not be disturbed.

Complaint was finally made by neighbors to Overseer of the Poor Huff, of Franklin township. He found the old man bruised from head to foot, the result of a beating he received, it is said, at the hands of Gordon. The barn in which Beers was chained had only half a roof and he might almost as well have been out in the open. The chain was fastened around Beers' body and neck in such a manner that he was compelled to crawl along the floor to reach the food left for him. Some farmers living near the Beers place found him in the barn and released him. Then there was talk of forming a whitecap party, but calmer counsel prevailed and the case was left for the authorities.

When Beers was chained in the barn Gordon is alleged to have painted the farmer's face green. Gordon is said to have admitted this and considered it a joke.

SWINDLER IS FLEECED.

Kentucky Drug Clerk Five Dollars Ahead in Deal with a Short-Change Artist.

One of those peculiar reversions in human affairs happened in Lexington, Ky., when an unknown short change artist was beaten at his own game by a drug clerk, and was himself short changed to the tune of a five dollar bill. About dusk the stranger walked into the drug store of Rudolph Harting and approached one of the clerks, Will Harting, brother of the proprietor, and wanted to make a ten-cent purchase, offering a ten-dollar bill.

OFFERED A BIG BILL.

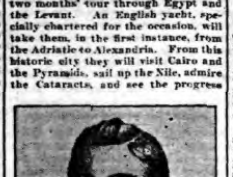
The correct change was given him, but in the manipulations that followed, wherein he asked for a ten-dollar bill in exchange for five dollars in silver which belonged to him and five dollars in currency which belonged to the proprietor of the store, the clerk agreed to make him the required change, but when the latter got possession of the money he immediately asked his brother to call up the police.

The stranger argued for a minute on a suggested compromise, which, being ineffectual, he darted out of the door and has not been seen since. The drug store is five dollars to the good and has had the benefit of the experience.

GERMAN CROWN PRINCE.

His Father Has Planned a Most Interesting Educational Trip for the Young Man.

Further particulars concerning the itinerary of Wilhelm, the Prussian crown prince, and his brother, Prince Eitel Friedrich, have just been made known in Berlin. On March 1 the princes will set out from Trieste on a two months' tour through Egypt and the Levant. An English yacht, specially chartered for the occasion, will take them, in the first instance, from the Adriatic to Alexandria. From this historic city they will visit Cairo and the Pyramids, sail up the Nile, admire the Cataracts, and see the progress



CROWN PRINCE WILHELM.
(German Heir Apparent Who Is About to Visit Strange Lands.)

which Khartoum is making under British rule.

From Egypt they will sail for Jaffa, now famous for little more than its oranges, and then push on to Jerusalem and other holy places which their father visited in imperial state a few years ago. On their return from this pilgrimage they intend to pay their respects to the sultan in the Yildiz kiosk, whose regard for Kaiser Wilhelm is still unimpaired, and from Stamboul they will visit King George at Athens. A pleasant excursion to the site of Troy and the isles of Greece will be the conclusion of this educational trip. They will leave their yachts in southern Italy, return home via Naples, Rome, Florence and Venice, and reach Berlin about May 1.

It is rumored in St. Petersburg, but the source of information is not the most trustworthy, that later on the crown prince will visit Kiao Chau by the overland route, traveling in a special train over the Siberian railway. "It is scarcely necessary to say," says the Berlin Gazette, "that no political significance attaches to any part of this journey. The princes will not be accompanied by any diplomatists." They will take their two ordinary military attendants with them and Prof. Clemen, of Bonn, who accompanied the crown prince in Holland, Switzerland and South Germany.

BARONESS STERNBERG.

Washington Society Interested in the Charming Wife of Germany's New Minister.

The friends of Baroness von Sternberg, who was Lillian Langham, a Kentucky beauty, before her marriage, are much interested in the advancement of her husband in the diplomatic service to ambassador from Germany to the United States. Three years before her marriage she came from California to Louisville, Ky., where she spent most of her time with her uncle, Mr. Arthur Granville Langham.

The baroness is a beautiful woman, with gracious, unaffected manners.

BARONESS VON STERNBERG.
(The Charming Wife of the New German Minister at Washington.)

After her marriage she lived for awhile in Washington, where Baron von Sternberg was one of the attaches of the German embassy. She was known as one of the belles and beauties of that city, and was prominent as a hostess at diplomatic functions.

Miss Ivy Langham, a younger sister of the baroness, spent last winter with her in Simla, and made her debut. She is also a beauty and is much admired wherever she goes. Lord and Lady Curzon being among those who entertained in her honor last winter.

The Year's Champion Lie.

An experimental farmer, who dwells near St. Louis, converted an innocent cow into a living brewery. He feeds her with malt, hops and water, in certain proportions, and she gives lager instead of milk. Next summer he intends to extend his experiments by feeding another cow with rum and sugar, with the expectation that she will produce milk punch.

NEW FLORIDA SPORT.

Sailboats on Wheels Used to Provide Fun for Tourists.

Exciting Pastime Made Possible by Hard Beach of Thirty Miles—A Perfect Race Course for Automobiles.

Automobiling is the fad at the Florida winter resorts. The wide, level beach, skirted by waving palms and warmed by the soft breezes of the gulf stream, is populous with the modern "horseless carriage" darting to and fro. Every kind of automobile is here, from the single seated steam "runabout" to the electric "tallyho."

This year the residents seem to be specially "auto mad," for, not content with the ordinary methods of applying power to wheels, they have invented speed appliances applicable to all kinds of machines, even going so far as to attach sails to three wheels, after the manner of the northern iceboat, or to fasten sails to the handlebars of the common or "safety" bicycle.

It would seem as though all the world were on wheels on the Florida beach, says a Kansas City Star correspondent, and when one takes into consideration the admirable adaptability of the beach to automobiling one can somewhat understand the origin of the new fad. Nowhere in the world can one find a more perfect road for the speedy automobile. There are no hills of which to fear, no gullies to break the springs and throw you out, and no narrow, congested thoroughfares full of teams to disconcert you.

Even the most timid of chauffeurs finds courage enough to run his motor at the highest speed from end to end of the natural highway—the paradise for wheelers—the beach. From Daytona to Ormond the beach is 500 feet wide and 30 miles long, and as smooth and hard as a floor. So hard is it that the great tallyho, capable of seating 50 persons, hardly leaves its wheel mark to indicate the places over which 5,000 pounds of throbbing machinery has passed. It is an ideal race course and the place where world's records will be made in the future.

When the wind is from the north the sailing bicycles and "tropical iceboats"

SAILBOAT ON WHEELS.
(A Curious Craft to Be Seen Only on the Florida Beaches.)

are always out in force. It is a common thing to see a bicycle with a sail going before the wind for a 30-mile spin down the coast without touching a pedal—and the railroad brings the bicycle rider and sail safely home at night. It reminds one of that famous story of Stockton where a man took a nautical friend out driving, both being nearly drowned by the breaking of a bridge over a lake, and the next day the friend out boating, and in being towed through a canal the horse ran away. They were nearly drowned while driving and had a runaway while sailing. So it is possible on this enchanted beach to have a shipwreck on a bicycle, or, if your steering gear breaks and you run into the ocean, to be nearly drowned on a "tropical iceboat."

So many automobiles, both racing machines and private pleasure carriages, have come to Florida to use the beach track this year that at Daytona a club has been especially formed. Bridges have been erected over the soft sand at the edge of the beach in many places, so that the automobile can get to the hard sand from the road without difficulty. There are few or no ill effects discernible.

One of the most curious inventions, seen on the beach track every day when the wind is in the proper quarter, is the "auto ship." It is the property and the child of the brain of E. D. Mills. It is neither an automobile nor an electric launch, nor yet a sailboat. It uses no steam, gasoline or electricity. It is propelled by the wind and is capable of great speed. It is practically a "tropical iceboat." There is a frame of wood, with two side wheels and a tiller wheel in the stern, and a mast and single sail is set on the frame between the wheels. Those who have operated iceboats up north who try this strange creature of the air and land say that the sensation of riding in it, or on it, is similar to that which one experiences on an iceyacht. It comes as near to flying as anything does which is not flying.

He Did Good by Stealth.

It was the habit of the late Alexander Ochiltree, of New Orleans, to rudely repulse nearly every one who appealed to him for charitable aid, and then quietly investigate each individual case. If the person was found worthy, a ton of coal, a supply of provisions, or other necessaries were forwarded to the applicant's abode, with a card bearing the words, "In the name of Josephine." This was the name of Hutchinson's dead wife.

WORK OF JEFFERSON.

It Certainly Entitles Him to the Nation's Gratitude.

Memorial to the Author of the Declaration of Independence to Be Erected at Washington by Public Subscription.

It ought to be easy for the Thomas Jefferson Memorial association to accomplish its purpose. This is an association, which has a branch in each state, and which has Admiral Dewey at its head, has issued an appeal to the American people for funds to erect a tablet, monument or other memorial to Jefferson at the national capital. The intention is not to ask anything from congress, but to rely solely on the voluntary contributions of the people. The admiral says that "the character and cost of the proposed memorial must now be stated, but it will be appropriate to the greatness of the man and the importance of the document from which his name is inseparable. Rigid economy will be observed in carrying on the work."

"Here was buried Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of American Independence, of the Statue of Virginia for Religious Freedom, and Father of the University of Virginia." This inscription on his grave in Monticello, written by Jefferson himself, omits one very important claim which its author had on the remembrance of his countrymen. It made no reference to the Louisiana expansion, which is the act of Jefferson's that is uppermost in the minds of his countrymen at this time. Oddly, too, Admiral Dewey, who has just issued his appeal for funds for the memorial, seems not to have had this act in mind. Jefferson's and Dewey's countrymen, however, will supply the omission. The statute of religious freedom for Virginia and the creation of the great university of that state,

THOMAS JEFFERSON.
(Monument to His Memory Soon to Be Erected at Washington.)

though important events, were hardly as great as the act by which their author doubled the area of the United States and started the country on its career of expansion. That act averted the possibility of the erection of a Canada on our western border, decreed that the United States should diffuse itself across the continent between the two oceans, and rendered it inevitable that this country should be paramount in the western hemisphere and be one of the great forces in the world's progress.

The lack of a Jefferson memorial in Washington, which has monuments and statues to many smaller personages, is one of the surprises of the age. Jefferson was the capital's resident to be inaugurated in the present seat of American's government. The man for whom the capital city was named was dead at the time the seat of national authority was transferred to its present location. Washington's first inauguration was in New York and Adams' was in Philadelphia, but Jefferson and all his successors have been inducted into office in Washington. For many reasons it is eminently proper that the third president should have a memorial in that city. The vast Louisiana province, which had 17,000,000 of the country's 76,000,000 of people in 1900, and which forms one of the richest portions of the United States, will always be a monument to Jefferson, but the remembrancer which is sought to be put up in the national capital is so eminently fitting that it is strange its erection should have been delayed to our day. Here in the very region which Jefferson's foresight and courage added to the domain of the American people the appeal for funds for a memorial to him should, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, meet an especially prompt and hearty response.

Mr. Reporter Was Wily.

A Washington reporter, in describing the decorations of one of the white house rooms, pleasantly stated that it was a "delightful mauve in yellow and blue." To get even with him for this rude comment, an attendant gave him a "loaded" cigar on his next visit. The wily reporter generously passed it to a tramp.

So Elopements in Papua.

Girls in Papua, or New Guinea, an island in the Pacific, have little chance to elope. Their dads force them to sleep in a little house on the topmost branches of a tall tree; then the ladder is removed, and the slumber of the parents is not disturbed with fears of an elopement.

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force ... Proprietor

VETOES 'PHONE FRANCHISE.

Shortly before the Central Jersey Telephone Company made an application for a franchise in this city, the same corporation applied for one in New Brunswick. The telephone war which followed the application in New Brunswick was a lively one. Finally the franchise was passed by the Common Council there by a vote of 7 to 6. The measure was rushed through at an unusual pace and there was considerable criticism of the Council for failing to advertise it properly. Now the Mayor has added a new complication to the fight by vetoing the franchise.

The veto is a lengthy document, covering ten typewritten pages. It bakes the franchise ordinance section by section and analyzes its scope. The veto is based on the ground that the franchise is too liberal to the company; that it does not provide for any remuneration to the city for the rights transferred to the company, and that it does not provide for sufficient restrictions as to opening streets and replacing the pavements disturbed to permit of the laying of underground conduits. Under the rules of the board the veto was laid over until the next regular meeting.

Just what will be the fate of the measure now is not known. If its friends hold together, they have a vote large enough to pass it over the Mayor's veto if they so desire. The Mayor seems to be in favor of a new telephone exchange if the franchise is granted under what he considers proper restrictions. The new company wants the same kind of a franchise as the New York and New Jersey Company possesses and objects to the provisions which the Mayor demands. New Brunswick's troubles with the new company will be watched with particular interest by Plainfield as a similar application is now before the local Common Council.

OBJECT TO MR. RIKER.

An attempt is being made by Newark citizens to have a special attorney appointed to represent the county in the criminal actions against the officials of the North Jersey Traction Company, who were indicted as being responsible for the Clifton avenue trolley disaster. The reason for this is that Chandler W. Riker is the prosecuting attorney of Essex county and it is well-known that Mr. Riker is deeply interested in trolley companies, if not in this particular one. It has been the general impression that he is a stockholder in the North Jersey although it is now said that he denies it.

The North Jersey is a great power in Newark and the rest of Essex county but the whole community was up in arms when the horrible details of the Clifton avenue disaster became known and even the influence of that great corporation failed to prevent the indictment of its general officers and the officials, whose alleged negligence, was directly responsible. The name of Riker has so long been connected with trolley interests that there was a pronounced objection to Prosecutor C. W. Riker representing the county in the trials of the trolley officials. Mr. Riker claims that he is in no way connected with the North Jersey Company and will bitterly oppose any attempt to place his duties in the hands of anyone else.

Plainfielders well remember Mr. Riker who was one of the stockholders in the old Plainfield Street Railway Company and its successor, the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company. The people of Plainfield cannot but sympathize with their neighbors in Newark in their wish to see the county's interests cared for by one who has not been identified with trolley interests in the past. While we do not doubt for a moment that Mr. Riker would do his best, yet a failure to convict would inevitably result in much criticism for Mr. Riker. In addition to the criminal actions, there are civil suits amounting to $700,000 started against the North Jersey Company.

STILL ALARMS.

Every year the report of the Chief Engineer of the Plainfield fire department showsan increasing number of telephone and still alarms sent in during the year. Indirectly a decided compliment is paid to the local department by that same fact It shows that the people of Plainfield are getting over their fear of calling in the department when a blaze first starts. In the good old days, before the times of the chemical engine, a visit from the department meant a flood of water. Now, however, the hand extinguishers are used first and then the chemical engine while the regular streams are not utilized except in cases of necessity. With only trained men on hand, the citizens are glad to open their doors to the firemen knowing that they will do their work as quickly as possible and with as little damage as possible.

There is another reason for an increase in the number of still and 'phone alarms. People have learned that an alarm sent in from a box and sounded on the whistle, when it happens to be working right, always brings a crowd of eight score who frequently get in the way of the regular firemen and do more or less damage to their attempts to help the fire fighters. The day is not far distant when the fire alarm whistle will be abolished and it will be an excellent thing. When the fire department is enlarged sufficiently to have enough regular men on duty at each house so that there will be no necessity for "call-men," the whistle will be no longer needed. Then the department will be able to go to a fire without finding a wild crowd running directly in its path and these will be compelled by law to interfere with the men in the performance of their duties.

Of late, the fire alarm whistle has been out of order. The trouble was that the house gongs have also failed to work properly in some cases. If only the whistle was out of order, it might really be a gain instead of a detriment to the city.

PLANS FOR MID-WEEK GAMES

THE TEAM TO REPRESENT PLAINFIELD HAS BEEN PICKED.

Managers of the Wednesday Afternoon Games Are Booking Strong Teams.

The idea of mid-week baseball games for local enthusiasts as announced several weeks ago has caught the popular fancy and the success of the venture is already assured. Managers Muir and Firstbrook have practically completed all arrangements and announce that the season will start either on May 20 or 27 with the Westfield team opposing.

With the exception of pitcher, all the players have been signed and comprise the pick of the city. They are as follows: Moore, catcher; Winn, first base; Martin, second base; Shortman, short-stop; Cooney and Schoonmaker, third base; Taylor, left field; Lederer, center field; Bolsterli, right field. Only the best semi-professional teams in the metropolitan district will be played.

Season tickets will be issued entitling the holders to grand-stand seats at fifteen games.

MRS. SYKES' TEA.

Was Given in Honor of Fiancee of Her Nephew.

A very delightful tea was given Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Charles L. Sykes, of Scotch Plains, in honor of Miss Harriet Ethey Strong, the fiance of Thomas McCready, a nephew of Mrs. Sykes. The hostess was assisted in receiving by her daughter, Miss Sykes and Miss Abbie Sykes, Miss Strong, Miss Ayme MacCready, of New York, and Mrs. David P. Hall, of Plainfield. Mrs. John Doull Miller, of Plainfield and Mrs Samuel Hall, of Princeton, presided at the table in the dining room. The house was artistically decorated with flowers and boughs of blossoms. A large number of Plainfield and New York friends were among the guests.

FRESH AIR WORK.

Will be Subject of Special Endeavor Meeting Monday Night.

Under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society, of the First Baptist church, there will be a meeting of special interest Monday evening, at which time other Endeavor Societies of the city will be present. There will be short addresses by Miss Sara Curry, D. H. Torrey, J. Wesley Johnson and other persons from New York, who are interested in the fresh air work. Miss Curry will bring with her several children from her New York mission and they will sing. Last evening the Endeavor Society at Trinity Reformed church decided to accept the invitation to attend the meeting.

AWAITS HIS WIFE.

Groom is in Florida, While Bride Visited in Plainfield.

Mrs. Harrington, wife of Dr. A. V. Harrington, formerly of New York, but now of Chesterville, Fla., spent Saturday afternoon and evening with her cousin, Mrs. Walter G. Dobbins, of Elmwood place. Mrs. Harrington leaves for the south May 1. Dr. Harrington was for several years a physician employed by the Holland-American Steamship Company.

Funeral of a Child.

The funeral services of Mary Bond Calkins, daughter of Leighton and Nella Bond Whiton Calkins, were held Saturday afternoon at the home on Madison avenue. Rev. E V. Stevenson, rector of Grace P. E. church, conducted the service and eight boys from Grace church choir sang two selections. The services and interment were private.

THEATRICAL.

"The Earl of Pawtucket" celebrated the seventy-fifth performance on Friday evening, April 17, at the Manhattan Theatre, New York, and Managers Parks and La Shelle have found it necessary, owing to the remarkably large attendance and the heavy sale for weeks ahead, to extend the season far into the summer. The play is attracting crowds of the very best class of theatre-goers, and among the brilliant audiences each night many notables in the fields of law, literature and the military may be observed. Seats may be secured for this play four weeks in advance. The Wednesday matinees have become very popular for women and children.

Everything is in readiness for "The Runaways," the next big Casino show which will get its initial showing on Broadway Monday, May 4. The company of 100 will make their first bow to the play at the Academy of Music in Baltimore Monday, April 27, and after a week there will come direct to the Casino for an indefinite stay.

Successes of all kinds have been achieved by the many novelties introduced on the Keith Circuit, but none has scored as strongly as Oliver's Sensational Opera Loop-the-Loop, which was shown at Union Square Theatre last week, and which has been held over at the urgent request of thousands. Mr. Keith has surrounded it with a bill of exceptionable strength. Prominent among the other headliners may be mentioned Eddie Girard, of "Natural Gas" fame, and Jessie Gardner, in their farcical hit "The Soubrette and the Cop." The youngest psychological puzzle in the world, Lola Cotton, will give her puzzling exhibition of mind reading, while Ed. F. Reynard, the inimitable ventriloquist, will give his clever performance with his celebrated mechanical figures. The Empire Comedy Four will do a sketch introducing their vocal specialties, and the Whirlwind De Forests will do their wonderful dancing. The Three Livingstones, acrobats; Ross and Lewis, in their laughable satire "The Duke and American Heiress;" the Two Rackets; Allen Wightman, clay modeler; Dorothy Walters, the whistler; Gillihan and Murray, in "Dinah's Wash Day" Leo and his wonderful dog Flora; and Fred. F. Stone the "Coon" shouter, with many others, complete a bill, the equal of which will not be seen again for a long time.

"The Sultan of Sulu," Henry W. Savage's successful musical comedy that is just entering on its seventeenth week, enjoyed the distinction of being the only theatrical company now playing in New York that furnished models for the many "Easter Girl" illustrations that were published. No fewer than eight young women members of the company posed as the typical Easter Girl. The merry lines of satire and comedy of George Ade and the tuneful music continue to please the crowded houses and the New York engagement of the piece is sure to continue indefinitely.

All New York is talking about the advent upon the theatrical horizon of Messrs. Montgomery and Stone, two young comic geniuses who have taken the metropolis by storm through their unique characterizations in "The Wizard of Oz." In this great production which is crowding the new Majestic Theatre on Fifty-eighth street and Broadway to its utmost capacity at every performance Messrs. Montgomery and Stone are the principal comedy features. David Montgomery appears as a Tin Woodman, a whimsical creature who has been transformed by the potent spell of a wicked witch into a man of tin. Fred Stone has an equally novel character, a Scarecrow who is endowed with life by a magic wishing ring bestowed by a good fairy upon little Dorothy, the heroine of the play.

Lakewood Horse Show.

Indications point to not only a successful horse show at Lakewood on April 24 and 25, but that the event will be included hereafter in Lakewood's calendar. The entries for the show include the stables of not only the prominent New Yorkers but exhibitors from many of the large cities of the country. Lakewood is admirably suited for an exhibition and the surroundings are delightful. Everyone visiting the horse show should know something of this delightful resort and the new Lakewood booklet issued by C. M. Burr, G. P. A., New Jersey Central, New York City, will give you the story. Send for it, it's free for the asking.

Postal Examination.

Announcement is made by the postal authorities that a special examination for the grade of clerk and carrier will be held at the local postoffice Wednesday afternoon, April 29, commencing at 1 o'clock. All applications must be properly filed before that time.

Plainfield to be Launched.

The new fast double-screw ferryboat for the New Jersey Central will be launched next Saturday from the Crescent yards at Elizabethport. The boat will be named the "Plainfield."

IS FOR LOCAL TEAMS ONLY

ASSOCIATION BASEBALL LEAGUE REFUSES ADMISSION TO DUNELLEN.

Will Open Schedule May 10 With Two Games—Three Clubs Have Own Grounds.

Membership in the Plainfield Association Baseball League will be limited to local teams. This was decided upon at a meeting of interested clubs held Saturday evening, when the application of the Dunellen A. C. for admittance was refused. The organization will accordingly consist of the Orange Field Club, the Reform A. C., the Clinton Avenue A. C. and the Cuban Giants.

These teams will battle for a pennant offered by E. B. Ryder and the representatives of each voted for the team they favored for the entire season. The schedule includes eighteen games and the first two will be played on Saturday, May 16. All the clubs have individual grounds with the exception of the O. F. C.

President R. L. Lee was in the chair and the clubs were represented as follows: Reform, E. P. T. Smith; Cuban Giants, W. F. Walters; Clinton Avenue, John Krinery; O. F. C., Harris Egan. D. S. Smith, of the Dunellens, was also present. The matter of umpires and other details will be considered at a meeting to be held Saturday evening.

RAGGED WORK ON DIAMOND

HOPES DEFEAT CLINTON AVENUE IN A POOR GAME.

Both Sides Made Fumbles and Errors Galore—Score Was 20 to 4.

In a game abounding with fumbles, bungles and errors, the Clinton Avenue aggregation of baseballists was practically "snowed under" by the Hope Y. M. A. team Saturday afternoon. It was the first contest of the season of any magnitude but it seemed as if the players were trying to outdo each other in getting in everybody else's way. Runs continued to be piled up by the Hopes and the final score was 20 to 4 against the veterans from Clinton Avenue way.

Hewitt, known as "Silent Tune," was in the box for the Hopes and succeeded in holding the opposing batsmen down to five hits and struck out eight. Dwyer, the other twirler, was not so fortunate as he was lauded on for twelve good hits, seven of them two-baggers. The Hope men got used to his delivery in a moment and he struck out but three men. Hardfelder caught a good game and showed up well but the rest of the work on both sides was ragged.

The batting order of the teams was as follows: Hope, Roseberry, lf; Dalley, 1b; Martin, 2b; Shortman, ss; Maher, 3b; Feiring, rf; Gordon, cf; Hewitt, p; Hartfelder, c; Clinton Avenue, Baker, c; Dodd, ss; Starbuck, 3b; Goodwin, rf; Sauns, 1b; Pangborn, 2b; Bolmer, 3b; Dwyer, p; Magee, lf; VanArsdale, cf. The score by innings was:

Hope	3	5	0	0	0	4	0	8	x—20
C. Ave.	0	0	2	0	1	0	0	0	0—4

LITERARY.

The April Cosmopolitan is a carefully balanced magazine. It appeals to the individual tastes of the many, and the many tastes of the individual. There are seventeen stories and articles—101 pictures. Chief place is given to a striking article, on "The Americanization of the Canadian Northwest," written by William R. Stewart. A personal sketch of Bjornsterne Bjornson, the prophet-poet of Norway, is entertainingly written, and is illustrated with a number of beautiful photographs of the poet's home. "To Love or To Be Loved," is a philosophical essay, by Lavini Hart, in the course of which she shows that to love means increase of physical exercise, as is shown in the same number of Bernarr MacFadden, in an article entitled "Health Made and Preserved by Daily Exercise." Dr. Geo. F. Shears writes on "Medicine," as part of the series, "Making a Choice of a Profession." "Famous Cases and Hamlages of Lawyers," is by the late Julian Ralph, "Romances of the World's Great Mines" (Calumet and Hecla), by S. E. Moffett. There are also two sketches—one on the great financier, Jacob H. Schiff; and the other on the sugar-king, H. O. Havemeyer. Field Marshal Viscount Wolseley, K. P.; H. G. Wells, Henry Seton Merriman, Seumus MacManus, and several other well-known writers contribute to this number of The Cosmopolitan, which is particularly remarkable for the variety of its fiction.

Rev. Dr. W. C. Nelson, of Somerset place, went to East Millstone yesterday to officiate at the funeral services of Miss Anna Siebert. Rev. Francis E. Whiteside, pastor of the M. E. church at East Millstone, where the deceased was a member, assisted at the service.

CONTEST FOR HONORS AT Y. M. C. Y. GYM

Walter McNaughton Wins Gymnastic Championship of the Y. M. C. A.

WON BY HALF A POINT

EXCITING CONTEST WITH GOOD SHOWING MADE BY ALL CONTESTANTS.

McNaughton Was Also Winner of the Novice Indoor Athletic Contest—Four Pieces of Apparatus Used—The Individual Scores.

Walter McNaughton was proclaimed the championship of the Y. M. C. A. in gymnastics at the annual spring championship contests which was held at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday evening. The contest was an exciting one throughout and good scores were made. McNaughton took the honors with 133 points while only half a point behind him came Neal. All through the novice contest and in the contest on Saturday the honors seemed to rest between those two men, McNaughton winning both.

The contest was led by Denton and Cahoone, the athletic and gymnastic champions of last year. The entries in the meet were McNaughton, 132; Neal, 131½; Bentliff, 126½; Smith, 121; Tice, 109. The champion was awarded with a silver medal while the second and third place men were awarded with a silver button for the former and with a bronze button for the latter.

Four pieces of apparatus was used: the parallel bars, the high bar, horse and rings. On each of these there were four moves, three of which were set and one optional. Next on the list of events at the Y. M. C. A. will be the annual spring gymnasium exhibition at the gymnasium tomorrow evening.

WOODEN WEDDING.

Happy Celebration at Home of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Dodge, Friday.

In honor of the fifth anniversary of their wedding, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Dodge, of Lincoln place, entertained a number of friends Friday evening. Music, games and progressive euchre were the feastres of the anniversary. Many of those present were from New Brunswick and Highland Park, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Dodge were the recipients of numerous presents most of which were of wood, it being their wooden wedding anniversary. Piano renditions were given by Miss Minnie Zimmerman, of Highland Park, and by Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Atkinson, of the same place, while several pleasing solos were rendered by Mrs. Chenelette, of New Orleans. Miss Gertrude Hines, of New Brunswick, won the first prze for the women in the euchre while the men's prize was captured by E. K. Soper, of Metuchen.

YOUNG WOMAN DIED.

Miss Flora Roseberry Passed Away at Hospital Sunday Morning.

Miss Flora Roseberry, daughter of Mrs. Ida Roseberry, of West Front street, passed away in Muhlenberg Hospital at 6:30, Sunday morning. She had been ill for several weeks with a complication of troubles and her death was not unexpected.

Miss Roseberry was nineteen years old and is survived by one sister, Miss Edith Roseberry, and two brothers, Claude and Melville. She was a lifelong attendant at Hope chapel and was extremely well known by a host of acquaintances.

Funeral services over the remains were held from the residence of Mrs. Roseberry, yesterday morning, at 11 o'clock. Interment was made in the family plot at Phillipsburg.

Injured in Ball Game.

Augustus Feiring, a member of the Hope baseball team, was knocked unconscious by accident in the game, Saturday afternoon. A curved ball, thrown by Pitcher Dwyre struck him squarely on the chin and he fell to the ground, senseless. Proper applications revived him and after a short wait, he pluckily re-entered the game.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kelly and daughter, of New Market, have been visiting Mrs. Kelly's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Doeringer, of the borough.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Nolan, of East Second street, have about recovered from severe burns about the hands, sustained at a recent fire in their home.

Charles L. Brownell, of Elmwood place, who sustained a severe injury to his foot two weeks ago while at work at the Fond Machine Tool Works, is able to get about with the aid of a crutch.

—The regular meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital will be held Friday morning in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

The Standard Railroad of America.

PROTECTED THROUGHOUT BY THE INTERLOCKING SWITCH AND BLOCK SIGNAL SYSTEM.

ON AND AFTER APR. 9, 1905.

Trains will leave Elizabeth as follows:—

7:26 a. m.—Fast line daily, with Pullman Vestibuled Parlor Cars for Pittsburg, Cleveland, Northern and Eastern Pennsylvania.

8:37 a. m.—Western Express, daily, with Vestibule Sleeping Cars and Dining Car, for Pittsburg and Cincinnati, connecting for Toledo.

1:42 p. m.—Pacific Express, daily, with Pullman Vestibule Sleeping Cars, for Pittsburg and Chicago, daily for Knoxville, via Shenandoah Valley Route, and for Cleveland, except Saturday.

Seaboard Air Line Express—1:57 p. m. daily.

For Harrisburg, Lancaster and the South—1:00, 3:36, 9:07, 9:30 a. m., 1:36, 1:57, 10:05 p. m. On Sundays—1:00, 9:07, 9:30 a. m., 1:36, 1:57, and 10:07 p. m.

For Newark and New York—4:12, 5:12, 6:15, 6:25, 6:35, 7:12, 7:30, 7:45, 8:00, 8:15, 8:30, 8:45, 9:00, 9:15, 9:30, 9:45, 10:00, 10:15, 10:30, 10:45, 11:00, 11:15 a. m., 12:00 (noon), 12:15, 12:30, 12:45, 1:00, 1:15, 1:30, 1:45, 2:00, 2:15, 2:30, 2:45, 3:00, 3:15, 3:30, 3:45, 4:00, 4:15, 4:30, 4:45, 5:00, 5:15, 5:30, 5:45, 6:00, 6:15, 6:30, 6:45, 7:00, 7:15, 7:30, 7:45, 8:00, 8:15, 8:30, 8:45, 9:00, 9:15, 9:30, 9:45, 10:00, 10:15, 10:30, 10:45, 11:00, 11:15 p. m., 12:00 (midnight

HOODOO HANGS OVER "HOTEL" NEAR FANWOOD

A Question As to Who Owns Ground—Ownership of the Building Also in Dispute.

ALL SORTS OF TROUBLE

ARMED GUARDS SURROUND PROPERTY TO PREVENT A SURPRISE.

All Interested Parties Have Engaged Engineers and Lawyers in Effort to Solve the Vexatious Problem That Troubles Them.

At the last term of court, Frank Nichols, of Pittsburg, Pa., made application for a hotel license for a building that was in course of erection on Morse avenue in Fanwood township, opposite the trolley park. Judge Vail refused to grant the license on the grounds that as the place was not completed and in shape to house guests, it could not be licensed. Since then the place seems to be "hoodooed," and everybody that has had anything to do with it has got into all kinds of trouble.

The most vital question at present is, whose ground is the hotel standing on. Apparently the ground can be claimed by three parties. According to deeds dating back to 1821, it is on property now belonging to the Jackman estate, according to another deed, it belongs to the Inter-Urban Realty Company, and to yet another, it was a part of the Osborn estate and by them sold to Clark Perrine, who sold it to Nichols. However, if Morse avenue was laid out as a sixty-six foot road, twelve feet of one corner of the building is on the public highway.

Aside from the ownership of the land, there is trouble over the ownership of the building. Liens and claims have been filed against it to the extent of over $1,000. Nichols claims to have sold his interest in the building to a third party, and is trying to make his title to the building good, at the same time looking to Clark Perrine, to make good the title to the land. J. A. Galvin, who runs the Trolley Park during the summer, is living in the house, and as he claims some sort of an interest in the building, he refuses to vacate and defies anyone to put him out until the courts have settled who owns the land it is on. In the mean time the man who bought from Nichols is circulating a petition for signers for a hotel license for the place which is to be presented to the next term of court. In order to avoid a surprise by any of the parties who want to gain possession of the "hotel," armed guards stalk through the bush in order to repel boarders and the south side of Morse avenue is rapidly taking on the appearance of a military camp during an active campaign.

Each of the parties interested have engaged engineers to find out where the house is located, and lawyers to ascertain who is the owner after it is located.

GRATIFYING REPORT.

Work Done by A. B. Meredith for Nutley Public Schools.

The annual report of the Board of Education at Nutley, Essex county, just issued shows a most gratifying state of affairs in the schools in that town under the supervision of Albert B. Meredith, who is superintendent of schools. Mr. Meredith was formerly a member of the faculty of the Plainfield High School. Since he went to Nutley the curriculum of the schools in that town has been extended and a complete and well rounded course preparatory to entering upon either a business career or the higher collegiate training is offered. The public school system of Nutley has assumed a distinctive position of thoroughness shared by few institutions in the State. There are now 816 on the rolls in the various schools.

COMPLETED DOUBLE TRACK.

Lackawanna Finished Last Stretch Between Morristown and Denville.

The Lackawanna Railroad Company has completed the double track of its line between Morristown and Denville. This makes the entire road one of double tracks. As a result of this several changes will be made in the running of trains, which will improve the suburban service on this road. Trains that have heretofore run between New York and Boonton and New York and Morristown will be sent through Dover. This will give Morris Plains, Mt. Tabor and Rockaway several additional trains.

Sunday's Preacher.

The pulpit of the First Baptist church Sunday will be occupied morning and evening by Rev. Dr. Charles Dodd, pastor of the Peddie Memorial Baptist church of Newark

George Henderson, of Park avenue, is quite ill with inflammatory rheumatism.

LOCAL KNIGHTS AT PYTHIAN THANKSGIVING

Service for Local Lodges Held at Hope Memorial Chapel Sunday Evening.

MEMBERS TURNED OUT

REV. L. R. HOWARD PREACHED A SERMON TO FELLOW KNIGHTS.

Pythian Thanksgiving Day, Set by Grand Chancellor Shanley, Observed Here—Spoke on "Three Qualities of True Friendship."

Acting jointly with Pythian Lodges throughout the State, Perseverance Lodge, No. 74; Unity Lodge, No. 103, K. of P., and Crescent Company, No. 18, U. R. K. of P., gathered in Hope Memorial chapel, Sunday night, for divine worship. The occasion was in accordance with a proclamation issued by Grand Chancellor P. Frank Shanley, of Jersey City, setting it aside as Pythian Thanksgiving Day, when all members of the order might express gratitude for the Order's prosperity. Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of the chapel and who is himself a member of Perseverance Lodge, delivered a discourse fraught with encouragement and good counsel for the fraternal brothers who avow friendship, charity and benevolence.

In the introduction of his remarks, Mr. Howard referred to the members who had died during the year, especially to Harvey Patterson who was killed in the Westfield wreck and expressed the hope that the memory of that simple faithful life might be an inspiration to all connected with the order. This led up to the theme, "Three Qualities of True Friendship" based on St. Paul's characterization of one of his friends as, "My brother and fellow worker and fellow soldier." In substance the speaker said:

"Brotherhood is one of the best and noblest of human relations and the brother element in friendship is one that should be most highly cherished. Brother has about it the feelings that are associated with a common home and childhood. The play days of life are passed with our brothers; but there is a sort of fellowship with the man you have worked with that can be gained no other way. This work fellowship is one of the best elements in the companionship of many a man and wife. It is also what is found when men labor together anywhere on an unselfish work.

"Paul's friend was not only 'brother and fellow-worker,' however, but was 'fellow-soldier' as well. Ask any old veteran of the Civil War if there is anyone quite the same to him as the man he fought by his side. Forty years of the separation of death does not suffice to lessen the tenderness of that feeling. These three qualities of friendship, the fellowship of a common blood, a common work and a common cause of battle, all expressed in service even unto death are then to be strives for by us. The fraternity of the Knights of Pythias, by its name and its principles, professes to exemplify these qualities."

On this ground, Mr. Howard made an appeal for greater loyalty to the principles of the order, and then concluded by broadening the appeal and urging brotherhood, and fellowship in labor, and in conflict, with Christ as leader and guide, declaring that no work could be more worthy and no conflict more noble.

The singing was a feature of the gathering, the leaders being Fred. H. Andrews and City Judge William H. Runyon. In addition to the usual hymns, the opening and closing Pythian odes were sung.

Started Double House.

Ground has been broken at the corner of West Fifth street and Stanley place for the erection of a large modern house for H. P. Seader, of Lincoln place. It will accommodate two families and will cost in the neighborhood of $3,800. W. H. Kirch has the contract for the carpentering.

Time Clocks Out of Gear.

During the past week the Western Union time clocks about the city failed to synchronize and an inspection of the wires showed that one of the Western Union wires was crossed with an electric light wire near the Hotel Rosell. The cross burned out the magnet in the master clock at the North Avenue station and prevented the other clocks from working properly.

Early Morning Call.

A chimney on the residence of Mrs. William D. Anderson, of 334 Franklin place, caught fire this morning. The department was summoned by telephone shortly after 7 o'clock and put out the blaze with three extinguishers

Meet Sunday Evenings.

Commencing Sunday evening, the Christian Endeavor Society, of the First Baptist church, will hold its weekly meetings at 6:45 o'clock that evening instead of on Friday evening as heretofore.

BOROUGH BOYS DEFEATED

OPENED SEASON AGAINST PENNINGTON SEMINARY NINE.

Pennington Was 6 to 0—Good Game Played by North Plainfield High School—The Score.

The North Plainfield High School baseball team played the first game of the season Saturday afternoon with the Pennington Seminary at Pennington. The local players were defeated by a score of 4 to 0 although they played a brisk game and in the face of odds. The noteworthy incidents of the game were some clever catches by Steven McLaughlin, who twirled the ball for the North Plainfielders, and an accident which happened to Herbert Conover. He was struck in the face with a ball which came directly from the bat. His injuries are slight, however.

The pitching of Manager George, of the local team, while he filled the box, was especially worthy of mention. His work was the means of saving the boroughites from a greater defeat.

After the game the local players were dined by their opponents and a tour was taken through the seminary grounds and buildings. The batting order of the North Plainfield team was as follows: Mundy, 3b; McLaughlin, 1b and pitcher; Conover, ss; Humble, 2b; Owens, c; Newmiller, lf; Kipsey, cf; Shuck, rf and 1b; Brose, rf; George, p; Nischwitz, rf.

The score:

P. S.....1 2 0 0 0 1 0 0 0—4
N. P. H. S.0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0

WRIGHT LEADS FOR CUP

WON FIRST HONORS FOR GOLF COMMITTEE CUP AT HILLSIDE SATURDAY.

Large Turn Out at Hillside Golf Course Saturday—A. R. Fisk and Jules Erickson Score Points.

There was continuation of play for the Golf Committee cup on the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club course Saturday, when Howard deP. Wright won first honors, A. R. Fisk second and Jules Erickson third.

There were just three more players who posted their scores than there were on the opening day and nearly all of the scores were good ones. The course was in excellent condition and in addition to those who posted their scores, there was a large number of players who made the circuit just for the pleasure of the sport.

The scores for the Golf Committee cup are as follows:

	G	H	N
Howard deP. Wright	84	1	83
A. R. Fisk	90	5	85
Jules Erickson	111	25	86
Robert Abbott	89	1	88
D. H. Barrows	94	6	88
C. E. Halstead	94	5	89
H. G. Squires	103	13	90
H. W. Beebe	100	10	90
F. A. Clark	103	12	91
Walter Peterson	103	10	93
T. R. VanBoskerck	119	27	92
S. D. Lounsbery	101	6	95
E. T. Newkirk	101	6	95

The standing for the Golf Committee cup is as follows:

	Points.
Howard deP. Wright	6½
H. M. Stockton	3½
A. R. Fisk	3
W. L. Glenney	1
Jules Erickson	1

An improvement consisting of an addition to the main front porch to the clubhouse has just been completed. The extension was made on the north side of the clubhouse and gives much-needed room to those who like to while away the time on the porch where the breeze is always to be found.

DEATH OF MRS. WOOD.

Strong Friend of Children's Home Passed Away Monday Morning.

Mrs. Mary Anna Esterbrook Wood, wife of Francis Wood, died at her home on Franklin place at an early hour Monday. She had been in poor health for several years with a nervous trouble which resulted in complications but her death was not expected.

Mrs. Wood was the daughter of the late Richard Esterbrook, founder of the old great steel pen house. She was born in Cornwall, England, but had lived in this city for the past twenty-five years. In disposition she was most charitable and loving and devoted a great deal of time and effort to the Children's Home. For many years she had worked for its interests. She was a member of the Society of Orthodox Friends. Two daughters survive her, the Misses Mary Anna and Katharine Wood, both of whom reside in this city.

The funeral was held from her late residence, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment was made at Hillside.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gaffney have returned from their wedding trip.

HIGH SCHOOL SITE SELECTED

Board of Education Buys the Abandoned Seventh - Day Baptist Burying Ground.

THE PRICE WAS $12,000

Does Not Include Cost of Removing Bodies To Hillside Cemetery—Work of Clearing Property To Begin at Once And Must Be Finished In June.

Plainfield's proposed new High School will be located on the abandoned Seventh-Day Baptist burying ground, situated at the corner of West Ninth street and Arlington avenue. This site was selected at a special meeting of the Board of Education, last Monday, at the suggestion of the building committee which was instructed to make a report. In the past few weeks the members have inspected a score of properties but all were rejected for various reasons with the exception of the old cemetery on which an agreement was reached for a purchase price of $12,000. The board is to bear the cost of transferring the bodies to Hillside to the amount of $1,000.

Work is to be commenced at once clearing the ground and it must be in readiness for building by June. Twelve hundred dollars of the purchase price is to be paid then and the remainder at a time to be agreed upon later. In the meantime plans are to be pushed for the erection of the building which is to cost at least $100,000.

In suggesting the cemetery as the most available site for the purpose, the committee submitted the following report, making known its reasons for so doing:

"Your committee would recommend the purchase of the Seventh-Day Baptist burying ground on Ninth street as the site for the new High School building, for the following reasons:

"1. It is practically the geographical centre of the city; this is shown by an inspection of the map and also by inspection of the residences of the pupils now in the school, a large portion of whom are within half a mile of the lot.

"2. It is the only lot of that size that can be found near the centre of the city.

"3. Its situation, fronting upon the city park, is such that the building can never be shut in closely by other buildings, and the open space of the park will add much to the convenience and also to the beauty of the building.

"4. While it is easily accessible by the trolley, it is in a location that will never be encroached upon by the business and traffic of the main streets of the city.

"5. The nearness to the library will add much to the convenience of the school work, since the High School of today makes a large use of the Public Library.

"6. The price at which the lot can be bought is very low. No other lot approaching this in size has been offered to us at anywhere near so low a cost.

"7. The lot is large enough to permit of future additions if they become necessary, and if still more room shall be needed, as some future time, the property in the rear of the lot is of such a nature that it will never be expensive.

"8. The soil has been examined and found to be clean gravel to a depth of at least ten feet.

"Appended hereto is a contract of sale offered by the trustees of the church.

"Respectfully submitted,
"C. F. Abbott,
"J. R. Probasco,
"L. M. Lovell."

The only other business transacted at the meeting was the awarding of two contracts for the painting of the Bryant and Franklin buildings. Cleaves & Ayers secured the latter for $344 and Woolston & Buckle the Bryant for $1,315, which includes interior as well.

Crossing for Trolley Passengers.

A crossing of flag stones is being laid on Watchung avenue near the Central Railroad station. This place in rainy weather is muddy and passengers alighting from the trolley cars to get to the depot on the New York side have found it very disagreeable walking.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

VALUABLE CURIOS AT CITY ART GALLERY

The Collections Include a Number of Paintings of Much Interest.

SOME OF JULIAN SCOTT'S

COLLECTIONS OF PORCELAIN, BUTTERFLIES AND COINS INCLUDED.

A Fine Collection of Local Birds, Loaned by Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett—Few Plainfielders Know of Value of Collections.

While the Public Library is daily visited by many, there are comparatively few of that number who get to the art gallery which occupies the floor above the principal room of the library. The art gallery contains some really valuable articles which are well worth a visit.

The art gallery contains a number of pictures of interest, especially noteworthy among which are as follows: "Puritan's Daughter," by Emanuel Leutze; "Marius at the ruins of Carthage," by John Vanderlyn, and several of the works of Julian Scott, among them being his "Battle of Cedar Creek," "Death of General Sedgewick" and "Returning Troops." On of the staircase landing is a very beautiful bust of Washington, by Hiram Powers.

One room of the gallery is given up to the excellent collection of cloisonne and Ubinese porcelain, one of the largest and most valuable in this country. In this collection are rare temple ornaments, equisite cloisonne enamel plaques, incense burners, idols, vases of rare and beautiful coloring, others with the design under the glaze. Many of these pieces date back to the Ming dynasty (1368 1568.) Of this period are a pair of vases of perfect condition which have been pronounced by experts in Oriental art as "unquestionably the finest old Chinese cloisonne vases in America." Very beautiful also is an enamel jardiniere which has probably no less than 1,000 different objects outlined in copper fences; this piece though not large, contains 5,000 enclosures, and was mounted in ormolu by Barbedienne of Paris.

A valuable recent gift to the gallery is the Gilbert butterfly collection presented by former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, valued at about $10,000. It contains in all about 5,000 butterflies and moths, at least 2,000 being distinct specimens. The classification and arrangements were made by Prof. Fraock, of the Entomological Company, each specimen being labeled. The rarest part of the collection is that comprising the North American specimens. The New Jersey specimens are exceptionally complete. The collection is kept in six large open glass cases and forms one of the most attractive features of the gallery. It is also a collection of the greatest importance to students of lepidoptera.

Still another collection of popular interest is that of the coins given by the children of the late John Taylor Johnston. This collection is divided into ancient, mediaeval and modern, and United States coins. In the first are many silver and some gold coins, both of Greece and Rome, dating back to the time of Alexander III., some gold Byzantine coins dating from 409 to 5061, and a large number of Roman colonial coins from the time of the Emperor Claudius to that of Diocletian. Of the modern, all the European nations are represented together with some excellent specimens of coins of the Papal state. Of much interest are the pennies marked with a cross in circulation during the Crusades. Of the United States coins, there are some of the early colonial period, a nearly complete set of pennies from 1793-1873, and a number of medals and Jacksonian or hard times tokens.

The collection of birds loaned by Street Commissioner Gavett is one of especial value. The collection is entirely local, and the careful classification and labeling done by Mr. Gavett, make identification easy. The gallery is open Tuesdays and Saturdays from 2 until 5 o'clock.

G. W. Edwards' Picture.

At the thirty-sixth annual exhibition of the American Water Color Society, opened Monday at the American Art Galleries, 6 East Twenty-third street, New York, George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin place, is one of the exhibitors. His picture, "Fishing Village," is classed among the stronger works of the exhibition, according to the judgment of the art critics.

Now With the Army.

George Polhemus, formerly an electrician residing in the borough, is now associated with the Salvation Army at the headquarters in New York. He came to Plainfield last Sunday with the staff-band of the Army and took part in the services held in this city.

SCHEDULE OF CITY LEAGUE

ADOPTED AT MEETING OF THE CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE.

Opens May 30 With Two Sets of Games—Open Days in July and August.

The regular meeting of the Plainfield Amateur Baseball League took place last Monday when the schedule for the season was announced. Eighteen games comprise the season and it will extend from May 30 until September 19. All the club officials were present with Edward Gaston representing the Safe Works. Edward Gaston and John H. Coss were appointed a committee to select umpires and score keepers.

The schedule entire is as follows:

Date.	Teams.	Grounds.
May 30 a m	Y M C A vs Hope	Y M C A
" "	St Mary vs Safe	St. Mary
May 30 p m	Safe vs Y M C A	Safe
" "	Hope vs St Mary	Hope
June 6	Y M C A vs St Mary	St Mary
"	Hope vs Safe	Safe
June 13	Y M C A vs Hope	Hope
"	St Mary vs Safe	Safe
June 20	Safe vs Y M C A	Y M C A
"	Hope vs St Mary	St Mary
June 27	Y M C A vs St Mary	Y M C A
"	Hope vs Safe	Hope
July 4	Open
July 11	Y M C A vs Hope	Y M C A
"	St Mary vs Safe	St Mary
July 18	Safe vs Y M C A	Safe
"	Hope vs St Mary	Hope
July 25	Y M C A vs St Mary	St Mary
"	Hope vs Safe	Safe
August 1	Y M C A vs Hope	Hope
"	St Mary vs Safe	Safe
August 8	Safe vs Y M C A	Y M C A
"	Hope vs St Mary	St Mary
August 15	Y M C A vs St Mary	Y M C A
"	Hope vs Safe	Hope
August 29	Open
August 29	Y M C A vs Hope	Y M C A
"	St Mary vs Safe	St Mary
Sept 5	Safe vs Y M C A	Safe
"	Hope vs St Mary	Hope
Sept. 7 a m	Y M C A vs St Mary	St Mary
" "	Hope vs Safe	Safe
Sept. 7 p m	Y M C A vs Hope	Hope
" "	St. Mary vs Safe	Safe
Sept. 12	Safe vs Y M C A	Y M C A
"	Hope vs St Mary	St Mary
Sept. 19	Y M C A vs St Mary	Y M C A
"	Hope vs Safe	Hope

EUCHRE FOR CHOIR.

Given at Rectory of St. Joseph's Church by Father Miller.

Rev. Father William H. Miller, of St. Joseph's R. C. church, entertained the members of the choir and the ushers of his church at a euchre at the rectory of the church last evening. The euchre was given by the rector in appreciation of the good work done by the choir and ushers at the Easter services at his church. There were thirty present.

Miss Agnes Bailey won the first prize for the women. It was a marble statue of St. Joseph. The men's prize was won by William McCollough and was a volume, edition de luxe, of "Our New Possessions." Miss Harriet Hilton won the consolation prize.

After the playing a social time was enjoyed until a late hour when refreshments were served.

LAST EUCHRE MEETING.

Lenox Club Held Last Meeting for Play—Dance to Follow.

The last meeting of the Lenox Euchre Club, for the season, was held last evening, when Miss Lou Young, of East Second street, entertained. Miss Conyne and Mrs. Harry Leek won the first and second prizes for the women, and Albert Cook and Mr. Gibbons won the first and second prizes for the men. After the play there was a general good time and refreshments were served.

The season for the club will be formally closed with a dance at the Casino Tuesday evening, April 28. A large number of invitations have been issued for the affair and there will be several pleasing features.

Resignation on Lehigh.

George F. Morse has resigned his position as assistant engineer of construction on the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Nasal CATARRH
In all its stages there should be cleanliness.
Ely's Cream Balm
cleanses, soothes and heals the diseased membrane. Relief at once. It does not dry—does not produce sneezing. Large Size, 50 cents at Druggists or by mail. Trial Size, 10 cents by mail.
ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.

DIED

DRAKE—In this city, on Wednesday, April 15, 1903, Winfield H. Drake, D. D. S.

FRITTA—At Dunellen, N. J., April 15, 1903, Lloyd W. Fritta, only child of Melvin and Mary Fritta, aged 2 years and 18 days.

CALKINS—On April 17, 1903, Mary Bond Calkins, daughter of Leighton and Nelia Bond Whiton Calkins, age 13 months, 17 days.

VAN AUKEN—In this city, on Saturday, April 18, 1903, Francis R. VanAuken.

WOOD—Suddenly, early Monday morning, April 20, 1903, Mary Anna Esterbrook, wife of Francis Wood, and daughter of the late Richard Esterbrook.

TAYLOR—On the evening of April 21st, Henry E. Taylor, in the 72nd year of his age, at the home of his nephew, Percy F. Phillips, 321 Madison avenue.

Sanitary Plumbing
Brick and Portable Furnaces
Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing,
Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in all cases.

D. W. LITTELL,
No. 113 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.
Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.
Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.
A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL
My new barber shop at
143 NORTH AVE.
is now open ready for business.
All the latest appointments in the tonsorial line.
EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

CARNEY BROS.,
MADISON AVENUE.
Between Front and Second streets

Tinners,
Plumbers
Gas Fitters,

Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers' prices. Bring your tinware orders to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

DIME
Savings Institution,
Of Plainfield, N. J.,
Is now receiving deposits with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.
J. FRANK HUBBARD, President,
GEO. W. ROCKEFELLOW, Vice-Pres.
J. C. POPE, Treasurer.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

Guaranteed Salary
$900
YEARLY.
Men and women of good address to represent us, come to travel appointing agents, places for local work during spare time or all interests. $900 salary guaranteed yearly; extra commissions and expenses, added advancement, old established house. Grand chance for married man or woman to secure permanent pleasant position. Inclose stamp. Home and future. Now, brilliant. Home. Write at once.
STAFFORD PRESS,
23 Church St., New Haven, Conn

W. R. CODINGTON,
Counsellor-at-Law
Commissioner of Deeds, Master in Chancery, Notary Public. Office, Corner of Park avenue and Second street.

ALBERT HEDDEN
Livery & Boarding Stables
FOURTH ST.,
between Watchung and Park avenues.
First-class Livery. Horses boarded by week or month. Telephone call, No. 114.

Wm. A. Woodruff,
Fire and Life
INSURANCE AGENT,
OFFICE,
corner Front St. and Park Avenue,
Plainfield, N. J.
Real Estate for Sale or Exchange
Money to loan on Approved Security

D. A. R. HOLD LOAN EXHIBIT

Reception and Loan Exhibit at Residence of P. V. R. VanWyck is Great Success.

THOSE WHO ASSISTED

On Anniversary of Battle of Lexington—Object to Raise Funds for Monument at Washington Rock—Members of the Continental Chapter in Colonial Costume.

Of the events of Easter week none has been more delightful or successful than the reception and loan exhibition given Friday afternoon under the auspices of the Continental Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip V. R. VanWyck, of Stelle avenue, for the purpose of raising funds with which to erect a monument to appropriately mark Washington Rock as a historic place. It marked the anniversary of the Battle of Lexington. The affair from the very start was a great success and the members of the chapter were ably assisted by their many friends, who not only loaned valuable articles for the exhibit, but by their presence, helped to make it a decided triumph.

This is the first event of a similar character held in Plainfield and it is quite likely that others will be held. The hours were from 3 to 6 and during that time the handsome home of Mr. and Mrs. VanWyck was thronged with members and was one of great interest as regards the loan exhibit, the social features were none the less interesting and enjoyable.

Mrs. David Prescott Hall, who is the regent of the Continental Chapter, received the guests in the parlor, assisted by Mrs. J. K. Myers, Mrs. Lawrence Myers, Mrs. John Gray Foster, Miss Sarah Manning, Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, Mrs. David H. Rowland, Mrs. Henry A. McGee, Mrs. Phillip V. R. VanWyck, Mrs. Isaac N. Field, Miss S. E. Negus, Mrs. F. G. Mead and Mrs. Mason W. Tyler.

The dining room was also an attractive place. This room was tastily decorated with flowers and potted plants, while the table was handsomely garnished with choice cut flowers. Miss Harriet Manning poured tea, while Mrs. John F. Harman served sherbet. Assisting in the dining room were Mrs. Samuel Hall, Mrs. Charles D. Sperry, Miss Mary Wells, Miss Edith Clapp, Miss Maude Van Benthuysen and Miss Elsie Harman. During the social part of the affair the refreshments were served. Miss Priscilla VanWyck, gowned as a Colonial dame, assisted in showing the guests about the rooms.

A most attractive feature of the affair was the fact that the members of the Continental Chapter were all attired in the old-fashioned style of dress, with the powdered hair and peculiar cut gowns. They presented a charming appearance and were the recipient of many flattering comments.

A pleasant feature of the afternoon was an informal musical programme, which included a recitation, "Paul Revere's Ride," by Mrs. Charles D. Sperry. There were selections on the pianola by Mr. VanWyck, while Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers and Mrs. William L. Saunders favored with soprano solos. Still another feature was a short talk by Mrs. E. G. Putnam, of Elizabeth, State Regent of the D. A. R.

Possibly the most interesting part of the event was the loan exhibit. Considerable time was spent by nearly everyone in looking over this historic collection of relics of great value so kindly loaned for the affair. It would be impossible to give a list of all the articles exhibited, but some of the most prominent ones included a Bible loaned by Mrs. Charles P. Leggett. This book is 287 years old. A watch and chain owned by Angelica Schuyler Church, a sister-in-law of Alexander Hamilton, was loaned by Mrs. Church, of this city. A marriage register, bearing date of 1771 and owned by Rev. Michael Kern, as well as a wedding dress belonging to Mrs. Kern, were loaned by Mrs. Charles Jenkins. Some Royal Dresden china loaned by Mrs. John F. Harman and a blue plate used by Washington, loaned by Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph, as well as a watch owned by Samuel Howell, who gave his silver for the first coinage, were other interesting exhibits.

Mrs. Lawrence Myers loaned an original George Washington plate. A commission by Governor Caleb Strong to Thomas Cobb as captain of the militia in Massachusetts in 1783, together with pictures of Washington and old-fashioned eye-glasses and a watch owned by Lieut. Nehemiah Cobb, of the First Massachusetts militia, bearing date of 1776, all attracted much attention. They were loaned by E. T. Barrows. Miss Sarah T. Manning loaned a china tea cup which was brought from Holland in 1661. A portion of a letter written by Gen. Palfrey, as aide-de-camp to Washington, to his daughter, was loaned by Mrs. Mary E. Lee Mann. Miss Negus loaned a carved ivory fan over one hundred years old. It came from Canton, China. Mrs. George P. Mellick loaned old-fashioned candlesticks, an old German box, containing a pair of spectacles, which were brought to this country in 1735. Mrs. Mellick also loaned a book, "The Annals of the Countess of Pembroke," dated 1635. An interesting article was a toy wooden stage coach, painted in fancy colors. This was loaned by Mrs. LaTourette, of Bound Brook. A very valuable exhibit was a set of small silver spoons made from buttons worn by a Revolutionary soldier. These were loaned by Mrs. W. T. Negus, of Bound Brook.

A silk gown worn by the great grandmother of Mrs. A. H. Afterbury at the inauguration ball given to Washington at Annapolis, was loaned by Mrs. Afterbury. A number of women's old-fashioned caps were also exhibited. Mrs. Mellick's loan also included a copy of the New Jersey Journal, bearing date of August 8, 1781, while Mrs. C. W. McCutchen loaned a copy of the Ulster County Gazette containing a poem on the death of Washington. Old-fashioned books containing the Psalms and a discourse on fasting were also loaned by Mrs. McCutchen. An old cheese rack was one of the unique articles exhibited. It was owned by Mrs. Isaac L. Miller. A copy of Brower's family Bible, printed in large type, was included in the articles loaned by Mrs. Charles P. Leggett. Part of a tea set made in France for Thomas Powell, of Schnectady, in 1795, and a Wedgewood stand for eggs which stood on a table when Washington had dinner in Princeton, and a map of the City of New York in 1728, were included in Mrs. C. W. McCutchen's exhibit. Mrs. John F. Harman loaned an old-fashioned pewter plate and a copper kettle, the latter being brought from England in 1700. There were a fine display of ancient chinaware, very valuable, including the Lowestoft and Spode ware. These loans were by Miss Storrs, Mrs. Croft, Mrs. J. F. Harman, Miss Clapp and Mrs. Isaac N. Field.

A commission from George II to Col. Andrew Burr to command a Continental Regiment at the seige and capture of Louisburg, was loaned by Miss Tweedy. A velvet bodice worn by the grandmother of Miss Negus, of Bound Brook, at a ball given for Lafayette in Philadelphia, was loaned by Miss Negus.

There was also an exhibit of colonial jewelry by Mrs. Charles Addison Mann, a chain owned by a Revolutionary soldier, by Mrs. I. N. Field, with a number of old-fashioned chairs, muskets, flags and trinkets of all sorts. No end of entertainment was afforded the guests who spent some time in closely examining these exhibits.

Mrs. D. H. Rowland, of the Board of Management, took charge of the contributions, which will be added to the gross receipts. Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers was chairman of the music committee, while Mrs. David P. Hall acted as committee on press. The loan committee consisted of Mrs. Isaac N. Field, Mrs. David H. Rowland, Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, Miss Harriet Manning, Miss Virginia Negus.

As the Chapter has $175 in the Savings Bank, the proceeds of the entertainment yesterday, will when added to this, make a nucleus for the funds necessary for the monument and doubtless more contributions will be received. Mrs. Warren Ackerman, of Scotch Plains, sent $5 as she was unable to be present. Mrs. W. L. Saunders has kindly offered to present a Revolutionary play in the autumn for the benefit of the Chapter. Mrs. Saunders and Mrs. L. W. Serrell will both take part in it.

Among those present from out of town were Mrs. E. G. Putnam, State Regent D. A. R.; Mrs. W. B. R. Mason, of Camp Middlebrook Chapter, Bound Brook: Mrs. Townsend and Mrs. Negus, of Bound Brook; Mrs. King, of Elizabeth; Mrs. B. L. Dodd, of the New York City Chapter, and Mrs. Staunton, of Newark. Mrs. George Bartlett Prescott, of New York City Chapter. Mrs. Prescott is the mother of Mrs. Phillip V. R. VanWyck. Mrs. Daboll, of the Groton, Conn., Chapter and a number of other guests from Somerville and Bound Brook Chapters.

Philip Breen Married.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Philip Breen, of Elizabeth, and a former chief of police of Plainfield. The event was celebrated last January.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes

one size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder to be shaken into the shoes. It makes tight or new shoes feel easy; gives instant relief to tender, hot, aching feet. It's the greatest comfort discovery of the age. Cures and prevents swollen feet, blisters, callouses and sore spots. Allen's Foot-Ease is a certain cure for sweating, hot, tired, aching feet. At all druggists and shoe stores, 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

WHIRLIGIG OF TIME.

It Has Made a Legislator Out of a "Bad Man."

"Bear Tracks," Now Known as the Hon. Ellis T. Pierce, the Most Interesting Character at Pierre, S. D.

One of the old-time bad men of the northwest is a member of the South Dakota legislature this winter. Dressed in a long gray frock coat, woolen shirt, low-cut waistcoat, and broad, white sombrero, Ellis T. Pierce, or "Bear Tracks," as the Indians once knew him, is a picturesque figure about the hotel lobbies in Pierre. Pierce was a contemporary of Wild Bill Hickok and his slayer, Jack McCool, and is brimful of reminiscences of the old days.

"All the old gun fighters," he said, the other night to a Chicago Inter Ocean correspondent, "of the early days of the Black Hills have cashed in their chips, and nearly every one of them died with his boots on. They were a much misunderstood class of men.

"The public idea of them is of men who were always going about with a chip on their shoulders waiting for a chance to murder somebody. Almost the first move they were quiet men, unassuming fellows, hard to rouse, but mighty quick on the draw and sure to shoot.

"I have seen Wild Bill take more abuse than the ordinary white man would stand, but he never made the first move to draw when the talk got heated. Time and again I have seen him strip off his belt, throw it, guns and all, on the bar, and go in and polish off his men with his fists.

"The story of his killing has been told time and again, but it is perhaps not known that McCool killed him on the promise of two gamblers to pay him $200. He got $25 in advance, and never got a chance to collect the remainder. And yet McCool was a decent sort of a fellow.

"Booze and the fact that he was down on his luck were responsible for his treachery. I was the man who acted as Bill's undertaker, and it was a mighty sheepish job.

"THERE'LL BE NO HANGING."

"It looked like there was a streak of yellow in McCool when he killed Wild Bill, who had been paying for his meals for two weeks. But McCool did one nervy thing that goes far to wipe out this disgrace in the mind of the fun fighters and fanners.

"C. C. Clifton, an old-time scout, got his man in a fight down in Custer one night, and the man's friend got him the next minute. The boys gave Cliff a trial in the old Judge Lynch style and sentenced him to swing. Twelve men were selected to do the trick.

"McCool heard of it at Deadwood and started on horseback to save his old pard. When he blew into Hill City his horse fell exhausted near a freighter's camp. Jack drew a gun, covered the crowd, and, taking a horse, rode on to Custer.

"When he got there the hanging committee was about ready to do business. They had the rope around Cliff's neck when McCool, his horse covered with foam, rode up.

"'There'll be no hanging here,' he yelled, as he drew down his rifle on the gang.

"Jumping from his horse, Jack cut the rope, fanning the crowd all the time, ran over, took two of the best horses the committee had, stampeded the rest, and under cover of guns rode away. Clifton went back to Deadwood, and if he hadn't taken to stealing horses he'd likely have lived quite a spell."

Pierce will not talk of his own exploits. He has a record as a killer, but only of bad men and horse thieves who presumed too much upon his good nature and quiet demeanor.

Mimicry in Insect World.

Mimicry among butterflies, moths and other insects would be comic were it not a matter of life or death. Not a few moths have at the hinder ends of their wings a black mark and two or more tails resembling the horns of their own heads. A veteran in warfare not seldom has these portions missing as proof of the value to him of having saved his life. Thus the lizard's brittle tail, which, first attracting the enemy, comes off at his touch, lets his would-be prey escape. When at bay crabs distract the enemy by throwing off their claws, and lobsters do the trick yet more neatly by seizing the enemy with a claw and then throwing off limb and enemy. Thus the bushy tail of the squirrel is accounted for—there is a chance of escaping the enemy minus only a mouthful of fur.

AN OLD-FASHIONED SCHOOL

WAS THE CHIEF FEATURE OF A KING'S DAUGHTERS SOCIAL.

Held Thursday at Home of Miss Adelle Runyon, of West Fourth Street.

A silver offering social under the auspices of Whatsoever Circle, of King's Daughters, of the Park avenue Baptist church, was held Thursday at the home of Miss Adelia Runyon, 411 West Fourth street. A unique part of the affair was an old-fashioned school in which thirty persons took part as scholars. They dressed in the costumes of long ago, which added greatly to the interest of the occasion. The scholars sat on plank boards which rested on soap boxes.

The dining room of the house was used as a school room and here were placed on the walls large maps, blackboards, etc. The sitting room was used as a cloakroom, while the parlors were turned into a play-ground. Before school opened, the scholars spent the time playing "Little Sally Waters," "Oat and Beans and Barley Grows," etc. Lunches were put up in true school-child-fashion and this caused no end of fun. Morning and afternoon sessions of the school were held, the morning session being devoted to spelling, reading, geography and drawing classes. In the afternoon session there were recitations and it being "Friday afternoon" lessons were suspended and visitors came to the school to hear the scholars recite. The playing of games in the play-ground concluded the afternoon session. Miss Florence G. Hawkins acted as teacher of the school and she, as well as the others taking part, assisted largely in making an evening of great pleasure for all.

SUNDAYS HEREAFTER.

Endeavor Society of First Baptist Church Changes Meeting Night.

A special business meeting and social was held last Friday by the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church. The special business session was held to decide the question of changing the time of meeting from Friday evening to Sunday evening before the church service. It was unanimously decided to hold the meeting Sunday evening at 6:45, commencing Sunday, April 26.

After the business meeting there was a social time during which the social committee gave charades which were guessed by those present. This afforded no end of amusement for all and after the entertainment refreshments were served. The committee in charge consisted of Miss Matticon, chairman; Herbert DuBois, Miss Grace TenEyck and Miss Elizabeth Wilson.

MANY AT MASQUERADE.

Plainfielders Attend Dance Given at Bound Brook.

The Original Florodoras, an organization composed of young men from this city, conducted a masquerade dance at Bound Brook, last Friday, that drew a large crowd from Plainfield, Somerville and New Brunswick. Suhr's Imperial Orchestra furnished the music and rendered a programme that was replete with the latest instrumental successes. The committee which had charge comprised Spencer Clickner, Edward Button, Ernest Jones and Franklin Terry.

Willing Workers' Meet.

The Willing Workers put business before pleasure Thursday evening when the regular meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Ambrose Campbell, of Grandview avenue. Only matters of routine business were transacted and after that a social time was held. Refreshments were served at a late hour. There were thirty present.

Office for Livery Business.

Henry DeMott, the borough undertaker, is having an office built in the rear of his house on Somerset street which he will use for his livery business. The carpenter who is doing the work is Albert Kane. Many other improvements are being made to the place.

To Stock Greenwood Lake.

Greenwood Lake is soon to be stocked with a fine assortment of calico bass, recently imported from Toledo, O.

Quietly Married at Church.

In St. Mary's church, Wednesday afternoon, Thomas McCormack and Miss Mary Whelan, both of this city, were quietly married. Rev. Father Egan officiated. Mr. and Mrs. McCormack will reside in this city after a brief honeymoon.

—Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Mack have moved from West Seventh street to Third place.

Exposure to Wet,

dampness and cold, invariably results in a sudden chill, which if not attended to immediately will cause a cold. By mixing a teaspoonful of Perry Davis' Painkiller in half a glass of warm water or milk, the whole system will be invigorated, the danger of cold avoided. Avoid substitutes, there is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'. Price 25c. and 50c.

MARRIED A BURGLAR

Nebraska Girl Thinks She'll Be Able to Reform Him.

Father of Eloping Maiden Thrashed by Irate Wife and Indignant Daughter — Other Bits of Current Romance.

A burglar who says he is reformed is now living in peace and comfort in St. Louis with his bride, who insisted upon becoming his wife even after she had literally torn the mask from his face and learned his real profession. The burglar is known to the police as "Stumpy Dick," and his history is preserved in the rogues' gallery.

"Stumpy Dick," wearing for the time the name of Richard Black, had taken up a temporary residence in a little town not far from Hastings, Neb.

He wore good clothes and lived at a respectable boarding house. It was there he met the young woman who is now his wife. As Richard Black he was quite attentive to her, and soon was making love to her in the most ardent fashion.

The two had known each other for some time when Black told the girl it was necessary for him to take an extended trip, but that he would return shortly. She sought to learn the place he was going, but he was evasive on that point. During his supposed absence the girl went to visit a young woman acquaintance living nearby. She had been there only one night when a burglar entered the house, and was engaged in searching the room occupied by the guest when she awoke and saw him. It was the act of an instant for her to tear the mask from the face of the familiar figure.

It was "Stumpy Dick," and that was his mission to some place a couple of days' journey from home.

The girl helped Black to escape from the house, and as the price of her silence insisted that he marry her and reform. He chafes a little, and still thinks he likes burglary better than running a trolley, which is his present vocation.

TORE MASK FROM HIS FACE.

Just because his daughter eloped and married the young man her mother objected to F. M. Bates has had a trying experience. He forgave the girl, and that is where he made the mistake. He lives in Oklahoma and so do his wife and his unmarried daughter. He heard of the elopement first, and, seeing there was nothing else to do, forgave the young couple and undertook to arrange things at home. He told his wife about it. She was packing a trunk and the top was open.

One hard push sent Mr. Bates over backwards into the trunk, and there he stuck with his legs up in the air.

Mrs. Bates and the unmarried daughter then got busy with Father Bates' countenance. They left unmistakable evidence of their displeasure all over it and upon the top of his head. He says they used weapons that were not at all fair in so one-sided a combat. He eventually succeeded in tipping the trunk over and paying himself out of it. Before he had the damage repaired the wife sought a police justice and had him arrested for disturbing her peace and doing her bodily harm. Then he was put under bonds not to attack again the woman who had jammed him into trunk.

The diversion gave the bride and groom the chance they wanted, and, leaving Father Bates to fight it out, they went on a wedding tour.

Mrs. John J. Wilkins received a spanking as her wedding present from her mother and then was sent upstairs to think it over on an allowance of bread and water. Mrs. Wilkins is just a little past 14 years old, but she thought she was old enough to know her own mind about the subject of matrimony. The young bride and her husband were just being the office of the justice when the constable came upon them and rudely captured Mr. Wilkins, the spouse, and thrust him into jail, where he is held to answer the charge of abduction. The young bride thinks it exceedingly hard to be treated in this way.

Lively Old English Boy.

A well-seasoned old boy is Mr. Nathaniel Wright, of Boston, England. His 100 years, and he is still active and vigorous. He has never employed a doctor or taken medicine, and has always shunned tobacco and alcohol stimulants.

Leprosy in Philippines.

There are about 12,000 lepers in the Philippine Islands.

COLLEGE BOYS DID WELL

WESLEYAN'S GLEE AND MANDOLIN CLUBS GAVE CONCERT.

At Monroe Avenue M. E. Church Under the Auspices of the Young Men's Association.

Vocal and instrumental music of a high order were furnished to a large audience at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, Thursday, when the Wesleyan University Glee and Mandolin Clubs made their initial bow to Plainfielders. Each organization is composed of young men highly talented and the concert they furnished was equal to, if not superior to anything of a like nature given in the city.

The clubs alternated in occupying the platform and the result was a most pleasing programme. College songs predominated in the number from the vocalists while the mandolin players rendered many selections from present New York musical successes.

The affair was given under the auspices of the Young Men's Association and the following committee had immediate charge: Adam Neuman, Ernest Brouard, Harry Pound, Jerome Kline and William Ackerman.

TO MERGE LINES.

Lehigh Valley Will Consolidate All Its Lines in Jersey.

The directors of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, at a regular meeting this week, authorized President Thomas to proceed at once with the consolidation of the various lines owned and controlled by the company in New York and New Jersey. The step is being taken with the view of concentration and economy of management and doing away with separate boards of directors.

The plan of consolidation will be the formation in each of those States of a corporation in which the lines of the respective States may be merged or one of the present companies may be utilized for the new company. The corporations to be merged are:

In New Jersey — Lehigh Valley Terminal Railway Company, Greenville and Hudson Railway Company, Middlesex Railway Company, Perth Amboy and Raritan Railway Company Pittstown Branch Railway Company and Easton and Amboy Railroad Company. In New York—The Depew & Tonawanda Railroad Company, Rochester & Southern Railroad Company, Seneca County Railway, Waverly & State Line Railway Company and Lehigh Valley Railway Company, with possibly one or two others.

TO HIGHEST COURT.

State Council of Juniors Has Appealed the VanAlstyne Case.

In the case of the relatives of the late Harry B. VanAlstyne against Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., for the payment of death benefits, which it was supposed had been settled by the last decision of the Supreme Court, has been taken up to the Court of Errors and Appeal. It is the purpose of the State Council, of the Jr. O. U. A. M., which in reality is defending the suit, to determine beyond all future question, whether the bylaws and constitution of the order will hold good. If they will not the Council wants to know it so that there may be changes. For this purpose the case will be taken to the highest court.

FORESTERS' CONVENTION.

Will be Held at Jersey City During Week of May 12.

The forthcoming State convention of the Foresters of America at Columbia Hall, Jersey City, during the week commencing May 12, will be attended by 178 delegates, and it will be the largest and most important convention of the order since the institution of the Grand Court. The Jersey City courts will entertain the visiting delegates at a banquet in Columbia Hall on the evening of May 13, and in all probability some of the supreme officers will be present. Mayor Fagan will be invited to open the convention and attend the banquet.

Masons to Return to Old Quarters.

The various Masonic societies in the city are making great preparations for the return to their new headquarters in the Babcock building. According to the plans the banquet room will be on the fourth floor and will be more convenient than the old arrangement before the fire.

Attractive Dwelling.

Charles L. Moffett's new house on Park avenue south of Randolph road is nearing completion. It is an attractive dwelling and it is understood that others of a similar style will be erected in the vicinity during the summer.

Will You Sleep Well

Tonight? Not if you have a cough that begins to torment you as soon as you lie down. You can conquer the cough with Allen's Lung Balsam, which will relieve the pain in the chest, the irritation in the throat and the hard breathing. Since it contains no opium, this remedy may be given freely to children, and to the most delicate adults.

GREAT SUCCESS MADE BY SCHOOL DRAMATICS

Leal's School Boys Presented Comedy "Glorlana" at the Casino Thursday.

THE HALL WAS PACKED

SOME CLEVER ACTING BY THOSE WHO PLAYED PARTS OF WOMEN.

Some Funny Situations Were Well Brought Out by the School Boys—Showed Talent and Careful Training—The Entire Cast.

Before a crowded house the members of Leal's School of this city again produced the clever farce-comedy "Glorlana" Thursday at the Casino which was filled to its greatest capacity. The boys gave the play even better than they did on the day before. With the careful training which they received from Mr. Smith, one of the instructors at the school, and the rehearsal of Wednesday, they were able to carry out their parts cleverly.

The play is adapted from the French of "Chivot and Duru" by James Mortimer, and is a story embracing several fascinating love stories with bright situations throughout. The entire play was portrayed by the boys. Even the roles of the women in the play were carried by members of the school and so well did they take their parts that their deep voices were only the fault in their acting.

"Glorlana," the title role was carried by Effingham A. Pinto. He appeared in a dazzling white gown with a large feather boa thrown carelessly across his shoulders. His carriage and manner on the stage corresponded admirably with the part he took and he was loudly applauded. "Jessie Chadwick," the daughter of Timothy Chadwick, a wealthy tanner, was represented by J. Hartley Mellick. His part was to be loved by "Fitz Jocelyn," of the Foreign office. This most difficult role was admirably carried out, especially in the part where he appears in a magnificent white satin bridal gown with a long streaming veil. "Kitty," Mrs. Lovering's maid, was one of the best played roles of the stage. This part was taken admirably by Dudley H. Barrows.

"Leopold Fitz Jocelyn," of the Foreign office, who loves "Jessie Chadwick," the tanner's daughter, was played by Gordon W. Abbott. He kept the house in an uproar of laughter from beginning to end by his ready schemes which he put into play to avoid "Glorlana" who loved him but whose love was not requited. He scored one of the hits of the evening.

Charles S. Robert, attired in a wig of white hair with side whiskers and dignified bearing, represented "Timothy Chadwick." The difficult task of impersonating an elderly gentleman of rather pompous bearing was carried out with skill which gave the part naturalness and life. He was loudly encored throughout. "Count Evitoff," the Russian diplomat with his bows and handshakes for his colleague, was represented by Lesley W. Hallock with rare skill. This was, without doubt one of the most difficult roles of the play but it was carried with a care for detail which is uncommon in amateur players. Two soldiers of the Russian army, "Baron Kronikoff" and "Major Stonidef," who were called in to serve as seconds in a duel which "Count Evitoff" wished to fight with "Fitz Jocelyn's" valet, were represented by Lucius H. Biglow 3d, and Richard L. Lovell. Perfectly trained in military bearing and discipline caricatured, they brought forth much laughter and took their parts very cleverly.

"Spinks," the general Irish valet of "Fitz Jocelyn," was the soul of wit throughout the entire performance. Francis A. Martin, in this role, was exceptionally clever while "Richard," Mrs. Lovering's servant, in his neat little costume of green livery and brass buttons, which part was carried by Percy A. Chapman, won loud applause and was the cause of much laughter for his bright and witty manner.

During the performance ushers passed high bouquets of flowers over the footlights to the performers. The gifts were from friends in the audience. Every one who took part in the performance received a bouquet, which consisted of American beauty roses.

The audience was seated without any confusion by a corps of ushers under the supervision of R. A. Abbott, assisted by William Schoonmaker, Ray Biglow, Richard Lovell, Percy Chapman and C. C. Perkins. The tickets were taken at the door by Hugh G. Baldwin.

At the rehearsal Wednesday afternoon it was said that $30 was cleared but it is thought that the net proceeds of last night will be nearly double that amount.

ENTERTAIN TO HELP THE KITCHEN FUND

Ladies' Aid Society of First Presbyterian Church Gives Entertainment and Sale.

LARGE CROWD PRESENT

MUSIC AND RECITATIONS MADE UP THE EVENING'S PROGRAMME.

Sale Follows the Entertainment—Those in Charge of the Different Tables—Goodly Sum of Money Is Realized From the Affair.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First Presbyterian church, a sale and entertainment was held in the chapel Thursday, the proceeds of which were placed in the kitchen fund. The affair attracted a large number of people, the chapel being filled to overflowing with members of the church and congregation. As a result a goodly sum of money was realized.

The programme was opened with a number of popular selections by Miss Alberta E. Waterbury, piano; Rev. O. E. Herring and Dyckman Winckler, violins, after which Miss Waterbury rendered a piano solo. This was followed with an amusing pantomime, "Courting Under Difficulties," by Miss Ethel Boice, Miss Mary Winckler and Newell Karner. After a contralto solo by Mrs. Stephen H. Tugwell, Miss Ursula Krewson recited "Black Nance," in a clever manner. Another pantomime, "Nearer My God to Thee," was given by Miss Dewey, while the verses of the hymn were sung by Mrs. Tugwell.

Interspersing these numbers were illustrated songs by Elmer D. Cutting, accompanied on the piano by Clifford A. Braider. Mr. Cutting gave four selections in his usual acceptable manner. This concluded the entertainment, and those present then turned their attention to the booths where various things were sold.

Mrs. Russell Bond was the general chairman of the affair. Those in charge of the ice cream were Mrs. Joseph Allen, Mrs. VanWinkle, Mrs. Kelley, Miss Kendall. Miss Mildred Ulrich was in charge of the plants, while the cake table was presided over by Mrs. Howard A. Pope, and the Misses Lounsbury the candy table. Mrs. Charles Hazeltine and Miss Dietrich was in charge of the fancy articles. The decorating committee consisted of F. O. Dunning, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hazeltine, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bond, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Gates, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Williams and Fred C. Lounsbury, Jr.

The programme of the evening was in charge of Mr. Dunning and he announced the several numbers. Augustus V. Searing was the cashier and also sold the tickets for refreshments later in the evening.

RIGHT OF WAY SECURED.

For the Proposed Cut Off for New York Division of Reading.

Rights of way for the proposed cut-off to be built by the Reading Railroad across the Thirty-fifth ward, Philadelphia, to connect with the Bound Brook railroad near Somerton, have practically been secured. When this has been fully accomplished steps will be taken to organize a new corporation to build the line. While the exact points of connection with existing lines have not been disclosed, it can be stated that the new cut-off will extend from a point on the Philadelphia, Newtown and New York Railroad, beyond Fox Chase, to a point at or near Somerton, on the Bound Brook.

Marriage of Mrs. Winfield.

Mrs. Madeline H., wife of Charles Winfield, deceased, former prosecutor of Hudson county, was married Wednesday to Charles Langdon Rockwell, of Greenville. Mr. Winfield's first wife was a sister to Mrs. Charles H. Schermerhorn, of this city.

—Wikoff & Stiglitz, of East Front street, have moved to the corner of Front and Somerset streets. Their former place of business will be occupied by an out-of-town firm as a meat market.

A Sweet Breath

is a never failing sign of a healthy stomach. When the breath is bad the stomach is out of order. There is no remedy in the world equal to Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for curing indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders. Mrs. Mary S. Crick, of White Plains, Ky., writes: "I have been a dyspeptic for years—tried all kinds of remedies but continued to grow worse. By the use of Kodol I began to improve at once, and after taking a few bottles am fully restored in weight, health and strength and can eat whatever I like. Kodol digests what you eat and makes the stomach sweet. L. W. Randolph.

THE NEXT MORNING I FEEL BRIGHT AND NEW AND MY COMPLEXION IS BETTER.

My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys and is a pleasant laxative. This drink is made from herbs, and comes in tea or tablet form, called "LAXA-TIVE HERB TEA" or

LANE'S FAMILY MEDICINE

All druggists or by mail 25c. and 50cts. Buy it to-day. Don't delay. Remember, you feel better the first week you use it. It seems to be healthy fun to take Lane's Medicine. Sold by Dr. J. C. Hall & Co.

WEDDED WITH CEREMONY

MARRIAGE OF MISS ALICE F. CALLAHAN AND WM. J. DOYLE.

They Will Take Up Their Residence at Jersey City, Where Groom Is Employed.

Miss Alice F. Callahan, daughter of William L. Callahan, of Woodland avenue, was united in marriage to William J. Doyle, of East Fifth street, Thursday afternoon at St. Mary's R. C. church in the presence of a large number of friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Egan. The church was decorated with flowers and palms about the chancel and altar.

The bride was attended by Miss Mary Burke and Daniel Doyle, a brother of the groom, acted as best man. The bride was attired in a gown of navy blue broadcloth, trimmed with white lace, and the bridesmaid wore a suit of dark brown with trimmings of white silk.

After the ceremony at the church a reception was held at the bride's home on Woodland avenue, where the couple received the congratulations of friends and a wedding supper was served. At 8:30 o'clock the couple left for Atlantic City where they will spend a week's honeymoon after, which they will reside in Jersey City where the groom is employed as yardmaster for the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

At the Netherwood station a display of red fire was a feature of their departure from this city. They were liberally showered with rice.

MILITARY SHOW.

Soldiers Coming to Madison Square Garden April 27.

The soldiers are again coming to Madison Square Garden, for the seventh annual military tournament, given by the Military Athletic League. The week beginning Monday, April 27, and closing Saturday, May 2, will be one of dash, brilliancy and excitement, as the rough riders of the United States Cavalry and the expert horsemen of Troop C will strive hard to out-do each other. There will be daring feats of horsemanship, beautiful musical rides, and what may be called equestrian gymnastics by both.

The Field Artillery, from Washington Barracks, will give a finer show than even that given last year; the Infantry will show how the soldiers fight in the trenches and in action; the Signal Corps and the Engineers will both take part in the battle scenes, and there will be a hearty welcome to the Forty-third Regiment from Canada, known as "The Duke of Cornwall's Own Rifles," under command of Major Rogers, who saw service with them in South Africa. Their bugle and drum band will accompany them. The West Point Cadets, with their band, from the United States Military Academy at West Point, will also be in the show.

There will be grand reviews each night, and a fine athletic programme, with the National Guard favorites in competition for the League prizes. The athletic programme will precede the reviews. There will also be matinees on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons, with an entire military programme.

PYTHIANS THERE.

A Delegation From Perseverance Lodge Visited Port Chester, N. Y., Thursday.

A delegation from Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., journeyed to Port Chester, N. Y., Thursday, and took part in anniversary exercises of Port Chester Lodge, No. 33. An incident of the gathering was the presentation of resolutions suitably framed to the New York members by City Judge William N. Runyon, in behalf of Perseverance Lodge, for the courteous treatment accorded the delegation which accompanied the remains of Harvey L. Patterson to their last resting place, in February.

The local Pythians who were present were City Judge William N. Runyon, Charles M. Ulrich, J. E. Flannery, Charles McGinley, Thomas Osmond, Walter L. Hatfield, Jr., and Phillip Jahn.

—Wesley Randolph, formerly assistant day operator at the North Avenue station, has been given the position of night operator for the present.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 26—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—An evening with arctic missions. —Job xxxvii, 22, 23, 9, 30.

The arctic circle is a circle drawn around the earth at a distance of 23½ degrees from the north pole. Within this circle there is a period of the year (summers) when the sun never sets and another period (winter) when the sun does not appear above the horizon. This is called the Land of the Midnight Sun. Christ, the Sun of Righteousness, appeared in Bethlehem at midnight. This country lying within the frigid zone is for a season each year the brightest spot of earth, not by reason of what it is, but by its relations to the sun. This suggests one of the most important truths of the Bible—that it is not so much what a man is in himself, but the relation he bears to Christ, the Sun of Righteousness. The gospel can flourish at the sweltering equator or the icy pole as well as in the temperate zones.

The following countries are within the arctic circle: Alaska and Greenland, while Iceland, Scandinavia, Siberia and British America border upon it.

Alaska was purchased by the United States from Russia in 1867. It is the most agreeably disappointing territory the United States has ever acquired. The native population in 1900 was 29,536. Its principal industries are the fur trade, mining, curing and canning fish and seal catching. The United States government receives in revenue from Alaska annually $317,000 and has already received from that source more than it paid for the country. Along the southern coast the climate is mild. The natives were ignorant and heathen. The Greek church was early introduced by Russia. That government pays $40,000 annually to support a church with 12,000 members and seventeen parochial schools. The Roman Catholics and the Church of England are doing a small work there.

The Presbyterian church began its work in 1877, with Rev. Sheldon Jackson, D. D., in charge. It now has twelve stations, or centers of activity; twelve missionaries, thirteen teachers, eight native interpreters and a hospital at Sitka. Its mission at Point Barrow is farthest north. Industrial schools at Wrangel and Sitka are maintained by the Presbyterian board, and another at Douglas Island is under the care of the Friends.

The public schools have been in operation since 1890, and the government demands compulsory education between the years of six and fourteen.

Greenland—The country belongs to Denmark. While of great extent, it is so cold that it has but 10,000 inhabitants, all Eskimos, except 200 Danes living on the coasts. The Danish Lutheran church embraces all the people and is supported by the Danish government, the Moravian church recently turning its missions over to the Danes.

Iceland is also a Danish province, with a population of 69,224, of Scandinavian stock, unusually small in stature, distinguished for honesty, purity of morals and a love for education. Their principal wealth is in cattle, horses and sheep. Their language is the old Norwegian. The Danish Lutheran church operates in the field.

British America is without population within the arctic circle unless it should be a few wandering Eskimos.

Siberia, a part of the Russian empire, is taken care of by the Greek church.

Scandinavia is not a mission field. The Lutheran church is the state church in both Norway and Sweden. The Baptists and Methodists embrace most of the dissenters.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. cxxxv, 7; Luke xxiv, 44, 49; Ps. xxii, 27, 28; Ps. xcviii, 3; Acts i, 8; Isa. xlv, 22; Isa. lii, 10; Zech. ix, 10; Ps. lxvii, 7.

A Message to Christian Endeavorers.

The following message to Christian Endeavorers from the president of the United States was read in connection with the Christian Endeavor day celebration, in a multitude of unions and societies, Feb. 1:

Young People's Societies of Christian Endeavor:

I greet you and wish you well. Your body stands prominent among the organizations which strive toward a realization of interdenominational and international Christian fellowship as well as among those which stand for ideals of true citizenship—that is, for the cultivation not alone of a high standard of civic and social righteousness, but of the strength, courage and common sense necessary for living up to such a standard. With all good wishes.

Theodore Roosevelt.

Linked Together.

In Buffalo the Young Men's Christian association triangle and the Christian Endeavor monogram are linked together in a unique work. The Y. M. C. A. longed for a furnished room in its building for worthy transients. It came through the generous efforts of the Christian Endeavor societies, and during its first year it proved an unlooked blessing to more than a score of men.

Quiz Box.

[Any question may be asked that pertains to any phase of Christian Endeavor work. Address Lock Box 674, Binghamton, N. Y.]

55. E. V. B., Kalamazoo, Mich.—There is no good reason why the average Sunday school scholar should not be a member of the Christian Endeavor society. The one is not in any wise supplant the other. In Sunday school you are learning. In the Endeavor society you are practicing.

56. X. Y. Z., Topeka, Kan.—It is best to follow the uniform topics for the prayer meetings. The advantages are manifold—notably the abundance of helps and the inspiration that comes from the feeling that 4,000,000 Endeavorers are studying the same Scripture with you.

THEATRICAL.

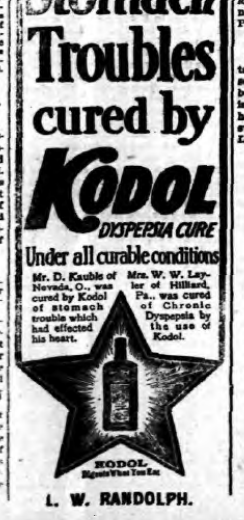
Spectacular extravaganzas of the most alluring kind seems to have attained new vogue in New York City. One of the most emphatic current successes now upon the metropolitan stage is "The Wizard of Oz," which is testing the capacity of the new Majestic Theatre at every performance. The extravaganza is described as an adroit effusion of the most attractive elements of burlesque, ballet, comic pantomime and smart up-to-date musical comedy. The chief factor in the success of this novel entertainment is, according to the New York critics, Julian Mitchell whose reputation as a stage manager is international. "The Wizard of Oz" is characterized by the New York press as the most fascinating and novel spectacle seen in recent seasons, and no imported production from London or Paris has excited so much genuine enthusiasm among playgoers of all classes and walks in life.

The management of the "Prince of Pilsen," the Pixley and Luders musical comedy playing at the Broadway, selected a young woman during the past week to impersonate the typical New York society girl. She is Miss Harriet Burt, a handsome young woman of medium height, brown hair and blue eyes. There were about 400 applicants for the position. "The Prince of Pilsen" will begin its fifth week at the Broadway Monday night. "The Prince of Pilsen" broke its best record for receipts at the Broadway Theatre although it was Holy Week. With the exception of "The Sultan of Sulu," also under the management of Henry W. Savage, there have been no other musical plays in New York that have scored such an instantaneous and lasting hit. Mr. Luders' music is being whistled all over the country and before the "Prince" had been playing in New York a week every orchestra in the metropolis was playing its melodious strains. The most popular songs are "The Tale of a Sea Shell," "The Message of the Violet," "Fall In," and "He Didn't Know Exactly What to Do." The piece is booked to remain at the Broadway Theatre until November.

Miss Paula Edwards has been added to the list of stars who will be under the management of Sam. S. Shubert next season and for several seasons to follow. As the first vehicle in which to star the clever singing comedienne Manager Sam S. Shubert has accepted "Winsome Winnie," the book of which was specially written for Miss Edwards by Edward Paulton. In order to get the very best obtainable in the way of musical setting for the production both Mr. Paulton and Mr. Shubert labored long and hard to get Jakobowsky to furnish it. Messrs. Paulton and Jakobowsky have done nothing in collaboration in a number of years, but those who recall their "Erminie" at the Casino nearly a score of years ago must awaken to a sense of pleasureable anticipation by the knowledge that their splendid talents have been combined again for a big New York production. "Erminie" was the pioneer of all the record-breaking musical successes at the Casino. Its glory has not dimmed though it has not been played in many years. Good judges who have heard the music and read the book think "Winsome Winnie" will prove a most worthy successor to "Erminie."

First Dining Car.

The name given to the first dining car in this country, built in 1866, was "Delmonico." It is still in service on the Baltimore and Ohio, bearing a plain serial number.



L. W. RANDOLPH.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 26, 1903—Missions in Foreign Lands Our Own Land"—Text, Jonah iii, 1-10; Matt. xxv, 35-40.

"Let them turn every one from his evil way."

"No more strangers and sojourners, but ye all fellow citizens with the saints."

But a few years since the pathetic cry in our missionary meetings was, "The perishing heathen—how shall they be saved unless we carry the gospel to them?"

To a surprising degree this has been changed, and a spirit of alarm may well fill us. The multitudes of other lands have crowded through our open doors and filled our cities and covered vast stretches of our country with their dwellings until the entering question of the day is, "What will become of us if these newcomers are not gospelized?"

Every shade of opinion, every degree of intelligence and nonintelligence, customs the most diverse, natures most unlike, languages widely discordant, religious worship wholly variant from ours are here—all these and more are here as ingredients for compounding the new American society and from which is to come the new American citizen. Every race and language and land contributes something. What shall be the type of his citizen? Is the most serious problem which we face in this new century. There is room enough. We are not crowded for elbow room; work enough for all. We could set more at work if they were here. Food enough, and of our surplus we are feeding the hungry of many lands. But what of their religion?

As surely as slavery could not exist and the republic stand, so certainly, more implicitly must it be said heathenism cannot live if the republic is to continue. The only hope for the nation, the sole hope for this world, lies in the gospel of Jesus Christ. As slavery needs must die that a republic might live as the nation of free men, so must heathenism die that men may live in the kingdom of God, which alone realizes the republic of men as an actuality.

Our part in this work is not small. More than any other factor, Methodism has held the great west steadily in its development to the lives of Christian ideals. We are not forgetful of our duties to our foreign born population. The Methodist episcopal church is in her missions in the United States reaching out the gospel to the poor whites of north and south, the negroes, Indians, Japanese, Chinese, Scandinavians, Germans, Welsh, Italians, Bohemians, Hungarians, French and others. Some of the best work the church has ever done has been among these people. Not a little of the future strength of the church spiritually and financially as well as numerically will come from this source.

The Vision of Duty.

The vision is given to every one. A distinct call comes. God reveals His purposes to us. Paul had the heavenly vision and "was not disobedient." Ours may not be so brilliant, not so emphatic, as that which startled Abraham. A burning bush for Moses, a chariot of fire for the temple call for Samuel, the chariot of fire for Elisha—in these ways God spoke. The call to us may not be so definite, yet as real. It comes. It may not be by overhanging clouds, by thunder language, by voice from Sinai, not by dew and fleece, nor by blast from some bugler's horn. But it comes—comes in the quiet song, the spoken prayer, the falling tear, the sudden danger, the pulpit message. It comes through the earnest look upon a struggling life, a beseeching throng. It comes through a long, faithful, prayerful look upon the forces of wrong making for the waste of society about us.—Baltimore Methodist.

Want of Appreciation.

Want of appreciation of mercies enjoyed is the cause of most of our complaints of the times. If we would spend more thought upon what we receive, we would murmur less over our losses. Israel in the exode is a permanent lesson on the subject.—Central Presbyterian.

Little Things.

The mustard seed is tiny, but it attains to great growth. That which may seem small and insignificant to us may be great in the eyes of the Master. It is the little smile, the kindly word, the helpful action, that go to make life sweet and worth living.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Victorious Cross.

Lift the banner, hold it high;
Blend its glory with the sky;
Part it never till you die—
Die at duty's post.
'Tis the banner of your Lord;
Follow quickly at His word,
He His own with strength will gird,
He will lead His host.

God must arm you for the field,
Girdle, breastplate, helmet, shield;
Then all said and surely held.
Then, the Spirit's sword.
Annals with nailed at your hearts,
Satan's subtle, fiery arts;
You may quench his deadly darts
By the holy word.

Take the standard, hold it firm;
Fear no evil, dread no harm;
Trust amid the wild alarm,
Trust your Sovereign King.
Legion though your foes may be,
Hold the ground and never flee;
O'er their hosts to victory
You your Lord will bring.

Raise the banner, hold it strong.
For the battle may be long
E'er the triumph over wrong
Shall at last be won.
Yet He who from Edom came,
Lord Jehovah is His name;
Clothed in blood and crowned with flame,
All the earth shall own.
—Rev. A. Parke Burgess, D. D.

GROOM FROM THE BOROUGH

MARRIAGE OF MISS EMILIA KEILBLOCK TO GEORGE HERRING.

Ceremony Took Place at Meyersville Presbyterian Church Wednesday, April 15.

The wedding of George Herring, of the borough, and Miss Emilia Keilblock, of Meyersville, took place at the Meyersville Presbyterian church April 15, Rev. George Bowers officiating. The wedding was a very quiet one. Twenty young people from the borough went up to the place in a stage.

The bride was attired in white mousseline de soie with trimmings of lace while in her hand she carried a bouquet of white roses. She was attended by Miss Anna Barry, of Brooklyn, as bridesmaid and Miss Anna Keilblock, as maid of honor. The best man was William Kochleis, of this city.

After the ceremony had been performed in the church the wedding party repaired to the Meyersville hall where a reception was held. Mr. and Herring will enjoy a short honeymoon in Washington, D. C., and on their return will go to housekeeping in apartments furnished by them on Somerset street.

Many very handsome presents were received, some of which consisted of articles of furniture and silverware and other useful articles. The groom is very well-known in the borough where he has been engaged in the carpenter business for some time.

DEEDS RECORDED.

Realty Transfers Filed With County Clerk at Elizabeth.

The following deeds have been recorded with the County Clerk at Elizabeth:

Improved Building and Lot Association of N. J. and Pa. to Juliet C. B. Hallard, lot 17, block R, "Map of Rockview Heights," $128; Joshua D. Loizeaux et ux. to John Young, lots 20, 21, block 3, "Map of Plainfield Real Estate Co.," $1; Aaron D. Thompson, Jr., to Arthur W. Vail, southerly side Putnam avenue, 70 feet easterly of Richmond street, $1; Henry Dusenbery et ux. to Cornelia E. Gulick, Randolph avenue, opposite Arlington avenue, $1; Joshua D. Loizeaux et ux. to Archibald H. Berdell, northeasterly corner of Clinton avenue, 60 feet southeasterly West Third street, $1; Mary B. TenEyck to William Strachan, lot 7, northeasterly half of lot 6, "Map of J. D. Runyon," $1,075; B. Frank Coriell, sheriff, to Charles H. Taylor, northerly side Broadway, southeasterly corner Chas. P. Hazen, $3,000; Philip Mechanik to George Berse, Third street, corner land of McLain, $1,765; Monroe B. Brewster et ux. to Daniel F. Dugan, easterly side Kensington avenue, 300 feet northerly of Putnam avenue, $600; B. Frank Coriell, sheriff, to First National Bank of Plainfield, conveys property described in book 326, page 88, $500.

DEATH OF MRS. VOSSELLER.

Mother of Former County Clerk Passed Away Wednesday.

Mrs. Sarah B. Vosseller, aged ninety-one years, mother of Former County Clerk James S. Vosseller, deceased died Wednesday at the home of her son-in-law, VanDeveer Ten-Eyck, of North Branch. She was the wife of Andrew Vanderbeek Vosseller, former county clerk of Somerset county, a mother of Mrs. L. D. Holmes, of Grandview avenue, and an aunt to Elmore D. Moffett, of Orchard place.

FIELD DAY.

Planned by Company K to be Held Saturday, June 20.

The athletic members of Company K are making arrangements for a field day to be held on June 20. If arrangements can be completed it will take place at the Driving Park and the events will be open to all applicants. Among the events are a 100 and 220 yard dash, 220 yard novice handicap, 440 yard run, 880 yard run, one mile relay race, potato race, three legged race, high and broad jump and shot putting.

To Open Up Street.

C. E. Gulick, who owns considerable property at the corner of Park avenue and Randolph road, is getting ready to improve some of the land. He proposes to open up a street in the centre of the property and erect a few houses on either side.

Good for Children.

The pleasant to take and harmless One Minute Cough Cure gives immediate relief in all cases of Coughs, Croup and LaGrippe because it does not pass immediately into the stomach, but takes effect right at the seat of the trouble. It draws out the inflammation, heals and soothes and cures permanently by enabling the lungs to contribute pure life-giving and life-sustaining oxygen to the blood and tissues. L. W. Randolph.

DEMOCRATIC CLUB AT SMOKER APRIL 15

John H. Hillmann Presented With Silver-Mounted Cane on Eve of His Departure.

A PLEASANT EVENING

CLUB QUARTETTE RENDERED A NUMBER OF SELECTIONS.

Even the Rain Failed to Keep the Crowd Away—The Presentation Speech Was Made by James E. Martine—Refreshments Served.

The success of the smoker of the Democratic Club which was held on April 15, was in no way lessened by the fact that it had been postponed for a week. It was held in the rooms of the Democratic Club on East Second street and, considering the rain, the attendance was large.

A surprise for most of the members was sprung by James E. Martine when he stepped to the front of the assemblage and with one hand behind his back, began a speech which he addressed to John H. Hillmann, to which he told, on behalf of the members of the club, of the high esteem in which he was held and expressed the regret of the club at his departure from this city to go to Brooklyn. At the conclusion of his remarks, Mr. Martine presented Mr. Hillmann with a fine silver mounted cane as a remembrance of the club members.

The Democratic Club quartette, comprising Edward C. Searing, Fred. Bowden, Joseph Martin and William McConnell, rendered several selections and Harry Dilts gave an exhibition of fancy bag punching. A speech was made by Judge O. P. Mahan, of Elizabeth, and by John H. Hillmann who spoke of the work of the club and what it has done for Democracy in this city.

An impromptu boxing exhibition was given by Victor Troyce and William Conway. The evening's entertainment came to a close at about 11 o'clock.

The committee having the arrangements in charge comprised: Frank Shattle, chairman; P. J. Revells, H. W. Stover, James J. Kane and Victor Troyce.

VENICE IN NEW YORK.

Bandmaster Duss Will Transform Madison Square Garden.

The recently crumbled Campanile of Venice has been rebuilt and will be on view at the Madison Square Garden, New York, on the evening of Sunday, May 31, when J. S. Duss and his augmented Metropolitan Opera House Orchestra will inaugurate his New York season.

The Campanile will be but one of the details of the Venetian setting. The entire Garden is to be transformed into a Venetian fairyland, with gondolas on the grand canal, the piazetta of St. Mark's serving for the music stand, backed with the walls of the surrounding palaces for a sounding board. Spanning the canal will be the Ponte de Rialto, and possibly one or more of the 378 other bridges of the city. On one side will be erected the Giant's Staircase of the Ducal Palace: on the other will be a reproduction of the fountain in the courtyard of the palace. The group of the Four Emperors will stand in one corner, and at the Molo, in front of the piazetta, will be the boat station, where can be hired the gondolas of genuine "Poppes."

The east end of the Garden will be hidden behind a drop curtain, picturing the view from St. Mark's, and on the other side walls and on the ceiling will be genuine Venetian decorations. Even the old heraldic poets, painted with the armorial designs of the Venetian aristocrats of centuries ago, will be stationed at intervals along the banks of the canal, and the gondolas, very clever reproductions of the modern barca seen on the canals today, will be manned by veritable Venetian rowers.

Funeral of Dr. Drake.

Funeral services over the remains of Dr. W. H. Drake were held Thursday afternoon at the residence of his son, R. I. Drake, of Second place. They were in charge of Rev. J. O. McKelvey, of Woodland chapel. The body was afterward shipped to Riegelsville, Pa., for interment.

Let me say I have used Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh and can thoroughly recommend it for what it claims. Very truly. (Rev.) H. W. Hathaway, Elizabeth, N. J.

I tried Ely's Cream Balm and to all appearances am cured of catarrh. The terrible headaches from which I long suffered are gone.—W. J. Hitchcock, late Major U. S. Vol. and A. A. Gen., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Balm does not irritate or cause sneezing. Sold by druggists at 50 cts., or mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., New York.

"UNCLE SAM" LOSES A FAITHFUL SERVANT

Frank A. VanAuken, Chief Clerk in Inspector-General's Office, Passes Away.

AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

BLOOD POISONING SETS IN AFTER AN ULCERATED TOOTH.

Mr. VanAuken Made Home in This City for Twelve Years—Prominent in Local Masonic Circles—He Was Popular With All.

Frank A. VanAuken, aged forty-four years, a well-known resident, died Saturday afternoon at his home on East Sixth street, following a comparatively short illness. About a month ago Mr. VanAuken was considerably troubled with an ulcerated tooth. It finally became so painful that he decided to have it extracted. This did not bring relief and instead the face remained swollen and exceedingly painful. About two weeks ago Mr. VanAuken was obliged to give up work and stay at home for treatment. Everything possible was done by his physician, Dr. Adams, but all efforts seemed of no avail. It was learned that blood poisoning had set in and Mr. VanAuken was rapidly growing worse.

Friday night a specialist from New York was called and after doing all in his power to afford relief, decided that there was practically no hope for the patient. From that time until the end Mr. VanAuken was in an unconscious condition.

Mr. VanAuken had been a resident of Plainfield about twelve years. During that time he made a host of friends and was exceedingly popular with all who knew him. He was born in Utica, N. Y., and for some years was engaged in the Signal Service at Washington with his father. He was a very strong Republican and during President Cleveland's first term, Mr. VanAuken was removed from his position for political reasons. Afterward he secured the position of chief clerk in the Inspector-General's office with headquarters at Governor's Island. This position he held for fifteen years and up to the time of his death. He was a very efficient accountant and a fine penman and through years of service became a valued employe of the Government. He was very popular with Government officials with whom he came in contact and he was highly esteemed.

Mr. VanAuken was high in Masonic circles in this city, being a member of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., Jerusalem Chapter, No. 34, R. A. M., and Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T. In the Commandery he was the present recorder. He always took a deep interest in Masonic affairs and was one of faithful attendants at the various meetings. He was a delightful person to meet socially, being of a genial and happy disposition and his friends always enjoyed being in his company. His death has caused deep sorrow among his Masonic friends as well as all who knew him and the fact that everyone speaks well of Mr. VanAuken, is evidence of the esteem in which he was held.

Mr. VanAuken is survived by a wife, a daughter and a son. The latter was one of two to receive appointment to a cadetship at West Point, he being given second place as an alternative. It has not yet been determined whether he will have the chance to go to the Military Academy, as N. P. Rogers, Jr., still has the preference, unless he fails in his examinations at West Point.

AT NEW HOSPITAL.

Dr. Buchanan is First Physician Summoned There to Attend Case.

David Bodine, of Almont place, while at work on the new hospital building Monday afternoon, slipped on a block, as he was reaching up near a window for the purpose of nailing on a piece of wood and severely cut his wrist. The wound was a dangerous one and as he was liable to bleed to death a telephone call was sent to the office of Dr. Buchanan. He went to the scene of the accident and bandaged the wound. This is believed to be the first case to which a physician has been called to the new hospital. Mr. Bodine was taken to his home where he is still suffering from loss of blood.

Due Notice is Served.

Due notice is hereby served on the public generally that DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is the only salve on the market that is made from the pure, unadulterated witch hazel. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve has cured thousands of cases of piles that would not yield to any other treatment, and this fact has brought out many worthless counterfeits. Those persons who get the genuine DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve are never disappointed, because it cures. L. W. Randolph.

900 DROPS

CASTORIA

A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of

INFANTS CHILDREN

Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.

Recipe of OLD DR SAMUEL PITCHER

A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.

Fac Simile Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. NEW YORK.

At 6 months old

35 DOSES – 35 CENTS

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

SPELLING BEE WAS SUCCESS

GIVEN BY THE EPWORTH LEAGUERS OF THE FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

Two Sides Were Captained by S. H. Tugwell and Miss Ida Angleman —J. R. Joy Was Master.

Spelling bees of the kind that delighted young and old a few generations ago, evidently have lost none of their fun-making proclivities if the one given in Vincent chapel, Friday evening, can be taken as a criterion. It was arranged by the young men and women composing the Epworth League literary committee of the First M. E. church and the general hearing of all taking part was in keeping with the occasion.

Two sides were chosen, headed by S. H. Tugwell and Miss Ida Angleman while James R. Joy aptly played the part of "master" and gave out the words to be "spelt." From the moment the contest started mirth reigned supreme and the actions of some of the participants coupled with a few examples of orthography was responsible for more than one failure. Afterward everybody tried to spell each other down and succeeded with the exception of Mrs. Frank W. French who remained victorious.

The affair closed with the serving of refreshments and a social hour.

MISS WHITNEY'S RECITAL.

Those Who Will Assist Her at the Casino May 12.

Under the direction of Miss May Vincent Whitney, a teacher and pianist of high repute, a musicale will be given at the Casino Tuesday, May 12. Miss Whitney will have the valuable assistance of the noted boy soprano, Erskine Porter, nine years old, pupil of Francis Fisher Powers, the most prominent of all vocal instructors in New York, and her sister, Miss Bertha Hurst Whitney, elocutionist and reader. A programme of unqualified excellence will be presented, including poses plastique and tableaux.

FOR SECOND QUARTER.

Programme of Plainfield Primary Teachers' Union Just Issued.

The Plainfield Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union has issued its programme for the second quarter. Announcement is made of the summer school of primary and junior methods to be held at Asbury Park July 6 to 11, also that the normal Bible studies will be continued. During the next quarter business meetings will be held on May 4 and June 1, and arrangements will be made for the holding of an evening meeting some time during the month of May.

'Phones for Hunterdon.

According to the newspaper reports it will not be very long before Hunterdon county will enjoy a general telephone service. The work of erecting poles and stringing wires has been slowly progressing.

In Justice Nash's Court.

The landlord and tenant case of Young against Humphrey will be tried in Justice Nash's court, Monday April 27.

PUBLIC HEARING ON SEWERS

THE BOROUGH SEWAGE COMMISSION ARRANGES FOR ONE APRIL 30.

It Will be Held at Saengerbund Hall —All Will Have Chance to Express Opinions.

The property owners of the borough will have an opportunity of expressing their opinions as to whether or not they want sewers over the brook at a public hearing which will be given at Saengerbund Hall, April 30. This was decided upon at a meeting of the Sewer Commission, held last Friday, when arrangements were completed for the hearing.

There are many sides to the project and the commission is anxious to learn what is the public opinion on the subject. At that time those who have objections will have an opportunity of expressing their views, as will those who are in favor of the idea. Experts will be present to tell how the sewers will be laid and what the cost, approximately, will be. He will also tell how the borough can be sewered so as to give the best results.

There are three ways of sewering North Plainfield. One way is to run the pipes to tidewater, to erect disposal beds or make arrangements with Plainfield to use the disposal beds of this city.

The members of the commission are B. A. Hegeman, Jr., W. C. Smith, D. T. Kenney and Elston M. French.

REUNION OF FENNERS.

That Family Will Meet at Roycefield Next Month.

At a meeting held at the home of Horace J. Martin Wednesday evening plans were completed for the Fenner family reunion which is to be held at the home of George Wortman at Roycefield, near Somerville, next month. A committee was appointed to arrange for the reunion comprising Mrs. Amos Fenner, of Roycefield; Mrs. Henry VanMiddlesworth, of this city; Mrs. Charles Foster, of Roselle; H. J. Martin, of North Plainfield, and Mrs. George Clickner, of Point Pleasant.

Industrial Questions.

Beginning with Sunday evening, Rev. L. R. Howard, of Hope chapel, will deliver a series of four sermons dealing with industrial questions in relation to Christianity. The first will be "Jesus Christ and the Wage Earner," and will be handled in Mr. Howard's terse and convincing way.

Addition to Truell Court.

Workmen have commenced the erection of a large addition to Truell Court. It is situated in the rear of the Central avenue part and will extend back to New street. When completed it will give forty new rooms.

For liver troubles and constipation There's nothing better in creation Than Little Early Risers, [the famous little pills

They always effect a cure and save doctor bills.

Little Early Risers are different from all other pills. They do not weaken the system, but act as a tonic to the tissues by arousing the secretions and restoring the liver to the full performance of its functions, naturally. L. W. Randolph.

WATCH SMALL AS A NICKEL.

Triumph Scored by American Workmen in Producing the Tiny Timepiece.

The smallest watch yet turned out in this country has just been put on the market, although few are on sale yet. The new watch is the size of a five-cent piece, says a Chicago report.

The smallest watch which American watch factories had hitherto succeeded in making had been as big as a quarter, so the new watch is looked upon as marking a distinct advance in the industry in this country, where watches have only been made for a little more than half a century. Watchmakers also regard it as indicating that the time is not far distant when Americans will seem even to the old world's watchmakers, the Swiss, in turning out watches of minute size.

The Swiss still make a watch smaller than the Americans, but the watch just put on the market here by both the Waltham and the Elgin companies, the two largest watchmaking concerns in this country, will have the advantage over the Swiss watches that all the other watches made here have possessed, namely, that of being turned out in quantity. Under American methods the daily output in one factory is 2,500 a day.

The new watch is the result of months of patient endeavor by the watchmakers and machinists. For every watch which is designed new machines have to be made, and as the size of the watch is reduced, by so much more must these machines be made more delicate.

SLEEPING ON A KONG.

A Man in the Interior of China Must Sleep That Way or Not Sleep at All.

China is a land without mattresses or counterpanes. A bed, or kong, is merely a broad wall of brick built across the side of the room. On first acquaintance it seems absolutely impossible for an Anglo-Saxon, but a man in the interior of China must either sleep on a kong or not sleep at all, says a writer in Outing. I determined that if the bricks would not yield to me I must yield to them, and, as a means of yielding gracefully, I studied the sleeping methods of my Chinese companions. I found that their practice was to climb inside of quilted sacks, called pookas, which they tied and folded around themselves, until a row of men on a kong looked not unlike so many caterpillars. Whenever they rolled or turned over in their sleep, their pookas rolled with them; in whatever position they happened to lie on the brick pile, they could not escape the ameliorating soft of their pookas. Obviously I, too, must have a pooka. From a dealer in leather, in a town through which we passed, I bought two goat skins. I had them sewn together with the hair side in. I devised a system of strings by which I could tie myself in my appliance, and in this way I succeeded in sleeping in China.

SNOWFALL GROWING LESS.

There Are Fewer Storms in Colorado Now Than in Former Years.

That climatic conditions are changing in many parts of the country has long been a fact recognized by meteorologists. The memory of the oldest inhabitants of Boulder county, Col., does not recall a time when the snow on the mountains was as scarce as it is now. At the head waters of the various branches of Boulder creek heretofore large beds of snow have lasted all summer, but this year they have dwindled into small ones, and where there are usually small beds by the hundreds in the latter part of August there is now no snow at all. Immense basins are found at Jasper lake, Arapahoe pass, Arapahoe peak, Mount Audubon, Long's peak and intervening points.

These basins rise at such an angle that the melting of the snow is gradual. At the foot of these basins are lakes of various sizes, and in these the creeks virtually take their rise. There are in Boulder county many of these lakes in usual seasons, fed by hundreds of small streams, but now the small streams are not running, because the snow banks have disappeared and the consequence is many of the lakes have disappeared. The glacier in the "armchair," or Arapahoe peak, is much smaller than it has been as far as anyone knows.

The Bagdad Button.

A young man who accompanied Prof. Hilprecht on his recent expedition to Nippur was showing some souvenirs of the trip to a reporter for the Philadelphia Record. "There's one thing I didn't bring back with me, and that's a Bagdad button," he said. "I'm just as well satisfied that I didn't, too. A Bagdad button? Well, I'll tell you about it. Every person who goes to Bagdad and stays there for six months is afflicted with a peculiar boil that leaves a scar about the size of a half dollar. It may come on the face or on some part of the body, but it is bound to come, if you stay there long enough. I didn't. I got out just as soon as I could. Children who are born in Bagdad always come into the world with this mark, which is known as the Bagdad button."

Big Wine Cistern.

At Asti, in California, a cistern 104 feet long by 34 feet wide, and 21 feet deep, was formed in a hillside for the storage of wine. The immense tank was lined with concrete two feet thick and coated inside with a glaze as impenetrable as blass. The capacity of the tank is 500,000 gallons.

THE BOOSTERS "KNOCKED."

An Optimistic Chicago Organization That Found Out It Was Useless and Immaterial.

Is it better to knock or to boost? The oft-discussed subject has been called up again by the demise of an organization whose purpose was set forth in its name, "The Booster club." The Booster club was to boost, its motto was "Every knock is a boost." That motto is now torn from the walls of the room the boosters occupied, and in its stead some member of the Press club, which has annexed the booster room, has scrawled on the wall in pencil:

"Knock, and the world knocks with you.

Boost, and you boost alone."

The Booster club was a society of optimism, says the Chicago Tribune. It was devoted to discovering the good that may be in our fellow man. The boosters spoke no ill, thought no evil, decried no honest endeavor. It boosted. It boosted all day long and oft times far into the night. It was the beginning of a new cult. One booster went farther than this. He said it was the commencement of a new religion.

The Booster club is no more. Two or three members the other night arose and made addresses as to the advisability of keeping the clubrooms open and of continuing the active organization of the club. The burden of their plaint was: "What's the use?" After these speeches had been delivered a member with white face arose and in hushed whispers said: "Gentlemen, do you know what you are doing? We are boosters, and yet, gentlemen, you have been knocking. More than that, you have committed the crime of crimes. You have knocked the Booster club. This takes from us all that we have claimed. We must disband." And it was so ordered.

AN ACCOMPLISHED PARROT.

Cuban Bird in an Indiana Town Has a Vocabulary of Three Hundred Words.

D. C. Pence, a conductor on the Gas City interurban line for nearly eight years, has a pet parrot which came into his possession a few months ago. She came from Cuba, and is a bird of unusual beauty. Mr. and Mrs. Pence at once undertook to teach the bird to talk and Polly now has a vocabulary of over 300 words, says a Gas City dispatch in the Indianapolis News.

When Polly sneezes she at once informs the household that "Polly's caught cold." When the shades of night come on, the parrot makes it known that she is tired and wants to go to bed.

The bird's chief accomplishment is her ability to hear and talk over the telephone. Mr. Pence says that whenever the bell rings Polly shouts "Hello" with as much clearness as an an experienced operator.

When Mrs. Pence holds the bird to the telephone when her husband is talking at the other end of the line, the bird recognizes Pence's voice, and cries:

"Hello, kid; come home to dinner!"

The parrot has the freedom of the Pence house, and goes from room to room at will. When Polly is scolded, she retires to her perch and there assumes an air of injured innocence.

NEITHER DEAD NOR ALIVE.

New Question of Transportation in Which a Hypnotized Man Figures.

A railroad station agent in New England has raised a new question in transportation, and, what is still better, settled it, reports the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

There was brought to him a man in a box. "Is he dead?" asked the agent of the man who desired to ship box and contents to a dime museum in Boston.

"He is not," was the answer.

"Well, he can't be alive," responded the agent, "as he don't move when I speak to him, and no man who is alive ever acted like that."

"He is hypnotized. I want a ticket for him, and please hurry up."

"I'll look at the rules and schedule," said the agent. "It says here, so much for a live man; so much for a corpse. There is nothing about a hypnotized."

"Well," said the other in disgust, "as I can't waken him, perhaps I had better kill him."

"You can get an ax of the porter. But one thing is sure. The rules don't provide for any baggage men. He can't go over this road."

The box was carried to Boston over the turnpike in a lumber wagon. The higher railroad officials say the agent did right.

Typewriting in Arabic.

An American inventor has succeeded in making a typewriting machine which prints Arabic characters. The principal difficulty to be overcome were in allowing some letters double the space of others, and in providing certain letters with three different forms, according as they fall at the beginning, the middle, or at the end of a word. The machine contains 84 characters, eight of which automatically supply themselves with double space taken by the others. The machine has been tested by a committee of examiners at Beirut, and pronounced satisfactory, but some native critics think several of the letters should have been more elegantly shaped, for in Arabic writing beauty is appreciated as much as legibility.

When Starch Was Tabooed.

About a hundred years ago the use of starch for stiffening the frills round the neck was considered highly reprehensible, if not positively sinful.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS VISIT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

What the Boys Saw During Their Trip to Washington, D. C., Last Week.

MET PROMINENT MEN

VISITED SOME OF THE MOST IMPORTANT INSTITUTIONS THERE.

Y. M. C. A. Boys From All Over the State Attended, But Plainfield Had the Largest Representation, Fourteen in All.

The educational tour to Washington which was enjoyed by Boys' Secretary Kenneth Robbie, of the local Y. M. C. A., and a party of fourteen boys of this city closed Thursday morning when the return trip was begun. Arriving in the Capital at noon the boys began to lay out their plans for sightseeing and from all accounts it is probable that they had one of the biggest times of their lives. They saw everything, met prominent men, visited the houses of government, journeyed to places which are dear to the hears of every American man and boy, climbed the great Washington monument, and breathed some of the diplomatic air of Washington. Now they are delighted in telling their friends all about the trip.

Young Men's Christian Associations were represented from all parts of the State but is remained for Plainfield to have the largest number of representatives. The next largest number was Newark, which sent seven, while fourteen represented this city.

Monday afternoon they visited the Capitol and the Botanical gardens, and had their pictures taken. In the evening they visited the Young Men's Christian Association and had a swim in the Natatorium. Tuesday they went up to the top of Washington monument; went through the bureau of printing and engraving; visited the Smithsonian Institution and National Museum. A delightful trip was made to Mount Vernon in the afternoon and also to Alexandria and Arlington where they were very much impressed with the magnitude of the National cemetery and the graves of the victims of the Maine wreck. That evening they visited the Congressional library.

Wednesday the White House and the White House stables were visited. The boys were very much interested in Archie Roosevelt's little pony which they saw. The Treasury Department and the War, State and Navy Departments were visited and there they met Secretary Root, of the War Department; Secretary Shaw, of the Treasury Department; Secretary Moody, of the Navy Department, and United States Treasurer Ellis H. Roberts.

Wednesday evening they took a trip through Washington and Thursday morning they paid a visit to the Corcoran Art Gallery and took a stroll about the city. They left for home shortly after noon.

Meetings were held every evening and at those times the boys told of their impressions of the day.

HIGH SCHOOL TEACHERS.

Semi-Annual Meeting of State Association at Newark, April 25.

The fifteenth semi-annual meeting of the New Jersey High School Teachers' Association will be held in the assembly room of the Public Library building, in Newark, April 25.

The association seeks to represent and advance the interest of all high schools and high school teachers in New Jersey.

The programme will include an address by John Huston Finley, LL.D., professor of politics, Princeton University, and editor of McClure's Magazine, and addresses and discussions as follows: "The Articulation of the College Work in History with that of the Secondary Schools," James Sullivan, Ph. D., chairman of the history department of the high school of commerce, New York; "The Articulation of the Secondary School Work in History with that of the Grammar Schools," Miss Sarah A. Dynes, professor of history, State Normal School, Trenton; "The Bibliography of History for Secondary Schools," B. E. Brooks, department of history, East Orange High School.

The officers of the association are: President, W. A. Wetsel, Trenton; vice president, Fred L. Sheperd, Ph. D., Asbury Park; secretary, Cornelius E. MacMullan, South Orange; treasurer, A. B. Meredith, Nutley; member executive committee, I. W. Travell, Plainfield.

Ministerial Mishaps and Misfits.

Rev. Dr. George C. Wilding, of Elizabeth, well-known as a humorous lecturer, will deliver his lecture on "Ministerial Mishaps and Misfits" at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, Tuesday evening, April 28, under the auspices of the Epworth League.

PASTOR IS WELCOMED FOR ANOTHER YEAR

Reception to Rev. Dr. E. L. Earp by Congregation of Grace M. E. Church.

MANY IN ATTENDANCE

ARRANGED BY LADIES' AID SOCIETY AND EPWORTH LEAGUE.

All Glad to See Him Return to Pastorate for Another Year—Musical Programme Given During the Evening.

Rev. Dr. Edwin L. Earp was welcomed back by his congregation last Friday when members of the Ladies' Aid Society and the Epworth League of Grace M. E. church, tendered him a reception in honor of his reappointment as pastor of the church for another year. The appointment was made at the Newark Conference recently held at that city.

The attendance at the reception was large. John Valiant was the chairman of the evening and introduced Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll and Rev. Dr. J. E. Bryan, of this city, who made the welcoming addresses on behalf of the congregation. The pastor responded feelingly and said that he was glad to be among the people of that church for another year. He took occasion to thank all the members for the support they have extended to him and hoped that that same good feeling would continue to exist.

A programme was rendered which was one of the pleasantest features of the evening. Dykman Winkler favored with several violin selections accompanied upon the piano by Vincent Sokol and a piano duet was rendered in a pleasant manner by Miss May Conroy and Miss May Gaddis. Vocal selections were rendered by Miss Winifred Carroll, accompanied upon the piano by Miss Alice Carrol.

After the programme had been rendered a social time was enjoyed in an informal manner and refreshments were served. The committee which arranged the programme comprised: Miss Della Voehl and Miss Mary G. Steiner, of the Epworth League and Mrs. John Valiant, Mrs. Anna Mott, Mrs. Andrew Vanderbeek, Mrs. Dykman Winkler and Mrs. Andrew Wilson, of the Ladies' Aid Society.

A LARGE BARN IN FLAMES

THE UPPER HALF DESTROYED—LOSS AMOUNTS TO $2,000.

Fire Started From a Blazing Brush-heap in a Neighboring Dooryard.

Sparks from a burning brush heap set fire to a large unoccupied barn belonging to John W. Murray, Sr., situated on West Eighth street, shortly before 11 o'clock Saturday. The structure was rapped in flames before discovered and when the department arrived in response to an alarm from box No. 32, the upper half was already destroyed. The damage will amount to $2,000, covered by insurance.

The brush heap was on the premises of J. C. Rirkner and had been left unattended. It is presumed the sparks lodged in the roof in several places which accounts for the headway made by the flames. There were no horses or wagons in the structure but the upper lofts were filled with screen doors and windows, all of which were destroyed.

BOYS' EXHIBITION.

Given at Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium by Juniors of Y. M. C. A.

Very interesting were the events in the boys' contests at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday when many of the members of the junior department took part in an exhibition in the gymnasium. The events were the potato race, rope climb, standing broad jump, running broad jump, running high jump and chin climb. The first place was taken by Webster, with 463 points, second place by Steiner, with 412 points and third place by Gilmore, with 286 points. Other boys entered in the contest were Stutsman, Manning, Pound, Freeman, Gavett, Wilcox and Taylor.

Caught Shad in Canal.

Wm. Parsh, of Race street, while fishing in the Delaware and Raritan Canal Saturday captured a large shad, which, it is claimed, is the first that has been captured in the upper level this season. It is said that the weight of the fish is 9¼ pounds.

Welcome Change.

It is expected that within a short time the contractors will be able to remove the wooden shed from in front of the Babcock building. The change will be a welcome one for all who have any business in that vicinity.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST.

VOL. XXXVI. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, APRIL 30, 1903. NO. 18.

"Support the Constitution, Which is the Cement of the Union, as Well in Its Limitations as in Its Authorities."—Madison.

"CELLAR GANG" READY FOR FIRST SHOVEL

Mayor Smalley Will Wield It at the Sound of the Borough Fire Bell at 7 o'Clock.

WITH MUCH CEREMONY

"CELLAR GANG" MAKES GREAT PLANS FOR STARTING NEW ENGINE HOUSE.

After the First Shovel Full of Earth is Lifted, the Members Will Enjoy An Entertainment at the Old Engine House.

The fire bell on the Warren engine house will be rung this evening but instead of it being for a fire it will serve as the signal for the digging of the first shovelful of earth for the new fire engine house on Somerset street. Mayor Newton B. Smalley, whose untiring efforts on behalf of the firemen has resulted after over a year's delay in securing a headquarters for the borough department, will ply the shovel and it will be the signal, in turn, for all the members of the "cellar gang" to start the work which will be finished in about two weeks by Mobus Brothers, to whom the "cellar gang" has given the contract for excavating for the foundation.

The bell will sound at about 7 o'clock and after the work has been fairly started the members of the company and West End Hose Company will repair to the rooms over the Warren engine house where a social and entertainment will be enjoyed. A smoker will be a feature of the evening and it is probable that speeches will be made by borough officials and members of the company. Refreshments will be served.

The contract for the digging of the foundations was let Friday evening and the cost of the work will be about $175. The exact amount will not be known until after the work is completed as the work was given out at a price per square yard. A carload of brick is on the way here from Elizabeth and Contractor C. H. Sayder, this season, has ordered a carload of cement which will probably arrive next week.

A feature of the evening will be a parade which will be held by the members of the Warren and West End Hose Companies, headed by the Independent Fife and Drum Corps. In the parade will be nearly all the borough officials and each member of the "cellar gang" will carry a pick or shovel.

COLORED METHODISTS.

Held Conference of A. M. E. Church at Somerville Yesterday.

Somerville, April 29—The thirteenth annual session of the New Jersey conference of the A. M. E. church was opened in the A. M. E. Zion church in this place today at noon. The town is full of colored people, who have come from all over the State to attend this gathering. Rt. Rev. Dr. Bishop A. Walters is presiding, assisted by Rev. Dr. S. C. Hitchmore and Rev. R. R. Hall, pastor of the church in this place.

The conference was opened by the Bishop in a few well-chosen words. This was followed by the roll-call.

WANTED TO SQUARE THINGS.

"Conjunction" Jones Appropriated Crate of Eggs to Square Accounts.

Professor Walter H. Jones, who refuses to listen when he's called "Conjunction," pleaded not guilty before Justice Huff, this morning, to stealing a crate of eggs from Kassel Sacher's grocery store. He simply took them, he said, to square accounts, because Kassel owed him $1.50 for kalsomining a room. Justice Huff didn't look at it in the same way and the professor was held in $200 bail for the Grand Jury.

Committee for Dance.

A meeting of the dance committee of the Independent Gun Club was held Monday evening when arrangements were finally completed for the ball which will be given at Saengerbund Hall, Monday evening, May 4. The committee in charge comprises Henry Hansrad, chairman; William Mills, secretary; Charles Jensen, treasurer; and Charles and Frank Keller.

To Tell of Scotland.

Rev. W. T. Dorward, of Stelton, will give an illustrated lecture on "Scotland" in Hope chapel, Monday evening, May 11, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. Over 100 views of interesting spots will be shown.

HALF HOLIDAY.

Movement Will be Inaugurated by the Blacksmiths Saturday.

A movement is on foot among the blacksmiths and horseshoers of this city to close their shops Saturday afternoons at noon. Those who have agreed to close are T. J. Maher, James White, Michael Quinn, Horace J. Martin, J. E. Flannery, George Sipp, Jeremiah Connors, W. L. Sharkey and Joseph Carver. The new scheme will go into effect this coming Saturday. It was done with a view to allowing the employes of these shops to attend the baseball games.

GUESTS AT WATCHUNG SPRING

PROMINENT STATE OFFICIALS PAID A VISIT TO IT YESTERDAY.

Then Given a Mushroom Dinner at Pedeflous Hotel—All Were Well Pleased.

A distinguished party of State officials, including State Treasurer F. O. Briggs, Col. Samuel Dickinson, of Jersey City; Dr. Clark, Medical Director Evans and Warden M. E. Everitt, of the State Hospital, Morris Plains; Daniel Voorhees, county clerk of Morris county; State Senator Welch of German Valley, Benjamin V. Leigh, cashier Clinton National Bank; City Clerk James T. MacMurray, accompanied by Dr. J. Zeglio, president; Fred Sandford, vice president; Clarence Teel, secretary; J. A. Staats, treasurer; A. I. Smalley, S. B. Wheeler, B. G. H. Leonard and Craig A. Marsh, of the Watchung Spring Water Company, and Mayor N. B. Smalley, Rev. Father Egan, H. C. VanEmburgh and Assemblyman William Newcorn, met at the Hotel Kensington Tuesday afternoon from which place they drove to the springs of the Watchung Spring Water Company. There an inspection of the springs was made. All expressed themselves as being exceedingly well pleased with the plant and the quality of the water produced.

After the inspection the party adjourned to Pedeflous' Hotel, where a mushroom dinner was enjoyed at the expense of the Watchung Spring Water Company. As the water from this spring is used in the State Capitol, as well as at the State Hospital, Morris Plains, the representatives were desirous of learning more about it. They expressed themselves as being thoroughly satisfied with the water and much praise was bestowed upon the company's plant, as being a model one.

EQUAL SUFFRAGISTS.

No Election but Listen to Reports at Annual Meeting Tuesday Afternoon.

At the annual meeting of the Equal Suffrage League, of Plainfield and North Plainfield, Tuesday afternoon, the affairs of the association were reported in a flourishing condition. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, who was visiting in Orange, Mrs. Isaac L. Miller, the vice president and auditor, presided.

According to the constitution of the league, the officers are elected for two years and consequently the present incumbents hold over for another year as follows: Mrs. Florence H. Hall, president; Mrs. Isaac L. Miller, vice president and auditor; Mrs. Samuel Huntington, treasurer; Mrs. William Patton, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Harold Duras, recording secretary. The reports of the officers were read, that of Mrs. Huntington, the treasurer, being read in her absence, as she was unable to attend owing to the death of her brother.

It was announced that the membership of the organization had increased largely during the year. Four meetings were held, two of them informal parlor meetings which were of much service in increasing the interest and adding to the membership. Many ex-members have resumed their allegiance to the club and the outlook in general is most encouraging.

The last meeting of the season is to be held May 13 at Mrs. Isaac L. Miller's. The members will entertain more 'guests than is customary and the occasion will be of unusual interest.

New Business Quarters.

Owing to the great increase in their business the wholesale clothing firm of T. & G. Mantz will move from the present quarters, 232 West Front street, to the Schopflin building, where they have rented larger rooms. Mantz Brothers have been located at their present place of business for over ten years, during which time their business has been increasing steadily until they have outgrown their quarters.

HOPE'S LATEST ENTERPRISE

PLANNING AN INDEPENDENCE DAY OUTING TO LAKE HOPATCONG.

Will Take the Place of the County Fair—To Spend the Day at the Lake Instead.

At a special meeting of the Board of Governors of the Hope Y. M. A., held last evening, the members unanimously agreed upon a plan to give the friends of the association a mid-summer's day outing and at the same time add to its revenue. It will be to conduct an excursion at a popular rate to Lake Hopatcong on July 4, the event to take the place of another county fair.

The members have had the idea in embryo ever since returning from last fall's camping trip to the beautiful inland water sheet. All were so fascinated with its many attractions that they resolved to assist their friends and others in viewing them. The excursion plan was decided upon and it is hoped to make arrangements with the New Jersey Central whereby the trip can be taken cheaply and at the same time give the association a profit.

A committee, composed of John H. Case, William N. Runyon, Thomas Muir and George E. Firstbrook, was appointed to confer with the railroad officials and report at the next regular meeting.

ALMOST A MAY WEDDING

MARRIAGE OF MISS BESSIE BULLMAN AND JOHN HUMMER.

Ceremony Performed at the Bride's Home on East Fifth Street Tuesday Evening.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bullman, of East Fifth street, was the scene, last Tuesday of a very pretty home wedding when their daughter, Bessie, was united in marriage to John Hummer, of Flemington.

The bride was handsomely attired in a costume of white swiss trimmed with lace while the bridesmaid, her sister, Miss Caroline Bullman, wore a gown of tan colored material trimmed with pink. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of which the bride is a member. The groom was attended by Charles Palmer.

The wedding was a quiet one. Only near friends of the contracting parties were present. The ceremony was performed in the front parlor where flowers and greens were arranged in an attractive manner. White carnations were distributed tastefully about the room.

The wedding march from "Lohengrin" was played by Miss Elsie Tucker. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hummer were driven to their new home on Arlington avenue where a reception will be given later.

As the coach left the house someone tied a rope to the rear of the carriage and to the rope was attached a number of tin cans, while a sign read, "Reward if returned to 1077 Arlington avenue."

In Justice Huff's Court.

The following contracts cases will be given a hearing in Justice Huff's court Friday, May 1: F. W. Doalman against F. Rice; C. W. Brown against Patrick McGauley; John Doe against John Lawlor; Titus & Coddington against G. H. Kenyon; Hirts & Henderson against Charles Staats and John Doe against Neil Scott.

April Number of Quiver.

The April issue of The Quiver, which has just appeared, is a bright number and attests the journalistic talent of the members of the Randolph-Cooley Collegiate School. Among the contributors are John C. Martin, Anne Waldo, Lyman Hibbard, Charlotte McCarthy, Edith Mallick and Jack di Zerega.

Taken Ill on Street.

Theodore A. Kurzbals, Jr., the West Second street tonsorialist, was taken suddenly ill while on his way to a customer yesterday morning. He was assisted to the home of his father on West Second street where he is now confined. Dr. Buchanan is in attendance.

In Justice Nash's Court.

Justice Nash has given judgment for the plaintiff in the landlord and tenant case of Young against Humphrey.

—A trio that can't be surpassed for quality or excellence—Hookdale print and creamery butter at 31 and 30 cents and Elgin creamery at 28 cents. Sold only by Newman Brothers.

TRIED TO LIVE UPRIGHT LIFE

So Randolph's Freedom With Revolver Was Forgiven, and He Was Set Free.

PROVOKED BY OTHERS

Admitted His Blame in Drawing the Revolver, But Shot Only to Frighten—Out From State Prison on Parole, and, If Guilty He Would Have to Serve Full Term.

Brought into court yesterday to answer to a charge of atrocious assault, Alonzo Randolph, colored, was not only triumphantly acquitted from the charge, but was in addition highly eulogized by Chief Kiely and City Judge Runyon.

The case was remarkable in many of its features. The prisoner, Randolph, went upon the stand to testify in his own behalf and by his direct, simple statement of the case and the unconscious eloquence of his words not only won the sympathy of a crowded court but drew tears from the eyes of many present, including even the young men whom he was charged with assaulting. It was a crisis in the prisoner's life, for had the verdict gone against him he would have been forced to return to State prison to serve out a sentence of six years on a previous offense. Of this sentence he had already served nine years, when in consideration of good behavior, he was released on parole. Since his release, he has, according to all reports, lived a clean life and no adverse decision in the case against him this morning would have set at naught the efforts of years of conscientious endeavor to lead an upright life.

The court room was crowded to the extent of its capacity at about 9 o'clock this morning when, before Justice Huff, Randolph pleaded not guilty to a charge of atrocious assault. Monday evening at 8 o'clock, following an encounter between Randolph and two white men, Frank Drake and John Callahan, Randolph, apparently angered from the endurance by the words and actions of his antagonists, fired a revolver two or three times into the ground, injuring nobody, but causing the wildest excitement and eventually landing him in the custody of the law.

The facts of the case as brought out in the testimony were something as follows: Randolph in passing Callahan and Drake, at the corner of Watchung avenue and East Front street, slightly jostled one of them, both men agreeing that the action was apparently accidental. Hot words followed, Drake seizing the negro by the arms and threatening him. Randolph drew back at this, ordered his assailant to desist and fired the shots into the ground, all of the testimony agreeing on this latter most important point.

Following S. G. H. Leonard, who asserted that Randolph fired at no one in particular, James Conway, Thomas Canfield, Peter Benford, Drake and Callahan agreed on the essential facts as stated above.

Randolph, in taking the stand, asserted that vile and abusive language was used against him and that, after having been roughly handled, he drew back, provoked beyond endurance, and fired the shots in his own defense. He was in the habit of carrying a revolver, he said, for protection while employed in driving a van to New York City, although he had not received a permit for so doing. He was about to engage in his occupation as van driver when assaulted Monday evening.

Judge Runyon and Chief Kiely testified to Randolph's good conduct, since released from State prison. The verdict of not guilty was returned to the evident delight of all present.

The case against Callahan and Drake will come up for trial in the city court, Friday morning, Callahan having made his disappearance after the announcement of the verdict, under the impression that he was summoned as a witness only. They are charged with disorderly conduct.

Little Blaze in Store.

Fire, caused by spontaneous combustion, threatened to destroy the store of Herman Keller, tobacconist, and Adolphus Emery, bicycle repairer, of Somerset street, last evening at 7 o'clock. Luckily it was discovered just in time and was extinguished before any serious damage was done. The walls were scorched.

THE BURNETT-RALLI WEDDING

A BIG SURPRISE FOR PLAINFIELDERS WHO KNEW THEM, BOTH.

Former Residents of This City Married in New York Very Quietly Tuesday Afternoon.

Many Plainfield society people will be interested in the announcement of the marriage of Mrs. Julia Townsend Burnett, daughter of the late Edward A. Lawrence, of Bayside, L. I., and widow of Major Robert L. Burnett, formerly of Plainfield, to Constantine P. Ralli, formerly of Netherwood. The marriage was celebrated Tuesday afternoon at the Church of the Transfiguration, New York, and was a very quiet affair, there being present only about a half dozen friends of the couple.

Mr. Ralli is a member of the Greek family of that name, who for years have been prominent in banking circles in England and the United States. He was for many years managing clerk in the house of Brown Brothers, of New York and Philadelphia. He is a cousin of the late Stephen Ralli and of Hon. Richard Mereton, master of the ceremonies of King Edward VII, and also a brother of Theodore Ralli, now of London. Mr. and Mrs. Ralli left at once for a wedding trip.

Mrs. Burnett was a resident of Plainfield for some time and was prominent in society affairs.

HORSE KNOCKED HER DOWN

MRS. GEO. F. BROWN SERIOUSLY INJURED ON WATCHUNG AVENUE.

Horse, Frightened at Trolley Car, Began Its Plunge—Knocked Her Down, Trampled On Her.

Mrs. George F. Brown, wife of the borough tax collector and real estate dealer of Grove street, was thrown down and severely injured Tuesday afternoon at the corner of East Fifth street and Watchung avenue in front of Neuman Brothers grocery store, by a horse attached to a two-wheel cart driven by Miss Margaret Lowe, *daughter of W. E. Lowe, of Park av*enue. The injured woman was taken into the Woman's Exchange on the corner where Dr. D. C. Adams was called in and dressed her injuries. Mrs. Brown was later taken to her home in North Plainfield in a cab.

The accident was caused by a trolley car. Miss Lowe was driving the rig with the coachman sitting beside her. As the carriage passed the store a car started to turn into Watchung avenue. The grating of the wheels on the track frightened the animal which stepped aside and reared suddenly knocking Mrs. Brown, who was standing on the cross walk, to the ground. The horse, more frightened than ever, began to trample on the woman until the coachman took the lines and guided the animal to one side.

Several bones were sustained by Mrs. Brown on the head and her body was somewhat bruised. She is suffering from the shock although she is not dangerously injured.

MISHAPS AND MISFITS.

Lecture by Rev. G. C. Wilding at Monroe Avenue M. E. Church Last Evening.

Under the auspices of the literary committee of the Monroe Avenue church Epworth League, Rev. George B. Wilding, of Elizabeth, delivered his humorous lecture, last evening, styled "Mishaps and Misfits." It was enjoyed and laughed at by a large audience. Previous to the talk piano selections were given by Clifford Braider and solos by Wilson Derby.

Dr. Wilding was at one time a presiding elder in West Virginia and pastor of several of the churches. His lecture was a synopsis of his experiences during that time with the Virginian mountaineers and as may be surmised were comical at times. Practically shut out from the rest of the world their innocence furnished many an amusing incident and Dr. Wilding has selected the best.

Walter M. McGee presided during the evening and introduced the speaker.

Public Meeting.

All property owners in the borough are urged to be present this evening in Saengerbund Hall, where the sewer commission will give a public hearing to all those who have interest in why the sewer system should or should not be put through. The commission comprises: E. A. Hegeman, Jr., Elston M. Franch, C. Smith and David T. Kenney.

Mrs. George A. Chapman, of Stelle avenue, has gone south on a trip of some length.

COLLAPSED AT WORK.

Miss Cutter, Injured in the Westfield Disaster, Taken Ill in New York.

Miss Lizzie Cutter, of Sandford avenue, who was seriously injured about the head in the Westfield disaster, and who recently returned to her position with the Bank of Manhattan Company, of New York, was taken ill at her desk yesterday and was accompanied to her home and her physician, Dr. Zeglio, summoned. Miss Cutter was too anxious to return to her position before she was sufficiently strong enough and yesterday's collapse will probably set her back for a long time.

VISITORS NEVER SCORED

HOPE BOYS BURIED TEAM FROM ELIZABETHPORT LAST EVENING.

Despite Their Rough Tactics the Visitors Were Completely Outclassed—Beaten 47 to 0.

A farce comedy in two acts was presented at the Hope Y. M. A. gymnasium, last evening, by the Hope basket ball team and the team from the Elizabeth Y. M. C. I. At the end of the first act the score was 33 to 0 in favor of Hope and the final score was 47 to 0 in favor of the home team.

The visitors were simply outplayed at every point and not once during the game did they have the slightest show of winning. The most phenomenal playing was done by Dilks in the first half, when he threw eleven goals from the field. He practically had no opposition and placed the ball in the basket without any trouble. This so demoralized the visitors that they could not recover. There was considerable rough playing. Several times during the game the referee was obliged to call fouls on the Elizabeth players for talking when they showed a decided inclination to find fault with the some of the decisions.

The second half was not so productive of goals, the play being a decided improvement over the first half. It was this same team that the Hope five defeated at Elizabeth last week by a score of 39 to 19

The line-up was as follows:

Hope.		Y. M. C. I.
Porter	rf	H. O'Brien
Dilks	lf	Bradley
Whitley	c	Kannah
McCombe	rg	Noonan
Chamberlain	lg	J. O'Brien

Score—Hope, 47; Y. M. C. I., 0. Goals from the field—Dilks (12), Porter (3), Whitley (2), Chamberlain (2), McCombe (2). Goals on foul—Whitley (2), McCombs (2), Porter (1). Fouls—Hope, 6; Y. M. C. I., 12. Referee—Charles Burdette Morse. Umpires — Dr. W. K. Browning and Thomas Earl. Timekeeper—Thomas O'Donnell. Scorer—W. C. Dobbins and G. E. Firstbrook.

CLOSING DANCE.

Members and Friends of the Lenox Euchre Club Spent Pleasant Evening at the Casino.

Seventy couples enjoyed the evening last night at the Casino where the Lenox Euchre Club closed its season with a dance. The music was provided by Westervelt's orchestra from New York. Many out-of-town guests were present with friends from Westfield, Somerville and other nearby places.

The members of the club wore carnations, the men wearing white carnations and the women wearing red. The members of the committee wore pink carnations. During the intermission refreshments of cake and ice cream were served. In order to secure a pleasant evening to all those who attended card games were arranged by the committee for the benefit of those who did not care for dancing and many took advantage of this form of amusement.

The dance was a success in every way and the committee, which had the arrangements in charge, comprised Armstrong Mulford, Harry W. Leek, Mrs. I. M. Tillapaugh, Mrs. Harry W. Leek and Miss Amy Hodges and Henry Piker, of Westfield.

Watched Relay Races.

Mrs. Florence H. Hall and her son, Samuel Prescott Hall, attended the intercollegiate relay races at Philadelphia. They found the events particularly interesting from the fact that another son, John Howe Hall, was a member of the Harvard team.

To Sell Theatre Chairs.

On a chattel mortgage given by Schorb & Dorber, Deputy Sheriff Peter Wessel will sell on May 7, 150 chairs now in the Central Theatre. The mortgage was executed in favor of William J. McDede, of New Brunswick.

—Adams & Chapman have an entirely new line of trimmed and untrimmed hats. Green trading stamps given.

WORKING ON ASBURY PARK'S BOARD WALK

Improvements Now Under Way at That Jersey Coast Summer Resort.

LOSING NO TIME NOW

A NEW SYSTEM OF BATH HOUSES WILL RECEIVE CONSIDERATION.

A New Music Pavilion This Spring —Other Minor Details to be Completed June 1—Bigger Plans Contemplated for the Future.

Asbury Park, April 29—Work has been started on a new esplanade. This is one of the improvements which have been contemplated for some time and the zeal with which the new beach commissioners have pushed forward to actualities the suggestions of the committee which was appointed recently to look into the details of certain improvements, has even surprised the people of that place who little realized that the plans set forth would be taken up with practical operations so soon.

Among other improvements it is planned to widen the boardwalk so that at its narrowest point it will be thirty-two feet in width. Former Assemblyman Kirkbride is serving as superintendent of construction and he has placed orders in the south for many thousand feet of Georgia pine which will be used in planking the new boardwalk.

Plans for a handsome new music pavilion have been looked over and will probably be adopted. All the pavilions, bath houses and sun-parlors are to be freshly painted and Mr. Bradley's signs and curios will be removed from the beach. The beach sunshades will be retained.

The commissioners have decided to erect lamp-posts for the electric lights which will be installed along the walk and beach front. The commissioners will bend all their efforts to have the improvements completed by June 1.

Plans for the erection of the casino, which has been proposed will not be considered just yet, a new system of bath houses being of pressing importance. These larger improvements will go over until next fall by which time the commission will have decided upon the entire plan for the beach improvements.

The new esplanade will extend sixteen feet east of the present east line of the walk at Fifth avenue, to the point where the east line of the present walk connects with the Asbury avenue pavilion. The depressions at Fourth and Third avenues and the nooks at various places will be obliterated and the walk will be much wider than it is at present. There will be a considerable depression at Fifth avenue and it is probable that bathers will pass to and from the beach under the walk thus doing away with the wet track of sand across the walk during bathing hours.

An artistic galvanized iron railing will be installed along the eastern side of the walk like that at Atlantic City. Georgia planks two inches thick and six inches wide running lengthwise of the walk will be used for flooring with a quarter of an inch between each board to prevent decay and to give ventilation. Among other changes which the widening of the walk *will necessitate will be the re*moval from the beach entirely of the lion cages which will be placed at Crows Nest.

When the work, already laid out for the coming season has been completed, Asbury Park will take on some of the appearance of what the commissioners have in mind—that is, to make of Asbury Park the finest seaside resort in the world.

Endeavor Meeting.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church will hold its weekly prayer-meeting Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. The topic will be "What does the parable of the Prodigal Son teach us?" Miss Velma Oakley will be the leader. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Increase in Coal.

The coal operators have notified all local dealers that on June 1 there will be an increase of 50 cents in the price of coal, and the chances are that the present price of $6 per ton will be the lowest this year. Many dealers are now receiving orders for the coming year's supply.

—Peter O. Somes and family moved yesterday from Summit avenue, North Plainfield, to Jersey City.

The New Woman and Her Doings

WHAT is probably the most hopeful sign of that strange, complicated, conglomerated life on New York city's famous east side is the activity of the girls' clubs there. For women, young or old, to go outside of her home, except to church or the grocery, is something comparatively new in east side annals. The strong, ambitious factory girls there are changing these conditions. More than a dozen years ago Miss Grace Dodge began establishing social and educational clubs among them. It gave them what they needed—a hint of better things and how to do. From that initiative they swept onward and started for themselves social clubs, likewise associations for instruction not only in school branches, *but in the industries. In that ever-*while benighted New York east side these independent, enthusiastic working girls have now some 600 clubs. There are stenographers' associations, and some of the girls belonging to them can take dictation and typewrite in five languages. There is a society of artificial flower workers that subscribed money and sent one of their number to Paris to learn how the French make those exquisite silk, cotton and velvet blossoms and leaves which cannot be distinguished from the natural except at very close sight. These young women are New York's best hope in the midst of political dishonesty and political ignorance. The girls have classes in bookbindery, classes for learning telegraphy and stenography and those for nature study, besides many others. The nature *study class goes into the parks dur*ing the scant leisure hours these brave workers can call their own and makes observations under the eye of a teacher. The girls have organized likewise a department connected with the Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, which, it is safe to say, is more than any young men's organization has done there. Others of the young women learn civics and the science of government.

* *

A newspaper recently devoted a long article to the story of a rich young woman who fell in love with a magnetic but ignorant young man and thereupon employed some of her dollars in educating him so that he might make a commendable appearance in her social circle preparatory to being married to her. Well, I don't see why not. For generations rich men have been sending poor but pretty girls to school and marrying them when the education was supposed to be finished, and nothing has been thought of it. Why should not the rule work both ways?

* *

The late Julian Ralph was press agent in the east for the St. Louis exposition. His assistant in the New York headquarters was Miss Elsie Reasoner, a young lady of Kansas and a newspaper girl. She had been Paris correspondent of the London Globe, had been a newspaper worker in the Cuban war and was connected with the American correspondence bureau of the Paris exposition. On the death of Mr. Ralph, Miss Reasoner was appointed to his place as eastern press representative of the St. Louis exposition.

* *

Honor him, sing praises to him, place a bust of him in the show places of women's clubs, send his memory down the corridors of time—Joseph M. Bennett, who left half a million to the University of Pennsylvania, "to aid the trustees in carrying out more practically and thoroughly the coeducation of women!"

* *

Oh, for a colony of good people where men and women can do and dress as they please, where old Grundy is barred out forevermore from dictating to women, where no old tabbies of either sex are allowed to constitute themselves guardians of the manners and morals of other folk!

* *

Miss Mary E. Springer, recording secretary of New York city chapter D. A. R., is devoting herself to historical romance writing. She has dedicated to the Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution her second novel, "Elisabeth Schuyler: A Story of Old New York."

* *

United States senate document 190, page 109, contains the following testimony before the Philippine commission, by Archbishop Nozeleda of Manila, concerning the Filipino native women and men: "The woman is better than the man in every way—in intelligence, in virtue and in labor—and a great deal more economical. She is very much given to trade and trafficking. If any rights or privileges are to be given to the natives, do not give them to the men, but to the women." Question: "Do you not think it would be better to give the right to vote to the women than to the men?" Answer: "Oh, much better."

* *

Isora Duncan, the American barefoot dancer in Berlin, gets prices for her performances equal to those paid to the greatest operatic singers. Berlin art lovers are building a theater for her in which she will reproduce Greek plays. The theater will be modeled after a Greek temple.

* *

A scrubbing machine has been invented which will do the work of two women. Well, women won't quarrel with that sort of an invention.

ELIZA ARCHARD CONNER.

TREATMENT OF WALLS.

A Hint For the Woman Who Wishes an Artistic Effect.

If the walls are tastefully decorated, a room is more than half furnished. Wall papers are now produced in such endless variety that something artistic may easily be found for a very small amount.

Perhaps one of the most popular methods of treating a wall consists in papering it in two colors, or, rather, two shades of the same color, the upper section being lighter than the lower, as a rule.

BLUE AND WHITE.

The dividing line is concealed by a shelf which runs around the room and which holds china, books, bric-a-brac etc.

The illustration shows just such a treatment of a wall. The color scheme is in two shades of blue, harmonizing prettily with the white woodwork and the blue and white china.

R. DE LA BAUME.

EXTRAVAGANCE OF WOMEN

They Waste Many Little Things Which Count Up.

Are women extravagant?

An English paper discusses this at great length in its usually ponderous fashion.

I say they are and they are not.

In household and many important matters the majority of women are not extravagant: for, as a rule, they are not well off according to their position in life, their allowances are small and they have many expenditures.

Then, too, they have been trained to know the price of things, and they usually get their money's worth.

Women's method of earning money has usually been to save it; and although we are beginning to change this yet it is still so to a great extent, for to men is given the privilege of earning the larger incomes.

HER BEST TAILOR MADE.

But there are many small things in which woman is most extravagant.

She will wear her best tailor made out in the rain, thereby impairing its freshness forever and a day, and this simply to make an impression on some woman she doesn't really care two cents about. She will likewise hold up her umbrella in a fashion as using a hand incased in a white glove. She might at least remove the glove, for one spot of water absolutely ruins it.

She will buy a dozen veils at one time, wear each once or twice and then throw it in a litter in the bottom of a drawer. If the veil had been rolled lengthwise, it would have lasted four times as long, and why use so many at once?

Then she will put rough bindings on the bottom of her skirts and ruin her expensive boots, or, worse still, put on no binding at all, which ruins the skirt.

Yes, and she will waste money for neck ribbons which are mussy and don't look half as well or last as long as a regular collar and buy fancy belts and novelties, which go out almost as soon as they are "in" and which eat up her money so wonderfully that she wonders why she has none left to purchase the important pieces.

Oh, but I am sorry to say, women are apt to be penny wise and pound foolish. HELEN CLIFTON.

For Half Mourning.

Half mourning is not now so rigidly insisted upon, but white voile with black silk mull trimmings or with chiffon ruchings and other garniture are allowable. When such a gown is to be worn with a hat, the latter should be trimmed with mauve tulle mingled with white and with bunches of white violets. Mauve is used now instead of the unbecoming lavender. Few people put their children into mourning now except for the funeral and for church for a few weeks, as it is thought too depressing for young minds.

Women Who Manage.

Mrs. Hearst and Mrs. Stanford, who have given away millions of money, understand the detail and management of their own business better than any of their agents. As for Mrs. Hetty Green, the richest woman in the world, would Hetty Green trust to any "mere man" to invest and control her money for her? Not she!

FANCY MATERIALS.

From Very Expensive to Simple Muslin All Are Showy and Dainty.

Oriental satin, Japanese silk and point d'esprit net are very pretty for blouses, and all manner of pretty and expensive trimmings are being used for them. Then there are smart little coffee and theater jackets of net and lace, which effect a really marvelous transformation when required to conceal the defects of shabby evening bodice or blouse.

Many of the new fabrics show a lace effect. For instance, we have colored grass lawns as fine as chiffon. Lace striped silks in new designs show inlet bands of chine silk. Other materials appear to be composed of one strip of ribbon and one of lace, and fine silk foulards have printed lace stripes.

EVENING TOILET.

Green muslins are a novelty.

The muslins fine as linen, old world mull muslin, clear swiss, hand embroidered and ecru muslins in blue, pink, green and yellow are popular. Old laces attain fabulous prices and are being eagerly sought after by connoisseurs. The more transparent a dress can be made the more smart it will be.

The illustration shows a gown of soft ecru mull having embroidered flounces. The sleeves, hips and top of blouse are shirred. JUDIC CHOLLET.

SUMMER STYLES.

Smart White Costumes—Colored Embroideries on Silk.

For smart costumes cream and ivory white, together with that paler shade of mastic which is barely deeper than old ivory, are to be much adopted, and a little later on soft materials in silk and wool mixtures, such as crepe de chine, crepe de soie, with etamine and colleene, will be generally worn. Gray wras much seen during the winter, though it is quite a spring color, and now only the palest shades are favored, and there are invariably touches of bright color or of black.

Colored embroideries on silk and tasseled ornaments in silk passementerie are extremely popular, but the little separate tassels strewn aimlessly over a gown are things of the past, and only a few of the larger type of tassels are now used.

ROUGH STRAW TURBAN.

Handsome fringes are used on the more elaborate gowns, and these are most graceful on a deep pelerine or to border a sack coatee.

Very unique effects are obtained by a combination of panne, face cloth and silk passementerie all in one tone or with the panne just one shade deeper. The passementerie is used as detached medallions, laid on panne and appliqued on the cloth. Skillfully managed, the effect is delightful.

The picture shows a turban of rough red straw suitable for traveling and ordinary wear. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Why Women Grow Old Sooner Than Men

"WHY is it that women grow old so much sooner than men?"

"I don't admit it!" returned the bachelor girl promptly.

The man with whom she was talking leaned back in his chair and smiled indulgently at her. "Why, my dear girl," he answered, "just look around you among our acquaintances. Take the Van Peppers, for instance. Major Van Pepper at seventy is as brisk as a young man, and Mrs. Van Pepper—why, she can barely waddle around, although she is nearly ten years his junior. She affects caps and sits behind screens cosseting herself all the time. She never goes anywhere, and her only pleasure is making exactions and complaints. And look at Miss Spinks. She can't be more than forty if she's a day, and she sits behind her stuffy window curtains, carefully adjusted so that no sunshine will pierce through and no rude wind blow upon her, and she knits and gossips all day long, with her cat curled up at her feet. Fourty, mind you! Why, at forty a man is a youngster, hustling around to beat the band and thinking of what the future has in store for him!"

"But"—

"Wait a minute. We'll come down to even younger women. There's Miss Scribbler. She's barely thirty-two, and *yet she bends over her desk in a news*paper office every dreary day long, and at night she tumbles into bed too tired to move. That is her existence."

"It has always been a wonder to me she could write. To write, it seems to me, one should go around, mix with all kinds of people and gain some new experience every day," broke in the bachelor girl.

"H-m-m! She is drawing upon her past experiences before she was shut up. Besides, there are plenty of news paper clippings and encyclopedias in the literary factory where she works."

"But her brain"—

"Oh, naturally that doesn't grow strong any more than her body. She is only another woman 'shut in.'

"Why, what do you mean? I thought the 'shut ins' were invalids who couldn't stir from their chairs and that they founded a society"—

"Yes, I know. But there are others who have shut their own selves in and yet who are as strong as you or I. They are the women who grow old and, alas, useless before their time—society women, like old Mrs. Van Pepper, who never take any real interest in life and what life means, who live on admiration as girls and exact even more as married women. When, owing to their artificial lives, their charms fade early, there is nothing for them to do but to take refuge in the cap of the dowager, and their sole consolation is being waited on hand and foot and making miserable the lives of those under them."

"But Miss Spinks"—

"Ah, isn't she a 'shut in?' If she would only stop mourning over her ruined life and let one past love affair—if she would only go out into the fresh air, walk, exert herself, take an interest in life—who knows but she might even have another love affair."

"And Miss Scribbler."

"That is the saddest of all, because she is handicapped by the fact that she has to earn her living. But do you suppose I would stay bending over a desk all day if I found it was ruining my health and brains and preventing me from making friends, from seeing life, cramping my whole future? No, indeed! If I could not persuade my superiors that fresh ideas and a brain constantly receiving new impressions are worth more than a certain number of musty office hours a day, I would seek higher, broader, sunnier spots minute, to put myself in a position where I could both live and do my best work and where by improving all the time I could put myself beyond the possibility of being thrown away some day like a sucked orange when I had finally reached my limit. It isn't work that makes a woman old, hopeless and worn; its selfish idleness or a narrow life or work under adverse circumstances. Even sorrow doesn't ruin a woman's existence if she still keeps her hand on the pulse of life, if she still moves and has a part in the world about her, if she does not allow herself to become a 'shut in.'"

ONE TYPE.

MAUD ROBINSON.

"DER WALD'S" COMPOSER.

Miss Ethel Smyth and Her Remarkable Achievement.

An interesting event of the musical season of 1903 has been the performance for the first time in America of Miss Ethel M. Smyth's opera, "Der Wald" ("The Forest"). Thus it cannot be longer said that no woman has ever composed a successful opera. Moreover, a distinguished musical critic said of it after its first night in New York, "To the opera's credit, it can be said that discussion of it may proceed upon the broad plane of contemporary music without reference to sex or nationality."

This is very good, considering it was *written by a man concerning a wom*an's musical composition, which generally receives more sneers than pats on the back from masculine critics. Indeed, even in this case the critic, like a man, involuntarily claims what is best in the opera—that is, the style of composition and its basic philosophical and intellectual ideas—as "masculine to an astonishing degree." From the intellectual standpoint praiseworthy, therefore they must be "masculine!" which leads one to observe once more that there is nothing small about the male mind when it comes to claiming things.

MISS SMYTH SINGING AT THE PIANO. [From a drawing by John S. Sargent, R. A.]

Miss Smyth is English born and reared, the daughter of a British artillery general. The military social set into which she was born is one of the most conventional among all mankind in its notion of what is proper for a well born and bred "young female." So Ethel Smyth found it when, aspiring and longing, feeling within her a growing impulse of power which she must express or die, she at the age of twelve announced to her family that she was going to Leipsic to study music.

The little girl's family checked her, meddled with her natural longings and sought to kill them. Her work, admirable as it is, shows traces of Grundyish interference. It is colorless in the passages where it should be warm and passionate, the critics say, as though the young woman could not burst her stays and be entirely natural and full in her expression of what Mrs. General Grundy disapproved. Still the young lady's opera is so strong and musical in other ways that the critics may forgive this defect. She will probably learn better in time.

Ethel Smyth was persistent. She kept at it, declaring over and over again that she intended to study music and compose music as well. It required seven years to overcome the family. Then the girl went her way to Leipsic rejoicing. The seven years, however, were not wholly lost, for she developed a fine, graceful physique through exercise in doors and out. She is fond of golf, horseback riding and dancing.

The Smyth family gave her permission to remain in Leipsic a year. By that time they believed that the nonsense would be taken out of her and she would be willing to return home and take the round of life suitable to any well regulated army girl. But she did not return at the end of a year. She remained in Leipsic, on the contrary, four years, studying with enthusiasm. She began musical composition while there. Leading performers in the city of music gave at different times a string quartet and a violin sonata by her. After Leipsic the girl said she refused to drop into nonentity, bjt continued working in Dresden, Munich and Florence for several seasons. Then she studied in Rome, whither she still journeys from time to time to breathe in the thrilling atmosphere of art and music in Italy.

It is interesting to note that it was a man, and a musical authority at that, too, one with a contempt for woman in musical composition, who first suggested to the girl to write an opera. He was Herman Levi. During her years of schooling Ethel Smyth had been writing symphonies, sonatas, a mass and chamber music with more or less success. She herself plays her own compositions with much skill and power. One day Herman Levi heard her play and said to her:

"You must write an opera."

She has now written two. She herself composes both music and words. The first opera was "Fantasio;" the second is "Der Wald," which was received with favor in Covent Garden, London, before it was brought to America. Its leading idea is from Schiller's lines:

Art thou afraid of death? Dost desire to live forever?
Live in the whole! When thou art gone, It will endure.

MARCIA CAMPBELL.

FOR STREET WEAR.

The New and Elaborate Neck Ruches—Lace Capes—Wool Veiling.

The new boas, ruffles and shoulder capes for the season are very ornate. The pelerine is made in ecru or ficelle lace intermixed in some cases with flower petals, and anyway made fussy with much ruffling and shirring.

The stoles of mixed marabout and ostrich feathers are very dainty, and there are cream cock feathers dotted with velvet or chenille and lace ruffles with stole ends bordered with chenille. Marabou tails are made more fanciful by the addition of powdered rose petals, which in their turn are dotted with tiny bits of chenille.

COAT OF BLACK PEAU DE SOIE.

Lace capes with stole ends made from scarfs are very handsome when appliqued with medallions of embroidered silk.

Wool veiling will be one of the smartest materials of the season for dresses, *and these will be elaborately embroid*ered with heavy silks or figures of taffeta.

The illustration shows a three-quarter coat of black peau de soie having bands of silk forming the collar and likewise the wide band at the bottom of the coat. The revers are faced with white lace; the lining is of white silk.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

MODISH ORNAMENTS.

Corsets Now Being Made Shorter. Irish Crochet Lace Much Used.

Corsets, though still straight fronted, show a tendency to become shorter. Petticoats are most elaborate. They are cut like skirts and have a shaped flounce profusely ornamented with ruches and inlettings of lace. Black and white petticoats are smart wear, and all manner of fancy silks are used for fashionable underskirts.

Belts are very artistic in hand painted satin and embroidered silk and also spangled suede.

Irish crochet lace is introduced wherever possible on cloth and linen costumes, and it is seen to great advantage on the pretty grass lawns, silk striped in green or pink.

Both pink and red coral are fashionable, also all green stones.

Motoring costumes are much trimmed with bands of suede in Lincoln green or tan color.

For evening wear accordion kilted skirts of point d'esprit net are gauged in a yoke shape around the hips, rows of lace insertion being plaited in with the net.

The illustration shows a visiting gown made with a loose hanging jacket effect. JUDIC CHOLLET.

VISITING GOWN.

Somewhat Different.

"Why, George, what an enormous pile of letters!" exclaimed the bride of a week. "Billets doux, I suppose."

"No, my dear," replied the other half of the sketch: "they are billies overdue."—Chicago News.

Many Women Earn Money At Home

IN every country neighborhood, in any town small or large, women who are in earnest and set their heads to it may originate ways of bringing in money while at the home time they attend to their daily household duties. At a meeting of the Minnesota Dairymen's association several ladies reported their success in cow keeping. One woman, Mrs. Holmes, was fond of cows and had money to buy one. That was some years ago. Mrs. Holmes now has a farm of 240 acres in small grains and pasture. The grain lands gave a phenomenal yield to the acre, the men farmers said when they heard the average was nearly fifty bushels. Mrs. Holmes has now twenty-six cows, which gave her nearly $1,500 worth of butter last year. For a farmer that is not a bad income. Mrs. Holmes wisely uses all the product of her land to feed her stock on.

A Maine woman, Mrs. Florence Cummings, who likewise plays the piano, devotes her farm to poultry, hay and dairying. She does all her own housework and sells twenty pounds of butter a week. Country women around Boston have taken up market gardening with enthusiasm, and several of them are in receipt of incomes from this source that many professional men and women might envy. In New England it is becoming common to employ Ital*ian women to do the work in market* gardening, and they make excellent help. They do not get drunk or quarrel, in the west and southwest, of course, however, it is left for women to conduct farms on a grand scale. In California Mrs. Buckingham of Vacaville long since showed what women can do in the agricultural field; so did the ingenious woman who raised pampas plumes and created a demand for them. In the Panhandle of Texas Mrs. Pauline Whitman owns and operates a ranch of 200,000 acres, on which she raises 15,000 cattle a year.

In another field of home industry may be mentioned Mrs. Kidd, the lady who began making delicious pickles according to a recipe that had been in her family for generations. Year after year she took premiums for her wares at southern state fairs before she ever thought of ever making of it remunerative industry. Finally it occurred to her that, since her pickles were so very good, she might get some spending money by selling them. She offered some of them at a famous southern hotel. At once they met with favor. Then another and another hotel manager wanted them till a trade began that was widened out to include railway dining cars and great ocean steamer lines. Like Mrs. Macready of Buffalo, Mrs. Kidd has made her delicacies in her own kitchen. As was the case with Mrs. Macready's husband also, ere long Mrs. Kidd's husband had to give up his own work and help his wife with the industry she had founded. A large factory has been built in the rear of the old southern home in which Mrs. Kidd lived, and scores of helpers are now employed regularly.

*Among the most interesting and in*crative home industries for women is one which became popular so suddenly that it amounts to a fad. The fad will die a natural death by and by, but while it lasts hundreds of quiet domestic women are getting good money out of the home carpet rug business. There are braided and sewed rugs, crocheted rugs, knitted ones and those woven by hand in a way similar to that whereby the most expensive Persian and oriental rugs are manufactured. Under the Navajo women are catering to the popular fad, learning from aged mothers and grandmothers how these made rugs half a century ago, except that the grandmothers made the rugs for sturdy farm boots to tread upon, and that right heavily, while the granddaughters make theirs for dainty ladies to show off in parlors and even in some cases to hang up for draperies. The rug foundation can be painted or stained with the outline of a colored figure or design and the rag or wool filling be worked in to correspond, so that the outer surface represents a sort of tapestry picture. To produce the thing quite perfect all the dyes used must also be the unfading homemade ones used by the grandmothers. A young lady in New York city is actually making a fortune from the manufacture and sale of these rugs. She occupies all the floors of one house.

THE DAIRYWOMAN AND HER PETS.

ALICE WHITAKER.

A Brief History of the Grange Organizations

As Given in a Paper Read by George W. Cary, From a Hard Struggle to Brilliant Success.

I SHALL not attempt to go into the details of the organization and development of the Patrons of Husbandry in an exhaustive manner, but rather in a superficial way, to give some ideas concerning the characters of the men who were its founders and of the manner of its development as well as its difficulties through which it has passed. The idea of this order originated in the head of a Minnesota farmer, O. H. Kelly by name.

The seasons of '63 and '63 were exceedingly dry in Minnesota, causing Mr. Kelly to turn his attention to other channels than farming for support. Accordingly, he laid down the shovel and hoe and took up the pen. His articles were received with favor in the newspapers, but he not being in harmony with this work, welcomed an appointment to a clerkship in the department of agriculture at Washington, where he spent the summer of 1864, returning to his Minnesota farm in the spring of 1865. In the fall of 1865 he was recalled to Washington and was appointed to a clerkship, the object of which was by investigation to regain the statistics relative to the agricultural and mineral resources of the south, which had been discontinued during the war. While traveling in the south he was greatly impressed with the lack of harmony which existed between the people of the north and south, and it was with the idea of establishing kindly feelings between the people that the formation of this organization first occurred to him. Mr. Kelly was a mason, and was greatly aided in this work by members of that fraternity. To some of these, as we shall presently see, he made known his plan, also to his niece, Miss C. A. Hall, of Boston, and on a visit to her in the spring of 1866 she proposed that if such an organization was formed women should be admitted to full membership. So we must give to woman the credit of inserting into the organization that feature which makes it preeminent among social organizations.

The following summer Mr. Kelly spent on his Itasca (Minn.) farm, but received an appointment to the post office department in January, 1867.

Thus far no real work had been done upon the order. It had merely been talked about, principally between Rev. John Tribie, Mr. Kelly and Miss Hall. During the following summer, Mr. Kelly made the acquaintance of W. M. Ireland, who was chief clerk of the finance office of the post office department and was also a prominent member of the masonic order.

The idea of the organization was broached to Mr. Ireland and was received with such encouraging effect that Mr. Kelly penciled out a plan for the order in manuscript form, to be forwarded to Miss Hall for her criticism.

During the summer a William Saunders, another mason, was taken into confidence, and from the position which he held in the department of agriculture and from the opportunity which soon came to him of attending a meeting of the United States Pomological society, where he in a quiet way advocated this organization, proved himself a valuable adjunct to those interested, and through his efforts *a son Bartlett, of Madison, O., still an*other mason, became interested and aided materially in its development.

So far the proposed term to be ap*plied to the local organizations had* been "lodges," but Mr. Bartlett objected to this term, as there exists in the minds of some a prejudice against anything under the name of "lodge," and he very wisely suggested that, as this was to be an organization of farmers, some name derived from or applied to the cultivation of the soil would be more appropriate, and suggested "garden" or "vineyard" for these local organizations, and Independent Farmers was the first name which he proposed for the order. From this a general discussion was opened relative to name, and in place of "lodges" such names were suggested as "fields," "farms," "beehives," "garden," "grove," "arbor," etc., and we might suggest right here that perhaps the term "beehive" would be more appropriate for some of these modern "lodges."

Various names were also proposed for the order among which were Independent Order of Progressive Farmers, Knights of the Plow, Knights of the Flail, Lords of the Soil, Brethren of the Vine, Temples of Industry, Companions of Labor, etc., etc.

About this time, with a view to ascertaining the views of some of the leading horticulturists in different parts of the country, 300 circulars were gotten out and forwarded to them. The result was some very encouraging replies and several more lively correspondents. At this period of its career, the idea of the founders was to make advancement through the different degrees a matter of study. The passing from one degree to another was to be something parallel with the advancement from one grade to another in school. Several months might perhaps be necessary to gain a thorough knowledge of the studies of one degree. But this idea did not obtain.

In November of this same year, 1867, Bro. Kelly proposed the name of "League of Husbandry" for the order and "granges" instead of "lodges." The word "grange," which means "farm," was taken from a novel advertised about that time. Anson Bartlett proposed the name of "Patrons of Industry" for the order, upon the receipt of which proposal Mr. Kelly substituted "husbandry" for "industry," thus evolving the terms "Patrons of Husbandry" and "Grange."

So far no organization had been made, but work on the ritual, ceremonies of installations and dedication of halls was progressing, and it was not until December 4, 1867, that the National Grange was organized, with W. M. Ireland as master. On January 7, 1868, a special meeting of this National Grange was called, to which the master and two members responded. Bro. Ireland was instructed to organize a subordinate grange, which was to be a school of instruction under the direct supervision of the National Grange. This grange was to be known as Potomac grange, No. 1, and every member was expected to make himself familiar with every part of the work, so that when called upon he could fill any position.

On the evening of January 8, 1868, the first meeting of this first subordinate grange was held in a room on Ninth street, Washington, D. C. Up to this time the idea of the founders of the order had been to have an order of three degrees, but this now was entirely changed, for a new plan con*sisting of seven degrees, as we now* have it. The seventh degree (Demeter) was taken from an ancient association which once flourished in the east. This idea originated with Mr. McDowell, and he was accordingly accepted as its supreme head, with the title of High Priest of Demeter.

In February Mr. Kelly resigned his position in the post office department and gave his entire time to the completion of the work, and during this month and the next he was engaged in the development of the ritual and to the completion of the constitution of the grange, which by this time had increased so there were 30 brothers and sisters present on February 19, and it was at this meeting that a Mr. Boardman received the first two degrees, he being the first person ever regularly initiated in due form in this order.

Mr. Kelly continued in his work until April 3, when, feeling that his work here was accomplished, he started out on his work of organizing new granges, and after buying his ticket to Harrisburg, Pa., he had put $2.50 in his pocket, intending to work his way by organizing granges from Washington to Minnesota. After two vain attempts the first regularly organized grange which ever existed and had a being, was instituted at Fredonia, N. Y.

Mr. Kelly continued his journey with more or less success, reaching Chicago April 23, and continued, meeting his first failure at Minneapolis, Minn. He reached home about the first of May, and during that year continued in the work of organizing granges in his own state to supplement his usual farm work. The first person ever obligated and instructed in the ritual in Minnesota was Mr. Kelly's eldest daughter, Julia. She also officiated as Pomona in the state grange of Minnesota the first evening that the fifth degree was ever conferred. During the same session, however, in St. Paul composed two songs for the order and the Miss Hall who was previously mentioned composed others from time to time until the first song book was issued.

Up to the present, the outlook for the order had at times been very dark, but now encouraging letters began to be received and six new granges were organized in January and February, 1869. On February 23 the state grange of Minnesota was organized. April 13, at two p. m., the first annual session of the National Grange was called to order, but no important business was transacted. During the spring of 1869, the fifth degree manual was completed and the fifth degree conferred for the first time at the Minnesota state grange that summer. Mr. Kelly, aided by a few deputies whom he had appointed, was pushing the work of establishing granges throughout the summer, with the result that August 1 found 23 subordinate granges firmly planted in the United States, but at the close of the year the number had increased to 49 and one state grange, that of Minnesota.

During the year 1870, 42 granges were organized, and the first attempt at cooperation was made by the Fredonia (N. Y.) grange proposing to buy seed at wholesale. July 4, 1871, the first grange in Vermont was organized. The year 1871 closed with 123 granges organized and paid for, against 38 the previous year. The report at the close of the next year was much more encouraging, the secretary's report showing that during the year 1872 granges had taken out dispensations. After five years of hard struggle this was the first really successful year. The work continued, and in the year 1873, 8,622 dispensations were granted, and in 1874, 11,941 granges were organized.

So the work continued to the present time. At times it has reached the zenith of hope and at others has fallen to the nadir of despair, but never in its history has it been more in favor than at the present day. Like many new enterprises, its promoters had much to learn before it could be placed upon a firm foundation.

Pat's Diplomacy.

In one of the large manufacturing establishments in this city an Irishman was employed to watch one of the entrances.

One day the superintendent saw the Irishman was neglecting his duty, and told him to go to the office and get his money, as his services were no longer needed.

The superintendent went away on business that day, and was gone about a week or ten days.

On his return he happened to be passing this same place, and was surprised to find the Irishman he had discharged still acting as watchman.

He said: "I thought I discharged you a couple of weeks ago."

"Sure," says the Irishman.

"Well, why didn't you get out when you were told?"

"Oh, I know when I got a good boss, if you don't know when you have a good man."

Needless to say, he is still there.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Doctors and Physical Culture.

A wise man, when ill, does not try to cure himself—though he may dearly love to prescribe for the dyspepsias, the colds or the neuralgias of his friends—but seeks the aid of a trusted physician. He feels there is something of mysterious in the way medicines act, and fears that in his ignorance he may blunderingly do himself harm rather than good by self-prescribing. But exercise, dieting, bathing—these, he thinks, are so simple that anyone can use them without the trouble of consulting a doctor. And here his wisdom forsakes him. The action of these physical remedies is just as complex, just as productive of good when properly directed, and just as certain to do harm when wrongly applied as is the working of drugs in the system.—Dr. Thomas Stedman, in Everybody's Magazine.

American Inventions in Syria.

Last summer, for the first time, the whirr of reaping machines was heard in the grain fields of the ancient land of Syria. The machines came from Chicago, and when, a little later, a steam thrashing machine, made in Indiana, was set to work in Coele-Syria, there was some excitement among the native farmers. Before the reapers appeared on the plain of Esdraelon American windmills had been introduced, and later in the year a flour mill, with machinery and an oil motor engine from Indianapolis, began grinding wheat in Lebanon. So the year 1891 is a notable one in the advance of practical science over the old Bible lands.—Youth's Companion.

Nature's "Dried Garden."

A collection of plants, pressed, mounted on paper, and arranged systematically, is most commonly spoken of as a herbarium. This term is from the Latin herba, which means a green leaf or blade (a grass-like plant), and suggests fields and pasturage. As the ture's "dried garden" is in the fields and meadows, down in the ravines, on the hillsides, and by the roadsides. It is this real outdoor nature's "dried garden" that we should especially notice this February, as we near the end of winter.—St. Nicholas.

Willing to Try It.

"And you asked her father for her hand?"

"Yes."

"Was he violent?"

"Very. He said I must be an idiot to think of such a thing."

"What did you reply?"

"I told him that, of course, he knew his own family better than I did, but that I was willing to take my chance."—Stray Stories.

A Queer Request.

The following paragraph appears in a will recently lodged for probate in Melbourne, Australia: "I bequeath unto my dear son John the feather bed, bolster and wire mattress used by him, for his own use absolutely, and he is to divide with his brother the oil painting of their mother's father."—London News.

Death and Worse.

Woolly Wiggins—Gee, but I'd hate to be in a shipwreck.

Tattered Tucker—Oh, dere's worse t'ings.

"I don't know. Didn't you never hear about de bodies bein' 'washed ashore?' Tink of dat."—Kansas City Journal.

A Marvel.

"What do you think is the most extraordinary invention of the age?"

"The phonograph," answered Mrs. Meekton, promptly; "the way that machine stands and talks back to Hortietta positively takes my breath away."—Washington Star.

Unpleasant Either Way.

Husband—I don't think we would better accept the Pinktons' invitation to dinner, because if we go we are not in a position to return it.

Wife—But if we don't they'll know that is the reason.—Stray Stories.

The Banner Corn State.

Missouri is now credited with the greatest corn yield, estimated last year at 215,000,000 bushels. Iowa is a close second, with 300,000,000 bushels, and Kansas and Nebraska follow. — Success.

The Humble Consumer.

She—Have you ordered the coal?

He—My dear, I have begged, entreated and supplicated the dealer to send some. In times like these I wouldn't think of ordering it.—Puck.

His Engaging Remark.

Mr. Dumhead—Nelson was coming to call, but I told him you would be engaged this evening—

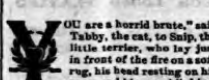
Miss Olemade (rapturously)—O, William!—Princeton Tiger.

YOU are a horrid brute," said Tabby, the cat, to Snip, the little terrier, who lay just in front of the fire on a soft rug, his head resting on his paws and his eyes blinking, as he lazily contemplated pussy.

"Well," he said, "I am too comfortable here to bother about catching rats. You wouldn't have told me anything about it anyway, if you could have managed the job by yourself."

"Oh," said Tabby, "as for that, I can catch rats by the dozen myself; only I thought you might like the sport.

Snip yawned and stretched himself, and showed signs of relenting; but



"Well," he said, "I am too comfortable here to bother about catching rats."

pussy pretended utter indifference to his proceedings, and with a sigh she lay down and feigned sleep.

"Come on, then," said Snip, giving a final stretch to his cramped limbs, "now you have got a fellow on to his pins, you let on you don't care."

Pussy, taking no notice, just waited till Snip had vacated his place by the fire. Then with one spring she gained the long-coveted position, and with a sigh she lay down in the place which knew Snip no more.

"You silly dog," she said, "your conceit does want taking down a peg. Do you really imagine for one moment that I'll call you to help me catching rats? Ha! ha! ha! Go and catch them by yourself if you can. I am far too comfortable here to bother my head about them."

Snip regarded her with supreme contempt. It was not the first time by Smoker came forward to show himself off, and seemed a promising pup of the bulldog order.

many that Tabby had made a fool of him.

"Well," he said, "there is no getting even with a cat. It passeth the understanding of an honest dog, and yet, and yet—"

Longingly he looked at her, wondering whether he could not manage to get a fair bite at her, but remembering her sharp claws, with which he had made acquaintance on previous occasions, he desisted, and, with anger in his heart, he took himself off to seek consolation in a visit to the next-door dog.

"Good day, Mrs. Snap," he said, as he approached the box in which she was reclining, surrounded by her four children. "I was hoping to induce you to come for a walk with me."

"Walk, indeed," she growled, "I can't leave this unruly brood for a minute, and as for my eldest son, Smoker, he Tabby looked upon the newcomer as an intruder.

is getting such a bully that I would gladly part with him, if a good home could be found."

Snip became thoughtful.

"Which is Smoker?" he said; "let me have a look at him."

"This one," said Snap, "in the black and tan coat."

Smoker came forward to show himself off, and seemed a promising pup of the bulldog order. "He'll do," said

Squirrels Like Pine Seeds.

Everybody is familiar with the fondness which squirrels entertain for nuts; there is, however, upon our furry little friend's bill of fare another item which is less generally known as being a favorite one, and that is pine seeds. The seeds of the pine are borne naked in the heart of the cone, snugly laid away at the base of the cone scales. When a squirrel has his mouth set for these seeds he repairs to a cone in his paws and strips off the scales one by one thus exposing successively the seeds.

Fully Equipped.

He—Are you sure that you are fitted to be a poor man's wife?

She—Sure! Why, my love, I know every bargain counter in town.—N. Y. Weekly.

Was by Waiting.

She — Father's salary is to be doubled the first of the year.

He—Good! At last we can afford to get married.—Chicago Daily News.

Snip; "let me take him home with me. I'll smuggle him into the house, and when my little master, Jack, sees him he is sure to want to keep him."

It was not altogether an unselfish motive that made Snip want to rid Mrs. Snap of her chief anxiety. "In unions lies strength!" he said to himself. "One dog may not be able to get even with a cat, but what about two dogs?"

He smiled a rather sickly smile when he thought of how they would give Mrs. Tabby "rats" in future.

Now that it came to parting with her firstborn, Mrs. Snap only remembered his good qualities, and wiping away a tear she begged him not to forget her, and to come and see her often. Smoker wiggled himself out of the maternal embrace and scampered off with his new friend and protector.

On the way home, Snip gave him a few hints as to his behavior, strongly advising him not to have anything to do with the cat. Unobserved they managed to get into Snip's kennel, and when Jack found them there later on he was so delighted with Smoker that he obtained permission to keep him, and so far Snip's plan was quite successful.

Tabby looked upon the newcomer as an intruder, and took a great dislike to him at first sight. "I can't imagine what Jack wants another dog for," she said to herself; "I shan't have half such a good time now." And her misgivings proved quite correct.

One day Snip and Smoker caught a fine big rat.

Snip and Smoker became the greatest of chums, and took no notice whatever of Tabby, so that the latter, as time went on, became sad and depressed.

One day Snip and Smoker caught a fine big rat, which they worried till he was about half dead; then they put him on the top of a waterbutt, which was covered by boards loosely laid across the top. The boards had they removed altogether, and put the rat close behind this opening.

They went into their kennel, where only their eyes could be seen, like four glowworms, fixed on the wriggling rat. The time passed, and their excitement was beginning to cool down, when it was fanned afresh by the appearance of Tabby, who was evidently suffering greatly from "ennui." She rubbed herself against the wall, yawned and stretched herself, when all at once she caught sight of the rat. Hullos! here was sport! All appearance of "ennui" disappeared! Her hair rose and bristled, and she quivered all over with excitement. Slowly and stealthily she crept nearer and nearer her pray, never for an instant removing her eyes from the coveted object. Now, the long-looked-for moment had arrived. She crouches low and sprang—a little struggle, and cat and rat alike disappeared into the butt!

A little struggle and cat and rat alike disappeared into the butt.

Snip and Smoker rolled over and over, convulsed with silent laughter.

Later on when the maid came to fetch a jug of water, she gave a little scream and, plunging her arm into the water, brought out Tabby closely embracing the rat, and so strong was that death grip, that together they had to be buried in the hole which Jack had dug under the old apple tree.

Snip and Smoker attended the funeral. Whether their consciences pricked them we know not, but the words "cat" or "rat" were not mentioned between them for months!

"LORRAINE."

Fixing the Wedding Date.

A curious old marriage custom, called locally "the settling," still survives in County Donegal, Ireland, and in the Scottish districts of Kintyre and Cowal. After the marriage has been publicly announced, the friends of the couple meet at the house of the bride's parents to fix a suitable date for the ceremony. A bottle of whisky is opened, and as each guest drinks to their happiness, he names a date. When each guest has named a date, an average is struck, and "settling" is complete. Neither the bride nor the bridegroom ever thinks of protesting against the day so curiously chosen. It would be considered bad luck even to speak of alteration.

Exacting.

Miss Gusky—Oh, Mr. Jones, won't you take a chance? We're getting up a raffle for an old lady who is so poor—

Mr. Slim (interrupting)—Excuse me, ladies, but I would prefer—er—some rich young widow.—Columbia Jester.

Coasting and Sleighing, Are They Pleasures of the Past?

MARSHALL FIELD, Jr., dearly loves to "spring a novelty" on his millionaire friends. Perhaps it was a yearning for the sport of the old days on the New England hills when coasting was the enjoyment of ruddy cheeked lads and lassies that helped to dispel the gloom of the short winter days, that prompted this young man recently to gather together some of his society friends and bundled up in the conventional Canadian toboggan uniforms they made merry on a public toboggan slide.

Debutantes, whose names are in the select list of society, and business men, who some day will be the guiding geniuses of great commercial houses, dragged tobogganing along side school girls, stenographers, clerks, etc., a bucking broncho. A more stable and docile jumper was made by fastening two or three staves side by side, but these were not considered as fast travelers as the single staves.

"The jumper was at its best, or one might say at its worst, when gliding down a hill covered with a thick snowcrust; a slight jolt often imparting a rapid, rotary motion to the jumper in its downward rush that would put the navigator clear out of his reckoning, and bring him whack into an apple tree, while the jumper whirled merrily on to the huckleberry bushes. Nothing in the list of coasting contrivances can equal the jumper for daredevil, exhilarating sport."

"The first rational and safe coasting sled was the homemade vehicle called sleigh in New York and vicinity. This production was like the modern "slipper" sled, except that it was shorter and there was "no arrogance of wealth." The party was strictly incognito and this is the first time that anyone has written about it. Yet, I have it from a close friend of one of the young millionaires that "no country boy ever had any more fun *on his coasting hill than this im*promptu paring in a city park had that bracing night."

"CLEOPATRA'S BARGE." BUILT IN BOSTON IN 1846

Is coasting a neglected winter glory? Perhaps in the big cities it is, but who shall say that when the snow is favorable in the hilly country districts, the small boy does not derive as much fun out of the sport as he did years ago in New England? It was less than 35 years ago that public coasts were common in the big cities. Recently, when I was in Boston, strolling under the big elms that cover so many but surely dying, the site of the old public coasting place from the top of State House hill down across the historic park for fully 4,500 feet was pointed out to me. Imagine a lot of youngsters coasting there now! The practical, erudite and provincial Hobbins, if asked to provide coasting avenues for the youth now would say something about underground conduits or subways. Not longer than 14 years ago the small boys of the city of Milwaukee took advantage of the hilly nature of the city to coast on the public streets. Once when a long bob loaded with school boys ran away down Marshall street and meeting a milkwagon dashed beneath the wagon safely, although spectators had closed their eyes to the imminent slaughter of all the children, the city fathers were appealed to and the policemen makes it hard for a boy to get much coasting now on the streets.

James J. Steele, who used to revel in the sport of coasting "in the good old times," has contributed some "sled lore" to Outing, which H. S. Watson has quaintly illustrated. He tells of the days in Boston when *the police in*sured fair play for the coasters and wooden bridges were temporarily built over sidewalks so that pedestrians would not be swept off their feet by the coasters. The sled lore takes the enthusiast back to the time of George III., when coasters were mere boards provided with long beef bone runners. These gradually "evoluted" until the elaborate tandems of to-day resulted. Next in the order of sleds were the "skippers" and "jumpers," made of barrel staves. "Skippers were made of a single barrel stave," says Mr. Steele, "of moderate width, to which was nailed a 12-inch seat post about midships. A piece of barrel head constituted the seat. To navigate the craft required no little skill, the revolutions and convolutions performed by the rider while 'gittin' the hand of the derned old thing, being akin to the antics of a tenderfoot on in kingbolts for the plank to rest on. But the front sled only must be given free play to revolve. The double runner can be steered with the boy lying flat on the rear sled, but that is obviously a less satisfactory method than that of sitting upright, with feet braced on the cross piece of the front sled and steering by pushing on the front place with the right or left foot as the needs of steering come up.

THE "MAYFLOWER." A FAMOUS BOAT SLEIGH OF THE FORTIES

The large sleds of a half century ago were great sights in the eastern cities. They rivaled the circus chariots and gilded wagons in richness of design. "Plug hats were worn by the men who went sleighing in those days in these big craft. Stovepipes, beavers and pot hats and caps were worn, but there were no Derbies. Think of the small boy nowadays overlooking a chance to "soak" those plug hats with snow balls! But after all the research into the "lore of the sled" it strikes the enthusiast that Young America is about the same as he was "in ye geode olde dayes."

E. O. WESTLAKE.

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms—$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, [illegible] Proprietor

TROUBLE BREWING.

The campaign previous to last November's election was exciting in more ways than one. The fight for the Republican nominations developed a contest more bitter than was the election itself. The two factions fought side by side after a fashion and carried the county but the old sores were not healed. With the approach of another election there is promise of still more exciting happenings.

There's a new factor in the fight this year. The consolidation and annexation question cannot be left out. The action of the Legislature in repealing the annexation law still rankles in the hearts of many Republicans and it is going to be heard from next fall. Exactly how it will crop out no one can tell but it's going to in some fashion and it will surely make some trouble in the Republican ranks when it comes out.

A BRICK PAVEMENT.

A plan is now under consideration by the Councilmanic street committee to pave Watchung avenue between North avenue and East Second street with vitrified brick. While no action has yet been taken it appears that the members of the committee are inclined to look favorably on the proposition.

Everyone, who has had occasion to travel on the local trolley system on a rainy day, remembers full well the mud into which the passengers were unceremoniously dumped. It was necessary to wade in to the curb to get a transfer and then wade back again to the car desired. There were occasional puddles and much mud to be encountered en route. The need of a continuous crosswalk there has been pointed out. The only proper remedy, however, would be the establishment of a transfer station on private property to be reached by a loop where the passengers could be deposited on a proper platform under cover. When that is done, and not until, will the troubles occasioned by the congestion of the trolleys at North and Watchung avenues cease.

This plan, which the street committee now has under consideration, aims for a slight way to remedy some of those objectionable conditions which exist at present. A brick pavement will certainly do away with a great deal of the mud which was inevitable on a macadam road on a rainy day.

WORK TO DO.

With the knowledge that the Borough Board of Health was continually watching for any attempt to empty sewerage into Green brook and had several times called the attention of the City Board to the refuse from the gas works which was allowed to flow into the brook while repairs were being made at the works, the news, as exclusively told in Saturday's Daily Press, that there were drains emptying into Stony brook was a great surprise.

There can be no denying the facts, however. They have been investigated and there is no doubt about them. It now behooves the Borough Board to act without delay and to remedy the existing conditions as fast as possible. The fact that there are two of these drains make it seem quite possible that there should be still others and the Borough Board should make every possible effort to thoroughly investigate the neighborhood of that brook to eliminate any others that may exist.

Both of these drains were so covered up that it was only by accident that they were discovered. That they are a direct menace to the health of that quarter of the borough everyone will have to admit. With the installation of sewers, the possibility of such a state of affairs would cease to exist. The sooner the sewers can come, the better it will be for the community.

Laying New Rails.

A gang of Italians employed by the New Jersey Central are now engaged in replacing old rails with new ones in this city. The work is now being done between the Park avenue bridge and Grant avenue, and was started last Sunday. Several months ago the eastbound tracks were replaced by new ones and the present work is a continuation of the improvement. The rails are much heavier than the old ones.

Building Addition.

A fifty foot addition is being built to the wholesale grocery store of C. Frank French, on Somerset street. The addition will be of brick and when completed, which will be in about four weeks, it will be used for storage. William Spencer is the mason and Howard V. Manning is the carpenter.

FUNERAL RITES FOR LATE ADAM DEALAMAN

Dunellen's Postmaster Laid at Rest With Many Friends to Mourn His Loss

CHURCH SERVICE HELD

MASONS CONDUCTED THE FINAL SERVICES AT THE GRAVE.

Impressive Services Held at Dunellen Presbyterian Church Yesterday Afternoon—Fraternal Orders Largely Represented.

Dunellen, April 27—Marked by an elaborate church service and ritualistic honors, all that was mortal of the late Adam Dealaman was consigned to its last resting place, yesterday afternoon. Sorrowing relatives and friends in large numbers gathered in the Presbyterian church where the obsequies were held and the remains were afterward followed to the grave by delegations from the fraternal orders to which he belonged. Among them were Anchor Lodge, F. and A. M., of Plainfield, William G. Halton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., and Court Dunellen, I. O. F., of Dunellen.

Rev. N. J. Sproul was directly in charge and devoted some time to eulogistic remarks, in which he dwelt upon the Christian fortitude of the deceased and the calm manner in which he awaited the end. He was followed by Rev. S. K. Doolittle who read scripture and Rev. A. F. Todd who offered prayer. During the service the Masonic quartette from Anchor Lodge composed by William Jaffery, Elmer D. Cutting, William N. Runyon and R. Wilson Derby rendered "Pass Me Not, O Gentle Saviour," "Nearer My God" and "Saved By Grace."

After being taken from the church, the body was escorted to Hillside cemetery where the Masonic ceremony was conducted by Anchor Lodge in charge of Worshipful Master Lewis I. VanAlstyne. The casket was borne by Blanchard Randolph, A. N. Randolph, Robert Giddes, Frank Wynkoop, Peter Emmons and Theodore Day.

JUNIOR GYMNASTICS.

Contest Held at Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium Saturday Afternoon.

The junior gymnasium contest at the Y. M. C. A. was held Saturday afternoon when some good work was done by the younger classes in this department. The judges were Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood and Boys' Secretary Kenneth Robbie. Three moves were made on the horse, parallel bars and rings.

Out of a possible 90 points the following scores were made: Steiner, 84½; Dewey, 83½; Stutsman, 83; Bently, 80½; Webster, 78½; Gilmore, 78; VanArsdale, 78; Ponds, 77; Freeman, 77; Caldwell, 75; Vail, 75; Ward, 73; Alpaugh, 73; Lambert, 73; Freeman, 72; Taylor, 71½; Laughlin, 70.

Informal Dances.

An informal dance was given Saturday evening in the old Common Council rooms by a number of young people of this city. There were twenty-five guests present and an enjoyable programme of dance was presented by Westervelt, who presided at the piano. Late in the evening light refreshments were served. Another dance will be given by the same people Saturday evening, May 16, at the same place.

Exchanged Property.

Lawyer Charles L. Moffett has exchanged his property corner of Duer street and Lincoln place, consisting of the grocery store and dwelling as well as the dwelling adjoining, with Levi Douglass Darby for a farm in Fanwood township and a hub factory in Rahway. Some minor changes will probably be made to the borough property, but Mr. Darby intends to lease the property as at present.

Switching Tower at Westfield.

The New Jersey Central has just ordered a switching tower erected at the Central avenue crossing, Westfield. The operator in the tower will handle the gates and switches through a compressed air system and will give all orders to trains passing east and west. Similar towers will be erected at Plainfield and Dunellen in the near future.

Engagement Announced.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss May Henry, of West Third street, to Edward Stranenbach, of West Fourth street. The wedding will take place during the coming summer.

Foresters' Excursion.

The members of Court Plainfield, Independent Order Foresters, are planning to run an excursion to Atlantic City during the coming summer. The date will be fixed upon later.

OPENING PLAY AT PARK CLUB

COMPETITION FOR PRESIDENT'S CUP RESUMED AT LOCAL LINKS.

The First Honors Divided Between Senator Charles A. Reed and Frank Rogers.

With the weather and the course about all to be desired, the regular season was opened at the Park Golf Club Saturday, with the initial play for the President's cup, weekly competition. There was a large field of players out to enjoy the popular game and a goodly number contested for the cup.

During the afternoon tea was served in the clubhouse by Mrs. Henry A. McGee, assisted by a number of young women. Henry A. McGee, as chairman of the house committee, was in charge.

In the competition for the President's cup, Senator Charles A. Reed and Frank Rogers divided first honors, each making a net score of 84. Rev. C. L. Goodrich made the next lowest net score and secured the one remaining point. Considering that most of the contestants have had little practice the scores posted were very good.

The scores for the President's cup are as follows:

	Gross	Hand	Net
Charles A. Reed	104	20	84
Frank Rogers	107	23	84
Rev. C. L. Goodrich	109	23	86
W. R. Faber	100	13	87
Nelson A. Miller	109	20	89
Leon R. Thurlow	114	24	90
C. W. Murray	111	20	91
S. St. J. McCutchen	107	15	92
Herbert S. Rogers	112	18	94
A. W. Anderson	114	20	94
T. U. Dudley, Jr.	124	30	94
Morgan T. Townsend	100	0	100

The standing for the President's cup is as follows:

	Points
Charles A. Reed	2½
Frank Rogers	2½
Rev. C. L. Goodrich	1

EXTENDED VACATION.

How Other Central Officials Will Fill Absent One's Place.

Superintendent of Terminals J. H. Meredith, of the New Jersey Central, who returned to duty recently from a short vacation, which was spent in an endeavor to regain his health, has found it necessary to take an extended leave of absence at the advice of his physicians. Superintendent E. E. Kerwin has assumed the duties at the terminal in Jersey City and the jurisdiction of Trainmaster Edgar Reed Ezgliah have been extended to include the terminal district.

SPRANG SURPRISE.

Miss Emily Shortman and Walter Foster Were Married Very Quietly Last Tuesday.

Much to the surprise of their host of friends, Miss Emily Shortman, daughter of Frederick Shortman, of West Fifth street, and Walter Foster, of West Sixth street, have announced their marriage. The ceremony was performed last Tuesday evening by Rev. W. Vincent Dawson, rector of St. Stephen's church, at the rectory on Belvidere avenue. There were no witnesses beyond the required number, it being the desire of both young people to avoid display.

The groom is one of the West End's most popular young men and is the son of Charles Foster, superintendent of the Pond Tool Works. He is employed in a Garwood factory.

Secured Three Prizes.

At the horse show at Lakewood Friday, Harvey Fisk, son of Former Mayor and Mrs. C. J. Fisk, of West Seventh street, secured three prizes. He secured two first prizes with "Elisiph Daro," in classes 16 and 21 and with "Kentucky Babe," pony jumper, class 38, he secured third prize.

Big Entry List.

Those in charge of the coming race meet at the Plainfield Driving Park are receiving assurances of a large entry list of the best horses of the State. An effort will be made to make the meet one of the best of any in recent years.

Another Chauffeur.

R. S. Randolph, of North and Watchung avenues, purchased Former Sheriff W. T. Kirk's Oldsmobile Saturday, and the latter will purchase a larger automobile. Mr. Randolph is now learning the intricacies of his new machine.

Inspection of Company K.

Monday, May 18, is the time set by Major Wanser for the inspection of Company K. The members of the Company are also planning for a field day some time during May, when other companies will be invited to take part.

Increase to Railroad Men.

The New Jersey Central has granted an increase of wages to engineers and firemen beginning with April 1. Those who received $2.25 to $2.50 per day on that date now get $2.55.

HOPES GATHERED IN BY COLORED PLAYERS

Cuban Giants Took Y. M. A. Nine Into Camp by the Score of 8 to 7.

MUCH LOOSE PLAYING

CLEVER FIELDING BY COLORED MEN WAS AN IMPORTANT FACTOR.

Neither Hewitt Nor Davis Was Very Effective—Misplays and Bungles Marked Hope's Fielding—200 People Watched Game.

Demoralization seemed to have invaded the camp of the Hope Y. M. A. baseball team, Saturday, when it went up against the Cuban Giants. The sable players defeated the West Enders by a score of 8 to 7 in a game that was marked by looseness. Something like 200 people witnessed the contest.

Hewitt was in the box for the Hopes and Davis did the twirling for the Cuban Giants. The former was in poor shape and the rest of the team seemed to pattern after him. In the early innings misplays and bungles were frequent with Dalley and Hardfelder pitching the others. Soon, the Hope's new center fielder, did some clever base stealing that was meritorious and Shortman showed up well.

The Giants' battery wasn't anything exceptional but the field work was fine. A feature of the game was a triple play made by Second Baseman Johnson in the fourth inning. Davis managed to hold the opposing batsmen down until the sixth inning and after that they landed on him regularly.

The two teams lined up as follows: Cuban Giants—Nelson, c; Moore, 1b; Britton, lf; McClain, 3b; Davis, p; Johnson, 2b; Hatchett, rf; Simmons, ss; Hopkins, rf. Hope—Dalley, 1b; Martin, 2b; Shortman, ss; Howell, 3b; Hewitt, p; Hardfelder, c; Stout, cf; Gordon, lf; Evans, rf. The score by innings was,

Cuban Giants	0	0	0	3	1	0	0	0	0	—8
Hope Y. M. A.	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	1	4	—7

WARREN'S NEW HOME.

Purchased Lot at Watchung and Fairview Avenues for Warren Chapel's New Site.

Decisive steps have just been taken by a recently appointed committee towards securing a new commodious place of worship for the members of Warren chapel. Councilman Robert Clark, Jr., of the borough, has sold his lot corner of Watchung and Fairview avenues, to Warren chapel and a handsome stone church and Sunday-school will be erected thereon at a cost of between $12,000 and $15,000.

This lot just purchased is an ideal one and the location could not be improved upon. When the edifice is erected the members of Warren chapel will have a place to be proud of and it will mean the growing needs of this thriving congregation.

YOUTHFUL GUESTS.

Spent Pleasant Time at Raymond Stevens' Birthday Party.

Raymond, the six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Stevens, of West Front street, celebrated the anniversary of his birthday Saturday and in the afternoon he entertained twenty-two of his little friends in honor of the event. Among the guests were two sons of a minister and two daughters of another minister. The afternoon was spent in playing games, listening to music and before the guests departed refreshments were served. The young celebrant received a number of pretty gifts.

New Engine Tested.

The new 500-horse-power compound engine recently installed at the Plainfield electric light station was tested Saturday afternoon and was found to work perfectly and to the satisfaction of all concerned. This makes the second engine of this type and horsepower placed at the station and it will be held in reserve in case the other engine breaks down at any time. The engine will be used for street lighting.

No Quorum At Park Club.

Owing to the lack of a quorum there was no business meeting of the Park Club, Saturday evening, when it was proposed to amend the constitution. The meeting will be held in the near future.

Council Meeting.

The Common Council will hold a regular session on Monday evening, May 4, at which time considerable business of importance will be transacted.

A New Lodge.

Dr. Carpenter, of Park avenue, is interesting a number of Plainfielders in a new lodge called Loyal Americans. An effort will be made to organize a lodge in this city soon.

MANY NEWSPAPER CHANGES

MAY WILL SEE A GENERAL SHAKEUP IN UNION COUNTY.

C. C. McBride Retires As Editor of The Elizabeth Journal—Jos. D. Lowden Takes His Place.

May 1 will see a number of important changes in the newspaper circles of Union county. Beginning that day, Charles C. McBride will retire as the editor of the Elizabeth Journal and his place will be filled by Joseph D. Lowden, who has been city editor of that paper. Mr. Lowden's chair will be occupied by M. F. Elderton, reporter on a local paper. Thomas M. Meir, of The Daily Press staff, has accepted the position left vacant by the departure of Mr. Elderton.

The Elizabeth Journal passes into the hands of a stock company of which Aug. S. Crane, business manager of the Journal, is the head. Mr. Crane will become publisher and business manager of the Journal. There will be several changes on the Journal among which will be the addition of James J. McGowan, who was at one time connected with The Daily Press as a reporter and has lately been on the staff of the Elizabeth Times.

NEW FACTORY BUSY.

The Rushmore Dynamo Company Is Rushed With Orders and Is Adding New Employes.

Matters at the Rushmore Dynamo Company's plant, which was recently located in the former carpet factory on South avenue, are already beginning to assume large proportions. Employes are being added every day and it is hoped to have the full force in operation within the next few weeks.

Orders have already been received which will require many months to fill and may mean considerable overtime. The company makes a specialty of dynamos, unique electric devices for advertising purposes and improved search-lights.

RESIDENTIAL CHANGES.

Which Were Effected Through the Mulford Agency.

Through the agency of E. C. Mulford & Son, real estate brokers of North avenue, C. E. Roberson, of Yonkers, has taken the residence at 128 Richmond street, and F. Soper, of Hillside avenue, has leased 414 East Fourth street. Dr. and Mrs. Wm. Jarechik, of New York, have again taken the Titsworth house at West Seventh and Division streets. This is the fourteenth summer that this family has been in Plainfield through the above agency. Thomas Barrow, of Federick, Ayer & Company, has leased the property at No. 2 Waynewood place.

DATE OF GRADUATION.

Changed for Training School of Muhlenberg Hospital.

The board of governors of Muhlenberg Hospital held its regular meeting, last evening, but nothing but routine matters were transacted, with one exception. Owing to other affairs taking place on the same evening, it was decided to change the nurse graduation date from May 21 to May 14. The class this year consists of two young women who have completed the course. The report of Superintendent Wyldie was submitted and showed the month to have been quite busy.

Will Sell Autos.

Andrew C. Thompson, of West Front street, a well-known local electrician, has recently organized an automobile concern in Elizabeth with Frederick Mackie, of that city. The name of the concern is to be the Mackie-Thompson Automobile Company with offices at 855 Magnolia avenue. The company will hold the sole agencies for a number of makes. Mr. Thompson has been working on some new ideas in automobiles in this city for some time and has been seen on the streets of the down town districts on many occasions testing his new machines.

Fund for Mission Work.

As a result of the entertainment given at the Casino recently by the Cup Bearers' Circle, King's Daughters, the sum of $180 was realized as profit. This money will be used for carrying on missionary work in Miss Sara Curry's nursery in New York among the young girls.

Former Pastor to Preach.

The members of Marcoonier chapel will be pleased to learn that they will have an opportunity next Sunday of hearing their former pastor, M. Seymour Purdy, of Rutgers Theological Seminary. He will preach at the services to be held in the afternoon.

Does Two Men's Work.

M. F. Hall, of 1018 West Third street, has secured a patent on a sheet-iron scoop and bag filler, it being claimed that the device will accomplish the work of two men.

Questioning Relief Department.

The legality of the Pennsylvania's relief department has become a subject of litigation in Toledo.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

The Standard Railroad of America.

PROTECTED THROUGHOUT BY THE INTERLOCKING SWITCH AND BLOCK SIGNAL SYSTEM.

ON AND AFTER APR. 5, 1903.

Trains will leave Elizabeth as follows:

7.03 a. m.—Fast Express, daily, with Parlor Car and Coaches to Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Chicago, Northern and Eastern Points.

7.41 p. m.—Western Express, daily, with Vestibule Sleeping Cars and Dining Car, to Pittsburg and Chicago, except Saturday, for Toledo.

8.07 p. m.—Pacific Express, daily, with Vestibule Sleeping Cars to Pittsburg and Chicago, daily for Knoxville, via Shenandoah Valley Route, for Cleveland, except Saturday.

Seaboard Air Line Express—1.57 p. m. daily.

For Newark—5.03, 6.03, 6.33, 7.03, 7.33, 8.03, 8.33, 9.03, 9.33, 10.03, 10.33, 11.03, 11.33 a. m., 12.03, 12.33, 1.03, 1.33, 2.03, 2.33, 3.03, 3.33, 4.03, 4.33, 5.03, 5.33, 6.03, 6.33, 7.03, 7.33, 8.03, 8.33, 9.03, 9.33, 10.03, 10.33, 11.03, 11.33 p. m. Sundays—4.33, 5.03, 5.33, 6.03, 6.33, 7.03, 7.33, 8.03, 8.33, 9.03, 9.33, 10.03, 10.33, 11.03, 11.33 p. m.

For Newark, via Bay Shore Line—7.08, 8.08, 9.08, 10.08, 11.08 a. m., 12.08, 1.08, 2.08, 3.08, 4.08, 5.08, 6.08, 7.08, 8.08, 9.08, 10.08, 11.08 p. m. Sundays—8.08, 9.08, 10.08, 11.08 a. m., 12.08, 1.08, 2.08, 3.08, 4.08, 5.08, 6.08, 7.08, 8.08, 9.08, 10.08, 11.08 p. m.

For Harrison—7.08, 8.08, 9.08, 10.08, 11.08 a. m., 12.08, 1.08, 2.08, 3.08, 4.08, 5.08, 6.08, 7.08, 8.08, 9.08, 10.08, 11.08 p. m. Sundays—8.08, 9.08, 10.08, 11.08 a. m., 12.08, 1.08, 2.08, 3.08, 4.08, 5.08, 6.08, 7.08, 8.08, 9.08, 10.08, 11.08 p. m.

For Newark, via Market Street Station—7.08, 8.08, 9.08, 10.08, 11.08 a. m., 12.08, 1.08, 2.08, 3.08, 4.08, 5.08, 6.08, 7.08, 8.08, 9.08, 10.08, 11.08 p. m. Sundays—8.08, 9.08, 10.08, 11.08 a. m., 12.08, 1.08, 2.08, 3.08, 4.08, 5.08, 6.08, 7.08, 8.08, 9.08, 10.08, 11.08 p. m.

For Newark, via Central Railroad of New Jersey Terminal—5.03, 6.03, 6.33, 7.03, 7.33, 8.03, 8.33, 9.03, 9.33, 10.03, 10.33, 11.03, 11.33 a. m., 12.03, 12.33, 1.03, 1.33, 2.03, 2.33, 3.03, 3.33, 4.03, 4.33, 5.03, 5.33, 6.03, 6.33, 7.03, 7.33, 8.03, 8.33, 9.03, 9.33, 10.03, 10.33, 11.03, 11.33 p. m. Sundays—4.33, 5.03, 5.33, 6.03, 6.33, 7.03, 7.33, 8.03, 8.33, 9.03, 9.33, 10.03, 10.33, 11.03, 11.33 p. m.

For Newark, via Subway—5.03, 6.03, 6.33, 7.03, 7.33, 8.03, 8.33, 9.03, 9.33, 10.03, 10.33, 11.03, 11.33 a. m., 12.03, 12.33, 1.03, 1.33, 2.03, 2.33, 3.03, 3.33, 4.03, 4.33, 5.03, 5.33, 6.03, 6.33, 7.03, 7.33, 8.03, 8.33, 9.03, 9.33, 10.03, 10.33, 11.03, 11.33 p. m. Sundays—4.33, 5.03, 5.33, 6.03, 6.33, 7.03, 7.33, 8.03, 8.33, 9.03, 9.33, 10.03, 10.33, 11.03, 11.33 p. m.

For Elizabeth—5.03, 6.03, 6.33, 7.03, 7.33, 8.03, 8.33, 9.03, 9.33, 10.03, 10.33, 11.03, 11.33 a. m., 12.03, 12.33, 1.03, 1.33, 2.03, 2.33, 3.03, 3.33, 4.03, 4.33, 5.03, 5.33, 6.03, 6.33, 7.03, 7.33, 8.03, 8.33, 9.03, 9.33, 10.03, 10.33, 11.03, 11.33 p. m. Sundays—4.33, 5.03, 5.33, 6.03, 6.33, 7.03, 7.33, 8.03, 8.33, 9.03, 9.33, 10.03, 10.33, 11.03, 11.33 p. m.

For Rahway—5.03, 6.03, 6.33, 7.03, 7.33, 8.03, 8.33, 9.03, 9.33, 10.03, 10.33, 11.03, 11.33 a. m., 12.03, 12.33, 1.03, 1.33, 2.03, 2.33, 3.03, 3.33, 4.03, 4.33, 5.03, 5.33, 6.03, 6.33, 7.03, 7.33, 8.03, 8.33, 9.03, 9.33, 10.03, 10.33, 11.03, 11.33 p. m. Sundays—4.33, 5.03, 5.33, 6.03, 6.33, 7.03, 7.33, 8.03, 8.33, 9.03, 9.33, 10.03, 10.33, 11.03, 11.33 p. m.

For Perth Amboy—6.44, 9.03, 11.07 a. m., 12.56, 3.06, 5.06, 6.56, 9.13, 11.36 p. m. Sundays—12.56 night, week-days; Sundays—12.56 and 11.36 p. m.

For Fort Hancock—1.30 p. m. Sundays, 3.07 and 8.36 p. m. week-days.

For Trenton—1.03, 8.03, 7.33, 8.03, 9.03, 9.27, 9.33, 10.03, 10.33, 11.03, 11.33 a. m., 12.03, 12.33, 1.03, 2.03, 3.03, 4.03, 5.03, 6.03, 7.03, 8.03, 9.03, 10.03, 11.03 p. m. Sundays—1.03, 8.03, 9.03, 10.03, 11.03, 11.33 a. m., 12.03, 1.03, 2.03, 3.03, 4.03, 5.03, 6.03, 7.03, 8.03, 9.03, 10.03, 11.03 p. m.

For Woodbridge—6.44, 9.03, 11.07 a. m., 12.56, 3.06, 5.06, 6.56, 7.34, 9.13, 11.36 p. m. Sundays—12.56 night, week-days. Sundays—12.56, 11.36 a. m., 11.36 p. m.

For Perth Amboy—6.44, 9.03, 11.07 a. m., 12.56, 3.06, 5.06, 6.56, 7.34, 9.13, 11.36 p. m. Sundays—12.56 night, week-days. Sundays—12.56 and 11.36 a. m., 8.36 and 9.13 p. m.

For East Millstone—1.30 p. m., 12.56, 3.07 and 8.36 p. m. week-days.

For Trenton—1.03, 8.03, 7.33, 8.03, 9.03, 9.27, 9.33, 10.03, 10.33, 11.03, 11.33 a. m., 12.03, 12.33, 1.03, 2.03, 3.03, 4.03, 5.03, 6.03, 7.03, 8.03, 9.03, 10.03, 11.03 p. m. Sundays—1.03, 8.03, 9.03, 10.03, 11.03, 11.33 a. m., 12.03, 1.03, 2.03, 3.03, 4.03, 5.03, 6.03, 7.03, 8.03, 9.03, 10.03, 11.03 p. m.

For Long Branch, Asbury Park, Ocean Grove and Point Pleasant—New York Shore Limited, 9.33 a. m. Express, 1.03, 4.03 p. m. Sundays—9.03 a. m. Express, 4.03 p. m. Sundays—4.03 p. m.

For Lambertville, Phillipsburg and Belvidere, 8.07 a. m., 4.07 p. m. Sundays—8.07 a. m. 4.07 p. m. and 8.07 p. m. Sunday.

For Freehold and Jamesburg, via Monmouth Junction—8.07, 11.07 a. m., 4.07 and 6.15 p. m. week-days. Sundays—8.07 a. m.

For Long Branch, Asbury Park, Ocean Grove and Point Pleasant—New York Shore Limited, 9.33 a. m. 4.03 p. m. week-days. Express, 1.03, 4.03 p. m. week-days. Sundays—9.03 a. m. Express, 4.03 p. m. Sundays—4.03 p. m.

For Matawan, Keyport and Intermediate Stations—9.33 a. m. week-days. Sundays—9.03 a. m.

For Red Bank, Matawan, Keyport and Intermediate Stations—9.33 a. m. week-days. Sundays—9.03 a. m.

For Somerville—8.07, 11.07 a. m., 4.07 p. m. week-days. Sundays—8.07 a. m.

For Bound Brook—8.07, 11.07 a. m., 4.07 p. m. week-days. Sundays—8.07 a. m.

For Bridgeport—1.30 p. m. week-days.

For Bound Brook—1.30, 6.44, 7.30, 8.03, 9.03, 9.27, 9.33, 10.03, 10.33, 11.03, 11.33 a. m., 12.03, 12.33, 1.03, 2.03, 3.03, 4.03, 5.03, 6.03, 7.03, 8.03, 9.03, 10.03, 11.03 p. m. Sundays—1.03, 8.03, 9.03, 10.03, 11.03, 11.33 a. m., 12.03, 1.03, 2.03, 3.03, 4.03, 5.03, 6.03, 7.03, 8.03, 9.03, 10.03, 11.03 p. m.

For Woodbridge—6.44, 9.03, 11.07 a. m., 12.56, 3.06, 5.06, 6.56, 7.34, 9.13, 11.36 p. m. Sundays—12.56 night, week-days. Sundays—12.56, 11.36 a. m., 11.36 p. m.

For Perth Amboy—6.44, 9.03, 11.07 a. m., 12.56, 3.06, 5.06, 6.56, 7.34, 9.13, 11.36 p. m. Sundays—12.56 night, week-days. Sundays—12.56 and 11.36 a. m., 8.36 and 9.13 p. m.

For Fortescue, Dunbury and Williamsport—8.07 a. m. week-days. Sundays—8.07 a. m. 7.07 p. m. night. Sundays—8.07 a. m., 7.07 p. m.

For Baltimore and Washington—2.14, 11.14 a. m., 12.01, 3.14, 7.20 p. m. Washington Express, 12.01 night. Sundays—2.14, 11.14 a. m., 12.01, 7.20 p. m., 12.01 night.

Chance cars at Bound Brook.

For tickets, time tables, etc., apply to C. H. BURT, Gen. Pass. Agent.

Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Time Table in Effect February 4, 1903.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Leave South Plainfield 10.34 a. m.

Daily (except Sunday) local to Manchunk, connecting with the Black Diamond express for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Detroit and Chicago.

Leave South Plainfield 6.40 p. m.

Daily, Solid Vestibule train for Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Detroit and Chicago. Observation and principal intermediate stations, except Manchunk.

For time of local trains see pocket time tables. Telephone No. 113-B

FRANK ROWLEY, City Ticket Agent.
218 West Front Street, Plainfield, N. J.

Arrival and Departure of Mails

PLAINFIELD POSTOFFICE.

Office opens 7 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
On Saturday's close half hour later.

MAILS CLOSE AS FOLLOWS:

Arrive—1.00, 9.05, 11.30 a. m., 2.05, 5.00, 8.00 p. m.
Close—1.00, 9.00 a. m., 2.00, 5.00, 8.00 p. m.

SOMERVILLE and RARITAN.

Arrive—8.40 a. m., 2.55 and 7.00 p. m.
Close—8.40 a. m., 1.45 and 5.00 p. m.

ELIZABETH—Direct.

Close—1.00 p. m.

PENNSYLVANIA—West or Boston.

Close 12.05 p. m.

NEWARK—Direct.

Arrive—8.40 a. m., 2.55 and 7.00 p. m.
Close—1.00 a. m., 1.00, 5.00 and 8.00 p. m.

PENNSYLVANIA—West or Boston.

Arrive—7.00, 8.05, 11.30 a. m., 2.55 and 7.00 p. m.
Close—1.00 and 5.00 a. m., 1.00, 5.00 and 8.00 p. m.

Through fast mail for East, close 1.00 and 8.00 p. m.

Through fast mail for West and South close 5.00 and 8.00 p. m.

WATCHUNG, WARRENVILLE & GALLIA, (Rt. Bethel)

Arrive—1.00 p. m., Close—8.00 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 9.00 to 10.00 a. m.
Mail closes at 9.15 p. m.

E. H. BIRD, P. M.

THEATRICAL.

The varied kinds of applause which the "Song of the Cities" in "The Prince of Pilsen" receives at the Broadway theatre is a subject for study. In almost every audience in a New York theatre there are persons from several of the eight principal cities that are represented by as many young women in "The Song of the Cities." When the St. Louis verse is sung the St. Louisans in the audience applaud vigorously; when the Boston verse is sung the applause is reserved and dignified; when reference to Chicago is made the stamping of feet is frequently heard and when Miss Donnee, as the New Orleans girl dances to the tune of Dixie sometimes a "Rebel yell" is heard. "The Prince of Pilsen" will begin its seventh week Monday.

Beginning with the vaudeville season of next fall, another variety house will be added to the Keith circuit, making an even dozen in this country. The location of this new temple of amusement will be Pawtucket. Edward F. Albee, proprietor of the Providence Keith House, has leased the Pawtucket Opera House, which will be renovated and redecorated. The Pawtucket house will be run in connection with the Keith circuit, bookings of attractions being made from the New York agency of the company, and will be under the local management of Charles Lovenberg. The property is owned by Eli T. Taylor, from whom the lease has been taken. The proprietorship of Mr. Albee starts September 1.

Endeavor Officers.

At the annual meeting of the Crescent Avenue church Christian Endeavor Society, held recently, the following officers were elected to serve for one year: President, J. Stanley Voorhees; vice president, Mrs. Noble C. King; recording secretary, Miss May Voorhees; corresponding secretary, Clarence Sutphen; treasurer, Walter Sampson.

Reading System

New Jersey Central.

Stations in New York, Foot of Liberty, and South Ferry, Whitehall Streets.

TIME TABLE IN EFFECT Feb. 1, 1903.

[illegible]

We Can Sell Your Farm, Factory, Business or Residence. No matter where located. We have sold hundreds of others. Why not your's? We have an original method which MONEY saves. Send us description and price and we will explain how.

MONEY to Loan on Good Mortgages.

Offices in all principal cities; highest references, Bradstreet's, Dun's, Etc. Real Estate Bldg., Phila., Pa. Established 1887.

Vegetable and Flower SEEDS

Reliable and Tested. Catalogue Mailed Free

WEEBER & DON

Seed Merchants 114 CHAMBERS STREET NEW YORK

A. WOLFF.

Manufacturer of

CIGARS.

And dealer in all kinds of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, and smokers' articles. Removed from 231 West Front street, to South side of Somerset street, first door from Front street, and solicits the patronage of his friends and the public generally.

AGENTS WANTED.

LIFE OF T. DEWITT TALMAGE, by his son, REV. FRANK DEWITT TALMAGE and associate editors of Christian Herald. Only book endorsed by Talmage family. Enormous profit for agents who act quickly. Outfit ten cents. Write immediately. CLARK & CO., 507 S. Fourth Street, Phila., Pa. Mention this paper. 1 M

GEORGE W. DAY,

General Auctioneer.

Sales of Personal Property solicited P. O. Box 132, Dunellen, N. J., or address in care of Constitutionalist Terms reasonable

Woolston & Buckle,

PAINTERS.

Wall Papers, Painters' Supplies

141-145 North avenue.

GIVES HOME TO FRESH AIR CAMP

A. C. Morgan, of New York, Announces Gift at Meeting in Interest of Camp.

TO CONTINUE THE WORK

Committees Appointed to Take Charge at Camp This Summer—Plans for Miss Curry and Her Little Tots at Netherwood Camp This Summer.

Under the auspices of the various Christian Endeavor Socities of Plainfield, a meeting was held in the First Baptist church, last Monday, in the interest of the Netherwood Fresh-Air Camp, which is in charge of Miss Sara Curry, of New York. There was a generous response to the invitation extended for the Endeavorers to be present and renew their interest in this work. There were representatives present from the Little Missionary's Day Nursery, New York, and they made short addresses, as did also local Endeavorers.

L. H. Biglow, Jr., who last year took the initiative in this work in Plainfield, was in charge of the meeting and conducted the devotional exercises. Prayer was offered by Rev. E. M. Rodman, after which Mr. Biglow in a few words explained the object of the work at Netherwood and the object of the meeting. He told how the work was blessed last year and how it was possible to close the season with a balance in the treasury.

Miss Sara Curry made a short address, in which she told of the fresh-air work at Netherwood, relating many touching incidents about the parents and their children and told of the work being continued during the winter in New York with such excellent results and the conversions of many families. She said that at one time there were 125 children and mothers at the camp last year at one time and in all her eight years experience in fresh-air work she considered last year's effort the best and most productive of excellent results.

Mr. Biglow, in the absence of J. Wesley Johnson, treasurer, presented a brief financial report and mentioned a few of the many donations received during the past season. The total receipts for the work were $1,138.79 and the expenditures $880.71, leaving a balance of $250. Of the amounts received there was $43 15 which George A. Chapman collected while on a summer trip, while $138 was contributed by guests from the Hotel Netherwood. Through a baseball game arranged for the benefit of the camp $33 50 was realized and through The Daily Press $17.25 was received for the work.

Other items of interest include repair work by A. S. Runyon. J. Wesley Johnson donated the silverware used at the camp. G. J. Tobin gave a bath-tub and made the water connections free of charge, while the Plainfield Water Supply Company gave water free. There were gifts of useful articles from Hotel Netherwood guests. The W. C. T. U. loaned camp stools and W. A. Woodruff insured the camp property free of charge. Mr. Johnson also gave a quantity of coal and David Hand frequently gave the children and mothers free rides and supplied the camp with vegetables. Dr. Carrie, visiting physician to the camp, made ninety-five visits to the camp and was instrumental in saving the lives of five children. Mr. Biglow stated that the camp was opened sixty-six days at an average cost of $12 a day.

Other short addresses were made by Miss Florence G. Hawkins and David M. Torrey, each telling of the great good results from the fresh-air work and the spirit of love exhibited by all who spent the summer there. This was followed with the singing of hymns by eight of the children from the Day Nursery on New York. There were also vocal solos by the little ones and one of the boys sang two hymns sweetly. Some of the children also gave recitations.

